TEXT:

I've followed up with Rep. Waters' staff, Katherine Atkins, to tell her that we would very much like to meet with her to discuss grandparents.

To remind Jen of the genesis of this issue, Waters has a bill to exempt grandparents who take care of kids on welfare from the welfare law's work requirements. HHS has told her (nicely) that we can't support that, and that we think the law has sufficient flexibility to take this population into consideration. However, her staff has now asked if we are interested in discussing other approaches or initiatives to supporting this group, and Elena asked me to send back a very clear "yes" signal to her, which I have done.

Unfortunately, Rep. Waters would really like the meeting to be next week, ideally Tuesday or Thursday. We need to decide which of us should go, both from DPC and from HHS. I am assuming we need you or Nicole, Jen, to be there to talk about the issue. I asked Atkins what agenda she envisions for the meeting -- she said she'd like to discuss what areas we have identified as needing work, and what initiatives we may be undertaking. She said perhaps we would undertake some activities together.

Please let me know your thoughts on who should attend. Elena, do you want to try to come? We need to start setting this up on Friday, either by Laura or by our new support person, Linda Cooper. From HHS, is it still Carol Williams? Elena, I assume you would be anxious to make this work for Waters at the time she wants. (I'm out next week, so I'd like to get this set.)

Joan Claybrook, the President of Public Citizen (my former employer, as you know), called me to ask for her or David Vladeck, the Director of Public Citizen's Litigation Group, to be included in the meeting with the VP tomorrow of health groups. (I wasn't aware of such a meeting, but she said it was in the paper.) They were involved in the FDA litigation (they were intervenors on behalf of the public health groups in the North Carolina case), and have been involved in a number of other ways.

Unless this is a smaller meeting (i.e., of people who only love the deal, etc.), it would make sense to include Claybrook or Vladeck. THANKS.

EK -- Here are the entries for the weekly you requested. I'm not sure if I have the crack piece 100% right. jciii

Brady Follow-up -- On Wednesday, July 16th, the Attorney General and Secretary of the Treasury will host a meeting for law enforcement representatives from the national organizations and the 23 Brady states. We hope to accomplish the following: (1) to brief law enforcement on the Supreme Court's decision and issue guidance on how they can continue to conduct background checks; (2) to get county and/or state law enforcement agencies to agree to do background checks for the handful of local jurisdictions that have stopped doing them; and (3) to discuss and seek support for legislation that makes clear that states, unless expressly prohibited by state law, have the authority to conduct background checks. This legislation is necessary because the NRA is challenging the authority of 19 of the 23 Brady states to continue to conduct Brady checks. As you know, the attorneys general in Arkansas and Ohio are claiming that they do not have the authority under state law to do Brady checks.

Recommendations on Crack Cocaine Sentencing -- We have met with the Justice Department and ONDCP to discuss how to unveil their recommendations on crack cocaine sentencing. At the recommendation of Senators Biden and Kennedy, our initial goal has been to keep the Senate Judiciary Committee from taking up ill-advised amendments to simply drop the threshold for powder cocaine during the mark-up of the juvenile crime bill. To this end, Justice has spoken with Senator Abraham, and it looks as if he will not offer his amendment. Afterwards, Justice and ONDCP will take the lead in reaching out to members of the Judiciary Committees, the Black Caucus and law enforcement representatives. If they can build enough support for their recommendations, we will try and offer attach to the juvenile crime bill when it is considered on the floor of the Seante this fall.

FROM: OMB LEGISLATIVE AFFAIRS

DATE: JULY 10, 1997

SUBJECT: LEGISLATIVE REPORT

Sally Katzen, Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs, testified today the House Subcommittee on Technology and the Subcommittee on Government Management, Information and Technology regarding Year 2000 computer conversion quarterly report.

CONGRESS TODAY (7/10)

SENATE

[SAP sent 6/19: Senior Advisors Recommend Veto]

While under consideration, the Senate took the following action on S. 936:

- o Rejected (48-51) Murray amendment which would have repealed current law prohibiting overseas U.S. military hospitals and medical facilities from performing privately funded abortions for U.S. service members and their dependents.

- o Adopted (72-27) Grams second degree amendment to the Cochran amendment, to require the comptroller general to study the risks of selling high-powered computers to certain countries that may represent a threat to national security. The Cochran amendment would have required certain computer companies to obtain export licenses from the Commerce secretary to sell high-powered computers to certain high-risk countries. (Subsequently, the Cochran amendment was adopted by voice vote.)

