Ammunition feeding devices -- magazines and clips -- are gun parts. They are used to contain bullets; ammunition is separate. A clip can be reloaded over and over again. If the owner is careless in its handling or doesn't maintain it, it can become useless. Like any other gun part, if it is well maintained, it can last a lifetime.

TEXT:

This is an update on possibilities for a charter school event. We would appreciate your thoughts on next steps.

Currently we see the following options:

I. Washington State bill-signing ceremony

There are two windows within which this event could occur:

1) The bill passed the House by a wide margin on Friday, and goes to the Senate next. If the bill receives final approval before April 20, the governor has 5 days to sign, and we would have to move very quickly. We think the earliest that the bill would be ready for signing is April 17; the end of this period would be approximately April 24.

2) If the bill is passed on or after April 20, the Governor has 20 days to sign. If the bill is passed on April 21, then the Governor would have until approximately May 11 to sign. If the bill is passed on the last day of the session April 27, then the governor would have until approximately May 17.

Mike is going to be contacting the Governor Locke's office to let them know that we are interested in doing something with them and ask them to keep us updated on the progress of the bill.

In planning an event in Washington, we need to be aware that, by the time a signing ceremony is arranged, the legislature could easily have gone out. Would we want the governor to call the legislature back into session?

This would be a good place to announce some of our products, such as the national study, the guidebook for school boards/chartering authorities, and possibly the new grant competition; however, if we wanted to create 2 different events, we could separate out some of these pieces.

II. White House Event

This could either be a radio address or something else. Ideally it would occur close in time to (either just before or after) the WA charter bill signing. We could use this as the occasion to announce our package of charter schools products.

III. Another Event Connected to State Legislation

Down the line, we may see other opportunities to visit legislatures, take part in charter bill signings, etc. As of now, we are not aware of any state where the combination of timing, quality of legislation and other dynamics are anywhere close to what they currently are in Washington. However, we will keep our ears to the ground.

Please let us know how you think we should proceed. Thanks.

Subject: FYI - POTUS asked Prop 209 question

FYI - The President received a prop 209 question today at the press conference with Chretien:

Q Thank you, Mr. President. Mr. President, today a California federal appeals court upheld Proposition 209. If the state proceeds with dismantling affirmative action programs, will that help or hinder efforts to ease racial tensions in America?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, I believe if states are precluded from trying to take appropriate steps that are not quotas and that do not give unqualified people a chance to participate in whatever it is -- the economic or educational life -- but do recognize the disadvantages people have experienced, I think that will be a mistake. And I think we'll all have to regroup and find new ways to achieve the same objective.

I think -- as you know, my position on affirmative action is that a lot of the things that we had been doing should be changed. I've worked hard to do that at the national level. But my formulation of "mend it, don't end it" I still think is the best thing for America. And so -- and that's what I said in California during the election that people disagreed with me. But I think that we will see that, for example, universities are better, more vital places if they are racially and ethnically diverse. I believe that. And I think that it ought to be a legitimate for any university to be able to seek an appropriate amount of diversity among people who are otherwise qualified to be there.

The lawyer for survivors held a press briefing today, which has precipitated a lot of questions re President's position on an apology. Scheduling is looking at a mid-May date for the apology event. At our meeting, we agreed to advise Rahm/McCurry that the WH should say in this news cycle that the President decided in March to issue an apology and will meet w/survivors as soon as that meeting can be scheduled. Kitty in particular felt that POTUS would not be happy to see news reports that he's still considering what to do when he signed a memo a month ago saying we should go ahead w/the apology. I agreed. Not sure yet how McCurry's office has followed up.

HHS has put three policy proposals on the table to announce at an event -- one with some promise, but I've asked them to flesh it out more. I'll keep you posted.

MEMORANDUM FOR HEADS OF EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES

SUBJECT: Expanded Family and Medical Leave Policies

As you know, I have strongly supported meeting Federal employees' family and medical needs through enactment of the Family and Medical Leave of 1993 (FMLA) and the Federal Employees Family Friendly Leave Act of 1994 (FEFFLA). However, Federal employees often have important family and medical needs which do not qualify for unpaid leave under the FMLA or sick leave under the FEFFLA. I ask you to take immediate action to further assist Federal workers in balancing the demands of work and family.

Last year I proposed to expand the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993. My legislation would allow Federal and eligible private sector workers 24 hours of unpaid leave each year to fulfill certain family obligations. Under the legislation, employees could use unpaid leave, scheduled 7 days in advance, to participate in school activities directly related to the educational advancement of a child; accompany children to routine medical and dental examinations; and tend to older relatives needs.

I ask that you take immediate action to use your existing authorities to implement the FMLA expansion set forth in the proposed legislation. Specifically, I ask that you ensure that employees may schedule and be granted up to 24 hours of annual leave, compensatory time off, credit hours under flexible work schedules, or leave without pay each year for the following activities:

- (1) SCHOOL ACTIVITIES -- to allow employees to participate in school activities directly related to the educational advancement of a child. This would include parent-teacher conferences, interviewing for a new school, or participating in volunteer activities supporting the child's educational advancement. Here, as in my proposed legislation, "school" refers to an elementary school, secondary school, Head Start program, or a child care facility licensed under State law.
- (2) ROUTINE FAMILY MEDICAL PURPOSES -- to allow parents to accompany children to routine medical or dental appointments, such as annual checkups or vaccinations. Although these activities are not currently covered by the FMLA, the FEFFLA does permit employees to use up to 13 days of sick leave each year for such purposes. Agencies should assure that employees are able to use up to 24 hours of annual leave, compensatory time off, credit hours, or leave without pay for these purposes in the rare cases when sick leave is not available to employees.
- (3) ELDERLY RELATIVES' HEALTH NEEDS -- to allow employees to accompany an elderly relative to routine medical appointments or other professional services related to the care of the elderly relative, such as making arrangements for housing, meals, phones, banking services, and other similar activities, when these activities are not covered by the FMLA or the FEFFLA.

