2. Comments on the DOJ/Dept of Ed Early Warning Guide:

Well written, pragmatic. But list of experts on consensus panel not named, and references are not provided to empirical bases. Theoretically the concept of identifying signs and symptoms is good, but the problem is that there are many individuals who display such cues who do not act violently and do not bring in guns, so what is the link between ideation to action? The literature is lacking in this respect and this is research that needs to be done. This is a concept starting to be developed in the risk assessment literature generally. There's a danger is in drawing conclusions that do not have a strong empirical foundations, there needs to be a research base. This is an emerging field, with a lot of research questions.

Discussion Around the Root Causes of School Violence

- Sylvia Ann Hewlett and Cornel West, authors of The War Against Parents. In their new book, the authors discuss the widespread societal pressures -- from government, business and the wider culture -- that are combining to make parenting more difficult. They argue that parents have been hurt by economic forces which have lowered their wages, tax and housing policy, and a media that often degrades them. As a result, children have been left home alone to raise themselves with cultural influences like gangster rap and trash talk shows shaping their values in place of parents. The authors argue that the rise in juvenile violence over the last few decades is a necessary result of these forces' effect on the family.

- James Q. Wilson, noted criminologist and chief proponent of the broken windows theory. Mr. Wilson has recently discussed the connection between early learning and later delinquency.

- Fox Butterfield, New York Times reporter and author of All God's Children: The Bosket Family and the American Tradition of Violence.

In his book, the author examines how violence is learned and passed on from generation to generation, through studying one family's history of violence from their days in slavery in South Carolina to the present in New York.

- William Finnegan, author of Cold New World : Growing Up in a Harder Country.

The author follows four American teenagers and young adults, struggling to cope -- and often failing -- in their very different environments. The author depicts these four young people and their stories of lives that have become saturated with violence and drugs within the context of the larger economy that has left them and their families behind.

- Sissela Bok, author of Mayhem: Violence as Public Entertainment. Sissela Bok's Mayhem discusses the impact of violent entertainment, particularly on children, and provides strategies to reduce its impact. She notes the many ways the viewing of violence can affect children, often increasing their aggressiveness as well as their fearfulness.

- Professor Tony Earles, Harvard University. Professor Earles found in his study of Chicago neighborhoods that "collective efficacy," defined as the willingness to monitor children's play groups, help neighbors, and intervene in preventing acts such as juvenile truancy or street-corner loitering, is the key indicator for violence. They found that these values often determine whether a neighborhood will or will not experience crime problems. Professor Earles is also conducting a longitudinal study of at-risk youth in Chicago.

to determine what other influences affect delinquent behavior.

- Reverend Eugene Rivers, Boston

Reverend Rivers runs a faith-based anti-gang initiative out of the Ella J. Baker House in Dorchester, in which churches partner with community police and community-based organizations to reach out to youth, particularly those at risk of gang involvement. This effort attempts to create a sense of family for children who often have a troubled home life.

- Dr. Howard Snyder, National Center for Juvenile Justice, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania

An expert on the state of youth today, he would discuss statistics on juvenile crime rates, divorce rates, teen pregnancy rates, and changing demographics in general.

- James Fox, Dean of the College of Criminal Justice at Northwestern University

He has published 12 books, including Mass Murder, Overkill, and Killer on Campus. He has also published dozens of journal and magazine articles and newspaper columns, primarily in the areas of juvenile crime, and multiple murders.

- David Kennedy, author of "Can We Keep Guns Away From Kids?" from *The American Prospect

David Kennedy has studied juvenile crime through the lens of youth access to guns. He has found that many children access guns out of fear, thereby creating a cycle of increasing reliance on weapons, resulting in a local arms race of sorts. In response, he helped create the Boston Gun Project, one of the primary goals of which is to reduce youth access to guns by reducing the number of guns on the street. The project systematically traces all crime guns in order to take illegal guns off the streets, thereby de-escalating the cycle of violence. The President has expanded this approach to 27 cities.

