Welfare-to-Work Legislation Issues

7/1/97

Automated Records Management System
Hex-Dump Conversion

Tier I

Administering Agency: Department of Labor should be the administering federal agency, and the local Private Industry Councils (PICs) should administer funds distributed by formula to the local areas. (Support House Committee positions, oppose Senate.)

Tier II

Funding Issues: To ensure funds are directed at cities:

- Support at least 50% of funds distributed on competitive basis (Support Ways and Means)
- Support city set-aside within competitive funds (Support House Ways and Means and House GOP Compromise)
- Oppose small state set-aside (Oppose Senate)

Allowable Activities: ??Oppose addition of community service/work experience is added as an allowable activity?? Public sector job creation already allowed. (Oppose House GOP Compromise).

Performance Bonus: ??Support Senate or suggest ways to strengthen, perhaps by instead requiring percentage of Governor's funds be spent on performance bonuses.

Tier III

Geographic Targeting: Support higher "excess poverty factor" (7.5 vs. 5.0) which will better target high need areas.

Individual Targeting: Support House GOP Compromise, which will target 70% of funds to the 10-15% of caseload that is hardest to place.

Inter-Agency Coordination: ??Support allowing Governor to settle disputes between PIC and local TANF agencies with funding remitting to the Governor if PICs and TANF don't adhere to agreement. (Support House GOP Compromise).

?? Indicates issues about which we are getting more feedback/information.

SUBJECT:                      Draft product liability memo

Attached is a draft memo to the President on federal product liability law, based on our discussions last week. We ask two things: (i) your comments, edits and thoughts; and (ii) your choice among the three recommendations set out.

Ideally, we would like your response by noon tomorrow, July 3. Please forward comments to Ellen Seidman of my staff, who can be reached at 456-5359 or by fax at 456-1605. We apologize for the short timeframe, but we are attempting to get this memo in to the President before he leaves Washington tomorrow evening. Even noon is going to be hard; we hope the memo is sufficiently reflective of our discussions that turning it around in time is feasible. Please call me if you have any serious problems with this time frame.

Thank you all for your help, and for that of your staffs, in getting through this process.

SUBJECT: Product liability legislation

I. ACTION FORCING EVENT: On May 1, on a strict party line vote, the Senate Commerce Committee reported out S.648, Senator Gorton's revision of the product liability bill you vetoed last year. Senator Rockefeller not only voted against S.648, but has made it very clear that he will not join until your concerns are satisfied, and Senator Gorton understands that without Senator Rockefeller's support, the bill cannot pass. On the other hand, Senator Lott has been pushing to bring the bill to the floor, leading Senator Rockefeller (together with Mr. Dingell) to press us to negotiate changes in the bill to meet your concern. Senator Lott may well want to move soon after the July 4 recess. Meanwhile, Senator Breaux is urging us to work with him on an alternative to the Gorton bill.

II. BACKGROUND: The 104th Congress passed product liability reform law -- a part of the Contract with America -- by a vote of 259 to 158 in the House and 59 to 40 in the Senate. The bill would have partially preempted state law as to both standards of liability for sellers and manufacturers of products that cause bodily harm and measures and allocation of damages. On May 2, 1996, you vetoed the bill, citing eight issues:

- Interference with state prerogatives in tort law
- One-way preemption, where pro-consumer state laws were preempted, but laws that limited consumer rights were not
- The cap on punitive damages, particularly in light of the Statement of Managers, which virtually directed judges not to use the "additur" provision included in the bill under which caps could be superseded
- Several -- not joint -- liability for non-economic damages
- A too-short (15 years), too-broad (all products) statute of repose
- Preemption of state negligent entrustment statutes, which make sellers of dangerous goods (e.g., firearms and liquor) responsible for certain actions of the buyers
- Failure to toll the statute of limitations during the period of a stay issued by a bankruptcy court
- Application of the limits on liability of biomedical materials suppliers to negligent suppliers

The House failed to override your veto by a vote of 258 to 163 to override. The House having failed to override, the Senate never took a vote.

III. CURRENT CONGRESSIONAL ACTIVITY

A. S.648

S.648 fixes the bankruptcy tolling problem, and makes an honest -- although not complete -- attempt to respond to the negligent entrustment issue. Moreover, it lengthens the statute of repose to 18 years, and establishes two-way preemption for the statute of repose, so that shorter state statutes would be lengthened (all state statutes that are set in years are shorter than 18 years). The bill does not respond to the two major problems you cited -- the cap on punitives and several liability for non-economic damages -- nor does it change the biomedical materials provision.

B. Senator Rockefeller and Mr. Dingell

Senator Rockefeller and Mr. Dingell are clearly looking for guidance on how to resolve the remaining issues (punitive damages, several liability for non-economic damages, statute of repose and biomedical materials) to meet both the concerns and fact patterns in your veto message. They have said they will engage in negotiations with us (clearly they do not expect to be able to accept our initial proposal) to develop legislation that will pass and will not be vetoed. Senator Rockefeller, in particular, has said he has no interest in another veto.

C. Senator Breaux

Senator Breaux would like to deal with this issue in an entirely different way. He has developed a bill focused far more on reducing frivolous lawsuits and less on substantive product liability standards. Senator Breaux's bill would include a statute of repose that is more flexible than that in S.648, would establish uniform federal standards for punitives damages but no cap, and would do nothing to change state law concerning joint and several liability for non-economic damages.<sup>1</sup>

His bill would also set stricter pleading standards for federal and state court product liability actions, restrict multi-state product liability class actions, enact a very weak form of alternative dispute resolution, and require a study by the Attorney General of the product liability system. It is unclear how far Senator Breaux can get in moving support off the Gorton bill without the Administration's support for his approach.

D. Consumer groups and other advocates

Consumer groups and others are strongly opposed to any legislation in this area, and have stated that they view you as "the last bastion against tort reform." The American Bar Association has written you in opposition to any federal legislation primarily on federalism grounds, but also raising concerns that overlaying partial tort law preemption on the legal systems of fifty states will cause more confusion and uncertainty, not less.