- o Adopted (58-41) Thurmond motion to table the Wellstone amendment to require the Defense secretary to transfer $400 million to the secretary of Veteran's Affairs in FY 1998 for veteran's benefits.

- o Adopted (62-37) Gramm second degree amendment to the Levin amendment, to require the Defense Department to conduct a joint study into procurement practices with the federal agency that manages the production of goods by inmates at federal prisons. The Levin amendment would have eased the requirement that federal agencies purchase certain goods made in federal prisons. (Subsequently, the Levin amendment was adopted by voice vote.)

- o Adopted (83-16) Thurmond motion to table the Boxer amendment to limit Defense Department payments to executives at contracting companies to no more than the pay received each year by the president.

HOUSE

Reconciliation bill - Tax

Rejected (199-233) Rangel motion on H.R. 2014 to instruct conferees to recede from the insistence on the provision of the House bill that provides for indexing of cap assets, also support tax relief that provides a family credit commonly referred to as the $500 per child credit to working families.

Reconciliation bill - Spending

Adopted (414-14) Spratt motion on H.R. 2015 to instruct conferees to insist on the House position that the existing age for Medicare eligibility be retained, and to eliminate the provision that denies worker protections to welfare recipients holding workfare positions in the public and non-profit sectors.

Interior Appropriations

Adoption of the rule (217-216) (H Res 181) to provide for House floor consideration of H.R. 2107 - Interior Appropriations Act for FY 1998. The rule did not waive a point of order against the $10 million of funding in the bill for the National Endowment of the Arts because its authorization had expired and makes in order an Ehlers amendment to terminate NEA and create block grants for the arts at $80 million.

Began consideration of H.R. 2107 - Interior Appropriations Act for FY 1998 [Floor SAP sent 7/10: Senior advisers veto recommendation over lack of funding for NEA and over Ehlers amendment]

While under consideration, the House took the following action on H.R. 2107:

- o Rejected (199-233) Sanders and Bass amendment which would have increased funding for Payments in Lieu of Taxes for communities by $19 million.

o Rejected (77-351) Maloney (for Rep. Slaughter) amendment to transfer $1 million from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's National Wildlife Refuge program to the Susan B. Anthony House.

o At press time, the House is debating the Kennedy/Porter amendment to reduce funding for building Forest Service roads and a Dicks amendment to reduce funding by a lesser amount.

SENATE

Convene at 9:00am, first vote expected at 9:45am.

TEXT:

You've asked me about the timing and status of the decision on means tested benefits, as well as the timing of the affidavit of support rule that Sally Katzen wrote that interesting note about. Here's the wonderful story:

Means-tested is ready to go. But there are now 2 holdups to getting these 2 out.

1. DOJ feels very strongly that it should not send out major interpretations of the welfare law on immigration without first meeting and "consulting" with Rep. Lamar Smith. There is about .000005% chance that he would like our interpretation, tell us anything we don't already know, or change our minds, but DOJ has been very firm on this. So we are waiting for this meeting to get scheduled and occur, and then to let a respectable number of days pass before taking our action.

2. On the affidavit of support, a final snag has arisen in the last few days on the definition of "state means tested benefits" that OLC says was raised by the Brady Law decision. DOJ and INS met today to iron this out; I don't know the resolution yet. I am trading calls with David Ogden to suggest to him that time is of the essence.

Finally, HHS feels very strongly that means-tested should be announced at the same time as the affidavit, so there will be one day of attention to this rather than two. Therefore they are very reluctant to schedule the meeting with Smith until they know that the affidavit issue is resolved.

So the schedule is:

1. settle state means tested definition issue in affidavit of support (punting is a possibility)
2. meet with Smith
3. issue both a few days later

Monahan tells me that HHS may surface a fallback option on displacement:

They may propose that anti-displacement rules should be limited to those whose employment is subsidized by TANF or the $3 billion. But they would not apply if the person were getting TANF help for child care or transportation. In the latter case, other employees then could not bring a grievance against their hiring.

Sounds pretty reasonable to me. I wonder if it discourages wage subsidies, and encourages states to spend money on support services rather than direct employer subsidies....

"Later transmittal" proposals go up to Congress as budget amendments when the substantive program (in this case welfare to work) is enacted, or about to be, and are usually timed so as to be on the record when the appropriations subcommittees mark up their bills for the year, lest they not be considered due to lack of timely transmittal.

