Question and Answer on Fathers Count Act
June 12, 1998

Question: Does the Administration support HR 3314, the Fathers Count Act of 1998?

Answer: We certainly support the general goal of encouraging states and communities to help fathers become more involved in their children's lives ~~and share the concerns about working families, both mothers and fathers.~~ The Administration has always placed a high priority on supporting strong and healthy working-we-parent families and on strengthening the role of fathers. This track record includes: family friendly policies such as the Family and Medical Leave Act, expansion of the Earned Income Tax Credit and the new Child Tax Credit; initiatives to promote father involvement in child health immunization and early education; demonstration projects to promote responsible fatherhood; and employment programs for non-custodial parents of children on welfare so they can help support their children. We remain ready to work with Congress on initiatives that will help hard pressed families meet their needs, including child care.

We would be glad to work with Congress on the specific provisions of the Fathers Count Act at an appropriate time. Funding for the initiative would need to be considered within the context of other priorities and within the context of the balanced budget.

Background

The bill was introduced by Clay Shaw on March 3 and now has 7 Republican co-sponsors. It would authorize $2 billion over five years for block grants to states for projects to encourage fathers to become better parents. Funding levels grow from $200 M in 2000 to $500 M in 2004. The funds would be distributed by HHS to states based on their share of total population, and would be targeted to private organizations (75 percent) and to fathers below the state or local average income of male earners (80 percent). The bill specifically declares religious organizations eligible to receive funds under the act.

Funds could be used to: 1) encourage unmarried or prospective fathers to get married, and encourage better parenting both by fathers who are living with their children and those who are not and 2) help fathers obtain gainful employment or increase their skills in order to qualify for higher paying jobs. The bill also specifies that a state who receives a Fathers grant may use Welfare-to-Work and Title XX (Social Services Block Grant) funds for the same purpose. Up to $10 million annually is earmarked for research and evaluation, with another $10 million annually earmarked for technical assistance.

While the bill has not moved to date, it is possible that the National Fatherhood summit on June 15th may generate new momentum.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: Bruce Reed
Elena Kagan

RE: DPC Weekly Report

Tobacco -- Senate Update: The Senate passed two amendments to the McCain bill this week. The first, approved by a 52-46 vote, is a Craig-Coverdell amendment which authorizes about $2 billion per year for anti-drug efforts, creating another competitor for the diminishing pool of public health dollars. The amendment also includes a permanent prohibition on the use of federal monies for needle exchange and a program to allow education vouchers to students who have been the victims of school violence. A Democratic alternative to the Craig-Coverdell amendment, which spent less money and did not contain the permanent needle exchange ban or voucher provision, was defeated by a vote of 53-45.

The Senate also passed by a vote of 50-48 the Gramm tax-cut amendment. The Gramm amendment costs $16 billion over the first four years, an additional $30 billion in the next five years, and one-third of the funding under the bill after that. The amendment provides all couples with annual incomes below $50,000 a new tax deduction of $825 this year, rising to $3,300 in 2008, and would provide full deductibility of health insurance for the self-employed. The Senate rejected a less costly substitute offered by Senator Daschle by a vote of 55-43.

As a result of these votes, key groups have expressed concern over the diminishing dollars available for other purposes under the legislation. The Governors have drafted a letter objecting to the state financing section of the bill because the funding level has dropped below the $196.5 billion over 25 years originally contained in the bill to settle state suits (the same level contained in the June 20, 1997 settlement agreement with the Attorneys General). Public health groups such as the Campaign for Tobacco Free Kids, the American Cancer Society, and the American Heart Association, are concerned that funding will not be available for public health programs. Secretary Shalala, Erskine, and we met with them on Friday and explained that the bill would not move through the Senate without funding for tax cuts and anti-drug provisions, and have urged them to work hard over the next few days to achieve final passage.

Key amendments are still expected on hot-button issues such as attorneys fees, resolving the disputed proposal on farmers, as well as two Republican substitute bills. We are hopeful that the Senate will move on to final passage by the end of the week.

On Monday, you will be speaking to 200 high school Presidential scholars in the East Room, where you will have an opportunity to urge swift passage of the tobacco legislation.

Education -- National Testing: There are several new reports which support our efforts on national testing. First, GAO has confirmed in a letter to Goodling and Ashcroft, that the Education Department already has sufficient authority to develop and conduct national tests, and does not require additional Congressional authorization. Second, on June 12 the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) will release an interim report on the Goodling-proposed study, required by the compromise legislation last fall, examining the feasibility of statistically linking scores from existing commercial and state tests to each other and to NAEP. The NAS has concluded that it is not technically feasible to compare student scores across different tests to each other or to the NAEP standards. This conclusion completely undermines Goodling's argument that existing tests could be used to accomplish the purpose of the national test. While both of these reports bolster the case for our testing initiative, they are not likely to dampen Goodling and Ashcroft's opposition. Earlier this week, they received assurances from Gingrich and Lott that an anti-testing rider would be added again to the Labor-HHS-Education Appropriations bill.

