Summary

This collection consists of records from the office of Irene Bueno, who served as Special Assistant to the President in the Chief of Staff’s Office and on the Domestic Policy Council from 1999 to 2001. Bueno worked on immigration issues during her tenure in the White House. It contains letters, memos, reports, email, books, publications, pamphlets, and handwritten notes

Scope and Content Note

This collection contains the files of Irene Bueno, who served as Special Assistant to the President in the Chief of Staff’s Office and on the Domestic Policy Council from 1999 to 2001. Bueno worked on immigration issues during her tenure in the White House. Previously, she served as an advisor on immigration issues to the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) in her position as Deputy Assistant Secretary for Legislation for the agency. The records in this collection cover a wide range of immigration issues, including work visa programs, civil rights, race relations, crime, immigrant literacy, naturalization, health issues, and immigration reform legislation. The records highlight the visa work programs for H1B visas and H2A visas. H1B workers are nonimmigrants who hold temporary work visas established by the Immigration Act of 1990. The law states the temporary workers can hold a visa for three years, which can be extended for another three years. H1B workers are highly skilled, educated professionals such as architects, engineers, doctors, computer programmers, economists, and college professors. The industries employing these workers cite the lack of skilled U.S. workers to fill these temporary jobs. H2A visas provide non-immigrant “guest workers” jobs in the agricultural field to supply farmers with laborers during peak growing seasons on the condition there are not enough domestic workers to fill the positions. The cap for H1B workers was raised in 1998 from 65,000 to 115,000. As of 2000, there was no annual cap on H2A visas. Records concerning immigration reform legislation in this collection include a proposed amendment to the Nicaraguan Adjustment and Central American Relief Act (NACARA), the Latino and Immigrant Fairness ACT (LIFA), the Legal Immigration and Family Equity Act (LIFE), the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act (IIRIRA) of 1996, and the Violence Against Women Act, (VAWA). Also included are records concerning Prop. 187, an initiative approved by California voters in 1994 to deny public health care, welfare payments, and education to illegal immigrants. The initiative was ruled unconstitutional by a federal judge in response to a lawsuit brought by Hispanic organizations. Governor Gray Davis opposed Prop. 187, which his predecessor, Pete Wilson, supported. Bueno's collection includes communications from various organizations, agencies, and commissions, such as the Association of Asian Pacific Community Health Organization (AAPCHO), the Asian Pacific Americans (APA), the Civil Rights Coordinating Council (CRCC), the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), the National Council of La Raza (NCLR), the Urban League, the U.S. Commission on Immigration Reform (CIR), and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). Other topics in this collection include, Limited English Proficiency (LEP), federal public benefits, Deferred Enforced Departure (DED), Temporary Protected Status (TPS), FIX 96 (immigrant concerns of 1996 legislation that restricted rights and benefits of immigrants), human rights, human trafficking, and welfare. The records contain letters, memos, reports, email, books, publications, pamphlets, and handwritten notes.