- Robin Karr-Morse and Meredith S. Wiley, authors of Ghosts from the Nursery: Tracing the Roots of Violence

The authors focus on the connections between early childhood development and later violent behavior. They argue that a predisposition to violent behavior can be caused by such factors as abuse, neglect and exposure to drugs.

- Dr. David Satcher, Surgeon General.

Dr. Satcher has examined the issue of violence and young people from a general public health standpoint.

- Dr. Steve Hyman, Director of the National Institute of Mental Health.

Dr. Hyman would discuss the connections between mental health problems and young people that often result in disturbing outbreaks of violence.

- Shirley Burggraf, author of The Feminine Economy and Economic Man
The author studies the family's role in the economy and how economic forces provide little incentive for care-giving. She provides an analysis of the increasing economic pressures on families and the concomitant decline in nurturing time parents spend with children, thus leaving more and more children growing up alone, without enough parental support.

Girl, 12, Shot by Pal in Face Is Recovering;

Accident: Shanelle Johannessen is alert and walking. Owner of gun is criminal investigator.;

By: LORENZA MUNOZ
TIMES STAFF WRITER

The 12-year-old shot in the face by a friend at the friend's house Friday was alert and walking Tuesday, only a few days after a major operation, her father said.

John Johannessen said he was grateful to see his daughter Shanelle improving but angry that the owner of the gun is apparently a federal criminal investigator.

"I was shocked," Johannessen said. "You would think that he would have better control over his gun situation, knowing that there were little children in the house."

Shanelle's friend lives with her mother, Sue Curtis, and her mother's boyfriend, Eric Braun, who is a federal agent with the Department of Defense Criminal Investigative Service, sources confirmed.

The service's western regional offices are based in Mission Viejo, officials said.

Neither Braun nor Curtis could be reached for comment.

Johannessen said Shanelle told him Tuesday in notes that she did not harbor any resentment against her friend.

Authorities said Shanelle and the 13-year-old were alone in an upstairs bedroom on Calle Gazapo when the older girl found a 9-millimeter semiautomatic pistol.

Perhaps thinking that the weapon was not loaded, she pointed the gun at Shanelle, and it went off, authorities said.

John Johannessen said deputies told him the friend had found the pistol in a briefcase in one of the bedrooms.

Though authorities say the shooting was accidental, Orange County Sheriff's spokesman Lt. Ron Wilkerson said the owner of the gun could be held criminally liable for not securing it out of children's reach.

"There is no indication that there was a crime," Wilkerson said, stressing that the case is still open. "It could well be that our investigation leads us to believe that California law has been broken. That has not been decided yet."

In 1991, the California Legislature passed a law making it a crime for an adult to leave a loaded firearm within reach of a child if the child is injured by the weapon.

Stressing that he did not know specific details of the case, Donald Mancuso, deputy inspector general for the Department of Defense, said agents are required to undergo many hours of weapon safety training and procedure. Every three months, agents receive updated training, which includes locking and securing weapons, he said.

Local gun control advocates say the 1991 state law was meant to prevent unintended shootings like Friday's.

"The law is pretty clear," said Luis Tolley, western director for the nonprofit Handgun Control Inc. "It may be unclear as to which adult is responsible, but whatever adult brought the gun into the house and left it accessible should be held responsible for it."

Full Recovery Is Expected for Girl, 12, Shot by Friend;

Firearms: Deputies consider whether to pursue charges against adult who left gun accessible to 13-year-old in Rancho Santa Margarita.;

By: LORENZA MUNOZ
TIMES STAFF WRITER

A 12-year-old girl accidentally shot by her teenage friend remained in critical condition Saturday, unable to speak but alert and in good spirits, her family members and doctor said Saturday.

Orange County Sheriff's investigators, meanwhile, are considering whether to pursue charges against the adult who left the gun accessible to the 13-year-old Rancho Santa Margarita girl who fired the single shot. Sheriff's deputies said the two girls were alone in an upstairs bedroom in Rancho Santa Margarita when her friend found the 9-millimeter semiautomatic pistol and pointed it at Shanelle Johannessen. The gun went off and a bullet ripped through the girl's neck and face before lodging in a wall.