Automated Records Management System
Hex-Dump Conversion

This new policy will assure that employees can schedule and receive up to 24 hours away from the job each year for these exceptional family and medical circumstances. To the extent possible, I urge you to accommodate employee needs as mission requirements permit even when it is not possible for employees to anticipate or schedule leave in advance for these purposes.

I encourage you to use a partnership approach with your employees and their representatives in developing an effective program that balances the employees need to succeed at work and at home. I ask agencies, unions, and management associations to continue to work together to assess and improve the use of family friendly programs and to make certain that employees are aware of the expanded family and medical leave policy.

The NGA has sent a letter requesting a POTUS meeting with the Medicaid Task Force (Miller, Chiles, Dean, Leavitt, Voinivich, Thompson) for late April or early May. It is clear from conversations with Ray, Executive Director of NGA, (who says he's calling Jack and Chris) and from the dems that the purpose of the meeting is to make clear to the POTUS their opposition to the per capita cap and to reiterate that they will not support children's health initiative unless we drop the cap. Ray is pretty worked up as are the dems. They say they've heard from committee staffers that for us the cap and disproportionate share cuts are not negotiable and must have in the budget talks.

Any advice on a response? The Govts plan to meet with the leadership on the Hill as well. Even the dems are saying this is a huge fight for them--and they are saying that our plan forces them to reduce benefits and cuts kids off.

TEXT:

Here is a more coherent description of today's conference call on the big Summit speech, with Prof. Benjamin Barber of Rutgers, Baer, Waldman, Ann Lewis, and me today. It didn't particularly lead anywhere. Barber kept saying that we have to hit big citizenship themes, and avoid falling into the trap of just making Summit commitment announcements like everyone else.

Don hearkened back to the original goal of AmeriCorps -- to provide a common experience of service for all young people, as a rite of initiation to adulthood as the military once was. He was playing with the idea of a general call to service for all young people. Given the difficulty of expanding AmeriCorps, people wondered whether we could expand Learn and Serve, the Corporation's program for school age kids, but that seemed a bit lame.

We could see how many new service opportunities we could provide for young people -- CADCA's commitment to train 200,000 young people to be "leaders" in anti-drug stuff; more and different academies, like police; give them to Joel Berg/USDA to volunteer on public lands/environment or do gleaning. We'll discuss further at our meeting tomorrow afternoon.

Welfare to Work Cabinet Meeting
The White House
Cabinet Room
1:30 p.m.-2:30 p.m.
April 10, 1997

Announcement

Today, President Clinton holds the first full cabinet meeting of his second term to receive each agency's response to his March 8, 1997 directive asking all Federal agencies to develop plans to hire welfare recipients. All of the 21 (???) Cabinet agencies as well as the 120 (??) Non-Cabinet agencies and departments have submitted plans to the President through the Office of the Vice President. To date, the 21 Cabinet agencies estimate the combined number of welfare recipients they are able to directly hire into the Federal government over a four year period totals 9,437.

Each head of a Federal agency or department was asked to assess its hiring capacity and to develop a hiring plan suited to that particular agency's workforce, resources, and needs. All agencies have responded, though some chose not to set out specific numerical goals and instead opted for more extensive surveying and outreach to assess hiring capacity.

While every agency plan is different, most plans address the following elements: Agency hiring capacity and available resources; plans for outreach to potential employees both within the Federal government and in the private for-profit and nonprofit sectors through government contractors and grantees; job preparation including formal training, job readiness and education; and plans to retain employees once hired including addressing child care and transportation issues, as well as using existing Employee Assistance Programs and creating mentoring or buddy programs to address personal issues that sometimes arise.

Background

On March 8, 1997, President Clinton directed each head of a Federal agency or department to use all available hiring authorities to hire and retain welfare recipients in jobs in the government. The President called for agencies to prepare individualized plans for hiring welfare recipients and asked the agencies to explore and report on ways to help low-income employees gain access to the Earned-Income Tax Credit (EITC), transportation subsidies, and affordable child care.

Since signing the historic welfare reform law, the President has urged businesses, non-profit organizations, and religious groups across the nation to help make its promise of opportunity real by offering jobs to welfare recipients. By taking this action, the President ensures that the federal government, as the nation's largest employer, does its fair share to move welfare recipients to work.

The Clinton Strategy

The Federal government hiring effort is only one piece of President Clinton's larger strategy to make welfare reform a reality. First, the President is visiting state legislatures to share the country's best welfare to work practices, including job subsidies to employers, and to encourage every state to rise to the challenge he has laid out to them. Second, the President has enlisted key members of the business community in his effort, soliciting pledges of help from Sprint, Monsanto, UPS, Burger King, United Airlines, and Marriot, and others. Third, he continues to reach out to nonprofits and the faith community, similarly urging them to meet his challenge and offering them information and expertise on how to do so. Finally, the President has included money in his FY 1998 budget for several welfare to work initiatives. The President's plan includes: Tax credits and other incentives for businesses that hire people off welfare; incentives for job placement firms and states to create more jobs for welfare recipients; and training, transportation, and child care to help people go to work.

Facts and Figures

Federal Government Employees

- There are 1.9 million Federal employees nationwide
- Federal employees represent 1.5% of this country's workforce
- There are 1,513 employees in the Executive Office of the President -- a number including all employees of the Office of Management and Budget, the US Trade Representative, the National Security Council, the Domestic Policy Council, the National Economic Council, and others

Hiring Power In the U.S.

