SUBJECT: Summary of Conclusions, Deputies Committee Meeting on Bosnia, February 26, 1993 (S)

SUMMARY OF CONCLUSIONS

-- State will draft a message to Ankara and Islamabad to address Turkish and Pakistani offers to participate in the airlift. We will welcome their offer in principle and accept what supplies they can provide. We will also offer to accept air crews of their nationals. We will defer any decision on their offers of aircraft, however, until others join, i.e. Russians, Germans, etc. (S)

-- State will draft a message to UNHCR and the UN urging that ground deliveries not be halted during the airlift. (S)

-- We will confirm with the Germans that any offer they chose to make would be accepted, including use of C-160 aircraft. (S)

-- EUCOM will provide daily press briefings on the air drop operation. A back-up will be maintained by the Pentagon in Washington in the event a crisis develops. (S)

-- On the issue of Russian participation in the air drop operation, State will track Kozyrev's expected reply to the Secretary next week. (S)

-- Deputies agreed that the essence of a successful outcome of the U.S. initiative in Bosnia is an agreement that is equitable and workable. With this in mind, NSC will circulate under separate cover the work program to develop our views of the Vance/Owen plan and to support Bartholomew in his discussions. (S)

-- USIA will join the Working Group Meetings and work with State on implementing a program of coverage to ensure that desired messages are reaching the intended audiences. (S)

-- Bartholomew will explore the issue of enforcement of the No-Fly Zone in the context of his discussion in New York. (S)

MEMORANDUM FOR

MR. LEON FUERTH
Assistant to the Vice President for National Security Affairs

MR. MARC GROSSMAN
Executive Secretary
Department of State

COL MICHAEL B. SHERFIELD
Executive Secretary
Department of Defense

MR. JAMES R. OLIVER
Executive Secretary
Central Intelligence Agency

CAPTAIN H.L. SHEFFIELD
Secretary
Joint Chiefs of Staff

MR. RICK INDERFURTH
Office of the Representative of the United States to the United Nations

SUBJECT: Ex-Yugoslavia Work Program (S)

The following work program was agreed at the February 26 1993 Deputies Committee meeting on the former Yugoslavia:

1. Enforcement provisions in a settlement and what it would take to implement them. OSD will circulate terms of reference Monday March 1, for discussion in the Working Group telecon at 10:00 a.m. Tuesday March 2. (S)

2. NATO preparations for implementation of a settlement. During the week of March 1, State will provide a draft gameplan for getting the necessary work done in NATO and inclusion of the Russians and possibly others. This work will result in guidance to USNATO. (S)

3. Analysis of the Vance/Owen map and Bosnian and Serb counter proposals. The Intelligence Community will provide during the week of March 1. (S)

4. Interim Arrangements. State will provide draft proposals for US views on the Vance/Owen proposals and other possibilities by the middle of the week of March 1. (S)

5. Compliance with the London Accords. OSD was previously tasked to draft proposals for lifting the siege of Sarajavo, to be distributed the week of March 1. OSD will include the possibility of moving the talks to Sarajevo. The Working Group will agree on tasking of other aspects of the London accords at its March 1 meeting. (S)

Summary of Conclusions

-- Deputies agreed that because the fast-paced nature of events in New York could present us with a fait accompli before our thinking on the various issues is fully developed, tasks would be undertaken on an urgent basis and Deputies would reconvene either late Friday or Saturday to review current status. (S)

-- Working Group members will evaluate the OSD paper on implementing the Vance/Owen plan, convey reactions to OSD this evening, if possible. The working group would then consider the paper and next steps at its meeting tomorrow morning. (S)

-- CIA will forward its analysis of the Vance/Owen map upon receipt of the Bosnia proposal which State will help secure. (S)

-- OSD will collate agency reactions to its Siege of Sarajevo paper and also incorporate an analysis of the "Lantos" option, i.e. moving the negotiations to Sarajevo. (S)

-- State will draft a cable to capitals, following up to the UN Security Council statement of March 3. The cable will

SUBJECT: Summary of Conclusions of Deputies Committee Meeting on Bosnia, March 9, 1993, 4:00pm (S)

1. State will prepare a message from Secretary Christopher to French Foreign Minister Dumas, urging that Serbian President Milosevic be pressed to reach an agreement during his March 11 visit to Paris and stressing the serious consequences for Serbia if the Bosnian government signs and Serb forces continue attacking. (S)

2. State will prepare a similar cable to Embassy Moscow, urging that Russia use its influence with Milosevic. (S)

3. The U.S. will not propose a new Security Council resolution on sanctions during the meeting of the Russian Congress of People's Deputies. The Sanctions Working Group will, however, continue refining our substantive position in order to be prepared when/if the time is right. The Deputies will revisit the issue at the end of this week in light, inter alia, of developments at the Russian Congress and of whether our willingness to introduce such a resolution might help get Bosnian President Izetbegovic to return to the talks. (S)

4. State will prepare a concept paper for a possible trip by Special Envoy Bartholomew to the former Yugoslavia and possibly other capitals as well. (State subsequently agreed to distribute this draft no later than Thursday, March 11.) That concept paper will help Deputies/Principals decide whether Ambassador Bartholomew should travel at this time. (S)

Summary of Conclusions

It was agreed that:

-- although finding adequate humanitarian aid resources will continue to be a significant challenge, there is no imminent supply crisis. State will report to the Deputies in early December on whether a U.S. appeal to the EC (or other action to encourage donor support) is necessary. (C)

-- AID, with the assistance of the CIA and USUN, will examine provision of medical supplies and adequacy of medical facilities in Bosnia, with a view toward improving U.S. and international efforts to deliver medical assistance. AID will also evaluate the possibility of improving delivery through airdrops. (C)

-- OSD/JCS will report on the military requirements for providing air support for UNPROFOR pursuant to an EC decision to open a humanitarian corridor from Croatia through Central Bosnia to Sarajevo. The OSD/JCS paper should discuss an air support mission for the Metkovic-Sarajevo road, as well as other corridors through Central Bosnia that may be discussed at the EC summit on October 29. The paper should discuss different rules-of-engagement options for the air support mission and how these options differ from current USG policy on support of UNPROFOR. Finally, Deputies should discuss with Principals whether any consideration should be given to undertaking the opening of such a humanitarian corridor as a NATO operation. (S)

-- OSD/JCS, with the assistance of CIA and AID, will assess the current level of airdrops. What is the basis for the current level? Due to lack of access, are there critical and unmet humanitarian needs that could be addressed through increased levels of airdrops? Does the impending winter dictate that we, along with the international community, develop a contingent ability to increase airdrop levels at short notice? (C)

-- OVP will attempt to develop an immediate plan to ensure against exhaustion of potable water in Sarajevo, which appears to be an imminent possibility. In particular, OVP will examine how we might ensure delivery of fuel necessary to operate generators that pump water. (C)

-- OVP will inquire again with Bosnian officials in New York on their position regarding efforts to urge the Hungarians to cut the fuel pipeline to Belgrade. (S)

-- NSC staff, State and OVP will identify carrots and sticks we could use to persuade all parties to cooperate on humanitarian access and, in particular, to respect a new humanitarian corridor if the EC decides to open and operate one. Redman will pursue in discussions with Owen/Stoltenberg and the parties. (C)

-- OSD/JCS will examine the possibility and implications of authorizing the USG MASH unit in Zagreb to provide short-term care for small numbers of Bosnians prior to their being moved on to hospitals in Europe and the United States. OSD/JCS should include an implementation plan to permit such care, which should discuss means to limit excessive demands on the facility (such as by imposing numerical limitations, a requirement for rapid "through-put" and appropriate treatment criteria). (C)

Following the meeting, Berger requested additional action on one agenda item that was not discussed, the opening of Tuzla airport. It is requested that OSD/JCS, with the assistance of State, report on the feasibility and advisability of opening the airport in Tuzla, including options that do and do not include the involvement of USG in the opening or operating of the airport. SUBJECT: Deputies Committee Meeting on Bosnia (S)

There will be a Deputies Committee Meting on Bosnia, October 27, 1993, at 11:00am in the White House Situation Room. Supporting materials for the meeting are attached as indicated. Deputies should review the attached papers in order to determine next steps in three areas: supply, access, and security (while access and security are obviously related, reaching areas of Bosnia could be an issue of more trucks as well as safer routes). (S)

Access will be the critical issue; therefore, Deputies should think about how to push the envelope, e.g. by getting UNPROFOR countries to make full use of their mandate; whether to open Tuzla airport; how and where to increase airdrops, etc. Moreover, since Croat-Bosnian fighting in Central Bosnia has intensified, we should explore which of our ideas for promoting Muslim-Croat rapprochement (Tab I) would help most rapidly to improve security conditions there. While access may be the critical issue, we should not assume that resources will be adequate absent a big diplomatic push from us; donor fatigue will be a problem. ISSUE PAPER

HUMANITARIAN AID OPTIONS

When the Bosnian Parliament voted to accept the Geneva Peace Plan but placed conditions which in effect rejected the plan, hopes dimmed for a peaceful settlement in Bosnia prior to the winter and last winter's concerns over a humanitarian have been resurrected. Last year mild weather and unidentified reserves of food helped to avert disaster, but we cannot hope for a repeat of the mild weather this year. And with the reserves of food and body fat depleted before the winter begins, the requirements are even greater this year. UNHCR has identified a shortfall of US$ 172 million for Oct-Dec 1993 and a requirement for US$ 566 million for Jan-Jun 1994, but their donor appeal will go out next week and the US and the international community will doubtless respond.

The real key to averting humanitarian disaster this winter is the thorny issue of access. Once the international community responds to UNHCR's appeal, how do the resources get to the target populations in the face of inclement weather and sporadic or continuous hostilities? UNHCR has been so concerned with the dangers that aid delivery poses to their workers, that they have been negotiating with UNPROFOR to turn over aid delivery to the UN peacekeepers. Some of the key questions concerning access are addressed below, followed by a more in-depth description of the security situation and numerous "solutions" to help alleviate the access problem.

Key Questions:

Can anyone guarantee access?

The short answer is no. Aside from the decreased access expected due to winter weather, the constant threat of hostilities has turned access into a cat and mouse game. Access is dependent not only on the political parties' current support for access, but also on each local war lord.

What can be done to increase the likelihood that aid reaches the target population?

Access can be increased by using force, or bribery, but it cannot be guaranteed. The likelihood of UNPROFOR using force to deliver aid is nonexistent, and short of a US decision to unilaterally ensure the delivery of aid, force will probably not be a viable option. Bribery, providing carrots to the warring parties, in exchange for their guarantee of access may have a slightly higher chance for success.

What would be the effect of lifting/suspending sanctions?

The Serbian economy is in dire straights and Milosevic's willingness to pressure the Bosnian Serbs in the most recent round of peace talks was more than likely fueled by his hope that sanctions would be lifted. Even a partial lifting of sanctions, to include such commodities as heating oil, might prove to be a powerful carrot for Milosevic. The question is how much leverage he ultimately has not only over Karadzic, but over the various Bosnian Serb warlords.

What leverage is there over the Bosnian Croats?

There may be several avenues to encourage Croatia to pressure the Bosnian Croats to allow free access for humanitarian aid. Some of these include the threat of sanctions and the offer of economic assistance. Once again, the question is how much leverage Croatia has over the Bosnian Croat warlords. The threat of airstrikes against all three parties is more direct, but failure to carry out this threat in the past has weakened its effectiveness.

What leverage is there over the Bosnian Serbs?

While Serbia is concerned with the lifting of sanctions, the Bosnian Serbs have not felt the same hurt, particularly as they have been able to siphon off significant humanitarian assistance to keep their people and their armies feed and fueled. More likely leverage would exist if there is some way to make the Bosnian Serbs actually feel the pinch of the Serbian sanctions. The threat of airstrikes remains as a paper tiger.

What leverage is there to prevent Muslim instigated clashes?

Perhaps the greatest leverage would be the threat to cut off all humanitarian assistance to Bosnia. However, this is an option which makes us out to be the bad guys. The international community, and the US in particular, can reiterate that no western power will use military force to settle the war, and at the same time reiterate the threat of airstrikes against any party which prevents the delivery of humanitarian aid.

If security of LOCs is not likely, what can be done to increase airlift/airdrop effectiveness?

Unfortunately the coming winter means a decrease rather than an increase in the effectiveness of airlift and airdrop as a means to deliver humanitarian aid. In November, December, and January 30% of the flying days will be lost to inclement weather. In February and March the number declines to a loss of 20% of the flying days.

What are the limitations of airlift/airdrop?

All of the airfields are limited to daylight hours of operation. To increase the airflow into Sarajevo would require increased personnel for ground operations. If Tuzla is opened, the airport is limited to one C-141 or three C-130s on the ground at any one time. Airdrop of anything other than food or medicine is a difficult operation and presents numerous challenges and risks. For both airland and airdrop operations, increases would entail significant resource commitments.

The Issue--Access and Security, not Resources:

The Security Situation:

The Bosnian people needing humanitarian assistance are located in isolated pockets dispersed to numerous parts of the land-locked country. The UNHCR's major distribution centers for humanitarian assistance are in Serbia (Belgrade) and Croatia (Metkovic on the Dalmatian coast and Zagreb). Land convoys from these centers are necessary in order for the resources to reach the target population in any volume. These convoys can be and are augmented by airland into Sarajevo and airdrop into some of the enclaves. However, land access is mandatory for the volume of aid required, especially with the requirement for winterization materials.

The roads linking the enclaves with each other and the distribution centers have been under attack for 18 months. Bridges are out, roads have been mined, repair work is at a virtual standstill. In addition to the physical problems, convoys are turning back to avoid fighting, and being denied access by the different factions. The onset of inclement weather will make convoy passage of these roads even more difficult.

The program director of Britain's aid effort in the former Yugoslavia reported on the serious shortage of diesel fuel facing all of Bosnia, and highlighted the threat to Tuzla because it has one of the largest resident and refugee populations and is at the far end of one of the most tortuous and vulnerable supply routes. His report predicted winter weather conditions and continued fighting would threaten to close all road access to Tuzla. In assessing the needs of Tuzla, the British director believed that Tuzla would need relief flights even if some road access is kept.

If access is denied for any significant period of time, it will have a devastating impact on the population and will probably lead to a humanitarian disaster. The magnitude of the disaster will depend on how completely access is denied, how long it is denied, and which population centers are denied. In Srebrenica, for example, most of the enclave families have sufficient food stocks to last them for about 2 or 3 days.

The Bosnian Serbs: In the past few weeks, the Bosnian Serbs have allowed relatively free access to UNHCR convoys transiting to Sarajevo and the eastern Muslim enclaves. It is generally agreed that this loosening of the noose around these cities is due in part to the threat of NATO airstrikes, but perhaps even more directly to the recent hopes of a peace settlement. The Bosnian Serbs have acquired the territory they set out to control, and it was in their and Serbia's best interest to appear as ready and willing participants in the peace process and as aiding in humanitarian efforts, in the anticipation of the lifting of sanctions and acceptance into the greater world community. Even at the height of cooperation, fuel convoys did not move, because UNHCR feared that the Serbs, short of fuel due to sanctions, would siphon off an unacceptable percentage as a "tax". Since the rejection of the peace plan by the Bosnian Parliament, the shelling and gunfire around Sarajevo have definitely increased, and there is the expectation that Serbian cooperation in the humanitarian arena will probably quickly diminish.

Declassify on: OADR

The Bosnian Croats: Since the middle of August, few convoys have departed Metkovic (UNHCR's central distribution center on the Dalmatian coast) and reached their destination. The siege of Mostar is a prime example of how continued hostilities in the central and southern region have prevented convoys from reaching the target populations. Airdrops were used as a last ditch effort to prevent starvation in the Muslim sector, and when a land convoy was finally allowed through after extensive negotiations, a large portion of the food and supplies had to be delivered to the Croat western sector of Mostar, even though the situation there was infinitely better than that in the Muslim sector. Last week Sarajevo received its first convoy from Metkovic since the middle of August. The convoy used a circuitous route that would probably be impassable in winter. Despite a new cease-fire in Mostar, there is no reason to believe that hostilities will decrease to the extent required to allow free access for humanitarian convoys.

The Muslims: Despite the fact that it is the Muslim population that is in most dire need of humanitarian assistance, the very hostilities which prevent the delivery of this assistance are often sparked by Muslim offensives against the Bosnian Croat forces. The Muslims are equally responsible for the breaking of numerous cease-fires and have reportedly detained and delayed convoys for extensive searches.

Inclement Weather: The deteriorating roads into Sarajevo and the Muslim enclaves are made even more hazardous by sporadic or continual fighting, and mining of the roads. This winter, mud, snow, and ice will cause road conditions to deteriorate seriously. Damage to bridges around the major transportation centers will force UN convoys to use secondary roads through the mountains, where travel will be very slow and difficult. In addition, the airland and airdrop operations will become more difficult as the pilots must not only worry about potential evasive action against enemy fire, but also must deal with the cloudy, stormy weather rife with wind shears, poor visibility and other hazards which will cause the cancellation of many missions, and make those that aren't more treacherous.

Scope of Requirements:

The UN estimates that up to 3.4 million people throughout the former Yugoslavia will require assistance. The up to 2.5 million people requiring assistance in Bosnia will need 45.000 metric tons of food and 11,000 metric tons of nonfood assistance (medicines, fuel, shelters, and heaters) each month. Over the course of the winter, this could amount to nearly 300,000 metric tons.

The World Food Program (WFP) has adequate supplies of most commodities for Bosnia through the end of the year. Because of earmarking, some areas, particularly Serbia and Montenegro are experiencing shortages of many commodities, but these issues can be worked. UNHCR has announced a $172 million shortfall for Oct-Dec 1993 and requirement for $577 million for Jan-Jun 1994, but the real issue is not one of adequate resources, but one of access. The critical shortage of fuel, which will have repercussions on everything from distribution of resources, to heating and providing medical care, is again a problem of access, not resource availability. While we cannot ignore the upcoming donor's call, and must participate along with other countries and the EC in responding to it, the majority of our efforts should be focused on how we can increase the likelihood of successful access to the target population.

Possible "Solutions" to alleviate the problem of access:

All of the proffered solutions fall into one of three categories. The first category involves increasing the likelihood of access by opening up more routes, adding methods of delivery, or adding resources. The second category uses force to increase the likelihood of access. In either case, however, there is no guarantee of access to all areas at all times. The third category uses bribery or diplomacy to get concessions from the parties to allow free access. Because the three political leaders do not have control over all of the forces, agreement by these parties will need to be augmented with their escorts to ensure the aid gets through. Whatever action is taken, the weather and the support of the three warring parties will greatly influence the success of the operation. Several actions may increase the likelihood of success.

Increasing Resources:

1. Preposition at least a month's supply of aid:

One hedge against inclement weather is to preposition at least a month's supply to carry populations through the times when storms and road conditions prevent convoys and aircraft delivery. UNHCR is already attempting to do this, but have been unable to make much headway. There may be two weeks of supplies in Sarajevo and three weeks in Tuzla, but most enclaves are consuming supplies as rapidly as they are receiving them. Even now, with relatively good access from Belgrade, next week's food supplies are competing for convoy space with winter parkas and other winterization supplies.

2. Increase Airlift into Sarajevo:

The United Nations currently averages 20 airland missions per day into Sarajevo. The delivery of food and medicines is the top priority. The US has provided approximately 35 percent of the total airland mission sorties. All 15 US C-130s operating into Bosnia are equipped with defensive systems to counter ground-to-air threats. These are the only Air Force airlift C-130s with counter measure equipment.

Increasing daily US operations tempo will be very difficult. Of the 15 C-130s operating out of Rhein-Main, 12 are generally operational day-to-day. Six are dedicated to airdrop operations. Increasing the airland flow at Sarajevo will require an increase in manpower on the ground to turn the aircraft and remove the cargo. The US has steadfastly refused to increase forces on the ground at Sarajevo or in Bosnia. If the decision is made to increase airlift operations into Sarajevo, it should be a NATO operation, with USNATO putting forward the request for additional assets. Presuming the US does not want to put US personnel on the ground, we would have to convince allies to contribute ground personnel to augment the airfield ground operations.

Inclement weather between October and March will also have an affect on the ability to deliver via airland and airdrop. During November, December, and January, we can expect to lose 30% of the flying days due to weather. In February and March this will probably drop to 20% of the flying days lost due to weather.

3. Increase Airdop:

Currently six US C-130s and 2 C-160s (1 German and 1 French) participate in airdrop operations. The US has provided approximately 80% of the airdrop sorties. Eight sorties are considered a maximum generation effort based on current ground support at Rhein-Main and the complexity of night operations to three separate drop zones in Bosnia.

Almost any commodity can be airdropped if it is packaged correctly. However, this is an extremely expensive option for delivery of supplies. Deliveries of food, MREs and Humanitarian Daily Rations (HDRs),and medicine using the TRIAD method of delivery have been extremely successful. However, the dropping of other than food and medicine items present potential challenges and risks. Fuel bladders are a scarce commodity, and coal would present significant processing and loading problems. Heavy equipment and large bundle airdrops require drop zones clear of populated areas for safety, and then the goods are difficult or unsafe to retrieve. The only exception to this is the TRIAD delivery of food, limited to MREs and Humanitarian Daily Rations (HDRs).

4. Open Tuzla Airport:

Since Tuzla is a center of distribution for humanitarian aid, opening the airport would increase access to a large area in central Bosnia. However, there are several drawbacks and limiting factors to this option. The airport is small with the capability to handle only one C-141/ or three C-130 on the ground at a time.

Despite the small capacity which will not offer a significant increase to deliveries, it will take additional personnel on the ground to secure and operate the airport and the ground operation. The Nordic Battalion stationed at Tuzla is now able to provide limited security for the airfield. The battalion commander has stated they intend to secure and control the Tuzla airport, but currently the Bosnia Muslims (BIH) are unwilling to leave. Unless they leave, the Serbs will continue to have an excuse to attack it and the commander will not take control.

The remaining problem is to provide engineering support for the maintenance of the field and navigational aids for inclement weather. These personnel would need to be provided by UNPROFOR. Again, if the US does not want to put US personnel on the ground in Bosnia, we will have to convince another country to provide those people. One of the other limitations that Tuzla is currently experiencing in aid distribution is their shortage of fuel. In addition to the fact that there would not be fuel on the ground for any aircraft, fuel would have to be brought in, either by land or air, for use by the convoys in distributing their humanitarian aid to the outlying areas.

5. Use Helicopters:

The use of helicopters to airlift supplies into enclaves could possibly augment ground convoys. However, the helicopters are limited by weather, range, and altitude restrictions, and would require extensive logistical and personnel support at either a land base in Croatia or Serbia or aboard naval shipping in the Adriatic. In any helicopter operation, deployment schedules, contingency commitments, and security requirements must be analyzed before the decision to deploy is made.

6. Send In a Civil Affairs Assessment Team:

Send a Civil Affairs survey team to Bosnia to make an assessment of the needs for survival through the winter. Identify required items other than food (for example, batteries.) Then have the team regroup in Zagreb or Belgrade to develop a distribution plan. (Ask OFDA if the DART has already done or if they see a need for this.) If they don't already have a good tracking system to record final end user distribution, set up the system used for Provide HOPE.

7. Provide Additional Equipment to Open Routes:

Last year the US provided excess equipment, including snow removal equipment for Sarajevo. Additional road graders and snow plows would help to keep roads open during inclement weather, or reopen them shortly thereafter. We could also lobby for increased UNPROFOR engineer support to assist in keeping the roads passable, assuming we don't want to provide US engineering support.

8. Increase Engineer Support:

On option is to lobby with our allies to provide additional engineering personnel to UNPROFOR to assist in keeping the roads passable. Another option would be to provide US engineering support on a temporary basis to repair roads before the onset of winter.

Use of Force:

9. Deliver Humanitarian Aid Using Force:

Another option is to apply pressure to UNPROFOR to use all means available, including force, to deliver humanitarian aid. This would not require any additional UN action, nor any US troops in Bosnia, if current UNPROFOR forces are used to implement this option. To maximize resources, two key routes could be identified, probably one from Belgrade and one from Metkovic, and forces used to provide security for convoys using these routes. One option already under discussion would be for UNHCR to hand over the delivery of aid to UNPROFOR.

The most difficult part from the US perspective is convincing the countries with troops on the ground to take this action, while not providing any US forces in Bosnia.

Key NATO allies have indicated they have not changed their position on the use of force to deliver aid. Currently our allies see the availability of resources as the most critical problem, and have not focused on how the collapse of the Geneva talks would affect humanitarian assistance.

Use of Diplomacy/"Bribery":

10. Negotiating a Humanitarian Agreement:

With the prospects dimming for an overall peace agreement before winter, negotiators could expend their energies on a regional conference on humanitarian assistance. Attention would focus on the issue of how we can lay a political framework for humanitarian relief operations. Before initiating relief operations, we should explore the feasibility of preserving the termination of hostilities between Serbs and Bosnians as well as achieving a cease-fire between Bosnians and Croats, without trying to settle the issue of final land distribution. Terminating hostilities throughout Bosnia will not be easy. Whether the warring parties will display the flexibility will depend on two factors: domestic political constraints, and the degree to which diplomatic pressure can be brought to bear outside the region to overcome those domestic constraints. The weight of the international community, including such key players as Russia and Greece for Serbia; Germany for Croatia; and the US for Bosnia, must be brought to bear at the negotiating table. The London Conference on Yugoslavia outlined last August several specific steps to enhance delivery of humanitarian assistance.

It may be possible to achieve agreement on free access if humanitarian aid is freely offered to all parties. Some sort of a delivery formula could be developed that allowed one Serbian or Croatian convoy for every three Muslim convoys. Agreement on such a scheme by all three political parties will not guarantee free access of humanitarian aid deliveries, however, because these parties do not have control over the various warlords fighting the individual battles. To ensure access through these areas, the three belligerents may well have to provide escort through their territories.

Potential Leverage Dealing with the Bosnian Serbs:

1. Temporarily suspend sanctions on humanitarian goods, such as heating oil and coal, through the winter, on the condition of free access to the Bosnian target population.
2. Increase humanitarian aid to the refugee population in Serbia and Montenegro.
3. Use Russia to influence Serbian assistance.
4. Reiterate the threat of airstrikes.
5. Look for ways to make sanctions felt by Bosnian Serbs.
6. Make humanitarian aid to Serbia contingent upon free access to the Muslim areas.

Potential Leverage Dealing with the Bosnian Croats:

1. Reiterate the threat of sanctions.
2. Reiterate the threat of airstrikes.

3. Convince Croatia to pressure the Bosnian Croats by offering Croatia specific economic assistance conditioned on humanitarian aid access to Bosnia.

4. Support the Vance Plan for the UNPAs.

Potential Leverage Dealing with the Muslims:

1. Reiterate that no western power, including the US will use military force to settle the war in Bosnia.

2. State that no humanitarian aid will flow to central Bosnia when hostilities are underway. Place the blame on the Muslims when they are the instigators.

After the Policy Decision, Getting the Word Out:

For All Three Warring Factions:

1. In coordination with the UN and NATO, undertake a major public diplomacy initiative using all available means to gain international support for necessary UN and NATO actions to ensure the provision of humanitarian assistance to needy recipients throughout the FRY. Concurrently, begin 1.4(a) campaign to promote the concept that humanitarian aid is dependent upon all parties ceasing combat operations. Reiterate our position that interference with our air operations and/or UNPROFOR may result in retaliatory air strikes. This policy should be made known by public statements and by leaflet drops on drop zones and along the resupply corridors. 1.4(a) EO 13526 1.4a 1.4(a)

2. UNHCR and UNPROFOR have demonstrated no ability to mount an effective public information campaign to communicate their mission persuasively to local citizens and others, so as to enlist their support. US military EO 13526 1.4a could provide EO 13526 1.4a to assist UNPROFOR in developing such a campaign, to include providing public service announcements for local radio and television, prerecorded messages for UNPROFOR loudspeakers, informational materials to be handed out at food distribution points, etc. The number of individuals required to design and put in place such a campaign need not be large, nor would they necessarily have to operate on the ground in Bosnia - Zagreb might in fact be preferable, in terms of access to commercial print facilities and recording studios. The key, however, would be recognition on the part of UNPROFOR that they needed such help and a strong commitment to implement the campaign once it was developed.

For the US Public and Allies:

Public interest and corresponding news media coverage of the humanitarian aid situation in the former Yugoslavia will be directly related to the degree of United States policy change and level of U.S. commitment to a new or expanded course of action.

Policy announcements from the United Nations, White House, Defense or State Departments regarding the former Yugoslavia will receive automatic national and international coverage by the respective press corps which cover these institutions. Current events in Somalia will obviously color how the media and public perceive actions with respect to the former Yugoslavia. Any action which places additional numbers of people and/or lift resources in the former Yugoslavia will generate a brief, but intense level of news media interest, both at air/sea ports and within Bosnia, Croatia or Serbia. The story line will evolve from donor nations' decisions to increase aid, the challenges in delivering it to target populations, and whether the aid was received and the impact on the survival of the target population. Once the humanitarian system reaches the stage of routine operations, the media located outside the former Yugoslavia will lose interest. A certain level of media interest is guaranteed by those based in Belgrade, Zagreb or Sarajevo.

Interagency Public Affairs planning should focus on the following stages:

- Washington announcement of humanitarian aid "campaign" for FRY during winter of 1993.
- Background briefings at DoD and State on procurement of food, medicine and supplies, operational concept for delivery and number of military/civilians involved.
- Develop policy for news media coverage of operations and establish on-scene press operation at affect air bases/ports to facilitate coverage.
- Liaison with UNHCR, UNPROFOR, and NGOs/PVOs to ensure consistency of press guidance.
- Update operation status through daily Washington press briefings and in-theater briefings as required.

DECL: OADR

MEMORANDUM FOR WILLIAM H. ITOH
EXECUTIVE SECRETARY
NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

SUBJECT: Discussion Papers -- Humanitarian Issues in the former Yugoslavia

Forwarded herewith are Discussion Papers prepared by the Humanitarian Working Group on Assistance to the Former Yugoslavia. Pursuant to the daily teleconference on the former Yugoslavia, we received this tasking from the NSC by telephone for use in a Deputies' Committee meeting to be held October 28, 1993. These papers have been cleared with other agencies, as appropriate.

Thank you for your assistance in this matter.

for Marc Grossman
Executive Secretary

Attachment:
As stated.

SUMMARY/INTRODUCTION

The enclosed discussion papers, relevant to the 1993-94 winter humanitarian crisis in Bosnia-Herzegovina (B-H), provide background and address steps and decisions that could be taken to facilitate the relief effort. They reflect the input of those USG offices and agencies engaged in B-H humanitarian programs, taking account of the latest findings by State Department Assistant Secretary Zimmermann after his travel to Geneva and Zagreb only ten days ago.

Security and Access

A. Agreements on Access for Humanitarian Convoys among Factions in the Former Yugoslavia

Strategies to Overcome Obstacles to Relief Delivery

B. Press Negotiators Owen and Stoltenberg to Give Humanitarian Access and Relief Top Priority

C. Augmentation of Delivery Options: Opening Tuzla Airport

D. UNPROFOR: Rules of Engagement

Relief Supplies/Roles/Funding

E. U.S. Role in Humanitarian Assistance to the former Yugoslavia

F. Prepositioning Relief Items in Bosnia

G. Sources of Additional Funding: No Good Options

Tabs: as indicated above

Summary of Conclusions

A. Humanitarian Issues

Deputies will recommend to Principals that we should:

1. Reiterate our existing commitment for Close Air Support to UNPROFOR. Specifically, we should tell the French that so far as we are concerned our existing commitment would apply to UNPROFOR escorts of humanitarian convoys along agreed routes. (S)

2. Tell Zagreb that if Bosnian Croat forces interfere with the humanitarian effort during the winter we will support sanctions on Croatia's civil air and maritime sectors and denial of its access to IFI resources. We also would warn that if Zagreb retaliates by reducing its current level of refugee/relief support we would support full-scale sanctions comparable to those imposed on Serbia. Ambassador Redman should make recommendations about other possible leverage on all the parties to cooperate with the humanitarian effort after his discussions in Europe later this week. (S)

3. With regard to humanitarian relief for Serbia, we should in principle be open to:

--The use of some USG funds for UNHCR purchase of food and medicine;

--20K of fuel for refugee centers;

--7K of fuel for specified institutions

--Expanded natural gas deliveries to Serbia and Bosnia in reasonable amounts;

--Further consideration of energy-for-energy swaps.

Ambassador Redman will make recommendations on how best to use these possible sanctions-exemptions, especially with a view to getting better access for winterization materials to Bosnian-held communities. (S)

5. Be willing to participate in an airlift to Tuzla airport if UNPROFOR opens it and the airlift coalition (including the U.S.) judges it safe. Look at the provision of equipment or the possibility of providing U.S. contractor personnel if opening the airport becomes a real possibility. (S)

Deputies also agreed that more work was needed on two agenda items and tasked the following two papers, both due by Friday November 19:

1. Estimate of possible need for increased air drops (State and AID). (S)

2. Criteria and procedures for possible acceptance of civilians at MAASH Zagreb. (S)

B. EC Negotiating Initiative

1. State will circulate for clearances a letter to EC Foreign Ministers conveying U.S. views.

AIRDROPS IN BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA

On February 26, 1993, airdrops were initiated by an NSC Direction Order to provide a temporary measure for delivering humanitarian relief supplies. On February 27, the U.S. conducted a series of leaflet drops, and on February 28, the airdrop missions officially began. Since then, the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) has directed the Joint Task Force Provide Promise (JTF-PP) to airdrop critically needed food, medical supplies, seeds, clothing, blankets, shelter items, and other emergency relief items on selected targets in Bosnia-Herzegovina. Through November 16, 1993, a total of 1,453 missions have been flown, dropping 9,270 metric tons of cargo on 14 towns. Six U.S. C-130s, one German C-160, and one French C-160 have been flying almost daily. The U.S. has flown approximately 80% of the missions costing the U.S. approximately $14 million to date.

Tasking of an Airdrop

• UNHCR/Zagreb determines airdrop priority based upon the degree to which a lack of security or other factors prevent access by road over an extended time period. The degree of need, percentage of shortfall, and number of victims are also taken into consideration.

• Information on the above is gathered from a variety of sources: 1) reports from on-site U.N. Military Observers; 2) on-site UNHCR representatives; 3) UNPROFOR reports; 4) local Bosnian authorities; 5) OFDA's Disaster Assistance Response Team (DART); 6) PVOs in the field; 7) ham radio operator reports; 8) major feeding centers; and others.

• Based on the raw data, the JTF Target Selection Board (Naples) verifies, prioritizes, and nominates potential drop zones on a daily basis to the Joint Forces Air Component Commander/USAFE Deputy Commander for Contingency Operations (Vincenza), who analyzes factors such as drop zone size and the potential for collateral damage to dwellings.

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
NR 2/6/2020 (1.37)
2013-0682-M

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

• The list of priority targets is determined by a US EUCOM representative at UNHCR/Zagreb who delegates daily operational decisions and target selections to JTF-PP. The Commander approves the final target list for each night's missions.

• As of November 1993, UNHCR/Zagreb lists airdrop priorities as follows: 1) Maglaj; 2) Tesanj; 3) Konjic/Tarcin; 4) Mostar (east bank); 5) Srebrenica; 6) Gorazde; and 7) Zepa.

• On November 18, Francesco Strippoli, World Food Program (WFP) Unit Head for Eastern Europe Operations, reported to the Department of Defense (DOD) that the airdrops have been well over 90% effective in reaching the intended recipients.

• On average each U.S. sortie costs $12,500 (flight only), with a daily cost for 6 U.S. C-130s averaging $75,000 per day. Since airdrops began, the operation has cost approximately $14 million.

Resources for Airdrop

• The WFP donates 80% of the food for both air-land and airdrop missions. The U.S. is the principal donor, with an average of 50 percent of the total donation to WFP.

• On November 18, WFP reported to DOD that if airdrop operations had to be doubled, WFP would make available enough food stocks to cover the increase. The only limiting factor would be one month's advance notice of the requirement.

• In FY 1993, the U.S. government provided over 10.3 million MREs, valued at $47 million, for airdrop operations in the former Yugoslavia. There are currently 1.94 million Humanitarian Daily Rations and 500,000 additional MREs in European storage sites that can be used in future airdrop missions.

Prognosis for Winter

The UNHCR is meeting with the warring parties in mid-November to discuss emergency actions necessary to avert a humanitarian disaster in Bosnia this winter. Even with a negotiated settlement, there is no guarantee that such a settlement would be honored in the field. Due to the lack of stockpiles in central and eastern Bosnia, and no apparent solution to the problem of access, the airdrop operations will take on a greater importance. The need for a means to airdrop fuel has already been identified as a critical medical priority for the operation of small generators at field hospitals.

Presently, airdrop operations are considered a necessary supplement, not a substitute, to the land convoy system. If access and security guarantees are not obtained so that land convoys can move freely and safely through Bosnia-Herzegovina, UNHCR will request additional airdrops and airlifts. As noted above, WFP has reported that sufficient food stocks would be made available to cover the increase, and that additional warehouse space in Germany could be contracted.

Should an offer of additional aircraft for the airdrop operations be made, UNHCR would most certainly revise its priority list by adding more locations where shortfalls exist but are not acute enough to make the present list. OFDA's DART in Zagreb has identified Zenica, Jablanica, and Tuzla as potential winter airdrop locations based upon current shortages, lack of access, and other criteria. The opening of Tuzla airport would preclude the necessity to airdrop to additional locations in that particular area.

Summary of Conclusions

A. Humanitarian Issues

Deputies will recommend to Principals that we should:

1. Reiterate our existing commitment for Close Air Support to UNPROFOR. Specifically, we should tell the French that so far as we are concerned our existing commitment would apply to UNPROFOR escorts of humanitarian convoys along agreed routes. (S)

2. Tell Zagreb that if Bosnian Croat forces interfere with the humanitarian effort during the winter we will support sanctions on Croatia's civil air and maritime sectors and denial of its access to IFI resources. We also would warn that if Zagreb retaliates by reducing its current level of refugee/relief support we would support full-scale sanctions comparable to those imposed on Serbia. Ambassador Redman should make recommendations

MEMORANDUM FOR THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE
(REGIONAL SECURITY AFFAIRS)

Subject: Air Support Requirements to Support French-Sponsored Humanitarian Relief Operations (U)

1. (U) As requested,* the Joint Staff has reviewed the French proposal for delivering humanitarian relief supplies in Bosnia-Herzegovina (B-H) via convoy.

2. (S) Close air support (CAS) in support of convoy operations could be conducted using the forces engaged in NATO Operation DENY FLIGHT if the four AC-130 gunships deployed to Somalia are returned to Operation DENY FLIGHT or replaced. However, we recommend against providing CAS for the following reasons:

a. UNHCR aid convoys are not being stopped by organized military but by local bandits and groups of women and children. CAS is not useful in these situations.

b. Forcing delivery of humanitarian aid signals escalation of military involvement and would require principals' approval.

c. Serbs have just offered guaranteed access from Bar to Sarajevo. Permissive delivery of aid is preferable to convoying through potentially hostile areas.

3. (S) We have determined that battlefield air interdiction operations are not desirable or feasible given the current situation in B-H, rules of engagement, and difficulties with

INFORMATION PAPER

Subject: Air Support Requirements for French-Sponsored Humanitarian Relief Operations (U)

1. (U) Purpose. To provide information on close air support (CAS) for French-sponsored humanitarian relief operations.

2. (U) Key Points

- (S) The French propose that military escorted convoys be used to deliver approximately 1,000 tons per day of relief supplies to Sarajevo and environs this winter.

- (S) The French estimate that one convoy per day of 50 trucks (20 ton capacity) will transport the relief supplies to Sarajevo and that each convoy will take 3 days to travel to Sarajevo, unload supplies, and return to point of origin.

- (S) The three courses of action (COA) consider using two route clusters for convoy operations.

  - COA 1 - Escorting convoys on varied routes.

  - COA 2 - Escorting convoys on a single route.

  - COA 3 - Controlling a single route.

- (S) French operation will require air support from Operation DENY FLIGHT.

- (S) The French feel that the current ROE is adequate for the conduct of CAS.

- (S) The current Operation DENY FLIGHT force levels are in place and adequate to meet the CAS mission for the French proposal. J-3 estimates that the return of or deployment of 4 X AC-130 aircraft is required. NATO would have to approve this use.

- (S) NATO Operation DENY FLIGHT conducts 70 fighter CAS missions a week, maintains a 24-hour alert aircraft, and conducts 7 ABCCC missions per week. CINCSOUTH has scheduled 7 AC-130 gunship missions per week when assets return from Somalia.

- (S) Current in-place CSAR assets are adequate for aircrew recovery only.

- (S) ABCCC mission rate may increase.

- (S) UNPROFOR commands the CAS ground components and would have to provide the AOCC at Kiseljak and FACPs on each convoy.

- (S) UNHCR aid convoys are not being stopped by organized military but by local bandits and groups of women and children. CAS is not useful in these situations.

- (S) Forcing the delivery of humanitarian aid signals unwanted escalation of military involvement and would require Principals' approval.

- (S) Serbs have just offered guaranteed access from Bat to Sarajevo. Permissive delivery of aid is preferable to convoying through potentially hostile areas.

- (S) The conduct of battlefield air interdiction (BAI) to support convoys is not envisioned.

- (U) BAI is air operations conducted to destroy, neutralize, or delay the enemy's military potential before it can be brought to bear effectively against friendly forces at such distances from friendly forces that detailed integration of each air mission with the fire and movement of the friendly forces is not required.

- (S) The current situation in B-H does not lend itself to the conduct of BAI.

  - Concentrations of enemy forces are not present. Interference with convoys has been by small bands, unidentified indirect fire, civilian mobs, and groups of women and children.

  - Identification of forces interfering with convoy operations and targeting their higher echelons would be difficult to impossible.

INFORMATION PAPER

Subject: Increasing Humanitarian Aid - Airdrops (U)

1. (U) Purpose. To provide information on improving the delivery of humanitarian aid by increasing airdrop operations.

2. (U) Background. The ongoing airdrop operation began in February 93 as a temporary measure aimed at supplementing ground convoys. Despite the recent success of the ground routes, continued intransigence and deteriorating conditions due to winter weather make examination of alternative delivery methods necessary.

3. (U) Key Points

a. (S) ASSUMPTIONS

- Enhanced operations are requested/supported by UNHCR.
- Increased airdrops are temporary in nature, aimed at those in need who cannot be reached by ground convoys due to fighting or winter conditions.
- Additional supplies are available for increased airdrops.
- Belligerents sanction operation.

b. (S) CONCEPT OF OPERATION

- Airdrops continue at night due to threat.
- Surge capability above current six flights per night using dedicated fleet impractical. Aircraft operating at near maximum utilization rates due to flight duration, crew availability and periodic maintenance requirements. For an immediate surge, USEUCOM would be required to reprioritize theater air missions in order to support. Sustained surge would require additional aircraft, aircrews, and riggers. Thirty day supply of aid items available in Germany.
- For the long term, additional defensive system equipped C-130s/crews are made available to USEUCOM. This will probably require additional National Guard/Reserve participation depending on increased level of effort. Additional sorties require increase in riggers (8 per sortie - if airdrops doubled would require additional rigging company).
- Sufficient ramp space is available at Rhein Mein.

- Additional sorties will require increased reliance on GPS directed drops, due to limited number of A/C equipped with AWADS (Radar for precision airdrops) and defensive systems.

- If possible, new air items should be procured in an international orange color. This would make them easy to spot by those in need, easier to recover, and less valuable to combatants. USG should seek UN funding to cover contract costs.

b. (~~S~~) DISCUSSION

- This option presents minimal risk to US A/C, crews.

- Airdrop operations are less weather dependent than helicopter deliveries.

- Accuracy of current delivery means is good. Increasing airdrop operations, however, does not ensure that food is delivered to those in need; ground distribution systems are uncertain and beyond our control.

- Airdrops are not capable of delivering required fuel/water needed in some locations. This requires ground convoys, which are the most efficient means of delivering aid.

- Airdrops do not address pressing issue of delivery of winterization supplies. Belligerents have classified these items as non-humanitarian aid due to potential for military application. Airdropping winterization supplies likely perceived as belligerent act.

- Belligerents could use these operations as a reason to deny access to isolated areas by ground personnel. This would not only undercut the UN efforts to expand ground convoys, but could also prevent observers from getting in to obtain accurate assessments.

- Incremental cost of each C-130 flight is approximately $12,500, not including costs of relief supplies.

c. (U) POLITICO-MILITARY CONSIDERATIONS

PROS
- Safest method of US participation.
- Very visible, high profile demonstration of US concern/ activism.
- Does not put forces on the ground.
- Overcomes access problems to isolated areas.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

CONS

- Does not address cause of problem; subsidizes continued fighting.
- Extremely costly effort producing minimal results.
- No control of ground distribution; unable to ensure delivery to those in need.
- Decreases need for cooperation/negotiations by belligerents.
- Enhanced effort may arouse congressional scrutiny.

4. (S) Bottom Line. While effective in accuracy, the airdrop operation is not effective for the large volume of sustained supply for a civilian population. Operation is inviting due to the low-risk and high visibility. Joint Staff would strongly recommend airdrops over helicopter or ground operations for emergency resupply of limited quantities of relief supplies to a needy population.

INFORMATION PAPER

Subject: Expansion of Mission - US Hospital Zagreb (U)

1. (U) Purpose. Provide analysis of expanding US hospital (Zagreb) medical mission to treat pediatric patients.

2. (U) Background. Request for expansion of mission result of 28 Oct DC meeting. Ambassador Galbraith previously requested US hospital involvement in the care of five to ten child victims of the conflict. General Cot, UNPROFOR commander, agreed with concept of using spare capacity at UN field hospitals to treat war trauma victims. State currently reviewing request.

3. (S) Discussion. 48th Air Transportable Hospital is third US hospital in rotation. Hospital OPCON to UNPROFOR as a UN "blue hatted" unit. Mission to provide medical support to UNPROFOR. Hospital staff reported to be operating below capacity and would be able to accept up to 10 pediatric patients. Treating civilians requires UN approved change in mission.

PROS

- High visibility US humanitarian assistance contribution without commitment of additional ground troops
- Appeals to American sentiment.
- Reduces suffering.
- Taps under-used resource, provides varied medical training opportunities.

CONS

- Impartiality and treatment of only non-belligerents must be maintained or safety of existing mission at risk - both hospital personnel and aircrews. Hard to differentiate between juvenile combatants and non-combatants (Somalia).
- May detract from priority mission. To do job right will require changes in equipment, personnel, supplies (pediatric sized supplies, pediatrician, pediatric nurse, pediatric pharmaceuticals).
- Criteria not in place to determine what classification of patient hospital will accept, length of stay, disposition of family members, and procedures for transfer should space be required for UNPROFOR patient.

- Non-US personnel making triage decisions. Over stressed system with history of screening problems.

- May expand into "magnet" hospital. Ignores potential flood of patients from refugee community in Zagreb.

- Creates untenable problem of turning away patients.

- Civilian hospitals available in Zagreb with pediatric capability.

- Patients likely to require long-term care. US hospital not a long term care facility. May create permanent refugee status for children and strain the already over-burdened Croatian government.

- Politically difficult to terminate once started. Sets precedent for future involvement.

4. (S) Bottom Line. Seemingly attractive option - seen as doing something. However, must be cautious of diverting US military medical support from the UNPROFOR mission. Should not proceed until specific criteria and procedures established and agreed to for accepting, evacuating, treating, and returning patients to families in country of origin. Parties to agreement must include affected agencies, governments and warring factions - a significant diplomatic challenge. If USG undertakes mission without agreement, belligerents likely to manipulate program as an issue of taking sides - immediately jeopardizing the mission. As an alternative to expanding US mission, recommend USG explore consortium program with local hospitals under UNHCR/WHO auspices.

MEMORANDUM FOR UNDER SECRETARY OF DEFENSE FOR POLICY

FROM: YUGOSLAV TASK FORCE
Prepared by Col J.P. Kiley/EurPol/x40661

SUBJECT: Medical Options for Croatia

Tab A tasked a requirement to review medical capabilities in order to provide additional relief for refugee assistance in Croatia. Currently, the 48th Air Transportable Hospital is deployed in Zagreb in support of UNPROFOR. This unit is tasked and designed to give trauma and stabilization care to combat casualties. It can provide for 60 bed ridden patients. Ambassador Galbraith has requested that surplus capacity be provided for the care of civilian patients, particularly children. The JCS paper describing the additional requirements necessary to accommodate this request is at Tab B.

Other options exist to provide additional medical capability to administer to the requirements of the refugee population in Croatia. These options all require additional medical personnel and equipment to be deployed in a potential combat area. A decision will be required for deployment and expenditure of the necessary funds.

Options:

- Medical Civil Action Programs: augment the military hospital in Zagreb with additional personnel in order to provide rotational medical service to the refugee camps. Active/reserve forces from all services could be used to augment the hospital. This might benefit active duty training for reserve personnel. It might be possible to request civilian health care professionals to augment the hospital and provide the additional staffing from these volunteers.

- Environmental Health Assistance: civil action programs consisting of environmental health specialists to advise the refugee population could augment the hospital in Zagreb. While providing no direct health care, they could assist by providing a forward deployed diagnostic laboratory to conduct surveillance on the health status of the refugee camps by monitoring the sanitation, food preparation, water systems, and entomological sources of communicable diseases.

- Naval Assets:

- Assault Landing Ship (LHA) - an option exists to use helicopters to provide resupply to the refugee population in Bosnia for the winter. The LHA contains a 48 bed hospital with a full operating suite for combat casualties. It could, if fully manned, provide humanitarian care for patients prior to movement to a civilian facility. The resupply helicopters could provide the lift from shore to ship as scheduled by UN organizations. Medical civil action programs from the ship could also be conducted in conjunction with the U.S. hospital in Zagreb and coordinated with the UN.

- Hospital Ship (TAH) - two are currently in the inventory under the control of the Military Sealift Command (MSC). One is assigned to the Atlantic Fleet. It has a complement of 1200 personnel; has 1,000 hospital beds; 12 operating suites; and is manned by active duty and civilian personnel. The ship would require support to move patients to/from the vessel; escort ships; and a defined UN procedure for returning patients to civilian hospitals would have to be established. The ship is in Baltimore Harbor in reduced operating status (5 days). If ordered to sea and medical personnel assigned, it could be at sea in 5 days. Activation costs will be $40-60K. Operating costs range from $51K/day at sea to $41K/day in port or at anchor. Activation costs are absorbed in these per diem costs. It is primarily a surgical facility but can be equipped and staffed for humanitarian operations. A 30 day block of surgical supplies is valued at $12M. Supplies for humanitarian assistance would be additive to this. Medical civil action could also be conducted from this platform through coordination with the hospital in Zagreb. While current plans call for the ship to be staffed with U.S. Navy personnel, joint staffing from USN, USA, and USAF medical personnel might be possible, if this option is considered, to lessen the affect on residual medical care for all services.

All options require a threat assessment, personnel, fiscal, and logistical estimate.

Recommendation: none. For information only.

The Federal Minister for Foreign Affairs
Klaus Kinkel

The Minister for Foreign Affairs
Alain Juppé

Bonn and Paris, 7. November 1993

Dear Willy,

In a letter dated 27 October 1993 from the Federal Chancellor and the President of the Republic in agreement with the Prime Minister to Prime Minister J.-L. Dehaene on the subject of the realization of a Common Foreign and Security Policy, Germany and France proposed that we speedily develop a coherent common position within the Union with a view to bringing about a lasting ceasefire and a peace settlement in the former Yugoslavia. We should like to share a few thoughts in confidence with our partners:

1) We noted with great interest Lord Owen's statement at the General Affairs Council meeting on 26 October on the state of the peace negotiations. We support the efforts of the co-chairmen. Their "globalization concept" is to be welcomed. It is in keeping with the approach adopted at the London conference. Only a comprehensive resolution of all the problems in the former Yugoslavia will make possible a durable peace settlement in this sorely tested region.

However, the co-chairmen's most recent soundings have confirmed that preparations for the planned "globalization conference" will take some considerable time. The UN Secretary-General, too, assumes that the earliest it could take place is the spring of next year. In the meantime Bosnia and Herzegovina faces the threat of catastrophe this winter, and in the areas of Croatia under UNPROFOR mandate the risk of war is increasing.

We cannot turn a blind eye to these developments. A twin-track approach is therefore necessary - a view shared by the co-chairmen. As well as the necessary careful preparations for the global conference, which can only take place if there is a real chance of its success, particular emphasis must now be placed on tackling the following priorities:

- securing humanitarian assistance for Bosnia,
- arriving at a solution for Bosnia based on the Geneva package, and
- establishing a modus vivendi for the areas of Croatia under UNPROFOR mandate in order, as an interim step, to prevent the danger of war there.

2) We are aware of the immense problems involved. Nonetheless, the Twelve must, as a result of their responsibility for this part of Europe, continue to do their utmost to achieve these urgent objectives as quickly as possible and must also try to win the support and participation of the United States of America and Russia for these goals. Germany and France therefore propose the following procedure to their partners:

Mr Willy Claes,
President of the Council of European Union, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Kingdom of Belgium, Brussels

(a) Humanitarian assistance (Joint Action)

The financial resources available for humanitarian assistance should be increased and third parties, in particular Islamic states, encouraged to participate. Specially protected humanitarian corridors should be established between the Dalmatian coast and Sarajevo in particular and Tuzla airport should be reopened. All parties to the conflict must agree that these routes and Tuzla airport are inviolable and give credible, firm guarantees to this effect. The airlift should be extended to Tuzla. The practice of demanding "transit fees" must be ended. It must be ensured through checks on transport and final distribution that the humanitarian assistance does in fact reach the needy, not the military. The legal prerequisites for this are in place (UN Security Council resolutions, rules of engagement). We welcome the readiness of European Community member states and other troop contributors to help protect the humanitarian corridors and to provide logistical support within the limits of their respective possibilities.

These measures should be elaborated immediately in conformity with the European Council declaration of 29 October, then submitted to the UN Secretary-General and implemented in close coordination with the United Nations.

(b) Solution in Bosnia

The war in Bosnia must be brought to an end. The Bosnian people do not want a second winter of war. They want peace.

The acquis reached in the negotiations on board "Invincible" on 20 September must be secured. If the draft constitution allows one or two constituent republics of the "Union of Republics of Bosnia and Herzegovina" to secede from it, such an outcome should not be encouraged. Peace has already been within reach, and we must try everything to obtain a result without altering Bosnia and Herzegovina's external borders. Consideration should be given to a new approach to the parties to the conflict in order to conclude peace.

The Bosnian Muslims are demanding that their territory be enlarged. Milosevic appears to be willing to negotiate. In addition, a wide-ranging offer relating to reconstruction and economic cooperation would be particularly important to the Muslims. Finally, they must be given confidence that a package accepted by all parties, including its provisions on human rights and minorities, would in fact be rapidly implemented. This will only be possible with a strong implementation element. The United States recently reaffirmed its willingness in principle to participate in this. Unless the international community showed itself willing to defend a package of solutions, accepted by the parties to the conflict with international endorsement, with an international presence on the spot, thus demonstrating that it supported its realization, the solution would merely remain on paper. This is why the Twelve have already declared their readiness to participate in implementation. In order to make it easier for the Muslims to give their agreement, consideration should be given to linking the elements of reconstruction and implementation by the international community with the peace package itself so that the Muslims would not have to fear giving up their old positions without the certainty that the package would truly be implemented.

If the Muslims' current territorial demands, namely an extra 3-4% of the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina, are met and they still remain unwilling to sign the peace package, it will have to be made clear to the leaders in Sarajevo that military options do not have the slightest chance of success and that they would thereby risk losing the support of the international community.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

As things stand, the Serbian side will be persuaded to show the necessary territorial flexibility only if it can be sure that the UN sanctions will be lifted step by step corresponding to stages of implementation. The Serbian side should be given an assurance that the UN sanctions will be lifted if it implements an agreed package on Bosnia and a modus vivendi in the occupied areas of Croatia (see below). As Italy has suggested, this could happen step by step: the sooner the Serbian side meets its obligations under the agreements to be concluded, the quicker things will move. This would also have the advantage of providing urgently needed relief for the neighbouring states of Serbia and Montenegro.

(c) Areas of Croatia under UNPROFOR mandate

There is an increasing risk of war in the Krajina. Since it is at present unlikely that a solution for this region will be found quickly, we should concentrate initially on achieving a ceasefire and on confidence-building measures pursuant to Security Council Resolution 847, in other words a modus vivendi preventing the danger of war, which at the same time would be an interim step towards a definitive solution.

Germany and France confirm their readiness to help actively in establishing such a modus vivendi soon if the outcome of the conference's current endeavours make it appropriate and if the co-chairmen so wish.