Wow -- progress on this since yesterday's note to you -- DOJ and HHS met with Lamar Smith today, and it went as well as could be expected. They also briefed some Democrats. So now the only remaining issue is the remaining legal snag in the affidavit of support, and people think that's getting resolved. So the best guess is this will go public the week after next.

Subject: Affidavit of support and means tested benefits

You've asked me about the timing and status of the decision on means tested benefits, as well as the timing of the affidavit of support rule that Sally Katzen wrote that interesting note about. Here's the wonderful story:

Means-tested is ready to go. But there are now 2 holdups to getting these 2 out.

1. DOJ feels very strongly that it should not send out major interpretations of the welfare law on immigration without first meeting and "consulting" with Rep. Lamar Smith. There is about .000005% chance that he would like our interpretation, tell us anything we don't already know, or change our minds, but DOJ has been very firm on this. So we are waiting for this meeting to get scheduled and occur, and then to let a respectable number of days pass before taking our action.

2. On the affidavit of support, a final snag has arisen in the last few days on the definition of "state means tested benefits" that OLC says was raised by the Brady Law decision. DOJ and INS met today to iron this out; I don't know the resolution yet. I am trading calls with David Ogden to suggest to him that time is of the essence.

Finally, HHS feels very strongly that means-tested should be announced at the same time as the affidavit, so there will be one day of attention to this rather than two. Therefore they are very reluctant to schedule the meeting with Smith until they know that the affidavit issue is resolved.

So the schedule is:

1. settle state means tested definition issue in affidavit of support (punting is a possibility)
2. meet with Smith
3. issue both a few days later

Sylvia asked that I e-mail you folks on this issue:

RECONCILIATION ITEMS THAT WEAKEN WORK REQUIREMENTS

I. FLSA/Minimum Wage

- Work Activities Permitted -- The House proposal would allow states whose benefits levels don't support the minimum wage for the required number of hours to count work activities that current law does not permit them to count.

To get up to 20 hours a week, states could count any of the following activities, none of which count under current law:

- (1) job skills training directly related to employment;
- (2) education for those with no high school diploma;
- (3) job search and job readiness assistance in excess of 6 weeks (current law: the first 6 weeks always count as work); and
- (4) vocational educational training in excess of 12 months (current law: the first 12 months always count as work).

To go from 20 to 30 hours a week, states could count any items from this same list of activities; but current law already permits activities (1) and (2) to count for hours over 20.

- Deducting child support retained by the state -- In defining the maximum number of hours of workfare participation per month, the House bill deducts child support retained by the state from welfare and food stamp benefits before dividing by the minimum wage. This is intended to prevent women from having to "work off" their own child support, but it raises a number of difficult fairness questions.

Special Note on Nickles Amendment -- This amendment is intended to ameliorate one consequence of the Labor Department's minimum wage guidance. Applying either to current law or to the House bill, it says that regardless of minimum wage requirements, states may issue sanctions against recipients. The question is whether current law already permits this, and DOL and HHS are investigating this question. For example, it may be that sanctions can be viewed as "wage garnishments" deducted after payment of the minimum wage.

One easy solution that the agencies may offer is to allow a sanction to be imposed, but at the same time to cut the hours of work required. We have to decide if that solution is unacceptable to us. We have taken no position on the Nickles amendment to date.

II. 20% Vocational Education Limit

- Current law is arguably somewhat murky on this issue. It says that "not more than 20% of individuals in all families...may be determined to be engaged in work" because of vocational education or high school attendance by teen parents. The liberal interpretation (which the Education Department urged us to embrace publicly without success) is that the cap is 20% of the entire caseload. The conservative interpretation is that the cap is 20% of those engaged in work. Therefore, measuring whether the reconciliation proposals weaken the work requirement depends on what interpretation you start with.

Automated Records Management System
Hex-Dump Conversion

Since teen parents attending high school “share” the 20% cap with vocational education, and teen parents are 6% of current caseload, many argue that this leaves little or no room for vocational education. (According to CRS, one-third of teen parents have diplomas, so teen parents attending high school are 4% of current caseload -- or less, since many don't actually attend school.)

The proposals vary widely in terms of the percent of the caseload that can be in vocational education and still count as working -- from 2% to 20%.