There are 826,000 U.S. businesses with more than 20 employees

There are 1.1 million nonprofit organizations (not including congregations).

There are 135,119 congregations with more than 200 members and 205,583 congregations with more than 100 members.

The Welfare Rolls

As of January 1997, there were XX million adults receiving cash assistance, or a total of XX million people when including children.

There are XXX fewer people on welfare than the day the President took his first oath of office. That is the biggest drop in history in the welfare rolls.

Before the President signed the welfare reform bill, he worked with states to test reform strategies, giving 43 states waivers from federal rules to experiment with reforms that required work, imposed time limits, and demanded personal responsibility.

Q&A
The Federal Government Plan to Hire Welfare Recipients

Question: Hiring 9,437 welfare recipients over four years seems ambitious. Are these figures realistic?

Answer: This is an ambitious plan and it is a testament to the leadership and creativity of this Administration's Cabinet. However, you must remember that these numbers are preliminary estimates and may go up or down depending on future budgets as well as the success of agency outreach and retention plans and other factors such as the strength of the economy.

Question: Why have some agencies set specific numerical targets while others have not?

Answer: The directive asked agency and department heads to each prepare an individualized plan for hiring welfare recipients that included a survey of where jobs exist within each agency. Some agencies have set target numbers as motivating devices. Others have decided that it is too early in this stage of the process to set numbers and have, instead, developed extensive outreach and recruiting plans.

Question: What sort of hires are included in the 9,437 figure?

Answer: All agencies have surveyed their existing hiring capacity and have reported available entry-level positions through all existing hiring capacities including the Worker-Trainee program the President encouraged them to use. The 9,437 number refers only to those who would be hired directly by the Federal government. Additionally, many of the agencies will be encouraging their grantees and contractors to hire welfare recipients, thereby further increasing the number of recipients likely to be hired.

Question: How are you going to hire welfare recipients at a time government is downsizing and budgets are tough?

Answer: It is true that the government has been downsizing. Since the President took office, he has actually reduced the White House workforce by XXX%. Other agencies have similarly reduced their workforces. However, downsizing does not mean that there are no jobs to fill. As in any organization, there is a natural amount of turnover in jobs at all levels. The Federal agencies have surveyed current vacancies and have committed to reaching out specifically to the welfare population to fill those positions.

Question: How many Federal employers are there and what percentage of the workforce does that represent?

Answer: There are 1.9 million Federal employees that account for 1.5% of the nation's workforce.

Question: How much will this effort cost?

Answer: This effort should not cost anything. All personnel offices conduct recruitment and outreach as part of their normal activities and build in these necessary activities as part of their normal budgets. Essentially, we are expecting agencies to carry this out within their existing budgets.

Question: Will agencies be hiring only in Washington, D.C.?

Answer: No. We're talking about jobs all over the country. More than 85 percent of federal jobs are located outside the Washington metropolitan area.

Question: The White House has over 1,500 employees. Why is the White House hiring only six recipients?

Answer: The White House is ready to hire six welfare recipients now. Once the White House program is in place and the initial six are hired, we expect to continue to hire more.

Question: In which departments will the White House place the first six welfare recipients?

Answer: One of the first welfare recipients will be placed in the Domestic Policy Council. Others will be placed through the Executive Office of the President.

Question: Aren't you favoring welfare recipients over everyone else?

Answer: We are not creating any preference such as the one that exists for veterans. We are encouraging the departments to use an existing hiring authority that allows departments to cut through red tape and hire entry-level workers quickly and easily. We are also encouraging outreach efforts. This is the same commitment that the President has asked of the private sector.

Question: Why are we specifically helping welfare recipients rather than other poor people?

Answer: We make no apologies about the fact that we are asking the agencies to hire needy single mothers with children. These are the people whom it is most crucial to reach and put on the track of work. We want to help these families move from dependence on welfare to independence through self-sufficiency.

Question: Now that the agencies have turned in their plans, what are the next steps?

Answer: Agencies will begin working right away to fill available jobs by reaching out to welfare recipients to notify them of those jobs, and to fully use the existing programs to help recipients take and keep the jobs.

Question: Why did it take the Administration so long to get its hiring program off the ground?

Answer: The Federal hiring process is full of complex rules and regulations. We sat down and looked at all of these rules to find the best way through them. We discovered an existing track of hiring authority -- The Worker-Trainee Program -- that would allow agencies to hire entry-level people quickly and easily, without all the usual hurdles. Additionally, we have encouraged the agencies to use other existing hiring authorities to tap into this labor pool. We are thrilled that so many of the agencies presented us with creative and ambitious plans that show their commitment and leadership to the pressing issue of moving welfare recipients permanently into the workforce.

As we get closer to issuing this interim verification guidance from DOJ, there are still 2 outstanding definitions of the welfare law we need to finish up. One, means tested benefits, is about to get issued. The other is "federal public benefits." Federal public benefits are denied to illegals, so this is an illegals issue.

In a nutshell, HHS has proposed a definition that draws the line at programs that require some establishment of eligibility. All the lawyers (HHS, DOJ, OMB) seem to think this is fine legally. From a practical standpoint, the major program that this definition would affect is community health centers, and maybe some similar discretionary health programs. Illegals WOULD be eligible for these programs.

There don't seem to be any other major impacts (although HHS hasn't shared their paper with us yet). Education is specifically OK because the law exempts them. Housing would appear to be off-limits to illegals because there is an eligibility determination.

This comes down to a policy call. I hear Ken is probably fine with this proposal. It would be good to decide this before the interim verification guidance goes out in the next 2 weeks or so, because if this is missing from it HHS will get a lot of questions. Reactions?