3) Should a solution for Bosnia and a modus vivendi in the Krajina be achieved, consideration would have to be given to holding a conference in Geneva along the lines of the London one ("London II"). Its tasks would be, on the one hand, to endorse what had been achieved, to give a powerful impetus to implementation and to ensure the financing of the reconstruction of the destroyed areas, in which the Islamic states should be brought to play a significant part. On the other hand, the conference should provide a mandate for the solution of the remaining problems in the former Yugoslavia (definitive solution in Carniola, rights of ethnic groups and national minorities).

The degree of autonomy of the areas currently covered by the UNPROFOR mandate must be determined in the light of the relative proportion of the population of the Serbian community before the outbreak of war in 1991. The Carrington proposal remains of great relevance for determining this status in each case. It cannot be for the Twelve to encourage border changes.

Widespread autonomy must be reestablished in Kosovo, too, as the Serbs cannot refuse the Kosovo Albanians what they are demanding for the Serbian ethnic group in the Krajina. Finally, in Sandjak and in the Vojvodina specific rights as envisaged by the co-chairmen must be guaranteed. Hungary must not feel itself left alone with the problem of the Hungarian minority in the Vojvodina. In all three regions an international presence to monitor the observance of the rights of ethnic groups and minorities is a matter of urgency.

The actual global conference on all issues can only take place at a final stage when the negotiations on the remaining problems in the former Yugoslavia have been successfully concluded. This "London III" could endorse the relevant agreements, which should also contain a disarmament element. The implementation of these agreements would open the way for Serbia and Montenegro's full incorporation into the international community.

4) These considerations are not exhaustive and will have to be adapted in the light of further developments. We regard them as a basis for internal discussion among the Twelve as to the further joint approach, with the additional aim being to give encouragement to Lord Owen.

We should like to suggest to you that, as an initial step, our experts quickly elaborate a common position which will be presented for approval to the General Affairs Council via the Political Committee. The result could then serve the EC representative as a guideline, while maintaining the flexibility he needs.

The prime imperative, however, is that we now give a powerful new political impulse for the peace endeavours in the priority areas and for securing the provision of humanitarian supplies to the suffering people. We will not be able to evade responsibility for these our fellow Europeans, nor can we shrug off the expectations placed in the Twelve's Common Foreign and Security Policy by the people in our countries. Despite all the difficulties, therefore, we must make every endeavour to avoid the impending disaster this winter.

We would be grateful to you if you could also send this letter to the other Council members and to Lord Owen.

Yours sincerely,

(sgd) Klaus Kinkel (sgd) Alain Juppé

SUBJECT: GOULDING CONVEYS REQUEST FOR "HUMANITARIAN - TRUCE" IN B-H

1. ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SEE ACTION REQUEST, PARA 10.

3. SUMMARY: U/SYG MARRACK GOULDING, IN A MEETING WITH THE AMBASSADORS OF THE U.S., RUSSIA AND BELGIUM (IN HIS CAPACITY AS THE PRESIDENT OF THE EC), PASSED ON A STOLTENBERG REQUEST FOR THE PRESIDENTS OF THE U.S., RUSSIA AND THE EC, ALONG WITH THE SECRETARY GENERAL, TO MAKE AN APPEAL FOR "A WINTER HUMANITARIAN TRUCE" IN BOSNIA TO PERMIT ACCESS TO DELIVER HUMANITARIAN SUPPLIES. GOULDING DESCRIBED THE CRITICAL NATURE OF THE SITUATION WITH THE ONCOMING OF WINTER AND INFORMED THE ASSEMBLED GROUP THAT STOLTENBERG THOUGHT THAT ONLY A PERSONAL APPEAL BY WORLD LEADERS OF THE STATURE OF PRESIDENTS CLINTON AND YELTSIN, JOINED BY THE EC PRESIDENT AND THE UN SYG, COULD POSSIBLY HAVE A CHANCE TO BRING A TRUCE. UNHCR HEAD OGATA CONCURRED AND EMPHASIZED THAT ACCESS WAS THE KEY OBJECTIVE OF THE APPEAL. NOT EVEN MONEY WAS AS ESSENTIAL. THE AMBASSADORS RAISED THE QUESTION THAT OTHERS MIGHT TRY TO BROADEN THE APPEAL AND MIGHT AGAIN ACCUSE THE SYG AND THE EC COUNTRIES OF ONLY BEING CONCERNED ABOUT EUROPEANS. AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT, WHILE CONFESSING THAT THE IDEA WAS ATTRACTIVE, CALLED FOR FOCUSSING ON THE CONS, NOT THE OBVIOUS PROS. LATER, THE RUSSIAN PERMREP TOLD ALBRIGHT THAT THE IDEA WOULD NOT BE SUCCESSFUL AND THE "PRESTIGE OF OUR TWO PRESIDENTS" SHOULD NOT BE PUT AT RISK. END SUMMARY.

4. CREATING A BIT OF SUSPENSE AND LOW-KEY DRAMA, UN UNDER SECRETARY GENERAL FOR POLITICAL AFFAIRS MARRACK GOULDING, WITH ONLY A HINT OF THE SUBJECT MATTER, CONVENED A MEETING OF THE AMBASSADORS FROM THE U.S., RUSSIA AND THE EC PRESIDENCY THE EVENING OF NOVEMBER 3 TO REQUEST THAT THE LEADERS OF THE UNITED STATES, RUSSIA AND THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY JOIN WITH THE UN SECRETARY GENERAL TO ISSUE AN APPEAL FOR "A WINTER HUMANITARIAN TRUCE IN BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA." (NOTE: THE WRITTEN PROPOSAL HAS BEEN FAXED TO IO/PHO.) GOULDING, WHO WAS JOINED BY UNHCR SADAKA OGATA AND UN DEPARTMENT OF HUMANITARIAN AFFAIRS CHIEF JAN ELIASSON, INFORMED THE AMBASSADORS THAT THE IDEA OF THE APPEAL ORIGINATED WITH UN SPECIAL ENVOY THORVALD STOLTENBERG AND HAD THE STRONG SUPPORT OF MRS. OGATA.

5. ACCORDING TO GOULDING, STOLTENBERG THOUGHT A DRAMATIC PERSONAL APPEAL ISSUED BY PRESIDENT CLINTON, PRESIDENT YELTSIN, THE PRESIDENT OF THE EC AND THE SYG REPRESENTED THE ONLY HOPE FOR ADDRESSING WHAT WAS RAPIDLY BECOMING AN HUMANITARIAN CATASTROPHE. THE U/SYG SUGGESTED THAT THE APPEAL STATE IN "STARK TERMS" THE SITUATION ON THE GROUND. HE READILY ADMITTED THAT THE POSSIBILITY OF A POSITIVE RESPONSE WAS "SLENDER." BUT, ARGUED GOULDING, "WE MUST THROUGH THE APPEAL SEEK TO SENSITIZE WORLD OPINION, INCREASE THE FLOW OF FUNDS AND SHOW WHERE THE BLAME LIES IN CASE OF FAILURE." HE CONCLUDED HIS OPENING REMARKS BY SAYING THAT THE SYG WANTED TO INFORMALLY SOUND OUT THE PARTIES BEFORE MAKING A MORE FORMAL REQUEST.

6. OGATA SECONDED THE REMARKS OF GOULDING AND IDENTIFIED THE KEY FACTOR BETWEEN DELIVERING AID OR NOT AS THAT OF ACCESS. EVEN IF FUNDS ARE AVAILABLE, STATED OGATA, "ACCESS IS THE REAL OBJECTIVE" OF THE APPEAL. IT WAS HER VIEW AND THAT OF STOLTENBERG THAT AN APPEAL THAT HAD "THE POLITICAL SUPPORT FROM THE HIGHEST LEVELS" WOULD BE THE ONLY WAY TO ACHIEVE A TRUCE. LIKE GOULDING, OGATA CONCEDED THAT THERE WOULD BE VIOLATIONS IF A TRUCE WERE ACHIEVED. BUT THE EFFORT WOULD BE WORTH IT.

7. THE BELGIAN PERMREP, PAUL NOTERDAEME, SPEAKING FOR THE EC, RAISED THE QUESTION OF DOUBLE STANDARDS THAT SOME WOULD SURELY CAST AT THIS APPEAL IF A SIMILAR EFFORT WERE NOT MADE ON BEHALF OF OTHER TRAGIC HUMANITARIAN SITUATIONS. "WHAT ABOUT APPROACHING THE OAU?", ASKED AMBASSADOR NOTERDAEME. OGATA RESPONDED BY POINTING OUT THE UNIQUE NATURE OF WINTER IN A PLACE LIKE BOSNIA AND EXPLAINED THAT SHE WOULD HAVE NO TROUBLE DEALING WITH SUCH A CRITICISM. RUSSIAN PERMREP YULI VORONTSOV SUGGESTED AN EVEN BROADER APPEAL, ON BEHALF OF "ALL OF THE UNITED NATIONS." GOULDING AND OTHERS THOUGHT SUCH AN APPEAL WOULD BE SO BROAD AS TO "DILUTE" ITS EFFECT AND, IN ANY CASE, WOULD NOT HAVE THE IMPACT OF A PERSONAL, DRAMATIC REQUEST BY THE LEADERS OF THE WORLD POWERS WITH THE GREATEST PUBLIC APPEAL.

8. AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT, NOTING THAT HER COMMENTS WERE PRELIMINARY, WAS NON-COMMITTAL BUT CONFESSED THAT (GIVEN THE CRITICAL SITUATION ON THE GROUND) THE IDEA WAS ATTRACTIVE. HOWEVER, CAUTIONED ALBRIGHT, WHILE THE PROS WERE OBVIOUS, "WE SHOULD CAREFULLY EVALUATE THE CONS." SHE TOO WAS CONCERNED THAT OTHERS (E.G., THE OIC) MIGHT WANT TO JOIN IN BY CALLING FOR AN APPEAL IN THE CASE OF OTHER REGIONAL CONFLICTS. A CRITICAL ISSUE IN EVALUATING THE PROPOSAL, ASSERTED AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT, WAS WHETHER STOLTENBERG OBJECTIVELY BELIEVED THAT SUCH AN APPEAL WOULD IN FACT LEAD TO A REAL TRUCE.

9. COMMENT: AFTER THE MEETING, VORONTSOV TOLD THE AMBASSADOR THAT HE THOUGHT THE IDEA, WHILE LAUDABLE, PROBABLY HAD LITTLE CHANCE OF SUCCESS ON THE GROUND. "IT WOULD BE LIKE ANY OTHER TRUCE," STRESSED VORONTSOV, "KARADZIC WOULDN'T BE ABLE TO CONTROL SOME MILITARY GUY OUT IN THE FIELD WHO WOULD START SHOOTING RIGHT AFTER THE SIGNING CEREMONY." VORONTSOV ARGUED THAT "WE (THE U.S. AND RUSSIA) SHOULD NOT PUT THE PRESTIGE OF OUR TWO PRESIDENTS ON THE LINE" FOR A TRUCE THAT IS BOUND TO FAIL. WE TEND TO AGREE.

10. ACTION REQUEST: DEPARTMENT PLEASE ADVISE. THE EC COUNTRIES PLAN TO CONSIDER THE PROPOSAL ON NOVEMBER 4. GOULDING SAID THE TIMING FOR A RESPONSE TO STOLTENBERG WAS "AS SOON AS POSSIBLE." WE ANTICIPATE BEING CONVOKED FOR ANOTHER MEETING WITH GOULDING NO LATER THAN FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5.

Appeal for a winter humanitarian truce in BiH

Today, temperatures are already sub-zero in parts of BiH, a country devastated by war. Many people are facing the winter without electricity in accommodation that cannot be heated. Water and sanitation services have collapsed or are about to break down. The health services cannot meet even basic needs.

A humanitarian catastrophe is now inevitable if the conflict in BiH continues this winter. It has not been possible for the parties to reach political agreement on a peace plan. If disaster is to be averted, they must, at least, agree on a winter humanitarian truce, while political negotiations continue. An immediate suspension of hostilities must be accompanied by unconditional access for humanitarian assistance and complete and secure freedom of movement for humanitarian aid workers.

Humanitarian principles are being flouted. Personnel of the UN, governmental and non-governmental organizations who are risking and losing their lives to help others are being deliberately targeted by all sides. Their efforts are being obstructed for military advantage.

Without the immediate action that will be made possible by a winter truce, many persons are likely to die of cold. Support for the coal mines, electricity generating capacity, and repair of transmission lines is vital. Not only will lives otherwise be lost, but irreparable damage will be done to the infrastructure that serves all communities and on which economic recovery will depend.

The parties must allow humanitarian assistance to reach those who need it most, and stop diverting it to the military. The cessation of attacks on UNPROFOR and humanitarian aid workers of UNHCR and other agencies will allow all resources to be concentrated on overcoming the practical difficulties. The most effective land routes must be opened as soon as the physical obstacles are removed. The main road from the coast to Sarajevo and the large population centres in central Bosnia are the highest priority. At the same time, the airlift to Sarajevo remains vital and must continue throughout winter without military disruption. Tuzla airport must be opened under UN authority to allow a second airbridge.

Many civilians are still unlawfully detained under appalling conditions. They may not survive the winter. They must be released in accordance with the principles of, and arrangements made by, the ICRC.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

The leaders alone can create the conditions that will allow the international community to help their people. The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees will meet with the three parties in BiH to formalize the winter truce and obtain clear guarantees for the unconditional access of humanitarian assistance. If the parties to the conflict fulfil their obligations, and with the full support of the international community, the worst can be prevented. The parties to the conflict already bear a heavy responsibility for a massive human tragedy. If they fail their communities and humanity now, and do not act on this appeal, an even greater disaster will occur. Their responsibility is inescapable.

Summary of Conclusions

Administration of Deputies Meetings

1. The Deputies convened in accordance with the direction of the December 12, 1994 Principals' Committee Meeting which asked the Deputies to meet regularly on Bosnia. The Deputies agreed to meet at least weekly with a goal of imposing discipline on the Interagency Bosnia policy-making process.

Negotiating Track

2. The Deputies discussed the progress of ongoing efforts to restart the negotiations under the auspices of the Contact Group and how the former President Carter initiative would affect those negotiations. The Deputies agreed that a common Administration position should be developed and followed by all agencies. Action: NSC draft talking points for use with press and Congressional consultations.

Retaining and Strengthening UNPROFOR

3. The Deputies discussed the efforts underway at the meeting of the Chiefs of Defense at The Hague designed to strengthen and retain UNPROFOR in Bosnia. Noting the lack of enthusiasm on the part of most Allies for robust options, the Deputies agreed that we should continue our efforts to identify steps that will make UNPROFOR more viable in the performance of its existing mandate.

Build-Down Concept

4. The Deputies discussed the concept of build-down and recognized that, despite the difficulties of implementation, build-down was now a political reality and, therefore, required clear definition and integration into our strategy both pre- and post-UNPROFOR withdrawal. Action: OSD flesh out the build-down concept and identify where and how it fits into our near- and long-term strategy.

Sanctions

5. The Deputies discussed steps that have been taken in the run-up to the January 13, 1995 decision point on extending sanctions relief for the Serbian border closure. The Deputies agreed that the yet-to-be announced cut-off of the Krajina Serbs by Milosevic could be a positive step and could affect our action on January 13. The Deputies also agreed that steps must be taken within the interagency community to replace the U.S. border monitors now participating in the ICFY border monitoring mission. Action: OVP.

6. Leon Fuerth circulated a paper outlining a process to guide actions in the run-up to the January 13 decisions and reached an informal agreement that the Deputies Committee was the appropriate level for decisions regarding policy decisions on compliance. The Deputies agreed to consult further on this issue before reaching a decision. Action: OVP.

Congressional and Public Affairs Strategy

7. The Deputies ongoing efforts to raise the awareness in Congress and in the public about the implications of a unilateral lifting of the arms embargo. The Deputies directed that an interagency group be immediately established to oversee the development and implementation of a Congressional and public affairs strategy. The group will meet daily and will be under the co-chairmanship of Bill Danvers, NSC Legislative Affairs, and a State Department Public Affairs representative. The group will develop a detailed Congressional and public affairs strategy including an interagency-agreed script and timetable. Action: NSC and State.

REINVIGORATED UNPROFOR PROPOSALS

FRENCH PROPOSALS.

- Secure the Sarajevo Airport. This idea is consistent with the current humanitarian mission. However, when considered previously, the idea was rejected because of the number of troops required to secure the Serb controlled approaches to the airport on a full-time basis. The French may have in mind something less ambitious than this.
- Secure a land route to Sarajevo. Consistent with current UNPROFOR mandate; most of the route is in Muslim/Croat control, but Serbs control the immediate access to Sarajevo and will oppose UN convoys and target the route; weather also an issue in some areas; and the troop requirement is unclear.
- Consolidate UNPROFOR in the central area. Provides economy of force and efficiency; if it means pulling out of the enclaves, creates the image of withdrawal and abandonment of the eastern enclaves; French seem to have in mind a less complete pull back, e.g., closing down the isolated weapons storage sites around Sarajevo, pulling back UNMO's.

OTHER OPTIONS (within existing mandate)

- Tougher convoy ROE. A variant of the "blue route" concept. Would force through Serb roadblocks, instead of negotiating. Problems are Serb counter-escalating, use of civilians to block convoys.
- Safe Area/EZ focus. Clearly define safe areas, create small exclusion zones and expand them. Deploy UNPROFOR more heavily in safe areas/EZs. Use military force to defend people in safe areas and the movement of humanitarian supplies to them. Option is impartial and within current mandate. Links easily to build-down. Difficult to coordinate, support and control dispersed units; requires a tactical reorientation and probably more troops.
- Central Based Rapid Reaction Force. Concentrate UNPROFOR in Sarajevo with a small presence in limited, designated safe areas. Create a viable mechanized and armor (consider attack helicopters) reaction force (Bn or Bde) configured for combat and located in Sarajevo to respond with ground combat power and air support to UN missions as required. UNPROFOR more defensible; restores UN initiative and gives combat capability to UN but requires new organizational structure, C3I, combat equipment and log support. May increase fighting.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Secure Tuzla airport. Easier to secure than Sarajevo airport because it is deeper inside government area. However, it creates new opportunity for fighting, and Tuzla is remote from other areas requiring humanitarian support. Would also require redeployment of many UNPROFOR forces.

DRAFT

Build Down

Background: On September 30, 1994, Senators Nunn and Lugar sent Dr. Perry a letter outlining key components of a build down strategy. Dr. Perry endorsed the concept as worthy of serious consideration in his October 7, 1994, response. Nunn followed up with a second letter on December 1, 1994, endorsing build down as an alternative to either unilateral or multilateral lifting of the arms embargo as a means to establish rough military parity and hence create one of the essential conditions for a negotiated settlement.

Issue: obtain Deputies agreement on a definition of build down, how it fits into our near and long-term strategy, and how it should be presented to our Allies.

Discussion:

The Concept: an alternative to lifting the embargo. The idea is to reduce weapons rather than increase those of the Bosnian Govt. Build down is designed to equalize the forces by eliminating all or most of the heavy weapons on both sides by either destroying them or removing them from B-H. It is intended to establish rough military equivalence by eliminating the current Bosnian Serb advantage in heavy weapons, thereby allowing the Bosnians to defend themselves and accelerating a negotiated end to the Bosnian conflict.

Build down should be a step-by-step process of demilitarization, beginning as an amplification of our current policy. Since force asymmetries exist, trades-off could include the dismantling of BSA heavy weapons in return for the demobilization of Bosnian Govt troops. Possible key provisions which can be inserted at any point in the negotiating process include:

- Demilitarized zones (DMZ) around Sarajevo and elsewhere;
- Demilitarized roads for humanitarian deliveries ("blue routes");
- More vigorous enforcement and/or extension of EZs;
- Cease-fire areas beyond the EZs with gradual extension into nation-wide DMZ.

Implementation: (Assumption--former President Carter has some success in getting the Bosnian Serbs to resume negotiations for a settlement to the conflict in good faith) Present build down to the UN, NATO, and the Contact Group (CG) for their endorsements. Have the CG present the idea to the Bosnian Serbs as an alternative to lift and strike. Also present to the UN and NATO the idea of partial multilateral lifting of the arms embargo by providing the Bosnian Govt forces with a carefully selected package of defensive arms in areas where air attacks have proved ineffective. This idea would be pushed if the build down was not accepted by the warring parties.

Potential Problems: The UN and our NATO allies may have difficulty with more rigorous enforcement of the EZs so long as UNPROFOR is deployed throughout B-H. Re-deployment of those forces to more defensible and less exposed positions could be married to the more vigorous use of NATO air and partial lift. Expanding EZs may require more forces. Bosnian Govt is likely to resist build down. Advocates of lift (with or without strike) may label build down naive.

Recommendation: adopt build down as a component of the diplomatic strategy. Present it as an alternative to lift. If it is not readily accepted, use that as an additional argument if favor of lift, particularly the partial multilateral lift to provide defensive weapons to the Bosnian Govt in areas where NATO air power has been ineffective.

Bosnia Hill Strategy

Issue

We have to make certain that a very vocal group in the House and the Senate in favor of a lift and strike strategy for Bosnia are not able to pass legislation that would force unilateral lift on the Administration.

Despite all of our past briefings and outreach efforts, this group believes that our policy of seeking a diplomatic solution and multilateral lift does not work. For the past year they have been progressively introducing more and more restrictive legislation trying to force a unilateral lift. Thus far, we have been able to fight back their efforts, although the Nunn-Mitchell amendment, part of the FY 95 DoD authorization bill, forced us not to enforce the embargo and to prepare plans for a unilateral lift and arming the Bosnians.

Another problem we may have to confront at some point in the future is whether or not we should support or even seek an authorization for our participation in an NATO-led operation to get UNPROFOR troops out of Bosnia. While this will not become an issue until NATO makes a decision, we may want to do some initial soundings on the Hill during upcoming Bosnia briefings.

Hill Strategy

We need to get the story out as to why a unilateral lift is not a good idea. In addition, we must also explain, clearly, what our alternative strategy is.

We should use the next couple of weeks before Congress comes back into session to refine the arguments we want to make against unilateral lift and in support of our policy. We will, however, have an opportunity to brief members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee on Bosnia in a closed briefing on Friday, December 16. Peter Tarnoff will take the lead. He will be accompanied by representatives from DoD and JCS.

During the first week of January, we will begin a round of intense briefings on Bosnia. Three important issues we have to raise are: the problems of a unilateral lift, our alternative to lift and strike and our participation in a NATO-led operation to get UNPROFOR troops out of Bosnia.

The briefings should be closely coordinated with the new leadership, as well as the new committee chairmen and ranking members. We will be more effective if we go committee by committee-- i.e. Armed Services, International Relations, Intelligence-- as opposed to offering one big briefing for the House and Senate. We should also make an effort to target every new Senator and the freshman members of the House Armed Services and International Relations Committees.

Between now and the beginning of January, we should form a State/DoD/JCS briefing team to present our case. It is crucial that DoD and JCS take the lead when discussing the problems of unilateral lift. We should also prepare a set of common talking points that lay out simply and clearly our policy and the case against unilateral lift. If at all possible we should have a dry run of the presentation we will make to the Hill during the next few weeks.

Once the initial round of briefings are held in January, we should have principals make calls to key members on Bosnia to gauge where they are. We should also consider bringing back to Washington Admiral Crowe, Peter Galbraith and other Ambassadors to meet with a select group of members in January.

It is particularly important that we remain in close touch with Senators Dole, Lieberman Levin, Cohen, McCain, Nunn, Lugar, McConnell, Leahy, Biden and Kassebaum. In the House we should keep in contact with Representatives Gingrich, Gephardt, Bonior, Gilman, Hamilton, Murtha, Obey, and Livingston. They are key to any legislative action on unilateral lift. We should be under no illusions that we can defeat a resolution on a unilateral lift or that its proponents won't find a way to make it very difficult to veto a bill containing such language.

While a veto should always be an option, it should be used strategically, so that members do not feel they are getting a free ride in supporting a resolution calling for a unilateral lift because they know the legislation will be vetoed.

Public Affairs

There should be a coordinated Hill/public affairs campaign that helps us make the case on the perils of unilateral lift and explains why our policy is the right one. Articles, public statements, calls and meetings from individuals outside the government, like Colin Powell, in support of our policy would be of help with the general public and the Hill.

Between now and when Congress convenes in January, we should reach out to editorial boards across the nation on the problems of unilateral lift. The public affairs people from DoD, State and the White House should coordinate this effort.

We recommend that the White House working with the NSC form an interagency public affairs/legislative strategy group to help shape our Bosnia strategy over the coming weeks. A similar group on Haiti group worked quite well.

Summary

Sen. Dole and others will likely force the issue of a unilateral lift on us sometime in January. We need to use the time between now and when Congress comes into session to mount a public affairs strategy on the perils of a unilateral lift.

When Congress convenes, we will begin an aggressive Hill briefing strategy to clearly state our policy and why we are against a unilateral lift. We will work through the leadership and key committees and will follow up with calls from principals. During this process we will take discreet soundings of how the Hill views our participation in a NATO-led operation to get UNPROFOR troops out of Bosnia, which will help us decide whether to support or possibly seek an authorization for our participation.

Obviously the outcome of the Carter mission could affect our approach to the Hill.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Talking Points: Unilateral Lift Implications

I. Unilateral lift of the arms embargo would have a number of severe and negative consequences for the United States and the region. Unilateral lift would ultimately lead to:

--increased pressure to deploy more than 100,000 US ground troops in Bosnia and U.S. responsibility for the conflict;

--a possible widening of war to engulf the entire Balkans, including two NATO allies (Greece and Turkey);

--a significant increase in violence. And a dramatic deterioration in the humanitarian crisis with millions more refugees;

--a serious rift between the US and our Western allies, endangering NATO;

--a direct confrontation with Russia;

--an undermining of the authority of all UN Security Resolutions, including sanctions on Iraq, Libya, etc.

1. If the US lifts unilaterally, most UNPROFOR countries are likely to withdraw immediately, leaving at best a handful of Moslem peacekeepers. The Bosnian Serbs will launch all out pre-emptive attacks, before the Bosnian government can be supplied and trained. Even if the US launched massive airstrikes, the US would not have the support of NATO (because lift was unilateral) and so would have to act alone. Airstrikes alone would not halt the Serb ground attack, particularly in view of the mountainous terrain and generally poor visibility, and, in response to airstrikes, Serbia itself would come to the aid of the Bosnian Serbs, raising the possibility of a U.S. war with Serbia. In the face of the Bosnian government's certain defeat at the hands of the combined Serb forces, the United States prestige would be on the line, and we would have a moral responsbility to send sufficient US ground troops (more than 100,000) to rescue the Bosnian state.

2. The escalation of fighting would draw in the Serbs from the Krajina, thus spreading the war to Croatia. With the all out military confrontation between the US and Serbia, Serbia would no longer have any reason to exercise restraint in Kosovo, thus risking the spread to Macedonia, which in turn would bring in Greece and Turkey.

3. Given France and Britain's opposition to unilateral lift, they likely would refuse consent to allow NATO facilities to be used for the US air and ground operations.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

The resulting rift would undermine the consensus behind NATO's unified military command, and deeply harm the political underpinings of NATO.

4. Russia would not only oppose unilateral lift, but in response would unilaterally lift sanctions against Serbia, and arm Serbia and perhaps the Bosnian Serbs, This would put the US and Russia on a direct military collision course, with the prospect of US troops being killed by Russian supplied weapons.

5. If the United States asserted the right to abrogate unilaterally the UNSC embargo resolutions, others would claim similar rights for other other UNSC Resolutions (e.g. France and Russia on Iraq sanctions).

II. Multilateral lift would not pose the same risks

Multilateral lift assumes the concurrence of France, Britain and Russia, all members of the Security Council. Thus the dangers to the Western alliance and the US-Russian relationship could be avoided, the United States would not assume sole responsbility for the defense of the Bosnian government, and the unity among the Contact Group members/Perm 5 would provide a powerful incentive for the Serbs to negotiate rather than attack in response to multilateral lift.

For these reasons, the Administration continues to believe that multilateral lift remains an option. For the present, the Bosnian government does not seek lifting of the arms embargo.

III. Complete disengagement would not serve US interests

Although unilateral lift is not in our interest, neither is complete disengagment. We have a strong interest in preventing the war from spreading, in meeting humanitarian needs, in supporting (though not with ground troops) the efforts of our allies and friends in UNPROFOR) and seeking (though not with ground troops) a negotiated agreement on the basis of the Contact Group plan that preserves Bosnia's territorial integrity.

IV. Reinvigorating diplomatic efforts, as launched by the Contact Group December 2 mininsterial, is the best course.

--neither side is capable of winning the war militarily

--only a negotiated solution has any chance of lasting

--the international community continues to apply pressure through sanctions -- Milosevic's cut-off of the Bosnian Serbs demonstrates that sanctions can have an impact.

--a unified Contact Group position on maintaining sanctions and insisting on the Contact Group plan, combined with the border closures, is increasing pressure on Karadzic, improving the chances for a negotiated solution.

--although there is no guarantee that this renewed effort will produce immediate success, it is the only realistic approach to a durable solution.

Summary of Conclusions

Sanctions

1. The Deputies reviewed the Interagency Working Group's analysis, conclusions, and recommendations on the inter-Serbian border closure and approved the IWG recommendation to extend sanctions relief for another 100 days, with a positive vote needed to extend and a clause to terminate sanctions relief should Serbian performance deteriorate. The Deputies authorized the IWG to develop a list of minimum essential requirements and supporting objectives for inclusion in a guidance cable for USUN use in developing a new UNSCR. Action: OVP/NSC and State.

PER E.O. 13526
NLCD-2013-0533-M
KS 9/30/14 (1.95)

2. The Deputies discussed the options for consulting with Congress on the sanctions relief extension decision and agreed that calls to key members should be made Monday, January 9, before the afternoon meeting at the UN. The Deputies directed that talking points be prepared. Action: NSC

Diplomatic Strategy

3. The Deputies discussed the progress of ongoing Contact Group efforts to restart the negotiations. The Deputies requested that a list of options be developed for influencing the negotiations toward a positive outcome. This should be part of a diplomatic roadmap from now until April 30. The paper should be circulated by COB January 10 for comment prior to another Deputies meeting later in the week. Action: State.

Congressional and Public Affairs Strategy

4. The Deputies discussed next steps in dealing with Congress on Bosnia and agreed that a single comprehensive briefing on Bosnia should be prepared for use during the sessions next week. Action: State, in coordination with OSD, JCS and NSC.

5. The Deputies discussed timing for publication of the Secretary Perry/General Shalikashvili op-ed, deferring decision until a later date. The Deputies also agreed to develop a list of witnesses outside the Administration to speak on behalf of Administration Bosnia policy. Action: NSC

PER E.O. 13526

2013-0682-M

TO: The Secretary

THROUGH: P - Mr. Tarnoff

FROM: EUR - Richard C. Holbrooke

SUBJECT: Bosnia: A Road Map for January

- Our goal is to bring to an end the war in Bosnia in 1995 in a manner consistent with the Contact Group plan. Over the last month, starting with the December 2 CG Ministerial in Brussels, we developed a three-stage, sequenced approach to reach this goal: ceasefire, formal cessation of hostilities, and a political negotiation centered on the CG plan.

- With the first two stages now accomplished, our current task is to succeed in the third phase -- the difficult negotiation to find a political settlement. Three aspects are crucial:

  -- The process for renewing peace negotiations;

  -- The substance of the peace process;

  -- Congressional strategy -- that is, creating enough breathing space on the Hill to allow us to use the four months productively.

THE PROCESS

- The four-month cessation of hostilities is going to be fragile and frequently violated, but we believe it does create a new political environment more conducive to peace negotiations.

- The first question now is how to reactivate the peace process. We must reengage quickly -- within the next ten days -- to seize the momentum created by the cessation agreement. We must avoid a vacuum that others would seek to fill, as Boutros tried to do over the weekend.

- Indications from Bonn are that their current problem over contacts with Pale will be resolved this week -- prior to or during Ambassador Thomas' scheduled CG meeting in Bonn, January 5. Your message has been delivered and we believe is already having some positive effect. To meet German concerns, the CG will agree to approach Karadzic, but only to get Pale's "acceptance" of the plan. No other topics will be raised in the first CG contact with Pale. Based on conversations with our embassies yesterday, we believe the British, French and the Russians will buy into this approach. The CG team will proceed to Sarajevo, Pale, Belgrade, and Zagreb late this week on this basis.

- o I will go into Sarajevo on January 9 or 10 to meet with Izetbegovic and his colleagues on next steps, and will then meet with CG political directors (probably in Paris). By this time the CG will have completed its tour of the region and I will link up with Thomas.

- o Our aim will be the establishment of a clear diplomatic process by mid-January under CG auspices, although the precise form is yet to be decided. Three formats are possible:

  -- A Geneva type conference;

  -- "Proximity talks" somewhere in Europe;

  -- Shuttle diplomacy between the two sides, i.e. back and forth between Sarajevo, Zagreb, Belgrade and Pale.

- o We believe shuttle diplomacy gives us the best chance of progress; it worked well over the last two weeks for both Carter and the UN. We should avoid a Geneva extravaganza which would allow Karadzic -- and others -- to posture before the world's press and maximize chances for a stalemate. "Proximity talks" are not likely to have as representatives the decision-making levels needed for progress. Shuttle diplomacy works best, in our view, because it allows the CG to put direct pressure on the decision makers, and is less susceptable to media manipulation than a conference or proximity talks.

- o We will, per your Sunday conversation with Boutros, work for closer UN-CG coordination in the next phase, but we should avoid allowing the UN to subvert or downgrade the CG -- an action that would damage our relations with Russia, would create serious problems with Sarajevo, and increase our difficulties with Congress.

- o We will need to keep the Carter operation on the sidelines but it may be needed again if and when we have crunch points with the Pale Serbs where a Carter phone call to Karadzic could be the only remedy. Thus we need to keep the Carter camp informed; calls to Carter and Barnes, a Frasure trip to Atlanta periodically. (It is clear Carter plans to stay involved -- see his letter to Milosevic, tab 4.)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

US POLICY AND A NEGOTIATION

- We all recognize that any negotiation will be very difficult. Given the divisions within the CG, the USG must make it very clear that we are sticking to the 51/49 although "land swaps" can be arranged with the consent of both parties.

- We will also need to show full support to the Bosnian Government in their efforts to maintain their state as an international entity within its present boundaries. Our program for non-military assistance for the GOBH (headed by Dan Serwer and including the "Friends of the Federation" which will be announced this month in Bonn) must be vigorously continued. This will be particularly useful with the Hill.

- Throughout this process we will need to pay special attention to Zagreb. If Tudjman comes to believe that we are heading toward a Bosnia-only solution -- with the Krajina problem pushed aside, Cyprus-style -- Zagreb will abort a deal, possibly by disrupting the Federation, and will threaten to end the UN presence which is up for renewal at the end of January.

CONGRESSIONAL STRATEGY

- If the cessation agreement holds and a diplomatic process is underway, our ability to fend off Congressional pressure in January will be greatly enhanced. We believe a vigorous offensive should be launched with the Hill, rather than wait to react to Dole and others.

- Our first test on the Hill will be over a decision on whether or not to renew sanctions relief for Milosevic. A decision must be made by the UNSC by January 13. We control this process, since we can block or limit any extension of the suspension of the sanctions. Congress will certainly express negative views, and will cite anecdotal evidence of border leakage. In recent weeks, however, monitoring of the border has improved, and strengthens the case that Belgrade is making a serious effort.

  -- But, in the end, our decision will be political. Assuming the diplomatic process is underway, we will probably recommend to you and to the Principals Committee a limited term extension of phase one sanctions. This will be criticized by some on the Hill as going too far and by the British and Russians for not going far enough; but it will probably be a sustainable policy and can be used, we hope, to encourage negotiations.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Our biggest test on the Hill will be the Dole-Lieberman resolution on lift (attached tab 3). We have received conflicting information as to timing and format of this resolution. Lugar told me December 28 that he was confident that, given the Republican domestic agenda, it would not be acted on before May or June; other sources have suggested that Dole will try to get an early vote. We believe that in a condition of cessation of hostilities and visible activity by the CG, our ability to resist Dole is substantially improved.

  -- However, a certain amount of pressure from the Hill on lift, paradoxically, helps us in London and Paris, and Sarajevo and Pale.

  -- It is also worthwhile, as President Izetbegovic mentioned in his letter to you, that we mention now and again our desire to have our UN resolution on multilateral lift passed.

- In addition to our ability to show Congress that we have a process underway, we must also show members that we are not engaging in a strategy of "peace at any price."

  -- Our continued close consultation with the Bosnians, including our efforts to support and invigorate the the Bosnian-Croat Federation, will be understood as a positive sign that we are not cutting or running. The Bosnians are well plugged in on the Hill, and while not decisive, have considerable influence.

UNILATERAL LIFTING OF THE ARMS EMBARGO ON BOSNIA: THE PATH TO AN AMERICANIZED FOURTH BALKAN WAR

When the history of the tragic conflict in the former Yugoslavia is written, it will be clear that the arms embargo on Bosnia -- imposed in 1991 -- was a mistake. It has been discriminatory in depriving B-H of the means of self-defense against the Bosnian Serbs' superiority in tanks and artillery drawn from Tito's old arsenals and from some fresh supplies from outside, notably supporters in Serbia itself. An international agreement to lift the arms embargo multilaterally and deal collectively with the consequences would be both wise and just -- and has been supported by the Administration.

Some Americans, however, reacting with understandable frustration, are demanding the U.S. ignore UN resolutions and act unilaterally to lift the arms embargo. They claim unilateral lift would ensure that Bosnian government forces receive the arms and training they need to "level the field" and defend themselves. And they claim such a step would do this without drawing the U.S. into the Balkan fighting.

But a realistic look at the facts on the ground and the likely consequences of unilateral U.S. action demonstrate that taking such a seemingly fair, direct, and simple action would be a grave mistake, for both U.S. interests and the people of Bosnia. Among the consequences -- ignored or denied by proponents of unilateral lift -- would be these:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Unilateral lift would undermine the most successful diplomatic initiative in many months -- the Cessation of Hostilities agreement, negotiated with the help of former President Carter -- which was just signed by all the warring parties, and is now coming into effect. An American decision now to end the arms embargo would end that Cessation of Hostilities agreement -- and end also the hope of renewed negotiations toward a permanent peace settlement that would preserve Bosnia-Herzegovina as a single state, consistent with the Contact Group proposal.

- The Bosnian Serbs would have every incentive launch pre-emptive attacks, designed to exploit their advantages before the American arms supplies reached Bosnia. While the Serbs probably could not totally defeat government forces, it is virtually certain they would occupy the eastern enclaves and renew military pressure on Sarajevo and elsewhere, especially on relief supply routes.

- Current UNPROFOR operations would end as European and many other contributing countries withdraw from Bosnia, seizing on U.S. action as an excuse to end a commitment that has been costly for them in lives, treasure, and involvement.

- UN and most other outside relief efforts would stop, at the very time humanitarian requirements would increase dramatically, both because of the increased fighting and the withdrawal of Serb cooperation. Most Americans are unaware that a high percentage of the food reaching the enclaves comes through Belgrade and Bosnian-Serb controlled territory. All airfields and most land routes are within range of Bosnian Serb artillery. Whatever else they did, the Serbs could easily cut off these relief supplies.

The cumulative effect of these consequences would be strong pressure for direct American combat involvement -- something President Clinton, like President Bush before him has consistently ruled out. The U.S. would have precipitated the increased fighting and the end of international relief and peacekeeping efforts. Moral responsibility for the resulting military and humanitarian situation in Bosnia would shift the U.S.

In short, unilaterally ending the arms embargo is not an alternative to U.S. military intervention. It is a way of accomplishing such intervention.

The implications of taking on this responsibility are many and grave. To begin with, the U.S. would have to take over relief efforts, or accept responsibility for the large-scale starvation and refugee flows that would result from the lack of food.

Similarly, unless we were prepared to watch as pre-emptive Serb attacks further battered Bosnian cities and defensive positions, U.S. airstrikes would be required to defend government forces. However the necessary European bases and other NATO support on which our current, much smaller air efforts depend, might not be available in the aftermath of a major break with our allies. In any case, airstrikes alone, even with the added planes needed, would probably not halt Serb ground attacks, given the difficult weather and terrain conditions.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Furthermore, contrary to the claims of unilateral lift backers, the "playing field" in Bosnia is not self-leveling. Simply authorizing U.S. manufacturers to sell arms to Bosnia would not get any arms to Bosnia. For lifting the embargo to have its intended effect of allowing the Bosnians to defend themselves, the U.S. would have to undertake a major military assistance program to provide arms -- without the cooperation of our major allies and, potentially, in the face of their active opposition.

The financial costs, though substantial, would be the least of the problems in carrying out such an effort. Upgrading Bosnia's light infantry to confront Bosnian Serb heavy weapons successfully is not a simple task -- as earlier U.S. efforts to equip local forces in other countries from Vietnam to El Salvador have shown. Most important, sophisticated arms -- which the Bosnians would need to overcome Bosnian Serb advantages in heavy weapons -- are ineffective without trained soldiers to use them and a continuing stream of support. U.S. trainers, advisers and logistics support personnel on the ground would be necessary to assist the Bosnian Government in using the arms effectively.

A U.S. decision to lift the arms embargo unilaterally would undermine the most important U.S. national security objectives for the region. The primary U.S. objective has been to avoid a wider war in the Balkans. Among the most serious potential consequences of unilateral U.S. action would, however, be strong pressures to widen the conflict beyond Bosnia. There are painfully many scenarios for such wider fighting:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Escalation of fighting would likely draw in the Serbs from Krajina (as it did in Bihac), thus extending the actual fighting to Croatia.

- The Belgrade Serbs, though very sympathetic to the Bosnian Serbs, are now under strong international pressure, cutting off supplies to the Bosnian Serbs and pressing them to settle on terms the government of Bosnia Herzegovina has accepted. With the U.S. acting unilaterally, over the objections of our allies and the Russians, it would be difficult if not impossible to convince the Belgrade Serbs to hold back from intervening in support of their Bosnian Serb compatriots -- unless we were prepared to threaten Belgrade militarily.

- U.S. military confrontation with Serbia could precipitate a sharp crackdown by Belgrade in Serbia's principal Muslim province, Kosovo, a development which would have the potential to destabilize the entire southern Balkan region, and which the U.S. has pledged to meet with force.

- Broader conflict could draw Albania, Macedonia, Greece, and Turkey into the conflict.

Multilateral lift would not pose the same risks. Our Contact Group partners have agreed that lifting the arms embargo multilaterally could become unavoidable as a last resort if negotiations collapse and UNPROFOR must be withdrawn. If the arms embargo were lifted multilaterally by the UN the dangers to the Western alliance and the U.S.-Russian relationship would be avoided, the United States would not assume sole responsibility for the defense of the Bosnian government, and the unity among the Contact Group members and permanent members of the UN Security Council would provide a powerful incentive for the Serbs to negotiate rather than attack in response to multilateral lift.

With NATO's cooperation, airstrikes would be more effective; the allies might assist in arming the Bosnian government; and with Russia's help or acquiescence, Serbia may be kept out of the war -- a critical factor in whether a lift and strike strategy would succeed. For these reasons, the Administration continues to believe that multilateral lift remains an option, although one not without risks and adverse consequences.

Neither our horror at the destruction brought by this long and brutal war and at the atrocities of Serbian ethnic cleansing nor our frustration with the irrationality of Balkan rivalries and the difficulty of international peacekeeping should be allowed to cause us to forget that much has been accomplished by international action even as the war has continued. The European role, and our cooperation with Europe, has been central to what has been achieved to moderate the suffering in Bosnia and prevent a wider war. The UN for all its limitations, has saved thousands of lives by its military and civilian efforts. UNPROFOR, for all its problems, has been the necessary element for the large scale delivery of food, and for support of the Sarajevo and Gorazde exclusion zones. NATO cooperation has been essential for enforcement of the "No Fly Zone," the heavy weapons exclusion zones, and the economic sanctions against Serbia. The Contact Group, which includes Russia, as well as key European allies, has been the principal instrument for seeking a negotiated solution.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Maintaining that cooperation and avoiding a fundamental break with our NATO allies over the Bosnian issue is, of course, also essential to our broader national interests in European and international security. Virtually every European nation opposes lifting the arms embargo at this time. Thus U.S. unilateral action would be undertaken in the face of vehement opposition of most NATO allies. The resulting rift would undermine consensus underlying NATO's unified military command and deeply damage the alliance and the U.S. ability to lead it.

Additionally, hopes of a cooperative relationship with Russia on European security would be seriously jeopardized by actions that Russians of all political stripes would see as U.S. intervention not just against the Bosnian Serbs, but against the Belgrade Serbs as well. Russia would likely counter U.S. action by arming the Serbs, thereby raising the ante and reviving U.S.-Russian confrontation.

Finally, while it is fashionable in some circles these days to ridicule the UN and all its works, the U.S. has an important interest in nations not taking unilateral action in contravention of UN resolutions. Such actions not only undermines both international law and internationally sanctioned peacekeeping operations. It also undercuts the U.S. interest in international sanctions being observed. One of the main pressures on the Serbs is the UN embargo on their trade. If the U.S. unilaterally dropped the part of the UN sanctions it finds objectionable, the front line states -- Serbia and the Bosnian Serbs which they claim has cost them billions of dollars already.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Nor would the effects on sanctions regimes we support be confined to the Balkans. If the U.S. acted alone in this matter, other nations would claim the right to ignore UN embargo resolutions that we strongly favor such as those that pertain to Iraq and other pariah states.

In sum, Congressional action mandating unilateral U.S. action to lift the arms embargo on Bosnia would be a tragic and short-sighted mistake. It would mean the Americanization of the war, for unilateral action entails unilateral responsibility for the consequences of that action. We should be under no illusion that the U.S. could responsibly simply lift the arms embargo and walk away. Nor should we do the only thing that would really produce the Bosnian victory many lift proponents understandably think the only just and fair outcome -- commit U.S. ground forces to solve the problems of Bosnia.

What we must do instead, therefore, is continue to work within the international community to limit the scale of fighting, provide humanitarian relief, prevent a wider war, and seek to achieve an early agreed settlement to this tragic war. That settlement will not be ideal. But it will be far better than the consequences of expanded war, division from our allies, and likely U.S. combat involvement that unilateral lifting of the arms embargo would bring.

Summary of Conclusions

Bosnia: Contact Group Strategy

1. Deputies reviewed the results of the January 10 Contact Group meeting in Paris and prospects for renewed negotiations on a political settlement. They agreed that Deputies should review the territorial and constitutional issues that will come up in those negotiations, while recognizing the political sensitivity of the U.S. going beyond the role of facilitator and adopting a formal position on specific issues. (S)

2. Deputies requested two papers for a follow-on meeting during the week of January 16 (papers should be completed by COB January 17):

A) Review and analysis of the sides' positions on the key negotiating issues (Action: CIA).

B) Diplomatic strategy for the period from now until April 30, including possible options for promoting a positive outcome to the negotiations, as well as a recommended strategy in the event negotiations break down (Action: State). (S)

Croatia: Tudjman's decision to terminate UNPROFOR's mandate

3. Deputies considered options for responding to President Tudjman's decision to terminate UNPROFOR's mandate in Croatia when it expires on March 31, and the position that should be conveyed to the Croatian envoys following the meeting. They agreed that we should seek to reverse the Croatian decision, stress our concern about the risks of a new war in the Krajina and the dangers the decision posed for the safety of UNPROFOR troops, and make clear to Tudjman he will be on his own if he chooses the military option. (S)

4. Deputies agreed that, as an initial response, we would we would urge the Croatians to delay a public announcement of their decision (scheduled for the following day) pending further consultations. If this were not accepted by the Croatians, Deputies agreed that we would urge them to leave the door open to a less-than-complete UNPROFOR withdrawal, and to work with us on a new UNPROFOR mandate that would retain at least those elements that were performing important functions: (S)

-- monitoring the March 29, 1994 ceasefire and separation of forces agreement;

-- headquarters operations for continuing UNPROFOR missions in Croatia, Bosnia and the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia;

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- implementation of the Zagreb-4 economic confidence-building measures, including the opening of the Zagreb-Belgrade highway;

-- humanitarian convoys to Bihac and Banja Luka; and

-- maintaining a liaison office in Knin to facilitate negotiations.

5. As part of this proposal, Deputies agreed that we would offer to launch a reinvigorated diplomatic effort aimed at the political reintegration of the UN Protected Areas based on the revised Zagreb-4 plan, and to undertake a special diplomatic mission to key Western capitals to develop a coordinated Croatia strategy. (S)

6. Deputies decided that we should not threaten to withdraw the President's commitment to link Serbian sanctions relief to progress toward a Krajina settlement, or threaten other punitive steps, at this time. (S)

7. Deputies agreed to review the situation at their next meeting, including the Congressional dimension, in light of the Croatian response to the U.S. position set forth above. A paper laying out a diplomatic strategy, including an inventory of possible punitive steps in the U.S. bilateral relationship with Croatia, was subsequently tasked by the Interagency Working Group and should be completed by COB January 17 (Action: State). In addition, the Joint Staff should review the operational implications of a continued UNPROFOR presence in Croatia in support of Bosnia operations in the context of renewed fighting in the Krajina (Action: JCS). (S)

UNPROFOR Strengthening and UNPROFOR Funding

8. Deputies noted the tension between ongoing efforts to strengthen/expand UNPROFOR and the need to reduce our aggregate UN peacekeeping costs. They agreed to address this issue at their next meeting. In the meantime, diplomatic efforts on UNPROFOR strengthening should continue. (S)

Summary of Conclusions

Bosnia: Contact Group Strategy

1. Deputies reviewed the results of the ongoing Contact Group efforts in Bosnia and prospects for renewed negotiations on a political settlement. They agreed to defer discussion of the territorial and constitutional issues that will come up in those negotiations until next week. Deputies requested that, when the Contact Group is engaged, a daily one-page SITREP on Contact Group activities [redacted] E.O.13526 3.5(c) and reports from Ambassador Thomas be circulated for Deputies. (Action: State/CIA)

UNPROFOR Augmentation

2. Deputies considered options for moving forward with augmenting UNPROFOR and agreed to:

A) Continue efforts to strengthen UNPROFOR in Bosnia, including support for the additional 6500 troops requested by the UN.

B) Urge the United Nations to conduct a serious review of UNPROFOR operations aimed at economizing wherever possible.

C) Press for a redefinition of the UNPROFOR mandate in Croatia, along the lines proposed by the U.S., which could produce eventual offsets to planned plus-ups in Bosnia. (Action: USUN should begin to encourage the UN Secretariat to focus on a modified mandate)

3. Deputies briefly discussed UNPROFOR funding, noting that the Peacekeeping Deputies would meet on that subject and requested that a plan be prepared for dealing with Congress on funding UNPROFOR. (Action: State) Deputies also requested the preparation of talking points highlighting the value of UNPROFOR in Bosnia and the logic of strengthening it. (Action: JCS)

Croatia: Tudjman's decision to terminate UNPROFOR's mandate

4. Deputies discussed a strategy to respond to President Tudjman's decision to terminate UNPROFOR's mandate in Croatia when it expires on March 31. They endorsed the three-pronged approach outlined in the State Croatia strategy paper: seek to maintain the essential functions of UNPROFOR in Croatia; launch a negotiating process between Serbs and Croats on a political settlement; and prepare to respond to the worst-case scenario of renewed hostilities. State will flesh out its paper with results of next week's Zagreb-4 diplomatic efforts and a concept for securing Croatian agreement to a redefined UNPROFOR mandate. (Action: State)

Pol/Mil Aspects of Supporting UNPROFOR Withdrawal from Croatia

5. Deputies reviewed the ongoing planning at the UN and NATO regarding UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia. Deputies requested the following work for a follow-up meeting during the week of January 30:

A) An independent intelligence assessment of the threat to UNPROFOR forces withdrawing from Croatia. (Action: JCS/CIA) (Due within 48 hours)

~~SECRET~~

B) An options paper, built on the threat assessment, that includes options ranging from full NATO involvement similar to what is envisaged in Bosnia to more limited options involving air and logistical support. The paper should include the pros/cons of extending to Croatia the President's decision-in-principle to provide U.S. ground forces and an in-depth review of associated prepositioning issues. (Action: JCS, with input from State) (Due Monday, January 30).

Congressional and Public Affairs Strategy

6. Deputies discussed the upcoming Silajdzic visit, endorsed the approach outlined in the State paper and agreed to ensure he departs with a better understanding of the tepid support for unilateral lift, together with renewed assurances of our support so that Bosnia can confidently engage in negotiations.

7. Deputies decided to defer publishing Secretary Perry's op-ed until after the Silajdzic visit.

8. Deputies agreed to provide the unclassified version of LTG Clark's Congressional remarks on lift to Congress before the Silajdzic visit.

~~SECRET/NOFORN~~ DRAFT 31 January 1995

INFORMATION PAPER

Subject: Options for UNPROFOR Withdrawal from Croatia (U)

1. (U) Purpose. To provide Joint Staff analysis of USG options in response to an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia.

2. (U) Background

a. ~~(S)~~ GOC announced on 12 January that it will terminate the UNPROFOR mandate effective 31 March. However, Croatia has indicated that UNPROFOR has up to 90 days (after March 1st) to complete the withdrawal. The UN is preparing plans for a phased withdrawal under permissive conditions.

b. ~~(S)~~ NATO plans do not currently address, in any detail, a withdrawal operation from Croatia. SACEUR has directed his staff to commence planning for a sequential or simultaneous withdrawal operation from Croatia and Bosnia.

3. (U) Situation

a. ~~(S/NF)~~ Likely Threat. DIA assesses most likely threat to be indirect, limited and local actions by the Krajina Serbs designed to harass or prevent UNPROFOR egress.

b. ~~(S/NF)~~ US Intelligence Community analysis indicates that RSK forces pose the chief threat to UN personnel attempting to withdraw from Croatia. RSK troops and/or civilians would likely attempt to impede a UN pullout in order to use UNPROFOR as a deterrent against a HV attack. HV troops do not pose a direct threat to UNPROFOR; however, UN personnel could be caught between HV and RSK fighting as the two sides try to seize key positions being vacated by UNPROFOR. UNPROFOR commander General DeLaPresle views threat in same light as US intelligence community assessments.

c. ~~(S/NF)~~ Resistance is expected to have a local focus, but a wider campaign organized by the Knin authorities remains a possibility. RSK resistance may take the form of hostage taking, administrative restrictions to movement, crossing point closure, theft of UN property, and civilian demonstrations to include route blockages by women and children. More violent actions could include; harassing fires, destruction of bridges, blockades of UN facilities, mining, small unit attacks, shelling and sniping. However, direct attacks on UNPROFOR are improbable.

d. ~~(S/NF)~~ The Intelligence Community further assesses that UN troops in Croatia are not well-prepared to conduct a complex withdrawal operation in a hostile environment. UNPROFOR Croatia is made up of lightly equipped contingents from 18 different nations. The bulk of the troops are neither organized, trained nor equipped for the rigors of a potential withdrawal under pressure from hostile forces.

e. ~~(S)~~ Physical conditions. Rugged terrain and narrow winding roads combined with a dispersed, lightly armed UNPROFOR, make safe egress a difficult task.

f. ~~(S)~~ Many questions surrounding the expected "battlefield" require special attention to identify primary and alternate egress routes. A detailed analysis of the specific conditions a withdrawal force may face takes greater than a week to prepare. These details are now necessary to begin identifying the scope of support required to successfully extract UNPROFOR from Croatia.

4. ~~(S)~~ Withdrawal Options

Assumptions:

(1) UNPROFOR units will not attempt to fight their way out if directly confronted by Serb forces.

(2) Localized fighting between HV and RSK forces will occur regardless of UNPROFOR presence.

(3) Croatia will allow a withdrawal force access to ports/facilities.

(4) UN will request NATO assistance.

(5) Each UNPA will require different considerations for withdrawal operations.

Considerations:

(1) Decision on the mandate will not be finalized until late March. Any UNPROFOR movement (consolidation) up until the decision point could trigger a Krajina Serb response.

(2) The decision will likely determine the degree of resistance UNPROFOR will encounter.

(3) If opposition is encountered, given the significant Western European presence in Croatia, NATO will likely be asked to assist in a withdrawal. Delaying a decision until late March on Alliance participation precludes NATO's response in a timely and effective manner.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Issue: Should the withdrawal operation be a UN only operation or supported by NATO? In the best case (permissive environment), a UN run operation is preferred and possible. However, given the uncertainty surrounding a revised mandate, NATO must be prepared to react to a non-permissive situation.