- Percent of Caseload that can be in vocational education and count as working:

House Education and Workforce (strict interpretation of current law):

- FY98: 20% cap applied to the 30% required to work = 6%; less 4% teen parents = 2%
- FY02: 20% cap applied to the 50% required to work = 10%; less 4% teen parents = 6%

House Ways and Means (strict interpretation, but increase cap to 30% and take out teens):

- FY98: 30% cap applied to the 30% required to work = 9%
- FY02: 30% cap applied to the 50% required to work = 15%

Liberal Interpretation of Current Law (20% of total caseload, teens part of cap):

- FY98: 20% cap applied to total caseload, less 4% teen parents = 16%
- FY02: same = 16%

Senate (liberal interpretation, plus take out teens):

- FY98: 20%
- FY02: 20%

III. Domestic Violence Exemption

This Senate amendment would allow states to grant waivers from the 5-year time limit for victims of domestic violence in excess of the 20% cap now in the law. In addition, it would require HHS to exclude recipients with such waivers in computing state work participation rates and penalties.

The House has no such provision. We have not yet taken any position on this amendment.

- Current Law -- States may exempt up to 20% of the monthly caseload from the 5-year time limit for reasons of hardship “or if the family includes an individual who has been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty.”

In addition, states have an option to certify that they have and enforce standards to identify and provide services for recipients with a history of domestic violence; and to waive program requirements “such as time limits..., residency requirements, child support cooperation requirements; and family cap provisions” when it would endanger, penalize, or put at risk such victims.

- Senate Amendment (Murray) --

Automated Records Management System
Hex-Dump Conversion

- States shall not be subject to any numerical limitation in granting domestic violence waivers.
- HHS must exclude recipients granted domestic violence waivers by a state when it determines whether a state has complied with work participation rates and enforcement of the time limit, as well as whether penalties should be imposed.

Suspension of Deportation for Central Americans
July 11, 1997

Questions and Answers

Q. What did the Attorney General announce yesterday regarding Central American migrants?

A. The Attorney General announced the Administration's three-part course of action relating to a humanitarian form of relief called "suspension of deportation." The 1996 Immigration Act severely restricts eligibility for suspension of deportation-- traditionally available to deportable aliens who have resided in the United States for 7 years, could show good moral character, and that deportation would cause extreme hardship.

These actions are aimed primarily at fulfilling the President's promise to ease the harsh effects of the new law on Central Americans-- many of whom came to the U.S. in the 1980's fleeing civil wars and political persecution. The three-part course of action is as follows:

1. The Attorney General has decided to vacate and take under review a controversial administrative decision, Matter of N-J-B, that made it much more difficult for individuals to qualify for suspension. While she reviews the decision, the Attorney General has ordered the INS not to deport anyone who would have been eligible for suspension but for that decision.
2. Next week, the Administration will send a legislative proposal to Congress that will provide for a more fair and humane transition to the new, more restrictive rules governing suspension. Under the legislation, applicants for suspension who were in the administrative pipeline before April 1, 1997 will be required to meet the standards that applied prior to the effective date of the new law. Suspension applications filed after April 1 of this year will continue to be subject to the tighter criteria.
3. If Congress is unwilling to pass the proposed legislation, the Administration is prepared to consider other available administrative options to protect certain Salvadorans, Guatemalans and Nicaraguans who would have qualified for suspension but for the new rules.

Q. Why is the Administration taking this course of action?

A. As the President learned during his recent trip to Central America, peace and democracy are still fragile in that region. The sudden return of tens of thousands of Central Americans, who have been living in the U.S. for many years, could jeopardize these important accomplishments. The President believes that it is vital to the national security to assist in any way he can in bringing stability to that part of the world.

Automated Records Management System

The Administration also recognizes that many of these individuals, after years of being authorized to remain in the United States, have developed important ties to the country and should be treated fairly in light of the recently-passed legislation.

Q. Isn't this basically a huge new amnesty program?

A. Not at all. The Administration's approach would only ensure that those people with immigration cases already in the pipeline prior to April 1 are able to benefit from the old suspension rules in effect prior to that date. Those who apply for suspension will still have to meet several legal requirements and appear before an immigration judge who has the discretion to grant or deny the application. Not all individuals who apply for suspension will qualify.

Q. How many people are affected by these decisions?

A. The Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) estimates that as many as 280,000 people might be eligible to appear before an immigration judge to request suspension. Of this number, INS estimates that about 160,00 might actually decide to apply for suspension. However, because suspension is decided on a case-by-case basis, it is extremely difficult to estimate how many people will be given this remedy under our proposal.

Q. Isn't the government being sued right now on some of these issues (the Tefel case)? What will this mean for cases currently in litigation?