TEXT:

Secretary Shalala has gotten a letter from Gov. Chiles saying the worst thing about appying FLSA will be the state having to pay FICA taxes. It reminded HHS that we should engage Treasury, as well as Labor, HHS, and Ag, in the rollout if possible. HHS has had no luck in moving Treasury along and thought we might be able to.

Talking Point on Prop. 209 -- Our official position at this time:

Yesterday, a three-judge panel of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals overturned a district court injunction which had stayed implementation of Proposition 209, ruling that the initiative was constitutional. Obviously, we are disappointed with the panel's decision. The U.S. is a party to the case as amicus curiae and had argued forcefully at the Preliminary Injunction stage that Prop. 209 was unconstitutional. The Department of Justice is considering what next steps can be taken by the U.S. in its role as amicus in the case.

No one has really put forth any alternatives. DOJ had a definition that just kind of repeated the law and didn't offer any guidance. The most obvious alternative would be to go tougher and not have the rule about eligibility, thereby not letting nonqualified aliens get these community health services.

Not sure about the means tested linkage to FLSA -- it's not an obvious programmatic linkage, but it is a risk, especially since we are hearing rumors that the Cong. leadership may try to stick in a definition of means tested benefits into the technical corrections bill. If that's true, it would not be the best timing to announce this now. We'll hear more from HHS on that later today.

Subject: Definition of federal public benefits

As we get closer to issuing this interim verification guidance from DOJ, there are still 2 outstanding definitions of the welfare law we need to finish up. One, means tested benefits, is about to get issued. The other is "federal public benefits." Federal public benefits are denied to illegals, so this is an illegals issue.

In a nutshell, HHS has proposed a definition that draws the line at programs that require some establishment of eligibility. All the lawyers (HHS, DOJ, OMB) seem to think this is fine legally. From a practical standpoint, the major program that this definition would affect is community health centers, and maybe some similar discretionary health programs. Illegals WOULD be eligible for these programs.

There don't seem to be any other major impacts (although HHS hasn't shared their paper with us yet). Education is specifically OK because the law exempts them. Housing would appear to be off-limits to illegals because there is an eligibility determination.

This comes down to a policy call. I hear Ken is probably fine with this proposal. It would be good to decide this before the interim verification guidance goes out in the next 2 weeks or so, because if this is missing from it HHS will get a lot of questions. Reactions?

Announcement

Today, President Clinton holds the first full cabinet meeting of his second term to receive responses to his March 8, 1997 directive asking all Federal agencies to develop plans to hire welfare recipients. All of the Cabinet agencies, as well as over 100 non-Cabinet agencies and departments, have submitted hiring plans to the President through the Office of the Vice President. To date, the Cabinet agencies estimate they can directly hire into the Federal government 8,000 welfare recipients during the first two years of this program. And some agencies have already committed to hiring at least 2,000 more over the next two years bringing the initial total to 10,000. Further, most agencies will be encouraging their grantees and contractors to hire welfare recipients.

The President is also releasing today new data showing that welfare caseloads have declined by 2,755,000 or 20 percent during his first term and he is announcing plans to meet in May with a large group of corporate CEOs to discuss their specific commitments to make the welfare reform effort a success.

Background

On March 8, 1997, President Clinton directed each head of a Federal agency or department to use all available hiring authorities to hire and retain welfare recipients in jobs in the government. The President called for agencies to prepare individualized plans for hiring and retaining welfare recipients.

Each head of a Federal agency or department was asked to assess its hiring capacity and to develop a hiring and job retention plan suited to that particular agency's workforce, resources, and needs. All Cabinet agencies and over 100 non-Cabinet agencies and departments have responded.

Since signing the historic welfare reform law, the President has urged businesses, non-profit organizations, and religious groups across the nation to help make its promise of opportunity real by offering jobs to welfare recipients. In today holding a special Cabinet meeting to discuss the hiring plans of all agencies, the President helps to ensure that the federal government, as the nation's largest employer, does its fair share to move welfare recipients to work.

Making Welfare Reform Work

The Federal government hiring effort is only one piece of President Clinton's larger strategy to make welfare reform a reality. First, the President is visiting state legislatures to share the country's best welfare to work practices and to encourage every state to rise to the challenge he has laid out to them. Second, the President has enlisted key members of the business community in his effort, soliciting pledges of help from major CEOs and working to build a larger network of business people who will hire welfare recipients. Third, he continues to reach out to nonprofits and the faith community, similarly urging them to meet his challenge and offering them information and expertise on how to do so. Finally, the President has included $3.6 billion in his FY 1998 budget for several welfare to work initiatives including tax credits and other incentives for businesses that hire people off welfare; incentives for job placement firms and states to create more jobs for welfare recipients; and transportation and child care to help people go to work.

Facts and Figures

Automated Records Management System
Hex-Dump Conversion

Federal Government Employees

- There are 1.9 million Federal employees nationwide
- Federal employees represent 1.5% of this country's workforce
- Last year, the federal government hired over 190,000 permanent and temporary workers.
- There are 1,513 employees in the Executive Office of the President -- a number including all employees of the Office of Management and Budget, the US Trade Representative, the National Security Council, the Domestic Policy Council, the National Economic Council, and others

Additional Hiring Power In the U.S.

- There are 826,000 U.S. businesses with more than 20 employees
- There are 1.1 million nonprofit organizations (not including congregations).
- There are 135,119 congregations with more than 200 members and 205,583 congregations with more than 100 members.