Decision: NATO should plan and prepare to assist UNPROFOR's withdrawal from Croatia.

Issue: Should the US participate (ground troops) in a NATO withdrawal operation?

(1) The US is morally obligated to support and participate in this Alliance action. The US supported the UN resolutions that placed troops into Croatia. Many of the troops are from NATO nations, including several hundred US soldiers.

(2) Should the US stand aside, we may marginalize our influence and abdicate our leadership role within NATO. France may dictate that any assistance for UNPROFOR's withdrawal be carried out under WEU auspices. This calls into question the relevancy of NATO in a post Cold War world.

(3) Militarily, the US brings many unique capabilities to an operation that provide a distinct advantage over the adversary. A US presence increases the likelihood of operational success.

Decision: The US should commit to provide a full spectrum of support for a NATO operation, including ground troops.

Timing: Given the uncertainty surrounding a decision on a new mandate, UNPROFOR may require assistance as early as 1 April. If a decision is not made on the mandate by 31 March, the likelihood of an immediate Krajina Serb reaction to hold UNPROFOR in place increases.

(1) US needs to agree in NAC now that NATO/lead nation begin negotiations on the use of Croatian infrastructure for NATO operations.

(2) By mid-February, we must be willing to commit US support for a NATO operation. Concurrently, the NAC must approve the concept under which NATO would support an UNPROFOR withdrawal.

(3) NATO will require approximately six weeks to identify, assemble, train, rehearse, and deploy a force.

DRAFT

I. Full NATO Support, including ground troops.

PROs:

- Provides credible and capable combined arms combat force.
- RSK unlikely to directly challenge NATO force.
- Provides sufficient forces and mature command structure to control operations over wide area.
- Positions force for follow-on withdrawal from Bosnia if required.

CONs:

- Could place NATO in a combatant role.
- High cost option, funding responsibilities unclear.
- May cause reaction against UNPROFOR troops in B-H by the Bosnian Serbs to demonstrate Serb solidarity.
- Because of regional instability and mutually exclusive objectives of the warring parties, public appeals likely for NATO to remain in theater to resolve conflict.
- Cumbersome NAC process may not support timely decisions needed to effectively execute UNPROFOR withdrawal operation.
- Could be criticized as "overkill" based on assumed low threat and may increase tensions and the threat to UNPROFOR.

II. NATO Off-Shore Reaction Force/Air Support. NATO could offer to provide close air support (CAS), a ready reaction force positioned either off-shore (MEU/MEB) or in a neighboring country (outside FY) (mechanized brigade w/combat aviation), and fixed amounts of communications, logistics, and transport.

PROs:

- Reduces NATO commitment and cost.
- NATO ground troops not interpositioned or maneuvering between combatants.
- Lower profile force could elicit less friction in the UNPAs.
- Provides effective combined arms concentrated response to meet localized limited threats.

CONs:

- Commits force incrementally.
- Does not commit sufficient force to ensure success.
- Higher UNPROFOR casualties possible.
- Without dominant NATO force presence, command and control arrangements with UN uncertain.
- Responses to likely threats require sequential reaction.

DRAFT

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

III. UNPROFOR Autonomous. The UN would run its own withdrawal, contracting for required ground, air, and sea transport. UN negotiates withdrawal on case by case basis. This option would be more credible if taken in conjunction with implementation of a revised UNPROFOR mandate in Croatia. This option can then be viewed as "tailoring" UNPROFOR to the new mandate.

PROs:

- Relies on negotiations that decrease tensions vice use of force that increases tensions.
- Reduces cost/risks to US/NATO.
- Possible continued UN presence as a result of blockage. If peaceful, could delay fighting and increase opportunities for a negotiated settlement.

CONs:

- If threat is misjudged, as other than benign environment, UNPROFOR will not have capability to egress from the UNPAs and could result in significant casualties.
- If threat increases, NATO likely to be called for immediate assistance. Quick NATO reaction may rely heavily on US forces.
- UN is slow to sign contracts.
- Could encourage disruptive unilateral national support not coordinated with UNPROFOR withdrawal plan.

5. ~~(S)~~ Prepositioning. Due to the volatility of the situation, predicting how much reaction time will be available to assemble and deploy a force is difficult. Prepositioning gives the force a hedge against this uncertainty. Additionally, prepositioning signals our intent to oversee a safe withdrawal and may deter preemptive actions designed to hamper UNPROFOR's withdrawal. Because the likely threat in Croatia can be met with a tailored rapid reaction force, a decision for prepositioning should be made far enough in advance to ensure force readiness by 31 March.

6. ~~(S)~~ Revamped Mandate. If USG diplomatic efforts to persuade Croatia to accept a modified mandate are successful, this may reduce tensions along the lines of confrontation. If tensions are reduced on both sides, force requirements may be similarly reduced to meet the likely threat.

7. ~~(S)~~ Recommended Course of Action. There are a number of integrated steps that should be taken in preparation for a withdrawal from Croatia. First, work for a new UN mandate in Croatia designed to ease tension over drawdown of UN forces. To allay Krajina Serb concerns, a UN presence must be maintained at key positions throughout the UNPAs. Second, because a withdrawal (partial or complete) can be expected, we must decide now to provide and identify forces based on a detailed threat analysis (the NAC must also decide on level of NATO participation). Based on the current threat assessments, option II presents the best point of departure for meeting expected mission requirements. Planning should still continue for wider operations as envisioned under OPLAN 40104. Third, go forward with prepositioning support requirements for this specific mission. Fourth, position the reaction force so that military action can commence by late March. This force can also serve as a theater reserve should a full NATO package be required.

DRAFT

INFORMATION PAPER

Subject: The Case for Prepositioning (U)

1. (U) Purpose. To explain the importance of prepositioning in support of either UNPROFOR withdrawal or peace plan implementation.

2. (U) Background.

a. ~~(C)~~ There is general consensus in the intelligence community, in theater (EUCOM, AFSOUTH), and with recent visitors to the former Yugoslavia (DUSD(P) Slocombe and party) that negotiations have stalled and renewed warfare in Bosnia (and Croatia) this Spring is very likely. This is not to detract from the importance of continuing to pursue negotiations as the only means of preventing a resumption of fighting, but reflects the realities of the situation. Since the same prepositioning is required for either peace plan implementation or withdrawal support, NATO military authorities desire to take prudent military measures to support either eventuality.

b. ~~(C)~~ The following confluence of factors supports the need to be ready to conduct an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia in April 1995: the expiration of the UNPROFOR mandate in Croatia (31 March), the expiration of the four month cessation of hostilities agreement (30 April), the Bosnian government push to give the Bosnian Serbs a 2 month deadline to start negotiations or return to open warfare, the next sanctions renewal review (late April), and the return of good weather when Spring arrives

c. ~~(C)~~ SACEUR has established the following timeline to support an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia:

4 weeks to assemble, deploy, and make the C3 package operational

2 weeks to deploy and establish logistics/movement control groups. (Reserve force deployed at the same time.)

2-4 weeks to deploy the main force

Thus the minimum time required to be ready to start the actual UNPROFOR withdrawal operation is 8 weeks,. This means if we want NATO to be ready to commence supporting an UNPROFOR withdrawal on 1 April, the decision to commence deployment of the C3 package needs to be made by 1 February. In addition, the SACEUR timeline assumes that decisions on national force contributions are made at the same time as authorization to commence deployment of the C3 package. This allows the logistics and movement teams and reserve force to assemble and prepare for deployment while the C3 package is being deployed. The main force will be prepared, assembled, and trained during this same period.

4. (U) Details.

a. (~~C~~) The C3 package, consisting of about 500 personnel and equipment (including about 250 soldiers from the US Seventh Signal Brigade in Germany, with UK and NATO support) provides a full, secure military communications system with ties to theater tactical systems, NATO systems, national military systems, commercial phone systems, and the UNPROFOR system. Personnel would deploy to Mons, Belgium, 3 sites in Germany, 3 sites in Italy, and 2 sites in Croatia (Zagreb and Split). No personnel would be deployed to Bosnia or the Krajina as part of the initial C3 package. The exact number of C3 nodes to be activated during prepositioning, the number of soldiers, and their nationalities are still being refined.

b. (~~C~~) Included in the four week period to establish the C3 package is the time to prepare personnel and equipment for movement, time to negotiate appropriate contracts for the use of civilian communications lines and satellite frequencies and to purchase off-the-shelf communications equipment in addition to the military system. EO 13526 1.4a EO 13526 1.4a 1.4(a) A decision not to preposition the C3 package would delay the start of the operation from 2 to 4 weeks.

c. (~~C~~) The initial cost of deploying this C3 package is $2.2 million. Once deployed and operational, the manpower can be reduced by about half, and it will cost $500,000 per month to maintain operational. There is currently $14 million in the NATO peacekeeping fund. Although funding decisions have still not been agreed at NATO or between NATO and the UN, it is anticipated no additional funding would be required at this time.

d. (~~C~~) The CINCSOUTH OPLAN 40104 C3 package supplements and interfaces with that already established for DENY FLIGHT and SHARP GUARD, and provides the dedicated communications circuits necessary to support an UNPROFOR withdrawal from both Bosnia and Croatia. The existing communications systems are not adequate for a significant ground operation.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

5. (~~C~~) Discussion. The issues for consideration are: (a) the probability of UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia this Spring, and (b) the balance between the political signals this deployment sends and the military preparations needed to carry out a successful operation.

a. (~~C~~) There is a pessimistic consensus that the cessation of hostilities is likely to collapse and war will return to Bosnia this Spring.

b. (~~C~~) Tudjman is serious about not renewing the UNPROFOR mandate. UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia will probably lead to Croat-Krajina Serb fighting, which is likely to spill over into Bosnia.

c. (~~C~~) Prepositioning the C3 package is a prudent military action to prepare for a timely UNPROFOR withdrawal operation. Should a peace agreement be reached, NATO is better prepared for peace plan implementation. If the status quo continues, the C3 package is small enough that it can be repositioned and the experience factored into future planning. There is some military concern about the commitment of manpower and equipment to an operation that does not have a planned start date (D-Day), but the high probability that this operation will occur and the need to be ready outweighs this concern.

d. (~~C~~) Prepositioning will send several signals: NATO is serious about taking meaningful action, NATO supports UNPROFOR, and that UNPROFOR is serious about leaving if war breaks out. Careful control of these signals is required to ensure the proper message is sent. These signals could prompt the warring parties to get serious about coming to a negotiated settlement, or precipitate action by one or both sides.

6. (~~C~~) Recommendation. Approve the concept of prepositioning so that SACEUR is assured of the political support of the US government before he pushes the issue at NATO.

TALKING PAPER

Subject: Reinforcing UNPROFOR

1. Purpose. To provide talking points on the need to reinforce UNPROFOR.

2. Talking Points

- UNPROFOR continues to perform a valuable mission in Bosnia, including facilitating the delivery of humanitarian aid and establishing the conditions of peace and security required for the negotiation of an overall settlement of the Yugoslav crisis.

- UNPROFOR has requested 6,500 additional troops and equipment to support the current cessation of hostilities agreement, to improve its capability to protect itself,and to respond to acts by the warring parties against UNPROFOR. These additional troops and equipment would provide operational flexibility, better ensure the delivery of humanitarian aid, and allow the use of more robust measures to keep ground and air aid corridors open.

- On several occasions, most recently in Bihac, UNPROFOR could have done a better job if it had more manpower and equipment resources, including helicopters, at its disposal.

- The NATO Chiefs of Defense met with UN, Russia, and other interested nations at The Hague, Netherlands, in December to consider how UNPROFOR could be made more effective. Two initiatives resulted from this meeting:

-the formulation of concepts for maintaining open the air and land routes into Sarajevo and the enclaves, and

-the decision to offer UNPROFOR additional manpower and equipment to better accomplish its mission.

- As a result of this initiative fourteen countries have offered almost 6,000 troops and significant additional equipment.

- We consider it essential to support this effort and have offered to the UN helicopters, armored personnel carriers, radars, radios, night vision goggles, and assorted engineer vehicles on a lease or sale basis.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- The success of the cessation of hostilities agreement would be a significant achievement on the road to a peaceful settlement in the former Yugoslavia. The UN deserves the help of the entire international community to take advantage of this cessation of hostilities to better prepare for whatever comes next.

- The UN is still evaluating all the offers it has received. We expect the UN to inform us shortly of their desires. At that time we will negotiate financial arrangements for sale or lease of the equipment offered by the U.S. government.

BOSNIA - THE CONTACT GROUP LEAVES SARAJEVO EMPTY-HANDED

Charlie Thomas told us this morning that the CG reps who were still in Sarajevo--the Brit, the French and himself--spoke with Karadzic by phone from UNPROFOR headquarters. Karadzic said that he had our London "acceptance" formulation (attached) passed to them by the Carter Center. Karadzic said there is no possibility that the Serbs will accept it. He countered with a weaker formulation or, alternatively, with an offer of ten days of silence plus a secret memorandum with the CG. Thomas declined, and the group left Sarajevo late today.

Over the last forty-eight hours, the tensions inside the CG have become more severe. Despite the Serb ceasefire violation and the lack of response on the London "acceptance" formulation, the British and the French instructed their reps to go up to Pale nonetheless. We told Thomas not to go with them. London and Paris subsequently backed off.

German Contact Group rep Michael Steiner, who left Sarajevo on Wednesday, told us that FM Kinkel strongly objected to the compromise language worked out in London on January 25 at the Quad Political Directors and had laid down the law that under no circumstances should Germany participate in presenting it to Sarajevo. Steiner said he had to dissuade his minister from calling Secretary Christopher, arguing that the language would never reach Sarajevo anyway because the Serbs would reject it.

Steiner told us that the efforts in the last 48 hours to compromise with Pale have caused "great damage" to the Contact Group process both tactically and strategically by signaling to Karadzic its "desperation." Steiner believes a renewed effort should be made with Belgrade to seek its recognition of Bosnia combined with a cut-off of telecommunications in Serb controlled Bosnia in return for further sanctions relief to Milosevic. Steiner said he had talked with Siladzic about this approach, and that the Bosnian PM was amenable to the idea of sanctions relief for Belgrade. Steiner also said that Kozyrev in his meeting with Kinkel was also interested in a renewed push with Milosevic for cross recognition. (Izetbegovic raised the idea with Thomas.)

The embassy reports that the firing in Sarajevo was more extensive than reported by UNPROFOR. According to the Charge and Thomas, there were three separate episodes, each of which began with RPGs fired from Bosnian Serb territory into downtown Sarajevo. In the third incident, Bosnian forces returned fire. UNPROFOR reports twelve RPG explosions. Thomas lost count after fourteen in the second round. The DS detachment believes there was also some mortar fire. Welcome to Sarajevo, General Smith. (EUR:RFrasure)

"The Contact Group has presented to the RS its proposal on the continuation of the peace process. We have explained fully to the Contact Group our views on this subject. Having done so, we are now ready to proceed as proposed by the Contact Group."

This statement would have been made by Karadzic in response to a CG announcement that negotiations would begin in early February and "will be on the basis of acceptance of the peace plan of the Contact Group as a starting point."

MEMORANDUM FOR SAMUEL BERGER

THROUGH: ALEXANDER VERSHBOW AV

FROM: DON KERRICK (K)

SUBJECT: January 25 Deputies Meeting on Bosnia.

Agenda

Lengthy agenda for the one hour allotted. Suggest you try to allot 15 minutes per major topic. Agenda at Tab A. Talbott, Deutch and Owens are out of town. Expect to see Tarnoff, Nye and Clark stand-in.

I. Diplomatic Strategy

State should provide the current state of play on Contact Group efforts to get agreement on a formulation regarding acceptance. Charlie Thomas has been shuttling between Sarajevo and Pale for the past several days attempting to get agreement on language. Bosnian Serbs want to respond in writing to Contact Group-proposed language in a manner that the Bosnian Government says refutes acceptance. State is seeking Deputies' blessing to allow the process to continue. EO 13526 1.4c EO 13526 1.4c The State mid-term strategy paper is at Tab C, and focuses on strategy in the event we succeed in restarting negotiations (State is reluctant to put "worst-case" strategies on paper at this stage). The Izetbegovic reply to Secretary Christopher is at Tab D. For discussion:

-- What is the likelihood that the parties will agree to a formula for starting negotiations?

-- What is our strategy for getting an agreement to restart?

-- If we get negotiations restarted, what is our strategy for achieving early progress?

-- If we are unable to get negotiations restarted, what should be our strategy in the run-up to April 30?

-- At what point do we break away from this track, prepare for UNPROFOR withdrawal, and pursue passage of multilateral lift?

II. UNPROFOR Augmentation

Ask JCS to provide a brief recap on the state of play. An NSC drafted background paper that includes interagency comments was circulated and is attached at Tab E. Following discussion, the IWG seeks Deputies' agreement to the following:

-- USG continued commitment to beefing up UNPROFOR.

-- Support UN request for additional 6500 troops in Bosnia.

-- Do not link efforts to strengthen UNPROFOR in Bosnia to drawdown of UNPROFOR in Croatia. Maintain support for limited mandate in Croatia for UNPROFOR. Ask the UN to review force disposition of UNPROFOR in the former Yugoslavia to ensure optimal employment and capture any savings. (Funding issue to be discussed at Thursday DC on Peacekeeping.)

-- How do we proceed on the Hill?

III. Croatia Strategy

Status of Zagreb-4 Diplomacy: State is seeking Deputies' agreement to proceed along the lines outlined in their paper at Tab F. Ask State to briefly recap the strategy and prospects. Peter Galbraith previewed the Z-4 plan with the Knin Serbs, and found them less rejectionist than in the past (suggesting real apprehension over UNPROFOR's departure). The Croatian Government continues to argue that the plan gives the Serbs much more autonomy than they deserve, but are not likely to reject the plan out of hand. For discussion:

-- Any progress on getting Tudjman to reconsider his decision on UNPROFOR since the Slocombe meeting with Tudjman?

-- Will the Z-4 plan still be presented next week as planned?

-- What is the strategy for next 30 days to ensure the start of political talks and tangible progress?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Political/Military Aspects of Supporting UNPROFOR Withdrawal from Croatia: Deputies need to have a focused discussion and agree on concrete steps for dealing with withdrawal of UNPROFOR from Croatia. The JCS/State paper is at Tab G. Ask State and JCS to lead a discussion on the political and military aspects of supporting withdrawal.

UNPROFOR has a basic plan for permissive withdrawal. Krajina Serbs have indicated there could be resistance to UNPROFOR withdrawal as it could leave the Krajina naked to attack from the Croatians. Informal CIA estimates say there is a 60-75% chance that there will be localized resistance.

During January 20 UN/NATO meeting in New York, the UN asked NATO to plan to assist in Croatia. NATO planning has focused on withdrawal from Bosnia. January 25 NAC likely to ask military authorities to plan for Croatia and to revisit decision not to preposition equipment in Croatia.

Circumstances in Croatia are similar, but different, to those in Bosnia. Seven NATO countries have forces on the ground, including the U.S. MASH unit in Zagreb, but only those in the Krajina should be subject to resistance (Belgium, Denmark and Canada have forces there). Informal reports from NATO indicate Secretary General Claes favors prepositioning of NATO forces, particularly communicators, in Croatia now to facilitate withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia. He may push that idea in near term. Prepositioning now would be expensive and could signal that withdrawal is inevitable. The IWG recommends slowing such efforts at NATO, although JCS will endorse prepositioning on grounds of military need. There appears to be interagency agreement building around following points:

- NATO will likely be pressed to assume responsibility for assisting withdrawal from Croatia. (UN may be hoping NATO will do it and pay for it.)

- Degree of NATO support required dependent on threat. Most likely resistance will be localized hostage scenarios.

- USG should support NATO contingency planning for supporting UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia. Emphasis should be on air and logistics support unless and until threat demonstrates need for NATO ground forces.

- USG should encourage the UN to withdraw itself from Croatia as it has from many other places, i.e. Cambodia, without NATO assistance unless the threat is agreed to be substantial.

(1) UN [now] plan to withdraw w/o NATO preclear

(2) NATO plan on scenarios w/o committing

(3) ~~SECRET~~ full release on ground forces

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- o Extension to Croatia of President's decision in principle for ground forces in Bosnia should be held in abeyance pending review of planning.

- o Efforts to preposition equipment should be slowed to allow negotiations to progress, avoid creating impression we regard withdrawal as inevitable.

IV. Congressional and Public Affairs Strategy

Deputies need to discuss steps on Hill in view of next week's Silajdzic visit. State strategy paper is at Tab H, suggests our goal should be to show him support for lift is declining and to win his renewed cooperation with Contact Group efforts. The IWG recommends that the Deputies agree to continue our approach of targeting key members on unilateral lift (Admiral Crowe will meet with these members next week) and to take a measured approach to the Silajdzic visit so that it does not appear the Administration is running scared. Appropriate messages will be delivered to Silajdzic in meetings at State and at the NSC. We will continue with swat team briefings after the Silajdzic visit.

The Principals deferred a decision on publishing the Bill Perry op-ed until this week. The IWG (minus OSD) recommends publishing after the Silajdzic visit. Deputies should discuss and make appropriate decision. For discussion:

-- What is your sense of how we stand on the Hill regarding Bosnia?

-- How aggressive do we want to be before the Silajdzic visit?

-- What should be our message to Silajdzic?

-- Do we publish the Bill Perry op-ed before the visit, or should we wait until after we can better gauge Hill response?

-- Where do we stand on declassifying Wes Clark's Hill statement? (Wes promised a draft by Wednesday morning.)

Bosnia - If We Move Into a Negotiation

With an unstable winter cessation of hostilities more or less in place, we are at a fundamental crossroads on Bosnia. One path leads to a very difficult negotiation under Contact Group auspices that hopefully will result in a hopefully sustainable conclusion to the war. The second path leads--perhaps through a failed negotiation--through unravelling of the ceasefire with a military explosion in late spring, possibly accompanied by renewed warfare in Croatia. This paper examines the first possibility and provides a catalog of some of the issues that must be dealt with.

The Contact Group Plan

The Contact Group peace plan provides the basis for a viable, reasonable and realistic solution. But it will be a very difficult negotiation. Four elements of the Plan must be borne in mind:

(1) The territorial proposal of the Group, with its 51/49 parameter, while being open to adjustment by mutual agreement between the parties, is the central feature in the plan.

(3) Regarding constitutional arrangements, balanced treatment of the Bosniac-Croat and Bosnian Serb entities will be essential, including the establishment of parallel special relationships with neighboring countries, provided this is consistent with the integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the maintenance of Bosnia as a single state within its internationally recognized borders.

(3) Following agreement on constitutional arrangements and possible territorial adjustments, there will be withdrawal of forces and governmental authorities to the lines agreed. The Contact Group would look to the United Nations to make arrangements to ensure the separation of forces and to provide effective monitoring of these lines.

(4) The settlement should provide for refugees and displaced persons to have the possibility to return freely to their homes of origin.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

The Problem of the Map

The map calls for a 51/49 division of Bosnia. The Serbs now hold about 72 percent of the land. Mladic says that they should keep at least 62-64 percent. The Carter people believe that Karadzic would settle for something approaching 51/49 if the quality of what they get is substantially improved, i.e. more towns and industry, fewer mountains, more defensible boundaries. In that regard, Karadzic hinted at "50/50" when he saw Redman. The Bosnians of course insist on 51/49 with small land swaps that don't modify that overall ratio, although privately Bosnian President Izetbegovic believes that the Muslim-Croat federation should control at least 58 percent of Bosnia, according to various sources.

Four Territorial Issues

Bargaining is likely to center on the following aspects:

The Posavina Corridor. The Contact Group map establishes a corridor that largely consists of the road that the Serbs are now using to transport supplies between eastern and western Bosnia plus a small area on either side of it. The corridor is at its narrowest at the town of Brcko and is modeled there after a Serb proposal offered during last year's negotiations on the British war ship Invincible. According to the Contact Group plan, the UN is to ensure both the Serbs' right to use the corridor and the Federation's right to cross over it into Brcko.

-- The Bosnian Serbs want a wider, more defensible corridor and do not want the UN's help in ensuring their control of it. They view the corridor as vital to their ability to become a coherent state, and Serbia considers it essential for the formation of a greater Serbia. Their vision of a wider corridor would include allowing Brcko--a traditionally Muslim-majority city--to remain in Serb hands. Earlier Serb proposals for a Posavina corridor have also included land swaps involving Croatian territory near Brcko--specifically, a swath north of Brcko and the Sava River. The Serbs proposed this--in exchange for granting territory to Croatia east of Dubrovnik--in late 1993/early 1994. Zagreb rejected giving up any of its territory.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- The Bosnian Government retains hope that Bosnia can remain a united republic and does not want to do anything to foster the Serbs' ability to become self-sufficient. A narrow corridor has a technical quality to it. Moreover, the corridor can be widened only by giving the Serbs control of traditionally ethnic Croat and Muslim land.

The Enclaves. This issue is perhaps the most sensitive one for the Muslims, since it deals directly with the war's most odious aspect--ethnic cleansing.

-- The Bosnian Serbs ethnically cleansed large traditionally Muslim sections of eastern Bosnia and are anxious to complete the job by taking control of the remaining Muslim enclaves of Zepa, Srebrenica, and Gorazde. Moreover, the Contact Group plan, which gives the Muslims substantially more territory around the enclaves and connects them to the main body of Muslim territory, effectively splits Serb holdings in eastern Bosnia into two parts. According to various sources, the Serbs want the Muslims to give them the enclaves in exchange for territory in the Sarajevo District. According to recent clandestine reporting, Krajisnik also wants Serb control of the Bihac enclave. But Bihac has a large Muslim population that a Serb entity may not want. At the very least, the Serbs insist on retaining territory they now control south and west of the Una River, contrary to the Contact Group map which awards the Bosnian Government considerable territory in western Bosnia.

-- Retaining the enclaves and restoring government control of significant areas of ethnically cleansed land in eastern and western Bosnia is a primary goal of the Bosnian Government. Most earlier Bosnian Government proposals envisioned bulking up their territory around the enclaves, to include territory around the city of Visegrad. Bosnian President Izetbegovic continues to reject Serb offers to swap an area around Sarajevo for the enclaves and has said that, at most, he would exchange two or three isolated villages under Muslim control for villages held by the Serbs.

Sarajevo District. The Contact Group decided that the Federation should receive two-thirds of Sarajevo District and the Serbs one-third, but it gave the warring parties two years to negotiate the specific division of the district, during which time the UN would administer the territory.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- The Bosnian Serbs want a settlement on Sarajevo District to be included in the first round of talks and are willing to trade some territory northwest of the city that they currently control for the Muslims' eastern enclaves, according to press reports. Earlier this month, however, Karadzic reiterated the Serbs' demand to hold on to parts of the city itself. There are substantial differences within the Serb side in that Western Bosnian Serbs have little interest in Sarajevo while some key leaders have land holdings or interests in the suburbs.

-- The Bosnian Government is willing to postpone talks on the precise division of Sarajevo District, hoping to develop de facto control of the area during the two-year period of UN control. The Government reportedly is uninterested in trading the enclaves for control of the city because it believes it can break the Serbs' siege of Sarajevo within four months. But in a genuine negotiation, the Muslims are likely to consider uncontested control of Sarajevo in a defensible geographical context as their top priority.

Access to the Sea. Under the Contact Group plan, the Federation receives control of Bosnia's small coastline. The issue of access to the sea for the Serbs is left to a future round of negotiations, presumably between the Bosnian Serbs and Croatia.

-- The Bosnian Serbs believe that access to the sea is necessary to ensure the future independence of their territory both from the rest of Bosnia and probably from Belgrade, as well. The Serbs assume that they would have to negotiate with Zagreb on this issue and may try to arrange a deal that would include a return to Croatia of a small portion of land currently held by the Krajina Serbs.

-- Zagreb would give the Bosnian Serbs access to the sea through Croatia if the price were right. Zagreb has expressed willingness in the past to consider giving the Serbs access at the Prevlaka Peninsula. Croatia almost certainly would ask to be given control of a swath of Bosnia behind Dubrovnik that the Contact Group plan gives to the Bosnian Serbs. This would help get Dubrovnik out of artillery range.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Constitutional Issues

One can envisage a number of political outcomes to the Bosnian drama, some of which are not consistent with the CG plan.

A fully centralized state with minor local functions assigned to a number of communes whose boundaries would be determined on other than ethnic lines. This would be the Muslim preference.

A loose union between the Bosniac-Croat Federation and the so-called Republika Srpska. It would continue the international legal personality of Bosnia and Herzegovina, i.e., as a member of the UN and other international organizations. All other governmental functions would be exercised by the Federation and the Republika Srpska. (A variation could be the Taiwan model in which only the Bosnia state in Sarajevo is fully recognized by the international community.)

A loose union is the solution proposed by the Contact Group. The Serbs insist on the right to establish a confederation with Serbia under these arrangements, while the Bosniacs foresee the possibility of allowing "natural links" to Serbia but short of confederation. The EU would support a confederation but has agreed with the US to the following compromise language: "Balanced treatment of the Federation and Republika Srpska will be essential, including the establishment of parallel special relationships with neighboring countries provided this is consistent with the integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina."

Another contentious issue is whether the Serbs would have the right to merge with Serbia or the Krajina. Early drafts of possible constitutional arrangements have allowed this right, possibly through a referendum after two or three years--but only with the agreement of the GOBH.

The Serbs argue for a totally sovereign Serbian state with the right to a flag at the United Nations and the right to Anschluss. They know they won't get this and also understand that there is virtually no international support for this position. Karadzic may be less interested in a Greater Serbia at the moment, given his problems with Milosevic.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

A loose Federation of Three ethnically determined states with significant or possibly even total independence in foreign relations and defense fields and basically merely cooperative arrangements in most economic areas.

Lurking in the background is the threat that the Croats and Serbs would get together to agree on a rump Muslim state and the right of the Croats to join Croatia, with the Serbs becoming an integral or federal part of Yugoslavia. This is obviously the least satisfactory outcome from our standpoint and is a formula for future conflict.

HANDLING THE ISSUES

The manner is which these issues is dealt with could be crucial.

One can argue that it is better to talk about the map first. This could evolve into a complicated real estate discussion. Doing the map first assumes that geographic clarity makes it easier to approach the tough constitutional point.

An alternative strategy would be to turn at once to the constitutional issue. In this approach, we might assume that the Milosevic/Karadzic split is genuine and Karadzic has no interest in near term confederation with a Greater Serbia ruled by his bitter enemy. If so, it's just possible that would preserve a Bosnia state as an international entity, a key Sarajevo goal. Agreement in this area could then make a subsequent negotiation on land swaps go perhaps more easily.

Some would argue that we should get both sides to the table and then let them work it out. That of course will not succeed. We will need a strong broadly-based team to support and guide these talks.

All of this assumes that the talks will be under Contact Group auspices, i.e. other putative mediators will remain on the sidelines. We would expect that the process would begin with low key shuttling by the Contact Group reps and could lead to a more formal conference in due course.

PRESIDENT OF THE PRESIDENCY

H.E. Mr. Warren Christopher
U.S. Secretary of State
Washington D.C.

Dear Mr. Secretary of State,

Thank You for Your letter of 21st January 1995.

We retain our concerns that the continuation of negotiations, before the acceptance of the Plan, could be understood by the Serbs side as the sign of Your readiness for new concessions. If that would be the case; the negotiations would really be counterproductive.

Since Your assessment is obviously different, we do not oppose the continuation of the efforts in order to seek the political solution to the conflict, if the conditions You have stated were fully respected.

We understood from Your letter that those conditions are as follows:

1. That the Serbs fully abide by the agreement on cessation of hostilities (withdrawal over the border in the Bihać region, medical evacuation of the wounded - MEDIVAC and opening of the "blue routes"),

2. That the starting point for the talks would be the acceptance of the Contact Group Plan, including the map on the internal delineation,

3. That the assumption of the future constitutional arrangements is the preserving of the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina within its internationally recognized borders.

Since the Serbs side is holding two thirds of the territories under its occupation and has the interest for postponing the solution, we think this exploratory job should be completed within 60 days and that Serbs should be notified of this.

If this term expires without producing results, the international community should implement measures from the Contact Group Communiqué of 30th July 1994.

I agree that the Prime Minister Silajdžić's visit is a good opportunity to discuss in details both these issues, as well as the issues of the implementation of the Federation.

Please, Mr. Secretary of State, accept the expressions of my highests respects.

CROATIA STRATEGY

The brinksmanship of Zagreb's announcement ending UNPROFOR's mission could break the logjam that has kept a Serbo-Croat settlement out of reach, but it could also trigger hostilities with human and diplomatic casualties. The U.S. approach to Croatia must be three-pronged: maintain the essential functions of UNPROFOR in Croatia; launch a negotiating process between Serbs and Croats on a political settlement; and prepare to respond to renewed hostilities. In public, we should not undercut Croatia. But as we receive strategic warning of renewed hostilities, we must make clear to Tudjman that key elements of our bilateral relationship will be at risk.

U.S. must show support for Croatian goals . . .

In the ten weeks before UNPROFOR's current mandate expires, the U.S. will have to strike a balance, supporting Zagreb's ends while opposing its most dangerous means. There can be no question that we endorse restoration of Croatian sovereignty over the Serb-held areas, or that we recognize Croatia's role as a bulwark against Serb aggression. The U.S. has a strategic interest in backing Croatia as long as Zagreb continues to support the Federation, i.e. to keep the Bosnian Croats from cutting a deal with the Serbs to carve up Bosnia. In addition, strong bilateral cooperation will help keep Zagreb on the path of Western political and economic reform.

We must nevertheless minimize the dangers in Tudjman's high-risk strategy for pressuring the Serbs. His approach makes a renewed conflaguration more likely, particularly if UNPROFOR's withdrawal leaves the separation zone between the Croat and Serb armies unsupervised. While Tudjman's intention to avoid war seems genuine, he seems more prepared to contemplate it than ever before. If fighting breaks out, he claims that: (1) Croatia can make significant military gains against the Krajina Serbs; (2) Serbia proper will stay out (at least if Croatia spares Sector East). Both propositions are doubtful, and they cancel each other out: the more territory Croatia regains, the less likely Serbia is to sit idly by.

Whether started deliberately or accidentally, renewed Serbo-Croat warfare would have many casualties. First, the Bosnia cease-fire would unravel. Bosnian Serbs would probably attack Croatian Army forces in Bosnia (who are prepositioned to attack the Krajina Serb capital from the east). In addition,

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
2014-0311-M (1.01)
2/27/2017 KBH

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

GOBH forces would be tempted to strike when Krajina Serbs are tied down in Croatia and unable to assist their Bosnian brethern as they did in Bihac. Second, an attack on Serbs in Croatia would rally Serb nationalists, pressuring Milosevic to re-open the border with Bosnia to resupply the Krajina Serbs. Third, substantial human casualties would result, particularly among civilians in Croatian towns, which have usually been subject to Krajina Serb shelling when hostilities erupt. Fourth, the conflict would undermine Bosnian relief efforts, which are staged from Croatia to a large extent.

UNPROFOR Negotiations

In stressing that his decision to expel UNPROFOR is irrevocable, Tudjman has made it almost inevitalbe that UNPROFOR as we know it has no future after March. But he has left the door open to preserving the elements that the U.S. has defined as essential. These are: cease-fire monitoring in Croatia; liaison with Knin; confidence-building measures implementation; support for Bosnia operations; force headquarters. They do not require the substantial troop presence throughout the UNPAs that UNPROFOR now maintains.

Zagreb has indicated it would accept continued UNPROFOR operations on Croatia soil in support of Bosnia, as well as an international presence to pursue the Croatia-related tasks. These tasks could be fulfilled by a UN mission with a different name. It would report to the UNSYG through Akashi in order to remain integrated with UNPROFOR, similar to the organization of the various UN peacekeeping operations in the Middle East.

The mission's top priority would be monitoring the separation zones established by the March '94 cease-fire. Otherwise, the vacuum left by UNPROFOR's withdrawal would draw Serb and Croat forces into clashes. This return to the pre-cease-fire situation is more dangerous now because both sides are spoiling for a fight; isoloated incidents would quickly escalate into full-scale confrontation. International monitors could act as a brake by providing an early-warning system. Since they would not be deployed to deter a military offensive -- neither is UNPROFOR at present -- they could be unarmed. Similarly, liaison with Knin and implementation of confidence-building measures, except for de-mining, are not tasks requiring military skills.

UNSC negotiations on a new mandate are unlikely to begin until the March 31 expiration approaches. In developing a new mandate for the UN presence in Croatia, Zagreb will wait to show flexibility in order to maintain maximum pressure on the Serbs. At the appropriate time, the U.S. should mediate between the Croats on the one hand and the UNSYG's representatives and key UNSC members on the other. No other country is positioned to do so. To prepare, we should use the intervening weeks to explore the nuts and bolts of desired UN activity in Croatia with the responsible UN officials, especially incoming force commander Smith.

Update on Launching Negotiations via the Z-4

The Z-4 Mediators (the Zagreb Ambassadors of the U.S., Russia, EU, and UN) have now finalized all provisions of their constitutional plan and map for a Croatia settlement. Their proposal to grant autonomy to ethnic Serb areas while restoring Croatian sovereignty throughout its territory is a framework for accomplishing the urgent task of bringing the parties to the negotiating table. The Z-4 are scheduled to present the plan in Zagreb and Knin on January 30 and in Belgrade on January 31. They will meet subsequently with the parties to explain the provisions and present the map, and then to organize negotiations.

We should emphasize that negotiations on a settlement must start soon and that we expect the parties to consider the Z-4 Plan seriously, since it represents what the international community is prepared to support. With the backing of all the major powers, we would expect a final settlement to look very much like this proposal, but it is not a take-it-or-leave-it proposition.

While Bosnia negotiations have gone on in one form or another for several years, a political settlement in Croatia has never been the subject of serious talks among the parties. Little has occured in recent years to induce them to negotiate. It may be months or years until they are ready to settle, and additional fighting may occur. It is doubtful, moreover, that the fractured Krajina Serb leadership will pursue talks with Zagreb unless Belgrade dispels the dream of Greater Serbia, e.g. with recognition of Croatia and its international borders.

Despite the odds, however, every attempt must be made to launch negotiations. The bargaining would take place between representatives of Zagreb and Knin. Belgrade need not be represented if it endorses the basic plan and makes the Krajina Serbs attend. We can be flexible on modalities and venues, with the organizing principle being to support whatever works. At some point, we will have to consider possible incentives and disincentives to keep the negotiations going, but doing so now would be premature. The bottom line is that unless we find a way to get the parties to confront each other at the negotiating table, they will move closer to a face-off on the battlefield.

Preparing for the worst

While making every effort to preserve an UNPROFOR presence that can deter renewed conflict and to invigorate the diplomatic track, the U.S. must also consider what to do in the event that hostilities erupt as a result of apparent Croatian recklessness. Senior U.S. officials (Albright, Tarnoff, Slocombe, Holbrooke, Galbraith) have already delivered the two-part message to the Croats: we will work with you to restore Croatian sovereignty, but we will not understand or help if you provoke a war. We have to keep reinforcing this message.

For now, it makes sense to hold off on intensifying military cooperation until the UNPROFOR mandate question is satisfactorily resolved, as U/S Slocombe discussed with President Tudjman on Monday. If a satisfactory new mandate proves impossible or Croatia otherwise demonstrates belligerent intentions, we would scale back the bilateral relationship. These decision would have to be carefully calibrated to respond to the specific circumstances. It nevertheless makes sense to warn the Croats ahead of time that we cannot continue close cooperation if they pursue military confrontation, at least until the possibilities for settlement talks have been exhausted.

We should also work with the UN, NATO, and NGOs to allow essential relief operations in Bosnia to continue with minimal disruption in the event that Croatia becomes unavailable as a staging ground.

Information Paper

Subj: Political and Military Options for Supporting an UNPROFOR Withdrawal From Croatia (U)

1. (U) Purpose. To analyze the political and military aspects of supporting an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia.

2. (U) Background. Croatia has stated it will not renew the UNPROFOR mandate that expires on 31 March and wants all UNPROFOR troops out of the UNPAs by 30 June. Croatia will allow UNPROFOR and UNHCR headquarters to remain in Zagreb if the UN desires; however, the UN has indicated it will relocate the headquarters if UNPROFOR withdrawal becomes a reality. The UN told NATO informally on 23 January it hoped NATO would undertake contingency planning for assistance with a pullout from Croatia. At the 25 January NAC NATO SecGen Claes will seek approval to expand Bosnia withdrawal planning to include Croatia. This will probably result in a specific tasking to the MC to expedite plans to support an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia.

3. (U) Current Planning Status.

a. (C) UNPROFOR planning: UNPROFOR has a basic plan for withdrawal from Croatia under unopposed conditions.

b. (C) NATO planning: NATO planning priorities have been on withdrawal from Bosnia, with withdrawal from Croatia and Macedonia seen as less likely cases. NATO planners have commenced looking at what changes are required to OPLAN 40104 (NATO support to UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia) if withdrawal from Croatia occurs before or in parallel with withdrawal from Bosnia. A parallel withdrawal effort would significantly complicate the operation and increase troop requirements.

4. (U) Withdrawal Support Options.

a. (C) UNPROFOR runs own withdrawal. The UN would run its own withdrawal, contracting for required ground, air, and sea transport. This would be difficult to achieve on short notice due to contracting delays, but could be successful in an unopposed scenario given the available lead-time. However, the UN informal approach to NATO on 23 January suggests the UN may not want to pursue this option.

b. (C) NATO provides limited support. NATO could offer to provide close air support (CAS), if required, and fixed amounts of communications, logistics, and transport support. This would minimizes NATO commitment and cost, and might be relatively easy for the NAC to reach consensus. This could lead to criticism if this option results in UNPROFOR troops suffering significant casualties. NATO and the UN need to define the extent to which UNPROFOR in Croatia is exposed and vulnerable. Decisions on the extent of required support can only be made closer to the time of an actual withdrawal, based on the degree of threat to UNPROFOR posed by the Krajina-Serbs, in particular, and whether the proposed support is sufficient to counter it.

c. (C) Full NATO support similar to Bosnian withdrawal, including NATO ground troops. This would utilizes the full extend of NATO assets, but increases NATO liability and commitment. It builds on existing command arrangements, forces in theater, and infrastructure. It is the most likely option to succeed, but will require resolution of issues NATO and the UN have avoided coming to closure on: C2 above theater level, role of Akashi, and financing. (These same issues will need to be resolved to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia.) With 7 NATO members with troops in Croatia (Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Netherlands, Norway, and the US) and only three deployed to the UNPAs (Belgium, Canada, Denmark) some NATO member countries may be reluctant to support a full-scale NATO withdrawal effort. Our Congress will pose the same objection to US ground troop involvement that it would in a Bosnia contingency. A direct request for withdrawal assistance from Canada or another NATO member would help in the NAC and with Congress.

d. (C) US or other nation unilateral support. The US is the only country that possesses the lift and mobility assets to conduct an operation of this size. A unilateral US operation would be extremely difficult to justify to Congress.

5. (U) Discussion.

a. (C) A full NATO support operation (Option c) is what the UN expects and is the one most likely to succeed in the face of expected opposition. It would be hard for NATO to maintain credibility if it decided to support an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia but not Croatia. It would also seriously damage US credibility among the non-NATO troop contributing nations with forces in Croatia who may be looking to the US and NATO to help evacuate their forces. New Security Council resolutions and NAC decisions will be necessary for a full scale support operation, and might be necessary even to accomplish the limited option.

b. (C) For the present, the UN, NATO, and member states need to emphasize that UNPROFOR has a vital role to play in Croatia, in particular in implementing agreements between Zagreb and the Krajina Serbs. A reduced UNPROFOR presence is preferable to a complete pull-out. When working with the Croatians on the subject of withdrawal planing and support requirements, we must bear in mind that the extensive work required to make an operation successful will have the unintentional side effect of sending a signal that the international community is losing interest in the problems of the region. At this delicate stage in negotiations between Zagreb and Knin, such a signal might be particularly damaging.

c. (C) New Security Council resolutions and NAC decisions, for example to extend CAS to all of the UNPAs, would be necessary were NATO to involve itself in assistance to an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia. The NAC will address these issues on 25 January.

d. (C) In order to be prepared for withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia, or possible peace plan implementation, SACEUR is proposing the prepositioning of command and control equipment and personnel in Croatia, Germany, and Italy. The Deputies may be requested to discuss this issue in the next several days.

SECRET
(DECL:OADR)

Subject: Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic Visit to Washington January 30 - February 2.

THE SETTING

- Prime Minister Silajdzic's main goal in Washington will be to take the political water temperature on the Dole bill. Our goal is to keep the fragile peace process started by Charlie Thomas on track.

- Recent discussions with Silajdzic in Sarajevo suggest that he is emerging as the Bosnian government's chief hardliners on the peace process. Silajdzic's shift may be tactical -- he may be repositioning himself in Bosnia's internal political process. But in any event, we must be prepared for a Washington visitor who is showing a growing impatience for the negotiating process and who remains a firm believer in lifiting the arms embargo.

- Silajdzic -- more than VP Ganic and President Izetbegovic -- has been skeptical of approaches to Pale which he regards as the Contact Group's shift away from its plan toward more concessions to the Serbs. He has insisted in his recent meetings with Charlie Thomas that any renewal of negotiation with Pale be on the basis of the CG plan with a clear time limit for the negotiations.

- Much of Silajdzic's stridency is directed at the Administration which he accuses of retreating from lift to a position in line with the Europeans. Silajdzic shows little appreciation for the nuances between multilateral and unilateral lift, viewing the issue against the broader backdrop of US moral leadership. He has honed a vigorous and passionate argument for lift, a performance we can expect to hear next week on talk shows and on the Hill.

THE SCHEDULE

- Silajdzic will meet with Secretary Christopher on Monday. We believe that a meeting with the Vice President should also be arranged as a strong signal of our continued support to Bosnia. A meeting with the Vice President would also offer the opportunity to make the same private assurances that we remain firm on the Contact Group plan and map.

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
VR 2/6/2020 (1.93)
2013-0682-M

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- We have encouraged the Bosnian Embassy to arrange meetings with a broad range of Congressional leadership. So far the Bosnian Embassy is pursuing meetings with Nunn, Lugar, Warner, in addition to Dole, Helms, Biden, and Liberman.

- Silajdzic will also have extensive interviews with the press which the Bosnian Embassy is also organizing. So far the Bosnian Embassy is considering offers from Nightline, McNeil-Lehrer, CNN, CBS, and NBC.

OUR OBJECTIVES

- Our overall objective for the visit is to -- Make Silajdzic understand that support for lift and strike is tepid at best, while we

  -- Demonstrate strong support to the Bosnian government and to the future of Bosnia as a single state within internationally recognized borders.

Lift:

- We are making sure that Silajdzic sees people on the Hill who do not share his views about lift and strike.

- Members such as Lugar, Warner, Nunn and others can make clear that support for Dole's lift and strike scenario in Congress is not as strong as Silajdzic himself would like to believe.

- At the same time, we wish to avoid the perception that we are engaged in a "full-court press" in the run-up to Silajdzic's visit which could result in a perception of US reorientation away from the Bosnians, possibly complicating the delicate road to peace that Charlie Thomas has begun to build in his meetings in Sarajevo and Pale.

- For this reason it would be worthwhile for us to hold off on our briefings by Wes Clark, Walt Slocombe and myself of the intell and appropriations committees until after the Silajdzic visit has passed. ✓

- For the same reason, we think we should hold off on the Shali/Perry op ed until after he leaves. ✓

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- With the press, we should plan on having a senior official hold a backgrounder on Bosnia to ensure that the media are fully conversant with all the arguments on lift.

Peace Process

- We need to convince the reluctant Bosnians -- especially the doubting Silajdzic -- to move ahead. To do this we need to reassure them that we can and well be supportive of them in that negotiation. But we cannot let things drift much longer.

- Secretary Christopher's letter to Izetbegovic with its assurances on our support for the 51/49 map and Bosnia's territorial unity was the first step. But we need to follow up.

  We think the best format for this message would be a thirty-minute one-on-one meeting with Secretary Christopher, followed by a small lunch.

- The message to Silajdzic should straight forward and track with the letter to Izetbegovic:

  -- We understand Bosnian reluctance to enter into a negotiation in the absence of a clear, comprehensive endorsement by the Serbs of the Contact Group plan, but we believe the conditions of the cessation offer a chance for successful negotiations.

  -- The Bosnians have concentrated on the "starting point" for negotiations, more attention should be paid to the end point.

  -- We continue to support the contact group, specifically the 51/49 map and the unity of the Bosnian state.

  -- We would not pressure the Bosnians to take less.

Public support to the Federation

- We can also use Silajdzic's visit to inject new life into the Bosnian-Croat Federation which continues to be fragile.

  -- We may use the occasion of Secretary Christopher's meeting with Silajdzic to announce the "Friends of the Federation," a group of 10-15 countries engaged in funding multiethnic development and war reconstruction projects.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- We can also announce the selection of General Franks as an advisor to the Federation joint command, as well as our intention to sign a 505 agreement with Bosnia that will permit IMET and other defense cooperation activities that do not violate the UN arms embargo.

o These projects follow up on the Washington accords and provide Silajdzic and the Bosnians with tangible proof of our commitment to their future.

o We can also use Silajdzic's visit to inject new life into the Bosnian-Croat Federation which continues to be fragile.

o These projects follow up on the Washington accords and provide Silajdzic and the Bosnians with tangible proof of our commitment to their future.

Summary of Conclusions for Meeting of the NSC Deputies Committee
DATE: February 2, 1995
LOCATION: White House Situation Room
TIME: 2:10 - 3:30pm

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies reviewed the results of recent Contact Group efforts in Bosnia, diplomatic options for renewing negotiations for a political settlement, and prospects for achieving mutual recognition of all former Yugoslav Republics as a means of further isolating Karadzic. They agreed to discuss with Allies a renewed effort with Milosevic aimed at achieving mutual recognition. Deputies agreed that cross-recognition must be broadened beyond a possible bilateral deal between Serbia and Croatia to include Bosnia as well, plus Slovenia and FYROM. They requested a strategy paper be prepared for next week's Principals meeting. The strategy should address steps to achieve cross-recognition, including how to approach Milosevic and Tudjman, timing, the relationship between recognition and UNPROFOR retention in Croatia, and the U.S. response should Milosevic move only on recognition of Croatia. (S) (Action: State)

RVS 9/30/14 (2.00)

2. Recognizing that sanctions relief will be our main leverage for securing cross-recognition, Deputies requested that the OVP lead an Interagency effort to configure a Milosevic sanctions relief package that looks at the pros and cons of accepting the European Union's position. (S) (Action: OVP)

3. Deputies discussed the results of recent diplomatic efforts in Croatia. Noting the dynamic situation in Croatia, they requested an integrated, political and military strategy for Croatia. The strategy should address how to maximize opportunities for UNPROFOR retention, how to approach Tudjman in the run-up to the March 31 UNPROFOR mandate expiration, a description of the redefined UNPROFOR mandate we hope to achieve, measures to minimize risk to UNPROFOR, and military planning decision points for UNPROFOR's complete or partial withdrawal. (S) (Action: State/JCS)

4. Deputies reviewed the state of military planning to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia and Croatia. They agreed to support NATO discussions with Croatia concerning prepositioning of C3I systems and host nation support for UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia. They further agreed to present to Principals a recommendation that the U.S. agree in principle to participate in a NATO operation to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia and to approve completion of required contingency planning. (S) (Action: JCS)

5. Deputies reviewed the status of efforts at the United Nations to strengthen UNPROFOR. Reiterating their support for strengthening measures, the Deputies requested more information to clarify UN intentions, objectives, rationale, and operational impact. (S) (Action: JCS)

BOSNIA POLICY OPTIONS IN THE SHORT TERM:
PRESSURE ON PALE; FEDERATION SUPPORT

The effort to bring the Pale Serbs to the table failed because, despite [redacted] Carter, Karadzic is not under sufficient pressure to negotiate on any terms except his own. With the four-month cessation agreement in its second month and barely holding, we need to work fast to build the pressure necessary to begin real negotiations.

The clock is also ticking on the Federation. If we do not take action to shore it up, by spring we could be confronting a three way war which will feed into the dangerous military situation developing in Croatia.

Meanwhile, our CG partners are going back to the drawing board for ideas. The result -- as evidenced by Juppe's interview in Le Monde -- may be an excess of free thinking which could complicate the diplomatic road ahead.

We thus need to move quickly on three tracks: (1) build pressure on Pale to negotiate; (2) shore up the Federation; and (3) avoid a diplomatic vacuum that could result in disarray at a time when diplomatic cohesion is most essential.

Pushing Milosevic Toward Recognition

Mutual recognition of all former Yugoslav republics, especially Serb recognition of the GOBH, would help further isolate Pale and nudge Karadzic toward the negotiating table. Milosevic may be willing to trade recognition for sanctions relief.

Izetbegovic told Charlie Thomas last week that Milosevic had invited him to Belgrade several times and that he would gladly accept if he could be guaranteed in advance some positive result. Izetbegovic also made it clear that he would support some sanctions relief for Belgrade in exchange for recognition by Milosevic. Silajdzic also indicated that, contrary to past Bosnian government positions, he too believes some sanctions relief would be appropriate, but he took a tougher line.

Now is the time for a full court press on Milosevic, even if the odds are still against success. The Secretary's commitment to Silajdzic to approach Kozyrev was a good first step in this process. A joint approach to Milosevic, preferably at the Ministerial level, may prove successful. A joint visit to Belgrade by other Contact Group foreign ministers, or a succession of individual visits, might put the needed pressure on Milosevic.

On sanctions, we would be proposing a partial lifting or suspension. We would need need to take a close look at what package could be offered which would not undercut the remaining sanctions regime. /*

UN Membership for Milosevic

One potentially tasty carrot which we may want to offer Milosevic to entice him toward recognizing his neighbors -- not involving sanctions relief -- is United Nations membership for the "FRY." At present, Belgrade's representatives in New York are squatting at the desk of the former Yugoslavia, a situation which might be in the power of influential members of the Security Council to discontinue. In the context of gaining title to the seat, Milosevic might be persuaded to recognize formally his neighbors. We need to explore the full range of ramifications of such an offer.

UNPROFOR Withdrawal - Redux

During December, the Bosnian Serbs became alarmed at reports that UNPROFOR might have to be withdrawn, and that the withdrawal would require the help of NATO troops. The threat of withdrawal was probably the single greatest factor in their desire to achieve a cessation agreement. NATO action is a nightmare for the Bosnian Serbs who do not believe that NATO -- after its first ground operation ever -- would leave and allow a massacre to ensue. If peace negotiations are not restarted in the next few weeks, talk of UNPROFOR withdrawal might resurface, again causing the Bosnian Serbs to reconsider their position.

We should make sure that the current prepositioning issue in NATO and with the Croatian government is understood by the Bosnian Serbs as another sign that the withdrawal of UNPROFOR is being planned. General Rose carried a dire warning to Pale in December; Rupert Smith should do the same now. We will discuss this with London.

Summit: Maybe Not A Bad Idea

We reacted guarded[redacted] to the French proposal of a summit, insisting that there be content and a guaranteed result. We should consider, however, that a meeting of Milosevic, Tudjman, Izetbegovic, and perhaps the CG ministers would send a powerful signal to the Pale Serbs that their aspirations for international recognition -- as anything more than war criminals -- is unlikely.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Lift -- the Last Resort

Finally, we should look for an early opportunity with our CG partners to restate the July 30 communique language on lift as a last resort.

Support for the Federation

Recent events in Bosnia have shown that domestic support for the Federation remains shaky. At the top, relations between senior government officials are correct and sometimes even cordial, but disturbing trends continue at the local and regional level. Tensions remain high in Mostar and other areas where the two communities live side-by-side. Military coordination has been and hoc at best. Karadzic & Co. are banking on these intercommunal tensions eventually to split the Federation.

We must support a stronger Federation now and undercut Karadzic's hopes for his policy of "divide and conquer." Every step we take to build up the Federation will show Pale that it faces a unified adversary, not a doomed coalition. how?

Last week, Izetbegovic and Tudjman met with Federation President Zubak to review Federation implementation. They agreed to form a committee to identify problems and suggest solutions, to be headed by Zubak and VP Ganic. In this vein, both the Croats and the Muslims have sought outside assistance in resolving the impasse. As the engine behind the Washington Accords, the U.S. has a special role to play.

At the Wehrkunde conference in Munich this week Dick Holbrooke will press both the Croats (FM Granic) and the Bosnians (Silajdzic and Zubak) to revitalize the Federation by taking concrete steps toward implementation. He will also solicit support for our "Friends of the Federation" initiative.