A. This question would be best answered by the Attorney General. It is our understanding that the Department of Justice is currently reviewing its posture in these cases in light of this announcement. The government's position will be made clear in the very near future.

Q. What has been the response by the Hill?

We have just begun to notify members of Congress of our proposal. Over the past few months, we have received requests from over 125 Members and Senators asking us to look at what we could do administratively or legislatively about this problem. We will continue to work with them for a just and proper resolution to this matter.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: Bruce Reed
Elena Kagan

RE: DPC Weekly Report

1. Welfare -- Children's SSI Cut-offs Begin: This month, SSA will begin to cut off SSI benefits for children who do not meet the new definition of childhood disability under welfare reform. Time Magazine ran a story on the issue this week, and ABC World News Tonight is expected to cover this in the coming weeks. The law called for SSA to complete eligibility reviews of 260,000 children by August 22, with 135,000 expected to ultimately lose benefits. However, Congress is likely to give SSA another 6 months to complete the process, which is behind schedule. Under the budget agreement, these children would have their Medicaid benefits grandfathered. The Senate, however, failed to include this provision, while the House has made it a state option. We are endeavoring to get the full budget agreement in this area.

2. Welfare -- Teen Parents and Welfare: Last Thursday, before you taped the radio address, you told us about a friend who had hired a welfare recipient who turned out not to be ready for the workplace. The same day, several newspapers had articles about the New Chance project for teen mothers, all with conclusions like the Wall Street Journal's "Welfare Services Seem Little Help to Teen Mothers." We thought we'd take a closer look at what we know about whether programs like these help teen parents become self sufficient.

We looked at three well-known, rigorously evaluated programs for teen parents, including the New Chance study. Our most interesting finding is that the two studies in which the program group had significantly better outcomes than the control group are ones which included sanctions and penalties, in some cases along with support services. New Chance, on the other hand, was a voluntary program, which offered employment and support services but did not sanction individuals for not meeting program expectations. The teen mothers in New Chance were not more likely to hold jobs or leave welfare than the teens in the control group, partly because both groups improved over time.

However, the two programs with sanctions, Ohio's LEAP program and the Teenage Parent Demonstration project, both had significantly better results than the voluntary New Chance program. The LEAP program, for example, required teen mothers to stay in school and offered financial rewards in addition to sanctions (although no specific services). After three years, teens in LEAP had an employment rate of 33 percent compared with the control group's 28 percent, and 17 vs. 12 percent had left welfare. (We expect to have updated results from LEAP within the month.) The Teenage Parent Demonstration program, which required teen parents to stay in school and to use services or face sanctions, also showed success. The program increased school enrollment levels by from 29 to 42 percent and the teens' employment rate from 43 to 48 percent.

These results show that it is very difficult to turn around the lives of teen parents on welfare. They also indicate that requiring teen parents to stay in school and providing sanctions and services to help them do so, as the new welfare law requires, works better than simply providing services.

3. Welfare -- White House Hiring of Welfare Recipients: We are pleased to tell you not-yet-announced news that the Executive Office of the President has achieved its goal, set in April, of hiring six welfare recipients. One of them is working for the Domestic Policy Council. We are saving this announcement for an appropriate time, and trying to ensure that such an announcement won't jeopardize the privacy of these workers.

4. Welfare -- Speech to the National Governors' Association: After reading Secretary Shalala's memo on how states are using extra funds from the welfare block grant available from falling welfare caseloads, you asked if you should do a letter to the governors on the topic. We suggest you send such a letter as part of the speech to the National Governors' Association you're scheduled to give on July 28th. We recommend that in that speech you expand upon the challenge you issued in last week's radio address, for "every state to take the money they save from lowering their caseloads and use it -- for child care, for transportation, to subsidize the training and wage help that people need to move from welfare to work."

5. Welfare --California and New York State Welfare Plans: California and New York have about one-third of the nation's welfare recipients between them, but state politics have long stymied welfare reform plans in each state. This week, there was legislative activity in both states.

In California, Democrats in the legislature finally passed a fairly tough plan. Governor Wilson, however, immediately vetoed the first of the four bills sent to him, criticizing it with very strong rhetoric, and legislative leaders then withdrew the remaining bills. The Democratic legislature voted to limit each period of welfare receipt to 24 months, but Wilson prefers 12 months for all new recipients. Democrats oppose Wilson's plan to cut benefits by 15 percent after a family has been on the rolls for six months. The Democrats' bill would permit mothers with infants to stay at home, while Wilson wants women to start job search when their children are 12 weeks old. Democrats voted for a partial state takeover of the state general assistance program, but Wilson has proposed to eliminate the state requirement that counties provide general assistance. Democrats were unable to muster enough votes to pass plans to make up for federal cuts in food stamps and SSI. Democrats are now negotiating with the Governor and Republican legislators, but it is not clear when or whether an agreement will emerge.