The bullet entered below the left ear, and traveled through the right cheek, shattering the girl's lower jaw and tonsils but not damaging teeth or vital body parts, said Dr. Gary Goodman, medical director of pediatrics at Children's Hospital at Mission in Mission Viejo.

"It's remarkable," said Goodman. "The bullet missed anything that would have been life threatening. She is awake, and we actually got a smile out of her."

The girl is expected to recover fully, but doctors are closely watching for infections and are planning to operate on her jaw bone today, Goodman said.

The injured girl's parents, John and Diane, and her two older brothers, Nathan, 17 and Jesse, 15, spent the night at the hospital, keeping a close watch on the youngest in their family.

John Johannessen said the shooting was a nightmare almost too cruel to comprehend. He said he personally had taken care to rid his home of an old rifle and warned his children against playing with guns, even play guns.

But it wasn't enough to protect his daughter--an aspiring model--from Friday's accident, he said.

"I had no idea my daughter was visiting a house where there was a loaded gun," he said, intermittently wiping away tears, his voice shaking with sadness and rage. "I have always warned my kids about guns. I just cannot believe this."

John Johannessen said he was told his daughter was rummaging through a closet at the home in the 100 block of Calle Gazapo when her friend approached with the pistol, which she had supposedly found in a briefcase.

When she showed the gun to Shanelle Johannessen, who was sitting down, it went off, the father said.

John Johannessen was all the more upset to learn that the man whose property records show lives at the home, Eric K. Braun, worked as a criminal investigator as recently as October 1996, according to voter registration records.

Anybody in the law enforcement field should know better than to keep a weapon within the reach of children, he said.

Braun and Sue Curtis, who also lives at the Rancho Santa Margarita residence where the shooting took place, could not be reached for comment Saturday.

Throughout the day, family members and friends stood by Shanelle Johannessen's bed, holding her hand if she showed signs of pain and placing her modeling pictures near her bed to lift her spirits.

The young girl promised her father that she would make it through, he said.

"I asked her, 'Are you going to hang in there for me?' " her father said.
"She looked at me and nodded yes."

S. County Girl, 12, Shot in the Neck by Friend;

Firearms: Youth is in guarded but stable condition in incident that appeared to be accidental. Officials are investigating whether gun was illegally stored.;

By: H.G. REZA and FRANK MESSINA
SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

A 12-year-old girl was in guarded condition Friday after she was shot in the neck by her 13-year-old friend.

Shanelle Johannessen was taken by paramedics to the trauma center at Children's Hospital at Mission in Mission Viejo, where officials said her condition was listed as guarded but stable.

An angry John Johannessen, father of the victim, blamed the incident on the parents of the unidentified girl who fired the shot. He said that he does not know the girl's parents, who declined to comment Friday.

"Parents and adults are not taking responsibility for handguns," Johannessen said. "I'm doing the best I can by not allowing even toy guns in my house. Guns are made to kill."

According to Johannessen, his daughter had aspirations of becoming a model and was photographed recently for a portfolio.

"Here was a perfect, beautiful, charming A-plus student who got shot in the face because of an irresponsible adult," said Johannessen, whose family lives about two miles from where the incident occurred.

According to Orange County sheriff's spokesman Lt. Ron Wilkerson, the girl was shot about 1 p.m. inside a house in the 100 block of Calle Gazapo. The injured girl and the friend who fired the shot were alone in an upstairs bedroom at the time, authorities said.

The older girl was apparently handling a 9-millimeter semiautomatic pistol, which discharged, sending a bullet through the victim's neck before lodging in a wall, Wilkerson said.

"She was lucky in the sense that [the bullet] didn't strike her in the spine or some other vital area," he said.

Dr. Eric Wallbergh, who treated the girl, said the bullet caused facial injuries but did not damage any major organs. The young girl "will require several operations but is expected to make a full and excellent recovery," he said.