We will use the Friends of the Federation to target funds on specific projects designed to reduce mistrust on both sides. Of particular importance are projects like formation of a single administration in Mostar (including Police) and a single border authority. Our plans to integrate the Federation armed forces have been slowed by the decision of General Franks to withdraw from consideration as our military advisor to the Federation. We are now looking for a new candidate.

The "inner circle" of Friends, comprised of the American, German, Turkish, and Austrian Ambassadors in Sarajevo, will offer day-to-day guidance to the Federation in overcoming the difficulties of implementation. This inner circle does not intend, however, to get involved in arbitrating or mediating disputes. The parties themselves must solve their differences.

TALKING PAPER

Subject: Reinforcing UNPROFOR

1. Purpose. To provide talking points on the need to reinforce UNPROFOR.

2. Talking Points

- UNPROFOR continues to perform a valuable mission in Bosnia, including facilitating the delivery of humanitarian aid and establishing the conditions of peace and security required for the negotiation of an overall settlement of the Yugoslav crisis.

- UNPROFOR has requested 6,500 additional troops and equipment to support the current cessation of hostilities agreement, to improve its capability to protect itself,and to respond to acts by the warring parties against UNPROFOR. These additional troops and equipment would provide operational flexibility, better ensure the delivery of humanitarian aid, and allow the use of more robust measures to keep ground and air aid corridors open.

- On several occasions, most recently in Bihac, UNPROFOR could have done a better job if it had more manpower and equipment resources, including helicopters, at its disposal.

- The NATO Chiefs of Defense met with UN, Russia, and other interested nations at The Hague, Netherlands, in December to consider how UNPROFOR could be made more effective. Two initiatives resulted from this meeting:

-the formulation of concepts for maintaining open the air and land routes into Sarajevo and the enclaves, and

-the decision to offer UNPROFOR additional manpower and equipment to better accomplish its mission.

- As a result of this initiative fourteen countries have offered almost 6,000 troops and significant additional equipment.

- We consider it essential to support this effort and have offered to the UN helicopters, armored personnel carriers, radars, radios, night vision goggles, and assorted engineer vehicles on a lease or sale basis.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- The success of the cessation of hostilities agreement would be a significant achievement on the road to a peaceful settlement in the former Yugoslavia. The UN deserves the help of the entire international community to take advantage of this cessation of hostilities to better prepare for whatever comes next.

- The UN is still evaluating all the offers it has received. We expect the UN to inform us shortly of their desires. At that time we will negotiate financial arrangements for sale or lease of the equipment offered by the U.S. government.

FUNDING UNPROFOR

Congressional Strategy

UNPROFOR, the largest UN peacekeeping force, with a U.S. assessment of $506 million for FY 95, is unfunded for this fiscal year. The Administration will submit a peacekeeping supplemental request for FY 95 which totals $672 million, of which the lion's share will be for UNPROFOR. Absent a radical solution, UNPROFOR's solvency will depend in large measure on whether we obtain this supplemental. In addition, the FY 96 budget submitted to Congress would fully fund UNPROFOR at current levels of spending for only six months.

In preparing the FY 95 budget, the Administration proposed "Shared Responsibility," by which DOD would pay the U.S. assessments of Chapter VII peacekeeping operations and those Chapter VI operations in which U.S. combat units are participating, while the Department of State would pay for Chapter VI operations. UNPROFOR, under Chapter VII, would have been funded by DOD. However, Congress chose not to authorize "Shared Responsibility," and UNPROFOR was left unfunded for FY 95, dictating the need for a supplemental appropriation request. In the FY 96 budget a modified version of "Shared Responsibility" (DOD pays assessments for operations in which U.S. combat units participate) was included. The FY 96 UNPROFOR request covered only six months of operation because of the uncertainties surrounding UNPROFOR's future.

Adding to the growing expense for UNPROFOR is the UN's call for an additional 6500 troops to help enforce the cessation of hostilities and to move the warring parties to a political solution by separating them. These 6500 troops will cost approximately $150 million for the first year, with the U.S. assessment approximately $46 million. The U.S. earlier voted for UNPROFOR's mandate which included the additional 6500 troops.

Uncertainties. Given the political/military realities in Bosnia and Croatia at this time, it is difficult to predict UNPROFOR's future even six months ahead. The Croatian Government has requested the end of UNPROFOR's mandate on March 31, with the removal of all units (except for headquarters and logistics in Zagreb) within a few months' time after that. Possibly UNPROFOR will stay, but with a much changed mandate and changed troop configuration. In Bosnia the cessation of hostilities agreement ends April 30. If not renewed, or if a political settlement is not reached, then active warfare might break out, making UNPROFOR's position untenable. Plans are underway to have NATO help UNPROFOR's withdrawal if necessary. It is very possible that UNPROFOR will cease to exist in six months' time. On the other hand, if UNPROFOR is successful and a settlement is reached, then certainly troop numbers will have to be augmented to keep the peace. This uncertainty makes budgeting a nightmare, and explains why supplementals must be used.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Congress. Many factors militate against Congress's passing the supplemental legislation necessary for UNPROFOR's survival. Congress is in a budget cutting, deficit slashing mode. UN programs are an easy target. And the Bosnian situation itself raises hackles. Many, Senator Dole included, who believe that UNPROFOR has been a failure, favor lifting the arms embargo and allowing the warring contestants to fight it out, with the U.S. aiding the Bosnian Government. But other members of Congress still strongly support UN peacekeeping and see an arms lift as a recipe for disaster, with the U.S. being pulled in militarily.

What must be done. Yesterday's Deputies Committee on Peacekeeping looked at methods of "Enhanced Consultations with Congress on UN Peacekeeping and Related Issues." (Tab A) Those recommendations are necessary to create an atmosphere more accepting of the need for UN peacekeeping. Also discussed at that meeting were "Cost Savings Options," (Tab B), many of them directed at UNPROFOR. But specifically on Bosnia and UNPROFOR, much needs to be done.

A leaner, more effective UNPROFOR. Congress is no longer willing to fund peacekeeping missions without making the most strenuous efforts to hold down the cost. Before approaching Congress on UNPROFOR, we should demarche the UN about our funding concerns, making the point that we want UNPROFOR to be as cost effective as possible. We could offer planners to help in assessing needs. Given that UNPROFOR is by far the largest UN peacekeeping operation, we should insist on a "bottom up" review, to be completed before the mandate expires.

Croatian UNPROFOR mandate. We need to meet with allies to determine what a reconfigured UNPROFOR in Croatia might look like, assuming the Croatian Government allows the mandate to be continued. Certain baseline activities must be performed (separation of contestants, convoying humanitarian supplies), but perhaps these can be done with a much reduced UNPROFOR. To keep from sending wrong signals to the Croatians, however, this review must begin with the assumption that UNPROFOR in some form will be remaining in Croatia.

Hill briefings. More than ever before, the reasons for our support of UNPROFOR must be transparent to Congress. Relevant committees must see:

-- the necessity of UNPROFOR and the terrible costs if it is not funded;

-- what we are doing to minimize the cost of UNPROFOR;

-- if U.S. military readiness is affected by support for UNPROFOR.

Briefings clearly must include senior U.S. administration officials from State and DOD. It will be a difficult sell.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

To be done before Hill briefings:

-- Approach UN concerning "bottom up" review of UNPROFOR (State).

-- Work with allies to reconfigure UNPROFOR/Croatia (State)

-- Determine effects of UNPROFOR enhanced support on U.S. military readiness (JCS)

-- Prepare "doomsday" scenario for termination of UNPROFOR, including (JCS):

U.S. ground troops needed to extricate UNPROFOR
Cost of extricating UNPROFOR
Cost to U.S. to enhance GOBH military Certainty of war in Bosnia and Croatia
Strong possibility of spillover to Serbia and Macedonia

IMPLEMENTING A CROATIA STRATEGY

Croatia and the Serbs continued a slide toward war this past week. The UN has made noises about an early pullout from Croatia and Bosnia; the Serbs rebuffed international mediators; the Croats indicated they would take wide-scale military action. Ideally, the glare of publicity about these developments would illuminate a key fact for the parties: more fighting is a negative-sum game. Instead, it is heating up Balkan belligerence, fueling a feeling that fighting is inevitable. The U.S. should try to head off a new regional war.

Deputies have discussed a three-pronged U.S. approach: maintain the essential functions of UNPROFOR in Croatia; launch a negotiattions between Serbs and Croats on a political settlement; and prepare for the worst case of renewed hostilities. In public, we should not undercut Croatia to keep maximum pressure on the Serbs to negotiate. Only progress toward a settlement will convince Tudjman to keep UNPROFOR in Croatia. In private, we can be tougher with Zagreb.

Main action items of this strategy include:

-- Consult early with the Secretariat and key UNSC members on maintaining UNPROFOR's essential elements.

-- Stomp on loose talk of UNPROFOR pulling out early or moving its headquarters.

-- Give Croatia time to come up with the "right answer" on UNPROFOR.

-- Warn the Serbs against taking UNPROFOR personnel hostage.

-- Insist that Knin accept Croatian sovereignty before seating it at any Balkan conference.

-- Refuse to take "no" for an answer on the Z-4 Plan, making the parties come up with any new proposals and take responsibility for their fate.

-- Prepare to walk away from the issue and sanction any recalcitrant party, including Belgrade if its mutual recognition proves hollow.

-- Lay down a marker about protecting UN peacekeepers.

-- Plan ahead for NATO support of UNPROFOR withdrawal without asking Croatia for assistance at this time.

-- Give Zagreb notice of the bilateral risks and warn Serbia that sanctions relief is unthinkable if it intervenes.

DRAFT

IMPLEMENTING A CROATIA STRATEGY

Croatia and the Serbs have continued sliding back toward war in the past week. The UN has made noises about an early pullout from Croatia and Bosnia; the Serbs rebuffed international mediators; the Croats gave signs of readiness to take wide-scale military action; and Bosnian peace efforts ran into a dead end. Ideally, the glare of publicity about these developments would illuminate a key fact for the parties: more fighting is a negative-sum game. Instead, it is heating up belligerence, fueling the feeling that fighting is inevitable. The U.S. should make every effort to avoid a new Balkan war.

Deputies have discussed a three-pronged U.S. approach to this situation: seek to maintain the essential functions of UNPROFOR in Croatia; launch a negotiating process between Serbs and Croats on a political settlement; and prepare to respond to the worst-case scenario of renewed hostilities. In doing so, we should avoid undercutting Croatia in public and keep maximum pressure on the Serbs to negotiate. Tudjman has made clear that only progress toward a settlement will enable him to keep UNPROFOR in Croatia. In private, however, we must tell Zagreb that key elements of the bilateral relationship are at risk if Croatia initiates hostilities or prevents the UN from maintaining essential operations there.

Maintaining the essential functions of UNPROFOR

Consulting with the Secretariat and key UNSC members: We need to get them on board with keeping UNPROFOR in place to the maximum possible extent. Following up the Albright-Boutros Ghali and Galbraith-Akashi conversations, we would make a strong demarche emphasizing UNPROFOR's importance and asking for an end to unhelpful talk of early withdrawal or a move out of Zagreb.

Points to make: We would describe the essential elements to be preserved if UNPROFOR cannot remain as currently constituted -- monitoring the cease-fire and separation zone in Croatia; maintaining liaison with Knin; helping to implement agreed confidence-building measures; supporting operations in Bosnia and Macedonia, including relief convoys to Bihac and Banja Luka; operating force headquarters. Noting that these functions do not require the same troop presence in the UNPAs and that Zagreb is willing to preserve UNPROFOR support for Bosnia and Macedonia, we would ask UN planners to estimate what "UNPROFOR lite" would entail.

Waiting for the right moment: It is premature for the UN or any other party to engage the Croats in a discussion of a scaled-down UNPROFOR presence or to speculate publicly about it. When negotiations on a new mandate occur in the UNSC (probably in March), we will need to assess the current situation and fill in the specifics of our UNPROFOR strategy then. Now, however, Zagreb would read a rush to consult as eagerness compromise, while the Serbs would interpret it as pressure on Tudjman to back down. We should instead keep the international focus on launching political negotiations between the Croats and Serbs, which offer the main hope for Tudjman to reconsider his decision to expel UNPROFOR.

Dealing with the Croats: We must continue telling Zagreb that we view UNPROFOR withdrawal as leading to renewed war in Croatia and Bosnia, with casualties for all sides and destruction of current diplomatic efforts. We therefore hope Croatia will reconsider, as President Clinton urged in his letter to President Tudjman, and will act to demonstrate the peaceful intentions that Zagreb professes. We expect the U.S. to be a key negotiator with Croatia in the endgame on a new UNPROFOR mandate. But at this stage we should maintain a certain distance, giving the Croats time to come up with the "right answer" on UNPROFOR. Instructions to Zagreb and other European diplomatic posts would be sent along these lines.

Talking with the Serbs: The Krajina Serbs have threatened to take UN peacekeepers hostage to prevent their withdrawal. We need to make clear that such action undermines the Serb case and invites Croatian military action to "rescue" the UN. We should emphasize that the best way for Knin to help keep UNPROFOR in place is to allow it to do its job, including letting convoys into Bihac. We would want to double-track these points in Belgrade, if only to demonstrate that we see Milosevic as the strongman in Krajina. Instructions to Zagreb, Belgrade, Moscow, and other European diplomatic posts would be sent along these lines.

Launching negotiations on a political settlement

General diplomacy: In responding to the French call for a new Balkan conference, the U.S. should note that the Krajina Serbs will seek a seat, which the international community should not grant without Knin's commitment to negotiate in good faith. We have few pressure points on the Serbs and should exploit this one, while insisting that no conference occur without real results. Croatia will object to perceived "equal treatment" between Zagreb and Knin.

Not taking "no" for an answer: Regardless of the Z-4 Plan's merits, it represents a U.S.-European-Russian effort and a balance among big power interests. The parties will try to back us away from it. We should avoid the trap of re-jiggering our proposal every time one side objects to a provision, which increases the outsiders' responsibility for resolving the conflict. Instead, we would emphasize that we have done our part and now the parties must start talking directly. To change what is on the table, they must sit down at it.

Thinking about walking away: Despite our hopes for obtaining a good negotiated outcome in Croatia, we must recognize that current efforts are aimed at testing the parties' willingness to choose negotiations over war. If Zagreb's deeds become as belligerent as its recent words or the Serb side continues to refuse serious talks, we should draw the necessary conclusions about whom we can work with, disengage for the time being, and limit the damage. That could mean cutting back on our bilateral relations with Croatia and/or maintaining sanctions on Serbia indefinitely.

DRAFT

Watching out for the mutual recognition shell game: Real accommodation between Belgrade and Zagreb would be welcome; it would dispel the Great Serbia dream of the Krajina population. There is no sign, however, that Milosevic has any such arrangement in mind. Unless Serbia irrevocably acknowledges Zagreb's sovereignty over the Serb-held areas, mutual recognition is an empty shell undeserving of sanctions relief. We would inform our Contact Group partners of these considerations as we consider Plan B and other formulations. //*

Being flexible on modalities and venues: We should pursue "whatever works" on procedural questions. Regarding direct participation by the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, the important thing is to make sure that Belgrade endorses the basic plan and makes the Krajina Serbs attend.

Preparing for renewed hostilities

Laying down a marker about protecting the peacekeepers: We must recognize the potential for the situation to worsen and renewed hostilities to occur along the entire Serbo-Croat confrontation line with direct FRY involvement. While any international reaction would respond to the specifics of the situation and could not be pre-determined, we should warn all parties against action that would harm UN peacekeepers. We would also ask key UNSC members to reinforce this message.

Advance planning for possible NATO support of UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia and/or Croatia: We need to make sure that UN and NATO planning is up-to-date, realistic, and coordinated. (See attached State commentary on JCS analysis.) We should not approach Croatia now about UNPROFOR withdrawal, since doing so would send the wrong message. Rather, plans based on the likelihood of Croatian support should be developed, along with a contingency response if Zagreb's cooperation is not forthcoming. Instructions to USUN and USNATO would be sent along these lines. ⊛

Giving Zagreb fair notice: We should continue stressing that the U.S. will be unable to assist Croatia if it provokes renewed hostilities. While keeping existing programs in place, we would point out that Zagreb's belligerence puts key elements of our bilateral relationship at risk. Without a satisfactory resolution of the UNPROFOR mandate issue, we would not expand our military cooperation, as U/S Slocombe discussed with President Tudjman.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Trying to keep Serbia out: Renewed Serbo-Croat warfare would invite FRY "volunteers" to reinforce Serb fighters in Krajina and Bosnia, with transfer of military equipment and deployment of JNA units a real possibility. This would refute Milosevic's contention that the Krajina problem is strictly between Knin and Zagreb. We would make absolutely clear to our Contact Group partners and to Belgrade that further sanctions relief would be unthinkable under these circumstances.

DRAFT

Why to avoid war

The parties seem increasingly interested in renewing hostilities and getting them over with quickly, while analysts note that warfare could be a clarifying event that eventually rejuvenates efforts to get a negotiated settlement. Despite its superficial attraction, however, a new round of fighting would probably drag on and be brutal. In the last Serbo-Croat conflict, which lasted only four months from July to November 1991, an estimated 10,000 people lost their lives and tens of thousands were injured or forced to flee.

Beyond the human tragedy, the timing is wrong. The parties are only now being given a framework for starting political negotiations. So Croatia would lose support by resorting to force prematurely. If war must come, next winter would be more opportune, since the Croats (and Bosnians) will have become better equipped and trained, and the Serbs will have been weakened by another year of sanctions.

This logic is not lost on President Tudjman. He has repeatedly rejected the military option pressed by his advisers, most recently during the Bihac crisis. While he believes Croatia is ready to fight if necessary, he still prefers not to fight if possible.

In the longer term, a Croatian-Bosnian military response may prove the only check to Serb aggression and ethnic cleansing. As Tudjman prepares to lead his party in national elections in 1996, he may have to bow to popular sentiment and give his military a green light. At this point, however, it makes sense for the U.S. to try to prevent a new Balkan war.

INFORMATION PAPER

Subject: Options for UNPROFOR Withdrawal from Croatia (U)

1. (U) Background

a. ~~(S)~~ GOC announced on 12 January that it will terminate the UNPROFOR mandate effective 31 March. However, Croatia has indicated that UNPROFOR has up to 90 days (after March 31st) to complete the withdrawal. The UN is preparing plans for a phased withdrawal under permissive conditions.

b. ~~(S)~~ NATO plans do not currently address, in any detail, a withdrawal operation from Croatia. SACEUR has directed his staff to commence planning for a sequential or simultaneous withdrawal operation from Croatia and Bosnia.

2. (U) Situation

a. ~~(S/NF)~~ Likely Threat. E.O. 13526 3.3(b)(1) most likely threat to be indirect, limited and local actions by Krajina Serb civilians designed to harass or prevent UNPROFOR egress. See threat assessment at Appendix A.

b. ~~(S)~~ Physical conditions. Rugged terrain and narrow winding roads combined with a dispersed, lightly armed UNPROFOR, make safe egress a difficult task.

3. ~~(S)~~ Assumptions

(1) UNPROFOR units will not attempt to fight their way out if directly confronted by Serb forces.

(2) Localized fighting between HV and RSK forces will occur regardless of UNPROFOR presence.

(3) Croatia will allow a withdrawal force access to ports/facilities.

(4) UN will request NATO assistance.

(5) Each UNPA will require different considerations for withdrawal operations.

4. ~~(S)~~ Considerations

(1) Decision on the mandate will not be finalized until late March. Any UNPROFOR movement (consolidation) up until the decision point could trigger a Krajina Serb response.

~~SECRET/NOFORN~~

(2) The decision will likely determine the degree of resistance UNPROFOR will encounter. A total withdrawal is likely to be met with greater resistance. A revised mandate with some form of UN presence may reduce Krajina Serb concerns and their resistance to a partial withdrawal.

(3) If opposition is encountered, given the significant Western European presence in Croatia, NATO will likely be asked to assist in a withdrawal. Delaying a decision until late March on Alliance participation precludes NATO's response in a timely and effective manner. Therefore, 31 March would appear to be the best target date for having a combat force in position to assist with UNPROFOR's withdrawal. (Note: Determining exactly when forces must be ready is problematic. The 31 March date in and of itself is soft. The Croatian requirement is that UN forces be withdrawn by 30 June. The approach of 31 March could bring an increase in tensions in the UNPAs and threaten the safety of UNPROFOR soldiers).

5. ~~(S)~~ Withdrawal Options

Option I. Full NATO Support, including ground troops.

PROs:

- Provides credible and capable combined arms combat force.
- RSK unlikely to directly challenge NATO force.
- Provides sufficient forces and mature command structure to control operations over wide area.
- Positions force for follow-on withdrawal from Bosnia if required.
- Commits NATO up front; fewer political decisions by NATO required after beginning operation.

CONs:

- Could place NATO in a combatant role.
- High cost option, funding responsibilities unclear.
- May cause reaction against UNPROFOR troops in B-H by the Bosnian Serbs to demonstrate Serb solidarity.
- Because of regional instability and mutually exclusive objectives of the warring parties, public appeals likely for NATO to remain in theater to resolve conflict.
- Cumbersome NAC process may not support timely decisions needed to effectively execute UNPROFOR withdrawal operation.
- Could be criticized as "overkill" based on assumed low threat and may increase tensions and the threat to UNPROFOR.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

~~SECRET/NOFORN~~

Option II. NATO Reaction Force/Air Support. NATO could offer to provide close air support (CAS), a ready reaction force, and fixed amounts of communications, logistics, and transport.

PROs:

- Reduces NATO commitment and cost.
- NATO ground troops not interpositioned or maneuvering between combatants.
- Lower profile force could elicit less friction in the UNPAs.
- Provides effective combined arms concentrated response to meet localized limited threats.

CONs:

- Commits force incrementally.
- Does not commit sufficient force to ensure success.
- Exacerbates NAC involvement, and potential delays, as NATO incrementally commits forces.
- Higher UNPROFOR casualties possible.
- Without dominant NATO force presence, command and control arrangements become even more uncertain.
- Responses to likely threats require sequential reaction.

Option III. UNPROFOR Autonomous. The UN would run its own withdrawal, contracting for required ground, air, and sea transport. UN negotiates withdrawal on case by case basis. This option would be more credible if taken in conjunction with implementation of a revised UNPROFOR mandate in Croatia. This option can then be viewed as "tailoring" UNPROFOR to the new mandate.

PROs:

- Relies on negotiations that decrease tensions vice use of force that increases tensions.
- Reduces cost/risks to US/NATO.
- Possible continued UN presence as a result of blockage. If peaceful, could delay fighting and increase opportunities for a negotiated settlement.

CONs:

- If threat is misjudged, as other than benign environment, UNPROFOR will not have capability to egress from the UNPAs and could result in significant casualties.
- If threat increases, NATO likely to be called for immediate assistance. Quick NATO reaction may rely heavily on US forces.
- UN is slow to sign contracts.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

~~SECRET/NOFORN~~

- Could encourage disruptive unilateral national support not coordinated with UNPROFOR withdrawal plan.

6. ~~(S)~~ Recommended Course of Action. There are a number of integrated steps that should be taken in preparation for a withdrawal from Croatia. First, work for a new UN mandate in Croatia designed to ease tension over drawdown of UN forces. To allay Krajina Serb concerns, a UN presence must be maintained at key positions throughout the UNPAs. Second, the US should request that NATO accelerate planning for a Croatian withdrawal. NATO planning will be necessarily compressed, though some of the planning it has already completed for a Bosnia withdrawal will be applicable, and the US must be ready to inform NATO what forces the US would contribute. Based on the current threat assessments, option II (NATO Reaction Force/Air Support) appears the best point of departure for meeting the expected threat and mission requirements

7. ~~(S)~~ Issues for Decision

Issue #1: Should the withdrawal operation be supported by NATO? In the best case (permissive environment), a UN operation is preferred and possible. However, given the uncertainty surrounding a revised mandate, NATO must be prepared to react to a non-permissive situation. Many of the troops are from NATO nations, including several hundred US personnel in Zagreb.

Decision: NATO should plan and prepare to assist UNPROFOR's withdrawal from Croatia.

Issue #2: Should the US participate (ground troops) in a NATO withdrawal operation?

(1) The US is obligated to support and participate in this Alliance action. The US supported the UN resolutions that placed troops into Croatia, and has publicly announced it would participate in an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia. The US could hardly act unilaterally to withdraw its troops from Croatia without significant ramifications.

(2) Should the US stand aside, we may marginalize our influence and abdicate our leadership role within NATO. France may dictate that any assistance for UNPROFOR's withdrawal be carried out under WEU auspices. This calls into question the relevancy of NATO in a post Cold War world.

(3) Militarily, the US brings many unique capabilities to an operation that provide a distinct advantage over the adversary. A US presence increases the likelihood of operational success.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

~~SECRET/NOFORN~~

Decision: The US should commit to provide substantial support for a NATO operation, including ground troops.

Issue #3: Should the USG support the recommended course of action (NATO Reaction Force/Air Support)?

(1) Course of action reaffirms NATO relevancy, demonstrates US leadership and commitment in the Alliance.

(2) Provides force package capable of meeting expected threat.

(3) Does not over-commit NATO or US forces.

Decision: If USG supports a NATO operation with US forces, US should adopt recommended course of action.

Timing: Given the uncertainty surrounding a decision on a new mandate, UNPROFOR may require assistance as early as 1 April. If a decision is not made on the mandate by 31 March, the likelihood of an immediate Krajina Serb reaction to hold UNPROFOR in place increases.

(1) US needs to agree now that if a Croatian withdrawal operation under NATO leadership is required, the US is willing to commit substantial support to such an operation. Further, the USG should support a NAC decision to allow NATO/lead nation to begin negotiations on the use of Croatian infrastructure.

(2) By mid-February, the NAC must approve the concept under which NATO would support an UNPROFOR withdrawal. The USG must be prepared to transfer operational control of forces required to support the NATO operation.

(3) NATO will require approximately six weeks to assemble, train, rehearse, and deploy a force.

DECISION PAPER

How does CROATIA affect?

Subject: Pre-positioning for Bosnia Contingencies (U)

1. ~~(C)~~ Purpose. To provide information for Interagency decision on the early commitment of US communications personnel and assets when SACEUR requests, and the NAC approves, the early deployment of the initial C3 package and other Phase 1 actions prior to NAC approval of OPLAN 40104 and a NAC decision to execute the remaining phases of the withdrawal operation.

2. (U) Background.

a. ~~(C)~~ There is general consensus that negotiations have stalled and renewed warfare in Bosnia (and Croatia) this Spring is likely. This is not to detract from the importance of continuing to pursue negotiations as the only means of preventing a resumption of fighting, but reflects the realities of the situation. Since the same pre-positioning is required for either peace plan implementation or withdrawal support, NATO military authorities desire to take prudent military measures to support either eventuality.

b. ~~(C)~~ The following confluence of factors supports the need to be ready to conduct an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia in April/May 1995: the expiration of the UNPROFOR mandate in Croatia (31 March), the expiration of the four month cessation of hostilities agreement (30 April), the Bosnian government push to give the Bosnian Serbs a 2 month deadline to start negotiations or return to open warfare, the next sanctions renewal review (late April), and the return of good weather when Spring arrives.

c. ~~(C)~~ Final MC and NAC approval of OPLAN 40104 could take several weeks. If approval is unduly delayed SACEUR may request the NAC to authorize the deployment of the C3 package and other Phase 1 actions in advance of OPLAN approval and a decision to actually commence the withdrawal operation.

d. ~~(C)~~ SACEUR has established the following planning timelines for an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia: (derived from a combination of OPLAN 40104 and information provided by SACEUR)

PHASE 1 (PREPARATION) (Duration: 4 weeks, commencing 6-8 weeks prior to a NAC decision to execute the withdrawal)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

- SACEUR would request NAC approval of the OPLAN or a separate NAC decision to implement Phase 1.

- Logistic/Movement Control actions must be initiated. Deployment of pre-positioned assets provided by the US required, date uncertain. WHERE?

- Installation of C3 architecture commences. Includes deployment of pre-positioned assets provided by the US.

PHASE 2 (DEPLOYMENT OF MAIN BODY OF TROOPS BEFORE ACTUAL WITHDRAWAL OPERATIONS BEGIN) (Duration 2-4 weeks)

- The NAC decision to execute the withdrawal starts Phase 2.

- Two to four weeks are required before the initial 3 NATO brigades (2-US, 1-UK) begin operations in Bosnia.

The OPLAN estimates a decision not to deploy prepositioned C3 assets would delay the operation by about 10 days. SACEUR is reexamining this timeline and attempting to implement actions which shorten the time required for Phase 1. ||*

3. (U) Pre-positioned C3 Package Details.

a. ~~(C)~~ The C3 package, consisting of about 800 personnel and equipment (including 400 UK, 260 US, 25 French, 15 Canadians, and 20 civilian contractors), provides a full, secure military communications system with ties to theater tactical systems, NATO systems, national military systems, commercial phone systems, and the UNPROFOR system. Personnel would deploy to Mons, Belgium, 3 sites in Germany, 5 sites in Italy, and 3 sites in Croatia (Zagreb/Pleso, Split, Ploce). No personnel would be deployed to Bosnia or the Krajina as part of the initial C3 package. The number of C3 nodes to be activated during pre-positioning, the number of soldiers, and their nationalities are still being refined, as is the number of support and security troops.

b. ~~(C)~~ Included in the four week Phase 1 preparation period is the time to finalize national contributions, prepare personnel and equipment for movement, negotiate appropriate contracts for the use of civilian communications lines and satellite frequencies, and purchase off-the-shelf communications equipment to supplement the military system. It actually takes 10 days for the Seventh Signal Brigade to deploy and make the US portion of the C3 package fully operational. A decision not to pre-position the C3 package could delay the start of the operation from 10 days to 4 weeks.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

c. ~~(C)~~ The initial cost of deploying this C3 package is under $2 million. Once deployed and operational, the manpower can be reduced by about half, and it will cost about $500,000 per month to maintain operational. There is currently $14 million in the NATO peacekeeping fund. Although funding decisions have not been agreed at NATO or between NATO and the UN, it is anticipated no additional funding would be required at this time.

d. ~~(C)~~ The CINCSOUTH OPLAN 40104 C3 package supplements and interfaces with that already established for DENY FLIGHT and SHARP GUARD, and provides the dedicated communications circuits necessary to support an UNPROFOR withdrawal from both Bosnia and Croatia. The existing communications systems are not adequate for a significant ground operation.

4. ~~(C)~~ Discussion. The issues for consideration are: (a) the probability of UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia this Spring, (b) the balance between the political signals this deployment sends and the military preparations needed to carry out a successful operation, and (c) the US leadership role in NATO.

a. ~~(C)~~ There is a pessimistic consensus that the cessation of hostilities is likely to collapse and war will return to Bosnia this Spring.

b. ~~(C)~~ Tudjman is serious about not renewing the UNPROFOR mandate. UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia will probably lead to Croat-Krajina Serb fighting, which could spill over into Bosnia.

c. ~~(C)~~ Pre-positioning the C3 package is a prudent military action to prepare for a timely UNPROFOR withdrawal operation. Should a peace agreement be reached, NATO is better prepared for peace plan implementation. If the status quo continues, the C3 package is small enough that it can be repositioned and the experience factored into future planning.

d. ~~(C)~~ A significant military concern is the deployment of US signal, logistic, transport, and engineering assets for a NATO operation prior to NAC approval of the OPLAN and determination of D-Day. These assets would be unavailable for other contingencies while committed to NATO. The effect on readiness must be weighed against the risks involved in lengthening the OPLAN's deployment schedule. The requirement to pre-position logistical, transportation, movement control, and engineer assets during Phase 1 has not been determined.

e. ~~(C)~~ Pre-positioning will send several signals: NATO is serious about taking meaningful action, NATO supports UNPROFOR, and that UNPROFOR is serious about leaving if war breaks out. Careful control of these signals is required to ensure the proper message is sent. These signals could prompt the warring parties to get serious about coming to a negotiated settlement, or precipitate action by one or both sides.

f. ~~(C)~~ Other options short of pre-positioning to speed implementation after a NAC decision to execute include:

- Pre-stage required assets for prepositioning at home bases.
- Pre-position assets required in Belgium, Germany, and Italy and pre-stage those assets required for pre-positioning in Croatia.

g. ~~(C)~~ Since the President has already committed to US participation in an UNPROFOR withdrawal, including the use of ground troops, the deployment of several hundred communications personnel outside the high threat area is a low profile, low risk, high gain decision. It would show US leadership in the Alliance and send a signal that NATO is serious about supporting UNPROFOR.

5. (U) Recommendations.

a. ~~(C)~~ Inform SACEUR that the US government will approve the concept of pre-positioning the initial C3 package, including US personnel, and other Phase 1 actions prior to final NAC decisions on OPLAN 40104 approval and execution of the remaining phases of the withdrawal operation when the issue is formally raised and approved at the NAC.

b. ~~(C)~~ Provide guidance to the US Mission to NATO to support discussions on prepositioning with Croatian authorities to ensure NATO access to required facilities.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met to review efforts to obtain Serbian recognition of Bosnia, Croatia and other former Yugoslav republics within their existing borders in exchange for sanctions relief (Plan B) and to review military planning for UNPROFOR withdrawal and Croatia. (S)

2. Deputies reviewed the results of last week's Contact Group efforts on mutual recognition and reaffirmed Principals' decision that we should not agree to any further sanctions relief or other measures that would "sweeten" the offer now under consideration. They agreed it would be helpful to create uncertainty in

Milosevic's and Allies' minds about how long U.S. support for broad sanctions relief could be sustained. Deputies directed Ambassador Frasure to inform our European Contact Group partners before their meeting with Milosevic on February 23 that the U.S. had gone as far as it could in offering sanctions relief and that it was unclear how long our support for Plan B would remain in effect. (Action: State) (S)

3. Deputies agreed that prospects for success were low for achieving mutual recognition in exchange for sanctions relief. However, in the event Milosevic attempted to enter new negotiations aimed at modifying the Plan B proposal, serious sanctions-related issues remained and further Deputies' or Principals' review would be required. They decided that no further negotiations beyond the proposal now on the table could begin without further review by the Deputies. Deputies deferred decision on how long to leave Plan B on the table until a review of overall policy is completed next week. (S)

4. Deputies discussed the results of recent diplomatic efforts in Croatia aimed at retaining UNPROFOR or a remodeled UNPROFOR as a deterrent to renewed fighting. They agreed that the approaching UNPROFOR mandate expiration on March 31, and the possibility of renewed hostilities thereafter in the Krajina, could be the catalyst for new fighting elsewhere in the region. Deputies directed that a strategy be promptly developed that outlines how to deal with Tudjman in the run-up to the March 31 UNPROFOR mandate expiration and steps that can be taken to retain an international force of some type as a deterrent to renewed fighting. (Action: State) (S)

5. Deputies discussed how to fulfill Principals' request for a review of potential scenarios to frame policy choices likely to be faced in the next 2-3 months should diplomatic efforts fail to achieve a negotiated settlement. They directed the Interagency Working Group to complete the review by February 27 for subsequent Deputies' and Principals' consideration. The review should include estimated time-lines for events on the ground in Bosnia, Croatia and neighboring areas; an analysis of U.S. interests, objectives and priorities; allied and Congressional attitudes; and U.S. policy options. A process for completion of the study should be presented to Deputies on February 27. (Action: NSC/Interagency Working Group) (S)

6. Deputies reviewed the status of efforts at the United Nations to strengthen UNPROFOR. They agreed to support the current UN request for logistics and engineering equipment as outlined in the JCS paper. Noting the uncertainty of UNPROFOR's future, Deputies deferred decision on more robust options until the policy options review is completed. (Action: JCS) (S)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

7. Deputies reviewed the state of military planning to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia and Croatia. They agreed to defer decisions on Step Two prepositioning until DoD completes an internal review of the overall military operational plan and presents a recommendation to Principals. Deputies also deferred discussion of funding options pending completion of the DoD review of the operational plan. (Action: DoD) (S)

8. Deputies deferred discussion and decision on providing training for the Bosnian forces until the policy options review is completed. (S)

MEMORANDUM FOR TONY LAKE

FROM: LEON FUERTH

SUBJECT: Controlling Release of FRY Frozen Assets under Plan B

One of the most important implementation issues underlying the Contact Group's Plan B offer to Milosevic is how to manage release of frozen assets. If the international community fails to handle this issue properly, Milosevic could get a massive infusion of cash that he can use to rectify his economy's most pressing problems or -- if the worst happens in Croatia or Bosnia -- finance a Serbian spring offensive. In the longer term, a maladroit release of assets will also give Milosevic significant advantage over the other Yugoslav successor states by helping him increase his creditworthiness while saddling others with a disproportionate share of outstanding Yugoslav debt.

Blocked assets include bank deposits, credits, debts, real estate and tangible property. We have a good idea of what is frozen in the U.S., but it is less clear how much is held by other governments as many were not as rigorous as we were in seizing assets in the first place and some have since allowed the Serbs to draw on frozen accounts to buy humanitarian goods.

Issues to address in releasing blocked assets include

- determining ownership (successor state issues are not yet settled)

- paying depositors, creditors, and other claimants (the Yugoslav institutions and firms whose assets were frozen owed a lot of money to a lot of people -- including numerous U.S. citizens and firms; those creditors have valid claims for payment if assets are unfrozen)

- payment of war reparations and other penalties

The U.S. Government should seek a thorough international inventory of frozen assets as a first step to their orderly distribution. Then, there should be a meeting of financial and banking experts to discuss how to unblock assets with due provision for the rights of successor states and creditors. We should continue to insist on resolution language mandating that assets not be released until ownership is resolved and legal rights of successor states, creditors, and other claimants are protected.

Remember that Milosevic is a banker. He will find it hard to object to such a process, while he certainly will be quick to take advantage of any openings we give him. So long as our approach requires that claims of others be adjudicated, the time frame for releasing frozen assets is relatively long, which tends to deny Milosevic short-term access for purposes we might find objectionable and preserves some leverage for settling other issues.

Implementing Plan B

Conditions for sanctions relief	Requirements to enforce conditions
Addressed in 2/15 CG Proposal
FRY recognition... must be genuine and unequivocal	• Clear definition of "genuine and unequivocal" recognition • Link definition to SC procedures for suspending and reimposing sanctions
Sanctions suspension for 2 month periods, positive SC vote needed for renewal each time	Unambiguous language in SC resolution suspending sanctions
Sanctions enforcement regime against FRY(S&M) must remain in place to allow quick reimposition of full sanctions	• SAMs structure remains in place • Front-line states retain enforcement mechanisms
Restrictions beyond UNSC resolutions to remain in force (no IFI assistance, no UN seat, no readmission to OSCE)	Agreement among CG that these items should be held back as long-term leverage against settlement of region's underlying security problems (e.g.: Kosovo, War Crimes Tribunal)
Significant toughening of monitoring regime on FRY borders with Bosnia and Croatia (more monitors and more equipment)	European agreement to deploy additional monitors and equipment
Sanctions relief to go into effect only after border is more tightly closed and Europeans have deployed additional monitors	Agreed definition of "acceptable" level of closure and monitoring
FRY continues to support CG plan for Bosnia	Links to reimposition and extension language in resolution
FRY endorses principles of Z-4 plan	Links to reimposition and extension language in resolution
NOT Addressed 2/15 CG Proposal
Mechanism for immediate revocation of sanctions relief if FRY reneges	Unambiguous language in SC resolution stipulating conditions under which sanctions relief would be revoked
Closing the "Back Door:" Goods reaching Pale via Croatian and GOBH territory threaten to make FRY border closure irrelevant	• GOC and GOBH commitment to control trade with Pale Serbs; plus CG/international agreement to control trade on Croatia/Bosnia border (or to cut off both Pale and Knin Serbs) • Support (monitors, technical assistance) for GOC and GOBH • Clarify UNPROFOR role
Protecting interests of successor states and other claimants as financial sanctions are suspended	Agreement that assets will not be released until successor state, creditor, and other claimants concerns have been addressed
Prohibiting trade facilitation agreements with the FRY	Trade preferences and other agreements should be included in the list of non-UNSC sanctions cited above

INFORMATION PAPER

1. Purpose. To provide information on the status of United Nation's efforts to strengthen UNPROFOR and a recommendation on the way ahead.

2. Key Points.

- The Deputies Committee has reiterated its support for strengthening UNPROFOR but requested more information on UN intentions, objectives, rationale, and operational impact.

- The UN's objective is to implement the Cessation of Hostilities (COH). The rationale is that the COH is the best mechanism for achieving a negotiated political settlement in Bosnia. If the COH fails, UNPROFOR withdrawal may follow. The operational impact of this uncertainty between strengthening and withdrawal is that the UN is accepting some offers made pursuant to the Hague initiative, but holding on others. Therefore, the UN intends to wait on the outcome of Cessation of Hostilities implementation (agreed zones of separation and heavy weapons exclusion zones) before committing to strengthening UNPROFOR with more robust capabilities. The UN does not support using more robust means to ensure the delivery of humanitarian aid.

- The UN has accepted offers of transport helicopters for the mobility they have long desired. Transport helos have been offered by UK (6 LYNX, 6 GAZELLE, and 3 CHINOOK), and France (4 PUMA and 6 GAZELLE). Netherlands transport helos are not required by the UN at this time according to UNDPKO.

- The UN has also accepted all offers of UNMOs (100 requested, 128 offered).

- The US offer of night vision devices has been formally accepted (USUN 040129Z Jan 95).

- The UN has agreed to accept the 58 oversnow vehicles offered by Sweden.

- The UN is requesting more information from nations which offered engineering equipment. France offered 300 combat engineers and Indonesia has offered an engineering battalion. The UN has formally requested more information from the USG on the 20 bulldozers, 10 roadgraders, and 50 dump trucks we offered, specifically with regard to spares (data provided to UN on 17 Feb 95). The UN probably assumes they will need all

• Regarding infantry, mech infantry, and APC offers, the UN has put a "hold" on accepting offers until a clearer picture emerges on COH implementation. "Hold" means the UN is planning to accept the offers if the COH or similar peace plan is implemented. They are gathering information, but not committing to accept the offers until they know if UNPROFOR will withdraw or remain.

- The UN Department of Peace Operations has informed the USUN that the UN is "unable to accept our offer" of 14 AH-1s and 5 OH-58s, per UN FAX dated 16 Feb 95.

• The spread sheet attached displays all offers made by UNPROFOR troop contributors since the CHODs met at the Hague in December 94.

• The status of the UN requests for US offered equipment follows, cost are per DSAA, based on 10 month lease costs:

--NVGs-UN officially requested price and availability - estimated costs for 130 PVS-5B and 20 PVS-5C:
-sale=$645,000 CSP=$11,947
-lease=$35,850 CSP-$11,947
-CSP = Concurrent Spare Parts

--APCs-officially turned down- USUN 090003Z Jan 95

--Heavy engineer equipment-UN officially requested price and availability:

-- 20 D-7 dozers-sale=$289,300,CSP=$19,380
-lease=$80,400,CSP=$19,380
-- Available from POMCUS in Europe
-- Condition Code A (serviceable)

-- 50 Dump trucks-sale=$505,000,CSP=$167,500
-lease= 0, beyond 75% of service life
-- Available from POMCUS in Europe
-- 43 are in Europe
- 31 Code B (unserviceable/mixed condition)
- 12 Code F (requires repair/overhaul)
-- 7 remaining available from excess at Ft Devens.
-- No repair facility available in Europe
-- Cost to repair in CONUS = $2M
-- Army looking for a less costly repair plan

-- 10 Scrapers-sale=$476,720,CSP=$31,940
-lease=$$6,300,CSP=$31,940
-- Available from POMCUS in Europe

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- Condition Code A

-- Mobile Training Team cost = $300,000
-- 10 soldiers for 65 days in-country

--AH-1s- UN turned down USG offer on 16 Feb 95

--AN/PPS-5s and PPS-15s-officially requested data on training / maintenance package and costs. DSAA gathering data.

3. Recommendation. Provide costing data and equipment which the UN has requested. Encourage UN to develop priorities and plan to reinforce UNPROFOR, if the COH or similar peace plan is implemented.

FUNDING UNPROFOR WITHDRAWAL: CHOICES AND DYNAMICS

SHAPE has prepared a document, NATO Withdrawal Budget Estimates (1995), dated 31 January 1995, that provides preliminary cost estimates for the implementation of SHAPE/AFSOUTH OPLAN 40104, DETERMINED EFFORT, a NATO-conducted withdrawal of UNPROFOR from Croatia and Bosnia-Hercegovina. The OPLAN does not consider evacuation of assets currently stationed in the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia.

According to the SHAPE estimate, OPLAN 40104 will take six months to execute, involve a multi-national force of approximately 70,000 ground, air and naval personnel, and cost approximately $1.9B at minimum. This cost estimate breaks down as follows: about $515M for NATO common costs (i.e., common procurement and O&M costs); $1.4B in national costs (personnel, equipment and sustainment costs for all troop-contributing nations); and $37.2M for the evacuation of 31,000 UNPROFOR personnel, 9,400 vehicles and related equipment.

Organizations involved in military operations in and around the former Republic of Yugoslavia have not developed a single, common, standardized funding mechanism for defraying costs because of the current division of operational control. Funding arrangements have been primarily threefold: (1) "blue helmet" operational costs paid through the UN's assessment system; (2) NATO members "paying their own way" for costs associated with their forces supporting the UN Security Council mandate (e.g., SHARP GUARD and DENY FLIGHT); and (3) NATO using its Military Budget to pay NATO common costs.

A detailed funding mechanism for UNPROFOR withdrawal, that can be agreed to by the various organizations involved, will have to be devised to ensure the success of the operation. There are four possible options (all costs use OPLAN estimates as a base).

UN Funding Option: This option would entail the UN paying for all costs associated with the operation to include military and civilian elements engaged in planning, execution or support. It uses the standard UN peacekeeping assessment process which assesses member states for a percentage share of the total operational costs. U.S. share would be 30.4%, or approximately $590M plus the incremental costs for forces and other support paid up front, less any reimbursements. Each country contributing to the operation would be required to pay incremental costs up front and be reimbursed by the UN for personnel and other support later.

"Pay-Your-Own Way" Option: This option entails each participating nation, organization, and non-governmental organization, paying its own evacuation costs without the expectation of reimbursement from another organization. The cost to the U.S. would be contingent upon the level of support the U.S. furnished (number of personnel, airlift, CAS, etc.). UN members, including the U.S. may also be assessed for the cost of evacuating the non-NATO troops UNPROFOR troops if this costs was borne by the UN. The estimated cost to the U.S. using this approach is $600M to $1B for incremental costs associated with operational support..

NATO Funding Option: NATO members would be obligated to pay the entire cost of the operation. It currently pays for only common costs in FRY through its Military Budget. NATO accounts have never been used before to carry the full cost of a military operation. One approach to funding the operation would be to use the NATO national cost share formula to set the assessment rate for each NATO member (U.S. share 25% or approximately $490M plus the incremental costs for operational support minus any reimbursements). This approach assumes also that non-NATO UNPROFOR nations would not be assessed by NATO for the accrued costs. Each NATO nation contributing forces and support would pay its own incremental costs up front. Later reimbursement by NATO is problematic.

"Hybrid Option": This option uses two approaches. Non-NATO UN member states pay for a portion of the total cost of the operation at their regular UN peacekeeping rate (non-NATO UN member assessments total 32% of the UN peacekeeping budget). These costs would be paid into a UN fund that would be used to fund the cost of non-NATO forces in the operation and UN administrative and support costs. NATO nations would pay the other portion and not be assessed by the UN, but pay under the NATO national cost share formula described above. The cost to the U.S. under this approach would be approximately $330M plus incremental operational support costs less reimbursements. If the operational cost was allocated based on the proportion on NATO and non-NATO troop strength, the U.S. cost may be reduced to $225M (plus incremental support costs less reimbursements) since 54% of the UNPROFOR troops are non-NATO.

NATO and the UN have been discussing cost sharing arrangements for funding a potential withdrawal operation for several months, with no tangible results. Indeed, in recent correspondence to NATO SYG Claes, UN SYG Boutros-Ghali stated his assumption that, in the case of an UNPROFOR withdrawal, NATO would bear the costs. NATO Permanent Representatives were sharply critical of this position, and agreed that SYG Claes would tell Boutros-Ghali that funding arrangements for such an operation were to be the subject of future negotiations between the two organizations.

While NATO has set no specific timetable for entering into these negotiations, military planning factors and operational timing requirements may play a significant role in determining the final funding scheme. They therefore merit serious consideration in the overall context of this evolving situation.

SACEUR indicates that he must have a pre-positioned command and control/logistics infrastructure in place to execute the OPLAN. His preference is that this operating base be established prior to execution of any withdrawal operation, and in light of agreed ministerial political, military and financial guidance (i.e., formal funding arrangements). SHAPE planners estimate that it will take about three to four weeks to establish the pre-positioned support structure after a political decision to execute has been rendered by NATO Ministers.

However, if SACEUR must establish his operating base on a contingency basis (i.e., as outlined in OPLAN 40104, but without final agreement between NATO and the UN on some issues, like funding arrangements), the US government (as a NATO and UN member) may have no alternative but to accept a de facto funding arrangement (a la "Pay-Your-Own-Way"), which would leave us little hope or expectation of being reimbursed for accrued costs.

Since the Croatian government has declared 31 March the expiration date of the UN mandate there, planning, negotiations and decision making on formal funding arrangements between NATO and the UN must begin soon, lest events foreclose available options.

Congress of the United States

Washington, DC 20515

February 17, 1995

The President
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

We are writing to urge immediate action by you on the war in Bosnia. While diplomats talk in the wake of former President Carter's visit to the region, there is strong reason to believe that the Bosnian Serbs will continue to reject peace. If the war in Bosnia resumes full scale, we do not believe the situation will continue as it has for the last three years. UNPROFOR's already weakened position will become even more untenable, and pressure for its withdrawal will increase.

In the event of either significant Serbian escalation or of UNPROFOR withdrawal, the case for ending the international arms embargo of Bosnia becomes even more compelling. We trust that, in such circumstances, your Administration would move expeditiously to end the United Nations embargo. Should that not be possible, however, we would expect the Congress to vote to unilaterally end participation by the United States in the embargo.

In any event, the United States has an obligation to prepare for the most likely scenarios in Bosnia. If the embargo is to be ended, either multilaterally or unilaterally, we will want to see direct U.S. involvement in the conflict held to a minimum. The surest way to minimize direct U.S. involvement after the embargo is ended is to act now to train the pro-government forces in strategy and tactics and the use of some of the weapons they are likely to obtain.

Such training would reduce the risk to the pro-government forces of any preemptive Serbian offensive, and would be an alternative to sending U.S. forces into Bosnia to provide training after the embargo is ended. Such training should be provided outside of Bosnia in order to avoid any risk to U.S. trainers. We understand that such training can be provided at a small fraction of the cost we currently are paying for the U.N. peacekeeping operation in Bosnia, and that it could be completed in less than six months. We also understand that the government of Bosnia and Hercegovina would welcome such training, and indeed already has submitted a formal request to you in this regard.

There can be no question about your authority to direct the provision of such training. Section 1404 of the 1995 Defense Department Authorization Act (the so-called Nunn-Mitchell provision) required the Administration to present options to the Congress for training the pro-government forces in Bosnia. Other provisions of law, including section 503 of the National Security Act of 1947, give you authority to deliver such training. Further, the provision of such training by the United States would not violate existing Security Council resolutions or relevant principles of international law.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

We believe you should take this step in order to be better prepared for the likely next phase of the war in Bosnia and in order to reduce the likelihood that U.S. forces will become directly involved in that war. It is important to note, however, that a program of training the pro-government forces in Bosnia would give the United States additional leverage in the ongoing negotiations with the Bosnian Serbs. Beginning a training program now would make clear to the Bosnian Serbs our determination to bring about a just and sustainable peace, and would underscore to them the probable cost of prolonging the conflict.

In other words, in the hands of able diplomats, a policy of training the pro-government forces for war could prove to be a powerful instrument for bringing about peace.

For all these reasons, we urge you to initiate promptly a program of military training for the pro-government forces in Bosnia and Hercegovina.

Sincerely,

BOB DOLE

DECL:OADR

SUPPORT FOR THE FEDERATION - 505 AGREEMENT

I. PURPOSES FOR DEPUTIES COMMITTEE

- Decide if the Government of Bosnia Herzegovina (GoBH) can sign the broad 505 agreement they now have so that international military and educational training (IMET) to support the Federation may begin.

- Approve the strategy to win support for this decision from our NATO and Contact Group allies.

II. OPTIONS

Option 1 (Recommended): Ask Prime Minister Siladjic to confirm the GoBH notification to our embassy that the Bosnians are ready to sign the broad draft 505 given them so that already-approved IMET training can commence.

PRO: A broad 505 agreement would give the EUR military consultant (replacing General Galvin as Special Representative to the Bosnian Federation armed forces) a tool he can use in negotiations trying to bring two mutually suspicious armed forces closer together. His capacity to get anything done will depend on being able to draw on a full range of DoD programs, consistent with the clear understanding that, after a Presidential determination is signed, we will not transfer anything that violates the embargo.

Signing a broad agreement would signal our support without committing us to furnish excess defense articles (EDA) at this time; a Presidential determination is required to make a country eligible for transfers of defense articles (enforced by policy precedent) and the UN arms embargo limits EDA. (We are awaiting a GoBH short list of items they need in order to obtain an interagency legal opinion on which items could be furnished under the arms embargo.)

Asking the GoBH to limit the 505 agreement to IMET only after they have been given a broad draft could be perceived as a diminuation of USG support for the Federation, our current policy and could anger Congress which sees support for the Federation as vital to Balkan peace efforts.

CON: NATO and Contact Group allies may perceive signing this broad 505 agreement as a USG move toward unilaterally lifting the arms embargo, particularly if the singular nature of the agreement is publicized. We would need to carefully explain our position to counter this perception.

Option 2: Ask Prime Minister Siladjic to sign a revised 505 agreement limited to IMET only, explaining the draft which he was shown was in error and we intended to be consistent with agreements presented to Slovenia, FYROM, and Croatia.

PRO: Broad 505 agreements are, in general, not concluded until such time as we have identified specific defence articles we want to transfer to a given country.

Allies are worried, with Congressional legislation still to preclude most types of military assistance, arms to the GoBH, and singling out the GoBH to sign an agreement including all military equipment sales, lease or draw-down which was refused to other Eastern European countries could be misinterpreted.

Providing IMET signals support for the Federation; we should be honest and tell the GoBH we mistakenly gave the wrong legal document needed to make this training happen.

CON: We cannot risk signalling any withdrawal of support for the Federation at this crucial time in negotiations. It is both easier and less risky to quietly allow the GoBH to sign the agreement they have already been given, and explain, if Allies ask, that nothing more than IMET can be given without further steps such as a Presidential determination which we do not intend to take at this time.

III. BACKGROUND

Before any military assistance (defense articles or related training or other defense services) may be furnished to a foreign country, Section 505 of the Foreign Assistance Act requires that certain assurances from the recipient country be obtained concerning use, retransfer and security of any articles, training, or services provided. These assurances are contained in an exchange of diplomatic notes which constitute an international agreement between the U.S. and the "potential recipient country." These assurances normally cover the full range of military assistance. However, throughout Central Europe and the FSU, we have initiated IMET programs before progressing to other levels of military assistance. In such cases, we have limited our 505 agreement with a given country to cover only IMET. Broader 505 agreements are, in general, not concluded until such time as we have identified specific defence articles we want to transfer to a given country. It is important to note that a 505 agreement does not commit the U.S. to providing military assistance either in general or in a specific form. Rather, it is only done in order to meet a statutory precondition to providing such assistance.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

For Bosnia, we need a 505 agreement before we can begin the International Military Education and Training (IMET) program approved as one of a number of things that can be done within current U.S. law and policy (in particular compliance with the UN arms embargo) to be supportive of the development of the armed forces of the Bosnian Federation. A Presidential determination that furnishing military assistance to a particular country will strengthen the security of the U.S. and promote worldwide peace is an additional statutory precondition to providing most types of military assistance.

While for legal reasons this 505 agreement would be signed by the Government of Bosnia Herzegovina (GoBH) as well as by the Federation, the cooperation would be intended for the Federation armed forces. (Note: The 505 agreement itself has no means to enforce this intention to provide support to the Federation but agreements to transfer specific equipment can be written to limit the use of the goods or services to the Federation armed forces rather than the GoBH national army.)

Broad 505 Agreement Given to GoBH

Limited 505 agreements for IMET only have been signed with Slovenia and Macedonia, and is pending with Croatia (as well as initially with all other CE states). We have also signed a broad non-binding defense cooperation agreement with Croatia (as well as several other CE states). A broad draft 505 agreement (sufficient for provision of IMET, lethal, and non-lethal EDA) was given to the GoBH; it was made clear that transfers under the agreement would be limited by the UN arms embargo.