III. MAJOR ISSUES PRESENTED:

Over the past eight weeks, we have jointly run an interagency process to consider whether there might be ways to alter S.648 to respond to the concerns in your veto message in a manner that could be acceptable to at least Democratic proponents of the legislation. Participants in the process included: OVP, NEC, DPC, OMB, CEA, White House Counsel, White House Legislative Affairs, Justice, Treasury, Commerce, and SBA and the Consumer Product Safety Commission as an advisor. FDA is participating in the discussion of biomedical materials. The working group surveyed the law in all the states on the critical issues of punitive damages, joint and several liability and statute of repose, and developed a number of alternatives in each area that we believe could move the bill closer (and in some cases, all the way) to your goals but may have a chance of not being rejected out of hand by proponents.<sup>2</sup> Two meetings of the NEC principals were held, on June 24 and 26.

A. Whether there should be federal legislation in this area at all

The arguments of the business community in favor of national legislation rest on three propositions:

- Concern about product liability litigation, and particularly concern about disproportionate awards for non-economic damages and punitive damages, is sapping American productivity by misdirecting management time and energy and capital and by putting an excessive -- and frequently non-insurable tax -- on innovation.
- In a national economy, subjecting products and manufacturers to 50 different liability regimes is not only inefficient but also -- because of the opportunities for forum shopping by plaintiffs, particularly in class actions, unfair.
- Manufacturers are the deep pocket focus of liability suits that are in fact generated by the activities of those who repair and service products; making manufacturer liability more limited and predictable -- as occurred when the 18-year statute of repose was instituted for aircraft -- will put the burden of care of those most responsible for and able to accomplish it.

Consumer groups, as well as lawyers (the ABA as well as ATLA), argue against the need for federal legislation based on:

- The lack of any explosion of product liability suits, and in particular, excessive punitive damage awards that survive judicial remittitur, suggesting there's no problem to be fixed.
- The fact that all recent proposals in this area would cut back on traditional principles of tort law that benefit plaintiffs, suggesting that what the manufacturers want is not uniformity but a tilt in their direction
- The traditional role of the states in tort law, combined with the fact that all existing proposals would only partially preempt state tort law, leading to even more

<sup>2</sup> Based on discussions with the Center for Violence Policy, we have also crafted a more complete fix to the negligent entrustment provision. We believe there will be no problem getting the proponents to adopt this.

non-uniformity and uncertainty as this law is overlaid on, e.g., state medical malpractice law.

- Whatever limitations are initially included in federal product liability legislation will be vulnerable to cutbacks in future Congresses; the time to stop erosion is before it starts

B. One-way or two-way preemption

One of the most contentious issues that runs through the legislation is whether federal standards should preempt all state laws ("two-way preemption") or whether they should function solely as a floor, with states free to establish more defendant-friendly standards ("one-way preemption"). For example, if the federal statute of repose were 18 years, two-way preemption would both lengthen shorter statutes and impose the 18-year limitation in states that have no statute of repose; one-way preemption would only lengthen shorter statutes. Similarly, if the federal government were to enact standards for awarding punitive damages, two-way preemption would both tighten the standard in states that, for example, allow punitives to be awarded for reckless behavior and require states that do not allow punitives at all to allow them according to the federal standards. One-way preemption would only tighten standards in some states, leaving others free to bar punitives entirely.

The bill you vetoed last year was almost entirely one-way preemptive. In your veto message you said, "As a rule, this bill displaces State law only when that law is more favorable to consumers; it defers to State law when that law is more helpful to manufacturers and sellers. I cannot accept, absent compelling reasons, such a one-way street of federalism. As noted above, S.648 is two-way preemptive as to the statute of repose (as well as with respect to the general standards of manufacturer and seller liability and the statute of limitations) but retains one-way preemption on punitive damages."<sup>3</sup>

While one of the arguments manufacturers and sellers make in favor of national legislation is the desire to create uniform federal standards, which would support uniform two-way preemption, on the two issues where they have made serious headway in the states -- limitations on punitive damages and imposition of several liability -- they are far more interested in a federal floor than in uniformity. We have been told, for example, that establishing the right to punitive damages in states where it does not exist, or limiting several liability for non-economic damages where state law has established it, would be totally unacceptable.

Consumer groups argue in favor of two-way preemption, ostensibly on the ground that the only good reason for federal standards is uniformity. However, many of these same groups regularly argue that federal environmental and consumer protection standards should function only as a floor, allowing states to impose more rigorous rules. It is conceivable that the consumer argument for two-way preemption is more an effort to highlight the inconsistency in the manufacturers' position -- and perhaps to raise an insurmountable barrier to legislation -- than a firmly held constitutional principle.

<sup>3</sup> In form, S.648 is two-way preemptive on several liability for non-economic damages. However, since it imposes the least plaintiff-friendly rule possible (totally several liability), it is effectively one-way preemptive.

C. Several liability for non-economic damages

Over the last several years, tort reform at the state level has essentially done away with the traditional rule of no comparative fault and full joint and several liability. (Only Alabama, Maryland, North Carolina and Virginia retain this combination.) Nine states<sup>4</sup> have full joint and several liability, but include comparative fault, thereby reducing the defendants' joint responsibility by the measure of the plaintiff's responsibility. Thirteen states<sup>5</sup> have pure several liability, for both economic and non-economic damages, and 24 states have various hybrid forms.

Both last year's vetoed bill and S.648 limit a defendant's responsibility for non-economic damages "in direct proportion to the percentage of responsibility of the defendant for the harm to the claimant." The trier of fact is required to assign this percentage taking into account the responsibility of all persons responsible, including those not before the court, such as settling defendants.

In vetoing last year's bill with respect to this issue, you cited the provision's general effect of preventing "many persons from receiving full compensation for injury," noting in particular the problems created by insolvent defendants. You also cited the particular impact of a several rule for non-economic damages as unfairly discriminating against "the most vulnerable members of our society." You said, "Noneconomic damages are as real and as important to victims as economic damages."

Manufacturers assert that the problem with joint liability for non-economic damages is that such damages -- unlike economic damages -- are totally unpredictable and subject to the whim of the jury, thereby making any assessment of the risk, or the purchase of insurance against the risk, virtually impossible. They are particularly concerned about the potential for a large award against the only solvent defendant in a case in which that defendant is only marginally at fault. Opponents make the argument that non-economic damages are as real and as important -- particularly to the poor, the young and the old -- as economic damages, and should not be treated differently. Some also contend that the different state standards represent the innovation and experimentation that is the role of the states, and this should not be preempted.