In New York, state legislative leaders appear to be close to an agreement with Governor Pataki, after years of impasse. The Governor recently signaled that he will drop or soften features of his original plan, such as decreasing welfare benefits over time and converting the state's general assistance program from cash to vouchers. A significant increase in child care spending appears likely. The resolution of the issue is bound up with the overall state budget and other end-of-session issues.

6. Service -- Upcoming High School Service Events: Next Friday, as part of an event with Girls Nation, you are scheduled to announce that 1,600 high school students across the country have been named the first "National Service Scholars" and awarded $1,000 scholarships, in the first year of a program you announced last year at Penn State. These high school juniors and seniors were selected by their principals based on outstanding service records. The federal government, through the Corporation for National Service, puts up $500 per scholarship, with civic organizations and other groups invited to match that amount. Groups that have stepped forward to match these first 1,600 scholarships include the Kiwanis, Rotary, VFW, Junior Leagues, Chambers of Commerce, PTAs, the Miss America organization, and the American Legion. Sallie Mae agreed to provide the match for all high schools in D.C., while the Minnesota state legislature voted to provide funds for every high school in the state next year. The goal is to institute this scholarship in as many of the 20,000 high schools in the country as possible. We are drafting a letter for you to send to all high school principals advising them of this opportunity.

In addition, that same day the Rev. Tony Campolo and an organization called "Youth for Christ" are holding a rally on the Mall with 25-30,000 young people, each of whom has pledged to serve 3 hours a week for the next 6 months in their communities. They are largely high school students and from Christian denominations ranging from Roman Catholic to Pentacostal. A similar event in Los Angeles in June drew 11,000 young people. Campolo invited General Colin Powell to attend, but he is apparently out of the country.

Elena: I included the next item because I've heard about 2 media stories on it in the past few days. He's pretty familiar with the issue.

7. Crime -- Brady Follow-up: On Wednesday, July 16th, the Attorney General and Secretary of the Treasury will host a meeting for law enforcement representatives from the national organizations and the 23 Brady states. We hope to accomplish the following: (1) to brief law enforcement on the Supreme Court's decision and issue guidance on how they can continue to conduct background checks; (2) to get county and/or state law enforcement agencies to agree to do background checks for the handful of local jurisdictions that have stopped doing them; and (3) to discuss and seek support for legislation that makes clear that states, unless expressly prohibited by state law, have the authority to conduct background checks. This legislation is necessary because the NRA is challenging the authority of 19 of the 23 Brady states to continue to conduct Brady checks. As you know, the attorneys general in Arkansas and Ohio are claiming that they do not have the authority under state law to do Brady checks.

8. Crime -- Recommendations on Crack Cocaine Sentencing: We have met with the Justice Department and ONDCP to discuss how to unveil their recommendations on crack cocaine sentencing. At the recommendation of Senators Biden and Kennedy, our initial goal has been to keep the Senate Judiciary Committee from taking up ill-advised amendments to simply drop the threshold for powder cocaine during the mark-up of the juvenile crime bill. To this end, Justice has spoken with Senator Abraham, and it looks as if he will not offer his amendment. Afterwards, Justice and ONDCP will take the lead in reaching out to members of the Judiciary Committees, the Black Caucus and law enforcement representatives. If they can build enough support for their recommendations, we will try and offer attach to the juvenile crime bill when it is considered on the floor of the Senate this fall.

9. Crime -- Youth Handgun Tracing/Interdiction: At the Saturday, July 19th radio address you will release a 1-year report by the Treasury Department on the 17-city Youth Handgun Tracing initiative. Participating cities will, for the first time, have an unprecedented amount of information about where the guns used to commit crimes in their communities come from. The report's general findings include:

- 4 out of 10 crime guns recovered by police are from youth (17 and under) or juveniles (18 to 24);
- more than half of all crime guns are semiautomatic pistols, and more than 70 percent are handguns, generally;
- at least a quarter of the crime guns that police recover from juvenile and youth come from legitimate retail sales and are rapidly diverted to the black market; and
- while thousands of guns are available, crime guns are constrained to a relatively small number of makes and models in each city.