IV. CONSULTATIONS WITH ALLIES

We must consult closely with allies to explain that signing a broad 505 agreement, while needed for any EDA transfers or military sales, does not change our opposition to unilateral lift. We will undertake nothing beyond the provision of IMET without obtaining a Presidential determination requiring Congressional notification for Bosnia. We do not plan to ask for this determination at this time.

We should portray the agreement as a necessary but not sufficient bureaucratic hurdle. While it momentarily singles out the Federation from among former Yugoslav countries (and even some Eastern European ones) as being more "worthy" of U.S. support, we would not object should others demand the same agreement with the same limitations.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met to discuss our strategy for dealing with Croatia in the run-up to the March 31 UNPROFOR mandate expiration date. They requested that the State strategy paper be expanded to include a list of incentives and disincentives designed to obtain a positive decision from President Tudjman on retaining UNPROFOR or a similar force. The paper should include options and recommended alternatives to UNPROFOR that we would subsequently propose to Tudjman, in addition to the five-point mandate presented to the Croatians in January. Additionally, Deputies asked that the disincentives include specific areas of U.S. and European assistance that we might threaten to suspend if

Tudjman refuses to retain UNPROFOR in the separation zone, as well as possible carrots to induce his cooperation. The paper should be circulated NLT OOB Thursday, March 2, for consideration by the Deputies that afternoon. (Action: State with JCS input) (S)

2. Deputies discussed the issue of prepositioning NATO communications assets to support a NATO-led operation to withdraw UNPROFOR from Bosnia and/or Croatia. Deputies agreed that the issue should be presented to the Principals this week with two options. Option One would authorize U.S. support for prepositioning now as a precautionary move without prejudice to possible future decisions regarding UNPROFOR withdrawal, U.S. participation, and the funding for such actions. Option Two would defer a decision on prepositioning until the military operational plan is reviewed and Congressional authorization and funding have been obtained. Deputies directed that an options paper be circulated NLT OOB Thursday, March 2, for Deputies' review that afternoon and Principals' review Friday, March 3. (Action: JCS/NSC) (S)

3. Deputies deferred discussion on the NSC-staff paper "Former Yugoslavia Policy Review" until their next meeting on March 2. For those discussions, they requested a supporting paper outlining options for beefing-up Macedonia should UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or renewed fighting threaten to expand the conflict. The paper, to include alternative agency views, should be circulated NLT OOB Thursday, March 2. (Action: OSD) (S)

DRAFT

CROATIA STRATEGY

Tudjman's gambit is not working. The Krajina Serbs are not blinking, and if Milosevic is scared, he is not showing it. Tudjman is keeping his own counsel, but appears to be blundering into a war that could bring Serb troops back into Croatia, destroy the Bosnia cease-fire, and involve U.S. troops on the ground in a volatile operation to rescue UNPROFOR.

War need not be inevitable in Croatia, particularly if we make sure that fighting remains a bad option for every side. What is inevitable after Tudjman's decision is an end to today's UNPROFOR and a transition to some successor force. Our goal is to keep the lid on Croatia by slowing and stabilizing this transition. That means when we ask Tudjman to keep key elements of UNPROFOR in place -- i.e. the interpositional force -- we cannot afford to take no for an answer.

Our strategy would consist of three segments:

(1) a full-court press to get Zagreb to be flexible;

(2) pre-positioning of NATO forces when needed;

(3) establishment of UNPROFOR Lite when there is time to do it right, including obtaining necessary Serb consent.

(Technically, the UNSC could use Chapter VII authority to keep UNPROFOR without all parties' consent. That, however, would depart from the Vance Plan, agreed to by the Serbs and Croats.)

Approaching Tudjman

We need to coordinate our approach with Germany -- the other country to which Tudjman pays attention. We should make this approach quickly -- within the next week -- to give Tudjman time to dodge the cannonball he has launched at himself. A U.S.-German effort is also a powerful message to the Croatian public that Tudjman backed down under duress.

Our focus with Tudjman must be to demand that the interpositional force in the separation zone remain in place. Without it, the cease-fire could quickly break down. With agreement on this point, the other UNPROFOR elements we have identified as essential should not prove difficult to preserve (perhaps re-packaged to help Tudjman politically). While we must deal with Croatian concerns about becoming another Cyprus, we must make clear that Zagreb has no choice but to accede to American/German pressure this time.

~~SECRET/NODIS~~

Key arguments for Zagreb would include the following (draft talking points at Tab A). An end to separation zone monitoring makes war virtually inevitable. Continued Croatian refusal to allow peacekeepers to patrol the DMZ would be a reckless act, ending our year-long policy of cooperation with Croatia. Zagreb must choose between sticking patiently with the West or impatiently confronting the Serbs alone. We cannot help Zagreb without more time to work with. Tudjman will chafe at the message, but it will help him face down his military advisers and domestic critics.

In demanding an extension of the interpositional force, we should work with Tudjman on his political needs, e.g. give UNPROFOR another name or pursue a token international force to patrol Croatia's external borders, symbolizing for the Croatian public that the international community will not tolerate a Western Serb Republic. (The Serbs may permit a token force as the price for keeping UNPROFOR between them and the HV.)

The Croats may refuse to accept Akashi as the man in charge of the UN force, or of those forces involved with Croatia per se. If so, we should seek his replacement before bringing in another organization to do a trial run at peacekeeping.

Contingency preparations

Given the overwhelming domestic sentiment in Croatia to "kick out" UNPROFOR, a major redeployment out of the UNPAs is unavoidable at some point. Serb statements on whether they would allow this are ambiguous, so a NATO rescue mission could be needed even if all of UNPROFOR does not pull out. NATO requires several weeks to pre-position forces offshore (with a few communicators on the ground) in order to mount an extraction in Croatia.

Pre-positioning should not begin until after our full-court press with Zagreb is underway. Otherwise, we risk undermining the message to Tudjman (and the rest of the world) that we are trying to keep UNPROFOR in place. Also, our next approaches to Zagreb may buy UNPROFOR several months additional time.

If Zagreb's response to our warning demarche merits it, we would give the go-ahead for pre-positioning. This would be prudent to avoid the human and diplomatic casualties of a NATO scramble to help allied troops in trouble. It could also have a sobering effect on the parties, sending the message that we think a new Serbo-Croat conflict is brewing and they should reconsider their positions before it is too late.

~~SECRET/NODIS~~

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Pre-positioning would help the Serbs realize that they can no longer count on the West to get Tudjman to back down, and they would not want NATO forces deployed against them. Zagreb could use the resulting renewed attention on Croatia as a fig leaf for compromise on UNPROFOR renewal. We should also warn Zagreb that its relations with the West will be strained if its actions force NATO to land ground troops in Croatia.

What does that mean?

Negotiations on a successor UNPROFOR

Coming up with the right recipe for UNPROFOR Lite will be complicated, involving negotiation among the parties, UN Secretariat, and key UNSC members. We will have to seek additional time to work out details of a successor force and manage the transition on the ground. Croatia has already given UNPROFOR through June 30 to effect withdrawal. Exploiting this opening to seek further extension will help the Croats keep their cool even as the snow and cease-fire melt in Bosnia.

We should also work on creating a serious negotiating track to restore Croatian sovereignty in return for autonomy in the areas where the Serbs comprise a majority. Failure to do so has been a major source of Zagreb's frustration. One reason Tudjman withdrew consent for UNPROFOR was concern that the international community was not paying attention. Once we have succeeded in keeping the interpositional force in place, our message to Belgrade and Knin must be swift: negotiate on the basis of the twin principles of Croatian sovereignty and Serb autonomy or do not expect us to help you.

What is our leverage?

Messages to Knin and Belgrade would focus on the following (draft talking points at Tab B). Zagreb's consent is required to keep UNPROFOR in place, and Serb stonewalling makes that consent almost impossible to obtain. (If appropriate) We succeeded in preserving UNPROFOR as the Krajina Serbs asked, now it is time to live up to their promise to start political talks. If Knin refuses to start political talks, outsiders can do little to uphold Serb rights. We would warn them not to harm UN peacekeepers or NATO troops being pre-positioned to assist them if necessary.

POINTS FOR ZAGREB

-- We support re-integration of the UNPAs into Croatia, but events are making that goal more distant.

-- The Serbs have reacted to your threats against Krajina by moving away from recognition and settlement talks and reinforcing Knin's ties with Belgrade and with Pale.

-- Your decision to expel UNPROFOR without a clear strategy of how to replace it or avoid war has damaged your cause.

-- To remove UNPROFOR from the separation zone would abrogate the March '94 cease-fire and spark clashes in all sectors.

-- In the resulting war, your forces would not gain a decisive victory and deter Serbia from intervening directly. ?

-- An international presence to monitor the separation zone is essential and we insist on it as a price of continued cooperation.

-- We cannot understand your recent refusal to consent to such monitoring, which Croatia has been proposing since January in the form of WEU, OSCE, or ECMM observers.

-- We are also distressed that you have not agreed to maintain other essential elements of UNPROFOR like CBM implementation and liaison with Knin.

-- In short, your actions speak louder than your words and indicate that you seek war.

-- In these circumstances we would be unable to help Croatia, although we agree that the Serbs are the main aggressors.

-- Of course we are pressuring the Serbs to negotiate, and we have avoided public criticism of Croatia as you requested.

-- The Serbs have said they would enter into political dialogue if UNPROFOR remained, and we need your cooperation to test whether they really mean this.

-- In the past year, we have enjoyed good bilateral cooperation; we would like to continue it and actively support Croatia's integration into the West.

-- But it is now up to you to demonstrate that Croatia is interested in these goals, even if they require more patience than you would like.

POINTS FOR BELGRADE AND KNIN

-- Croatia is recognized as the host country for UNPROFOR, so Zagreb's consent is required to keep it in place.

-- (if appropriate) We have succeeded in preserving UNPROFOR, and now it is time to move forward on talks with Zagreb as promised.

-- We agree with your statements that the UN presence creates stability, that more economic confidence-building is necessary, that Vance Plan provisions must be respected.

-- But it is hard to reconcile these statements with your interference with UNPROFOR, suspension of economic talks, and continued refusal to implement the Vance Plan.

-- We see little chance of getting Zagreb's continued cooperation without a positive signal from the Serb side, e.g. acceptance of international patrol of the Croatian border.

-- Given the possibility of an UNPROFOR withdrawal, we will pre-position NATO elements to assist, and we want to warn you against interfering with these forces or UNPROFOR units.

-- We are committed to human and ethnic community rights for Serbs, despite our disagreement with some policies of the Serb leadership.

-- We have advocated an ambitious plan for Krajina autonomy, but your recent actions almost guarantee UNPROFOR's withdrawal and renewed hostilities.

-- We urge you to resume your talks with Zagreb.

-- It is unrealistic to expect the international community to help people who are unwilling to help themselves reach a negotiated settlement.

Position paper

CROATIAN PROPOSALS IN REGARD TO THE TERMINATION OF UNPROFOR MANDATE

After three years of UNPROFOR passivity in the area, Croatian occupied territories have yet to be re-integrated in Croatia, as called for in the relevant UN Security Council resolutions and several peace plans; Bosnia-Herzegovina is still at war, and Serbia/Montenegro is still under sanctions. Along with recent forming of the 'joint commands' between illegal Serb entities in Croatia and Bosnia-Herzegovina, as well as repeated and resolute Belgrade's refusal to grant recognition to other successor states, this means that only a radically different approach could bring peace, stability and security to the area of South-eastern Europe.

1. In his letter to the Secretary General of the United Nations, dated January 12, 1995, the President of the Republic of Croatia, Dr. Franjo Tudman, has declared the mandate of UNPROFOR to be terminated effective March 31, 1995 at midnight, withdrawing Croatia's consent to the stationing of UNPROFOR on Croatian territory. The President's decision, later reconfirmed by both Houses of the Croatian Parliament, allows for an additional period of three months for completion of the withdrawal of UNPROFOR units from the territory of the Republic of Croatia.

Further, the President's letter strongly reconfirmed Croatia's willingness and determination to seek, first and foremost, a peaceful re-integration of all temporarily occupied Croatian territories (UNPAs), as well as a peaceful resolution of the crisis in the entire area, in full conformity with the UN Security Council resolutions and Contact Group peace proposals.

Such a long standing policy of the Republic of Croatia clearly implies that, in search for the solution, Croatia is willing and fully prepared to cooperate in good faith with the international community and is ready to consider the future role of different international fora and institutions in the re-integration of the occupied territories. ?

2. Following its decision to terminate the UNPROFOR mandate, and fully determined to continue to strive for peace, Croatia is willing to continue and press forward both the negotiations with Croatian Serbs and with the government in Belgrade. In this regard Croatia seeks full support of the international community.

In this process, Croatia's essential aims are : a) peaceful re-integration of the occupied territories; b) adequate normalisation of relations among all the successor states, and in particular Croatia's relations with Serbia/Montenegro as a most important requirement for the lasting peace in the region; and c) full cooperation and support of Contact Group peace endeavours in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

3. If proper conditions are created and the right signals sent to the authorities in Belgrade and to Croatian Serbs, the active participation of the international community could lead to a peaceful resolution of the problems. For such a development the following necessary preconditions are : unconditional recognition of Croatia by Serbia/Montenegro as a clear proof that Serbia and Montenegro are giving up the occupation of Croatian territories; full respect of the internationally recognized borders; observance of international law governing relations among states; acceptance of the existing Contact Group peace proposal for Bosnia/Herzegovina; and the elaborated system of mutually dependent sanctions and incentives for the sides concerned.

Such a new stage in re-integration would then open the way to full normalisation of Croato-Serbian relations, and enable Croatia to play even more constructive role in bringing forth the lasting peace to Bosnia-Herzegovina.

4. Croatia has signed the cease fire agreement and a number of other, so called economic, agreements with Croatian Serbs. Croatia is willing to proceed with the normalisation of relations with Serbia/Montenegro in accordance with the Joint Declarations of September 30 and October 20, 1992 and Geneva Declaration of January 19, 1994 under the auspices of Co-chairmen of the ICFY. A part of that process is the planned, but yet to be scheduled visit of the Croatian Minister of Foreign Affairs to Belgrade.

5. The President of the Republic of Croatia has publicly agreed to attend the Summit proposed by France, under the auspices of the Contact Group, provided that the summit is properly prepared and desired results (especially as elaborated by the United States) are assured in advance.

6. The President of the Republic of Croatia stated that the basic principles of the so-called Z-4 Plan (i.e. territorial integrity of Croatia within its internationally recognized borders; full respect of civil and ethnic minority rights; and, the local autonomy in the region where Croatian Serbs constituted majority population according to 1991 census), are acceptable. They are already incorporated in Croatian Constitution and the Constitutional Law on Human Rights and Freedoms and the Rights of National and Ethnic Communities or Minorities in the Republic of Croatia. These constitutional provisions, which are on the highest level of international conventions, should be a framework for negotiations relative to the implementation of human and ethnic rights of Croatian Serbs and their local autonomy in certain regions of Croatia. It should be specially emphasized here that these constitutional provisions have been enacted on recommendation and upon approval of the Arbitration Commission of the International Conference on Former Yugoslavia (presided by Mr. Robert Badinter, president of the French Cour de Cassation). Croatia, however, could not accept some proposals in the Z-4, Plan which have no precedent in any system of protection of minority rights. Croatia will, within a short time, present a detailed counter-proposal on resolution of the raised issues, in full conformity with the highest standards of international conventions relating to local and cultural autonomies, as well as human rights and rights of the ethnic communities.

7. Croatia proposes that in the next several months the international community adopts and follows a more determined two-track policy.

i) Through a negotiating process such as the proposed Paris summit, and/or other proper mediation, based on an elaborate system of sanctions and incentives, the international community should strive for and ensure : (a) mutual recognition of Croatia and Serbia/Montenegro and mutual recognition among other successor states, including declaration of full respect for the international borders and specific consent to station international monitors at points where borders are being or could be violated; (b) obligation of all successor states not to resort to force or interfere into internal affairs of others, with international guarantees in this respect; (c) acceptance of the highest standards of international conventions for minority rights; (d) acceptance of the peace settlement in Bosnia-Herzegovina; (e) speeding-up of the process of succession to the SFR Yugoslavia; (f) maintaining the strategic core of the sanctions regime with the clear understanding that sanction would be suspended or eased only following full implementation of the agreements reached, but not only upon the declaration of intent to do so being issued.

ii) In regard to Croatia specifically, the international community should : (a) help to establish full control and inviolability of the Croatia's international borders; (b) fully contribute to creation of the necessary conditions and overall atmosphere conducive to implementation of the re-integration of the occupied territories, including needed forms of monitoring, of implementation of agreements and of local mediation when necessary; and (c) help further integration of Croatia into Europe (PHARE, Trade and Cooperation Agreement), as well as stabilization of Croatian economy in order to enable it to begin with the reconstruction, particularly of the war-devastated areas.

8. Fully aware of the concerns existing in different circles in regard to the possible new eruption of violence following the withdrawal of UNPROFOR, and in order to contribute to creating desired conditions as elaborated in Para. 7., Croatia further proposes that :

i) During UNPROFOR's withdrawal, NATO should by its presence ensure and guarantee not only the safety of the withdrawing UN troops, but also contribute to general stability in the occupied Croatian territories. Although no incidents are likely to occur which could lead to serious escalation of hostilities, NATO's presence would definitely discourage such events and would be a stabilizing factor in the period before the deployment of monitors and other International Task Forces which would for the time being control Croatian borders. That would also serve to alleviate the fears of international circles which are afraid of the renewal of hostilities.

ii) In the period of 6 months, NATO (or International Task Force - ITF) should be entrusted with establishing appropriate control of the Croatian internationally recognized borders in presently occupied parts of Croatia, and with opening of the major international traffic routes, on land as well as on the Danube and Sava rivers. Croatia, on its part, is willing to use that period to finalize the negotiations with Croatian Serbs regarding their cultural and ethnic autonomy and local autonomy in already mentioned regions.

ITF - consisting of personnel from (primarily) the Contact Group countries, or evolving from the initial NATO presence in Croatia - should be established and specifically mandated for duty in the Republic of Croatia by a special UN Security Council resolution for a period of six months;

iii) The Security Council resolution that shall extend the UNPROFOR mandate in the Republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina and the FRY of Macedonia, must contain operative paragraph that will explicitly state that UNPROFOR mandate in the Republic of Croatia has been terminated and is not being extended after March 31, 1995.

On March 31, 1995 the Security Council should adopt further resolution that will establish the conditions for the future international monitoring and mediation presence in the Republic of Croatia. This resolution must be in accordance with the existing Security Council resolutions confirming Croatia's territorial integrity, and be consistent with General Assembly resolution 49/43 (Situation in the Occupied Territories of Croatia). Croatia and the relevant international bodies (UN or others) shall regulate and formally establish the presence of new International Mediating and Monitoring Task Force in Croatia simultaneously with the process of UNPROFOR withdrawal, that is no later than June 30, 1995.

iv) UNPROFOR will continue to enjoy Croatia's full cooperation and support in its activities in Bosnia-Herzegovina. In this respect, Croatia is prepared to extend its full hospitality to the UNPROFOR Headquarters in Zagreb, MASH near Pleso, the logistic base in Divulje, Adriatic ports facilities and other facilities used presently by UNPROFOR. Croatia is also willing to consider the appropriate role of UNPROFOR in ensuring the normal and unimpeded land traffic needed for UNPROFOR mission in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

9. Croatia is determined to continue the existing negotiations with Croatian Serbs regarding the full re-integration of the occupied parts of Croatia provided that there is a clear and demonstrated understanding on the other side that talks on issues related to political re-integration have to be conducted in good faith. In order to (a) facilitate implementation of the already existing agreements and (b) set the stage for meaningful negotiations related to predominantly political issues of re-integration, Croatia is ready to consider the role of the international community in monitoring and further promotion of these agreements.

Croatia proposes to work out and define a proper arrangement with the European Union and the International Conference on the Former Yugoslavia (ICFY) related to a possible role of the enlarged European Union Monitoring Mission (EUMM) in monitoring the implementation of all agreements.

Croatia also welcomes possible missions of long or short duration, clearly mandated by the appropriate international institution, e.g. the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), to help at the local level in promotion and observance of minority rights and intra-communal relations in areal to be given special status according to the Croatia's Constitution and the Constitutional Law on Human Rights and Freedoms and the Rights of National and Ethnic Communities or Minorities in the Republic of Croatia.

Appropriate international institutions, best suited for specific tasks, could in that way cooperate with the Government of Croatia and Croatian Serbs in preventing conflicts and creating conditions necessary for peaceful re-integration.

Croatia is prepared to further elaborate such an arrangement and enter in arrangements with appropriate institutions.

10. In order to safeguard its rights and interests, as well as the rights and interests of other successor States, Croatia draws the attention of the relevant international factors to the particular peril connected with the easing or suspension of sanctions against Serbia and Montenegro. If these sanctions are eased or suspended, the nominal holders of title (i.e. Serbia and Montenegro - or under the name of FR of Yugoslavia) on funds, assets, interests and movable and immovable property, which are object of the succession of the former SFR of Yugoslavia, may try to unilaterally dispose of them. This is especially apparent in the case of the deposits in foreign banks which were deposited by the former National Bank of Yugoslavia as the part of federal foreign currency reserves (cca 2 billions of USD), and which are at present blocked in those foreign banks. Therefore any suspension or easing of sanctions against Serbia and Montenegro should not affect the funds, assets, interests, movable and immovable property which are objects to the succession procedure.

11. Croatia wishes first and foremost to speed-up the process of negotiations with Belgrade and with Croatian Serbs and give new and strong impetus and dynamics to the overall peace process, in particular the process of re-integration of the occupied Croatia territories.

Croatia firmly believes that its proposals constitute a peaceful way towards the resolution of the present problems, a way to the lasting peace and to the establishment of the new international order in this region.

SUMMARY: THE CROATIAN POSITION PAPER ON TERMINATION OF THE UNPROFOR MANDATE IS AN UNHELPFUL AND UNREALISTIC CONSTRUCT OF DUBIOUS VALUE TO THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY'S EFFORTS TO KEEP THE LID ON THE SITUATION IN CROATIA. IT ASSUMES THAT NATO OR ANOTHER INTERNATIONAL FORCE WILL BE PREPARED IN EFFECT TO POLICE CROATIA'S INTERNATIONAL BORDERS BY FORCE IF NECESSARY, AND IT OMITS SPECIFIC MENTION OF ANY SIGNIFICANT CONTINUED INTERNATIONAL SUPERVISION OF THE SEPARATION ZONE BETWEEN THE GOC AND REBEL SERB FORCES. THE GOC HAS ASKED FOR A CONSIDERED U.S. REACTION BEFORE IT SHOWS THE PAPER TO FRANCE (EU PRESIDENCY ON MARCH 1; ABSENT DEPARTMENT OBJECTION, WE INTEND TO GIVE THE GOC FEBRUARY 28 A FIRM RESPONSE THAT MAKES CLEAR OUR VIEW THE PAPER HAS NOTHING TO OFFER. 4. ON FEBRUARY 25, FM GRANIC SUMMONED CHARGE TO RECEIVE A CROATIAN POSITION PAPER ENTITLED "CROATIAN PROPOSALS IN REGARD TO THE TERMINATION OF UNPROFOR MANDATE," WHICH HE AND TUDJMAN HAD PROMISED EARLIER. IN PRESENTING THE PAPER, GRANIC SAID THE GOC HOPED TO RECEIVE OUR COMMENTS BY FEBRUARY 27. HE NOTED THAT THE PAPER WOULD BE GIVEN TO THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT, AS EU PRESIDENCY, ON MARCH 1.

THE GOC PROPOSALS IN BRIEF

5. AS WE UNDERSTAND THE DEPARTMENT HAS RECEIVED THE SAME PAPER FROM THE CROATIAN EMBASSY, WE ARE NOT REPRODUCING ITS TEXT HERE. ITS OPERATIVE FEATURES INCLUDE:

-- A NATO PRESENCE TO ENSURE THE WITHDRAWAL OF UNPROFOR TROOPS AND STABILIZE THE AREA UNTIL

-- NATO OR ANOTHER "INTERNATIONAL TASK FORCE" (COMPRISED MAINLY OF TROOPS PROVIDED BY CONTACT GROUP COUNTRIES) WOULD BE POSITIONED TO "ESTABLISH APPROPRIATE CONTROL OF THE CROATIAN INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNIZED BORDERS IN PRESENTLY OCCUPIED PARTS OF CROATIA,"

-- INSTITUTION, UNDER A NEW UNSC RESOLUTION, OF AN "INTERNATIONAL MEDIATING AND MONITORING TASK FORCE" IN CROATIA BY JUNE 30, 1995; AND

BADLY FLAWED

6. THE PROVERBIAL MAN FROM ANOTHER PLANET MIGHT SEE THESE PROPOSALS AS AN EARNEST ATTEMPT TO PRESERVE KEY UNPROFOR FUNCTIONS WITHOUT UNPROFOR, BUT IN OUR VIEW, TAKEN IN CONTEXT, THEY ARE FATALLY FLAWED ON AT LEAST TWO POINTS:

-- THE ROLE OF NATO: THE GOC ASSUMES, AGAINST ALL REASON AND OUR SPECIFIC ASSERTIONS TO THE CONTRARY, THAT NATO OR OTHER INTERNATIONAL FORCES WILL BE PREPARED TO TAKE CONTROL OF CROATIA'S BORDERS AND THAT IT COULD DO SO WITHOUT USE OF FORCE. WE CONSIDER THE

FORMER ASSUMPTION HIGHLY IMPROBABLE AND THE LATTER IMPOSSIBLE.

-- LACK OF AN EFFECTIVE SEPARATION ZONE: IN A SEPARATE CONVERSATION WITH DCM FEBRUARY 26, FM GRANIC CONFIRMED THAT THE GOC IS NOT/NOT WILLING TO PERMIT CEASEFIRE MONITORS EITHER TO BE ARMED OR TO BE "PERMANENTLY" POSITIONED ON THE LINE BETWEEN THE OPPOSING FORCES (SEPTEL). THUS THE GOC PAPER AT BEST LEAVES ROOM ONLY FOR UNARMED "MONITORS," TO MAKE PERIODIC TRIPS INTO THE ZONE OF SEPARATION. SUCH MONITORS WOULD BE INEFFECTIVE IN PRESERVING THE PEACE, NOR IS IT REALISTIC TO ASSUME THAT "MONITOR"-PROVIDING COUNTRIES WOULD BE WILLING TO RISK THEIR PEOPLE UNARMED. FURTHER, TUDJMAN HAS BLUNTLY SAID THERE WILL BE NO ZONE OF SEPARATION.

7. THE POLICY PAPER APPEARS TO HAVE BEEN DEVELOPED IN A VACUUM, PERHAPS TO INDICATE GOC "REASONABLENESS" WITHOUT SIGNIFICANTLY ALTERING TUDJMAN'S DECISION ON UNPROFOR AND ALL THAT IT PORTENDS. ALTHOUGH GRANIC, ZUZUL, AND OTHERS HAD GIVEN SOME HOPE EARLIER THAT WE COULD REACH AGREEMENT ON A NON-UNPROFOR UNPROFOR, THE PAPER SEEMS TO REFLECT INSTEAD PRESIDENT TUDJMAN'S CATEGORICAL INSISTENCE THAT THERE BE ENFORCED CONTROL OF CROATIA'S INTERNATIONAL BORDERS, AND NO SEPARATION ZONE. THE CALL FOR NATO DEPLOYMENT TO CONTROL THE INTERNATIONAL BORDERS OF CROATIA AS WELL AS MUCH ELSE IN THE PAPER, SUGGESTS THAT THE GOC POSITION IS NOT GROUNDED IN REALITY. WE BELIEVE THE GOC NEEDS TO BE BROUGHT TO EARTH QUICKLY.

8. WE WILL BE OFFERING SOME LONGER TERM POLICY SUGGESTIONS SEPTEL. IN THE MEANTIME, UNLESS THE DEPARTMENT INSTRUCTS US OTHERWISE BY COB FEBRUARY 27, WE PLAN TO GIVE THE CROATS A RESPONSE ON FEBRUARY 28 ALONG THE FOLLOWING LINES:

-- THE CROATIAN PAPER IS NOT LIKELY TO ATTRACT MUCH INTERNATIONAL SUPPORT. CERTAINLY WE DO NOT FIND IT COMPELLING.

-- WE CONTINUE TO BELIEVE THAT THE GOC SCENARIO IS OVERLY OPTIMISTIC WITH RESPECT TO THE PROSPECTS FOR CONTINUED PEACE, BELGRADE'S NONINTERVENTION, PROGRESS ON ECONOMIC AND OTHER AGREEMENTS, AND THE MILITARY SUCCESS OF CROATIAN FORCES (SHOULD RENEWED HOSTILITIES OCCUR).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- FURTHER, THE PAPER IS COMPLETELY UNREALISTIC IN ITS ASSESSMENT OF POSSIBLE INTERNATIONAL ACTION.

-- NATO, IF IT WERE DEPLOYED AT ALL, AND IF IT HAD TO ENTER THE UNPAS, WOULD NOT BE DOING SO TO SECURE CROATIA'S BORDERS, LET ALONE BY FORCE.

-- ANY NATO OR OTHER INTERNATIONAL ASSISTANCE TO WITHDRAW UNPROFOR WOULD BE OF EXTREMELY SHORT DURATION AND HAVE A TIGHTLY FOCUSED MISSION.

-- AS WE HAVE EXPLAINED BEFORE, THE CONTINUED MONITORING OF THE CEASE-FIRE AGREEMENT (AND HENCE THE SEPARATION ZONE) THROUGH AN ARMED, FIXED PRESENCE IS A SINE QUA NON FOR AVOIDING WAR. YOU MAY DIFFER WITH THIS ASSESSMENT, BUT OUR WILLINGNESS TO OFFER SUPPORT MUST BE BASED ON OUR ASSESSMENT.

-- WE URGE YOU AGAIN TO CONSIDER THE FIVE POINT PLAN THAT WE PRESENTED EARLIER, CONCERNING THE ESSENTIAL TASKS OF UNPROFOR THAT MUST CONTINUE TO BE PERFORMED.

FORMER YUGOSLAVIA POLICY REVIEW

Introduction

As we approach a potentially critical period in the Balkans over the next three months, now is the time to review the fundamental principles guiding our policy. U.S. policy has, in fact, had some success over the past two years in containing the spread of the war, reducing the level of violence, keeping relief supplies flowing to most areas, and maintaining cohesion with Allies and Russia. What we have been unable to produce is a political settlement in Bosnia or Croatia that rolls back Serb gains sufficiently to be acceptable to the Bosnians and Croats, and to be perceived as "fair" (much less "just") in moral terms.

The fundamental problem has been a lack of leverage: sanctions and political pressure have been insufficient to sway the Serbs, and our efforts to bring NATO air power to bear have come to naught. In Bosnia, after almost a year of effort, the Contact Group is becoming a spent force, with its unity increasingly strained. In Croatia, the Z-4 plan for a political solution is, for all intents and purposes, stillborn, and Tudjman's decision to eject UNPROFOR threatens to destroy even the limited economic confidence-building measures developed over the past year.

As the CIA paper makes clear, there is no "peace faction" among any of the parties, and Milosevic's willingness to pressure his Serb cousins is limited. If we stay on our present course, the prospects are for an escalation of the war in Bosnia and a new war in Croatia, with the potential unraveling of our limited achievements to date, and increased pressures for U.S. involvement. The differences between the optimistic and pessimistic scenarios are largely ones of timing and degree. And as the risk of war increases in Bosnia and Croatia, the dangers of spillover to other areas grow as well.

If the war escalates, the withdrawal of UNPROFOR from Croatia, Bosnia or both will become increasingly likely -- creating the prospect of U.S. troops on the ground in former Yugoslavia in a hostile environment, the outcome we have most sought to avoid. As international efforts founder, the Bosnians will be able to make an increasingly convincing case for lifting the arms embargo; yet the odds of bringing our Allies and, especially, the Russians along will remain low. Moreover, lifting the arms embargo, to be effective, entails the United States taking other actions that increase our involvement and responsibility.

Interests and Objectives

Throughout the conflict, we have sought to protect several core U.S. interests: maintaining our strategic relationship with key Allies and protecting the credibility of NATO; avoiding a conflict with Russia that could undermine our efforts to promote reform and international cooperation; preventing the spread of the Bosnian conflict into a wider Balkan war that could destabilize southeastern Europe and draw in U.S. allies; and ensuring that the use of force to change borders and acts of genocide do not become legitimate forms of behavior in post-Cold War Europe.

Along with these core interests, we have pursued a range of more specific objectives, but have never set clear priorities among them:

- To stop or limit the fighting.
- To maintain relief supplies and reduce human suffering.
- To prevent the establishment by force of a Greater Serbia.
- To achieve a negotiated settlement acceptable to all parties that reverses at least some Serb territorial conquests and preserves the territorial integrity and international identity of Bosnia, Croatia and other ex-Yugoslav states.
- To prevent the spread of conflict to Kosovo, Macedonia, Albania and beyond.
- To keep U.S. ground forces out except in the context of implementing a political settlement.

The tools we have applied have varied over time in response to events, and as our priorities have shifted: Until the end of 1994, we sought to use NATO military power to enforce UNSC resolutions and to put pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to settle on terms that provided a better deal for the Bosnian Government ("air power in the service of diplomacy"). After Bihac, however, we consciously shifted the emphasis to maintaining NATO cohesion, recognizing that this would erode U.S. and Alliance credibility and reduce further our negotiating leverage. Yet we did not scale back our political objectives to match our reduced leverage -- leading to the present diplomatic impasse.

The result has been charges of fecklessness and an erosion of confidence in U.S. leadership on other issues. Therefore, we now need to step back and confront these inherent contradictions:

- On the one hand, our own principles, as well as public and Congressional pressures, make it difficult to disengage and effectively abandon the Bosnians.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- On the other hand, we do not presently have the means to attain the political goal we have set -- negotiated settlements that deprive the Serbs of some of their ill-gotten gains -- and we have not been prepared to commit those means. Moreover, there is limited public support in the U.S. or in Europe for doing so.

Basic Strategic Choices

Many of our decisions over the next 2-3 months will be driven by events on the ground. But some of our choices will depend on where we want to go in the longer term. Therefore, before considering specific options, Principals need to decide our overall strategic direction and whether the course chosen is politically sustainable. This, in turn, requires deciding what are our priority interests and sticking with that decision in terms of committing the resources needed to attain our goals. The following, in broad terms, are basic approaches to be considered:

1. Continue our present policy: muddle through while supporting the Bosnians: Maintain the Contact Group and continue to seek a political solution that provides a better deal for the Bosnians, but not commit to increased military pressure on their behalf; rely for leverage on sanctions and efforts to isolate the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs (recognizing that these will be inadequate to the task). Seek to contain the fighting and humanitarian suffering to the extent possible, while maintaining Alliance cohesion. Keep UNPROFOR in place in essentially its present form (improve its effectiveness, but don't press it to take a more confrontational stance against the Serbs). Seek to postpone any lifting of the arms embargo and don't push for use of NATO air power, since this would precipitate UNPROFOR's withdrawal. Continue to sustain the Federation. Take additional measures in the front-line states to contain spillover of the conflict, such as beefing up UNPROFOR/Macedonia.

   - This would maintain European and Russian support, reduce the risks of deeper U.S. military involvement, and recognize that, absent such involvement, political settlements are not achievable in the foreseeable future.

   - The gap between our goal of a "fair" settlement and our unwillingness to provide the means to that end, however, would leave us vulnerable to charges of diplomatic fecklessness. It would be difficult to persuade the public and pro-Bosnian elements in the Congress that, over time, the maintenance of sanctions, a continued stalemate on the ground, and the solidity of the Federation will bring the Bosnian Serbs to accept a settlement along the lines of the

Contact Group plan, and the Krajina Serbs to accept autonomy within Croatia.

- The main weakness of this approach, however, is that the Bosnians and the Croatians are not prepared to play along: Both are ready to pursue the military option with renewed vigor over the coming months, putting UNPROFOR's presence in doubt. And the Bosnians will campaign for lift when the ceasefire ends. Our continued rhetorical support for their cause would make it difficult for us to oppose.

2. Adopt a policy of neutrality toward the terms of a settlement and focus on active containment of the conflict: Openly acknowledge that achieving a better solution for the Bosnians is not possible without U.S. actions that it is not in our interest to take. Apart from this shift in approach to the diplomatic track, take essentially the same actions as under the previous approach. Make clear we do not believe multilateral lift is politically attainable and strongly oppose Congressional pressures to lift unilaterally. Abandon Contact Group or suspend its activities, making clear that it is up to the parties, not the international community, to find a mutually acceptable solution. Promote periodic ceasefire agreements. Advise the Bosnians of the need to be realistic about the facts on the ground and agree to terms that acknowledge Serb preeminence (accept territorial outcomes short of 51:49, Serb Confederation with Belgrade; seek protection through links to Croatia, etc.).

   - This course would also maintain good relations with the Europeans, avoid a confrontation with Russia, and reduce the potential for U.S. military involvement. We would concentrate our efforts in areas where we have been able to achieve some success: reducing the violence, delivering humanitarian relief, maintaining the Muslim-Croat ceasefire and the Federation, and preventing the spread of the conflict outside of Bosnia and possibly Croatia. By distancing ourselves from the Bosnians' political agenda, we might have greater success in keeping UNPROFOR in place.

   - We would suffer harsh criticism from some quarters in the Congress and the public for abandoning the Bosnians and performing another flip-flop. We would need to make the case that it is not in U.S. interests to intervene unilaterally to ensure Bosnian victory, that we cannot gain European or Russian support for firmer measures to help the Bosnians, and that lift alone would probably make things worse for them in any case. We would want to appeal to the significant number of Congressmen whose support for lift is soft, and who are not keen on the deeper military involvement that a credible lift-and-strike policy would require.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Assuming we can ride out the initial storm, this approach would lower expectations and adjust public opinion to the reality of a continued conflict for which there may be no immediate solution. It would put the onus on the parties to negotiate directly with one another, rather than forcing us to explain repeated failed diplomatic initiatives backed by empty threats. It would force the Bosnians to accept the reality of defeat and the fact that they are destined to live surrounded by Serbs. It might even lead to a de facto indefinite cessation of serious hostilities, reducing both human suffering and public pressures for action.

- The problem with this approach, like the first, is that we may not be able to ride out the storm: the Bosnians may succeed in getting Congress to lift unilaterally, possibly with sufficient votes to override a Presidential veto. Moreover, we would, effectively, be acquiescing in Serb aggression, setting a dangerous precedent for the future.

3. Containment of Conflict and Long-Term Quarantine of Greater Serbia: Abandon efforts to negotiate a political settlement and reimpose full sanctions against Serbia for the long haul. Make clear we will refuse to recognize Serb conquests in Bosnia and Croatia and we will continue to treat Serbia as a pariah state until Serbs accept settlements that restore territorial integrity of Bosnia and Croatia. Refrain from military intervention, take laissez-faire approach to continued fighting among the parties. Concentrate on humanitarian aid, bolstering the Federation politically and economically, and containing spillover to other parts of the region. If UNPROFOR were to withdraw, this could be combined with a lift-and-leave strategy.

- This approach would be analogous to our approach to Soviet domination of Central and Eastern Europe during the Cold War, in which we were prepared to wait for decades for a just outcome -- isolating one party while promoting free-market development in the other. It would be based, again, on a recognition that there is no available political solution, and avoid perpetuating false expectations that the international community can impose a settlement. But in contrast to the previous approach, it would be based as well on a judgment that Milosevic remains the problem rather than the solution, despite his recent attempts to play the peacemaker -- distinguishing the victim from the victimizer.

- It is doubtful Russia would agree if we reimposed the sanctions noose around Serbia, however. We might agree with the Russians to disagree about Serbia, perhaps lifting or suspending some or all multilateral sanctions against the FRY -- but maintaining U.S. sanctions -- in exchange for agreement on continued, tightened sanctions against the Pale and Knin Serbs (but recognizing that Milosevic will try to undermine these to the extent he can get away with it).

- The front-line states' enforcement of sanctions would be difficult to sustain absent substantial financial compensation. Without such compensation, long-term continuation of the sanctions could actually have a destabilizing effect on the region overall. Moreover, this long-term approach could result in further Serb territorial expansion and prolong the humanitarian and refugee crisis for years to come.

- As with approaches 1 and 2, it is not clear we could sustain this course in the face of pressure from the Congress and the Bosnians.

4. Increased U.S. commitment in support of Bosnians, apply military pressure to compel Serb acceptance of a settlement: In theory, this could involve either: (a) returning to our 1994 approach: press for a more robust UNPROFOR that is prepared to use force against Serbs and make active use of NATO close air support; resume NATO enforcement of exclusion zones, and possibly establish additional exclusion zones; if these measures prove insufficient, withdraw UNPROFOR and implement a multilateral lift-and-strike strategy; or (b) proceeding directly to lift and strike, after helping UNPROFOR to withdraw. In practice, only (b) is feasible, since Allies will not agree to robust military actions while their vulnerable UNPROFOR forces remain in place.

   - This would align our policy with Congressional rhetoric and provide the means to back up our declared goals of helping the Bosnians and thwarting Serb ambitions. It would lead to increased fighting, at least in the short term, but might in time give the Bosnians the capability to recover territory and, by altering the situation on the battlefield, convince the Serbs to agree to an equitable political settlement.

   - It would, however, create significant strains in our relations with our Allies and the Russians. Our readiness to participate in NATO extraction of UNPROFOR could provide the leverage to win Allied support in the UNSC for multilateral lift. But preventing a Russian veto would be more difficult. It would, at a minimum, require lifting sanctions against Serbia at the same time (although this may be necessary in any event to encourage Milosevic not to resume military support to his Serb cousins).

   - Moreover, withdrawing UNPROFOR and explicitly committing to produce a Bosnian success would hasten the onset of the situation we have sought most to avoid, the deployment of U.S. ground forces, leaving us with the responsibility for organizing relief supplies and protecting the enclaves. And lift - whether unilateral or multilateral -- would commit us to arming and training the Bosnians for an indefinite period, as well as providing air cover, even if we tried to set a time limit on our support. In short, it could Americanize the war, with little likelihood of hastening a political settlement.

Near-Term Decisions

The foregoing choices pertain mainly to the decisions we will need to take in the coming months on Bosnia. In Croatia, the situation may be more urgent, and our goal more straightforward: to prevent a new war over the Krajina. To this end, we need to be clear at the outset that we do not support Croatian military action to reassert control over the Krajina Serbs, and increase pressure on Tudjman to retain at least some portion of UNPROFOR interposed between the warring parties in the separation zone. We cannot go too far in imposing punitive measures on Tudjman, however, given the importance of Tudjman's support for the Federation and our need to use Croatian territory to support any UN/NATO/U.S. operation in Bosnia. We must above all avoid driving Tudjman into an unholy alliance with Milosevic to carve up Bosnia.

Finally, to the extent that we decide to focus more on containment of spillover, beefing up or replacing UNPROFOR in Macedonia would take on greater urgency alongside the decisions that we will need to make with respect to Bosnia and Croatia.

With these considerations in mind, the following is a sketch of the options on which decisions will be needed over the next three months.

Options: Croatia

Near Term:

- Make renewed push (in tandem with Germans and other Allies) within next 10 days to convince Tudjman to extend UNPROFOR with reduced mandate (UNPROFOR Lite).
- Fallback: Press for one-time extension of March 31/June 30 deadlines to allow more time for negotiations.

  Issue: Whether to threaten limited punitive actions at this stage? Or should we offer Tudjman a carrot?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

If these initial efforts fail:

- Begin Step Two prepositioning for UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia no later than March 8 (will require Congressional consultations and decisions on funding).
- Offer new, high-level international negotiator to negotiate Croatian settlement, in tandem with final push for acceptance of UNPROFOR Lite.
- Agree in principle to Croatian proposal for international task force (ITF) to replace UNPROFOR that would monitor Croatian-Bosnian border on condition that Tudjman agrees to extend ceasefire, agrees the force will also police the separation zone, and agrees to negotiate with Krajina Serbs on basis of principles in Z-4 plan.

  Issues: Is ITF feasible? (Border force would be highly vulnerable to attack or hostage-taking by Bosnian and Krajina Serb forces, who have traditionally viewed such a force as threat to their survival, and whose acceptance would be a sine qua non. Allies would look to U.S. to join the force. But some token presence on the border may be the fig leaf Tudjman needs to back down on ejection of UNPROFOR; Krajina Serbs may accept if it is only way to keep international forces in separation zone.)

  Who would comprise the force? (Unarmed civilian monitors? Joint international-Croatian-Krajina Serb police force? NATO? WEU, backed by U.S. air support -- but recognizing that effectiveness would be limited without TACPs?)

Medium Term:

- Withdraw UNPROFOR from Croatia

  Issues: Nature of U.S. participation?

  How to discourage Tudjman from using NATO forces as cover for early offensive (sanctions or other punitive steps? carrots?).

  How to deter Krajina Serbs from seizing vacated UNPROFOR positions or threatening NATO forces (air strike threat?)

- Introduce civilian monitors to replace UNPROFOR (e.g. OSCE)

Long Term (post-UNPROFOR withdrawal):

- Contain fighting: Establish no-fly zone in Croatia? Other measures?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Decide whether to let Tudjman fend for himself (allowing possible Serb victory) or to provide limited support, despite our warnings that he will be on his own.

Options: Bosnia

Near Term:

- Keep Plan B on the table.

  Issues: If so, for how long? Possible modifications/ extensions that aren't sweeteners -- e.g., put forward detailed proposal on constitutional arrangements for future Bosnian Union?)

- Consider staged or scaled-back Plan B -- i.e., ask Milosevic to identify the steps he would take in "partial recognition" of Bosnia and Croatia, determine whether they could be linked to limited sanctions relief.

  Issues: What could Milosevic do beyond tightening border closure to justify sanctions relief? (We could not justify additional relief for tightening a border that should be sealed already. Possibilities: close the "back door" to Croatia; cooperate with the War Crimes Tribunal; recognize Bosnia's border and territorial integrity but not the Sarajevo Government.)

  Should we take parallel steps in support of Bosnians to reduce Bosnian/Congressional criticism -- e.g. IMET, other training for Bosnians?

- Continue efforts to isolate Pale irrespective of Plan B: increase border monitors; close Krajina back door.

- Consider whether to reduce or end the activity of the Contact Group as such, in order to emphasize the need for the parties themselves to undertake territorial and constitutional discussions. (This would permit private or individual mediators to operate.) Or agree to French international conference without prior agreement on mutual recognition?

- Explore efforts to increase international support for the Federation: material assistance and political support (envoys to and from, participation in international conferences, agreements such as our proposed 505 agreement, etc.)

- Approach the UN to reconsider its decision not to expand UNPROFOR with the troops already offered (i.e. urge UN to increase UNPROFOR numerically to enable it to deliver humanitarian assistance more effectively, especially along the Blue Route, as opposed to changing its ROE).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Medium Term:

Decision depends on the choice of overall strategic approach as described above:

- Muddle through, continue to support Bosnians rhetorically, continue diplomatic efforts, but focus on containment.
- Shift to policy of neutrality toward terms of settlement and active containment of conflict; end or suspend Contact Group activities, acknowledge we cannot produce better deal for Bosnians.
- Containment of conflict and long-term quarantine of Greater Serbia.
- Renewed push for military measures in support of Bosnians: withdraw UNPROFOR, multilateral lift and strike.

Long Term:

- Maintain support for Federation to forestall Muslim-Croat splits. Intensify isolation of Pale and Knin Serbs.
- Maintain support for War Crimes Tribunal.
- Withdraw UNPROFOR, lift the arms embargo, with lift possibly implemented in stages (beginning with defensive weapons) and tied to "final offer" to accept Contact Group plan.

  Issue: Are we prepared to lift unilaterally if Allies support us in UNSC but Russians veto? Alternatives to lift?

- Abandon support for lift, take tough line with Congress and Bosnians, stick with one of the containment options.

Options: Containing Spillover

- Beef up or replace UNPROFOR/Macedonia

  Issues: When and how? (Enlarge existing force under UN command? Replace with NATO division?)

- Continue efforts to defuse Greece/FYROM dispute.
- Shore up outer wall of sanctions against Serbia.
- Expand bilateral aid/infrastructure programs in south Balkans.
- Expand bilateral military cooperation and economic cooperation with Albania, Bulgaria, Macedonia.
- High-level visits to front-line states.

DCI Interagency Balkan Task Force 24 February 1995

The Balkans: The Next Three Months (U)

Fighting is likely to resume this spring because Croatia and Bosnia do not accept the status quo, believe that they can gain political and territorial concessions from Serbs only through military force, and are highly skeptical of the international community's efforts to forge an equitable peace. Fighting is more likely to break out first in Bosnia in March with the collapse of the cessation of hostilities agreement. The scope and intensity of this could influence President Tudjman's calculations on regaining the Krajina by force, but Tudjman's decision on the renewal of conflict there will be taken independently of fighting in Bosnia. Clashes are likely by April or May in conjunction with the UNPROFOR pullout. In a second, less likely scenario, a combination of factors could postpone the fighting until later this year but not alter the deep clashes of interest. In a third scenario, all the warring factions would have to make fundamental changes to their political positions--even less likely in the near to mid term--in order for there to be real movement toward a stable peace in the region. 3.5c

Current Balkans leaders are pursuing irreconcilable demands that make even the beginning of a meaningful peace process in the next three months unlikely. At most, one or more of the key actors in the two major zones of conflict might be convinced to postpone military action. Postponement, however, is not necessarily a way station on the road to peace. Only a reordering of demands or a significant shift in the military situation on the ground would set the stage for a renewed effort to forge a lasting peace in the region. 3.5c

The Key Actors: What Drives Them?

Croatia: Guided by a vision of his personal historical role, mounting nationalist/political pressures which he has helped generate, and frustration with the international community, President Tudjman is now prepared to initiate large-scale military action to reintegrate the Krajina into Croatia. He is encouraged by claims of military superiority from his generals and his own belief that Serbian President Milosevic will not intervene. We do not have evidence Tudjman is working with a specific time schedule; however, having taken the bit in his teeth, it is unlikely he will stall for long or accept merely paper changes in UNPROFOR's mandate. There is no significant peace faction in the Croatian leadership. 3.5c

Krajina Serbs: Despite fractious personal differences, the Krajina Serb leadership adamantly refuses any form of reintegration, including the limited "autonomy" Zagreb is willing to offer. They will fight fiercely to protect their homeland and could escalate localized Croatian attacks by shelling major Croatian cities. If attacked, they expect help from the Bosnian Serbs and, in extremis, from Belgrade. There is no significant peace faction in Knin. 3.5c

Bosnian Government: Bosnian leaders firmly believe that they can regain territory from the Bosnian Serbs and preserve the concept of a unified Bosnia within its internationally recognized boundaries only by military pressure. They are increasingly confident of their own military capabilities and see the tide swinging in their favor as they look out several years. There is no significant politically organized opposition within the Muslim community to this vision. The Bosnian Croats are largely satisfied with the territory they now control and take their guidance from Zagreb, not Sarajevo. The Herzegovinian hardliners leading the Bosnian Croats ultimately hope to be integrated into a Greater Croatia, a vision that Tudjman does not discourage. 3.5c

Bosnian Serbs: Bosnian Serb leaders will accept nothing less than an independent state as an interim measure toward the creation of an ill-defined "Greater Serbia." They are willing to give up some of the territory they now control to reach an agreement, but until then will fight to keep what they have. They are committed to helping the Krajina Serbs. If pressed by Bosnian Government forces, they might also consider a major military campaign aimed at dealing the Bosnian Government a severe defeat. Although some divisions among leaders are now being publicized, even those advocating acceptance of the Contact Group plan agree with Karadzic on driving a hard bargain on territory and independence for a Bosnian Serb state. Army Commander Mladic despises Karadzic but also shares his goal for an independent Serbian Bosnia with ties to Serbia. 3.5c

Serbia: President Milosevic continues to be a cornerstone to a settlement but at the same time is only a secondary player with limited influence on those he helped into power in Pale and Knin. Milosevic is driven by a strong personal desire to remain in power. He seeks to end sanctions but not at the cost of important political values. He continues to support--for political if not necessarily personal reasons--the concept of a "Greater Serbia," which makes it unlikely he could recognize Croatia and Bosnia or refuse help to the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs if they appeared to be on the verge of serious setbacks. In the short run, he is unable, not just unwilling, to compel either the Krajina Serb or Bosnian Serb leaders to make compromises that they believe are not in their interest. There is no significant peace party in Serbia. 3.5c

Russia: Moscow's overall objectives will be to maintain an influential role in the international decision-making process on the Balkans as the Contact Group process wanes, while trying to keep the conflict contained and minimizing NATO's role. Tactically, Russian leaders will want to increase Russian leverage and head off all domestic criticism by pressing for full sanctions relief for Serbia. Moscow has limited influence with Belgrade--and even less with Pale--but the Russians have the capacity to play a spoiler role. They may pose obstacles to any international actions if they believe that the West is not accounting for Russian interests. 3.5c

EU Contact Group Members: Fearing renewed violence and a broader Balkan conflict, the European Union members of the Contact Group are desperate to keep the negotiating process alive but are increasingly frustrated with the intransigence of the feuding parties. Germany, Britain, and France--which holds the EU presidency and has the largest troop contingent in the former Yugoslavia--will focus on offering incentives for peace, wooing Zagreb with the prospect of EU aid and Belgrade with the promise of lifting sanctions. The EU members so far do not have a unified strategy for dealing with the renewal of full-scale war in Bosnia, according to various sources. Despite differing views, European Contact Group members agree on the need for Contact Group unity and are likely to maintain a coordinated position among themselves under French leadership. 3.5c

Three Scenarios

Renewed Fighting

It is likely that fighting will resume in Bosnia in the next two months, and clashes could then follow quickly in Croatia.

- The Bosnian Government has clearly focused on resupplying, reequipping and reorganizing its forces during the four-month cessation of hostilities (COH) in preparation for launching additional attacks to retake territory in central Bosnia. The Bosnian Serbs also believe that fighting will resume and are taking steps to increase military pressure on the Bihac enclave.

- The Bihac enclave will be the likely focal point of fighting for most of March as the Government V Corps clashes with Krajina Serb and rebel Muslim forces--which did not sign the COH agreement--supported by the Bosnian Serbs. Major gains by either faction around Bihac would probably cause the fighting to spread elsewhere in Bosnia, as the losing faction would attempt to pressure the other by attacking at other points.

- Fighting will probably increase in the rest of Bosnia by late March or early April as the weather improves--temperatures rise into the mid-50s--and the warring factions begin to jockey for military advantage prior to the end of the COH on 30 April. In 1994, fighting picked up substantially in April as the government launched a series of attacks in central Bosnia and the Serbs responded by assaulting Gorazde.

~~Secret~~
[redacted]

- The Bosnian Serbs will probably make a push for new talks in late April and call for an extension of the COH agreement in an attempt to preempt a government attack. The Bosnian Government may accept additional talks under international pressure but will probably reject any extension of the COH agreement.

- The return of warmer, drier weather by May will probably lead to general fighting throughout Bosnia. Government forces will probably launch a series of local attacks--following their strategy of last year--especially in central and northern Bosnia. Government forces will probably make some territorial gains, as the Bosnian Serbs are stretched thin and essentially remain cut off from Serbia. Serb strategy has been to respond to any government attack with an overwhelming offensive--preferably against an isolated or poorly defended enclave--to press the government to abandon its offensive. The Bosnian Serbs, however, will be reluctant to commit their forces fully to a Bosnian offensive, because some may be needed to reinforce the Krajina Serbs in Croatia.

- The resumption of fighting will spark renewed discussion of the need to remove UNPROFOR from Bosnia. Heavy fighting in Bosnia at the same time as an UNPROFOR pullout from Croatia in May and June will spark calls in Paris and London to move toward a withdrawal before winter.

- A major resumption of hostilities in Bosnia, which included an all-out Bosnian Serb effort to take the eastern enclaves, could put at risk nearly 120,000 Muslims who would try to flee to the nearest Muslim-controlled territory. [redacted]

The fighting in Bosnia could influence the prospects for renewed clashes in Croatia, but Tudjman's decision on a renewal of the conflict there will be taken independently of the fighting in Bosnia.

- President Tudjman has ordered the UN to begin withdrawing from Croatia after 31 March and complete withdrawal by 30 June. The Croatians expect to come under increasingly heavy international pressure in the coming month to extend the UN mandate. They appear prepared to stand firm and exact a high price: an international monitoring force--possibly including forces from NATO or Contact Group states--on the Croatian border with Bosnia and Serbia, recognition of Croatia's international border by Belgrade, and demonstrable progress on reintegration of Serb-held territory. In late March or early April, Tudjman may make a push for new talks with the Krajina Serbs, in hopes that the UN pullout will pressure the Serbs to make additional concessions.

