Two thoughts:

--May is teen pregnancy prevention month and it is also the one year anniversary of the National Campaign to Prevent Teen Pregnancy. The Campaign's full board will be in town early May to celebrate (the Board is full of celebrities and politicians). Could make a good early May event.

--On the child care front, two of the three ideas we sent over aren't bad: 1) expanding the use of child care resource and referral agencies and 2) training welfare moms to become child care workers per the Kentucky program. Are these two ideas knicked out?

Thge religious groups are on the sidelines at this point as DOJ and OPM are trying to work it out. We also have to do outreach to the non-participant religious groups before the matter is finalized but there has been steady progression accross the board, and wonder of wonders, there is an endpoint in sight.

Also, is there any movement on the HHS/Chrisitan Science piece or are we just letting it go?

I think we should have the agency draft the language to fix the problem and transmit it to the Hill with a letter saying Congressional intent was clearly to allow states to use their own dollars to assist legal immigrants, the state of Oregon has an innovative proposal to do this, and we need this technical fix to make it happen. Then the state of Oregon and NGA should lobby the Hill to try to get it added to the welfare technicals package when House Ways and Means marks up on March 20th or when the Senate does so at a later date in the Senate. This would require Ag Cmte and Ways and Means/Finance sign off. We need to move very fast to get this added to the technicals but that's the best vehicle (only thing likely to be signed into law anytime soon).

I would note that legal counsel seems to be missing one point about Congressional intent -- yes, the law bans most legal immigrants from the food stamp program, but it also expressly says "a State is authorized to determine the eligibility for any State public benefits..." (section 412). I believe we view the proposal as Oregon wanting to provide a state benefit that use food stamps as a mechanism to deliver that state benefit. Since Congress allowed states to spend their own funds on legal immigrants but expressly forbid receipt of most federal benefits, wouldn't we need to have the state reimburse the feds for the cost of producing the food stamps? Is that part of Oregon's proposal?

Subject: California trip

I spoke with Delaine Eastin this evening and confirmed that she is still committed to endorsing our testing proposal and expressing her intent for California to participate in it. She is prepared for an event, with high tech ceo's on the 24th. She has suggested a few schools in Union City --diverse, working class community 45 minutes from SF, with excellent schools that are involved in her challenge to adopt challenging academic standards, great public support, and cutting-edge technology initiatives -- as a possible site for the event.

I don't know if this works logistically, and told her we'd get back to her. The good news is we have the confirmation we need to proceed.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: BRUCE REED [AND OTHERS?]

SUBJECT: GUIDANCE TO STATES REGARDING TWO WELFARE REFORM ISSUES

States are currently seeking guidance on two welfare reform issues: whether they can privatize certain administrative functions of the Food Stamp and Medicaid programs, and whether worker protection laws -- particularly the minimum wage (Fair Labor Standards Act) -- apply to work programs under the new welfare law.

Privatizing Food Stamp and Medicaid Administration

The new welfare law explicitly allows states to contract with private entities to administer Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF). Now, Texas wants to contract out not only TANF but Food Stamps and Medicaid as well and Wisconsin wants to do so for TANF and Food Stamps. Federal approval for these requests will establish a policy for other states as well.

The states that want to privatize believe that a competitive contracting process will result in greater program efficiencies while protecting recipients. (Private contractors determining eligibility for Medicaid and Food Stamps would have to follow federal eligibility rules, since those programs remain federally guaranteed individual entitlements.)

Organized labor is concerned that privatizing government functions will displace state and local government workers (with a resulting loss of union membership). They also charge that it will undermine quality and beneficiary rights to due process and confidentiality. They fear that private firms will have an incentive to "cut corners" if they determine eligibility for benefits.

We all believe that allowing some privatization makes sense -- the question is how much. Below, after some additional background information, we outline options for your consideration.

Background

Federal agencies and the state of Texas have been negotiating since June 1996 over the state's proposal to privatize the administration of TANF, Medicaid, Food Stamps, and certain other federally-funded nutrition programs. The state legislature passed the plan with bipartisan support, with endorsements from Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and Comptroller John Sharp. Under the Texas plan, private contractors would conduct the interview and eligibility determination process, and the state would certify the final determinations. The State also would retain control over the appeals and quality control processes. An estimated 15,000 state jobs would be eliminated or transferred to the private sector. The state would require bidders to comment on whether they plan to hire displaced government workers.

