MEETING WITH HILL STAFF
September 17, 1997

TALKING POINTS

Background

- As many of you may know, the President and First Lady hosted a conference in April that focused on children in the earliest years of life. Called The White House Conference on Early Childhood Development and Learning: What New Research on the Brain Tells Us About Our Youngest Children, the conference used compelling new evidence from neuroscience to call for increased attention to the needs of our youngest children.
- Child care emerged as a key issue demanding national attention. The President, at that Conference, called for a further dialogue on child care issues, and announced that he and Mrs. Clinton would host a follow-up conference at the White House devoted to child care.

Next meeting: further

Conference

- The White House Conference on Child Care will take place on October 23.
- We have four goals for the conference:
 1. To establish child care as a national priority and legitimize it as an issue in which all Americans have a stake, using both child development and workforce/economic arguments;
 2. To educate the nation -- particularly parents -- about the need for providing children of all ages with supportive, high quality care, and defining the components of quality child care (including school-age care programs);
 3. Illustrate tangible ways that all sectors of society (families, government, employers, military, religious community, philanthropy) contribute to the system, by highlighting model efforts nation-wide; and
 4. To launch a policy discussion that addresses key challenges in child care.
- We are in the intermediate stages of planning the Conference -- we've thought about the basic structure, but have not yet made definitive decisions about speakers or issued invitations. We do plan to do both in the next few weeks.
- The general framework for the conference will be two panel discussions -- one focused on what we mean by quality child care and why it's important and the other focused on effective models nation-wide. [Turn to Jen/Nicole for further discussion]

policy

- Like the April convening, we hope to have satellite conferences in as many states as possible to spur national discussion.
- Most important, we see this as the beginning, not the end, of a discussion about where we need to move on child care policy -- both at the federal and state levels.

Process

- To prepare for the Conference and beyond, we are running an internal policy process focussing on three issue areas: 1) protecting our children from harm in child care and promoting quality, 2) enhancing affordability, and 3) addressing the critical need for school-age care programs. The purpose of these discussions is to examine current policy and devise recommendations on where to invest limited additional resources.
- We don't anticipate announcing comprehensive policy at the Conference itself, as it will take place ahead of our own budget process. However, we do expect at some point -- perhaps at the State of the Union -- to propose policy that would require legislative action and/or to endorse pending bills.
- As we move ahead, we want to continue to consult with you, both on bills being developed on the hill and on our policy ideas. We would also appreciate hearing your ideas on the White House Conference.

Don't know how extensive our proposal will be Ideas?? want to work closely

9-11 Mth w/ Home state re child care

Quality - active, not superv.

gen'l criteria

did want to describe quality program.

DCR - huge list better in Repub, balance it w/ discussion of supply -
where are gaps in supply?

That's a more constructive comm also: shining some light on availability / affordability for low-income families - very central enable parents to afford CC >

invest more in qual CC

Ed - Training of staff has to part of quality analysis.
Conservation + benefits / trying to prevent hi turnover.

DCR - How about enabling women to stay home - whether flextime

Repubs want see what you're doing as a balanced act - will encourage them to do their spin.

69 hard pass - Have to not turn this into
"menality of ^{women in} workforce" discussion