Additionally, you will announce a $12-15 million expansion of the initiative that includes: more funds for ATF agents to investigate gun crimes in these cities; 5 to 10 new cities to participate in the tracing of crime guns; and additional resources to train participating state and local enforcement agencies.

10. Education -- NAACP Speech: Your speech to the NAACP will provide an opportunity to discuss education issues in the context of your race initiative. This will enable you to discuss the importance of national standards and tests as a tool for improving learning for all students, to highlight the steps the Administration has already taken to provide the tools to help students -- especially those in urban and rural areas with large concentrations of high poverty and minority students -- reach challenging standards, and to frame the issues that will be addressed and steps that will be in the future to continue to provide all students with the preparation they need.

The speech will also provide the opportunity to announce a new, concrete step to improve urban education. DPC is working with the Education Department to complete the development of a new initiative for recruiting, preparing and retaining teachers in urban and poor rural communities. Part of the Education Department's proposal for the reauthorization of the Higher Education Act, this program will provide funds to strengthen teacher training programs which place large proportions of their graduates in urban or poor rural communities, and will also enable institutions of higher education to provide scholarships to talented and diverse students who will commit to teach in urban and poor rural areas for three years after graduation.

HEADLINE: The GOP's Welfare Gut Check

BYLINE: BY MICKEY KAUS

Will Republicans sabotage their own reform?

IN THE NEXT WEEK OR TWO CONGRESS will decide the fate of welfare reform. Welfare reform? Isn't that last year's story? Well, yes. Last year Congress passed a reform that was the most significant legislation of Bill Clinton's first term -- and just about the only revolutionary act of Newt Gingrich's "revolution." So far, the law seems to be working: caseloads are plummeting nationwide.

Yet now, when nobody's looking, those soft-headed, entitlement-loving politicians in Congress are busy undermining the 1996 reform, gutting its work requirements and imposing Washington-knows-best restrictions that ensure states will not be able to put large numbers of recipients to work.

Typical. Except for one thing: the members of Congress doing the undermining are Republicans in Republican-led committees in a Republican Congress.

It is, as Gingrich would say, frankly bizarre. You'd think the GOP would jealously protect last year's achievement. The 1996 law abolished the main federal welfare program and gave the money in a "block grant" to states to spend on aid programs of their own devising. To prod governors in the right direction, the law required states to have a rising percentage of their caseloads working -- 50 percent by 2002. Wisconsin has been leading the way, with an ambitious program to require all recipients to work, in last-resort "community service" jobs if necessary.

If you wanted to subvert this successful (so far) scenario, what would you do? Not launch a frontal assault on the popular reform. Instead, you'd just change a few crucial details. Two, in particular:

You'd quietly eviscerate the work requirements: Fifty percent of the caseload must be "working" in 2002. Sounds tough. But let's look at the math. Under the original reform, states get credit for any caseload drop since 1995 -- already about 15 percent. Then there's a credit for recipients with part-time jobs -- about 4 percent of the caseload. Plus the "mothers with kids under age one" loophole (you don't want to know the details), which is good for another 3 percent. That's a total of 22 percent right off the bat.

And, this past week, Republican committees in the House and the Senate opened up new loopholes. Under the House Ways and Means plan, states could count as "working" teenage parents in school -- about 7 percent of the caseload. And, in 2002, states could put another 15 percent of the caseload into classrooms and count that as "work," too. Add up all those numbers and you realize that the average state could, without getting any additional recipients working, achieve a "work" percentage of 44 percent. If the caseload drops 6 more points, most states wouldn't have to require a single soul to work.

You'd push recipients into meaningless jobs: At least states like Wisconsin that want to put recipients to work can do it, right? Don't be so sure. In the current budget debate, three key GOP-led congressional committees, with Republican votes, have approved union-inspired restrictions that would make it very hard to give "workfare" participants work worth doing.

Workfare has always been a threat to government employees, who worry that cheap workfarers will take their jobs. The 1996 law said existing workers couldn't be fired and replaced with welfare recipients. That seems only fair. But the new "antidisplacement" restrictions would ban a welfare recipient from doing a task if it would "infringe in any way upon the promotional opportunities" of existing workers, or be "inconsistent" with union work rules.

The practical effect, as Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson argued in a letter of protest, will be to let unions block workfare assignments "at will." Governors will be forced to place workfarers far away from anything existing workers are already doing, which is to say anything visibly useful. No fixing up parks, no cleaning up subway stations. Instead, recipients will be pushed into the amorphous nonprofit sector, into makework and fake-work. That's what happened in the last big public-jobs program, CETA. The government wound up paying people to do things like "checking on" cars in a housing project.