Crime -- Kids and Guns in Schools: On June 18, the National Parents' Resource Institute for Drug Education (PRIDE) will release their annual survey on teen drug use and violence for the 1997-98 school year. Over 154,000 students grades 6-12 were interviewed for the survey. While we have not yet seen the data on illicit drug use by teens, PRIDE has shared some of their findings with us on school violence. One key finding is that the percentage of students who reported carrying a gun to school decreased by over a third since the 1994-94 school year -- from 6% to 3.8% (3.8% represents nearly 1 million students). However, of those students who brought a gun to school, almost half did so 6 or more times; over half threatened to harm a teacher; and nearly two-thirds threatened to harm another student. Moreover, monthly drug use was very high for students carrying guns: 30% used cocaine; 32% used stimulants such as methamphetamine; and 31% used hallucinogens. In addition, the survey reaffirms the effectiveness of involving kids in after school programs and school activities. Students who did not bring guns to school were 53% more likely to be involved in after school programs and 34% more likely to be active in school activities such as band and sports than gun-carrying students.

Child Care -- House Legislation: On June 9, The First Lady and Secretary Shalala joined House Democrats as they unveiled a comprehensive child care bill that includes all the pieces of your child care initiative, as well as other proposals, such as a stay-at-home tax credit. The over $20 billion package will be sponsored by more than 100 Representatives. The proposal does not specify funding sources.

Health Care -- Patients' Bill of Rights: On Wednesday, Larry Stein, Chuck Brain, and Chris Jennings met with Congressman Dingell to discuss the patients' bill of rights. He informed us that he wants to work closely with the Administration should any serious discussions commence between Congressman Norwood and himself to develop a unified bill to be the vehicle for a discharge position. For the moment, Mr. Dingell believes (and Mr. Norwood and we agree) that he should stay strong on his state-court liability enforcement provisions and take the position that a "right is not a right without a remedy." The patients' bill of rights advocates should be able to maintain their strong position on enforcement as long as CBO does not come out with a high estimate of the costs associated with this provision, which could be reported as early as next week. CBO staff are now informally advising us that they are getting more pressure on these costs estimates than was the case during the worst days of the Health Security Act. They are also telling us that the Republican leadership is insisting on reviewing their estimates before they are released.

Health Care -- Vice President's Announcement of the Quality Forum: Next Wednesday, the Vice President is scheduled to unveil a planning committee to establish "a quality forum", a private sector entity designed to develop a plan to ensure the widespread availability of comparative information to hold health plans more accountable in providing high quality care. The "forum" was included in the final recommendations of the Quality Commission and you asked the Vice President to launch this process. In conjunction with this announcement, we are releasing a report that highlights the many shortcomings of the current system. For example, one study estimates that preventable errors in hospital care leads to 180,000 needless deaths each year, and 23 percent of tympanostomy tube insertions for children with ear infections were found to be inappropriate. Developing consistent information has great potential to improve health outcomes, increase confidence in the health care system, and save costs. We will cast this as the next logical step beyond the patients' bill of rights to improve and monitor rapid changes in the health care delivery system.

Health Care -- FDA Commissioner: Should the tobacco legislation be adopted by the Senate early next week, we hope to announce the nomination of the new FDA commissioner --Jane Henney. Preliminary, informal calls have elicited neither major objections nor overwhelming support for this nomination. While Henney should be confirmed on her merits, this confirmation may be a challenge, particularly if Republicans portray her as a Kennedy choice and a David Kessler protege. One positive development is that Senator Domenici has agreed to accompany her on courtesy visits to Republican members of the Senate Labor Committee.

Health Care -- False Claims Act and Fraud and Abuse: Senator Bond and Senator Hollings are including in appropriations legislation language to water down the False Claims Act (FCA). It would, for example, prevent the government from pursuing a false claims' act case against any provider that instituted a fraud prevention training program even if the senior management ignored the billing rules that were recommended by the program. Their action is in response to the hospital industry's criticisms that the Justice Department has enforced this Act far too aggressively. While there are some legitimate concerns related to enforcement, the Department is addressing these concerns through administrative actions. OMB, HHS, and DPC feel strongly that undermining the enforcement provisions of the FCA would be extremely counterproductive to our anti-fraud enforcement activities. We recently authorized a Justice Department letter recommending a Presidential veto, which received strong support from a Washington Post editorial. This may be an issue that we should push back extremely hard on to illustrate our strong commitment to fight fraud and abuse, the issue that most American's--particularly seniors--believe is one of the primary contributors to an escalation of health care costs.

Housing/Welfare Reform -- Welfare-to-Work Housing Vouchers: On Tuesday, the Senate VA, HUD Appropriations Subcommittee provided $40 million for new incremental "self-sufficiency" housing vouchers targeted for people moving from welfare-to-work. The demonstration program would provide grants to seven sites -- New York City, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Miami-Dade, Anchorage, Charlotte, and Prince George's County. While providing substantially less vouchers than the Administration's request -- 7,000 instead of 50,000 -- this is a small but important victory for the initiative. We are hopeful that the House Subcommittee will fund more vouchers in the Senate, since Chairman Lewis has indicated some interest in this program.