3.5c

- While the Krajina Serbs may be willing to undertake new negotiations after the deadline is passed, they will not make the concessions necessary to preempt military action by the Croatian armed forces.

- Clashes are likely in late April and early May as the UN begins its withdrawal. A key factor will be the UN pull-out from the Zone of Separation between the warring factions in late April. Krajina Serb and Croat military forces probably will both move to seize key positions along the confrontation line currently occupied by the UN.

- Zagreb will probably attempt to exploit any clashes to place the onus for renewed fighting on the Krajina Serbs. As the clashes escalate, the Krajina Serbs will take steps to impede the withdrawal of UNPROFOR, including taking isolated units as hostages. At this point, the UN may call for NATO to take steps to facilitate the withdrawal of the trapped peacekeepers.

- The Croats will probably try to avoid launching a major offensive until UNPROFOR has withdrawn--slated to be completed by 30 June--but could speed up this timetable if the Krajina Serbs take steps to formally unite with the Bosnian Serbs or they take direct military action against Croatian cities.

- Tudjman may be influenced by events in Bosnia in establishing the timetable for any military operation. Heavy fighting in Bosnia could provide Zagreb with an opportunity to exploit the Krajina Serb weakness in manpower because fewer Bosnian Serbs would be available to reinforce the Krajina. If a settlement appears likely in Bosnia, the Croats may opt for military measures before the International Community eliminates sanctions on Serbia.

- It is very difficult to estimate the number of refugees that would result from major conflict in part because estimates of the current population in the Serb-controlled territories of Croatia vary from about 200,000 to 450,000. Refugees would most likely move into territory controlled by the Bosnian Serbs. 3.5c

Milosevic's recognition of Croatia and Bosnia--although unlikely--would probably accelerate and increase the fighting in both Bosnia and Croatia.

- Serbia's recognition of Croatia's borders would cause the Krajina Serbs to announce formal unification with the Bosnian Serbs. This would almost certainly lead to an immediate military assault by the Croats.

- The Bosnian Government forces would be bolstered by recognition but would almost certainly redouble their military efforts against the Bosnian Serbs, who would now be completely cut off from resupply. 3.5c

Postponed Fighting

While the differences between the warring factions in Croatia and Bosnia make another round of fighting likely in the next three months, a combination of factors could postpone the fighting until later this year.

- Introduction of a follow-on peacekeeping force could delay renewed fighting in Croatia. Zagreb will only accept a new force that will take control of Croatia's border with Serbia and Bosnia. The Krajina Serbs are unlikely to accept such a force unless it also is charged with patrolling the current cease-fire line. If both factions compromised on this issue and some minimal international force--probably from the WEU or NATO--were in place in April before UNPROFOR begins withdrawing, fighting could be forestalled while a new round of negotiations took place.

- Zagreb will be reluctant to launch a major attack while substantial UN forces are still in Serb-held territories. If the UN withdrawal in April and May is particularly slow and a large number of peacekeepers remain in the region, Croatia may opt to postpone major military action until the fall, after the tourist season.

- If Croatia is seriously threatened with major economic sanctions in response to military attacks on the Krajina Serbs, Zagreb may delay military action until the international community's focus wanes or until Croatia can point to a serious Serb "provocation" to justify further military operations. 3.5c

Heavy fighting would be postponed in Bosnia if the Bosnian Government decided to delay its likely spring offensives.

- Heavy spring rains could impede resupply and movement of government forces, and they may wait until the drier months of June or July before launching major attacks.

- Government forces may wish to take advantage of the impact on the Serbs of renewed fighting in Croatia. Under such a scenario, they might postpone their attacks until the Bosnian Serbs are heavily engaged in the fighting in the Krajina, probably in June or later.

- The government could rethink its plans for military operations if serious negotiations were about to take place. These would require true concessions from the Bosnian Serbs prior to the start of talks, including removal of forces from key areas such as Sarajevo, and some form of acceptance of the original contact group plan. 3.5c

Movement Towards Peace

Despite five years of effort, the international community has not been able to affect the fundamental clashes of interests in the region. Unless the UN, NATO or some other outside actor is prepared for a massive long-term infusion of economic and military resources into the region, such changes are not likely in the near term. If all the warring factions made fundamental changes to their political positions, we would expect to see some of the following signs of movement towards agreement during the next three months.

- Croatia would have to accept the extension of the UNPROFOR mandate or the deployment of a new force that monitored the current cease-fire line by April in order to prevent renewed clashes--especially in the zone of separation this spring.

- By late spring, a new round of negotiations would have to begin, with both sides making major concessions. Croatia and the Krajina Serbs would have to be prepared to redraw existing international borders allowing the Serbs to live outside Croatian control. Alternatively, the complete Krajina Serb leadership would have to be replaced, and probably a substantial portion of the local Serb population removed to Bosnia or Serbia, leaving the Krajina inside Croatia.

- Negotiations could be based on a slightly less extreme scenario if Zagreb accepted significantly more "autonomy" for the Krajina Serbs than is contained in the Z-4 plan and the Krajina Serbs gave up the idea of any "special links" with Belgrade. [redacted]

Movement towards a solution in Bosnia would almost certainly be tied to developments in Croatia, but any movement towards peace there would also rely on a number of unprecedented developments.

- Initially, the Bosnian Government and Bosnian Serbs would have to accept an extension of the current cessation of hostilities accord after 30 April and begin implementing all of its measures, including the separation of forces and the deployment of peacekeepers between the warring factions.

- To support the talks, the Bosnian Government would have to abandon its goal of maintaining a unified Bosnia. The Serbs would have to back down from their plans for association with Serbia.

- Effective enforcement of the arms embargo, especially the cut-off of Iranian arms deliveries, could make Sarajevo more receptive to a diplomatic settlement.

- As stated earlier, Belgrade's recognition of Croatia and Bosnia is likely to lead to an increase in fighting in the short term. If the Krajina Serbs and

[redacted]

Bosnia Serbs are truly and completely cut off from Serbia, however, the weight of forces for the Croatians and Bosnia Government would lead to the eventual military defeat of both Serb groups--but not within the next three months. [redacted]

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met to discuss the strategy for Ambassador Holbrooke to pursue in a final push with President Tudjman aimed at reversing his decision to terminate the UNPROFOR mandate in Croatia on March 31. They agreed that retention of interpositional forces along the confrontation line is vital to prevent renewed fighting between the Croatian and Krajina Serb forces. The price for retention of the interpositional force for Tudjman may be agreeing to demand for forces along Croatia's border with Bosnia, but it is not clear we can support a border force and American participation would be very difficult. If Tudjman is willing to agree to the interpositional force,

Deputies agreed that Ambassador Holbrooke should only offer to discuss a possible border force with Allies. Deputies asked State to prepare a paper for Principals' consideration on Friday, March 3, illustrating the approach Ambassador Holbrooke will use in his meeting with President Tudjman next week. (Action: State) (S)

2. Deputies discussed the issue of Step Two prepositioning of NATO communications assets to support a NATO-led operation to withdraw UNPROFOR from Bosnia and/or Croatia. They agreed that the issue should be presented to the Principals Friday for decision. They requested that the decision paper be modified to reflect the Deputies' discussion. (Action: NSC) (S)

3. Deputies agreed to meet in informal session Saturday, March 4, to discuss the NSC-staff paper "Former Yugoslavia Policy Review." (S)

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met to discuss the strategy for Ambassador Holbrooke to pursue in a final push with President Tudjman aimed at reversing his decision to terminate the UNPROFOR mandate in Croatia on March 31. They agreed retention of interpositional forces along the confrontation line is vital to prevent renewed fighting between the Croatian and Krajina Serb forces. The price for retention of the interpositional force may be agreeing to ~~Tudjman's~~ demand for forces along Croatia's border with Bosnia, but it is not clear we can support a border force. If Tudjman is willing to agree to the interpositional force, Deputies agreed that Ambassador Holbrooke should only offer to discuss a possible

DRAFT DISCUSSION PAPER

UNPROFOR/Croatia's current 15,000 troops come from Canada, Poland, Jordan, Ukraine, Denmark, Kenya, the Czech Republic, Russia, Lithuania and Belgium. UNPROFOR has been deployed in Croatia since early 1992 to demilitarize the UN Protected Areas (UNPAs), facilitate refugee return, monitor the Croatia/Bosnia border, and facilitate economic confidence-building measures (CBMs).

In the face of Krajina Serb opposition and the absence of Security Council approval of a more robust application of its mandate, UNPROFOR has generally operated with the agreement of the parties. Its inability to demilitarize the UNPAs or to monitor the border is at the core of the Croatian Government's contention that UNPROFOR has de facto partitioned Croatia. More recently, UNPROFOR/Croatia has successfully monitored the ceasefire agreed in March 1994 and assisted implementation of the CBMs agreed in recent months. Ultimately, however, the departure of UNPROFOR means war: our objective must be to maintain an international presence along the lines of confrontation. If Croatia refuses to extend UNPROFOR's mandate, we need to consider alternatives:

Option I - UNPROFOR Reconfigured and Re-named: "UNPROFOR Lite"

Would involve essential elements of UNPROFOR Lite proposal and address some of Tudjman's other concerns. Some or all of the elements of the mission proposed below could be adopted.

Mission Elements:

-- Could have a new Special Representative of the Secretary General (SRSG). Akashi would retain responsibility only for Bosnia and Macedonia.

-- Reduced troop presence of about 5,000 - 7,000 would continue to monitor the force separation line.

-- Small (less than 200) observer force would symbolically monitor the international border (more robust mandate would only set up mission for failure). This aspect of mission could be non-UN.

-- CIVPOL or civilian component might be retained to help implement economic confidence building measures (ECBM's), help protect minorities in the UNPA's and facilitate transitional arrangements in UNPA West.

PRO:

o Perhaps the only possible realistic alternative.

o British support concept.

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
VZ 2/6/2020 (2.36)
2017-0682-M

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- o Continued UN involvement would facilitate broader international support.

- o Continuity and cost limitation by using existing forces and logistic infrastructure.

- o Gives Tudjman symbolic recognition of his borders and the start of an effort toward transition in UNPA West. Akashi is replaced in Croatia. Knin gets a force on the separation line in return for border monitoring force.

- o Better able to coordinate its actions with UNPROFOR than a non-UN force.

- o Less costly than current operation. Funding mechanism exists.

CON:

- o Unity of command lost with two SRSG's.

- o UN is still suspect, if not discredited.

- o Knin, the Bosnian Serbs, and the Bosniacs could all veto the border monitors.

- o Border monitors and effort to begin transition in UNPA West might prove ineffective. Having to pull border monitors out under pressure could have serious political costs.

Option II - Retaining UNPROFOR "As Is"; "UNPROFOR Stout"

UNPROFOR would continue roughly at current manpower levels, with a presence in the UNPAs and along the ceasefire lines, and an added presence along the international border. It would pursue its mandate in theory but not necessarily with the agreement of the parties, but with the warning that interference by the parties would invite a response.

PRO:

- o Continuity

- o Proven effectiveness

- o Maximize coordination of overall ex-Yugo policy

- o Likely to have broad international support, particularly from Russia

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(3)

CON:

- o UNPROFOR (esp. Akashi) has no credibility with GOC
- o Requires Tudjman to back all the way down
- o Without Croatian agreement, would be in difficult political position

Option III - WEU Force

There has been discussion in European governments of the WEU providing the interpositional force. They might also be able to provide just border monitors, or other elements of the mandates sketched out above.

PRO:

- o "NATO Standard" troops could operate under more robust ROE if the political will was present.
- o Would hand lead for solving the problem in Croatia back to the Europeans.
- o Might involve very little cost to the U.S.

CON:

- o Has been tried. No precedent for success. Could be totally ineffective and lead to greater conflict.
- o In practice unlikely to be much more assertive than UNPROFOR has been, which could erode both WEU and NATO credibility.
- o Ironically, might also enhance WEU's credibility at the expense of NATO and the U.S.
- o Discontinuity with current UN operations.
- o Russia and Islamic countries might feel marginalized.
- o Europeans would expect cash contributions from the U.S. We have no effective way to contribute the large sums that would be expected.

Option IV - OSCE Force

The OSCE has no experience with peacekeeping and is enmeshed in plans for an operation in Nagorno Karabakh. Doesn't have the infrastructure necessary to run a large operation. They could not do both Croatia and NK at the same time. Might be better suited to perform just the border monitoring mission.

(4)

PRO:

- Would involve a credible, broad-based regional organization to which the U.S. belongs. Russia is also a member.
- Unless the U.S. were to contribute large numbers of troops or logistical support our costs might be very low. (8.3% of common costs)
- We would remain important players at a political level.
- Planning done for deployment to NK give the organization some experience in planning a large scale operation.

CON:

- Not clear who would contribute troops. Might result in offers primarily from Eastern European countries. Might not get enough troops.
- OSCE is a consensus organization. Anyone can veto.
- Unity of command in ex-Yugo would be compromised.
- OSCE has even more restrictive ROE than the UN.
- OSCE lacks peace-keeping experience and is tied up with Nagorno-Karabakh.
- No money budgeted for this. Cost sharing mechanism unclear and untested.

Option V - Multinational Force

A multinational coalition would probably act under authority of a UN mandate. Any combination of participants would require strong leadership. The U.S. is the only country that has effectively led a multinational military effort. England and France might be capable, but would probably have to rely heavily on our diplomatic capital.

PRO:

- Has potential to be the most robust option, by far.
- Although many countries may contribute token forces, the leaders of the coalition usually retain much tighter political control over the force.

CON:

- Most likely to require some U.S. troop presence on the ground.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(5)

- Increased risk of embroiling troop contributing nations directly in the conflict. Attacks on troops acting in national capacity may require retaliation.

- Not budgetted and no mechanism to share costs. US could be stuck with the bill.

- Unless the MNF troops were prepared to intervene militarily to stop aggression it could undermine credibility of the troop contributing nations.

CROATIA DISCUSSION PAPER:

POSSIBLE INCENTIVES & DISINCENTIVES

Zagreb has failed to grasp that preservation of the "essential" international peacekeeping elements we identified in January is non-negotiable. In making this unmistakably clear -- essentially by insisting on international monitoring of the separation zone -- we need a menu of carrots and sticks to bring Tudjman around.

We should also pursue a third country track, including:

- o Instructions to Amb Flynn to propose Papal involvement.
- o Further contacts with Germans to coordinate approaches.
- o Consultations with Croatian neighbors -- i.e. Hungary, Slovenia, Austria to make own demaraches.

The following ideas would be staffed out once Deputies provide the necessary guidance on the general approach to take with Zagreb.

Punitive Bilateral Steps

Consulates
-- revoke permission to open new consulates in Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, and/or Cleveland
-- no GOC plans to open these immediately
-- close recently-opened consulate in New York

illustrative put at peril

Cultural/Educational Exchanges
-- range of options from revoking visas for current visitors to suspending applications for future exchanges

Science & Technology
-- suspend cooperation, freezing projects from joint fund
-- requires advance notice to renounce agreement

Democracy and Rule of Law Programs
-- range of options from shutting down ongoing projects to refusing to fund new ones
-- probably counter-productive to stop these SEED programs

Downgrade relations
-- withdraw Ambassadors

Development Assistance
-- suspend work on banking sector
-- most AID funds go to Bosnian refugees and Croatian displaced
-- ask European to double-track to maximize impact

PL 480
-- already approved $5 million for commodity purchase
-- difficult to stop at this stage

Halt Defense Cooperation
-- have already suspended programs that would expand bilateral defense cooperation, e.g. IMET, Marshall Center
-- U.S. benefits much more from exchange of Defense Attaches with Croatia than does Zagreb
-- Suspending "Memorandum of Cooperation on Defense Relations" would be significant symbol, with limited practical result

Commercial Treaties
-- cut off/hold up negotiations on Bilateral Investment, Intellectual Property Rights, Double Taxation Treaties

Punitive Multilateral Steps

UN arms embargo
-- enforce vigorously
-- tricky not to disadvantage Bosnia supply
-- but not impossible, e.g. challenge Zagreb's heavy equipment acquisition

International Financial Institutions
-- freeze Croatia programs in EBRD, IBRD
-- IMF cut-off inadvisable given Zagreb's excellent macroeconomic record

Economic Sanctions on Croatia

Positive Bilateral Steps

Presidential Meeting
-- offer Tudjman meeting with POTUS during Federation commemoration or other suitable occasion if what?

Serbian Sanctions Linkage
-- reaffirm U.S. commitment to keep significant sanctions on Belgrade until there is real progress toward reintegrating the Serb-held areas
-- if not public and high-level it's nothing new

Croatian Economic Sanctions Veto
-- Pledge to oppose sanctions on Zagreb if Croatia acts pesponsibly, e.g. peacekeeping essentials, no hostile acts

Anti-Missile Defense
-- offer to deploy Patriot-type batteries to protect Croatian cities, e.g. Zagreb, Dubrovnik
-- explore no-fly/no-radar/no-missile zone over Krajina

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Looser Interpretation of Arms Embargo
-- sell some items
-- lift restrictions on non-weapon military goods, e.g. parachutes, trucks

Positive Multilateral Steps

WTO Accession
-- support Croatian accession to the World Trade Organization

Highway/Pipeline Security
-- "UNPROFOR Heavy" or NATO deployment to secure highway and oil pipeline
-- both sides have already agreed on desirability of re-opening pipeline and highway

International Border Control
-- organize force (largely symbolic) along lines Zagreb proposes
-- requires Serb consent
-- could build up from existing mandates in Vance Plan (JNA withdrawal monitoring), ICFY Mission (Krajina transshipments), and/or UNPROFOR (Highway checkpoints)
-- helping separate Krajina and Serbia accelerates Krajina reintegration

Air strikes
-- UN/NATO attacks on RSK positions in event of provocations

Caveats

-- Some change in UNPROFOR needed to satisfy Croatian public.
-- Many bilateral programs result from Washington Accords.
-- Risk of Zagreb abandoning Federation to assauge nationalists.
-- Publicly pushing Zagreb supports Knin, undermines U.S. goals.

Reasons to Be Tough

-- Zagreb says they do not seek war, so we are trying to help them out.
-- Tudjman's domestic position is strong enough to sell a turnaround, although he'll have to show results by 1996.
-- When U.S. says "essential," we mean it; we defined the minimum in January with the five elements; the question for Zagreb is not whether they will be preserved, but how.

Tactical Considerations

-- Therefore, push Tudjman hard but not too far.
-- First need him to accept separation zone monitoring.
-- Must enlist German/European support in threatening an end to cooperation if this is refused.
-- Once Zagreb shows some flexibility, we can pursue alternatives to UNPROFOR with key allies.
-- Akashi exploration of border monitoring possibilities with Krajina Serbs is useful and should be allowed to continue.

FORMER YUGOSLAVIA POLICY REVIEW

Introduction

As we approach a potentially critical period in the Balkans over the next three months, now is the time to review the fundamental principles guiding our policy. U.S. policy has, in fact, had some success over the past two years in containing the spread of the war, reducing the level of violence, keeping relief supplies flowing to most areas, and maintaining cohesion with Allies and Russia. What we have been unable to produce is a political settlement in Bosnia or Croatia that rolls back Serb gains sufficiently to be acceptable to the Bosnians and Croats, and to be perceived as "fair" (much less "just") in moral terms.

The fundamental problem has been a lack of leverage: sanctions and political pressure have been insufficient to sway the Serbs, and our efforts to bring NATO air power to bear have come to naught. In Bosnia, after almost a year of effort, the Contact Group is becoming a spent force, with its unity increasingly strained. In Croatia, the Z-4 plan for a political solution is, for all intents and purposes, stillborn, and Tudjman's decision to eject UNPROFOR threatens to destroy even the limited economic confidence-building measures developed over the past year.

As the CIA paper makes clear, there is no "peace faction" among any of the parties, and Milosević's willingness to pressure his Serb cousins is limited. If we stay on our present course, the prospects are for an escalation of the war in Bosnia and a new war in Croatia, with the potential unraveling of our limited achievements to date, and increased pressures for U.S. involvement. The differences between the optimistic and pessimistic scenarios are largely ones of timing and degree. And as the risk of war increases in Bosnia and Croatia, the dangers of spillover to other areas grow as well.

If the war escalates, the withdrawal of UNPROFOR from Croatia, Bosnia or both will become increasingly likely -- creating the prospect of U.S. troops on the ground in former Yugoslavia in a hostile environment, the outcome we have most sought to avoid. As international efforts founder, the Bosnians will be able to make an increasingly convincing case for lifting the arms embargo; yet the odds of bringing our Allies and, especially, the Russians along will remain low. Moreover, lifting the arms embargo, to be effective, entails the United States taking other actions that increase our involvement and responsibility.

Interests and Objectives

Throughout the conflict, we have sought to protect several core U.S. interests: maintaining our strategic relationship with key Allies and protecting the credibility of NATO; avoiding a conflict with Russia that could undermine our efforts to promote reform and international cooperation; preventing the spread of the Bosnian conflict into a wider Balkan war that could destabilize southeastern Europe and draw in U.S. allies; and ensuring that the use of force to change borders and acts of genocide do not become legitimate forms of behavior in post-Cold War Europe.

Along with these core interests, we have pursued a range of more specific objectives, but have never set clear priorities among them:

- To stop or limit the fighting.
- To maintain relief supplies and reduce human suffering.
- To prevent the establishment by force of a Greater Serbia.
- To achieve a negotiated settlement acceptable to all parties that reverses at least some Serb territorial conquests and preserves the territorial integrity and international identity of Bosnia, Croatia and other ex-Yugoslav states.
- To prevent the spread of conflict to Kosovo, Macedonia, Albania and beyond.
- To keep U.S. ground forces out except in the context of implementing a political settlement.

The tools we have applied have varied over time in response to events, and as our priorities have shifted: Until the end of 1994, we sought to use NATO military power to enforce UNSC resolutions and to put pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to settle on terms that provided a better deal for the Bosnian Government ("air power in the service of diplomacy"). After Bihac, however, we consciously shifted the emphasis to maintaining NATO cohesion, recognizing that this would erode U.S. and Alliance credibility and reduce further our negotiating leverage. Yet we did not scale back our political objectives to match our reduced leverage -- leading to the present diplomatic impasse.

The result has been charges of fecklessness and an erosion of confidence in U.S. leadership on other issues. Therefore, we now need to step back and confront these inherent contradictions:

- On the one hand, our own principles, as well as public and Congressional pressures, make it difficult to disengage and effectively abandon the Bosnians.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- On the other hand, we do not presently have the means to attain the political goal we have set -- negotiated settlements that deprive the Serbs of some of their ill-gotten gains -- and we have not been prepared to commit those means. Moreover, there is limited public support in the U.S. or in Europe for doing so.

Basic Strategic Choices

Many of our decisions over the next 2-3 months will be driven by events on the ground. But some of our choices will depend on where we want to go in the longer term. Therefore, before considering specific options, Principals need to decide our overall strategic direction and whether the course chosen is politically sustainable. This, in turn, requires deciding what are our priority interests and sticking with that decision in terms of committing the resources needed to attain our goals. The following, in broad terms, are basic approaches to be considered:

1. Continue our present policy: muddle through while supporting the Bosnians: Maintain the Contact Group and continue to seek a political solution that provides a better deal for the Bosnians, but not commit to increased military pressure on their behalf; rely for leverage on sanctions and efforts to isolate the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs (recognizing that these will be inadequate to the task). Seek to contain the fighting and humanitarian suffering to the extent possible, while maintaining Alliance cohesion. Keep UNPROFOR in place in essentially its present form (improve its effectiveness, but don't press it to take a more confrontational stance against the Serbs). Seek to postpone any lifting of the arms embargo and don't push for use of NATO air power, since this would precipitate UNPROFOR's withdrawal. Continue to sustain the Federation. Take additional measures in the front-line states to contain spillover of the conflict, such as beefing up UNPROFOR/Macedonia.

   - This would maintain European and Russian support, reduce the risks of deeper U.S. military involvement, and recognize that, absent such involvement, political settlements are not achievable in the foreseeable future.

   - The gap between our goal of a "fair" settlement and our unwillingness to provide the means to that end, however, would leave us vulnerable to charges of diplomatic fecklessness. It would be difficult to persuade the public and pro-Bosnian elements in the Congress that, over time, the maintenance of sanctions, a continued stalemate on the ground, and the solidity of the Federation will bring the Bosnian Serbs to accept a settlement along the lines of the

Contact Group plan, and the Krajina Serbs to accept autonomy within Croatia.

- The main weakness of this approach, however, is that the Bosnians and the Croatians are not prepared to play along: Both are ready to pursue the military option with renewed vigor over the coming months, putting UNPROFOR's presence in doubt. And the Bosnians will campaign for lift when the ceasefire ends. Our continued rhetorical support for their cause would make it difficult for us to oppose.

2. Adopt a policy of neutrality toward the terms of a settlement and focus on active containment of the conflict: Openly acknowledge that achieving a better solution for the Bosnians is not possible without U.S. actions that it is not in our interest to take. Apart from this shift in approach to the diplomatic track, take essentially the same actions as under the previous approach. Make clear we do not believe multilateral lift is politically attainable and strongly oppose Congressional pressures to lift unilaterally. Abandon Contact Group or suspend its activities, making clear that it is up to the parties, not the international community, to find a mutually acceptable solution. Promote periodic ceasefire agreements. Advise the Bosnians of the need to be realistic about the facts on the ground and agree to terms that acknowledge Serb preeminence (accept territorial outcomes short of 51:49, Serb Confederation with Belgrade; seek protection through links to Croatia, etc.).

   - This course would also maintain good relations with the Europeans, avoid a confrontation with Russia, and reduce the potential for U.S. military involvement. We would concentrate our efforts in areas where we have been able to achieve some success: reducing the violence, delivering humanitarian relief, maintaining the Muslim-Croat ceasefire and the Federation, and preventing the spread of the conflict outside of Bosnia and possibly Croatia. By distancing ourselves from the Bosnians' political agenda, we might have greater success in keeping UNPROFOR in place.

   - We would suffer harsh criticism from some quarters in the Congress and the public for abandoning the Bosnians and performing another flip-flop. We would need to make the case that it is not in U.S. interests to intervene unilaterally to ensure Bosnian victory, that we cannot gain European or Russian support for firmer measures to help the Bosnians, and that lift alone would probably make things worse for them in any case. We would want to appeal to the significant number of Congressmen whose support for lift is soft, and who are not keen on the deeper military involvement that a credible lift-and-strike policy would require.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Assuming we can ride out the initial storm, this approach would lower expectations and adjust public opinion to the reality of a continued conflict for which there may be no immediate solution. It would put the onus on the parties to negotiate directly with one another, rather than forcing us to explain repeated failed diplomatic initiatives backed by empty threats. It would force the Bosnians to accept the reality of defeat and the fact that they are destined to live surrounded by Serbs. It might even lead to a de facto indefinite cessation of serious hostilities, reducing both human suffering and public pressures for action.

- The problem with this approach, like the first, is that we may not be able to ride out the storm: the Bosnians may succeed in getting Congress to lift unilaterally, possibly with sufficient votes to override a Presidential veto. Moreover, we would, effectively, be acquiescing in Serb aggression, setting a dangerous precedent for the future.

3. Containment of Conflict and Long-Term Quarantine of Greater Serbia: Abandon efforts to negotiate a political settlement and reimpose full sanctions against Serbia for the long haul. Make clear we will refuse to recognize Serb conquests in Bosnia and Croatia and we will continue to treat Serbia as a pariah state until Serbs accept settlements that restore territorial integrity of Bosnia and Croatia. Refrain from military intervention, take laissez-faire approach to continued fighting among the parties. Concentrate on humanitarian aid, bolstering the Federation politically and economically, and containing spillover to other parts of the region. If UNPROFOR were to withdraw, this could be combined with a lift-and-leave strategy.

- This approach would be analogous to our approach to Soviet domination of Central and Eastern Europe during the Cold War, in which we were prepared to wait for decades for a just outcome -- isolating one party while promoting free-market development in the other. It would be based, again, on a recognition that there is no available political solution, and avoid perpetuating false expectations that the international community can impose a settlement. But in contrast to the previous approach, it would be based as well on a judgment that Milosevic remains the problem rather than the solution, despite his recent attempts to play the peacemaker -- distinguishing the victim from the victimizer.

- It is doubtful Russia would agree if we reimposed the sanctions noose around Serbia, however. We might agree with the Russians to disagree about Serbia, perhaps lifting or suspending some or all multilateral sanctions against the FRY -- but maintaining U.S. sanctions -- in exchange for agreement on continued, tightened sanctions against the Pale and Knin Serbs (but recognizing that Milosevic will try to undermine these to the extent he can get away with it).

- The front-line states' enforcement of sanctions would be difficult to sustain absent substantial financial compensation. Without such compensation, long-term continuation of the sanctions could actually have a destabilizing effect on the region overall. Moreover, this long-term approach could result in further Serb territorial expansion and prolong the humanitarian and refugee crisis for years to come.

- As with approaches 1 and 2, it is not clear we could sustain this course in the face of pressure from the Congress and the Bosnians.

4. Increased U.S. commitment in support of Bosnians, apply military pressure to compel Serb acceptance of a settlement: In theory, this could involve either: (a) returning to our 1994 approach: press for a more robust UNPROFOR that is prepared to use force against Serbs and make active use of NATO close air support; resume NATO enforcement of exclusion zones, and possibly establish additional exclusion zones; if these measures prove insufficient, withdraw UNPROFOR and implement a multilateral lift-and-strike strategy; or (b) proceeding directly to lift and strike, after helping UNPROFOR to withdraw. In practice, only (b) is feasible, since Allies will not agree to robust military actions while their vulnerable UNPROFOR forces remain in place.

- This would align our policy with Congressional rhetoric and provide the means to back up our declared goals of helping the Bosnians and thwarting Serb ambitions. It would lead to increased fighting, at least in the short term, but might in time give the Bosnians the capability to recover territory and, by altering the situation on the battlefield, convince the Serbs to agree to an equitable political settlement.

- It would, however, create significant strains in our relations with our Allies and the Russians. Our readiness to participate in NATO extraction of UNPROFOR could provide the leverage to win Allied support in the UNSC for multilateral lift. But preventing a Russian veto would be more difficult. It would, at a minimum, require lifting sanctions against Serbia at the same time (although this may be necessary in any event to encourage Milosevic not to resume military support to his Serb cousins).

- Moreover, withdrawing UNPROFOR and explicitly committing to produce a Bosnian success would hasten the onset of the situation we have sought most to avoid, the deployment of U.S. ground forces, leaving us with the responsibility for organizing relief supplies and protecting the enclaves. And lift - whether unilateral or multilateral -- would commit us to arming and training the Bosnians for an indefinite period, as well as providing air cover, even if we tried to set a time limit on our support. In short, it could Americanize the war, with little likelihood of hastening a political settlement.

Near-Term Decisions

The foregoing choices pertain mainly to the decisions we will need to take in the coming months on Bosnia. In Croatia, the situation may be more urgent, and our goal more straightforward: to prevent a new war over the Krajina. To this end, we need to be clear at the outset that we do not support Croatian military action to reassert control over the Krajina Serbs, and increase pressure on Tudjman to retain at least some portion of UNPROFOR interposed between the warring parties in the separation zone. We cannot go too far in imposing punitive measures on Tudjman, however, given the importance of Tudjman's support for the Federation and our need to use Croatian territory to support any UN/NATO/U.S. operation in Bosnia. We must above all avoid driving Tudjman into an unholy alliance with Milosevic to carve up Bosnia.

Finally, to the extent that we decide to focus more on containment of spillover, beefing up or replacing UNPROFOR in Macedonia would take on greater urgency alongside the decisions that we will need to make with respect to Bosnia and Croatia.

With these considerations in mind, the following is a sketch of the options on which decisions will be needed over the next three months.

Options: Croatia

Near Term:

- Make renewed push (in tandem with Germans and other Allies) within next 10 days to convince Tudjman to extend UNPROFOR with reduced mandate (UNPROFOR Lite).
- Fallback: Press for one-time extension of March 31/June 30 deadlines to allow more time for negotiations.

  Issue: Whether to threaten limited punitive actions at this stage? Or should we offer Tudjman a carrot?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

If these initial efforts fail:

- Begin Step Two prepositioning for UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia no later than March 8 (will require Congressional consultations and decisions on funding).
- Offer new, high-level international negotiator to negotiate Croatian settlement, in tandem with final push for acceptance of UNPROFOR Lite.
- Agree in principle to Croatian proposal for international task force (ITF) to replace UNPROFOR that would monitor Croatian-Bosnian border on condition that Tudjman agrees to extend ceasefire, agrees the force will also police the separation zone, and agrees to negotiate with Krajina Serbs on basis of principles in Z-4 plan.

  Issues: Is ITF feasible? (Border force would be highly vulnerable to attack or hostage-taking by Bosnian and Krajina Serb forces, who have traditionally viewed such a force as threat to their survival, and whose acceptance would be a sine qua non. Allies would look to U.S. to join the force. But some token presence on the border may be the fig leaf Tudjman needs to back down on ejection of UNPROFOR; Krajina Serbs may accept if it is only way to keep international forces in separation zone.)

  Who would comprise the force? (Unarmed civilian monitors? Joint international-Croatian-Krajina Serb police force? NATO? WEU, backed by U.S. air support -- but recognizing that effectiveness would be limited without TACPs?)

Medium Term:

- Withdraw UNPROFOR from Croatia

  Issues: Nature of U.S. participation?

  How to discourage Tudjman from using NATO forces as cover for early offensive (sanctions or other punitive steps? carrots?).

  How to deter Krajina Serbs from seizing vacated UNPROFOR positions or threatening NATO forces (air strike threat?)

- Introduce civilian monitors to replace UNPROFOR (e.g. OSCE)

Long Term (post-UNPROFOR withdrawal):

- Contain fighting: Establish no-fly zone in Croatia? Other measures?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Decide whether to let Tudjman fend for himself (allowing possible Serb victory) or to provide limited support, despite our warnings that he will be on his own.

Options: Bosnia

Near Term:

- Keep Plan B on the table.

  Issues: If so, for how long? Possible modifications/ extensions that aren't sweeteners -- e.g. put forward detailed proposal on constitutional arrangements for future Bosnian Union?)

- Consider staged or scaled-back Plan B -- i.e. ask Milosevic to identify the steps he would take in "partial recognition" of Bosnia and Croatia, determine whether they could be linked to limited sanctions relief.

  Issues: What could Milosevic do beyond tightening border closure to justify sanctions relief? (We could not justify additional relief for tightening a border that should be sealed already. Possibilities: close the "back door" to Croatia; cooperate with the War Crimes Tribunal; recognize Bosnia's border and territorial integrity but not the Sarajevo Government.)

  Should we take parallel steps in support of Bosnians to reduce Bosnian/Congressional criticism -- e.g. IMET, other training for Bosnians?

- Continue efforts to isolate Pale irrespective of Plan B: increase border monitors; close Krajina back door.

- Consider whether to reduce or end the activity of the Contact Group as such, in order to emphasize the need for the parties themselves to undertake territorial and constitutional discussions. (This would permit private or individual mediators to operate.) Or agree to French international conference without prior agreement on mutual recognition?

- Explore efforts to increase international support for the Federation: material assistance and political support (envoys to and from, participation in international conferences, agreements such as our proposed 505 agreement, etc.)

- Approach the UN to reconsider its decision not to expand UNPROFOR with the troops already offered (i.e. urge UN to increase UNPROFOR numerically to enable it to deliver humanitarian assistance more effectively, especially along the Blue Route, as opposed to changing its ROE).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Medium Term:

Decision depends on the choice of overall strategic approach as described above:

- Muddle through, continue to support Bosnians rhetorically, continue diplomatic efforts, but focus on containment.
- Shift to policy of neutrality toward terms of settlement and active containment of conflict; end or suspend Contact Group activities, acknowledge we cannot produce better deal for Bosnians.
- Containment of conflict and long-term quarantine of Greater Serbia.
- Renewed push for military measures in support of Bosnians: withdraw UNPROFOR, multilateral lift and strike

Long Term:

- Maintain support for Federation to forestall Muslim-Croat splits. Intensify isolation of Pale and Knin Serbs.
- Maintain support for War Crimes Tribunal.
- Withdraw UNPROFOR, lift the arms embargo, with lift possibly implemented in stages (beginning with defensive weapons) and tied to "final offer" to accept Contact Group plan.

  Issue: Are we prepared to lift unilaterally if Allies support us in UNSC but Russians veto? Alternatives to lift?

- Abandon support for lift, take tough line with Congress and Bosnians, stick with one of the containment options.

Options: Containing Spillover

- Beef up or replace UNPROFOR/Macedonia

  Issues: When and how? (Enlarge existing force under UN command? Replace with NATO division?)

- Continue efforts to defuse Greece/FYROM dispute.
- Shore up outer wall of sanctions against Serbia.
- Expand bilateral aid/infrastructure programs in south Balkans.
- Expand bilateral military cooperation and economic cooperation with Albania, Bulgaria, Macedonia.
- High-level visits to front-line states.

Intelligence Report

DCI Interagency Balkan Task Force 24 February 1995

The Balkans: The Next Three Months (U)

Fighting is likely to resume this spring because Croatia and Bosnia do not accept the status quo, believe that they can gain political and territorial concessions from Serbs only through military force, and are highly skeptical of the international community's efforts to forge an equitable peace. Fighting is more likely to break out first in Bosnia in March with the collapse of the cessation of hostilities agreement. The scope and intensity of this could influence President Tudjman's calculations on regaining the Krajina by force, but Tudjman's decision on the renewal of conflict there will be taken independently of fighting in Bosnia. Clashes are likely by April or May in conjunction with the UNPROFOR pullout. In a second, less likely scenario, a combination of factors could postpone the fighting until later this year but not alter the deep clashes of interest. In a third scenario, all the warring factions would have to make fundamental changes to their political positions--even less likely in the near to mid term--in order for there to be real movement toward a stable peace in the region. 3.5c

Current Balkans leaders are pursuing irreconcilable demands that make even the beginning of a meaningful peace process in the next three months unlikely. At most, one or more of the key actors in the two major zones of conflict might be convinced to postpone military action. Postponement, however, is not necessarily a way station on the road to peace. Only a reordering of demands or a significant shift in the military situation on the ground would set the stage for a renewed effort to forge a lasting peace in the region. 3.5c

The Key Actors: What Drives Them?

Croatia: Guided by a vision of his personal historical role, mounting nationalist/political pressures which he has helped generate, and frustration with the international community, President Tudjman is now prepared to initiate large-scale military action to reintegrate the Krajina into Croatia. He is encouraged by claims of military superiority from his generals and his own belief that Serbian President Milosevic will not intervene. We do not have evidence Tudjman is working with a specific time schedule; however, having taken the bit in his teeth, it is unlikely he will stall for long or accept merely paper changes in UNPROFOR's mandate. There is no significant peace faction in the Croatian leadership. 3.5c

Krajina Serbs: Despite fractious personal differences, the Krajina Serb leadership adamantly refuses any form of reintegration, including the limited "autonomy" Zagreb is willing to offer. They will fight fiercely to protect their homeland and could escalate localized Croatian attacks by shelling major Croatian cities. If attacked, they expect help from the Bosnian Serbs and, in extremis, from Belgrade. There is no significant peace faction in Knin. 3.5c

Bosnian Government: Bosnian leaders firmly believe that they can regain territory from the Bosnian Serbs and preserve the concept of a unified Bosnia within its internationally recognized boundaries only by military pressure. They are increasingly confident of their own military capabilities and see the tide swinging in their favor as they look out several years. There is no significant politically organized opposition within the Muslim community to this vision. The Bosnian Croats are largely satisfied with the territory they now control and take their guidance from Zagreb, not Sarajevo. The Herzegovinian hardliners leading the Bosnian Croats ultimately hope to be integrated into a Greater Croatia, a vision that Tudjman does not discourage. 3.5c

Bosnian Serbs: Bosnian Serb leaders will accept nothing less than an independent state as an interim measure toward the creation of an ill-defined "Greater Serbia." They are willing to give up some of the territory they now control to reach an agreement, but until then will fight to keep what they have. They are committed to helping the Krajina Serbs. If pressed by Bosnian Government forces, they might also consider a major military campaign aimed at dealing the Bosnian Government a severe defeat. Although some divisions among leaders are now being publicized, even those advocating acceptance of the Contact Group plan agree with Karadzic on driving a hard bargain on territory and independence for a Bosnian Serb state. Army Commander Mladic despises Karadzic but also shares his goal for an independent Serbian Bosnia with ties to Serbia. 3.5c

Serbia: President Milosevic continues to be a cornerstone to a settlement but at the same time is only a secondary player with limited influence on those he helped into power in Pale and Knin. Milosevic is driven by a strong personal desire to remain in power. He seeks to end sanctions but not at the cost of important political values. He continues to support--for political if not necessarily personal reasons--the concept of a "Greater Serbia," which makes it unlikely he could recognize Croatia and Bosnia or refuse help to the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs if they appeared to be on the verge of serious setbacks. In the short run, he is unable, not just unwilling, to compel either the Krajina Serb or Bosnian Serb leaders to make compromises that they believe are not in their interest. There is no significant peace party in Serbia. 3.5c

Russia: Moscow's overall objectives will be to maintain an influential role in the international decision-making process on the Balkans as the Contact Group process wanes, while trying to keep the conflict contained and minimizing NATO's role. Tactically, Russian leaders will want to increase Russian leverage and head off all domestic criticism by pressing for full sanctions relief for Serbia. Moscow has limited influence with Belgrade--and even less with Pale--but the Russians have the capacity to play a spoiler role. They may pose obstacles to any international actions if they believe that the West is not accounting for Russian interests. 3.5c

EU Contact Group Members: Fearing renewed violence and a broader Balkan conflict, the European Union members of the Contact Group are desperate to keep the negotiating process alive but are increasingly frustrated with the intransigence of the feuding parties. Germany, Britain, and France--which holds the EU presidency and has the largest troop contingent in the former Yugoslavia--will focus on offering incentives for peace, wooing Zagreb with the prospect of EU aid and Belgrade with the promise of lifting sanctions. The EU members so far do not have a unified strategy for dealing with the renewal of full-scale war in Bosnia, according to various sources. Despite differing views, European Contact Group members agree on the need for Contact Group unity and are likely to maintain a coordinated position among themselves under French leadership. 3.5c

Renewed Fighting

It is likely that fighting will resume in Bosnia in the next two months, and clashes could then follow quickly in Croatia.

- The Bosnian Government has clearly focused on resupplying, reequipping and reorganizing its forces during the four-month cessation of hostilities (COH) in preparation for launching additional attacks to retake territory in central Bosnia. The Bosnian Serbs also believe that fighting will resume and are taking steps to increase military pressure on the Bihac enclave.

- The Bihac enclave will be the likely focal point of fighting for most of March as the Government V Corps clashes with Krajina Serb and rebel Muslim forces--which did not sign the COH agreement--supported by the Bosnian Serbs. Major gains by either faction around Bihac would probably cause the fighting to spread elsewhere in Bosnia, as the losing faction would attempt to pressure the other by attacking at other points.

- Fighting will probably increase in the rest of Bosnia by late March or early April as the weather improves--temperatures rise into the mid-50s--and the warring factions begin to jockey for military advantage prior to the end of the COH on 30 April. In 1994, fighting picked up substantially in April as

3.5c

the government launched a series of attacks in central Bosnia and the Serbs responded by assaulting Gorazde.

- The Bosnian Serbs will probably make a push for new talks in late April and call for an extension of the COH agreement in an attempt to preempt a government attack. The Bosnian Government may accept additional talks under international pressure but will probably reject any extension of the COH agreement.

- The return of warmer, drier weather by May will probably lead to general fighting throughout Bosnia. Government forces will probably launch a series of local attacks--following their strategy of last year--especially in central and northern Bosnia. Government forces will probably make some territorial gains, as the Bosnian Serbs are stretched thin and essentially remain cut off from Serbia. Serb strategy has been to respond to any government attack with an overwhelming offensive--preferably against an isolated or poorly defended enclave--to press the government to abandon its offensive. The Bosnian Serbs, however, will be reluctant to commit their forces fully to a Bosnian offensive, because some may be needed to reinforce the Krajina Serbs in Croatia.

- The resumption of fighting will spark renewed discussion of the need to remove UNPROFOR from Bosnia. Heavy fighting in Bosnia at the same time as an UNPROFOR pullout from Croatia in May and June will spark calls in Paris and London to move toward a withdrawal before winter.

- A major resumption of hostilities in Bosnia, which included an all-out Bosnian Serb effort to take the eastern enclaves, could put at risk nearly 120,000 Muslims who would try to flee to the nearest Muslim-controlled territory. 3.5c

The fighting in Bosnia could influence the prospects for renewed clashes in Croatia, but Tudjman's decision on a renewal of the conflict there will be taken independently of the fighting in Bosnia.

- President Tudjman has ordered the UN to begin withdrawing from Croatia after 31 March and complete withdrawal by 30 June. The Croatians expect to come under increasingly heavy international pressure in the coming month to extend the UN mandate. They appear prepared to stand firm and exact a high price: an international monitoring force--possibly including forces from NATO or Contact Group states--on the Croatian border with Bosnia and Serbia, recognition of Croatia's international border by Belgrade, and demonstrable progress on reintegration of Serb-held territory. In late March or early April, Tudjman may make a push for new talks with the Krajina Serbs, in hopes that the UN pullout will pressure the Serbs to make additional concessions.

~~Secret~~

3.5c

- While the Krajina Serbs may be willing to undertake new negotiations after the deadline is passed, they will not make the concessions necessary to preempt military action by the Croatian armed forces.

- Clashes are likely in late April and early May as the UN begins its withdrawal. A key factor will be the UN pull-out from the Zone of Separation between the warring factions in late April. Krajina Serb and Croat military forces probably will both move to seize key positions along the confrontation line currently occupied by the UN.

- Zagreb will probably attempt to exploit any clashes to place the onus for renewed fighting on the Krajina Serbs. As the clashes escalate, the Krajina Serbs will take steps to impede the withdrawal of UNPROFOR, including taking isolated units as hostages. At this point, the UN may call for NATO to take steps to facilitate the withdrawal of the trapped peacekeepers.

- The Croats will probably try to avoid launching a major offensive until UNPROFOR has withdrawn--slated to be completed by 30 June--but could speed up this timetable if the Krajina Serbs take steps to formally unite with the Bosnian Serbs or they take direct military action against Croatian cities.

- Tudjman may be influenced by events in Bosnia in establishing the timetable for any military operation. Heavy fighting in Bosnia could provide Zagreb with an opportunity to exploit the Krajina Serb weakness in manpower because fewer Bosnian Serbs would be available to reinforce the Krajina. If a settlement appears likely in Bosnia, the Croats may opt for military measures before the International Community eliminates sanctions on Serbia.

- It is very difficult to estimate the number of refugees that would result from major conflict in part because estimates of the current population in the Serb-controlled territories of Croatia vary from about 200,000 to 450,000. Refugees would most likely move into territory controlled by the Bosnian Serbs. 3.5c

Milosevic's recognition of Croatia and Bosnia--although unlikely--would probably accelerate and increase the fighting in both Bosnia and Croatia.

- Serbia's recognition of Croatia's borders would cause the Krajina Serbs to announce formal unification with the Bosnian Serbs. This would almost certainly lead to an immediate military assault by the Croats.

- The Bosnian Government forces would be bolstered by recognition but would almost certainly redouble their military efforts against the Bosnian Serbs, who would now be completely cut off from resupply. 3.5c

~~Secret~~

~~Secret~~
3.5c

Postponed Fighting

While the differences between the warring factions in Croatia and Bosnia make another round of fighting likely in the next three months, a combination of factors could postpone the fighting until later this year.

- Introduction of a follow-on peacekeeping force could delay renewed fighting in Croatia. Zagreb will only accept a new force that will take control of Croatia's border with Serbia and Bosnia. The Krajina Serbs are unlikely to accept such a force unless it also is charged with patrolling the current cease-fire line. If both factions compromised on this issue and some minimal international force--probably from the WEU or NATO--were in place in April before UNPROFOR begins withdrawing, fighting could be forestalled while a new round of negotiations took place.

- Zagreb will be reluctant to launch a major attack while substantial UN forces are still in Serb-held territories. If the UN withdrawal in April and May is particularly slow and a large number of peacekeepers remain in the region, Croatia may opt to postpone major military action until the fall, after the tourist season.

- If Croatia is seriously threatened with major economic sanctions in response to military attacks on the Krajina Serbs, Zagreb may delay military action until the international community's focus wanes or until Croatia can point to a serious Serb "provocation" to justify further military operations. 3.5c

Heavy fighting would be postponed in Bosnia if the Bosnian Government decided to delay its likely spring offensives.

- Heavy spring rains could impede resupply and movement of government forces, and they may wait until the drier months of June or July before launching major attacks.

- Government forces may wish to take advantage of the impact on the Serbs of renewed fighting in Croatia. Under such a scenario, they might postpone their attacks until the Bosnian Serbs are heavily engaged in the fighting in the Krajina, probably in June or later.

- The government could rethink its plans for military operations if serious negotiations were about to take place. These would require true concessions from the Bosnian Serbs prior to the start of talks, including removal of forces from key areas such as Sarajevo, and some form of acceptance of the original contact group plan. 3.5c

The International Military Presence in Macedonia: Regional Stability and Containment

Purpose

This paper provides a strategy to retain international military forces in Macedonia and surrounding countries to contain the further spread of war in the Balkans should UNPROFOR withdraw from Croatia and Bosnia and fighting increase there. This military strategy is designed to support the long-term stabilization of Macedonia as an area critical to spread of war further into the southern tier of Europe.

Background

The Principals' Committee meeting on February 7, 1995, directed more comprehensive planning on options to contain the conflict in Bosnia and Croatia. Pressure is growing for the withdrawal of UNPROFOR from the former Yugoslavia, and the prospects for renewed fighting in both Croatia and Bosnia are high in the Spring. Given Macedonia's importance to stability in Southern Europe, the Principals directed that special attention be given to strengthening forces in Macedonia to provide stability through deterrence of military threats to Macedonia.

National Interests

Preventing the spread of war in the Balkans is a vital national security interest of the United States, and Macedonia is the center of gravity to containing conflict in Southern Europe. Regional war would threaten the overall stability of Europe and could trigger a conflict between Greece and Turkey, thereby further straining NATO in an increasingly volatile area. The US commitment to stability in Macedonia is well-established. This Administration has reaffirmed the Bush Administration's announcement in December 1992 that the US would employ military force against the Serbians in Kosovo and Serbia proper in the event of conflict in Kosovo caused by Serbian action. While the threat of Serbian caused violence is low, the consequence of a large refugee flow into Macedonia is grave for the entire region.

The Threat: Why Focus on Macedonia?

The sizable ethnic Albania minority in Macedonia makes it likely that should Macedonia be destabilized, the Albanians will move to merge those ethnically Albanian dominated areas within Macedonia with Albania. An upheaval in Kosovo, which is 90% ethnic Albanian, would result in massive refugee flows that would present Macedonia with insupportable economic, political, and security problems. This is the greatest threat to the region in general for it is the most likely condition to destabilize Macedonia and lead to a land grab of at least parts of Macedonia with the potential to draw in NATO allies Greece and Turkey onopposite sides, Russia, Serbia, and Bulgaria.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

The greatest threat to Macedonian stability is its internal condition undermined by external factors. The combined effects of enforcing the UN-mandated economic sanctions on Macedonia's major trading partner, Serbia, and the closure of the border with Greece, have led to deteriorating and grave economic difficulties--30% unemployment, per capita income at 1964 levels, and industrial output operating at 40% efficiency. These problems only exacerbate ethnic tensions. At the same time, Macedonian nationalists have become more militant. It is conceivable that the fragile democracy that Gligorov has built cannot survive these pressures.

In sum, Macedonia is the most politically, economically, and militarily vulnerable of the states in the region, and its political and military collapse would trigger a preventable wider Balkan war.

Options.

Four options are available to support an international military presence in Macedonia. These include:

1. A NATO deployment;
2. A U.S. led, multinational deployment,
3. A U.S. unilateral deployment,
4. Retain UNPROFOR.

The disadvantages and dangers inherent in any unilateral U.S. action would likely aggravate regional tensions. Such action would risk NATO, PFP, and our emerging partnership with Russia. Moreover, the American people would likely be particularly hesitant to support any U.S. involvement of ground combat forces without a similar commitment from our NATO allies. Finally, it would be logistically difficult if not impossible to get so involved without the direct support of our NATO allies.

A U.S.-led multinational (but not NATO) suffers from many of the disadvantages of a unilateral U.S. action, and does not enjoy the existing infrastructure advantages of a NATO-run operation.

A NATO-run containment strategy has intrinsic merit. Containment of the conflict is a European problem first and foremost, and NATO has the existing political and military infrastructure to support such activities. An exclusively NATO-led operation would not be plagued by the dual-key, chain-of-command difficulties that have characterized UN-NATO command relationships in Bosnia to date. Even so, such an enhanced NATO-controlled operation also risks heightening regional tensions. Without the economic assistance and political stabilization package, such a strategy would not address internally-based stability concerns.

The status quo option is based on the premise that the current UNPROFOR mission and force structure not only is adequate to respond to the current threat environment, but also that any increase in the in the size of the forces would be counterproductive in the long-term--that it would be destabilizing by provoking internal unrest.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Proposed Concept

Given the withdrawal of UNPROFOR from the former Yugoslavia and the potential for conflict among Serbia, Croatia, and the warring parties in Bosnia, the deployment of a more capable NATO force to Macedonia and associated sites in the southern Balkans is designed to deter a wider Balkan war. It should be equipped and have the ROE to carry out its assigned mission. This deployment is expected to be of indefinite duration. It should be under NATO command and control (C2), operating under a UN mandate. It is intended to send a strong international and internal signal regarding its commitment to preserve internal and regional stability in Southern Europe, thereby containing the present conflict to the former Yugoslavia.

Mandate

The principal focus of this strategy is not the areas of conflict themselves but rather the areas of potential conflict in the countries surrounding Bosnia. Authority for the operations will emanate from a UN mandate, but under NATO C2.

General Mission

An appropriately sized NATO ground force, with significant U.S. participation and with appropriate air and naval support in the region, will deploy to Macedonia. This force will deter threats to Macedonia and preserve the inviolability of Macedonia's internationally recognized borders, thereby enhancing internal and regional stability and prevent the spread of war throughout the Balkans.

Forces and Operations

- Deploy an appropriately sized NATO force to Macedonia;
- NATO force is under exclusive NATO command and control;
- Consider increasing NATO naval presence in the Adriatic;
- Consider increasing NATO air forces deployed to the region; consider basing in Albania.

Assumptions

- NATO will concentrate on containment of the conflict vice active ground involvement in the former Yugoslavia.
- Macedonia will accept the NATO deployment and permit the full use of its military infrastructure.
- UN sanctions against Serbia will not be part of the NATO mission.
- Russia, Turkey, and Greece cannot prevent this deployment.
- UNPROFOR has withdrawn from Bosnia and Croatia.
- Deployment will be under permissive conditions--logistics hubs, overflight and transit rights, and SOFAs will be available.
- Funding arrangements will be acceptable to the U.S.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met to review the agreement on a new international presence in Croatia worked out on March 6 in Zagreb between Ambassador Holbrooke and President Tudjman. In welcoming the agreement, Deputies noted the discrepancy between Tudjman's expectations of the force controlling Croatia's international borders and what Allies will likely support. In view of this discrepancy, Deputies agreed that the CJCS would place low-key calls to CHODs of principal Allies and UNPROFOR/Croatia troop contributors to describe the meaning of "control" of the border as understood in the agreement. (Action: JCS) (S)

2. Deputies agreed to proceed with planning for the Vice President to meet with Tudjman in Copenhagen on March 12, where the agreement would be finalized and announced by Tudjman, and to prepare for a possible meeting between the President and

Presidents Izetbegovic and Tudjman during the ceremony honoring the one-year anniversary of Federation on March 16. They confirmed that the agreement with Tudjman needed to be finalized and announced before we invited Tudjman to Washington. (Action: State) (S)

3. Deputies agreed that Ambassador Albright should wait until after the agreement has been announced before circulating a draft UN Security Council resolution that would establish the mandate for the new UN force. They agreed, however, that she should preview the main elements to Contact Group counterparts. (Action: USUN) (S)

SIDE PAPER

This paper describes the understandings reached between Croatia and the U.S. regarding the statement for a new international presence in Croatia.