The Welfare Rolls

- There are 20 percent fewer people on welfare than the day the President took his first oath of office -- the largest decline in the history of the welfare system.
- The welfare caseload fell by 2,755,000 from 14,115,000 in January 1993 to 11,360,000 in January 1997, decreasing as much in the last four years as it increased in the first 25 years of the program.
- Before the President signed the welfare reform bill, he worked with states to test reform strategies, giving 43 states waivers from federal rules to experiment with reforms that required work, imposed time limits, and demanded personal responsibility. In 1993, the President made work pay better than welfare for 15 million low income families through an expansion of the Earned Income Tax Credit which he proposed and the Congress adopted.

Q&A
The Federal Government Plan to Hire Welfare Recipients

Question: How many welfare recipients is the Federal government comitted to hiring?

Answer: To date, the Cabinet agencies estimate they can directly hire into the Federal government 8,000 welfare recipients during the first two years of this program. And some agencies have already committed to hiring at least 2,000 more over the next two years bringing the initial total to 10,000. Further, most agencies will be encouraging their grantees and contractors to hire welfare recipients.

Question: Hiring a total of 10,000 welfare recipients over four years seems ambitious. Are these figures realistic?

Answer: This is an ambitious plan and it is a testament to the leadership and creativity of this Administration. However, you must remember that these numbers are preliminary estimates and may go up or down depending on future budgets as well as the success of agency outreach and retention plans, and other factors such as the strength of the economy.

Question: These numbers seem modest given the enormity of the problem. Why are they so skimpy?

Answer: Actually, these numbers represent what is essentially the Federal government's fair share of the effort to hire welfare recipients. The Federal government is approximately 1.5 percent of the nation's workforce. To meet its portion of the President's challenge to move 2 million people off of welfare by the year 2000--which amounts to moving about 700,000 adults into the workforce -- the Federal government ought to hire about 10,000 welfare recipients. As you can see on the chart we've handed out, the Federal government has committed to hiring close to 8,000 welfare recipients in the first two years, and we fully expect that number to grow once agencies complete more surveying and have their programs fully operational.

Question: What sort of hires are included in the 10,000 figure?

Answer: All agencies have surveyed their existing hiring capacity and have reported available entry-level positions through all existing hiring capacities including the Worker-Trainee program the President encouraged them to use. The 10,000 number refers only to those who would be hired directly by the Federal government. Additionally, many of the agencies will be encouraging their grantees and contractors to hire welfare recipients, thereby further increasing the - number of recipients likely to be hired.

- Question: What are the common elements of each plan?
- Answer: While every agency plan is different, most plans address the following elements: Agency hiring capacity and available resources; plans for outreach to potential employees both within the Federal government and in the private for-profit and nonprofit sectors through government contractors and grantees; job preparation including formal training, job readiness and education; and plans to retain employees once hired including addressing child care and transportation issues, as well as using existing Employee Assistance Programs and creating mentoring or buddy programs to address personal issues that may arise.
- Question: How are you going to hire welfare recipients at a time government is downsizing and budgets are tough?
- Answer: It is true that the government has been downsizing. Since the President took office, he has actually shrunk the Federal government to its smallest size in three decades. However, downsizing does not mean that there are no jobs to fill. As in any organization, there is a natural amount of turnover in jobs at all levels. The Federal agencies have surveyed current vacancies and have committed to reaching out specifically to the welfare population to fill those positions.
- Question: How many Federal employers are there and what percentage of the workforce does that represent?
- Answer: There are 1.9 million Federal employees that account for 1.5% of the nation's workforce.
- Question: How much will this effort cost?
- Answer: This effort should not cost anything. All personnel offices conduct recruitment and outreach as part of their normal activities and build in these necessary activities as part of their normal budgets. Essentially, we are expecting agencies to carry this out within their existing budgets.
- Question: Will agencies be hiring only in Washington, D.C.?
- Answer: No. We're talking about jobs all over the country. More than 85 percent of federal jobs are located outside the Washington metropolitan area.
- Question: The White House has over 1,500 employees. Why is the White House hiring only six recipients?

Answer: While this number might sound small, it is actually comparable to other agency hiring targets when compared to the percentage of each agency's workforce. For example, the Department of Transportation has committed to hiring 206 welfare recipients, the GSA 65 and DoD 1,605--but each is hiring approximately the same percent of its total Federal employees.

Further, the White House is ready to hire six welfare recipients now. Once the White House program is in place and the initial six are hired, we expect to continue to hire more over the coming years.

Question: In which departments will the White House place the first six welfare recipients?

Answer: One of the first welfare recipients will be placed in the Domestic Policy Council, the agency primarily responsible for welfare reform. Others will be placed through the Executive Office of the President.

Question: Aren't you favoring welfare recipients over everyone else?

Answer: We are not creating any preference such as the one that exists for veterans. We are encouraging the departments to use an existing hiring authorities, including programs that allow departments to cut through red tape and hire entry-level workers quickly and easily. We are also encouraging outreach efforts. This is the same commitment that the President has asked of the private sector.

Question: Why are we specifically helping welfare recipients rather than other poor people?

Answer: We make no apologies about the fact that we are asking the agencies to hire needy single mothers with children. These are the people whom it is most crucial to reach and put on the track of work. We want to help these families move from dependence on welfare to independence through self-sufficiency.

Question: Now that the agencies have turned in their plans, what are the next steps?

Answer: Agencies will begin working right away to fill available jobs by reaching out to welfare recipients to notify them of those jobs, and to fully use the existing programs to help recipients take and keep the jobs.

Question: Why did it take the Administration so long to get its hiring program off the ground?

Answer: The Federal hiring process has lots of complex rules and regulations and it took some time to figure out the best ways for agencies to hire entry-level people quickly and easily. We are thrilled that so many of the agencies presented us with creative and ambitious plans that show their commitment and leadership to the pressing issue of moving welfare recipients permanently into the workforce.