Welfare Reform -- Portland Shows Strong Evaluation Results: HHS is preparing to release an evaluation of Portland, Oregon's welfare reform program showing impacts on employment, earnings, and reduced welfare expenditures that are among the strongest for a large-scale mandatory program, comparable to those of the Riverside program. After two years, participants had 35 percent higher earnings, 11 percent higher employment levels, and received 17 percent lower welfare payments than those in the control group. These gains were sustained for two years and are expected to persist into the third year. Even in this high quality program, 41 percent of the participants were receiving welfare after two years although this compares favorably with 53 percent for the control group. The study, by MDRC, tracked over 5,500 recipients from 1993 through mid-1996 and is part of HHS' seven site national evaluation of welfare-to-work strategies that began under the JOBS program.

Portland's program had a strong employment focus, with a particular emphasis on job quality. Compared to some other programs that emphasize taking any job, Portland participants were encouraged to look for and take "good jobs" -- full time, paying above the minimum wage, with benefits and potential for advancement. Follow-up results show that participants were more likely to be working in full-time jobs, at higher earnings and with employer-provided health benefits than those in the control group. While the program emphasized job search and job placement, a significant number of participants also participated in short-term education and training. The program had strong positive impacts both for those with few barriers to employment and those considered "harder to place". Participation in the program was required, and 21 percent of participants were sanctioned for failure to comply (in the mid-range of sanction rates in other programs).

Families with children older than one were required to participate (compared to age 6 in the Riverside demonstration) and staff emphasized child care arrangements in their case management. Not surprisingly, the program had higher child care usage and costs than other programs, but this did not result in higher total program costs.

Welfare Reform -- New Jersey Family Cap Study: Secretary Shalala has sent you a memo on the New Jersey family cap policy, providing helpful background information regarding the Rutgers University evaluation that received considerable press attention last week. The press reports focused on evaluation findings that the family cap policy resulted in a "small but non-trivial" effect on abortion rates (an additional 240 abortions per year over what would be expected based on population trends in NJ). Both the state and HHS have pointed out serious methodological concerns with the Rutgers study and believe it is too early to draw conclusions about the family cap policy's impact on abortions. The report will be revised, but it is likely that researchers and interest groups of various kinds will continue to debate the implications of future research findings and of the policy itself.

New Jersey was the first state to receive a waiver, under the previous Administration, to implement a family cap policy. We granted waivers to 14 more states to test the policy. The federal welfare reform law left it up to states to decide whether to implement a family cap, and a total of 22 states have now adopted such a policy.

Welfare Reform -- Assisting the Disabled Return to Work: Last week, the House passed a bill sponsored by Reps. Bunning and Kennelly to implement an Administration initiative to move people on the SSDI and SSI rolls into the workforce by using a "pay for performance" approach. Currently, SSDI and SSI beneficiaries get rehabilitation services through state vocational rehabilitation agencies, which are reimbursed for their costs and have a mixed record of success. Under this bill, SSDI and SSI beneficiaries could choose their own public or private rehabilitation providers. Providers who successfully assist beneficiaries in leaving the rolls and returning to work would be paid a percentage of the disability benefits saved. These payments would continue only as long as the person remained off the rolls, up to a maximum of five years. Because providers would be rewarded for results rather than for their costs, this should encourage providers to have a continuing interest in their clients' long term success.

The bill's fate in the Senate is uncertain. Senators Jeffords and Kennedy don't want to move it unless it is paired with their legislation to extend Medicare and Medicaid benefits to those leaving SSDI or SSI. We have a number of problems with their initial proposal, including its complexity, its partial Medicaid benefit package, its cost to the Medicare trust fund, and its overall cost of $1 billion per year, and are working to develop alternatives to the Jeffords-Kennedy approach.

Children and Families -- After-School Event: On Wednesday, June 17th, you will be joined by the First Lady and the Vice President in the Rose Garden as you announce the 21st Century Learning Centers grants that have been funded for FY 98. The $40 million appropriated last year has funded 98 grants to 315 schools in 36 states to establish or expand after-school initiatives to serve their communities. You will also release a new report titled Safe and Smart: Making the After-School Hours Work for Kids, which was authored by the Departments of Justice and Education and finds that quality after-school programs both decrease juvenile crime as well as improve the academic performance of participating children. This event will take place as Congress gears up for an appropriations process in which there is broad, bipartisan support for expanding the 21st Century Learning Centers Program, but scarce resources because of the strict budget caps adopted in both the House and the Senate.

TEXT:

The House Democrats proposed a tax credit for stay-at-home parents with children under 4, which would provide a credit of roughly $900 to these targeted families. The credit would be equivalent to the $500 tax credit plus an additional amount equal to the average increase in tax relief provided to two-worker families with a young child through the expansion of the DCTC.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: JUDITH A. WINSTON

THROUGH: ERSKINE BOWLES
SYLVIA MATHEWS

DATE: JUNE 12, 1998

SUBJECT: PRESIDENT'S INITIATIVE ON RACE WEEKLY REPORT
JUNE 5 - JUNE 12

ADVISORY BOARD ACTIVITIES

June Advisory Board Meeting. The next meeting of the Advisory Board is June 18, here in Washington, DC. In preparation for the Board meeting, the members will meet in subgroups on June 17. Each subgroup will be chaired by an Advisory Board Member:

Dr. John Hope Franklin	Learning from and Addressing Different Voices
Governor Winter	Leadership and Values
Governor Kean	Education
Linda Chavez-Thompson	Economic Issues

On June 18, the full Advisory Board will meet to discuss the issues raised in the subgroup meetings.