D. Punitive damages

The process of awarding punitive damages and the amount of such damages have been the subject of some of the most intense controversy. Both last year's vetoed bill and S.648 cap punitive damages -- at the greater of two times compensatories (including non-economic damages) or $250,000 for most companies and the lesser of these two amounts for individuals and small businesses. Upon consideration of a list of eight factors<sup>6</sup>, a judge could award damages in excess of the large business cap (but not the small business cap), up to the amount awarded by the jury, which would not be informed of the cap.<sup>7</sup> The "additur" provision explicitly constitutes one-way preemption -- it does not permit additur where state law otherwise limits punitive damages.

The bills would also: (i) establish a uniform federal standard of proof of "clear and convincing"; (ii) establish a uniform standard for award that conduct "carried out with conscious, flagrant indifference to the rights or safety of others was the proximate cause" of the harm; and (iii) authorize any party to request that punitive damages be considered in a separate proceeding (generally so that evidence of the defendant's financial condition would not be allowed into evidence during the liability and compensatory damages phase of the trial). While these rules are meant to apply in all states that have punitive damages, they would not apply in states where punitive damages are prohibited by law.<sup>8</sup>

In vetoing last year's bill, you stated that you "oppose arbitrary ceilings on punitive damages, because they endanger the safety of the public. Capping punitive damages undermines their very

<sup>6</sup> The factors are: "(i) the extent to which the defendant acted with actual malice; (ii) the likelihood that serious harm would arise from the conduct of the defendant; (iii) the degree of the awareness of the defendant of that likelihood; (iv) the profitability of the misconduct to the defendant; (v) the duration of the misconduct and any concurrent or subsequent concealment of the conduct by the defendant; (vi) the attitude and conduct of the defendant upon the discovery of the misconduct and whether the misconduct has terminated; (vii) the financial condition of the defendant; (viii) the cumulative deterrent effect of other losses, damages, and punishment suffered by the defendant as a result of the misconduct, reducing the amount of punitive damages on the basis of the economic impact and severity of all measures to which the defendant has been or may be subjected . . ."

<sup>7</sup> The judge would be required to hold a separate proceeding on awarding an additional amount, consider each of the items, and state the court's reasons for an award above the cap in findings of fact and conclusions of law. A separate finding on each factor is not explicitly required. The conference report on last year's bill, of course, virtually directed judges not to use this authority.

<sup>8</sup> In seven states punitive damages are generally forbidden; in 16 others, they are capped in one way or another. Twenty-seven states allow unlimited punitive damages in product liability cases. Most states that allow punitive damages have adopted the "clear and convincing" evidentiary standard. While the liability standards are less uniform, only a few states allow the award of punitive damages for reckless behavior without some other aggravating factor. We have not found any state that requires that the conduct leading to the punitive damages be the "proximate cause" of the plaintiff's harm, although the words "cause" and "result" are used. Bifurcated trials -- at least on the issue of the defendant's financial condition -- are allowed or required in 15 states.

purpose, which is to punish and thereby deter egregious misconduct.” You noted that the additur provision might have mitigated this concern, but the Statement of Managers virtually directing it not be used made it ineffective in that respect.

Manufacturers assert that unpredictable and unjustifiably large punitive damage awards have driven them out of markets and impinged on innovations. Consumer advocates assert that only potentially unlimited punitive damages can deter harmful misconduct by large companies. Surveys suggest that neither the award of punitives nor the amount is skyrocketing in products cases.<sup>9</sup>

E. Statute of repose

At its starkest, a statute of repose bars litigation after a product has been in service a specified period of time. Twenty-two states and the District of Columbia currently have statutes of repose for product liability; 17 of the states and the District restrict lawsuits after a specified number of years (ranging from 5 to 15) and the remainder use some variation of “useful life” as the bar. In 1994, you signed legislation establishing a preemptive 18-year statute of repose for general aviation.

The bill you vetoed last year included a preemptive 15-year statute of repose for all products. The statute would, however, only have preempted states without any statute of repose, or with a statute longer than 15 years. Shorter state statutes would have remained effective. Your veto message referenced the length of the statute, the fact that it was broadly inclusive (you cited handguns), and the fact that the preemption was only one way. The Senate bill from the 104th Congress had covered only durable goods in the workplace and had an 18-year one-way preemptive statute.

S. 648, as reported out of the Senate Commerce Committee on a voice vote, includes a fully (two-way) preemptive 18-year statute of repose, covering all products except: (i) motor vehicles, vessels, aircraft and trains used to transport passengers for hire; (ii) products that cause toxic harm; and (iii) products with express written warranties that exceed 18 years.

Manufacturers assert that a firm, and broad, statute of repose is necessary not only to provide them some certainty, but also to put the risk of injury from long-lived products on those most able to prevent it -- owners, upgraders and servicers. They argue that the 18-year statute of repose for general aviation you signed in 1994 has not only increased the willingness of manufacturers to produce the aircraft, but has made owners and servicers far more careful, <sup>9</sup> A recently-released Rand study has found an increase in the number and amount of punitive damage awards in financial fraud cases, such as cases involving insurance or financial products misrepresentation. This does not appear to extend to cases involving products as defined in the bill, which is limited to physical goods.

because they understand the deep pocket of the manufacturers will not be available to bail them out.

Consumers, on the other hand, argue that injuries from long-lived products -- including those that have not been altered or do not need service -- are common, and often the manufacturer should have foreseen and prevented the problem that caused the injury. They argue it is particularly important that those injured by long-lived consumer goods (such as camping equipment and cedar chests) not be barred from court completely by a strict statute of repose. Workers, they note, at least can collect worker's compensation for injuries caused by long-lived defective goods in the workplace.

IV. ALTERNATIVES

Working from the alternatives developed by the working group in each of the three major areas identified, your advisors concluded that the choice of alternatives really depends on another decision, whether the Administration should:

- take the position that state law developments and the lack of strong evidence of major problems in this area that are caused by lack of national standards leads us to conclude no federal legislation is appropriate at this time;
- put forward a series of proposals that are fully consistent with both your veto statement and the principle of promoting national uniformity, even if such proposals have little or no chance of leading to a bill that can be enacted; or
- put forward a series of proposals that product liability legislation proponents will regard as an acceptable place to start negotiations and that can, albeit with some difficulty, be squared with your veto message.

