1. Education -- Achieve Math Test: Achieve, Inc. -- a nonprofit group focused on education reform -- announced Monday that it will create a new challenging 8th grade math test to improve the performance of U.S. middle school students in mathematics. Ten states -- Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Vermont, Washington, and Wisconsin -- already have agreed to give the test, and more states are expected to sign up in the future. The result, of course, will be exactly what you proposed (and Congress rejected): a voluntary national test in eighth grade math that will measure student performance against world-class standards. Achieve also intends to train teachers and provide lesson materials in participating states to prepare students for the test.

2. Education -- Charter Schools: The Department of Education released on Friday its annual charter school report, which showed continued growth of the charter school movement. (We released an accompanying statement from you praising this progress.) The report found that the number of charter schools grew by more than 50 percent in 1998 -- to about 1,100 schools in 34 states and the District of Columbia, serving a total of about 160,000 students. The report also found that charter schools tend to serve a diverse group of students and that they often have many more applicants than they can accommodate. According to the report, the primary obstacle to charter school formation remains lack of start-up funding. This finding underscores the importance of your proposed 30 percent increase in funding for this purpose in the FY 2000 budget. It also highlights the need for a new rule, proposed last week, to ensure that new charter schools receive the federal funding for which they are eligible within five months of opening. This regulation implements provisions of the Charter School Expansion Act, which you signed last year.

3. Health Care -- Families USA Report on Medicaid Enrollment: Families USA will release a study on Thursday stating that welfare reform is primarily responsible for the recent decline in Medicaid enrollment. The study asserts that 675,000 low-income people became uninsured as a result of welfare reform, that the majority of these people were children under 19, and that the number of uninsured people is likely to increase further as welfare reform is fully implemented. Although HHS has not seen the full study, experts in the department believe that the methodology used is problematic. They think that the study ascribes to welfare reform increases in the uninsured population actually attributable to (1) the decline of small firms that offer any health insurance coverage, (2) the decrease in contributions by employers to health insurance costs (which makes health insurance less affordable), and (3) the decline in the number of people with sufficiently little income to qualify for Medicaid. Although HHS will make these points in response to the study, we expect a spate of negative press stories. We will reiterate your longstanding and strong commitment to health coverage for this population (including your insistence on maintaining the Medicaid entitlement during the debate on welfare reform), and emphasize that your proposals have given states vastly increased options to cover working families under Medicaid as well as to insure children under the new CHIP program.

4. Crime -- Federal Gun Prosecutions: You recently asked about the NRA's claim that the number of federal firearms prosecutions has decreased in this Administration. It is true that the Bush Administration brought a higher total number of gun cases in federal court. For the most part, however, these prosecutions involved minor offenses. The number of federal prosecutions of serious gun offenders (persons serving sentences of over 5 years) is up by nearly 30 percent in this Administration. In addition, better federal coordination with state and local law enforcement has contributed to a 25 percent increase in the number of criminals sent to prison for state and federal weapons offenses since you became President.