Question: Does the President think federal government hiring is the way to reform welfare?

Answer: The Federal government's role is an important one, but it is only part of the formula for success. The President wants the Federal government to do exactly what he has asked the private sector to do -- help meet his challenge to move 2 million people off the welfare rolls by the year 2000, and to continue to move recipients into work thereafter. The President is extremely pleased that all of his Cabinet Secretaries and other agency and department heads have response so enthusiastically.

Question: What can you tell me about the meeting the President is planning with business leaders in May?

Answer: As you know, the President has met several times with key business leaders to discuss their role in making welfare reform a success. Most recently, the President met with 14 CEOs of major corporations, each of whom pledged to become involved in this effort. Now, this May, the President will again meet with many of those CEOs as well as 25 additional CEOs to talk about their specific commitments to the welfare to work effort.

Question: Nearly half of the total hiring figures you've cited for all Cabinet agencies come from the Department of Commerce's commitment to hire 4,000 people to help with the Census. Don't these temporary hires artificially inflate your numbers?

Answer: We are extremely pleased that the Department of Commerce has committed to hiring so many people over the next four years to do work on the 2000 Census. Most of these jobs will last up to six months while some will last up to one year. There will also be options for some of the individuals to be converted to permanent employment. However, as you know, every job is significant because whether it is short term or long term, a job offers a welfare recipient valuable work experience and on-the-job training that can help her achieve permanency in the labor market. Further, even without the Census numbers, the Cabinet Secretaries' numbers are extremely significant and only represent a start. Once agency programs are up and running, we will likely see the numbers continue to rise.

I. PURPOSE

You will hold the first full Cabinet meeting of your second term to receive responses to your March 8, 1997 directive asking all federal agencies to develop plans to hire welfare recipients. All of the Cabinet agencies as well as over 100 non-Cabinet agencies and departments have submitted hiring plans through the Office of the Vice President. To date, the Cabinet agencies estimate they can directly hire into the Federal government 8,000 welfare recipients during the first two years of this program. And some agencies have already committed to hiring at least 2,000 more over the next two years bringing the initial total to 10,000. Further, most agencies will encourage their grantees and contractors to hire welfare recipients. You will introduce two Social Security Administration workers who are former welfare recipients and congratulate them on their success. Information on these women is provided below.

During your remarks at the top of the meeting, you will also release new data showing that welfare caseloads have declined nationally by 2,755,000, or 20 percent, during your first term. You will announce plans to meet in May with a large group of corporate CEOs to discuss their specific commitments to make the welfare reform effort a success.

II. BACKGROUND

Following is information on the former welfare recipients you reference in your remarks:

Rebecca Rae Wilson of Clinton, Iowa. Rebecca is a single mother of two, who was on welfare while attending Clinton Community College. Last year, she got a part-time job as a clerk with her local Social Security office, which enabled her to leave welfare while she finished school. With her supervisor's encouragement, she's now on her way to a business degree -- she just got a raise and a promotion two days ago -- and she's been offered a permanent job with the Social Security Administration after she graduates.

Tonya JoAnn Graham of Plainview, Texas. Tonya had a child at age 16, and went on welfare while attending college part-time. She found out about a job at the Social Security Administration in 1989 through a college professor, dropped off welfare the month she was hired, finished her degree and is now working full-time as a Social Security claims representative.

After the press pool leaves you will welcome the Cabinet and proceed with a closed meeting. Please see separate binder for agenda and background materials.

RECOMMENDED TELEPHONE CALL

TO: Gil Gallegos, President of the Fraternal Order of Police (FOP).

DATE: As soon as possible this week.

RECOMMENDED BY: Rahm Emanuel
Bruce Reed

PURPOSE: To demonstrate the President's commitment to law enforcement by touching base with President Gallegos and thank the FOP for their continued support -- particularly for their recent endorsement of your juvenile justice proposals. This call was originally scheduled for the week of March 21st.

BACKGROUND: The FOP State Trustees met at their bi-annual conference in St. Louis on March 21-22. At this meeting the FOP discussed support for Mexico certification, child safety locks, cop-killer bullet legislation and other criminal justice issues.

Note: Gallegos is very disappointed that no action has been taken on the FOP's request to provide collective bargaining for the Uniform Secret Service. He has made this issue a top priority and he is concerned that a negative outcome will impact his reelection. You recall this issue arose when you met with the FOP Board in the Roosevelt Room. You signaled some support and you asked the Counsel's Office to review it. Since then, Secretary Rubin has raised objections to any unionization while Jack Quinn supported it. You will soon be provided a decision memo on this issue.

This would be your first contact with the FOP in your second term. You last met with Gil and the Executive Board in September in the Roosevelt Room and in Columbus, Ohio for their endorsement.

REMARKS: See attached talking points.

Talking Points
April 10, 1997

- I am sorry that I was unable to be with you in St. Louis for your conference, but unfortunately I was just returning from Helsinki.
- As you know, I am very proud of the relationship we have established over the last four years. I want to thank you for your strong support for me. It has meant a great deal to me. And I just want you to know that it has not been forgotten.
- I look forward to speaking once again at your April 15th event during Law Enforcement Memorial week.
- Over the next four years, I want to continue the strong relationship that my Administration has had with your organization.
- I also want to personally thank you for your support of my Anti-Gang and Youth Violence Strategy. There is no reason why Congress can't move forward on this legislation this year. They should also pass my budget proposal, which will provide for a balanced budget while still insuring that we reach our 100,000 new police officer commitment and continue to expand our anti-drug efforts.
- We also need to ensure that public employees are given the rights and protections that they deserve. As I have said to you before, I strongly believe that the men and women of law enforcement should be afforded adequate and meaningful employment rights. And we will do what we can to help you on this issue.
- I greatly appreciate your strong support for my Administration's initiatives. I look forward to building upon our relationship and continuing to work together with you to reduce further crime in America.