Some of your economic advisors believe the business community may be correct in asserting that the current tort liability system, and in particular the issues raised in this legislation, over-deter businesses in their development and production of innovative products. In our discussions with the business community, we have asked them to provide empirical evidence that innovation has been stymied by litigation in general or the issues that particularly concern us: punitive damages and several liability for non-economic damages. Unfortunately, empirical evidence is not available, and the anecdotes relate to pharmaceuticals or related products, and often to the issues raised by mass tort claims for economic compensatory damages, not non-economic damages or punitive damages..

As your advisors looked into the issue, we came to the following conclusions:

- While logically there might be some impact on manufacturing innovation and productivity from the tort system,
  - there is no empirical evidence
  - all the anecdotal evidence is from one sector -- pharmaceuticals, including vaccines -- but the legislative proposals are far broader
  - there is no explosion of either litigation or punitive damages

- the economy is booming and productivity is rising
- Over the past several years -- indeed, even since the start of the 104th Congress -- the states have made major moves toward making the tort system more defendant-friendly, ranging from the virtual abandonment of traditional principles of joint and several liability to the imposition of caps on punitive damages
- If federal legislation is not to lead to uniform national standards, there is little justification for it; there is little or no justification for one-way preemption
- Overlaying limited product liability preemption on the tort law and civil procedure of 50 states will likely increase confusion and uncertainty, not decrease it
- Recent Supreme Court decisions, including the Brady bill decision, may call into question the constitutionality of federal legislation that attempts to mandate changes in state law and judicial procedure

Thus, while there continues to be sentiment among your economic advisors for “doing something” to improve the tort system, it is mild and tempered by the recognition that current proposals may do as much harm as good. Your legal advisors do not believe the current proposals should be supported. Both groups of advisors feel strongly that if there is to be any federal legislation, it should establish uniform national standards, and should -- in the areas explicitly covered -- completely preempt the field. There is no justification for one-way preemption in this area.

This position can be manifest in two ways: taking a strong against any legislation, or developing an Administration bill that is consistent with both the veto statement and the current state of the law, even if that bill cannot be reconciled with the prime tenets of the Gorton bill.

A. Oppose federal product liability legislation at this time

_____ [names of advisors] recommend that you take a firm and overt stance against any federal product liability legislation at this time. Recent changes in state law as well as in federal constitutional law, combined with the lack of evidence of serious widespread problems suggest that the burden of showing why traditional state prerogatives in this area should be overruled and state law overlaid with potentially incompatible federal law has not been met. If legislation is needed in the area of pharmaceuticals (including vaccines), then it should be pursued on a targeted basis, taking advantage of -- and protecting -- the strong federal regulatory system for drugs.

B. Develop an Administration bill we can support, consistent with both the veto statement and the current state of the law

The hallmarks of this option are: (i) full two-way preemption, such that states with currently more defendant-friendly laws would be brought to a uniform national level as well as states whose laws are currently more pro-plaintiff; (ii) consistency with your veto message in all respects; and (iii) inclusion of items that were not part of either the vetoed bill or S.648 that can enhance the effectiveness of the legal system for injured plaintiffs.

This option does not include any provision on joint and several liability for non-economic damages. Since part of the focus of your veto message was on the unfairness of distinguishing between economic and non-economic damages, no provision that deals only with non-economic damages can be fully consistent with the veto message. Moreover, we have reason to believe some proponents of legislation would be willing to put forward an alternative without any change in joint and several liability. However, we also know the business community regards this as an important issue but, given current trends in state law toward several liability, they will be extremely unlikely to accept two-way preemption in this area. Appendix A contains alternative formulations of joint and several liability for non-economic damages that were developed by the working group, together with pros and cons.

This option would consist of the following:

Punitive damages - Advisory jury opinion with judicial determination and a breachable cap for small businesses, two-way preemption

- The jury would render a solely advisory opinion on punitive damages
- The actual determination of punitive damages would be made by the judge
- The judge would be required to consider the factors in S.648, and would be required to explain why the judge's award differs (either higher or lower) from the jury's advice
- The judge could allocate a portion of punitive damages to the state rather than to the plaintiff
- Cap punitive damages at the lesser of twice compensatories or $250,000 for firms that have 10 or fewer employees and annual revenues of $1 million or less. The jury would not be told of the cap, and the judge could award damages in excess of the cap only upon a specific finding that damages in excess of the capped amount were not only needed "to punish or deter," but also that the financial impact of the higher award had on the defendant and its employees had been explicitly considered by the judge.
- Couple this with procedural changes to set the evidentiary standard at "clear and convincing evidence," the substantive standard at "willful and wanton" (excluding recklessness), and to require bifurcation of the damages determination if requested by any party

Pros

- Is analogous to criminal law, by keeping the jury involved but placing the decision on what is essentially a punishment in the hands of the person most experienced in deciding such issues, the judge
- Since historically, punitive damage awards that seem unjustified have stemmed from jury decisions, may increase rationality in the system
- Provides some protection for truly small businesses, responding to one of the complaints about the capriciousness of punitives

- Since businesses of the size described are rarely hit with significant punitive damages, since in most states the defendant's financial condition is already taken into consideration, there may be little practical negative effect.
- Allows the Administration to agree with some sort of cap
- By adopting the S.648 factors, may be seen as a good faith offer

Cons

- Agreeing to any cap at all breaks through a clear line we established last year of "no caps on punitives"; it may be very difficult to hold the line against expansion of this cap, either to larger businesses, or by limiting the judge's discretion
- Any proposal that limits punitive damages in any way may be seen as tipping our hand -- or limiting our options -- with respect to the tobacco settlement
- Takes away from the jury what has been regarded as a traditional jury function
- While judges may determine punitive damages in many states in cases where they are the trier of fact, only Connecticut and Kansas provide for initial judicial determination (in contrast to appellate review or remittitur) where a jury has sat
- Unlikely to solve concerns of either proponents or opponents of caps; consumer groups and lawyers have not favored judicial determination
- May raise difficult Seventh Amendment issues ("no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise reexamined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of common law")
- Making it fully two-way preemptive, thus forcing some states to allow punitive damages that do not currently do so, is likely to be regarded as both unacceptable and inflammatory by the business community

