Summary

The collection contains records on a telephone call that took place between President Clinton and Japanese Prime Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto on March 19, 1997. The records in this collection consist of scheduling, logistical, and briefing materials for the call in both the National Security Council Emails and Records Management System numbered documents.

Scope and Content Note

The materials in FOIA 2021-0713-F are a selective body of documents responsive to the topic of the FOIA. Researchers should consult the archivist about related material. The collection contains records on a telephone call that took place between President Clinton and Prime Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto on March 19, 1997. The two Heads of State spoke just before President Clinton departed for a summit with Russian President Boris Yeltsin in Helsiniki, Finland. Prime Minister Hashimoto was the head of the Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) and had been elected to office in January of that year, after the resignation of his predecessor Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama. After the LDP lost seats in the 1998 election, Prime Minister Hashimoto resigned. The new LDP President, Foreign Minister Keizō Obuchi, succeeded him. The records processed in response to this FOIA case include National Security Council (NSC) Emails and NSC Records Management numbered documents. Both contain scheduling, logistical, and briefing materials communicated in preparation for the call. Many of the records related to this FOIA case are closed for national security reasons.