Investigators said the 13-year-old called 911 and was devastated by the incident. She was "understandably very upset," and a counselor was later brought to the house to comfort her, Wilkerson said.

The shooting appeared to be "totally accidental, as far as we can tell," he added. However, the case is under investigation and authorities are trying to determine whether the firearm had been illegally stored, Wilkerson said.

Sheriff's investigators spent several hours at the home and left with several large brown evidence bags.

Neighbors in the development of new tract homes said the two girls were close friends who spent a lot of time together. The neighborhood consists mostly of two-story homes, which offer a picturesque view of the nearby Saddleback Mountains.

"I saw them together all the time," said Jessie Gore, 13, who moved into the neighborhood last month. "I would see them just hanging out on the front patio. They would walk these two little bulldogs, wash the car together. They seemed like really good friends."

None of the neighbors interviewed could recall hearing a shot Friday afternoon.

A real estate agent for the housing development said the family had only recently moved into the tract, where construction work on more new homes was still underway on Friday.

Advocates of stricter gun laws pointed to the shooting as another example of the need for tougher gun control. Mary Leigh Blek, chairwoman of Orange County Citizens for the Prevention of Gun Violence, said that unintentional gun injuries can be prevented if gun owners store firearms and ammunition in separate, locked cabinets.

"We hear this every day across the United States," said Blek, whose 21-year-old son, Matthew, was shot to death in June 1994. "A child's death or injury is always very painful. As a community, this should be a wake-up call that we must do better to protect our children. Nobody is immune from gun violence."

Father of Girl Shot in Face Files Lawsuit;

Courts: John Johannessen accuses gun owner of negligence, blasts D.A. for not prosecuting.;

By: LORENZA MUNOZ

TIMES STAFF WRITER

The father of a 12-year-old girl shot in the face accidentally by a friend said Tuesday he is suing the owner of the gun in a bid not only for monetary damages but also to send a message about the risk of having a loaded weapon within reach of children.

John Johannessen, whose 12-year-old daughter, Shanelle, was injured in the shooting one month ago, blasted the decision by the Orange County district attorney's office last week not to prosecute the adult responsible for bringing a loaded weapon into the house where his daughter was visiting. "The district attorney has not done the right thing," Johannessen said. "This is something that should have been prosecuted. It should not be washed away. This could have been prevented, and somehow we have to send the message so people can realize the dangers of guns."

The civil suit, which Johannessen's lawyer filed Monday, seeks unspecified compensation for medical care resulting from the shooting, as well as psychological trauma inflicted on the Johannessen family.

Police say gun owner Eric Braun left the gun inside a briefcase locked in the trunk of his car. But his girlfriend, Sue Curtis, brought the briefcase inside the house and placed it in an empty bedroom downstairs, police say.

Supervising Deputy Dist. Atty. Bruce Patterson, who investigated the case, said it was not clear that either of the adults, Braun or Curtis, showed criminal negligence.

Even though Curtis knew the gun was inside the briefcase, the couple had warned the child, who is Curtis' daughter, various times not to touch the weapon, Patterson said. In addition, if charges were filed, the 13-year-old who fired the weapon would have to testify against her mother. That would bring more pain to a child who is already suffering from the guilt of having shot her friend, Patterson said.

"We haven't gotten any additional information . . . to show that there was reckless disregard," Patterson said. "That is what we are bound to look at."

Gary Kessler, Johannessen's lawyer, said the suit names Braun, Curtis and the young girl who shot the weapon. The suit alleges that all three were guilty of negligence for storing a 9-millimeter semiautomatic gun in an unlocked briefcase.

Johannessen said prosecutors are protecting Braun, who is licensed to carry a weapon and is an investigator with the U.S. Department of Defense's Mission Viejo office. "If that was my gun, I'd be in jail right now," he said.

Johannessen said the decision not to file charges flies in the face of a 1991 state law making adults criminally responsible if they leave a loaded firearm within reach of a child 13 years old or younger who then fires the weapon and causes injury or death.

Luis Tolley, western director for the nonprofit Handgun Control Inc.--which in a rare political alliance joined the National Rifle Assn. in backing the bill--also criticized the district attorney's decision in the Johannessen case.