1. The international force is envisioned to consists of approximately 5,000 troops,

2.. Troops may carry weapons for self-defense and may have other protective equipment (such as armored vehicles),

3. The limited period of time is understood to extend at least until June 30, 1995,

4. The United States will support a separate Croatia-only UNSC resolution providing for a separate Croatia-only mandate for the new international force,

5. The name of the new international force shall make no reference to UNPROFOR,

6. To the extent possible, troops should come from countries mutually agreed between Croatia and the Security Council,

7. It is expected that the international force will control 25 to 30 main crossing points between FRY and Croatia, and between B-H and Croatia,

8. The international force shall prohibit the crossing of the international border by military personnel, or of military equipment, supplies, and weapons,

[9. To the extent possible, the commander of the international force shall be from a country agreed between Croatia and the UN Security Council.]

As of April 1, 1995, the Mandate of UNPROFOR in Croatia will have expired. Working with the Security Council and its partners in the international community, Croatia will seek to negotiate a new UN Security Council Mandate for an international presence in Croatia that will ---

1. Control the international borders between the Republic of Croatia and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia - Montenegro), and between the Republic of Croatia and the Republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina, at such places where principal crossing points are not now controlled by the authorities of the Republic of Croatia;

2. Control access and communications for UNPROFOR and other international humanitarian operations to Bosnia-Herzegovina through territory not currently under the control of the authorities of the Republic of Croatia; and

3. Facilitate the continued implementation of the Ceasefire Agreement of March 29, 1994, and the Economic Agreement of December 2, 1994, and facilitate implementation of future agreements aimed at the reintegration of Croatia, and facilitate implementation of relevant UNSCRs

Pending the successful negotiation of a mandate for a new international presence along the lines described above and for a limited period of time, the Government of Croatia agrees that the current international presence may continue to perform functions related to its mission in Bosnia-Herzegovina and functions essential to the continued implementation of the above mentioned agreements of March 29, 1994 and December 2, 1994.

NEAR-TERM CROATIA STRATEGY

Zagreb Meetings

In his meetings with A/S Holbrooke on March 6, President Tudjman insisted that the current mandate of UNPROFOR cannot be renewed, but agreed to permit the continuation of an international force in Croatia. Tudjman will seek from the UN a new mandate for an international force which will:

1. control the international borders between Croatia and Serbia-Montenegro, and between Croatia and Bosnia;

2. maintain UNPROFOR's logisitical role and humanitarian operations in Bosnia; and

3. implement the Ceasefire Agreement of March 29, 1994, and the Economic Agreement of December 2, 1994.

(See attached statement agreed by Croatia.)

Although point 1 introduces a new and possibly problematic responsibility for the international force, point 3 provides for the essential task of continued monitoring of the disengagement of forces. Tudjman insisted on avoiding reference to the zone of separation, but accepted explicit mention of the March agreement, which defines the lines.

He also agreed to permit UNPROFOR to continue its current operations in Croatia for a period of at least three months during which a new mandate for a new international force will be developed. The new force would have roughly half the number of personnel that UNPROFOR currently devotes to the UNPAs and would be concentrated on their perimeter, rather than be deployed throughout Serb-held territory.

Following subsequent discussions with Contact Group governments and UN Secretariat officials, it appears that sufficient support can be obtained for a UN presence that meets the key requirements of the USG, Croatia, and the "RSK." Important details remain to be worked out before circulating a draft UNSC resolution, however. Ambassador Galbraith is traveling to Knin Thursday to try to bring the Krajina Serbs on board.

Tudjman's concession resulted in part from understandings with the U.S. on the reconstituted UN presence. A text describing these points was worked out in Zagreb. (See attached side paper.)

Next steps -

In the next week we would propose to undertake the following:

1. Soundings with key allies, Moscow, Secretariat (begun).

2. Galbraith meetings in Knin.

3. Christopher-Tudjman phone call to nail down Zagreb's agreement.

4. Gore-Tudjman meeting followed by Croatian announcement, which Croats circulate as UNSC document.

5. USG statement (at State noon briefing) to welcome.

6. High-level USG communications to Moscow, Belgrade, and Knin, urging cooperation in avoiding war in Croatia.

7. Washington briefings for Contact Group members, UNPROFOR troops contributors, others.

Subsequently, we would begin preparatory work on draft UNSC resolution language while the Federation Anniversary get the Balkan headlines. Although a possible March 16 Tudjman-Clinton meeting could help advance the UNPROFOR issue, its substantive focus should be on the Federation and it should only be offered if Zagreb's compromise has already been locked in. We should also explore a Z-4 approach to Knin proposing negotiations with Zagreb on the principles of Croatian sovereignty and Krajina autonomy. Realistically, progress toward negotiations is unlikely before April.

The focus of attention on the UN presence would then move primarily to consultations in New York, first among the Contact Group Ambassadors, later within the full Security Council. How the end-game should be played depends largely on reactions received from the governments most directly concerned in the next two weeks.

Tactics

For domestic political reasons, Tudjman wants the issuance of the Croatian statement on continuation of a UN presence to be seen as a result of our strong pressure. Vice President Gore's imminent visit to Copenhagen and a possible bilat with Tudjman present an excellent target of opportunity. That would get Croatia on record before the domestic reaction to any leak of the compromise gives

DRAFT

Tudjman second thoughts. It would also let the international community start serious work on making the most of this opportunity.

Russia and Serbia will require careful handling, but first we need to firm up the public perception that continuation of UNPROFOR in its present form in Croatia is not in the cards. It must be clear that the choice is between a full UNPROFOR pullout with attendant risks of conflict and possible NATO involvement or the Zagreb compromise. This means keeping news of Tudjman's concession quiet until Croatia is ready to make its announcement.

Subsequently we must work closely with Moscow to ensure that it plays a helpful role vis-a-vis Belgrade. In approaching the Russians, we will want to emphasize the gravity of the situation, explaining that the new mandate is essential to avoiding a war in the Krajina.

At the same time, we will work to re-invigorate the negotiating track between Knin and Zagreb. We will follow up Krajina hints of political talks once a continued UN presence is assured, seeking to keep SRSG Akashi engaged, since he has a certain credibility with the Serbs. The ongoing power struggle in Knin makes dealing there [illegible] stake in avoiding war than does Serbia, so we should seek to have Knin rather than Belgrade be the main address for dealing with the Serbs on a new UN mandate in Croatia.

UN forces in Croatia will need some kind of mandate as of April 1 to avoid being left in legal limbo. We can use this deadline to generate pressure for UNSC members to get behind the deal. In any case, the UN will need time to draw down UNPROFOR, re-deploy, and establish border monitoring operations. We should therefore think in terms of a bridging resolution that nails down the key elements of the successor force (much as the UNSC endorsed the Vance Plan concept prior to establishing UNPROFOR), while authorizing UNPROFOR to continue monitoring the cease-fire and implementing the economic agreement until the new presence is established.

RESPONSE TO MILOSEVIC'S PROPOSAL

- Milosevic's proposal is weak and tenuous, particularly in its avoidance of any time frame for steps forward.

  -- The Europeans have already told him that his first step, the unconditional lifting of sanctions, is unacceptable.

  -- Milosevic has postponed recognition of Bosnia until there is a final peace settlement, referring only to a union of the Federation and the "Republika Srpska" rather than the existing and internationally recognized Republic.

  -- He has omitted any mention of recognition of Croatia, only a "normalization of relations".

  -- On the military front, Milosevic asks that UNPROFOR continue its current activities in Serb-held areas of Croatia and that the Bosnian cessation of hostilities agreement remain in force.

- Milosevic also introduced elements of the Contact Group territorial proposal which create a loophole for the Bosnian Serbs.

  -- Both constitutional and territorial arrangements would be discussed by the parties without any prior requirement for Pale to accept the plan.

- To maintain a degree of momentum towards resolution of this conflict, it is appropriate to work with Milosevic to adjust his proposal.

  -- Allowing the European members of the Contact Group to continue the dialogue without us offers insulation from Congressional criticism. However, our participation would ensure that the Europeans do not produce a "solution" which we cannot accept.

  -- The Europeans have done an admirable job of explaining our political parameters to Milosevic, but were unable to make corrections or adjustments to his proposal.

  -- Our participation in future Contact Group meetings with Milosevic will make it easier to determine, early in the process, if this dialogue has any merit.

- Time is the only factor which will moderate Milosevic's position. He holds the keys to resolving this conflict, and as long as we can protect our equities, we should let this dialogue take its course.

Talking Points for Secretary's Telcon with President Tudjman

- Pleased to hear the report of your meetings with A/S Holbrooke in Zagreb. Your decision to announce that while the current UN mandate would still end on March 31, you agree that the present UN forces can remain while we seek a new UNSCR mandate reflecting your goals as described in the "side paper" is very positive.

- This new mandate will be one of our top priorities in New York. I have asked Amb. Albright to begin work immediately on the new UNSCR. We will work especially closely to achieve a UNSCR that reflects the goals outlined in the private "side paper" you and A/S Holbrooke agreed on.

- I have suggested that Vice President Gore meet you in Copenhagen on Sunday. I have asked Dick Holbrooke to accompany the Vice President and represent the State Department when you make the announcement that you and he agreed on.

- A/S Holbrooke met with the Germans, French, and British in Frankfurt yesterday (Tuesday) to convey the substance of your meetings in Zagreb. They were generally supportive of this overall approach.

- Separately, our Ambassador in Moscow has consulted with the Russians and we have briefed them in Washington as well. Their initial reaction has been positive.

- Regarding press and public announcements:

  -- We need to coordinate with the press on any public announcements.

  -- The press seems not to have the story up to now. Our discussions have not become public. But we cannot be certain that will hold until Sunday.

  -- I know you have asked that an American be with you when you make the announcement. That could be done in Copenhagen. If that must happen before Sunday, because details have become public beforehand, it may be that you and I could make coordinated statements,

  -- I am pleased to learn that you and Ambassador Galbraith and Assistant Secretary Holbrooke have worked out the public statement, but you would be making that. Immediately after your statement, either I or another ranking American official would make a statement welcoming your decision and confirming that you will be coming to Washington for the March 16 events in connection with the announcement of the establishment of the Friends of the Federation. I look forward to seeing you then.

TALKING POINTS FOR CALLS TO MEMBERS OF CONGRESS

Support for Step Two of NATO Prepositioning for UNPROFOR Withdrawal

- As you know, in early December the President informed our Allies that the U.S. would be prepared, in principle, to commit U.S. ground forces to a NATO operation to help UNPROFOR withdraw from Bosnia.

- Assisting UN forces in Bosnia, in particular those of our closest Allies, would be an essential demonstration of Alliance solidarity. Failure to offer such support would risk grave damage to NATO.

- We do not want UNPROFOR to depart; it performs a critical function in Bosnia. Our decision to assist an UNPROFOR withdrawal was a decision in principle.

- The Administration has no intention of keeping U.S. ground forces in Bosnia or Croatia following a withdrawal operation. The sole purpose of deploying troops would be to participate as a NATO-member nation in support of UNPROFOR withdrawal.

- I hasten to note that the UN has not made a formal decision to withdraw UNPROFOR from either Bosnia or Croatia. Fighting, however, could resume in Bosnia this spring. Heavy fighting could well prompt a UN decision to withdraw.

- Since it would take 8-12 weeks after a UN request for help and a NATO decision to implement the OP Plan before preparations are complete and forces in place to commence a withdrawal of UNPROFOR, our senior military commanders recommend that we act now to ensure that the essential first prepositioning steps are taken to ensure the communications network is ready to support a likely major military operation.

- Accordingly, I am asking for your support for a Presidential decision in principle to preposition approximately 450 U.S. DOD personnel to the area -- over 300 in Croatia -- to execute the preliminary communications steps associated with NATO's operational plan for extraction of UNPROFOR from Bosnia.

- In the interim, NATO's Operational Plan is being updated continuously; there has been no final determination on the numbers of troops that would be provided from among the various NATO allies, how the overall operation would be funded, nor when precisely the actual prepositioning of communications personnel would begin. Prior to implementation of the complete plan, we will consult with you again.

IF ASKED

- Funding for the prepositioning steps would come from existing NATO funds (about $11 million).

- As for Croatia, we believe that UNPROFOR has a critical role to play in that nation as well. We are currently urging President Tudjman to reverse his decision not to extend UNPROFOR's mandate beyond March 31.

- Due to ongoing negotiations with Croatian President Tudjman on a future role for UNPROFOR, President Clinton has not yet made a formal determination on whether the U.S. would agree to participate in a NATO operation to extract UNPROFOR forces presently deployed in Croatia. At this point, therefore, NATO prepositioning in Croatia would be done to assist in an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia.

- Congressional approval?
- how much?
- how many?

Congress of the United States

Washington, DC 20515

February 17, 1995

The President
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

We are writing to urge immediate action by you on the war in Bosnia. While diplomats talk in the wake of former President Carter's visit to the region, there is strong reason to believe that the Bosnian Serbs will continue to reject peace. If the war in Bosnia resumes full scale, we do not believe the situation will continue as it has for the last three years. UNPROFOR's already weakened position will become even more untenable, and pressure for its withdrawal will increase.

In the event of either significant Serbian escalation or of UNPROFOR withdrawal, the case for ending the international arms embargo of Bosnia becomes even more compelling. We trust that, in such circumstances, your Administration would move expeditiously to end the United Nations embargo. Should that not be possible, however, we would expect the Congress to vote to unilaterally end participation by the United States in the embargo.

In any event, the United States has an obligation to prepare for the most likely scenarios in Bosnia. If the embargo is to be ended, either multilaterally or unilaterally, we will want to see direct U.S. involvement in the conflict held to a minimum. The surest way to minimize direct U.S. involvement after the embargo is ended is to act now to train the pro-government forces in strategy and tactics and the use of some of the weapons they are likely to obtain.

Such training would reduce the risk to the pro-government forces of any preemptive Serbian offensive, and would be an alternative to sending U.S. forces into Bosnia to provide training after the embargo is ended. Such training should be provided outside of Bosnia in order to avoid any risk to U.S. trainers. We understand that such training can be provided at a small fraction of the cost we currently are paying for the U.N. peacekeeping operation in Bosnia, and that it could be completed in less than six months. We also understand that the government of Bosnia and Hercegovina would welcome such training, and indeed already has submitted a formal request to you in this regard.

There can be no question about your authority to direct the provision of such training. Section 1404 of the 1995 Defense Department Authorization Act (the so-called Nunn-Mitchell provision) required the Administration to present options to the Congress for training the pro-government forces in Bosnia. Other provisions of law, including section 503 of the National Security Act of 1947, give you authority to deliver such training. Further, the provision of such training by the United States would not violate existing Security Council resolutions or relevant principles of international law.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

We believe you should take this step in order to be better prepared for the likely next phase of the war in Bosnia and in order to reduce the likelihood that U.S. forces will become directly involved in that war. It is important to note, however, that a program of training the pro-government forces in Bosnia would give the United States additional leverage in the ongoing negotiations with the Bosnian Serbs. Beginning a training program now would make clear to the Bosnian Serbs our determination to bring about a just and sustainable peace, and would underscore to them the probable cost of prolonging the conflict.

In other words, in the hands of able diplomats, a policy of training the pro-government forces for war could prove to be a powerful instrument for bringing about peace.

For all these reasons, we urge you to initiate promptly a program of military training for the pro-government forces in Bosnia and Hercegovina.

ISSUE PAPER:
TRAINING THE PRO-GOVERNMENT FORCES IN BOSNIA

Background: Senator Dole, Rep. Gilman, and others wrote the President on February 17, 1995, to urge him to "act now to train the pro-government forces in strategy and tactics and the use of some of the weapons they are likely to obtain." The Members argued that the surest way to minimize direct U.S. involvement is to train the pro-government forces now so as to reduce their risk from any preemptive Serbian offensive.

Ambassador Alkalaj of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina (B-H) also wrote President Clinton on January 17, 1995, to request that the U.S. review the means by which training for the B-H Army personnel could begin outside of the borders of B-H. He argued that such training "can be most decisive in preparing B-H for continuing its defense against aggression, or, in the event of a negotiated settlement, for an effective deterrent and source of stability as peace is secured...."

An interagency General Counsels' (OGC) group in February recommended that only a "narrow" IMET be concluded for reasons of neutrality and force protection. OGC posited the negative consequences associated with violating the spirit and intent of UNSCRs and losing the protections afforded by "experts on mission" status. They believe, however, that adequate domestic legal authority exists to provide the training contemplated by Senator Dole.

Issue: The type of training, if any, that the USG should provide to the pro-government forces in B-H; where that training should be provided; and when such training should begin.

Options:

1. Limit training at this time to that outlined in a narrow Section 505 of the Foreign Assistance Act agreement--The U.S. has $70,000 available for IMET should such an agreement be signed. However, moving forward with the narrow agreement would require finessing the issue of the broader draft 505 agreement which was provided to the government of B-H earlier. Such training would not violate the spirit and intent of UNSCRs regarding the arms embargo. It would be limited to IMET training for only a few senior Federation officers at our senior professional military schools and some English language training. The training would not affect USG neutrality regarding this conflict. Providing this limited training would avoid the appearance of totally abandoning B-H but would have negligible affect on the battlefield.
2. Expand IMET training beyond the few senior Federation officers attending war colleges or receiving English language training. Courses would be "non-lethal" technical training courses and could include courses in computer programming, finance, and health care. Training would be at the individual level. This would have little practical effect on the battlefield but might placate some who felt the USG had a moral obligation to do something.

3. Provide some limited individual tactical and operational training for weapons likely to be used. Individual training would be conducted at U.S. facilities and schools. Such training could also include enrollment of junior and mid-level officers in professional development and leadership courses. This would prolong the conflict by encouraging B-H to fight on but would likely have minimal effect on the battlefield. It is unclear how unit commanders could be rotated through this training without a detrimental effect on the battlefield for B-H. It would, however, partially meet the demands of those who posit that the USG has a moral responsibility to assist B-H in its self-defense.
4. Train the pro-government forces in accordance with the plan outlined by Senator Dole. This would be unit level training and would need to be accomplished in a neighboring country, most likely Croatia. Such training would respond fully to the moral arguments that demand the USG assist B-H. It would also relieve some pressure from Congress. However, it directly contradicts the spirit and intent of UNSCRs and would clearly remove our forces from the protections of their current "experts on mission" status and make the U.S. a co-belligerent in the conflict.

Discussion: The effects of training the pro-government forces of B-H are problematic. However, there are other more likely and less favorable results from the training than those outlined by Ambassador Alkalaj and Senator Dole.

- Training is virtually synonymous with arming. Once the U.S. begins a significant training effort, the U.S. becomes an ally of B-H and, by extension, Croatia. The U.S. would become a co-belligerent.
- Once a decision to train is made, but before the training is complete, defines a period of enhanced vulnerability for B-H. Many will interpret such a decision to train as a harbinger of lifting the arms embargo. That, in turn may trigger UNPROFOR's withdrawal.
- UNPROFOR"s imminent withdrawal means that UN related humanitarian assistance programs will terminate. The humanitarian crisis will worsen.
- Training is a signal to all the Federation (including the HVO) that the U.S. is preparing the pro-government forces for a return to war.
- The Bosnian Serbs are likely to react to the above with preemptive action against B-H. Probable targets are the isolated enclaves. Almost all analysts project they would fall quickly.
- Others might feel compelled to take similar action on the side of the Serbs.
- The negative consequences outlined by the OGC are compelling--training as contemplated by Senator Dole puts USG neutrality in question and would destroy the fabric of even-handedness upon which UNPROFOR and NATO operations in support thereof are based.
- The March 4, 1995, Deputies' discussion focused on the reality of accepting a minimalist outcome for B-H and that its longer-term prospect was absorption by Croatia and Serbia.

Recommendation: Approve Option 1--narrow 505 agreement--as the basis of the President's response to Senator Dole.

DECL:OADR

SUPPORT FOR THE FEDERATION - 505 AGREEMENT

I. PURPOSES FOR DEPUTIES COMMITTEE

- Decide if the Government of Bosnia Herzegovina (GoBH) can sign the broad 505 agreement they now have so that international military and educational training (IMET) to support the Federation may begin.

- Approve the strategy to win support for this decision from our NATO and Contact Group allies.

II. OPTIONS

Option 1 (Recommended): Ask Prime Minister Siladjic to confirm the GoBH notification to our embassy that the Bosnians are ready to sign the broad draft 505 given them so that already-approved IMET training can commence.

PRO: A broad 505 agreement would give the EUR military consultant (replacing General Galvin as Special Representative to the Bosnian Federation armed forces) a tool he can use in negotiations trying to bring two mutually suspicious armed forces closer together. His capacity to get anything done will depend on being able to draw on a full range of DoD programs, consistent with the clear understanding that, after a Presidential determination is signed, we will not transfer anything that violates the embargo.

Signing a broad agreement would signal our support without committing us to furnish excess defense articles (EDA) at this time; a Presidential determination is required to make a country eligible for transfers of defense articles (enforced by policy precedent) and the UN arms embargo limits EDA. (We are awaiting a GoBH short list of items they need in order to obtain an interagency legal opinion on which items could be furnished under the arms embargo.)

Asking the GoBH to limit the 505 agreement to IMET only after they have been given a broad draft could be perceived as a diminuation of USG support for the Federation, our current policy and could anger Congress which sees support for the Federation as vital to Balkan peace efforts.

CON: NATO and Contact Group allies may perceive signing this broad 505 agreement as a USG move toward unilaterally lifting the arms embargo, particularly if the singular nature of the agreement is publicized. We would need to carefully explain our position to counter this perception.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Option 2: Ask Prime Minister Siladjic to sign a revised 505 agreement limited to IMET only, explaining the draft which he was shown was in error and we intended to be consistent with agreements presented to Slovenia, FYROM, and Croatia.

PRO: Broad 505 agreements are, in general, not concluded until such time as we have identified specific defence articles we want to transfer to a given country.

Allies are worried, with Congressional legislation still to providing most types of military assistance arms to the GoBH, and singling out the GoBH to sign an agreement including all military equipment sales, lease or draw-down which was refused to other Eastern European countries could be misinterpreted.

Providing IMET signals support for the Federation; we should be honest and tell the GoBH we mistakenly gave the wrong legal document needed to make this training happen.

CON: We cannot risk signalling any withdrawal of support for the Federation at this crucial time in negotiations. It is both easier and less risky to quietly allow the GoBH to sign the agreement they have already been given, and explain, if Allies ask, that nothing more than IMET can be given without further steps such as a Presidential determination which we do not intend to take at this time.

III. BACKGROUND

Before any military assistance (defense articles or related training or other defense services) may be furnished to a foreign country, Section 505 of the Foreign Assistance Act requires that certain assurances from the recipient country be obtained concerning use, retransfer and security of any articles, training, or services provided. These assurances are contained in an exchange of diplomatic notes which constitute an international agreement between the U.S. and the "potential recipient country." These assurances normally cover the full range of military assistance. However, throughout Central Europe and the FSU, we have initiated IMET programs before progressing to other levels of military assistance. In such cases, we have limited our 505 agreement with a given country to cover only IMET. Broader 505 agreements are, in general, not concluded until such time as we have identified specific defence articles we want to transfer to a given country. It is important to note that a 505 agreement does not commit the U.S. to providing military assistance either in general or in a specific form. Rather, it is only done in order to meet a statutory precondition to providing such assistance.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

For Bosnia, we need a 505 agreement before we can begin the International Military Education and Training (IMET) program approved as one of a number of things that can be done within current U.S. law and policy (in particular compliance with the UN arms embargo) to be supportive of the development of the armed forces of the Bosnian Federation. A Presidential determination that furnishing military assistance to a particular country will strengthen the security of the U.S. and promote worldwide peace is an additional statutory precondition to providing most types of military assistance.

While for legal reasons this 505 agreement would be signed by the Government of Bosnia Herzegovina (GoBH) as well as by the Federation, the cooperation would be intended for the Federation armed forces. (Note: The 505 agreement itself has no means to enforce this intention to provide support to the Federation but agreements to transfer specific equipment can be written to limit the use of the goods or services to the Federation armed forces rather than the GoBH national army.)

Broad 505 Agreement Given to GoBH

Limited 505 agreements for IMET only have been signed with Slovenia and Macedonia, and is pending with Croatia (as well as initially with all other CE states). We have also signed a broad non-binding defense cooperation agreement with Croatia (as well as several other CE states). A broad draft 505 agreement (sufficient for provision of IMET, lethal, and non-lethal EDA) was given to the GoBH; it was made clear that transfers under the agreement would be limited by the UN arms embargo.

IV. CONSULTATIONS WITH ALLIES

We must consult closely with allies to explain that signing a broad 505 agreement, while needed for any EDA transfers or military sales, does not change our opposition to unilateral lift. We will undertake nothing beyond the provision of IMET without obtaining a Presidential determination requiring Congressional notification for Bosnia. We do not plan to ask for this determination at this time.

We should portray the agreement as a necessary but not sufficient bureaucratic hurdle. While it momentarily singles out the Federation from among former Yugoslav countries (and even some Eastern European ones) as being more "worthy" of U.S. support, we would not object should others demand the same agreement with the same limitations.

Easing U.S. Sanctions on Serbia-Montenegro

UN Security Council Resolutions 943 and 970 suspended certain sanctions on the FRY. The UN now permits international passenger flights to and from Belgrade airport, ferry service between Bar (Montenegro) and Bari (Italy), and provision of parts and maintenance to allow those services to operate. The suspension also removes restrictions on cultural exchanges and "FRY" participation in international sporting events. The U.S. is not obliged to suspend sanctions. However, U.S. refusal to allow spare parts and servicing for U.S. manufactured aircraft is a danger to air safety and has a negative impact on the competitiveness of our aerospace industry. Russia and European members of the Contact Group indicate they view continuation of U.S. sanctions as deviating from Contact Group unity.

Recommendations

The Department of State recommends that we implement the sanctions suspension in a limited way; such an approach was approved by the Secretary on January 16. It recommends the USG authorize, on a case-by-case basis, transactions for aviation safety, and not-for-profit cultural and sports exchanges, as well as generally authorize commercial transactions related to non-U.S. passenger air service to Belgrade, except on FRY carriers. By approving cultural and sports exchanges individually, we can prevent events that might seem unwarranted or poorly timed, but we would have taken a step to bring ourselves into conformity with the Contact Group.

Congressional Considerations

Under section 1511 of the National Defense Authorization Act for FY 1994 ("the Levin Amendment") these modifications to U.S. sanctions would require Presidential certification to Congress that the modification is necessary to achieve "a negotiated settlement of the Bosnia conflict that is acceptable to the parties." Although we will need to refine our justification, such a modification of the U.S. sanctions regime could be justified on the basis that UNSC Resolutions 943 and 970 are an element of the Contact Group strategy to achieve Bosnian Serb acceptance of the proposed territorial settlement. Any easing of Serbian sanctions will be controversial. Congressional consultations with Senator Levin and the relevant committees will be carried out prior to transmission of the certification documents.

Suggested Talking Points on
Easing U.S. Sanctions on Serbia-Montenegro:

- We need to consider whether to ease some U.S. sanctions on Serbia in ways permitted by the UN resolutions suspending certain sanctions. State's recommendations are summarized in the paper distributed to all of you.

- We'll need to make calls to Congress, and the "Levin Amendment" requires Presidential certification that these steps are necessary to achieve a Bosnia settlement. Despite pressure from Contact Group partners, we'd be reluctant to take yet another controversial issue to the Hill.

- However, there is an air safety concern that requires urgent attention. Yugoslav airlines (JAT) aircraft -- most of them American-made -- are now permitted to fly to and from Belgrade, but U.S. sanctions are preventing them from getting necessary spare parts. Embassy Belgrade has pointed out the air safety problem, and we've heard frequently from Boeing as well as other aircraft manufacturers.

- Once we move forward on that issue, we should approve the recommended package.

- I understand there may be some concern that allowing sports and cultural events may be going too far. But our proposal would allow only case-by-case approvals of sports and cultural exchanges which do not provide economic benefit to Serbia. This control would give us some flexibility and ensure that high-profile activities and participation of "FRY" national teams in events other than the Olympics would not be permitted without careful consideration.

Summary of Conclusions for Meeting of the NSC Deputies Committee
DATE: April 27, 1995

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met to discuss next steps in the Contact Group, including what sanctions relief package we would be willing to offer Milosevic in return for genuine recognition of Bosnia, and the accompanying strategy for Ambassador Frasure to pursue in the next Contact Group meeting and in a follow-on private meeting with Milosevic. Deputies agreed that we should continue to pursue a strategy to isolate Karadzic and the Pale Serbs by further tightening the inter-Serb border and by moving to close the "back door" so that prohibited goods do not reach the Bosnian Serbs through Croatia. 2. Deputies agreed that any further suspension of sanctions will require genuine recognition by Milosevic of Bosnia's internationally-recognized borders and a real sealing of the Bosnian Serbs' border. Deputies agreed that no lifting of any sanctions would be appropriate at this time and that suspension of certain sanctions for finite periods of time was the most we could accept. They authorized Ambassador Frasure to propose option "a" from the OVP's sanctions relief chart (Tab A). Noting that other Contact Group partners would likely seek broader sanctions relief, Deputies agreed that Ambassador Frasure could inform Contact Group partners that he would need to seek Washington's approval to move even part of the way toward option "b" from the OVP sanctions chart. (Action: State) (S)

3. Deputies approved measures to close the "back door" as outlined in the OVP memorandum previously circulated to Deputies. They directed OVP and Treasury to work together to resolve the issue concerning the use of U.S. Customs Agents as sanctions monitors. (Action: OVP) (S)

4. Deputies discussed the situation in Sarajevo, where the Bosnian Serbs have reneged on the 1992 agreement regarding the unrestricted use of Sarajevo airport. They agreed that we should continue efforts to strengthen UNPROFOR to make it more effective when dealing with the Bosnian Serbs. Deputies asked that the Bosnian Government be contacted to learn more about their proposal to create a demilitarized zone in and around Sarajevo which would be one means of restoring full UN control over the airport. (Action: State) Deputies deferred further discussion on measures to strengthen UNPROFOR pending a report from the CJCS on his meetings with counterparts in Brussels. (Action: JCS) (S)

5. Deputies discussed the status of efforts to develop answers to the policy questions concerning OPLAN 40104 for a NATO-led withdrawal of UNPROFOR from Bosnia. They agreed to defer further discussion until the Principals receive the JCS briefing on the OPLAN on April 28. At that time, the NSC will determine the process that will be used to finalize answers to the questions as a basis for review by Deputies and Principals. (Action: NSC) (S)

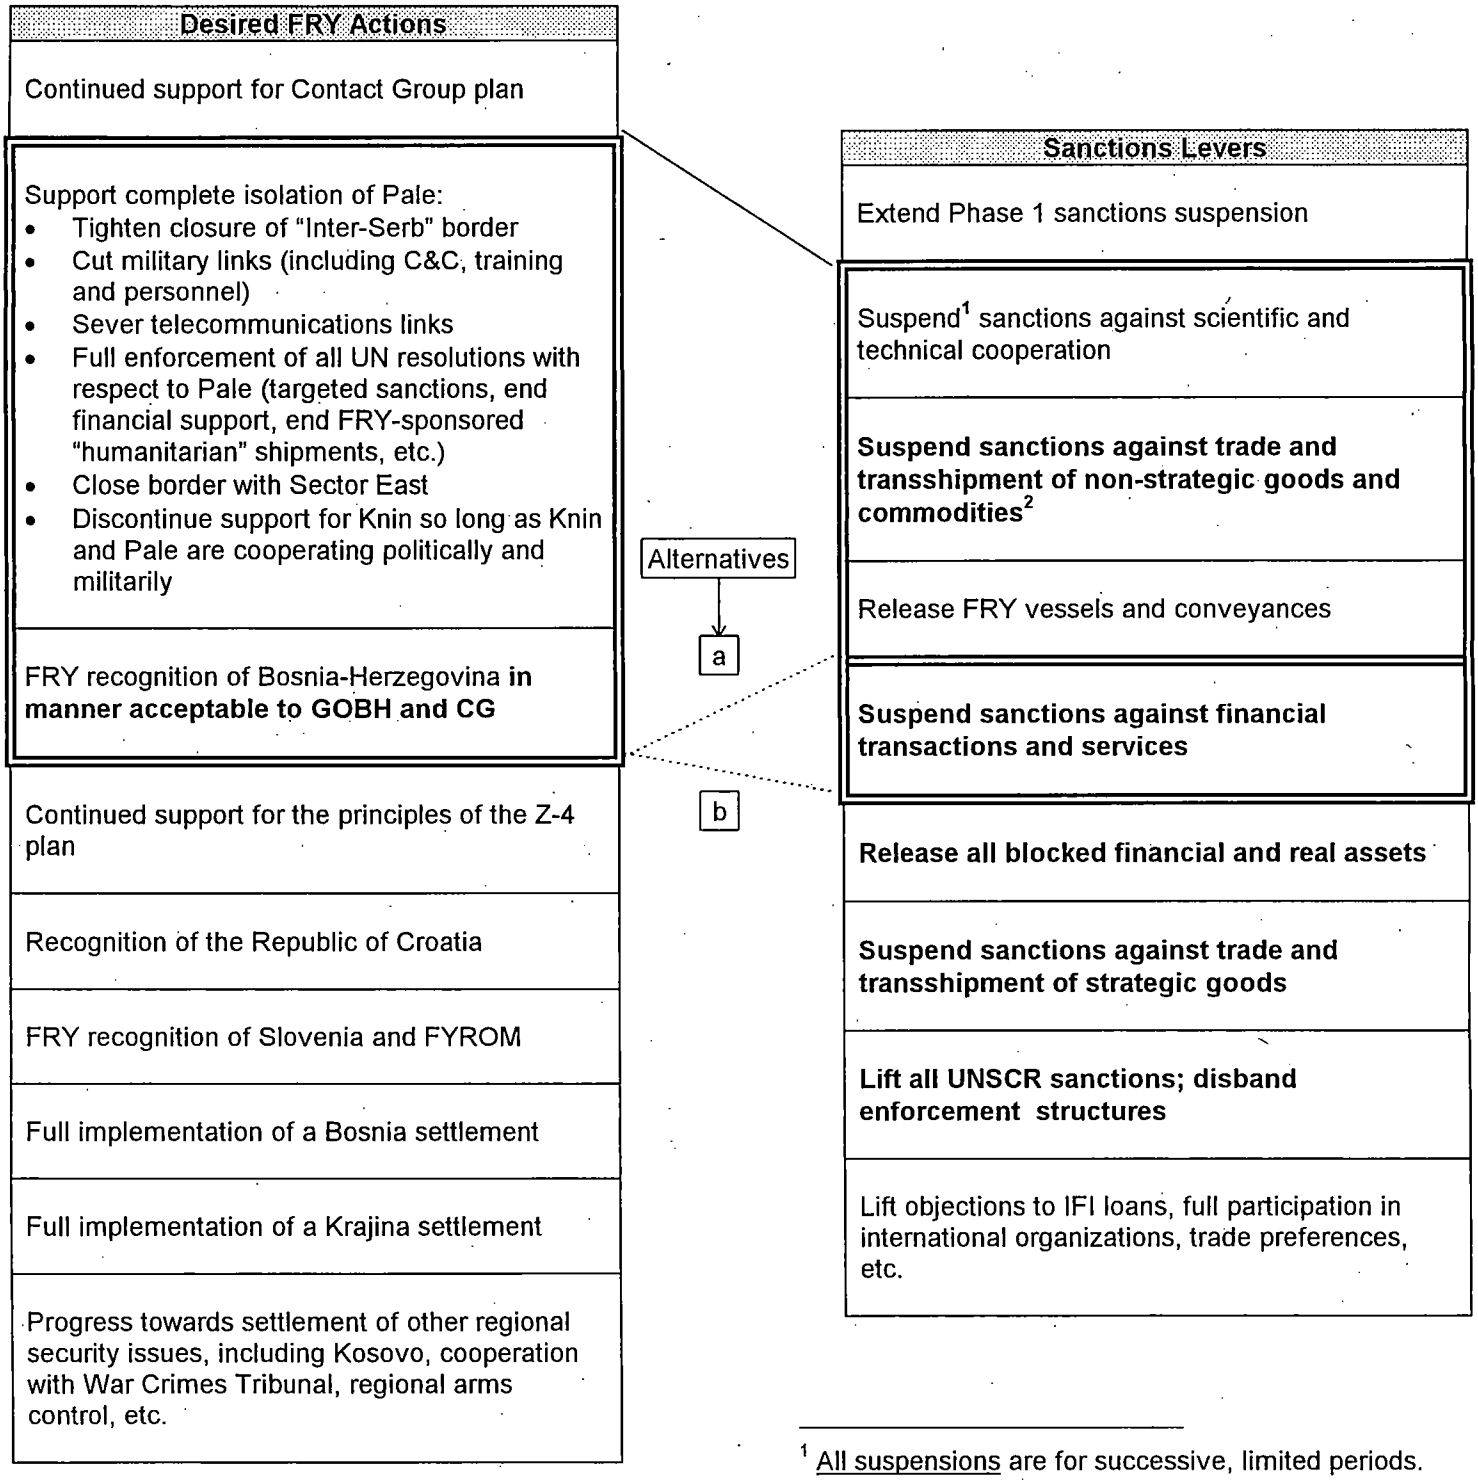
Sanctions Relief in Return for Tighter Border Closure and Bosnian Recognition



[1] All suspensions are for successive, limited periods. UNSC action required to extend suspensions. Continuation of suspensions to depend on continued progress toward negotiated settlement of the conflicts.

[2] Strategic goods include crude oil, petroleum products, coal, energy-related equipment, iron, steel, other metals, chemicals, rubber, tires, vehicles, aircraft, and motors of all types.

Sanctions Relief in Return for Tighter Border Closure and Bosnian Recognition

Desired FRY Actions	Sanctions Levers
Continued support for Contact Group plan	Extend Phase 1 sanctions suspension
Support complete isolation of Pale: • Tighten closure of "Inter-Serb" border • Cut military links (including C&C, training and personnel) • Sever telecommunications links • Full enforcement of all UN resolutions with respect to Pale (targeted sanctions, end financial support, end FRY-sponsored "humanitarian" shipments, etc.) • Close border with Sector East • Discontinue support for Knin so long as Knin and Pale are cooperating politically and militarily	Suspend[1] sanctions against scientific and technical cooperation
	Suspend sanctions against trade and transshipment of non-strategic goods and commodities[2]
	Release FRY vessels and conveyances
FRY recognition of Bosnia-Herzegovina in manner acceptable to GOBH and CG	Suspend sanctions against financial transactions and services
Continued support for the principles of the Z-4 plan	Release all blocked financial and real assets
Recognition of the Republic of Croatia	Suspend sanctions against trade and transshipment of strategic goods
FRY recognition of Slovenia and FYROM	Lift all UNSCR sanctions; disband enforcement structures
Full implementation of a Bosnia settlement	Lift objections to IFI loans, full participation in international organizations, trade preferences, etc.
Full implementation of a Krajina settlement
Progress towards settlement of other regional security issues, including Kosovo, cooperation with War Crimes Tribunal, regional arms control, etc.

Alternatives

[1] All suspensions are for successive, limited periods. UNSC action required to extend suspensions. Continuation of suspensions to depend on continued progress toward negotiated settlement of the conflicts.

[2] Strategic goods include crude oil, petroleum products, coal, energy-related equipment, iron, steel, other metals, chemicals, rubber, tires, vehicles, aircraft, and motors of all types.

Summary of Conclusions for Meeting of the NSC Deputies Committee
DATE: May 4, 1995
LOCATION: White House Situation Room
TIME: 1:30 - 2:30 p.m.

SUBJECT: Summary of Conclusions of Deputies Committee Meeting on Bosnia and Croatia (S)

PARTICIPANTS:

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met to discuss a strategy for dealing with the Contact Group deadlock on what degree of sanctions relief to offer Milosevic in return for genuine recognition of Bosnia, and the accompanying strategy for Ambassador Frasure to pursue in the next Contact Group meeting and in a follow-on private meeting with Milosevic. Deputies agreed that we should continue to pursue a strategy, in close coordination with the Bosnian Government, that supports the Bosnian Government's goal of gaining genuine recognition by Milosevic of Bosnia-Herzegovina within its internationally recognized borders in return for limited sanctions relief and a closure of the border with Bosnian Serb territory. 2. Deputies agreed that Ambassador Frasure should continue to stand on the existing USG position in upcoming Contact Group discussions. In the follow-on meeting with Milosevic, Ambassador Frasure should emphasize that the U.S. will not support any efforts to lift sanctions until the Contact Group plan is accepted by the Pale Serbs, and that while we might consider a longer sanctions suspension period (e.g., 180 days), any extension of suspended sanctions would require a positive UNSC vote. He should also inform Milosevic that the U.S. is not prepared to support release of frozen financial assets. Deputies agreed that, if it becomes clear in the meeting with Milosevic that an element of lift is necessary to complete an otherwise acceptable deal, the U.S. should consider (but not offer at that meeting) lifting sanctions against certain media and information-related activities. Deputies asked that Leon Fuerth and Ambassador Frasure confer on the appropriate financial sanctions language for presentation to the Contact Group. (Action: OVP/State) (S)

3. Deputies discussed the renewed fighting in Croatia and a strategy to prevent escalation. They agreed that the U.S. should press President Tudjman and the Krajina Serbs to halt military operations and exercise restraint. They agreed to press the Croatians at all levels to adopt an accommodating position that could include the demilitarization of the recaptured areas, the return of Serb civilians to their homes and the reestablishment of UNCRO authority in Sector West and other areas of conflict. If Croatia is willing to take these steps, the U.S. would support the presence of Croatian civilian police in Sector West and the removal of all RSK military forces. (Action: State) (S)

4. Deputies discussed the steps to be taken to ensure the Croatians are aware of the U.S. view of their military actions. They agreed to support a UNSC resolution condemning incursions by all sides in Sectors South and East and calling for the restoration of UNCRO authority in all areas. Deputies directed that the Croatians be immediately informed of our deep concerns and endorsed a Vice Presidential meeting with President Tudjman in London as a useful forum for registering U.S. concerns about Tudjman's military actions. (Action: State/OVP) (S)

5. Deputies also discussed the importance of warning the Krajina Serbs of the consequences of attacks on U.S. personnel in Zagreb. They agreed that we should be prepared to bypass the dual-key system if a NATO response were not approved by the UN. They directed military options be developed for retaliatory action, both unilateral and through NATO. (Action: JCS) (S)

6. Deputies discussed briefing the Congress on OPLAN 40104 and directed that the talking points be cleared before the briefings are scheduled. (Action: JCS draft talking points; NSC/State schedule briefings) (S)

SUBJECT: MAY 3 CONTACT GROUP MEETING

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SUMMARY. THE CONTACT GROUP, REINFORCED BY FINANCE AND SANCTIONS EXPERTS, MET AT THE FCO TO REVIEW THE SANCTIONS/BORDER CLOSING/RECOGNITION PACKAGE TO BE CONSIDERED BY THE POLITICAL DIRECTORS ON MAY 5. THE MEETING REVEALED MAJOR DIFFERENCES ON THE PROPOSED SANCTIONS RELIEF PACKAGE FOR FRY RECOGNITION OF BOSNIA. FRENCH AND BRITISH REPS INSISTED ON A LIFT ELEMENT TO THE PACKAGE AND MADE CLEAR THAT ALL OTHER SANCTIONS SHOULD BE SUSPENED EXCEPT FOR A NARROW DEFINITION OF STRATEGIC TRADE. THEY ALSO ADVOCATED RELIEF OF SOME FROZEN ASSETS WHICH THEY FELT WAS NECESSARY "TO JUMP START THE SERB ECONOMY."

3. CG REPS WERE ALSO DIVIDED ON PROPOSALS TO RENAME AND REVISE THE REPORTING CHANNELS FOR THE ICY MONITORING MISSION, ALTHOUGH THERE WAS AGREEMENT TO INCRESE THE SIZE OF THE MISSION. THE CG MEMBERS REVIEWED THE RECOGNITION TEXT AND AGREED TO INCORPORATE SEVERAL MINOR CHANGES SUGGESTED BY THE GOBH. THE RUSSIANS WERE REPRESENTED BY A MEMBER OF THEIR LONDON EMBASSY STAFF WHO TOOK NO ACTIVE PART IN THE FIVE HOUR DISCUSSION.

END SUMMARY.

SANCTIONS RELIEF PACKAGE

2. FRENCH AND BRITISH REPS URGED THAT THE RELIEF PROPOSAL INCLUDE A LIFTING OF ONE ELEMENT OF THE SANCTIONS PACKAGE, PROPOSING ALL STAGE ONE SANCTIONS (FLIGHTS AND CULTURAL EVENTS) BE CONSIDERED. GERMAN AND US REPS INSISTED THAT THE PACKAGE SHOULD NOT INCLUDE A LIFT ELEMENT UNLESS THERE IS A CHANGE IN THE SITUATION ON THE GROUND IN BOSNIA. THE FRENCH AND THE BRITISH INSISTED THAT LIFT WOULD BE A NECESSARY "PSCHOLOGICAL" INDUCEMENT TO MILOSEVIC REGARDLESS OF DEVELOPMENTS IN BOSNIA.

3. THE GERMAN REP JOINED WITH THE FRENCH AND BRITISH IN SUPPORTING A NARROWER DEFINITION OF STRATEGIC TRADE, ARGUING THAT TO INSIST ON THE BROADER CONCEPT AS CONTAINED IN UNSCR 787 WOULD BE DIFFICULT TO MONITOR AND WOULD LEAVE MOST FRY TRADE STILL UNDER THE SANCTIONS REGIME. THE US REP POINTED OUT THAT THE EU DEFINITION WOULD FREE UP VIRTUALLY ALL OF FRY'S TRADE.

4. ON FINANCIAL SANCTIONS, THE US PRESENTED A PROPOSAL TO LIMIT TRANSACTIONS TO THOSE NECESSARY FOR THE TRADE OF NONSTRATEGIC GOODS. THE FRENCH, BRITISH AND GERMANS, HOWEVER, MADE CLEAR THAT THEY SUPPORT SUSPENSION OF ALL SANCTIONS ON FINANCIAL TRANMSACTIONS, ARGUING THAT ATTEMPTING TO KEEP SOME IN PLACE WOULD MAKE VERIFICATION AND MONITORING PROBLEMATIC, ESPECIALLY IN LESS SOPHISTICATED BANKING SYSTEMS. THE FRENCH REP SAID THAT FULL SANCTIONS RELIEF ON FINANCIAL TRANSACTIONS IS NECESSARY TO "GIVE MILOSEVIC THE MEANS TO RESTART THE ECONOMY." THE GERMAN REP COUNTERED THAT SANCTIONS RELIEF SHOULD ENTAIL TAKING AWAY RESTRICTIONS, NOT HELPING SERBIA TO RESTART COMMERCE; HE NOTED THAT THIS PROPOSAL WAS CLOSE TO THE "RED LINE" AGAINST ASSISTANCE TO THE FRY DRAWN BY CHANCELLOR KOHL.

5. ON FROZEN ASSETS CG POSITIONS WERE ALSO DIVERGENT: THE U.S. ADVOCATED THAT NO FROZEN ASSETS BE RELEASED, WITH NEW ACCOUNTS ESTABLISHED TO ACCOMMODATE PERMITTED TRADE; GERMANY AGREED THAT FROZEN ASSETS SHOULD REMAIN SO, BUT FAVORED MORE LIBERAL USE OF NEW ACCOUNTS; THE UK, SUPPORTED BY FRANCE, ADVOCATED RELEASING SOME FROZEN ASSETS TO HELP RESTART THE FRY ECONOMY. THE BRITISH ALSO MAINTAINED THAT UNLESS SOME PERCENTAGE OF THE FROZEN ASSETS WERE RELEASED, SOME COUNTRIES WOULD GO AHEAD AND DO SO ON THEIR OWN, LEAVING BRITISH COMPANIES HAMPERED IN THEIR ABILITY TO ATTRACT SERB SALES. DISAGREEMENT ALSO REMAINS ON THE TECHNICAL LEVEL OF THE ENFORCEABILITY OF A PARALLEL REGIME OF BLOCKED ASSETS EXISTING ALONGSIDE OF "FREE" ACCOUNTS.

6. FINALLY, THE FRENCH AND BRITISH ARGUED THAT SUSPENDED SANCTIONS MEASURES SHOULD BE SUSPENDED "SINE DIE" TO AVOID THE

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

"AGONY" OF UNSC REVIEW EVERY 75 OR 100 DAYS. SANCTIONS WOULD REMAIN SUSPENDED UNLESS THE UNSC RECEIVES A NEGATIVE REPORT ON BORDER CLOSURE WHICH WOULD TRIGGER AUTOMATIC REIMPOSITION IN FIVE DAYS ABSENT COUNCIL ACTION (PART OF THE CURRENT SUSPENSION MECHANISM). THIS WOULD BE COMPLEMENTED BY A POLITICAL UNDERSTANDING THAT LIFTED SANCTIONS WOULD ALSO BE REIMPOSED ON THE BASIS OF SUCH A NEGATIVE REPORT. SINCE THIS WOULD REQUIRE POSITIVE ACTION IN THE UNSC, THE UK AND FRANCE ARE WORKING WITH RUSSIA TO DEVELOP A POLITICAL AGREEMENT THAT RUSSIA WOULD NOT VETO A SANCTIONS REIMPOSITION RESOLUTION UNDER THESE CIRCUMSTANCES. THE GERMAN REP ARGUED AGAINST LIFT WITH A POLITICAL UNDERSTANDING TO REIMPOSE, ARGUING THAT AN AGREEMENT ON A FUTURE SECURITY COUNCIL VOTE WAS NOT DESIRABLE AND PROBABLY COULD NOT BE LEGALLY BINDING.

7. DISCUSSION OF STRENGTHENING THE REGIME FOR MONITORING THE FRY/BOSNIA BORDER BEGAN WITH DETAILED RECOMMENDATIONS FROM FORMER ICFY MISSION HEAD BO PELLNAES. HE RECOMMENDED INCREASING ICFY MISSION STAFFING TO 400; FIELDING OBSERVERS AT RADAR SITES, HELICOPTER BASES AND OTHER MILITARY BASES; IMPROVING COOPERATION WITH UNPROFOR, PARTICULARLY TO RECEIVE INFORMATION FROM THE BOSNIAN SIDE OF THE BORDER; FUNDING THE MISSION ADEQUATELY AND PROVIDING A RELIABLE COMMUNICATIONS NETWORK AND 60 FOUR-WHEEL-DRIVE VEHICLES; SECURE COMMUNICATIONS FOR THE HEAD OF MISSION, POSSIBLY THROUGH AN EMBASSY; USE OF HELICOPTERS AND MORE ROVING PATROLS TO COUNTER VJ AND "SERB SECRET POLICE" WARNING TO SMUGGLING OPERATIONS; AND INCREASED USE OF OVERHEAD, INCLUDING THERMAL PHOTOGRAPHY AT NIGHT FROM HELICOPTERS, TO DETECT SMUGGLING OPERATIONS. PELLNAES ALSO STRESSED THE IMPORTANCE OF ADDRESSING FLOWS OF FUEL FROM CROATIA THROUGH "HERCEG-BOSNA" TO THE PALE SERBS; HE RECOMMENDED THAT UNPROFOR MILITARY OBSERVERS BE TASKED WITH CONTROLLING ROADS INTO BOSNIAN SERB-HELD TERRITORY.

8. THE ICFY REPRESENTATIVE PRESENTED A NOTE FROM THE CO-CHAIRMEN (FAXED TO TFSR01) STRESSING THAT THE ICFY MISSION WOULD NEED TO CLOSE DOWN IF IT DID NOT RECEIVE FUNDS BY MONDAY, MAY 8. WE STRESSED OUR EFFORTS TO TRANSFER FUNDS TO ICFY QUICKLY. THE GERMAN REP NOTED THAT U.S. AND JAPANESE INSISTENCE THAT ICFY CANNOT ISSUE OBLIGATORY ASSESSMENTS IS COMPLICATING EU COUNTRIES' ABILITY TO PAY THEIR SHARE. OF ICFY'S OVERLAPPING BUDGETS ALSO POSE A PROBLEM.

9. THE CONTACT GROUP AGREED THAT THE ICFY MISSION STRENGTH SHOULD BE INCREASED TO A TARGET OF 400 MONITORS. (IF UNPROFOR WOULD BUILD ON ITS PRESENT ROLE BY TAKING RESPONSIBILITY FOR IMPROVED MONITORING OF THE AIR BORDER, AS WE URGED AND OTHERS AGREED, THIS NUMBER COULD BE REDUCED.) THE UK URGED THAT EACH CONTACT GROUP COUNTRY FOLLOW THE U.S. LEAD AND AGREE TO PROVIDE 50 MONITORS. (NOTE: GERMAN REP STEINER TOLD US SEPARATELY THAT THE FRY DOES NOT/NOT HAVE A PROBLEM WITH GERMAN PARTICIPATION; RATHER, GERMANY HAS FIELDED ONLY ONE MONITOR

BECAUSE THE FINANCE MINISTRY HAS NOT SUPPORTED THE EFFORT. STEINER (PROTECT) SUGGESTED THAT A CALL TO KINKEL MIGHT BREAK THE LOGJAM AND ALLOW GERMANY TO FIELD 50 MONITORS.) THE FRENCH REPRESENTATIVE EXPRESSED HOPE, BUT SOME DOUBT, THAT FRANCE WOULD BE ABLE TO COMMIT TO THIS LEVEL OF PARTICIPATION. THE RUSSIAN REPRESENTATIVE HAD NO COMMENT WHEN QUESTIONED.

10. THE MOST CONTENTIOUS DISCUSSION ON BORDER MONITORING CENTERED ON U.S. AND GERMAN PROPOSALS AT THE PREVIOUS CONTACT GROUP MEETING TO RENAME THE ICFY MISSION AND HAVE THE HEAD OF MISSION REPORT DIRECTLY TO THE UN SYG. WE PRESSED THE POINT THAT THIS WAS SCALED-BACK FROM THE BOSNIAN REQUEST FOR A LARGE UNPROFOR PRESENCE ON THE FRY/BOSNIA BORDER, AND THAT IT IS AN IMPORTANT ELEMENT OF A MUTUAL RECOGNITION PACKAGE ACCEPTABLE TO THE GOBH. THE UK AND FRANCE STAUNCHLY OPPOSED ANY CHANGE, AND THE UK REP POINTEDLY REMINDED THE ICFY REPRESENTATIVE TO REPORT CG MEMBERS' POSITIONS TO THE CO-CHAIRMEN. THE GERMAN REP SUPPORTED THE CHANGE, NOTING THAT THE CO-CHAIRMEN HAD FAILED TO COMPLY WITH THE AGREEMENT WHEN THE MISSION WAS ESTABLISHED THAT CONTACT GROUP COUNTRIES WOULD SEE REPORTS BEFORE THEY WERE FORWARDED TO NEW YORK AND THAT THE CO-CHAIRMEN WOULD NOT REVISE THE TEXT OF REPORTS FROM THE ICFY MISSION.

PROGRESS ON RECONGITION DOCUMENT

11. TOWARD THE END OF THE MEETING, THE CG REPS REVIEWED THE STATUS OF THE RECOGNITION PACKAGE AND AGREED THAT IT IS READY TO BE CONSIDERED BY THE POLITICAL DIRECTORS ON FRIDAY. THE GERMAN AND US REPS, WHO HAD MET SEPARATELY WITH BOSNIAN UN AMBASSADOR SACIRBEY EARLIER, NOTED THAT THE TERM "SPRPKA REPUBLIKA" WAS DIFFICULT FOR THE BOSNIANS TO ACCEPT, AND PROPOSED THAT IT BE PUT IT IN QUOTATION MARKS ALONG WITH THE REFERENCE TO THE FEDERATION, A COMPROMISE THE OTHER REPS ACCEPTED.