Statute of repose

- Two-way preemption of state law (as in S.648)
- 18 year statute of repose (as in S.648)
- Which a plaintiff may overcome by clear and convincing evidence that the product had a longer useful safe life (not included in S.648, and responsive to the victim of the hay-baler accident cited in the veto message and to accidents involving products clearly intended to be longer-lived, such as elevators and most firearms)
- Covering only durable goods in the workplace (narrower than S.648, retaining plaintiff rights concerning consumer goods in states without any statute of repose and responding to your concern about handguns)
- With further exceptions for toxic substances, vehicles used in transportation for hire, and express warranties (as in S.648)
- And with a provision that extends the statute to allow full benefit of the two-year statute of limitations after injury or discovery of harm in, for example, year 17 (not in S.648, but not expected to be a problem)

Pros

- By building on S.648, demonstrates good faith to proponents of that legislation
- Two-way preemption is responsive to principles of veto message, and also lengthens statute in the 22 states that have them

- Number of years is longer than in any current state statute
- Rebuttable presumption protects workers injured by products clearly intended to be longer-lived
- Bright line number of years, combined with clear and convincing standard, means manufacturers will be free from arguments about whether something was intended to have a useful life slightly longer than 18 years
- By restricting statute to durable goods in the workplace, consumers in states without statutes of repose retain their access to court for injuries from long-lived or intermittently-used consumer goods such as cedar chests and camping and baby products
- Until late last year, all formulations of this statute had been limited to durable goods in the workplace, in part because those injured in such accident will at least have received some compensation through workers compensation
- Expands on an already-existing federal liability scheme -- workers compensation
- Exceptions protect access to court in latent defect cases

Cons

- Opponents of product liability reform will oppose any statute of repose as limiting plaintiffs' rights in states without such statutes
- Combination of two-way preemption and bright line (even with rebuttable presumption and limitation only to durable goods in the workplace), will restrict the access of some injured parties to court
- Proponents of S.648 may regard rebuttable presumption and limitation to durable goods in the workplace as unacceptable limitations, particularly given that they extended the statute from 15 to 18 years and made preemption two-way in response to the veto message

In addition to these proposals, we recommend that option 1 include items plaintiffs believe could make a real difference in their ability to recover, as well as provisions in the Breaux draft:

- Provision for alternative dispute resolution for small claims that both defendants and plaintiffs would find appealing
- Limitations on the use of protective orders where disclosure of the information is relevant to the public health or safety unless disclosure is clearly outweighed by a substantial interest in maintaining the confidentiality of the records
- Stricter pleading requirements and limitations on multi-state class actions where parties allege different types of damages
- A requirement for a study of the product liability system by the Attorney General

The first of these items might -- depending on how it is drafted -- gain the support of both plaintiffs (who cannot find lawyers to take small claims through the traditional legal system for a contingency fee) and defendants. The second (based on a bill that has been introduced by Senator Kohl) would be strongly supported by consumer groups and -- in light of the tobacco revelations probably could generate strong public support -- but would certainly be opposed by defendants and perhaps even by the plaintiff bar. The third and fourth provisions are from the Breaux draft. The class action may not be giving up much from the plaintiffs' perspective given the Supreme Court's recent decision overturning the asbestos settlement.

This option is recommended by _____ [names of advisors]

C. Make a proposal that has a viable chance of starting negotiations with proponents

As described in the specific pros and cons below, the items in this option cannot be completely squared with your veto statement. On the other hand, they represent real movement toward responding to your objections. However, it is critical to recognize that once these options are on the table, negotiations may take them even farther afield, and lead to a negative dynamic in which bill supporters think they've come "most of the way" toward your position and assert that refusal to support their bill amounts to "moving the goalposts." The danger with this option rests far less in its particular parameters than in the slippery slope it sends us down.

Again, no provision on several liability for non-economic damages is included, based on indications some proponents may be willing to move without such a provision. Appendix A contains options developed by the working group, of which only Proposal 2B is likely to be acceptable at all to the business community.

This option would consist of:

Punitive damages - Cap with easier breakthrough, one-way preemption

- Cap punitive damages at the greater of $250,000 or twice compensatories (the lesser of the two for small businesses)
- Do not tell the jury of the cap
- Allow the judge to award punitive damages above the cap (for both small and large businesses) without an additional proceeding and on a simple finding that the capped amount is "insufficient to punish or deter," the standard in S.648, with no consideration of specified factors
- Insist that there be no legislative history suggesting this authority is to be used any more sparingly than implied by the statutory standard
- Couple this with procedural changes to set the evidentiary standard at "clear and convincing evidence," the substantive standard at "willful and wanton" (excluding recklessness), and to require bifurcation of the damages determination if requested by any party
- This would be two-way preemptive, except with respect to states that do not allow punitives in products cases at all

Pros

- Closest to both S.648 and earlier versions of bill, and thus likely to be most easily regarded as acceptable by proponents
- Particularly given that there are few punitive damage awards in excess of the cap and that judges now have remittitur authority, this would likely have little practical impact on actual awards
- The procedural changes may produce more uniformity across the country

- Making the additur provision two-way preemptive is a real improvement for plaintiffs compared to S.648

Cons

- This looks like a cap on punitive damages, which you said you opposed; "no caps on punitives" has been used as a shorthand description of the Administration's firmest position
- It may actually be a cap with judges reluctant to award punitives
- Holding the line on the legislative history can be very difficult, particularly if the statute is acceptable in all other respects

Statute of repose

The proposal would be the same as under option 1, which we believe will be regarded as a good faith offer to negotiate.

The primary dangers with this strategy are the likelihood that opponents will not believe even the initial positions are consistent with the veto statement, and that it will be relatively easy for the other side to make what look like cosmetic changes that may in fact be quite significant. For example, deleting the plaintiff's option to breach the 18-year statute of repose by a clear and convincing showing that the useful safe life was intended to be longer -- a likely demand of the manufacturing community -- would look minor, but in fact would work a major change in that it completely shut the courtroom door on plaintiffs in the many states with no statute of repose.

This option is recommended by _____ [names of advisors]

V. DECISIONS:

- ___ Let's take the offensive against any federal product liability legislation
- ___ Propose option B to Senator Rockefeller, understanding he will not regard it as a serious offer.
  - ___ Discuss the offer with Senator Breaux before making it public, and make common cause with him if he's interested
  - ___ Make the offer public to head off claims by bill proponents that we did not have anything to offer
- ___ Propose option C to Senator Rockefeller, making explicit that this is a best and final offer and any further movement will result in a veto
- ___ Propose option C to Senator Rockefeller, being prepared to negotiate
- ___ None of the options is good. We need to talk.