La Canada High School. On June 2, Angela Oh spoke at La Canada High School in Los Angeles to 150 students about the Initiative.

Offices of Administration and Management and Budget Diversity Panel. On June 10, Angela Oh, Virginia Apuzzo, and I participated on a panel discussion about diversity in the workplace. We spoke about the Initiative and challenges related to race in the workplace. The audience consisted of approximately 150 employees from the Executive Office of the President. The panel is part of OA's and OMB's efforts to promote diversity within the EOP, and they will hold additional activities during this month.

Chinese for Affirmative Action (CAA). On June 12, Angela Oh will be the keynote speaker at the CAA annual banquet in San Francisco.

OFFICE OF THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Congressional Luncheon. On June 11, you hosted approximately 20 Members of Congress, including three Senators, to engage the Congress in the Race Initiative. The luncheon was very successful because it was a substantive and candid discussion about race. On June 17, I will be participating in the dinner sponsored by Congressmen Lewis and Houghton to launch their "Congressional Conversations on Race." Colin Powell will address the attendees.

Corporate Forum. Advisory Board member Bob Thomas will host the next corporate leaders forum on July 10 in St. Louis.

Weekend of Prayer. Reverend Tony Campolo of St. Davids, Pennsylvania and several other religious leaders will be offering statements, prayers, or sermons to mark the anniversary of the Initiative.

American Indian Issues. On June 11, Initiative staff participated in a meeting that the Office of Intergovernmental Affairs convened to discuss American Indian issues, outreach to Indian country and the Race Initiative.

Promising Practices. We currently have 200 promising practices listed on our website.

Wall Street Journal Article. Attached is the article from the Wall Street Journal that you requested in your comments on the Initiative anniversary briefing memo.

FEDERAL AGENCY ACTIVITIES

DEPARTMENT OF TREASURY

Race Seminars. On June 11, the Department of Treasury sponsored a seminar featuring Dr. Glen Loury, Professor and Director of the Institute on Race and Social Division at Boston University. Professor Loury spoke about the merits of affirmative action.

DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR

Internet Access for Bureau of Indian Affairs Schools. Working in partnership with the Bureau of Reclamation and the Bureau of Indian Affairs, USGS has connected 42 BIA schools and six BIA colleges to the Internet.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Choctaw Nation. The United States Department of Agriculture's Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization (OSDBU) and the Risk Management Agency staff traveled to Hugo, Oklahoma for a working session with representatives of the Choctaw Nation, local economic development officials, and UNISYS, to finalize details for development of the model demonstration site and to establish the Choctaw 8(a) company. UNISYS will serve as a mentor to this company for business establishment and for in-depth technical support. RMA has been very active and supportive of the project, bringing rural America venture opportunities, and has identified contracts that will be directed toward this program. USDA's contract will be awarded by July with work underway shortly after.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Initiative on Race and Health. On June 8, Surgeon General David Satcher gave the commencement address at the UCLA School of Medicine. Surgeon General Satcher discussed tobacco and HHS's Initiative on Race and Health.

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY

Dialogues on Race. On June 4 and June 8, the Department of Energy's Oakland and Nevada Operations Offices held dialogues on race as part of their efforts to support your Initiative. The round table discussions focused on the vision of a just and unified America, educating the nation about the facts of race in this country, and promoting constructive dialogue.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Bilingual Education. On June 4, Secretary Richard Riley of Education wrote to Congress expressing strong opposition to the Riggs bilingual education bill that would repeal the Emergency Immigrant Education program and drastically revise the Bilingual Education Act. The letter discusses the Secretary's objections to various civil rights and bilingual education provisions in the bill and sets forth his principles for strengthening programs that help students with limited English proficiency. The letter indicates that you will send legislation to Congress consistent with these principles at an appropriate time.

SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Memoranda of Understanding. On June 11, Small Business Administration Administrator Aida Alvarez signed a Memoranda of Understanding with the New York State Federation of Hispanic Chambers of Commerce and the National Black Chambers of Commerce.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

Federal Policy Roundtable Discussion on Minority Youth with Disabilities. On June 17, the Social Security Administration (SSA) and the Maternal and Child Health Bureau (MCHB) will cosponsor a federal policy roundtable discussion to identify policies and programs that will improve the employment outcome of minority youth with disabilities following graduation from high school, college, and post-secondary employment-training programs. The topic of the roundtable is the "Successful Transition to Employment for Minority Youth with Disabilities." The roundtable will be held in Washington, D.C., and will bring together more than 50 representatives from SSA, MCHB, the Presidential Task Force on Employment of Adults with Disabilities, the President's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities, the National Council on Disability, DOL, DOEd, HHS and representatives of civil rights and disability advocacy organizations.

TEXT:

The current letter may be as strong as we are going to get it - in that the $ 196B may be moot, but I want to give it a final push. If we are going to lean on Governors to stay committed to the bill, we need to stay with the deal we cut ourselves. Further, I think we need to stay loyal to the states anticipating a conference committee.

CHILDREN'S HEALTH OUTREACH POLICIES IN THE TOBACCO BILL

POLICIES: The tobacco bill contains two policies that gives States additional funds and flexibility to enroll uninsured children in Medicaid or the Children's Health Insurance Program.