Q&A

The Federal Government Plan to Hire Welfare Recipients

Question: Hiring XXX welfare recipients over four years seems ambitious. Are these figures realistic?

Answer: This is an ambitious plan and it is a testament to the leadership and creativity of this Administration. However, you must remember that these numbers are preliminary estimates and may go up or down depending on future budgets as well as the success of agency outreach and retention plans, and other factors such as the strength of the economy.

Question: Why have some agencies set specific numerical targets while others have not?

Answer: The directive asked agency and department heads to each prepare an individualized plan for hiring welfare recipients that included a survey of where jobs exist within each agency. Some agencies have set target numbers as motivating devices. Others have decided that it is too early in this stage of the process to set numbers and have, instead, developed extensive outreach and recruiting plans.

Question: What sort of hires are included in the XXX figure?

Answer: All agencies have surveyed their existing hiring capacity and have reported available entry-level positions through all existing hiring capacities including the Worker-Trainee program the President encouraged them to use. The XXX number refers only to those who would be hired directly by the Federal government. Additionally, many of the agencies will be encouraging their grantees and contractors to hire welfare recipients, thereby further increasing the number of recipients likely to be hired.

Question: What are the common elements of each plan?

Answer: While every agency plan is different, most plans address the following elements: Agency hiring capacity and available resources; plans for outreach to potential employees both within the Federal government and in the private for-profit and nonprofit sectors through government contractors and grantees; job preparation including formal training, job readiness and education; and plans to retain employees once hired including addressing child care and transportation issues, as well as using existing Employee Assistance Programs and creating mentoring or buddy programs to address personal issues that may arise.

Question: How are you going to hire welfare recipients at a time government is downsizing and budgets are tough?

Answer: It is true that the government has been downsizing. Since the President took office, he has actually reduced the White House workforce by XXX%. Other agencies have similarly reduced their workforces. However, downsizing does not mean that there are no jobs to fill. As in any organization, there is a natural amount of turnover in jobs at all levels. The Federal agencies have surveyed current vacancies and have committed to reaching out specifically to the welfare population to fill those positions.

Question: How many Federal employers are there and what percentage of the workforce does that represent?

Answer: There are 1.9 million Federal employees that account for 1.5% of the nation's workforce.

Question: How much will this effort cost?

Answer: This effort should not cost anything. All personnel offices conduct recruitment and outreach as part of their normal activities and build in these necessary activities as part of their normal budgets. Essentially, we are expecting agencies to carry this out within their existing budgets.

Question: Will agencies be hiring only in Washington, D.C.?

Answer: No. We're talking about jobs all over the country. More than 85 percent of federal jobs are located outside the Washington metropolitan area.

Question: The White House has over 1,500 employees. Why is the White House hiring only six recipients?

Answer: The White House is ready to hire six welfare recipients now. Once the White House program is in place and the initial six are hired, we expect to continue to hire more over the coming years.

Question: In which departments will the White House place the first six welfare recipients?

Answer: One of the first welfare recipients will be placed in the Domestic Policy Council, the agency primarily responsible for welfare reform. Others will be placed through the Executive Office of the President.

Question: Aren't you favoring welfare recipients over everyone else?

Answer: We are not creating any preference such as the one that exists for veterans. We are encouraging the departments to use an existing hiring authority that allows departments to cut through red tape and hire entry-level workers quickly and easily. We are also encouraging outreach efforts. This is the same commitment that the President has asked of the private sector.

Question: Why are we specifically helping welfare recipients rather than other poor people?

Answer: We make no apologies about the fact that we are asking the agencies to hire needy single mothers with children. These are the people whom it is most crucial to reach and put on the track of work. We want to help these families move from dependence on welfare to independence through self-sufficiency.

Question: Now that the agencies have turned in their plans, what are the next steps?

Answer: Agencies will begin working right away to fill available jobs by reaching out to welfare recipients to notify them of those jobs, and to fully use the existing programs to help recipients take and keep the jobs.

Question: Why did it take the Administration so long to get its hiring program off the ground?

Answer: The Federal hiring process is full of complex rules and regulations. We sat down and looked at all of these rules to find the best way through them. We discovered an existing track of hiring authority -- The Worker-Trainee Program -- that would allow agencies to hire entry-level people quickly and easily, without all the usual hurdles. Additionally, we have encouraged the agencies to use other existing hiring authorities to tap into this labor pool. We are thrilled that so many of the agencies presented us with creative and ambitious plans that show their commitment and leadership to the pressing issue of moving welfare recipients permanently into the workforce.

Question: Does the President think federal government hiring is the way to reform welfare?

Answer: The Federal government's role is an important one but is only part of the formula for success. The President would like the Federal government to do what he has asked of the private for-profit and nonprofit sectors as well as the faith community -- to help meet his challenge to move 2 million people off the welfare rolls by the year 2000, and to continue to move recipients into work thereafter. The President is extremely pleased that all of his Cabinet Secretaries and other agency and department heads responses have been so enthusiastic.

Question: What can you tell me about the meeting the President is planning with business leaders in May?

Answer: As you know, the President has met several times with key business leaders to discuss their role in making welfare reform a success. Most recently, the President met with 14 CEOs of major corporations, each of whom pledged to become involved in this effort. Now, this May, the President will again meet with many of those initial CEOs as well as 25 additional CEOs to talk about their specific commitments to the welfare to work effort.