"This is not an ambiguous law," Tolley said. "It is the adult who left that gun loaded where a child could find it that should be held responsible. By failing to prosecute this case, which appears to be a cut-and-dry case, what message is the district attorney's office sending?"

Meantime, Shanelle Johannessen is still coping with the physical and emotional scars of the shooting.

She cannot eat solid food because her jaw is wired shut. Her meals consist of liquefied macaroni and cheese and berry smoothies taken through a straw. Her right cheek still bears the scars from the bullet wound, and her face is still swollen from the operations and the trauma.

Shanelle, who still dreams of becoming a model, said she cannot forgive her friend for having fired the gun. "I can't because of the things I've had to go through," she said.

At the same time, she said she and her family are eager to put the ordeal behind them. "We are just taking it day by day," said her mother, Diane Johannessen. "The bullet damaged a nerve and so she might come out with a crooked smile. But at least she's alive. I just want her to come out of this all right, a stronger person."

Girl, 12, Shot in Face by Friend Goes Home;

By: LORENZA MUNOZ

After spending nearly two weeks in the hospital recovering from a gunshot to the face, 12-year-old Shanelle Johannessen returned home on Wednesday, relatives said.

Though the girl still has her jaw wired shut from her extensive surgery, she has been able to mumble a few words, her father, John Johannessen, said. Doctors have told Johannessen that she will not be able to eat solid food for at least nine months, since they fear that any chewing motions could damage her fragile jaw. Her lower jaw was shattered by the single bullet. "She can walk around pretty good and is so happy to be home," her father said.

Shanelle Johannessen was shot July 19 while she was visiting her friend's house in Rancho Santa Margarita.

Authorities said the girl's friend found the weapon in the house and when she attempted to show it to Shanelle, the gun fired, sending a bullet below her left ear and through her right cheek.

John Johannessen said they have not been in direct contact with the other family. Charges have not been filed in the case.

Treats for a lifesaver

PEOPLE: A teen shooting victim brings cookies for an O.C. dispatcher.

By HEATHER LOURIE
The Orange County Register

ORANGE — John Dumitru has delivered a baby, helped dozens of people administer CPR and coached cats out of trees — all over the telephone.

But no one's ever shown up to thank the Orange County Fire Authority dispatcher bearing a plaque and chocolate chip cookies.

Until Saturday.

Shanelle Johannessen, 13, and her family visited him at the dispatch center to honor him for helping to save her life July 18 when she was accidentally shot in the neck by a friend who didn't know a 9mm pistol was loaded.

"I already called my mom," said Dumitru, 26. "Every day we help lots of people, but this is a first, and it will stick with me for years."

Shanelle was treated to a tour of the center and the opportunity to listen to live 911 calls: An elderly woman who needed a doctor. A mother with a sick baby.

"It was pretty cool," said Shanelle, who says she is doing well despite having her jaw wired and getting fed through a straw for two months. "I was, like, really excited to meet someone who saved my life."

For Dumitru, the meeting was closure to an "emotional" call.

He remembers the frantic voice on the other end of the phone.

"I just shot my friend!" a 13-year-old girl sobbed.

"You need to calm down," Dumitru replied. "Take a breath and listen."

Seconds later, the 13-year-old was applying pressure to Shanelle's wounds and monitoring her breathing. "It (was) stressful," Dumitru recalled. "You're trying to make sure you're doing everything you can."

An ambulance took Shanelle from her friend's house in Rancho Santa Margarita to Children's Hospital at Mission in Mission Viejo.

Police did not charge the 13-year-old.

Capt. Scott Brown said Saturday's visit was a "rare occurrence." Dispatchers, he said, are the Fire Authority's unsung heroes. "Literally, they are the link between life and death," he said.

And there was another important connection.

"I think part of the healing process is to meet these people," said John Johannessen, Shanelle's father.

"It's not just a one-person show," Dumitru said. "It's a big team effort."