Don't be fooled by the showy congressional debate over whether workfarers should get the minimum wage. The "antidisplacement" provisions are the real nub of the current welfare fight. There are signs GOP House leaders are finally waking up to the threat to last year's reform. But, with the welfare changes passed by committees in both houses, it may be too late. And the two sets of changes, read together, do make strange and brilliant sense: the union-inspired restrictions make it hard for states to require work; the new loopholes tell them they don't really have to. The end result could be a welfare system a lot like the one we thought Congress replaced in 1996.

GRAPHIC: Picture, Bending welfare as we know it: Bowing to union pressure, Republicans construct new obstacles to 'workfare'

PREVENTING INSURANCE DISCRIMINATION BASED ON GENETIC INFORMATION

Today, the President pledged his commitment for bipartisan legislation in the Congress to prohibit health plans from discriminating on the basis of genetic information. Senator Jeffords, Chair of the Labor and Human Resources Committee and Senator Frist, Chair of the subcommittee and a physician, also announced that they share the President's commitment in passing a bipartisan bill that is consistent with the goals laid out in the HHS report.

The Progress and Promise of Genetic Testing. Genetic testing has the potential to identify hidden genetic disorders and spur early treatment. Tests for genetic predisposition to certain diseases and conditions -- such as Huntington's disease and certain types of breast cancer -- are already available and more genetic tests are on the horizon.

Genetic Discrimination: The Perils of This Progress. But genetic testing also can be used by insurance companies and others to discriminate and stigmatize groups of people. Studies have shown that:

- 22 percent of people in families where someone has a genetic disorder report that they have been discriminated against by an insurance plan.
- 85 percent of Americans report that they are extremely concerned with the possibility that their genetic makeup will be used to discriminate against them or a member of their family.

Building on Kassebaum-Kennedy. Kassebaum-Kennedy took steps to prohibit genetic discrimination by preventing insurers from using genetic information as a "pre-existing condition" and denying or limiting coverage in group markets. However, Kassebaum-Kennedy falls short in three areas. It does not: (1) prevent health plans in the individual market from denying coverage on the basis of genetic information; (2) assure that premiums settings are in no way based on genetic information both in the group and individual market; and (3) prevent health plans from disclosing genetic information to insurers, to plan sponsors, and other entities regulated by state insurance laws, such as life, disability, and long-term care insurers.

State laws are insufficient. Nineteen states have already enacted laws to restrict the use of genetic information in health insurance and many others have introduced legislation. However, state legislation is insufficient to solve this problem. First, private sector employer sponsored health plans, which covers half of all Americans, are exempt from state insurance laws due to ERISA preemption. Second, current state laws generally focus on genetic tests rather than a broader definition of genetic information such as family history, medical records, and physical exams. Finally, the variability among state bills will lead to a lack of uniformity across the nation as to whether and how genetic information may be used by health plans.

Building on the existing bipartisan commitment to the President's challenge. Several bills have been introduced in this Congress which prohibits health plans from requesting or using genetic information to deny health care coverage or raise premiums. The bipartisan legislation introduced by Rep. Louise Slaughter, H.R. 306, addresses the three major gaps left by the HIPAA legislation and represents a strong foundation for this much-needed reform. It has already attracted over 150 cosponsors. The HHS report released today recommends building on this legislation and enacting a bill that protects all Americans from the threat of genetic discrimination.

NAACP Speech: Your speech to the NAACP will provide an opportunity to discuss education issues in the context of your race initiative. This will enable you to discuss the importance of national standards and tests as a tool for improving learning for all students, to highlight the steps the Administration has already taken to provide the tools to help students -- especially those in urban and rural areas with large concentrations of high poverty and minority students -- reach challenging standards, and to frame the issues that will be addressed and steps that will be in the future to continue to provide all students with the preparation they need.

The speech will also provide the opportunity to announce a new, concrete step to improve urban education. DPC is working with the Education Department to complete the development of a new initiative for recruiting, preparing and retaining teachers in urban and poor rural communities. Part of the Education Department's proposal for the reauthorization of the Higher Education Act, this program will provide funds to strengthen teacher training programs which place large proportions of their graduates in urban or poor rural communities, and will also enable institutions of higher education to provide scholarships to talented and diverse students who will commit to teach in urban and poor rural areas for three years after graduation.