Texas state officials are becoming increasingly impatient with HHS and USDA for not yet having ruled on their proposal. In a recent letter to HHS, state officials threatened to proceed with the project without Federal approval. State officials also point out that they have pledged to reinvest the savings from their plan in additional health and human services programs, and that these savings could provide health coverage for 150,000 Texas children. Rep. Charlie Stenholm, one of the Administration's strongest welfare reform allies, complained about the delay to Frank Raines in a February 24th letter, saying the state of Texas is "willing to make accommodations to address administration concerns." Secretary Shalala has promised Texas an answer within the next week or two.

If the Administration does not allow private contracting for Food Stamps and Medicaid, then states may drop plans to contract out TANF, since having separate eligibility systems creates administrative difficulties. For example, it would require some individuals to go to one location to apply for TANF and another to apply for Food Stamps and Medicaid. Having a one-stop eligibility center would mean it would have to run by the government.

Options for Consideration

We agree that certain functions should continue to be performed by government employees -- appeals, due process, and the certification of eligibility itself. The Texas proposal does reserve these functions for government. We are also in agreement that we should grant Texas at least a partial waiver, allowing them to privatize certain back office functions. [Question: is this right? what part of their waiver request does Ken want to grant?]

Option 1 -- Insist that state employees retain control over the eligibility interview. OMB recommends requiring that workers who conduct eligibility interviews continue to be government employees. This position is closer to the spirit of existing law and policy, which requires public employees to perform all these functions (unless we grant a waiver). It reflects an effort to identify functions that are inherently governmental in nature, because they require the use of discretion to spend government funds. The interview is a key part of that determination. We do not know how this position would affect the number of public jobs lost.

Option 2 -- Allow Texas to Proceed. [Question: Does DPC disagree with any part of the Texas proposal?] DPC recommends approval of the entire proposal. Given the strong bipartisan support for the Texas proposal, it is not credible for the Federal government to assert that we are uniquely capable of identifying and defending the best interests of clients. Governor Bush will complain loudly that we are denying their request simply to protect union jobs while costing the state taxpayers money. Furthermore, there is no evidence that the unions' concerns about quality and erosion of clients' rights are valid, and it should be possible to construct the contract so that firms don't have a financial incentive to deny benefits to clients.

Application of Labor Laws

As states begin to redesign their work programs to meet the increasing work participation rates in the new welfare law, a critical question for both the labor movement and the states is whether worker protection laws -- particularly the minimum wage law (Fair Labor Standards Act) -- protect welfare recipients who take part in workfare or subsidized employment programs. For the Administration, there are questions of both law (do we believe the law requires such worker protections to apply?) and of policy (do we want these protections to apply?).

Background

A review conducted by the White House and relevant agencies has concluded that current law requires the payment of at least the minimum wage to most people in workfare and wage supplementation programs. On this reading, participants in such programs usually would count as "employees" under the Act, thus qualifying for minimum wage protection. (A few might count as "trainees," not entitled to the minimum wage, under normal labor law principles that apply in other circumstances as well.) In addition, the interagency group believes OSHA, unemployment insurance, and anti-discrimination laws will apply to welfare workers in the same way they do for other workers. The Treasury Department has not yet decided whether monies paid to these welfare recipients will be subject to FICA and other taxes, and we unfortunately do not believe the IRS will rule for several weeks.

Legally, the interagency group believes no other interpretation is possible, since the new welfare reform law -- unlike past reform statutes -- is silent on the issue. Therefore the existing labor laws must apply to the extent that welfare recipients meet the established definition of "employee." Previous welfare reform laws exempted work programs from certain worker protection laws. The 1988 Family Support Act, for example, required states to pay the minimum wage for work programs but explicitly said that they need not confer employee status to such workers. States did not need to pay more than the usual grant amount for individuals in workfare because the law required individuals to work only as many hours as their grant, divided by the minimum wage, would dictate, and it did not allow states to subsidize private jobs by more than the usual grant amount.

Administration Position

Thus, we believe that current law requires the application of worker protections to welfare-to-work programs. Bruce has given the AFL private assurances that the Administration will adopt this basic position, and the Vice President dropped some strong hints to the same effect at the recent AFL meeting. Many governors will be very unhappy with this result and they may implore the Congress to enact certain exceptions. Thus, the Administration is likely to be faced with the policy question of whether we would oppose any worker protection exemptions for welfare-to-work programs.

We should expect the announcement of Administration policy to provoke strong criticism from the states. On March 3rd, Governor Whitman wrote to the President saying that applying minimum wage laws to workfare participants would “end welfare reform as we know it” by placing states in the position of either failing to meet the law’s work requirements or incurring large new costs. Even The New York Times editorial board, in discussing union plans to organize workfare participants, has opined that “what they are doing does not amount to a job” -- a view consistent with what many States and members of Congress believe. (Many expect welfare workers to be eligible to unionize. Recent newspaper articles have suggested that some unions will undertake large-scale organizing efforts targeting welfare recipients, and we probably should expect some of these efforts to succeed.)