After the meeting, there were hugs and handshakes. A card Shanelle gave Dumitru said it all:

“Friends forever.”

Perspectives: Shanelle's

Shanelle,
2 weeks
before shooting

My school finally lets out in the spring of 1997, to a wonderfully warm summer of fun and exciting things to do with my friends. Including going to Mission Viejo Lake, and the beaches as well as sailing to Catalina Island with my good friend Jessica, on their yacht. We were enjoying the 4th of July weekend diving into clear blue water, enjoying a wonderful time with friends and fabulous barbecue dinners.

As summer progressed along, I was enjoying a wonderful time with my friends, we were spending the night at each other's houses, going to movies, eating pizza and other Italian dishes at my favorite restaurant "Mangia Bene" in Laguna Niguel.

On the 7th of July, I had some photographs taken at Shultz Bros. Photography in Costa Mesa. My first step in modeling with the Marian Berzon talent agency of New Port Beach, California. The photography was scheduled to be ready July 18th, 1997.

The morning of July 18th started out as any other normal day. I had stayed the night at Shelly's house because her mother's fiancé was going to be out of town, it was my turn because she had spent the night at my house a few days earlier.

That morning we got up and had some breakfast. Shelly's mom left a note for us to clean the house before we went anywhere. My mom was going to come over and pick me up at 1:00 PM because she was making a dress for me, and she needed me to try it on. The dress was for a wedding reception that we were to attend the following day.

We started to clean the house and then decided to order pizza. After ordering the pizza, I went up stairs to her closet to get my stuff out and get ready to go because my mom was coming to pick me up. While I was in her closet, she was down stairs doing something. I heard her coming up the stairs and into the room where I was. There was a big flash, I thought she had taken a picture and I saw something drop to the floor.

Dazed, I felt her pick me up and carry me to her bed and lay me down. She left the room and went to the phone in her mom's room and called 911. I got up and went to her mom's room. I was very dizzy and my vision was not clear. When I came into her mom's room, she turned and looked at me with the phone in her hand and said: "Oh my God, she's walking towards me!" I asked her, "What did you do to me?" and she said, "I can't talk to you right now, I have the police on the phone." She told me to lie down on the bed and she put a towel around my neck. I kept asking her: "What did you do to me?" Then I heard her say: "I accidentally shot my friend!" I asked her, "Was it a gun?" I starting thinking that I was going to die because that's usually what happens. I was scared and I started to cry, then she told me: "You're not going to die on me, you're not going to die!" She also said, "You're going to be okay."

The police were the first ones to arrive to the house. When Deputy Jim Slikker started to work on my bleeding, I asked him if I was going to die and he looked at me and said that I was going to be okay and then I felt better. The ambulance arrived and put me on a stretcher and carried me to the ambulance truck. When I was in the truck, they asked me for my name and they thought I said Jeanelle because I had so much blood everywhere, it was hard to understand me. We finally arrived to the hospital and they took me to the emergency room and I was still conscience. I saw about twenty-one doctors in the emergency room that I was in and there was a lady cutting off my clothes, then I passed out...

MISSION AND PURPOSE STATEMENT

1. To EDUCATE CHILDREN through schools, media and community functions about the real dangers of guns.
2. To bring the AWARENESS TO ADULTS about the danger that exist when leaving loaded guns accessible to children.
3. To help create FEDERAL AND STATE LAWS against leaving loaded guns lying around where children can gain access.
4. To make DISTRICT ATTORNEYS RESPONSIBLE FOR NOT prosecuting such people.
5. To promote TESTED SECURITY SYSTEMS for guns a MANDATED LAW.
6. To create a FAMILY VICTIM FUND for families who become victims of unintentional shootings.

A POEM TO SHANELLE

"THE MESSAGE"

With her majestic power

and mysterious moods,

Shanelle touched something deep within our souls.

At times inspires us all, with her dramatic tale of gun violence.

Other times she soothes our spirits with soft whispers of pain.

Strong, yet gentle, happy,

yet sad,

She reflects her pain to teens to avoid the same fate as her...