APPENDIX A

Options on Joint and Several Liability for Non-Economic Damages

The formulations described below reduce the negative impact of imposing several liability for non-economic damages. However, any formulation that does not guarantee the plaintiff 100% of non-economic damages (where there is any solvent and available defendant) is discriminatory against non-economic damages in those states that retain joint liability for economic damages. Assuming you do not want to put several liability for economic damages into play, you should be aware that all of the options described -- except pure reallocation -- have this flaw.

Informed by various state law provisions concerning joint and several liability, your advisors considered formulations for federal preemption involving the following concepts:

- Several liability with reallocation among remaining defendants (and plaintiff if the plaintiff is at fault) in the event the amount allocated to any defendant is uncollectible (thus guaranteeing plaintiffs 100% recovery for the portion of the damage not their fault, but sparing low-fault, deep-pocket defendants the need to sue for contribution)
- Setting a level of fault below which only several liability will apply (thus responding to the concerns of low-fault deep-pocket defendants)
- Setting a threshold of fault below which several liability will apply, but with a multiplier (thereby guaranteeing the plaintiff some recovery where only the low-fault defendants are solvent)
- Guaranteeing the plaintiff a specified percentage of recovery of non-economic damages
- The extent to which plaintiff fault will be taken into account to reduce recovery for non-economic damages
- Special rules for small businesses, particularly as to responsibility for more than their share of damages
- Two-way preemption, which would be meaningful if federal law were less pro-plaintiff than some state laws

Working on the assumption that you wished us to develop proposals that include several liability for non-economic damages -- so as to be able to convince those favoring product liability of our good faith, but that are least restrictive of the rights of plaintiffs, your advisors developed the following alternative formulations relating only to non-economic damages:

Proposal 1 - Reallocation<sup>10</sup>

- Joint and several if the plaintiff is fault-free

- If the plaintiff is at all at fault, liability is several, but if the plaintiff cannot collect from one or more defendant after a specified period of time<sup>11</sup>, the plaintiff can petition the court for reallocation of damages not attributable to the plaintiff among the remaining defendants, but no defendant less at fault than the plaintiff may be charged with more than twice his proportionate share of damages
- This would be two-way preemptive

Pros

- Preserves balance between faultless plaintiff and defendant with any fault in favor of the plaintiff
- Is generally consistent -- or at least not less pro-plaintiff -- with the laws of most states<sup>12</sup>
- Where plaintiff is at fault, less culpable defendants -- even if they are deep pockets -- will have their damages limited
- Of all the potential limitations, is most likely to retain 100% recovery for non-economic damages
- By retaining joint and several liability in many situations, should encourage settlement

Cons

- May be viewed as excessively pro-plaintiff, and thus not a good-faith offer, particularly if it is two-way, thus increasing defendants' responsibility in states, such as California, with several liability for non-economic damages
- May limit plaintiff's recovery where plaintiff is at fault and there are multiple defendants
- Requires fact-finders in (the 13) states that currently do not have comparative fault or several liability to assign degrees of responsibility
- Shifts from defendants to plaintiffs the responsibility for collecting from each defendant, potentially adding to delay in recovering and increased expense
- As among defendants, it is unclear why the extent of the plaintiff's responsibility should have an impact on defendants' responsibility to pay the judgment

Proposal 2A - Guaranteed recovery, two-way preemption

- Joint and several liability of any defendant is than 30% at fault (taking into account the fault of the plaintiff and settling defendants)
- If any defendant is less than 30% at fault, that defendant's responsibility would be limited to a maximum of twice the defendant's proportionate share of non-economic damages except where a greater multiplier was needed to ensure the plaintiff recovery of at least 50% of the assessed non-economic damages.

<sup>11</sup> In Missouri it is 30 days, which may be too short to actually encourage the plaintiff to try to collect; in Connecticut it is one year, which may be too long.

<sup>12</sup> Only plaintiffs with some degree of fault in the four states that retain traditional no comparative fault/joint and several liability would be significantly disadvantaged; plaintiffs in the nine states with comparative fault and joint and several liability could be somewhat disadvantaged. Plaintiffs in states with any further restrictions would likely benefit.

Proposal 2B - Guaranteed recovery, one-way preemption

- Joint and several liability of any defendant is than 10% at fault (taking into account the fault of the plaintiff and settling defendants)
- If any defendant is less than 10% at fault, that defendant's responsibility would be limited to a maximum of twice the defendant's proportionate share of non-economic damages except where a greater multiplier was needed to ensure the plaintiff recovery of at least 60% of the assessed non-economic damages.

Pros

- Should be seen by proponents of limitation as a good-faith offer, with real limits
- Preserves joint and several liability for defendants with significant degree of fault
- Ensures that no low-fault defendant will have to pay more than 50% (or 60%, if one-way) of total non-economic damages, and that in most cases they will be limited to their proportionate share
- Although it limits responsibility of low-fault defendants, it guarantees that plaintiff will collect substantial portion of assessed non-economic damages (if there are any solvent and available defendants)
- The two-way preemption version would increase plaintiff's guaranteed level of recovery in states with several liability for non-economic damages (such as California and Illinois), and thus might be considered an acceptable tradeoff for limitation on guaranteed recovery in other states

- Setting the guaranteed recovery level at 50% or 60% (or, in fact, any level lower than 100%) may be viewed as non-responsive to both the objections in the veto statement -- not full recovery, and discrimination against non-economic damages
- Will require fact-finders in the 13 states that don't have both comparative negligence and several liability to make additional determinations
- Defendants who view themselves as likely to be low-fault deep pockets will object that their potential for payment of non-economic damages is so high that they cannot take limitations into account in either settlement discussions or purchase of insurance
- Small degrees of differentiation of fault -- e.g., between 9% and 11% -- could have major repercussions on responsibility to pay damages

Your advisors recommend that proposal 1 be the first one we explore with proponents of product liability. It is by far the most consistent with the veto statement. If, however, it is rejected out of hand by product liability proponents, and you believe it is essential that we continue to negotiate, we would recommend Proposal 2A, which includes two-way preemption. We should make it very clear that if forced to one-way preemption, we would only accept a proposal with a significantly higher level of guaranteed recovery for the plaintiff (e.g., 60%), and a significantly lower threshold of for imposition of several liability (e.g., 10%).