The states are only partly right that the minimum wage will increase their costs. Requiring the minimum wage will not make it more expensive for states to help welfare recipients find unsubsidized private sector jobs, nor will it make it more expensive for states to subsidize private sector jobs. But the minimum wage will increase the costs for some states to run public sector workfare programs. Here’s why:

- In many states, the current cash welfare benefit will fall short of a minimum wage salary for 20 hours a week of work. As the work requirement in the law increases to 25 and then to 30 hours, and as the minimum wage also increases, more and more states will discover that their welfare grants are insufficient.
- Some of these states will be helped by the fact they can use food stamps as payment for workfare for everyone but families with children under age six. (Current law allows food stamps to be used to subsidize private sector jobs for any food stamp recipient; however, only parents with children at least age six can be required to work in exchange for their food stamp benefits in a workfare program. Only time-limited waivers have been granted in the past).
- Allowing states to count the value of other benefits -- child care, housing, or transportation -- toward the minimum wage would remove this problem, but this proposal raises a number of legal and policy questions that make it difficult (though not impossible) to pursue.

Even if both TANF and food stamp benefits are counted toward the minimum wage, a number of Southern states will immediately come up short. As the minimum wage increases and the work requirements become more severe, other states will join them over time. This expense will encourage state efforts to find private sector jobs for welfare recipients -- a policy we believe is justifiable. But it will make it more difficult for some states to use public sector jobs as a last resort to help meet the work rates, thus making many low-income Southern states susceptible to financial penalties.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM BRUCE REED
ELENA KAGAN

Subject Welfare to Work Outreach Strategy

---

This memo is a response to a Feb. 25 meeting between the Chief of Staff's Office, DPC, White House Counsel, Public Liaison, Intergovernmental Affairs, and HHS at which welfare to work outreach strategies were discussed. Following are decisions made about additional outreach steps, a summary of ongoing outreach efforts, and a suggested structure to create a more comprehensive and coordinated outreach and communications effort.

Outreach Decisions

The following decisions were made at the 2/25 meeting. Outreach and external coordination will be focused on four key groups: state governments and their social service offices; the business community; the nonprofit sector; and the faith communities. Outreach efforts will include but will not be limited to recruiting nonprofits, businesses, and religious organizations to the effort, building comprehensive lists of those committed, creating a referral network for individuals and organizations to relevant programs, assisting businesses and other entities with welfare to work programs, and preparing written material to educate states, nonprofits, business, and faith organizations about best practices on welfare to work.

A main vehicle for outreach will be to establish four private spokes people -- one for each of the outreach areas -- who will carry the Administration's welfare to work message to state governments, and the business, nonprofit and religious communities.

However, counsel has written that it will be legally difficult to recruit individuals to volunteer as spokes people for the welfare to work effort. Counsel says that there is no problem discussing issues with private individuals and indicating that we would like them to work on particular matters. However, we cannot direct a private person's activity and we must be careful not to give that person the impression that she holds an official position or that her activities are government sanctioned, or that she is acting on behalf of the White House.

Outreach Efforts To Date

Several outreach activities have been ongoing since the passage of the welfare law. Following is a summary of those ongoing activities.

- You are traveling to various state legislatures to challenge legislators to make welfare reform a success, and you are offering the legislators examples of what is working in other states and communities. HHS is currently putting together a suggested list of other states you might visit.
- You have met with and talked to 14 CEOs interested in becoming involved in the welfare to work effort, many of whom are also working with Eli Segal, the NGA, and the National Alliance of Business (NAB). You announced five of these CEOs during your State of the Union address. Additionally, the Office of Public Liaison and the DPC are building a list of more corporations interested in becoming involved. Presently, the list tops 100 and is growing. We are sharing this list with Eli Segal and others.
- You and Mrs. Clinton have met with religious leaders both at the White House Prayer Breakfast and at the Congressional Prayer breakfast, both times challenging the faith community to help with the welfare to work effort. The Office of Public Liaison is currently coordinating a broader outreach effort to all faith-based institutions.
- Public Liaison has held several briefings for organizations interested in welfare to work and will continue to do so.
- The Department of Health and Human Services has consistently provided technical assistance and guidance to states as they implement their welfare to work plans.

Also key to our outreach will be to connect with and build on newly emerging welfare to work efforts. Following are private outreach efforts underway.