- Enhanced Matching for Children's Outreach Efforts: In the welfare reform bill, a $500 million Medicaid fund was created to help States ensure that people losing welfare know about their continued eligibility for Medicaid. Few States, however, have taken advantage of this fund so far, in part due to its narrow purpose.

The proposal would allow States to receive its 90 percent matching rate for outreach activities for all uninsured children, not just those who would have been eligible for welfare. In addition, the proposal would remove the sunset of the fund in 2000 and add another $25 million to assist States with increased outreach activities.

- Broadening the Medicaid Presumptive Eligibility Option: The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 (BBA) gave States the option let a limited number of providers and people grant "presumptive eligibility" to children. A child may temporarily be covered by Medicaid if preliminary information suggests that they qualify. Costs of this temporary (up to two month) coverage must be subtracted from States' Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) allotments -- even though the children are covered by Medicaid.

The proposal would: (1) give States greater flexibility to decide who can determine presumptive eligibility (e.g., sites such as schools, child care resource and referral centers, and CHIP eligibility workers); and (2) eliminate the requirement that States subtract the costs of presumptive eligibility from their CHIP allotments.

POINTS

- Builds on existing State options. These policies expand current options passed, with bipartisan support, in the BBA and welfare reform. They are not new, mandatory or prescriptive; States may design how best to use the funds and where best to enroll children.
- Outreach funds may be used for CHIP or Medicaid. States are now implementing CHIP and may want to use this funding to increase enrollment. States may also decide to use the funds or take the presumptive eligibility option to increase Medicaid coverage. A recent study found that 4.7 million children are eligible for Medicaid but uninsured today.
- Expanding children's health coverage was the original use of tobacco funds. These options contribute toward the original, agreed-upon use of tobacco funds, to increase health insurance coverage for children.
- Not an unlimited "cost shift" to an entitlement program. The proposal that ends the requirement that States pay for Medicaid presumptive eligibility from CHIP simply restores Medicaid funding for Medicaid-eligible children -- freeing up CHIP funding for CHIP-eligible children. The costs associated with presumptive eligibility are not large since they are for two months of coverage, at most.

TEXT:

Attached is the revised tobacco letter. Please get comments back by noon, Monday (6/15) for delivery to the Hill Monday afternoon. Senate floor debate begins around 5pm. Thank you.

Dear Mr. Chairman:

You asked for our views on a series of possible amendments that may be offered to S. 1415 that would undermine the present structure and/or uses of the State Litigation Settlement Account. The Administration opposes such changes. In its current form, S. 1415 represents a careful balancing between the states and the Federal government, advancing the public health and other goals we share. Further changes to this agreement would harm the goal of passing historic comprehensive, bipartisan tobacco legislation.

This legislation would not have been possible without the leadership of the states. States have earned and deserve recognition of their efforts through protection against amendments that further reduce the amount that states receive in the Account.

We also recognize the importance of the carefully constructed balance between restricted and unrestricted funds, and the menu of uses that would be supported by the former. It is for this reason that we also oppose additional amendments that would change the parameters for or uses of the restricted funds.

Holding the line on additional changes to the State Litigation Settlement Account is necessary to assure that the bill represents a fair balance between flexibility and accountability, and helps protect the states very legitimate interest in this legislation. As always, we look forward to continuing working with you, and look forward to favorable action on a bill that will make a major contribution to public health, our children and our nation.

Sincerely,

Jacob J. Lew
Acting Director

Marriage-minded gays need straights in wedding party
By Debbie Woodell

What's taking so long?

That question was put to Evan Wolfson, a lawyer with the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, who has been at the forefront of the struggle by gay men and lesbians to gain the legal right to marry in the United States.

The Hawaii Supreme Court has had the case for months.

Gay people have been trying to plan trips to Hawaii ever since hopes rose that the nation's 50th state would become the first to give us the same legal rights as straight people.

So what's taking so long?

"Actually," said Wolfson, Lambda's Marriage Project director, "it feels like it's been a long time in Hawaii because we want it so urgently -- because much good is going to follow from it, and all of that -- but in actual court terms, this has not been inordinately long."

And, Wolfson said, it is conceivable a ruling will not come down for several more months.

The Hawaii case -- which began in 1991 when three couples sued the state for the right to marry -- is the furthest along. A judge ruled in our favor in December 1996 and the state immediately appealed it to the Supreme Court.

In Vermont, parties are amid final briefing in a similar suit before the state Supreme Court, which Wolfson said is expected to hear the case this fall. In Alaska, the state has just been told it must show why gay people should not get married and is trying to get out of that bind.

Despite persecution, religious people and organizations are increasingly coming over to our side.

Sadly, they often use such euphemisms as "holy unions" or "commitment ceremonies" to help put out brush fires, but they're performing weddings.

Gaining the legal right to marry would be the most significant victory, the ultimate leveling of the playing field.

But, Wolfson warned, we cannot sit and wait for the courts to make everything right for us, to do "all the heavy lifting."

"When Hawaii or any other state hands down this ruling, it's going to open up a whole new chapter of possibilities and challenges," Wolfson said.

