FROM: Cynthia Rice, Domestic Policy Council (62846, Rm 212 OEOB)

RE: Photos from June 24, 1998

I am seeking 3 copies of a photo taken with the President and three women in the Oval Office on June 24th, after the President signed the Deadbeat Parents Punishment Act.

The three women are child support advocates who were invited to attend the bill signing, and we would like to give each of them a copy of the picture of themselves with the President.

Here are some details that might help you identify the picture we're seeking:

One of the women is African American, with a short Afro haircut

The other two women are caucasian: one is about 5'2" and was wearing a tan suit with an "ACES" button, and the other is taller

Please call me if you have any questions! Thank you.

Honorable Donna Shalala
Department of Health and Human Services
200 Independence Ave SW
Washington DC 20201

Dear Secretary Shalala,

I am writing to you about implementation of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunities Act, child support provisions. ACES members throughout the country have begun to meet with state legislators about putting in place a Central Payment Registry, New Hire Registry and Case Order Registry. We are being told about various models states are planning. Most are very troublesome because they are trying to keep local political entities happy and involved in the cash flow from the federal government for the child support enforcement program. Florida especially seems to be trying to do all it can to get a federal waiver that would allow it to contract with the Clerk of Court Association who would then contract with Barlett Bank to act as the central payment registry. Local clerks would continue to receive the same amount of federal funds they do now for acting as intake sites. This plan appears to violate fair bidding practices and would amount to paying the clerk of courts the same amount of money for one half the work, intake only, rather than intake and distribution of payments.

Other states are setting up elaborate systems which consist of one entity such as a bank, private vendor or state Treasurer's office to act as the central payment registry, another private vendor or State Department of Labor to act as the New Hire Registry and the IV-D agency or local IV-D agencies networked together to act as the Case Order Registry. One computer system and one government agency, or contractor can perform all of these functions less expensively and more efficiently. Every time they add another layer to the bureaucracy it means more time and less likelihood of a child support system which quickly and effectively collects and enforces support orders.

Additionally, the issue of orders from before 1994 being part of the "system" cause many problems for families and the government. Practicality requires a system which makes it easy for employers to know where to send new hires records and child support payments withheld from wages. The loophole in the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunities Act which allows states to have separate systems for these cases need to be closed. ACES would appreciate you joining with us to support a technical amendment to close this loophole.

ACES would appreciate an answer to this letter. We haven't heard from you on either of the two previous letters we have sent. One was about new performance standards for IV-D child support agencies and the other about using DNA information on file at the military to establish paternity for children when the alleged father is overseas or in a different state.

Can you look into this?

Sincerely,

Geraldine Jensen

For many years, my sons' father moved from state to state to avoid paying child support. With help from the child support agency and their new computer system, we finally located him and now I'm receiving child support every two weeks, direct from his paycheck.

It is now my great honor to introduce the President of the United States, Bill Clinton.