- Eli Segal's Work Now (WN) will soon be established as a 501 (c)(3) organization whose mission will be to help businesses of all kinds move people permanently from welfare to work. WN's customers will be the businesses themselves, rather than welfare recipients, legislatures, Governors, or state welfare agencies. WN will encourage, mobilize, reward, and provide technical assistance to large and small companies and a broad range of so-called intermediaries that act as job placement and retention organizations.
- The NGA is beginning a process that connects Governors with private sector employers interested in hiring welfare recipients. In addition, the NGA will be collecting model programs and best practices for distribution in states. (White House Intergovernmental Affairs recently facilitated a meeting between Eli Segal and the NGA to discuss the welfare to work initiatives of both entities and possible areas of collaboration.)
- The National Alliance of Business (NAB), a Washington, DC-based business supported and led organization that helps companies with workforce development, is beginning its welfare to work initiative. NAB hopes its initiative will make employers involvement in the welfare to work effort more effective.

Coordinating the Outreach Strategy

Though outreach efforts are underway within the Administration and through private nonprofit organizations, both the outreach efforts and the welfare to work message are fragmented and lack coordination. We believe we should build upon existing and new outreach efforts to create a coordinated and comprehensive outreach and communications strategy. Following is a brief outline of what such a strategy might look like.

The following three-part plan should be run by the White House -- specifically the DPC, Office of Public Liaison, Communications, Cabinet Affairs, and Intergovernmental Affairs -- and is designed to ensure that the work provisions of the new welfare law are successfully implemented.

- Interagency Coordination. Coordinate all intergovernmental efforts related to welfare to work, particularly those ongoing at HHS, Labor, HUD, and the Departments of Commerce and Transportation, (add National Service Corps, etc.) through regular meetings and conference calls with a designated group. With the help of the involved agencies, catalogue all welfare to work related activities ongoing at the agencies into one central document and regularly update that document.
- Outreach. Through outreach, build a comprehensive list of state legislators, nonprofit organizations, businesses, and faith organizations interested in becoming involved in the welfare to work effort who we need to educate. At the same time, build a list of those states, legislators, and private organizations with good programs in place to whom we can refer others.
- Communications. Discover, disseminate, and celebrate model public and private welfare to work efforts and existing Federal government programs that will help states, nonprofits, businesses, and religious organizations structure successful welfare to work programs. Disseminate information through written materials, public liaison briefings, the World Wide Web, and a speakers bureau made up of representatives from all of the agencies and departments involved.

FROM: OMB LEGISLATIVE AFFAIRS

DATE: MARCH 13, 1997

SUBJECT: LEGISLATIVE REPORT

CONGRESS TODAY (3/13):

SENATE

No Votes -- The Senate continued consideration of S.J.Res. 18, the Hollings Constitutional Amendment on Campaign Finance Reform.

HOUSE

Passed (251-175) H.J.Res. 58 - Disapproving the Certification of the President Regarding Foreign Assistance for Mexico During Fiscal Year 1997 (Modified Closed Rule, 2 hours debate).

[SAP sent, 3/13: Administration strongly opposes]

- o Adopted (213-209) the Rule
- o Adopted (212-205, 9 present) Hastert Amendment, which gives Mexico 90 days to meet certain criteria, and forestalls decertification as an ally in the war on drugs.
- o Adopted (228-195) the Gilman Substitute as amended by Hastert. The Gilman amendment overturns the President's certification of Mexico, but allows the President to waive economic sanctions if he certifies to Congress that imposition of the sanctions would harm the national interest of the US.

Passed (395-0) H.R. 852 - Paperwork Reduction Amendments (Open Rule; 1 hour debate)

[House Rules SAP sent, 3/11: No objection. Administration supports the goal of the bill, though legislation is not necessary to accomplish the goal.]

CONGRESS TODAY (3/13):

SENATE

No Votes -- The Senate continued consideration of S.J.Res. 18, the Hollings Constitutional Amendment on Campaign Finance Reform.

HOUSE

Passed (251-175) H.J.Res. 58 - Disapproving the Certification of the President Regarding Foreign Assistance for Mexico During Fiscal Year 1997 (Modified Closed Rule, 2 hours debate).

[SAP sent, 3/13: Administration strongly opposes]

- o Adopted (213-209) the Rule
- o Adopted (212-205, 9 present) Hastert Amendment, which gives Mexico 90 days to meet certain criteria, and forestalls decertification as an ally in the war on drugs.
- o Adopted (228-195) the Gilman Substitute as amended by Hastert. The Gilman amendment overturns the President's certification of Mexico, but allows the President to waive economic sanctions if he certifies to Congress that imposition of the sanctions would harm the national interest of the US.

Passed (395-0) H.R. 852 - Paperwork Reduction Amendments (Open Rule; 1 hour debate)

[House Rules SAP sent, 3/11: No objection. Administration supports the goal of the bill, though legislation is not necessary to accomplish the goal.]