"And we will best be prepared for those opportunities and battles by doing groundwork now to enlarge the number of non-gay people who have been approached to think about and support our freedom to marry. The task at hand -- today, tomorrow and every day -- is to enlist non-gay allies."

Wolfson isn't talking about lobbying legislators, although that, too, is important.

He's urging us to talk with our clergy, our neighbors, friends, professional organizations -- the folks who see us, work with us, socialize with us in our everyday lives.

"There are a lot of fair-minded non-gay people who have never been asked to take a position, or even to think about it," he said. "Now is the time to ask them to think about it, to take a position. It's our job to go to them, not just to expect them to know the right answer."

Wolfson finds it puzzling that we appear so reluctant to ask straight people for help.

"It's critical, but the funny thing is that non-gay people are far more willing to help than gay people are to ask them . . . It's almost as if we're afraid to go in and talk with them about our own equality," he said.

"We're pretty good at demanding, we're not that good at asking. We need to do both."

Recruiting will build a strong foundation of support to fight the inevitable backlash. Hawaii and Alaska gay people are already gearing up for a big ballot fight this fall. Some 29 states and the federal government have some version of a defense-of-marriage law that denies us equal rights to marry, Wolfson said.

"Once people are able to marry, they will, and they will face both discrimination and opportunities to show non-gay people what married people look like when they're gay," Wolfson said. "And that's going to be a tremendous educational opportunity and moment to gather a lot of support."

Wolfson, who makes his living in this legal arena, isn't naive enough to think he'll be out of a job once the Hawaii ruling comes down.

Couples who get married there will face new battles in their home states. American gay men and lesbians who marry someone from another country will have to fight for the right of their partners to live in the United States. Many of those fights will wind up in court.

But, Wolfson urged, "before everybody starts talking about suing, let's talk about talking."

So, folks, what's taking so long?

Law Enforcement Bill Signing Event
June 16, 1998
Questions and Answers

Q. What were the bills the President signed today?

A. The President signed two bills to provide needed assistance to law enforcement and their families: The Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Act, and the Care for Police Survivors Act.

(1) Bulletproof Vest Bill: The FBI estimates that the risk of a gun-related fatality for an officer not wearing an armor vest is 14 times higher than one who does; however, more than 25% of state and local law enforcement officers do not have bulletproof vests. The Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Act of 1997, sponsored by Senators Leahy and Campbell and Representative Visclosky, establishes a new grant program at the Justice Department to help state and local departments provide vests for their officers. Grants will fund up to half of the cost of the vest, with state and local governments responsible for the remaining costs. The Act authorizes $25 million each year to fund the vest program from FY 1999 to FY 2001.

(2) Counseling Support for Survivors of Slain Officers: The President will sign the Care for Police Survivors Act, sponsored by Representatives McCollum and Schumer and Senators Biden and Hatch. The legislation guarantees that a minimum level of funding made available to maintain and enhance counseling programs that assist the families of public safety officers who die in the line of duty.

Q. Did the President announce anything new?

A. The President made two additional announcements at the bill signing event. First, as part of an ongoing effort to make our schools safer, the President called on the Attorney General and the Secretary of Education to report back to him with an action plan before the next school year to ensure that COPS funding would be available to all schools interested in creating partnerships with their local law enforcement agencies. To complement this effort, the President announced his support for legislation introduced by Representative James Maloney (D-CT) to promote the deployment of community police officers to work in and with local school districts.

Second, the President announced $27 million in COPS grants to 73 state and local law enforcement agencies across the country to hire 383 new officers. Today's COPS grants will bring the total number of officers funded through the Clinton COPS Program to over 76,000.

Q. Could you provide more detail on what the President directed the Attorney General and the Secretary to do with regard to police in schools?

A. In March, the President announced that the Justice Department, through our COPS program, would make $17.5 million available for schools to work more closely with local law enforcement and others in the community to reduce crime and violence in and near schools. But the demand for these resources has turned out to be much greater than the funds set aside for this purpose.

To help meet the demand, the President instructed the Attorney General and the Secretary of Education to present him with a plan before the beginning of the next school year to ensure that COPS funding would be available to bring community policing techniques to all interested schools.

We believe additional assistance can be provided to schools with current resources from our COPS program -- and this Administration will do everything in its power to make sure these resources are available to help our schools. But the President also sought strong bipartisan support from Congress to put this plan into practice; to this end, he called on Congress to take the additional step and pass the legislation introduced by Rep. Jim Maloney to guarantee that funds from the COPS Program can be used to deploy more community police in our schools as well as for other related purposes.

Administration's Response to School Violence

Q. What came out of the President's meeting with school violence experts in April? Is the President or the Administration taking any action in response?

A. As a follow up to the horrible tragedy in Jonesboro, in April, the President sat down with youth violence experts -- from principals to parents to prosecutors -- to discuss what we can do at all levels to keep these tragedies from occurring in the first place.

We learned that kids killing kids with guns in multiple school shootings is occurring with greater frequency, but remains relatively rare. And while school shootings are a limited problem, we must continue efforts to help ensure that no school is forced to endure the type of senseless and brutal violence that occurred in Springfield and Jonesboro.