Question: Nearly half of the total hiring figures you've cited for all Cabinet agencies come from the Department of Commerce, specifically 4,000 hires attributed to the coming Census. Don't the Census hires really artificially inflate your numbers?

Answer: We are extremely pleased that the Department of Commerce has been able to commit to so many hires over the next four years. As you point out, many of those jobs will be created over the coming year as a result of hiring needs to complete the 2000 census. Some of those jobs will be temporary or part-time in nature, while others could turn into long term employment. However, as you know, every job is significant because whether it is short term or long term, a job offers a welfare recipient valuable work experience and on the job training that can help her achieve permanency in the labor market. Further, even without the census numbers, the Cabinet Secretaries' numbers are extremely significant and only represent a start. Once agency programs are up and running, we will likely see the numbers continue to rise.

Announcement

Today, President Clinton holds the first full cabinet meeting of his second term to receive responses to his March 8, 1997 directive asking all Federal agencies to develop plans to hire welfare recipients. All of the Cabinet agencies as well as over 100 non-Cabinet agencies and departments have submitted hiring plans to the President through the Office of the Vice President. To date, the Cabinet agencies estimate they can directly hire a combined total of XXX welfare recipients into the Federal government over a four year period in positions around the nation. Further, most agencies will be encouraging their grantees and contractors to hire welfare recipients.

The President is also releasing today new data showing that welfare caseloads have declined by 2,755,000 or 20 percent during his first term and he is announcing plans to meet in May with a large group of corporate CEOs to discuss their specific commitments to make the welfare reform effort a success.

Background

On March 8, 1997, President Clinton directed each head of a Federal agency or department to use all available hiring authorities to hire and retain welfare recipients in jobs in the government. The President called for agencies to prepare individualized plans for hiring welfare recipients and asked the agencies to explore and report on ways to help low-income employees gain access to the Earned-Income Tax Credit (EITC), transportation subsidies, and affordable child care.

Each head of a Federal agency or department was asked to assess its hiring capacity and to develop a hiring and job retention plan suited to that particular agency's workforce, resources, and needs. All Cabinet agencies and over 100 non-Cabinet agencies and departments have responded.

Since signing the historic welfare reform law, the President has urged businesses, non-profit organizations, and religious groups across the nation to help make its promise of opportunity real by offering jobs to welfare recipients. By taking this action, the President ensures that the federal government, as the nation's largest employer, does its fair share to move welfare recipients to work.

The Clinton Strategy

The Federal government hiring effort is only one piece of President Clinton's larger strategy to make welfare reform a reality. First, the President is visiting state legislatures to share the country's best welfare to work practices and to encourage every state to rise to the challenge he has laid out to them. Second, the President has enlisted key members of the business community in his effort, soliciting pledges of help from Sprint, Monsanto, UPS, Burger King, United Airlines, and others. Third, he continues to reach out to nonprofits and the faith community, similarly urging them to meet his challenge and offering them information and expertise on how to do so. Finally, the President has included money in his FY 1998 budget for several welfare to work initiatives including tax credits and other incentives for businesses that hire people off welfare; incentives for job placement firms and states to create more jobs for welfare recipients; and training, transportation, and child care to help people go to work.

Federal Government Employees

- There are 1.9 million Federal employees nationwide
- Federal employees represent 1.5% of this country's workforce
- Last year, the federal government hired over 190,000 permanent and temporary workers.
- There are 1,513 employees in the Executive Office of the President -- a number including all employees of the Office of Management and Budget, the US Trade Representative, the National Security Council, the Domestic Policy Council, the National Economic Council, and others

Hiring Power In the U.S.

- There are 826,000 U.S. businesses with more than 20 employees
- There are 1.1 million nonprofit organizations (not including congregations).
- There are 135,119 congregations with more than 200 members and 205,583 congregations with more than 100 members.

The Welfare Rolls

- There are 20 percent fewer people on welfare than the day the President took his first oath of office -- the largest decline in the history of the welfare system. The welfare caseload fell by 2,755,000 from 14,115,000 in January 1993 to 11,360,000 in January 1997.
- Before the President signed the welfare reform bill, he worked with states to test reform strategies, giving 43 states waivers from federal rules to experiment with reforms that required work, imposed time limits, and demanded personal responsibility. In 1993, the President made work pay better than welfare for 15 million low income families through an expansion of the Earned Income Tax Credit which he proposed and the Congress adopted.

GUIDANCE ON WELFARE CABINET MEETING
APRIL 9, 1997

*As you know, the President is making one of his highest priorities of his second term the effort to help welfare recipients make a successful transition to work. The President believes that through the legislation he has proposed to encourage hiring and through other voluntary efforts throughout society, we can move two million people from welfare (correct way to state??).

*The President has already been working hard with the private sector to encourage businesses to hire welfare recipients, and he has encouraged the non-profit sector to do the same.

*The President also feels that the Federal government, as the nation's largest employer (??), must do its part and set an example for the nation.

*As you may all remember, on (DATE?), the President directed (WHO?) to present him with their plans for hiring welfare recipients, and tomorrow (at 1:30), the President will meet with his Cabinet to receive those plans and announce the overall plans of the Executive Branch for hiring welfare recipients.

*The agencies have been working very hard on these plans, and they have been working with the Office of Management and Budget and (The VP's office? NPR??) To ensure that their plans are ambitious but also realistic.

(We'll have briefers at tomorrow's briefing.)

(Yes, we'll have specific numbers.)

(Pool press in the Cabinet Room)

(President and Vice President will speak)

(We may have one or two individuals (who probably will not speak) who moved from welfare into jobs with the Federal government and have been successful in their work (we're not taking credit for them, at least one predates us, rather they serve as examples of the many people who have made this transition to show that this will in fact work))