Areas where we believe some negotiation could be possible include:

Automated Records Management System
Hex-Dump Conversion

- 19 -

[Auto DATE]

Draft: March 5, 2010 (9:20AM)

- Some decrease in the minimum level of recovery for two-way preemption (we would put an absolute floor at 50% for one-way preemption and 40% for two-way preemption)
- Some increase in the threshold for imposition of joint and several liability (we would put an absolute ceiling of 35% for two-way preemption and 15% for one-way preemption)

(1) New Policy - No

(2) It may be that the President will address fair labor/displacement, etc. issues. As yet, it remains in brackets.

(3) As we approach the one year anniversary of the welfare reform law, the President will announce that there are 3 million fewer people on welfare rolls since the day he took office. He will talk about what we are doing to build on our progress, and what we need to do to meet our goal of moving one million more people from welfare to work by the year 2000. This discussion includes some mention of the balanced budget agreement's provisions targeting assistance to cities and rural areas with high concentrations of long term welfare recipients.

In other words, not really.

Hope this answers your questions.

SACRAMENTO, July 2 (UPI) -- An Assembly bill that would require company health plans to offer domestic partner coverage has cleared the state Senate's Insurance Committee.

The bill was approved on a 5-2 vote. It provides that group benefits be the same as those offered for married workers, although private employers wouldn't be required to accept domestic partnership plans.

Assemblywoman Carole Migden, D-San Francisco, said the bill is less stringent than other domestic partnership measures vetoed in recent years by Gov. Pete Wilson, and that she is working with his office on it.

The bill would apply to same- and mixed-sex couples, including senior citizens who care for each other but aren't married. It would not cover blood relatives, however, since local governments that offer domestic partnerships don't include them in domestic partnership registries.

Opponents told lawmakers today that the bill is mainly for homosexual couples since they comprise more than 90 percent of the state's domestic partnerships where they are offered.

They also said it's bad business to raise coverage costs of regular employees to cover adult friends.

THE ECONOMY REMAINS ON THE RIGHT TRACK: LOW UNEMPLOYMENT AND STRONG JOB GROWTH

July 3, 1997

TODAY'S DATA SHOWS CONTINUED JOB GROWTH WITH LOW UNEMPLOYMENT AND LOW INFLATION. THE UNEMPLOYMENT RATE FOR THE SECOND QUARTER WAS THE LOWEST SINCE 1973. AND THE ECONOMY HAS CREATED 12.5 MILLION JOBS SINCE JANUARY 1993.

- Unemployment during the second quarter was the lowest since 1973.
  - The June unemployment rate was 5.0 -- its 34th consecutive month below 6 . The unemployment rate for the second quarter as a whole was just 4.9 -- the lowest for any quarter since 1973. In 1992, the unemployment rate was 7.5 . [Source: BLS.]
  - The combined rate of unemployment and inflation has been lower under President Clinton than any other Administration since Lyndon Johnson was President. [Source: Based on data from BLS.]
- 12.5 Million New Jobs.
  - During the Clinton Administration, the economy has added 12.5 million new jobs -- a faster annual rate of job growth (2.5 percent per year) than any Republican Administration since the Roaring 1920s. [Source: Based on data from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Current Employment Statistics survey.]
  - The economy has added 2.5 million jobs over the past year.
- Strong Private-Sector Job Growth.
  - Over the past year, the private sector has added 2.3 million jobs -- much more than during the entire four-year period before President Clinton took office. [Source: Based on data from BLS.]
  - 93 percent of the 12.5 million new jobs under President Clinton have been in the private sector. [Source: Based on data from BLS.]
- Turning The Corner In Basic American Industries.
  - After losing 667,000 jobs in construction during the previous four years, 1.1 million new construction jobs have been added since January 1993 -- that's a faster annual rate than any other Administration since Harry S Truman was President.
  - After losing 35,000 jobs in the auto industry during the Bush years, we have 123,000 new auto jobs since President Clinton took office. [Source: Bureau of Labor Statistics, Current Employment Statistics survey.]

LAST WEEK, WE LEARNED THAT THE ECONOMY GREW BY 5.9 PERCENT AT AN ANNUAL RATE IN THE FIRST QUARTER -- THE FASTEST IN A DECADE -- WHILE INFLATIONARY PRESSURES REMAIN LOW.

EXPERTS AGREE THAT THE AMERICAN ECONOMY IS STRONG:

- David Berson, chief economist, Fannie Mae, 6/14/97: "What we have now is the best combination of sustained growth and low inflation that we have had in at least a decade."
- Bruce Steinberg, chief economist, Merrill Lynch, 6/7/97: "The best of all possible economies just keeps rolling along."
- Fortune, 6/9/97: "Business is booming, inflation is falling, jobs are plentiful, and American industry is way out in front. The U.S. economy is stronger than it's ever been before."
- Allen Sinai, one of America's top economic forecasters, 4/30/97: "Job growth is good. Real income is rising. Sentiment is high. Unemployment is the lowest in years. Times are good for American consumers."
- Mickey Levy, chief economist, NationsBank, 2/1/97: "It's really the best of all worlds. Growth at a healthy pace, but with the economy not overheating and continued very favorable news on inflation.”

Draft 7/3/97 11:30am

PRESIDENT WILLIAM J. CLINTON
RADIO ADDRESS ON DECREASED WELFARE ROLLS
THE WHITE HOUSE
JULY 4, 1997

Good morning. We come together this weekend to celebrate Independence Day, our national heritage, and the fundamental values that unite us as one America: In America, everyone should have an equal chance to succeed. And everyone has an obligation to work hard, to give something back to their community, to earn in each generation the freedom that our Founders established.

These are the values that have guided our efforts to end welfare as we know it. Today, I want to talk to you about the progress we have made over the past four and a half years, the changes now underway, and what we must all do to make sure that welfare reform honors those values, too.

For four years, my administration has been committed to putting an end to the old welfare system that trapped too many families in a cycle of despair. Working with the states we launched welfare reform experiments in 43 states which emphasized work and personal responsibility.