That is why the President is committed to making sure that parents, communities, and the schools themselves: 1) have better information on the school violence problem; and 2) the tools they need to help address the problem. In the aftermath of the West Paducah shooting, the President called on the Attorney General and Secretary Riley to develop an annual report on school safety to provide assistance on both of these fronts. The report will be released at the beginning of the next school year. Moreover, in March, the President announced funding for a new community policing program the COPS Office focused on reducing violence on or near school grounds. And in his radio address last Saturday, the President directed the Secretary of Education and the Attorney General to develop a guide to help teachers and principals identify and respond to the early warning signs of troubled youth that can lead to school violence.

At the round table, there was also broad agreement that we should be focused on tackling the larger problem of youth violence. That is why the President continues to challenge the Congress to pass his strategy on youth violence before they adjourn for the year. The President's plan takes on youth access to guns, tough punishment for violent youths and gangs, and provides additional adult supervision in the after school hours when violent juvenile crime is most likely to occur.

Extension of the Waiting Period for Handgun Sales

Q. On Sunday, Rahm Emanuel indicated that the Administration supports extending the waiting period past its expiration this fall. Is the Administration going to support legislation to accomplish this?

A. This Administration has been on record in support of the 5-day waiting period for handgun purchases since 1993 -- the year the President fought for and signed the Brady Bill into law. During this time, we believe that the waiting period has been a useful measure in helping to prevent unauthorized handgun purchases by felons, fugitives, and stalkers.

But our current priority continues to be working with the states to implement the Insta-Check system mandated by the Brady Law. The Justice Department has provided significant funding and technical assistance to states to ensure that when the Insta-Check system becomes operational in November 1998, it has the most complete and accurate criminal history records as possible.

Moreover, we are continuing to urge Congress before it adjourns this session to extend the Brady Law to violent juveniles -- to make sure that violent youths are barred from gun purchases for life; to pass comprehensive juvenile crime legislation; and to increase resources to combat gun trafficking.

PRESIDENT CLINTON:
WORKING TO REDUCE TEEN SMOKING

June 15, 1998

"I urge the Senate to act now. Every day you delay plays into the hands of the tobacco industry, which desperately wants to kill this bill. Every day you delay allows the tobacco companies to lure another 3,000 children to start smoking. The days of delay must come to an end. Pass the McCain bill this week. The American people expect you to get the job done right now."

President Bill Clinton
June 15, 1998

Today, President Clinton welcomes the Presidential Scholars to the White House and calls on the Congress to pass comprehensive tobacco legislation sponsored by Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) to reduce teen smoking.

TEEN SMOKING IS A RAPIDLY GROWING HEALTH CRISIS. It has been nearly one year since the Congress took up the issue of comprehensive tobacco legislation. In that time, over one million children -- 3,000 a day -- have become regular smokers, and one third of those children will die prematurely as a result. Data from the Centers for Disease Control shows that 36 percent of all high school students smoke, and that teen smoking rates have risen dramatically -- by 32 percent from 1991 to 1997.

A STRATEGIC PLAN FOR REDUCING YOUTH SMOKING. The President has stated that any tobacco legislation must meet 5 objectives: 1) a reduction in youth smoking by raising the price of cigarettes by up to $1.10 over 5 years, with additional surcharges on companies that continue to sell to kids; 2) full authority for the Food and Drug Administration to regulate tobacco products; 3) changes in the way the tobacco industry does business, including an end to marketing and promotion to kids; 4) progress toward other public health goals, including biomedical and cancer research, a reduction of second-hand smoke, promotion of smoking cessation programs and other urgent priorities; and 5) protection for tobacco farmers and their communities.

THE MCCAIN BILL MEETS THE PRESIDENT'S PRINCIPLES. The McCain bill contains the strongest anti-youth smoking provisions in our history:

- Raising the price of cigarettes by $1.10 over the next five years --the single most important step we can take to reduce youth smoking.
- Imposing tough lookback surcharges on tobacco companies if youth smoking does not decline by 67% over the next decade.
- Reaffirming FDA's full authority over tobacco products.
- Launching major nationwide efforts to reduce youth smoking, including a nationwide counteradvertising campaign to warn young people not to smoke, state and local tobacco education and prevention programs, and tough enforcement measures to stop retailers from selling cigarettes to minors.
- Taking other important steps to protect against the dangers of smoking, including expanded warning labels on cigarettes, mandatory disclosure of additives and cigarette ingredients, a nationwide ban on smoking in public buildings, and substantial funding for smoking cessation programs.
- Funding a major increase in health research at the National Institutes of Health and the Centers for Disease Control, including clinical trials for cancer patients.

CONGRESS SHOULD PASS THE MCCAIN BILL. The President worked to secure several improvements to the tobacco legislation, including stronger lookback surcharges, stronger environmental tobacco smoke protections, elimination of the antitrust exemption and of liability protection for parent companies, and substantial funding for public health and research as well as for states and tobacco farmers. Congress must act on this important legislation which helps save the lives of children and protects them from the devastating effects of tobacco use.

TEXT:

Florida's concerns derive from the fact that their settlement (like TX and MS's) has a clause saying it will be superceded by "substantially similar" federal legislation and such legislation now would provide them less than their negotiated settlement. Post-legislation, if the companies argue the law is "substantially similar" and the state disagrees, they could of course litigate the matter, but there really is no way to legislatively fix this problem (except to provide more money per state in federal legislation). As a result of these problems, Bryant Hall says Senator Graham will probably vote against the bill in its current form. (Minnesota, whose settlement gives the companies an explicit credit against federal tobacco-related payments, does not have seem to have this problem.)

As I noted this morning, the Gregg amendment does change the opt-out language, but DOJ doesn't think the change has an effect on this matter. (The Gregg amendment allows both states and localities to opt-out, but it adds the new clause which says those that have "resolved a tobacco claim...may not make an election...if, as part of the resolution of such claim, the State agreed that the enactment of any national tobacco settlement legislation would supercede the provisions of the resolution." This just puts in statute the issue that is already in the FL, TX, and MS settlements.)

PRESIDENT WILLIAM J. CLINTON

REMARKS AT BULLETPROOF VEST BILL SIGNING

THE WHITE HOUSE

June 16, 1998

Acknowledgments: TK.

This is a time of great progress in our nation. We have the strongest economy in a generation; inflation and unemployment are at thirty-year lows. And, we just learned last month that crime dropped in 1997 for an unprecedented sixth year in a row. Murders have dropped by more than 25 percent, and overall violent crime by more than 15 percent. In so many ways, our nation is seeing a return to personal responsibility and respect for law. And that makes a real difference in the lives of Americans. Neighborhoods are safer; families are more secure; Americans have a new feeling of freedom.

At the heart of this great transformation, this new security, are law enforcement officers like yourselves. Police are making a profound impact across our nation -- stepping out of squad cars and precinct houses, joining and protecting our communities. By putting 100,000 more of you on the streets as a part of our community policing program, law enforcement officers and ordinary citizens are becoming powerful partners in fighting crime. I'm pleased to report that ahead of schedule and under budget, we've funded 76,000 of 100,000 community police. And to those of you who are already out there, walking the beat and putting your lives on the line, America owes you a tremendous debt of gratitude for making this a safer, and freer, country.

For five and a half years now, I have been working to make the federal government a genuine partner in building a better and safer America. A crucial part of that effort is making sure law enforcement officers have the tools to do the job. There are few tools more important than this one -- a bulletproof vest. Over the past decade, body armor has saved the lives of more than 2,000 officers. The FBI has estimated that the risk of a gun-related fatality is 14 times higher for an officer who does not wear a vest than for an officer who does.

The line of fire will always be a dangerous place. But today we are making it less dangerous for those brave enough to walk that line. To protect those who protect us all, I am proud today to sign the Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Act. Twenty-five percent of state and local law enforcement officers do not have the body armor to protect them in life-threatening situations; and this legislation will help state and local police departments provide bulletproof vests for those officers. This is a critical investment in the safety of men and women whose lives are on the line every day.

Protecting Americans from crime is, as you well know, dangerous work. Sometimes, an officer makes the ultimate sacrifice -- of his or her life. We will continue to do everything in our power to prevent that from happening, and bulletproof vests are an important part of that responsibility. But when an officer is killed in the line of duty, we have a further responsibility -- to the families and children they leave behind. To honor those lives lost and those who remain, I am also signing the Care for Police Survivors Act, which supports counseling for families who have lost a loved one in the line of duty. Last fall, I proposed to help provide college scholarships for the children of slain officers, and I again call on Congress to make that important tribute to those who protect all America's children.

Community police are making our children safer at home and in our neighborhoods. And, as recent events have reminded us, we need those police every bit as much at our nation's schools. Just yesterday, a 14-year-old student shot two people in a Richmond, Virginia high school. They're expected to make a full recovery, I'm relieved to say. And fortunately, the assailant was chased several blocks and apprehended by Ron Brown, a police officer assigned to the school.

Ron Brown was at that school because COPS, our community policing program, helped fund his presence there. Our nation needs more Ron Browns. That is why, today, I am directing the Attorney General and the Secretary of Education to develop an action plan, and to report back to me before the next school year on ways to provide more police for more schools, just as we've provided more police for our communities. I ask all the Members of Congress here today, members of both parties who have worked with us to strengthen law enforcement in every corner of our country, to join in this important effort. A good first step is to support the bill just introduced by Congressman Jim Maloney -- to guarantee that funds from our COPS initiative can be used to deploy more community police in our communities, schools. Congress should pass this bill as a "back-to-school special" for America's children.

Our nation is grateful for the hard work of our law enforcement officers. Every day, you are making our streets and schools safer, our homes more secure, our people more free. But as you ensure that our crime rates drop, the rest of us cannot grow complacent. As parents, as teachers, as community and national leaders, we must teach our children right from wrong and turn them away from violence. And by working together, we will make this a safer and better nation for our children as we stand on the threshold of the new century.

TEXT:

There is some chance that the Riggs bill will come up on the House floor before recess, though it is not on the tentative schedule for next week right now, we believe that Riggs is trying to push for a vote.

We need a decision as to whether we are trying to collaborate with the CHC and House Dems on the need for/timing of an alternative bill, or sending one up regardless of their views. Without this basic sense of direction it is difficult to reach out to the Dems and try to build support for our approach.

So, while I did not have a sense of urgency about this earlier today, it now seems more urgent to get the decision memo to POTUS.