Then last summer, I signed historic legislation that revolutionized welfare. It was a dramatic step, but we knew that the time was right to put an end to a system that was broken beyond repair. As of July 1, welfare reform has taken effect in all 50 states. This week, the old welfare system came to an end. Now a new system based on work is taking its place. This system demands responsibility, not only from the people we are requiring to work, but from every American.

We knew last August that the new welfare reform law was not a guarantee, but a bold new experiment. And so far, welfare reform is working. I am pleased to announce that today, there are 3 million fewer people on welfare than there were on the day I took office -- a remarkable 1.3 million fewer since I signed welfare reform into law. This is the largest decrease in the welfare rolls in history -- and the lowest percentage of the population on welfare since 1970.

We have proven that we can begin to put an end to the culture of dependency, and elevate our fundamental values of family and work and responsibility. Now we must continue to work together to meet our goal of moving one million more people from welfare to work by the year 2000.

Since I took office, the economy has added 12.8 million new jobs -- and many economists believe that we will continue to produce the jobs we need to meet our challenge. But even so, it will not be easy. Many of the people who remain on welfare have never worked before; still others live in poor communities without enough jobs. If we expect people to work, we need to make sure there's work for them to go to.

The national government will do its part. First, the balanced budget agreement we reached with Congress in May provides $3 billion to create jobs to move people from welfare to work. I secured a commitment from congressional leaders to give private employers tax incentives to hire long term welfare recipients. And I believe that every one of those new workers should earn at least the minimum wage and receive the protections of existing employment laws.

Second, we must help welfare recipients get to the new jobs which are often outside their neighborhoods. That is why I recently proposed legislation that provides $600 million to help states and local communities devise transportation strategies to move people from welfare to work.

Third, we must make sure that mothers who must now go to work have good child care -- and adequate health care -- for their children. That is why I made sure that the welfare reform bill added $4 billion more in child care assistance. And that is why I fought for the balanced budget agreement to extend health care coverage to millions of uninsured children.

States must also do their part. Many states are already working to reduce caseloads and free resources to put even more people to work. Wisconsin and Florida are significantly increasing their investment in child care. In Oregon, they are providing health care and transportation support, and subsidizing jobs with money that used to pay for welfare checks. Today, I challenge every state to take the money they saved from lowering their caseloads and use it for child care and transportation to help move more people from welfare to work.

As much as the national and state governments can do to move people from welfare to work, we know that the vast majority of the jobs must be created by private business. The most lasting way to bring people on welfare into the mainstream of American life is with a solid job in a private business. So to every businessperson who ever criticized the old system, I say: the old system is gone. And it is up to you to help make the new system work.

This Independence Day, all Americans should be happy that 3 million of our fellow citizens are off the welfare rolls. As we celebrate our nation's past and the values that unite us, we must look forward to the future, and redouble our determination to put an end to the culture of dependence.

Thanks for listening.

Good morning. And everyone has an obligation to work hard, to give something back to their community, to earn in each generation the freedom that our Founders established.

DRAFT NOT FOR RELEASE

H.R. 1818 - Juvenile Crime Control and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1997 (Riggs (R) California and 11 cosponsors)

Enactment of comprehensive legislation to address youth and gang violence and drug use is a top Administration priority. Accordingly, on February 25, 1997, the Department of Justice transmitted to Congress the "Anti-Gang and Youth Violence Act of 1997," which was introduced as H.R. 810 by Representative Schumer. The Administration's proposal was designed to combine elements of enforcement and prosecution with targeted and selective prevention and intervention efforts. H.R. 1818 appropriately addresses these prevention and intervention efforts. Therefore, the Administration supports House passage of H.R. 1818.

In particular, the Administration supports the provisions of H.R. 1818 that:

Restructure the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention to enhance its ability to support State and local delinquency control, system improvement, and prevention programs;

Continue the basic Formula Grants program to States, while providing additional flexibility to State and local governments implementing requirements that ensure the safety of and fairness to juveniles in their custody;

Consolidate several existing grant programs into a flexible delinquency prevention and early intervention block grant program;

Provide Federal support for research, evaluation, and statistics tied to the programs of the National Institute of Justice and the Bureau of Justice Statistics; and Authorize technical assistance and training, information collection and dissemination, and development, testing, and demonstration of programs that have potential to control, reduce, or prevent juvenile crime.

The Administration will seek an amendment to H.R. 1818 to delete the provision repealing the Coordinating Council on Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention. The Council has helped to redefine the Federal juvenile justice agenda and enhance Federal program coordination.

TEXT:

If we are planning, as I believe we are, to ask for a significant increase in the ADAP program for '98, we should consider whether this would be a good announcement for POTUS or VPOTUS and monitor the timing of any announcement closely w/ HHS. It would be a shame if we missed this opportunity to feature good news in our war on AIDS.

Bruce had asked Jerry and I to check in with him on Koop-Kessler today. Before we make that call, we'd like to talk to you about where we are on outreach and Congressional strategy and get your input. Also, can you join us for call to Bruce? Can we catch you sometime between 4-5? I should be at my desk.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: Bruce Reed
Elena Kagan

RE: DPC Weekly Report

1.

National Tests: Secretary Riley has received a letter from Governor Knowles expressing Alaska's commitment to participate in the national tests in 1999. In addition, in the past week we have received verbal confirmation that Gov. Romer, Gov. Carnahan and most likely Gov. Carper will sign on to participate in the tests. We also have verbal commitments from local superintendent's in Broward County (FL), Cincinnati, Long Beach and Philadelphia, in addition to the superintendent from San Antonio who announced her commitment at the family Conference. In anticipation of an announcement event on July 25, we are working to firm up these verbal commitments, and secure commitments from additional states and cities.

Agostini v. Felton Decision Follow-Up

Last Friday the Education Department wrote Chief State School Officers regarding the Supreme Court's Agostini v. Felton decision, making clear that public school teachers may now provide Title I supplementary instructional services to eligible children in religiously-affiliated private schools. The letter emphasized the Department's expectation that school districts will meet with local private school officials to examine whether they can arrange to take advantage of the Supreme Court's decision for the upcoming school year. Question and answer guidance will go to the field in mid-July, and meetings with both public and private school officials (including state Title I directors and the U.S. Catholic Conference) are being planned over the next month.