12. THE RUSSIANS WERE REPRESENTED BY AN OFFICIAL FROM THE LONDON EMBASSY. HE TOOK NO PART IN THE CONVERSATION EXCEPT TO EXPLAIN THAT HE WAS ATTENDING WITHOUT ANY INSTRUCTIONS ON HIS GOVERNMENT'S POSITIONS.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met to discuss next steps in dealing with the Contact Group on what degree of sanctions relief to offer Milosevic in return for genuine recognition of Bosnia. Following Ambassador Frasure's report on his two meetings with Milosevic, Deputies discussed a State proposal for a new, two-pronged approach that incorporates sanctions relief and new OSCE involvement. Deputies directed that a paper outlining the new proposal be circulated to the Deputies by May 10 for subsequent Principals consideration. (Action: State) Deputies reemphasized the need to work in close coordination with the Bosnian Government on any proposal regarding its goal of gaining

RS 9/30/14 (2.65)

genuine recognition by Milosevic of Bosnia-Herzegovina within its internationally recognized borders in return for limited sanctions relief and a closure of the border with Bosnian Serb territory. (S)

2. Deputies reviewed the situation in Croatia and progress on preventing escalation following the Vice President's meeting with President Tudjman in London over the weekend. Deputies agreed that the situation remained very volatile and that the U.S. should continue to press President Tudjman to exercise restraint. They agreed that Ambassador Holbrooke should follow-up with Tudjman on his agreement with the Vice President to accept some UNCRO presence in Sector West and to refrain from military action in other areas of conflict. Deputies further directed that Ambassador Albright and Ambassador Galbraith continue efforts with appropriate Croatian authorities to develop positions that will further defuse the situation. (Action: State/USUN) (S)

4. Deputies discussed options for dealing with the situation in Sarajevo where increased violations of the exclusion zone and the Bosnian Serb closure of the Sarajevo airport continue to erode UN authority and NATO credibility. Deputies agreed that the untenable situation, and lack of UN will to fully execute its mandate, places the continuation of UNPROFOR in Bosnia at serious risk. Noting that with the change in Government, the French will undertake a review of their participation in UNPROFOR, Deputies directed that a strategy be developed for gaining French support for tougher UN action in Sarajevo. (Action: State) Deputies further directed that the JCS Sarajevo military options paper be circulated to Principals. (Action: JCS) (S)

5. Deputies briefly discussed the IWG efforts in developing a post-UNPROFOR withdrawal strategy and in drafting answers to the unanswered policy questions regarding OPLAN 40104. Noting that more time was needed to review the work, Deputies asked that Agency comments be promptly provided (NLT COB May 11) directly to State (EUR). State will incorporate comments and circulate another version for Deputies final review on Friday, May 12. (Action: State) A subsequent version which incorporates any additional Deputies' comments will circulated to Principals. (S)

6. Deputies discussed the SACEUR's request for authority to issue an ACTREQ for the enabling and main forces in OPLAN 40104 that may be forwarded to the North Atlantic Council (NAC) next week. Deputies agreed that this request goes beyond existing Principals' authorization and directed that the following actions be taken to frame the issue for Principals' decision:

- Present Principals with proposed answers to OPLAN 40104 unanswered policy questions NLT Monday, May 15. (Action: State) (S)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Clarify the significance of the ACTREQ as it relates to the overall OPLAN 40104 approval process. (Action: OSD/JCS) (S)

- Gauge likely NATO response to the request and develop appropriate guidance to U.S. representatives at NATO. (Action: State/DoD) (S)

- Prepare ACTREQ options/decision paper for Principals' consideration NLT Monday, May 15. (Action: DoD with State input) (S)

- Defer Congressional briefings until questions concerning new authorities requested by the SACEUR are clarified. (Action: NSC/IWG) (S)

FROM AMB FRASURE FOR THE SECRETARY

E.O. 12356: DECL
TAGS: PGOV, PREL, SR
SUBJECT: MEETING WITH MILOSEVIC--STILL DEMANDS SANCTIONS LIFT, GRIM MOOD ON CROATIA

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. THE CHARGE AND I SPENT SIX HOURS YESTERDAY WITH MILOSEVIC AT THE HUNTING LODGE AT KARADJORJEVO NORTH OF BELGRADE -- AND JUST A FEW MILES FROM SECTOR EAST. OVER DINNER AND IN A LONG WALK AROUND THE LAKES WITH THEIR ASSORTED WATERFOWL (WHILE SERBIAN MOSQUITOES DEVOURED US), TWO THEMES CLEARLY EMERGED:

-- ON THE BOSNIA RECOGNITION/BORDER/SANCTIONS PACKAGE, MILOSEVIC IS SIMPLY NOT INTERESTED IN SUBSTANTIAL SUSPENSION OF SANCTIONS. HE WANTS LIFT. HOWEVER, HE UNDERSTANDS OUR FIRM POSITION THAT LIFT CANNOT BEGIN UNTIL COMPETENT AUTHORITIES IN PALE ACCEPT THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN. AS HE SUMMED IT UP: "OK, I WILL HAVE TO ARRANGE PHASE TWO NOW. BUT IT WILL BE HARDER AND IT WILL TAKE LONGER. YOU WANT ME TO GO OVER THE MOUNTAIN INSTEAD OF THROUGH THE TUNNEL."

-- THERE IS A VERY SUBSTANTIAL NEGATIVE OVERHANG HERE FROM RECENT EVENTS IN CROATIA WHERE MILOSEVIC, I BELIEVE, FEELS BADLY WRONG FOOTED. (MILOSEVIC DOES NOT ENJOY BEING OUT-MANEUVERED BY TUDJMAN TO PUT IT BLUNTLY.) HE EXPECTS TO BE IN TOUCH AGAIN WITH ZAGREB AFTER SOME INTERVAL BUT FEARS HE MAY LOSE CONTROL IN KNIN AS HE DID IN PALE. HIS PARTING WORDS TO ME WERE: "PLEASE, MR. FRASURE, DO SOMETHING ABOUT CROATIA."

3. MILOSEVIC SEEMED SUBDUED, INDEED BLEAK, ALTHOUGH HIS MOOD PICKED UP SOMEWHAT IN THE COURSE OF THE EVENING. CONNECTING THE TWO MAIN THEMES OF THE EVENING--THE NEED FOR ACTION IN PALE AND THE CRISIS IN CROATIA--MILOSEVIC GLUMLY REMARKED THAT RECENT EVENTS WILL MAKE IT EVEN MORE DIFFICULT TO HAVE MLADIC DISPLACE KARADZIC. THIS CONVERSATION MAY BE SOMETHING OF A WATERSHED IN THAT WE NOW CLEARLY UNDERSTAND EACH OTHER'S POSITIONS AND THE DIFFERENCES THAT DIVIDE US. END SUMMARY.

WHERE WE ARE ON SANCTIONS --LIFT/SUSPENSION

4. I LED OFF THE DISCUSSION BY TELLING MILOSEVIC THAT WE ARE AT A CRUCIAL STAGE IN THE BOSNIA GAME AND WE NEED TO HAVE FUNDAMENTAL CLARITY AND AGREEMENT ON WHERE IT IS GOING. PERHAPS WE CAN DEVELOP AN INFORMAL FRAMEWORK OF UNDERSTANDINGS ON HOW EVENTS SHOULD UNFOLD OVER THE NEXT SIX MONTHS. BUT WE MUST HAVE NO MISUNDERSTANDING ON SANCTIONS -- OUR FIRM POSITION, DESPITE SOME PRESSURE IN THE CONTACT GROUP, IS THAT WE WILL NOT AGREE TO ACTUAL LIFT UNTIL COMPETENT AUTHORITIES IN PALE ACCEPT THE CG PLAN. (AND I REMARKED PERSONALLY THAT I DON'T PUT KARADZIC IN THE COMPETENT CATEGORY.)

5. MILOSEVIC RESPONDED THAT THE SANCTIONS ISSUE IS SOMETHING OF "A CHICKEN AND EGG DISCUSSION." HIS VIEW REMAINED THAT ONLY A RADICAL CHANGE BRINGS ABOUT "AN IRREVERSIBLE PROCESS FOR PEACE." WITH MOCK INCREDULITY, HE REMARKED: "YOU CANNOT TREAT ME HALF AS AN ENEMY HALF AS A CO-WORKER. YOU DON'T SUPPOSE THAT I WANT TO TRICK YOU?" I REPLIED THAT WITH RUSSIA ON THE SECURITY COUNCIL, THE LIFTING OF SANCTIONS IS ITSELF AN IRREVERSIBLE PROCESS. WE NEED AN INSURANCE POLICY; THAT IS WHY WE ARE ONLY PREPARED TO SUSPEND SANCTIONS AT THIS STAGE. AND THAT WILL NOT CHANGE. MILOSEVIC RETORTED: "YOU ARE LIKE A CAR DEALER WHO WON'T LET ME DRIVE THE CAR OUT OF THE LOT. DO YOU THINK I WANT TO DRIVE IT TO VENEZUELA. YOUR INSURANCE IS OUR VITAL INTEREST."

6. MUCH LATER IN THE EVENING WE RETURNED TO THE ISSUE AND MILOSEVIC REMARKED WITH MUCH RESIGNATION: "OK I UNDERSTAND YOUR POSITION. I WILL HAVE TO DEAL WITH THE SITUATION IN PALE. I WILL HAVE.TO ARRANGE PHASE TWO NOW. I HAVE NO CHOICE." MILOSEVIC MUTTERED ABOUT HAVING A "PLAN" BUT DID NOT GET INTO SPECIFICS. "I UNDERSTAND I MUST REMOVE KARADZIC--WITH OR WITHOUT SANCTIONS."

LIMITING THE WAR IN THE MEANTIME

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

7. I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT WITH THE END OF THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES WE ARE NONETHELESS URGING THE BOSNIANS TO SHOW RESTRAINT AND WE BELIEVE THEY WILL. HE SAID HE IS PUTTING SIMILAR PRESSURE ON MLADIC AND BELIEVES THE SITUATION WILL NOT GET OUT OF HAND. "THE MUSLIMS DON'T REALLY WANT TO FIGHT."

CROATIA ON HIS MIND

8. MILOSEVIC WAS PASSIONATE ABOUT LAST WEEK'S EVENTS: "TUDJMAN'S SPECIALS WERE MASSACRING CIVILIANS. YOU ARE NOT AWARE OF HOW LARGE IT WAS. WHAT WILL HAPPEN WHEN THOSE REFUGEES WITH THEIR STORIES GET TO BANJA LUKA? MORE THAN ONE THOUSAND CIVILIANS WERE KILLED. IT WAS THE USTASHE MODEL FROM WORLD WAR TWO." I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT WE HAVE MADE OUR UNHAPPINESS KNOWN IN ZAGREB. WE FEEL THAT TUDJMAN HAS VIOLATED OUR ACCORD FROM COPENHAGEN. WE ARE NOT AWARE OF WIDESPREAD ATROCITIES BUT ARE WATCHING THE SITUATION CLOSELY. WE WANT A UN PRESENCE RESTORED IN SECTOR WEST. WE ARE TELLING TUDJMAN THAT HIS TREATMENT OF SERBS IN WESTERN SLAVONIA COULD DETERMINE WHETHER PEACE IS POSSIBLE.

9. CLEARLY UNHAPPY THAT HE HAD BEEN WRONG FOOTED BY TUDJMAN, MILOSEVIC FULMINATED IN DETAIL: "SARANIC WAS LYING TO ME. I WON'T TALK TO HIM AGAIN. I PASSED THROUGH HELL HERE TO CALM THE SITUATION. TUDJMAN IS A CRAZY MAN; THE CROATS ARE KILLERS." MILOSEVIC ASSERTED THAT THE GERMANS HAD APPROVED THE OPERATION IN ADVANCE AND PROMISED TO PREVENT ANY ACTION AT THE UN. MILOSEVIC INSISTS THAT THE STATUS QUO ANTE BE RESTORED BY THE UN IN SECTOR WEST.

10. I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT ZUZUL HAD ASKED ME TO PASS ALONG ASSURANCES THAT ZAGREB WANTS TO CALM THE SITUATION AND THERE WILL BE NO MORE MILITARY OPERATIONS IF THERE ARE NO MORE ATTACKS ON ZAGREB. MILOSEVIC BRUSHED ALL OF THAT ASIDE AND ASSERTED THAT THE CROATIANS ARE PROBING INTO THE OTHER SECTORS. "SECTOR WEST WAS A SOFT TARGET; TUE OTHERS ARE NOT." TO MY COMMENT THAT TUDJMAN MAY FEEL HE HAS PULLED A RABBIT OUT OF THE HAT, MILOSEVIC RETORTED GLUMLY, "YES, AND HE IS CALLING IT AN ELEPHANT." HE CONFIRMED THAT HE HAS SENT ARMORED UNITS TO THE SECTOR EAST BORDER BUT DOWNPLAYED THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE MOVE.

11. MILOSEVIC SAID THAT THE PEACE PROCESS HAD BEEN DAMAGED AND IT WOULD BE HARD TO GET IT BACK ON TRACK. "I TOLD MIKELIC HE SHOULD GO TO GENEVA TO

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

LORD OWEN'S MEETING. HE REPLIED, "ARE YOU CRAZY? IF I TALK TO CROATS NOW, PEOPLE IN KNIN WILL KILL ME; IT IS A HOT SITUATION NOW." (MILOSEVIC WAS GENERALLY DISMISSIVE OF OWEN AND STOLTENBERG. "OWEN IS TOTALLY IRRELEVANT NOW. BUT I SEE HIM AS A COURTESY WHEN HE COMES TO TOWN.") MILOSEVIC SAID HE WOULD BE MEETING WITH MIKELIC AND BABIC ON MONDAY AND THE KNIN ASSEMBLY WOULD HAVE A SESSION ON WEDNESDAY.

12. ON KARADZIC'S ROLE, MILOSEVIC SNEERED: "HIS OFFER TO HELP FELLOW SERBS? HE HAD TROOPS ONLY TWO HUNDRED METERS AWAY BUT HE DID NOTHING. HE WANTS KRAJINA TO BE WEAK SO THEY WILL BE DEPENDENT ON HIM." HE BLAMED MARTIC FOR THE ROCKET ATTACKS AND CLAIMED HE HAD TOLD THE KRAJINA LEADERS THAT "YOU CANNOT PROTECT THE CHILDREN IN WESTERN SLAVONIA BY KILLING OF CHILDREN IN ZAGREB."

THE BALKAN GODFATHER -- A MAN ALONE, SOMEWHAT DIMINISHED

13. I WAS ESPECIALLY STRUCK THIS TIME BY HOW ISOLATED AND CUT OFF MILOSEVIC IS. HERE HE WAS, OUT AT KARADJORJEVO FOR THE WEEKEND WITH HIS BODYGUARDS, SERVANTS, A FLUNKY OR TWO AND A LOT OF DUCKS. (MILOSEVIC SAID HE GOES DUCK HUNTING FROM TIME TO TIME BUT HAS NO INTEREST IN THE REST OF TITO'S WILD MENAGERIE.) HIS FAITHFUL PRIVATE SECRETARY, GORAN MILINOVIC, WHO WRITES DOWN EVERYTHING AND NEVER SAYS A WORD, SEEMS REMARKABLY LIKE STALIN'S UBIQUITOUS GNOME ALEXANDER POSKREBESHEV. THERE APPEARS TO BE NOTHING SIMILAR TO TUDJMAN'S COLLECTION OF COLORFUL AND STRONG-WILLED ADVISERS.

14. NOT SURPRISINGLY, MILOSEVIC IS PARTICULARLY VULNERABLE TO PARANOID BALKAN "INTELLIGENCE." THIS TIME HE TOLD ME THAT THE CIA IS FLOODING THE COUNTRY WITH COUNTERFEIT MONEY. I SAID THAT WAS RIDICULOUS. LAST TIME HE ASSURED ME HE HAD PICTORIAL EVIDENCE THAT WARREN ZIMMERMANN HAD ORGANIZED A PLOT TO KILL HIM. OF THE OUTSIDE WORLD HE KNOWS VERY LITTLE, DESPITE HIS PREFERRED PERSONA AS A SOPHISTICATED BELGRADE BANKER, AT HOME IN NEW YORK, WHO GOT INTO POLITICS BY ACCIDENT. OVER DINNER WE TALKED A LITTLE BIT ABOUT THE UPCOMING MOSCOW SUMMIT AND NATO EXPANSION -- I DID NOT OFFER MEMBERSHIP TO SERBIA -- AND HIS COMMENTS WERE BANAL AT BEST.

15. PERHAPS AS A RESULT OF THE CROATIA FIASCO THIS

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

WEEK, MILOSEVIC SEEMED MUCH LESS CONFIDENT, LESS IN CONTROL, INDEED LESS FORMIDABLE THAN WAS THE CASE IN OUR PREVIOUS MEETINGS. HIS PARTING REQUEST THAT WE DO SOMETHING ABOUT CROATIA ALMOST SOUNDED LIKE PLEADING. PERINA

FROM A/S HOLBROOKE

E.O. 12356: DECL: OADR
TAGS: PREL, HR
SUBJECT: EUR A/S HOLBROOKE MEETING WITH PRESIDENT TUDJMAN: MAY 7, LONDON

1. ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. ACCOMPANIED BY EMBASSY POLITICAL COUNSELOR MIKE HABIB, I MET MAY 7 WITH CROATIAN PRESIDENT TUDJMAN IN THE LATTER'S HOTEL SUITE, PREPARATORY TO TUDJMAN'S MEETING WITH THE VICE PRESIDENT LATER TODAY.

3. IN A HIGHLY CONFIDENT MOOD, TUDJMAN OPENED WITH A DEFENSE OF THE CROATIAN MILITARY ACTION IN SECTOR WEST. CROATIA HAD RESPONDED TO SERBIAN ATTACKS ON CROATIAN CIVILIANS USING THE ZAGREB-BELGRADE HIGHWAY. A FACTOR LEADING TO THE SERB VIOLENCE WAS THE FACT THAT MARTIC HAD ESCAPED FROM MILOSEVIC'S CONTROL THOUGH THE SERBIAN LEADER WAS NOW TRYING TO REIN HIM IN. THE MILITARY ACTION HAD BEEN PROFESSIONAL AND GREAT CARE HAD BEEN TAKEN TO PREVENT EXCESSES AGAINST THE CIVILIAN POPULATION. ONLY 33 CROATS HAD BEEN KILLED IN THE OPERATION.

4. ALLEGATIONS THAT CROATIAN FORCES HAD FIRED ON CIVILIANS WERE FALSE. THE ARMY HAD ONLY BEEN ATTEMPTING TO PREVENT THE MOVEMENT OF BOSNIAN SERB REINFORCEMENTS

INTO SECTOR WEST. THE AREA WAS NOW ENTIRELY UNDER CROATIAN CONTROL. MILOSEVIC, OWEN AND OTHERS, HE CONTINUED, WERE NOW TALKING ABOUT PROCLAIMING A "FREE ZONE" AND MAINTAINING UNCRO IN THE AREA. THIS WAS UNACCEPTABLE TO CROATIA, THOUGH UN AND/OR EU MONITORS COULD REMAIN.

5. TUDJMAN CLAIMED THAT CROATIA WOULD UNDERTAKE NO FURTHER MILITARY ACTIONS IN THE UNPA'S. HE SAID HE HAD ALREADY ISSUED ORDERS TO THIS EFFECT AND ANNOUNCED THIS PUBLICLY. CROATIAN TROOP MOVEMENTS IN AND NEAR OTHER UNPA'S WERE CONFINED TO IMPROVEMENTS IN LOCAL DEFENSIVE POSITIONS. EVEN HERE, TUDJMAN HAD ORDERED SOME OF THESE TROOPS TO PULL BACK.

6. TUDJMAN, ON BALANCE, DID NOT EXPECT A SERBIAN MILITARY RESPONSE. MILOSEVIC AND MIKELIC WERE CLEARLY IN FAVOR OF A CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES. MILOSEVIC WAS CONTINUING TO WORK TOWARDS MARTIC'S REMOVAL BY THE CROATIAN SERB PARLIAMENT; THIS MIGHT OCCUR NEXT WEEK. THE U.S. WARNING TO THE SERBS ABOUT ENDANGERING U.S. PERSONNEL IN ZAGREB HAD BEEN VERY HELPFUL IN DISSUADING THEM FROM TAKING MILITaRY ACTION.

7. I SAID I WANTED TO DISCUSS FOUR ASPECTS OF THE SITUATION IN PREPARATION FOR THIS EVENING'S MEETING WITH THE VICE PRESIDENT: (1) THE TREATMENT OF THE SERB POPULATION IN SECTOR WEST; (2) THE FUTURE OF UNCRO; (3) THE OTHER UNPA'S; AND (4) SEVERAL LARGER ISSUES.

8. I FIRST STRESSED THE IMPERATIVE OF PROPER TREATMENT OF ALL CIVILIANS. IT WAS IMPORTANT TO PREVENT REVENGE ATTACKS. THE MANNER IN WHICH CROATIA DEALT WITH THE POPULATION THERE WOULD BE A MAJOR FACTOR IN INFLUENCING INTERNATIONAL OPINION AS WELL AS THAT OF CROATIAN SERBS IN THE OTHER UNPA'S. EMBASSY ZAGREB HAD THUS FAR REPORTED FAVORABLY ON WHAT IT HAD SEEN REGARDING TREATMENT OF THE CIVILIAN POPULATION IN THE AREA. (FYI: GALBRAITH IS VISITING THE AREA TOMORROW. END FYI.)

9. SECOND, IT WAS VITAL THAT CROATIA NOT MOVE MILITARILY ELSEWHERE. TUDJMAN INTERJECTED THAT ZAGREB WOULD NOT DO SO DESPITE STRONG PUBLIC PRESSURES IN THIS DIRECTION. IT WAS IMPORTANT, I CONTINUED, TO DAMPEN DOWN THE MOOD OF EUPHORIA IN CROATIA. TUDJMAN SAID HE AGREED; CROATIA HAD LOST ONLY 33 SOLDIERS IN SECTOR WEST BUT HE RECOGNIZED THAT MILITARY ACTIONS AGAINST SECTOR NORTH AND SOUTH WOULD LIKELY RESULT IN 2-5,000 CROATIAN DEAD.

10. TURNING TO THE ISSUE OF THE FUTURE UN PRESENCE IN SECTOR WEST, I NOTED THAT A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION EXISTED. WE HAD ADVISED AGAINST THE MILITARY ACTION. WHEN THE VICE PRESIDENT AND TUDJMAN HAD MET IN

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

COPENHAGEN, THE U.S. MND CROATIA HAD AGREED ON A FUTURE STRUCTURE FOR THE UN PRESENCE IN THE UNPA'S. WE HAD HELD TO OUR COMMITMENT: THE UN OPERATION HAD BEEN RE-DESIGNATED AS UNCRO, GIVEN A NEW MANDATE AND REDEPLOYED. WHILE THE CROATIAN ACTION MAY HAVE BEEN PROVOKED BY THE SERBS, IT HAD NONETHELESS CAUSED IMMENSE PROBLEMS.

11. WE BELIEVED CROATIA MUST PERMIT UNCRO TO REMAIN AND THE UNPA STATUS TO CONTINUE. IN PRACTICE, THIS WOULD MEAN THAT WHILE THE UN STATUS WOULD REMAIN UNCHANGED THE AREA WOULD, IN FACT, BE UNDER CROATIAN RATHER THAN SERB CONTROL. SUCH AN APPROACH WAS IN CROATIA'S OWN INTEREST AS A CONTINUING UN PRESENCE WAS NEEDED TO REDUCE TENSIONS THROUGHOUT THE KRAJINA.

13. I ADDED THAT MILOSEVIC HAD TOLD FRASURE LAST NIGHT THAT THE CROATIAN MOVE INTO SECTOR WEST HAD SERIOUSLY DAMAGED HIS ABILITY TO MOVE TOWARD ANY FORM OF RECOGNITION OF CROATIA AND BOSNIA. IT HAD ALSO SET BACK HIS EFFORTS TO REMOVE KARADZIC AND MARTIC AND REDUCED HIS INFLUENCE ON MLADIC. MILOSEVIC HAD BEEN VERY UPSET BY THE CROATIAN MOVE, I SAID. TUDJMAN MADE A SMALL SMILE.

13. TUDJMAN REITERATED THAT UN MONITORS COULD REMAIN IN WESTERN SLAVONIA, PERHAPS BEING CONCENTRATED IN AREAS SUCH AS THE BRIDGE OVER THE SAVA RIVER, WHERE SERB PROVOCATIONS WERE MOST LIKELY. HOWEVER, THE CROATIAN LEADER DEMURRED WHEN I ASKED AGAIN IF THE AREA COULD CONTINUE AS A UNPA. THIS WOULD BE TOTALLY UNACCEPTABLE TO THE CROATIAN PEOPLE.

14. I WARNED THAT EXPELLING UNCRO COULD REINFORCE INCREASING THINKING IN SOME CAPITALS (PARIS AND LONDON) IN FAVOR OF A UN WITHDRAWAL FROM CROATIA AND BOSNIA. TUDJMAN AGREED THAT A CONTINUING UNPROFOR PRESENCE IN BOSNIA WOULD BE HELPFUL BUT HE SEEMED UNCONCERNED ABOUT A KRAJINA SERB MILITARY MOVE. THEY NO LONGER HAD THE MILITARY CAPABILITY TO UNDERTAKE LARGE-SCALE ACTION AND WERE DEMORALIZED. IF IT WANTED TO, CROATIA COULD TAKE SECTOR NORTH AND SOUTH IN EIGHT DAYS WITH NO MORE THAN 3-5,000 DEAD, A PRICE HE SAID (SEEMINGLY CONTRADICTING HIS EARLIER STATEMENT IN PARAGRAPH 9) "WE ARE WILLING TO PAY IF NECESSARY." SECTOR EAST WOULD BE MORE OF A PROBLEM, HE ADDED.

15. I AGAIN REPEATED THE U.S. VIEW THAT UNCRO SHOULD REMAIN IN PLACE AND THE AREA SHOULD CONTINUE AS A UNPA. TUDJMAN AGAIN SAID THE AREA WOULD BE REINTEGRATED INTO CROATIA. UN MONITORS COULD REMAIN, E.G. ON THE BOSNIAN BORDER. THE UN SHOULD ALSO CONTROL THE UDBINA AIRFIELD AND LAUNCHING SITES FOR MISSILES AIMED AT CROATIAN CITIES. TUDJMAN ADDED THAT HE WAS STRONGLY OPPOSED TO UN PLANS TO REDEPLOY RUSSIAN TROOPS FROM SECTOR EAST TO

KNIN.

16. I CLOSED THE MEETING BY EMPHASIZING THAT I BELIEVED OUR DIFFERENCES OVER THE UN PRESENCE WERE SOLUBLE, AND STRESSED THAT THE VICE PRESIDENT WOULD PURSUE THIS ISSUE WITH TUDJMAN AT THEIR MEETING LATER IN THE DAY. (AFTER THE MEETING I BRIEFED PAULINE NEVILLE-JONES AND, BY SECURE PHONE, AMBASSADORS FRASURE AND GALBRAITH.)

17. COMMENT: I DIDN'T DENT TUDJMAN; PERHAPS THE VICE PRESIDENT WILL BE ABLE TO. HIS ASSURANCES THAT HE WON'T MOVE ON SECTORS NORTH AND SOUTH, WHILE PROBABLY SINCERE TODAY, ARE WORTH ABOUT AS MUCH AS WERE HIS SIMILAR STATEMENTS AT COPENHAGEN. COUPLED WITH FRASURE'S BLEAK FIRST MEETING WITH MILOSEVIC, THIS REPRESENTS ANOTHER SETBACK FOR PEACE, EVEN THOUGH THE TAKING OF SECTOR WEST HAS SOME OBVIOUS SHORT-TERM BENEFITS IN TERMS OF THE SANCTIONS REGIME AND REDUCING THE AREA IN DISPUTE IN CROATIA.

Bosnia Diplomatic Strategy: Sarajevo Airport

The Problem

After their successful challenge to the French at the illegal Sierra-4 checkpoint and their even more humiliating treatment of Contact Group representatives at Sarajevo airport, the Bosnian Serbs know they can keep bullying the United Nations and get whatever they want. The UN has no fall-back position for its talks with Karadzic; it long-ago ruled out the option of enforcing its control of the airport and the environs of Sarajevo. In his initial report on the situation, the Secretary General made it clear that the airport could be kept open only with the parties' agreement.

Referring to nonexistent precedents and claiming that the airport is Serb territory merely managed by the UN, Karadzic and his minions have threatened to fire on UN aircraft carrying anything but UNPROFOR military personnel. On April 27, the Serb commander overseeing the airport turned back a plane with civilians aboard and Karadzic announced that he will never allow foreign diplomats to land at Sarajevo, "especially diplomats from hostile nations, like Iran and the United States."

Prognosis: Humiliation and Strangulation

In the end, the UN may be able to maintain the airport as a logistical base for its own severely limited activities, but unless the UN can persuade the Bosnian Serbs otherwise, Sarajevo will lose its air link to the outside world. The GOBH will be isolated and the city will be strangled by closure of land routes.

And the Serbs may go further. In recent weeks, the Bosnian Serb Army has made obvious preparations for a massive attack on Sarajevo -- digging tank emplacements, replacing wooden and sandbag revetments encircling the city with reinforced concrete, etc. General Smith has said he expects the Serbs to "pick off the enclaves one-by-one" and then go for "the real prize enclave -- Sarajevo itself."

In response to these moves, the GOBH is certain to take into its own hands the future of its capital city. The B-H Army has already engaged in probing actions north and south of the city -- possibly setting the stage for an all-out offensive to punch one or two corridors into Sarajevo from nearby government-controlled territory. As Bosnian Vice President Ganic has stated, "We want UNPROFOR to stay in Bosnia and do its job while the Serbs want UNPROFOR to stay in Bosnia and not do its job." In the case of Sarajevo, the Bosnians will not long accept an UNPROFOR that is powerless to counter the Serbs.

Our Limited Options

The key to keeping UNPROFOR on the ground and to avoiding the deployment of U.S. ground troops in Bosnia is to take aggressive and decisive measures to keep Sarajevo Airport open for all traffic. The legal authority exists to do so and military options are being prepared.* But if we are truly serious, we must begin immediately to build a consensus among our allies and at the UN, threatening realistic consequences for inaction.

Among our options are the following:

-- Using existing authority to permit NATO air activity of the following sorts:

1) Close air support in defense of UNPROFOR troops at the airport, who have in recent days been shelled by the Bosnian Serbs;

2) Air strikes based on the fact that Sarajevo is being strangled;

3) Air strikes based on the fact that the exclusion zone is being violated.

Diplomatically, we could begin with the following steps:

-- Consulting immediately with allies bilaterally, at NATO and at the UN on Serb non-compliance with relevant UNSC resolutions, which call for unhindered delivery of humanitarian assistance including "safe and secure access" to Sarajevo Airport, and provide for the use of force to protect the Sarajevo safe area. The UN Security Council is to act Wednesday to issue a Presidential Statement on the airport that will call for its re-opening in accordance with the 1992 Airport Agreement.

-- Convening a meeting of the NAC to discuss military measures to ensure compliance with relevant UNSC resolutions.

-- Arranging calls by the Secretary to Hurd, Juppe and Kozyrev, letting them know that a failure to open the airport on acceptable terms will make a Ministerial impossible.

-- Raising the issue at the May 5 Contact Group meeting in Paris.

EXISTING AUTHORITY FOR NATO AIR ACTIVITY AROUND SARAJEVO AIRPORT

Within limitations, the UN and NATO have the authority to use air power in response to restrictions placed on the use of Sarajevo Airport, based on the following:

CLOSE AIR SUPPORT (CAS)

NATO Authority: Based on paragraph 1.1 of the Athens Ministerial Decision Sheet (June 10, 1993), which reads in part:

> "Ministers decided ... to offer NATO's protective air power in case of attack against UNPROFOR"

NATO may respond to a UN request for NATO air power, without further action, to support UNPROFOR.

UN Authority: UNSC 836 Res. (June 4, 1993), reaffirmed by UNSC Res. 844 (June 18, 1993) provides that:

> "... member states, acting ... through regional organizations, ... may take all necessary measures, through the use of air power, ... in and around safe areas, ... to support UNPROFOR in the performance of [certain aspects of] its mandate ..."

That mandate includes deterring attacks on the safe areas, and replying to obstruction of movement of UNPROFOR or humanitarian convoys throughout Bosnia. In addition, under UNSC Res. 770, the UN may request NATO to use force to facilitate delivery of humanitarian assistance to Sarajevo. These resolutions require that actions by member states and regional organizations be taken in "close cooperation" or in "coordination" with the UN, respectively.

AIR STRIKES IN RESPONSE TO STRANGULATION

NATO Authority: Based on NAC decisions of August 2 and 9, 1993, which read in part:

> "...that the Alliance will make immediate preparations for undertaking, in the event of strangulation of Sarajevo and other areas ..., measures including air strikes ..."

NATO may conduct air strikes in response to the "strangulation" of safe areas.

The NAC decision also makes clear that "the first use of air power shall be authorized by the UN Secretary General." This has been termed the "dual key" arrangement.

UN Authority: As with CAS, implementing UN resolutions are 770, 836 and 844.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

AIR STRIKES IN RESPONSE TO VIOLATIONS OF THE SARAJEVO EXCLUSION ZONE

NATO Authority: Based on the NAC decision of February 9, 1994, which reads in part that NATO:

"... accepts ... the request of the UN Secretary General to launch air strikes, ... at the request of the United Nations, against artillery or mortar positions in or around Sarajevo ... which are determined by UNPROFOR to be responsible for attacks against civilians, ... and ... in response to artillery or mortar attacks on Sarajevo, ... and ... in response to the identification of any heavy weapons [inside] the exclusion zone [and not under UNPROFOR control] ..."

NATO may conduct air strikes, at the UN's request, if the Sarajevo exclusion zone is violated.

UN Authority: As with CAS, implementing UN resolutions are 770, 836 and 844.

In addition to the UN/NATO authorities, collective self-defense would authorize states to use air power at the request of the Bosnian Government. Such use of air power could be restricted by UN Security Council resolutions -- e.g., by the establishment of the no-fly zone over Bosnia.

NOTE: UN and NATO authority to use air power, as noted above, does NOT apply to restrictions on the use of Sarajevo Airport by diplomats or official delegations.

INFORMATION PAPER

Subject: Military Options for Reopening Sarajevo Airport (U)

1. (U) Purpose. To provide options to reopen Sarajevo airport for the delivery of humanitarian aid.

2. (U) Background. Sarajevo air operations have been periodically interrupted by the Bosnian Serbs since the beginning of the conflict. Bosnian Serb forces control the area surrounding the airport and the major land routes into Sarajevo. The Bosnian Serbs have the capability to attack aircraft in flight and while unloading on the airfield. Aircraft are threatened by both antiaircraft weapons and conventional direct and indirect ground systems. The Bosnian Muslims also have the capability, though to a lesser extent, to interdict air operations. UNPROFOR has documented numerous occasions of BiH fire.

3. ~~(S)~~ Discussion. The following options are available for consideration for the delivery of humanitarian aid into Sarajevo:

Assumptions:

- New UNSCR(s) required to implement a military option will be adopted by the Security Council.
- A parallel diplomatic effort to secure the opening of Sarajevo will be undertaken.

OPTION 1: Secure Sarajevo Airport - forcibly secure and maintain a DMZ around Sarajevo. Create a demilitarized zone (8-10km) around Sarajevo airfield which denies the Bosnian Serbs from employing weapons against aircraft that are in flight or on the ground. This option could require up to a division sized force to secure the airfield and remove the Bosnian Serb and Bosnian Muslim presence from the immediate area.

UNPROFOR Action:

- UNPROFOR seize (if necessary) and establish administrative control over the Sarajevo airport
- Secure airfield perimeter and approaches using a combination of troops equipped with means of acquisition for various types of attack. May include night vision devices, GPS, artillery acquisition battery.
- Take direct action to secure high terrain and buildings from belligerents. Move civilians outside of airport safe zone (2-3km). Combatants excluded inside 8-10km zone.

- Roving security patrols along approaches to the airport. Requires mounted and dismounted patrols monitoring out to 10 km from the airport.
- NATO Airborne AC-130 and helicopter response capability to attack sniper/mortar/artillery positions. Consider use of a ground quick reaction force.

Belligerent Reaction:

- "Administrative" harassment by Serbian officials at the airport.
- Threats from Bosnian Serb government in Pale, e.g., refusing to guarantee the safety of UN flights.
- Employ random sniping incidents due to the particular vulnerability of aircraft
- Small arms fire directed either at aircraft or ground personnel. Will be disruptive even if not directed at airport operations per se.
- Random or continuous mortar and artillery attacks designed to damage the airfield, aircraft or simply to disrupt operations.
- Employment of man portable IR surface to air missiles/AAA designed to directly attack aircraft.
- Employment of longer range systems (heavy artillery, SA-2s from ranges of 30-50kms).
- Horizontal escalation elsewhere in B-H; hostage taking, attacks on ground convoys, attacks on UN personnel, disruption of utilities into Sarajevo and other enclaves.
- BiH may target UNPROFOR attempting to blame the BSA in order to encourage a NATO response against the BSA.

Counteraction:

- Difficult if not impossible to counteract Bosnian Serb horizontal escalation/asymmetric responses.

Recommended Force Enhancements:

- Counterbattery radar, NODs, GPS, and other long range acquisition devices linked to means of reaction.
- Up to a brigade dedicated to airport security with heavy quick reaction force, up to a brigade sized force to remove combatants from the Sarajevo airport area.
- AC-130, CAS, and helicopter support
- Air assault capability (company sized)

Pol-Mil Considerations:

- UNPROFOR/Allies unlikely to support "offensive" operation to open airport.
- Additional troop contributions to support new mission unlikely.
- Allies could call for large US troop and equipment contribution.
- Bosnian Serbs could advertise DMZ as form of ethnic cleansing.

Risk Assessment:

- Irrespective of any of the military measures taken, the absolute safety of transport/civilian aircraft cannot be guaranteed given the threat environment.
- Difficulty maintaining sophisticated equipment with limited logistics base.
- Cannot guarantee the survivability of aircraft (especially helicopters, transport, and AC-130s) in a semi-integrated air defense network.
- UNPROFOR would be required to redeploy forces to support this option which could create increased risk in other areas. Only French, UK, Dutch, Canadian forces capable of accomplishing tasks associated with this option.
- Without significant force enhancements, UNPROFOR forces outmatched by Bosnian Serb forces.
- Increased probability of UNPROFOR ground force casualties.
- Airport sits astride confrontation line; will be difficult to establish which party is responsible for firing.

OPTION 2: Use CAS and air strike packages to support delivery of humanitarian aid flights. Marshall significant NATO air package to surpress immediate threats around Sarajevo airport as aid is flown into and unloaded at the airfield. Package could include integration of target acquisition systems to assist in locating indirect firing systems. Given the nature of the threat surrounding the airfield, target acquisition (rifleman, AA gun, mortar) would be extremely difficult. As a consequence, the ability to deliver effective suppressive fire against these type targets would be extremely difficult.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

UNPROFOR Action:

- Deploy target acquisition system to Sarajevo airfield. Deploy TACPs to Sarajevo area.
- Package aid deliveries so that CAS/air strike packages support specified high density delivery periods.
- Clearly state intent to use NATO air support for protecting aid deliveries into Sarajevo.
- Specify target categories (high value, artillery pieces, headquarters in Sarajevo vicinity) that NATO may strike in response to Serb attack on humanitarian aid flights.

Belligerent Reaction:

- Continued "administrative" harassment by Serbian officials at the airport. Blocking aid outside airport.
- Threats from Bosnian Serb government refusing safety of flights.
- Hostage taking - placing hostages at weapons sites.
- Direct attack against humanitarian flights.
- BiH may manipulate NATO's intent to use air power to their advantage.

Counteraction:

- Direct attack against targets engaging aircraft.
- Direct attack against Bosnian Serb high value targets.

Recommended Force Enhancements:

- AC-130 aircraft.
- EW CAP (EA-6B, EF-111s).

Pol-Mil Considerations:

- Troop contributing nations unlikely to support air option due to concern for safety of deployed troops.
- "Dual key" arrangement remains key factor in control of air strikes.
- Could require significant US contribution in terms of air assets.
- Bosnian Serbs likely to use collateral damage as media weapon against US/NATO. Given this scenario, attempts to suppress sniper/mortar fires in an urban environment have a high potential for collateral damage.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Risk Assessment:

- Air power alone insufficient to protect humanitarian aid flights and keep airfield open. Threat/target difficult to identify and acquire (snipers, mortars, urban environment, mountainous topography).
- Support aircraft (AC-130) at high risk in semi-integrated air defense network.
- Bosnian Serbs can react in ways (hostage taking, utility shut-down) which limit the effectiveness of air power options.
- High probability of collateral damage and fratricide.

OPTION 3: Open and maintain a road corridor from the Adriatic coast to Sarajevo (15km through Bosnian Serb held territory).

UNPROFOR Action:

- Enhance convoy ability to protect themselves by employing a graduated range of security responses from self protection through heavy force (armor/Infantry Fighting Vehicle) security escorts.
- UNPROFOR can create and employ a "Quick Reaction Force" consisting of heavy ground maneuver units, assault forces, and possibly helicopters.
- To counter interdiction efforts UNPROFOR can obtain and employ combat engineer units/assets moving with convoys or reacting to specific points.
- Provide each convoy with TACPs and continuous overhead air escort (helo/fixed wing).

Belligerent Reaction:

- Incidents of civil disobedience on the part of the population, e.g. crowds blocking roads.
- Halt and delay convoys with intent to delay aid delivery or steal ("tax") contents of the convoys.
- Sniping or other acts of random violence to intimidate and disrupt or stop convoys.
- Attacks on convoys to prevent delivery of aid or as a punitive measure in response to UNPROFOR (or opposing) belligerent actions.
- Belligerents may stop/delay aid by interdicting LOC.
  Barricade roadway — Mine road segments
  Destroy bridges — Block tunnels

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Counteraction:

- Difficult to counteract Bosnian Serb indirect responses - mining roads, destroying bridges (72 choke points on the Ploce - Sarajevo route).

Recommended Force Enhancements.

- Up to a brigade for route security (approx 15 km).
- Quick Reaction Force (mech and air assault).
- 1-2 engineer battalions.
- AC-130, CAS, and helicopter support.
- MP units.

Pol-Mil Considerations:

- Additional troop contributions to support new mission unlikely.
- UNPROFOR/NATO allies could call for significant US contribution.
- UNPROFOR unlikely to accept full enforcement of mandate.

Risk Assessment:

- Bosnian Serb indirect/asymmetrical responses can halt aid delivery.
- Current UNPROFOR forces not capable of providing robust ground escort package. Without enhancements, UNPROFOR forces would be outmatched by Bosnian Serb forces.
- Difficulty maintaining sophisticated equipment with limited logistics base.
- Cannot guarantee the survivability of aircraft (especially helicopters, AC-130s) in a semi-integrated air defense network.
- Increased probability of UNPROFOR ground force casualties.
- Routes parallel numerous hot spots near the active confrontation line. Convoys may encounter indirect fire from the fighting.

NOTE: These options were developed based on the assigned mission - reopen Sarajevo airport. The options are intentionally robust based on the threat capabilities and areas required to be secured. An air strike only package directed against high value targets throughout Bosnia was not considered. This approach could be perceived as purely offensive and unrelated to the direct opening of the airport at Sarajevo. The danger to relief operations and UNPROFOR troops could rise dramatically given this approach to reopening Sarajevo.

5. ~~(S)~~ Recommendation. The military options are high risk, high cost operations. Unless the US is willing to employ ground forces to support the securing of Sarajevo airfield and/or the coastal route to Sarajevo, it is unlikely that UNPROFOR or NATO will support a military option. At this time, the Joint Staff recommends against executing a military option.

SUBJECT: SARAJEVO AIRPORT

1. ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SUMMARY: SARAJEVO AIRPORT REMAINS CLOSED FOR ALL USES OTHER THAN UNPROFOR RESUPPLY AND FOR UNIFORMED UNPROFOR PERSONNEL. IN EFFECT, THE AIRPORT HAS DEVOLVED INTO AN UNPROFOR LOGISTICS BASE. THERE ARE NO GROUNDS FOR OPTIMISM THAT IT WILL OPEN, SINCE THE SERBS HAVE HARDENED THEIR POSITION. END SUMMARY.

3. ON APRIL 3 WE MET WITH THE UN CIVIL AFFAIRS CHIEF NEGOTIATOR FOR THE AIRPORT. THE AIRPORT TALKS HAD TAKEN PLACE THAT DAY AND HAD NOT GONE WELL. THE SERBS HAVE HARDENED THEIR POSITION IN SEVERAL RESPECTS:

(A) THEY DEMAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT THAT THEY OWN THE AIRPORT,
(B) THEY DEMAND RENT, AND
(C) THEY DEMAND PLEDGES THAT THE AIRPORT WILL BE RETURNED TO THEIR CONTROL WHEN UNPROFOR LEAVES.

4. IN ADDITION, THE SERBS INSIST ON EXERCISING RIGHTS TO CLEAR, APPROVE, AND CONTROL ALL CARGO AND PASSENGERS. THIS MEANS THAT THEY WANT ADVANCE NOTICE WITH THE RIGHT TO DETERMINE WHO AND WHAT IS ACCEPTABLE, AND THAT THEY WILL HAVE THE RIGHT TO TURN BACK PEOPLE OR CARGO AT THE AIRPORT

IF IT DOESN'T MEET WITH THEIR APPROVAL FOR ANY REASON.

5. THE UN IS PESSIMISTIC ABOUT THE POSSIBILITY OF REOPENING THE AIRPORT FOR ANYTHING BY UNIFORMED UNPROFOR PURPOSES IN AT THE LEAST THE MID-TERM.

6. COMMENT: THE SERB DEMANDS ARE OUTRAGEOUS AND UNACCEPTABLE TO THE UN. HOWEVER, GIVEN THE INADEQUACIES OF FOOD DELIVERIES OVER LAND, IT IS LIKELY THAT FULL DISTRIBUTIONS OF FOOD WILL CONTINUE ONLY THROUGH MID-MAY. AT THE POINT WHERE SUPPLY CANNOT KEEP PACE WITH DEMAND, THE PRESSURE WILL BUILD ON THE UN TO CUT SOME DEAL--ANY DEA--TO OPEN UP THE HUMANITARIAN AIR BRIDGE. THE SERBS ARE CLEARLY AWARE OF THIS AND ARE BIDING THEIR TIME.

7. ACCORDING TO UN SOURCES, THE SERBS ARE VERY CONFIDENT THAT UNPROFOR AND NATO WILL DO NOTHING IN RESPONSE TO THE CLOSURE OF THE AIRPORT. FURTHER, UNPROFOR READS THE HARDENED POSITION NOT AS A NEGOTIATING PLOY, BUT AS PART OF A LARGER STRATEGY TO CLAMP DOWN ON THE AIRPORT AND CUT OFF BOSNIAN ACCESS TO THE OUTSIDE.

8. THERE IS A CLEAR DANGER THAT AS THE CITY'S SUPPLIES ARE DRAWN DOWN, PRESSURE WILL INCREASE ON UNPROFOR TO GIVE AWAY THE STORE TO RESTORE THE MINIMAL FLOW. ONE SENIOR UNHCR OFFICIAL HAS ALREADY EXPRESSED TO US A WILLINGNESS TO SEVERELY LIMIT TRAVEL OF PERSONNEL ON UNHCR FLIGHTS IN EXCHANGE FOR RESTARTING THE AIR BRIDGE.

9. THE GREATER DANGER IS THAT THE BOSNIANS WILL FEEL COMPELLED TO ATTEMPT TO LIBERATE SARAJEVO AND WILL LAUNCH A MILITARY CAMPAIGN TO THIS END. MOST SOURCES HERE BELIEVE THEY CANNOT SUCCEED AT THIS TIME.

10. THE UN IS NOT COMPLACENT ABOUT THIS ISSUE: THEY SIMPLY HAVE NO GOOD CARDS LEFT TO PLAY.

11. THE EMBASSY WILL CONTINUE TO MONITOR U.S. OFFICIAL TRAVEL INTO AND OUT OF THE CITY VIA THE IGMAN ROAD, THE ONLY LINK TO THE OUTSIDE. WE WILL KEEP DEPARTMENT APPRISED OF FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS. END COMMENT MENZIES

Unanswered Policy Questions Relating to OPLAN 40104

Attached as requested are options for examining the policy questions raised in developing OPLAN 40104. To place them in context, we have included sections on "Assumptions" and "General Policy and Principles" which we believe should guide consideration of these issues, and of the OPLAN itself.

The nature of NATO's commitment to withdrawal, and thus of the U.S., is a key issue which requires priority attention by Deputies and Principals. It is addressed under the "Command and Control" set of Policy Questions.

It is our understanding that OPLAN 40104 calls for transfer of theater command to NATO under any UNPROFOR withdrawal scenario, even under a permissive environment or under limited extraction scenarios. This means that NATO and the U.S. will be engaged from the outset, even if UNPROFOR could handle such a scenario on its own, or with limited NATO support, for example from the air. Such an arrangement will virtually guarantee the engagement of NATO (and U.S.) forces on the ground in Bosnia.

We believe OPLAN 40104 should give NATO the flexibility to tailor its support to the level UNPROFOR requests and requires, so that, if possible, UNPROFOR can make its own way out. NATO must define when a withdrawal must become a NATO operation. The point of transition from UNPROFOR to NATO control should be linked to employment of NATO forces on the ground, or to UNPROFOR's inability to manage a full or limited withdrawal on its own.

POLICY QUESTIONS/ANSWERS ON NATO SUPPORT FOR UNPROFOR WITHDRAWAL

Assumptions:

- A continued UN presence in the region would tend to attenuate the fighting and alleviate human suffering.
- The United Nations has decided to withdraw UNPROFOR from Bosnia, and has requested NATO's assistance.
- The situation will permit UN forces to remain in Croatia and Macedonia.
- NATO has decided to assist a withdrawal from Bosnia and fully executes OPLAN 40104.
- NATO (and the U.S.) will conduct a limited-duration withdrawal operation, then depart.
- The UN and/or local governments will have responsibility for humanitarian assistance after UN forces have been withdrawn.
- NATO (and the U.S.) will oppose any action/activity during the withdrawal operation, to include lifting the arms embargo, that would tend to result in an escalation of fighting in the region.
- U.S. interests/objectives are to:
  - •• Improve regional peace and stability; contain the conflict.
  - •• Help ensure Bosnia's survival as a state.
  - •• Honor U.S. bilateral and NATO commitments to assist in a NATO-led withdrawal should one become necessary.
- Post UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia, the U.S. policy is "lift and strike," which does not include the employment of U.S. ground troops.

•• minimize risk to U.S./NATO forces in extraction

POLICY QUESTIONS/ANSWERS ON NATO SUPPORT FOR UNPROFOR WITHDRAWAL

PROPOSED U.S. General Policy and Principles:

- The United States is willing to commit its forces, including U.S. ground troops, as part of a NATO-led operation to withdraw UN forces and American citizens from the former Yugoslavia.

- Apart from the withdrawal operation, the United States will continue to meet its NATO (DENY FLIGHT and SHARP GUARD) and national obligations in support of UN mandates for humanitarian assistance to the extent the situation permits.

- The United States is willing to commit its forces, except for the deployment of U.S. ground troops into the theater, to help ensure the survival of Bosnia.

- During the withdrawal operation the forces of the United States, its Allies, and the UN will be expected to conduct themselves with impartiality and neutrality to the maximum extent practical.

- NATO forces will take appropriate self-defense measures to protect themselves and those being withdrawn. Lethal force would only be used against civilians as a last resort for self-defense purposes.

- The withdrawal priority will be for NATO forces to remove designated personnel first, then weapons, and finally, equipment.

  - NATO forces will, to the best of their ability, withdraw all personnel who are supposed to be withdrawn.

  - If, in the judgment of the on-scene commander, removing weapons or equipment poses unacceptable risks, NATO forces will leave such weapons/equipment behind, possibly destroying or disabling it, as the situation dictates.

  - If civilians request relocation assistance, and in the judgment of the on-scene commander this assistance would not jeopardize the withdrawal effort, then such assistance should be provided.

refugees

- Any force, regardless of warring-party faction and of location within the theater of operations, that is determined to be a threat to the withdrawal operation, is subject to NATO attacks.

- Any force, regardless of warring-party faction and of location within the theater of operations, that is detected attacking civilians, is subject to NATO attacks.

- NATO forces are authorized to take the necessary self-defense measures against any attacker, regardless of location.

Question: What is the NATO policy for dealing with civilians during and after withdrawal?

- o What if civilians not related to UNPROFOR such as embassy personnel, NGOs, PVOs, etc., request to be evacuated with UNPROFOR?
- o What action will NATO take if civilians riot against NATO/UNPROFOR or hinder and block withdrawal? Does NATO use deadly force against civilians?
- o What action will NATO take if civilians attempt to use NATO forces for protection?
- o If the Bosnian Serbs attack the Eastern Enclaves and put thousands of new refugees on the road, what will NATO do? (Ganic says NATO and U.S. will be morally and physically trapped.)
- o What action will NATO take if UN humanitarian operations (medical care, feeding, displaced persons, etc.) prove inadequate to meet demands?
- o What action will NATO take if civilians come under attack or are shelled outside safe areas or exclusion zones or outside areas where withdrawal is occurring?
- o What action will NATO take if any side commits ethnic cleansing? If NATO evacuates civilians will it be contributing to ethnic cleansing?

Policy Options:

- Evacuation of civilians:
  - •• Remove all who request withdrawal, even if not authorized by OPLAN 40104.
  - •• Remove some who request withdrawal, including NATO/UN national citizens, to the extent doing so will not jeopardize withdrawing those authorized by OPLAN 40104. The on-scene commander would determine which additional personnel, if any, could be withdrawn.
  - •• Remove only those authorized by OPLAN 40104 and UN/NATO national citizens.
  - •• Remove only those authorized by OPLAN 40104.
- Use of force against civilians:
  - •• No use of force against civilians would be authorized.
  - •• Non-lethal force could be used.
  - •• Lethal force could be used for self-defense purposes as a last resort.
- Protection of civilians:
  - •• NATO forces would be expected to respond to any action against civilians.
  - •• Respond to attacks against civilians in safe areas, and anywhere against anyone conducting ethnic cleansing.
  - •• If detected by NATO forces, respond to attacks against civilians in any area where withdrawal operations are being conducted.
  - •• Respond to attacks against civilians only to the extent necessary to facilitate the withdrawal operation.

Proposed Policy:

NATO's mission and priority for commitment of forces is to conduct the withdrawal of UN forces. NATO will assist civilians not designated for evacuation to the extent doing so will not adversely impact on the withdrawal operation. NATO will withdraw those personnel designated for withdrawal (UN identification-card holders) under OPLAN 40104, and assist UN/NATO nations' citizen evacuation efforts. Lethal force would only be used against civilians as a last resort for self-defense purposes. If detected by NATO forces, NATO will respond to attacks against civilians in any area where withdrawal operations are being conducted.

After withdrawal, NATO should offer support along the lines of that provided before withdrawal; e.g., use of NATO airpower, if requested, for protection of UN personnel and in response to safe area violations, and its air/maritime power for continuance of DENY FLIGHT and SHARP GUARD operations.

Question: What is the NATO policy governing the delivery of humanitarian aid during and after withdrawal?

- o Will NATO take over protection of relief convoys passing through the former UNPAs? If not, and aid is blocked, what will we do about a potential humanitarian disaster in Bihac?
- o What action will NATO take if humanitarian supplies run short or major delivery ports such as the Sarajevo airport are closed by one of the parties?
- o What action will NATO take if electricity, water, or gas supplies are disrupted to major population centers?
- o What action would NATO take if after withdrawal is completed there is no international organization willing to assume responsibility for guaranteeing humanitarian relief?

Policy Options:

- Assistance to civilians during withdrawal:
  - •• Provide refugee relocation and aid delivery when requested.
  - •• Provide refugee relocation and aid delivery moving in the direction of the withdrawal operation.
  - •• Provide assistance to the extent doing so does not place the withdrawal operation at further risk.
- Assistance to civilians after withdrawal:
  - •• Retain NATO forces, including ground, in the region to conduct refugee relocation and aid delivery operations.
  - •• Provide non-ground-force support to UN/national assistance efforts.
  - •• Provide no post-withdrawal assistance; NATO's mission is complete after UN forces are withdrawn.

Proposed Policy:

During withdrawal, NATO will provide humanitarian assistance to the extent doing so will not place the withdrawal operation at further risk. After withdrawal, NATO should offer its support, excluding the use of ground forces, to facilitate UN/national assistance efforts.

Question: What is the guiding NATO policy for dealing with the warring parties during and after withdrawal?

- What action will NATO take if it is unable to deter hostage taking and hostages are held at unknown locations by the Bosnian Serbs? Bosnian Government?
- What action will NATO take if its is not attacked, but exposed UNPROFOR, UNHCR, or NGO/PVO hostages are taken instead?
- If NATO is unable to deter attacks on UNPROFOR, or if small groups of UNPROFOR are detained, held hostage or blocked, what action will NATO take?
- What will NATO do if Tudjman or Izetbegovic takes military action against the Serbs while NATO is on the ground?
- What will NATO do if the Bosnian Government launches a new offensive in Bihac, drawing in RSK forces? Is there a danger of NATO forces coming into conflict with the RSK/BSA?
- Would NATO respond the same way to Bosnian Serb and Bosnian government violation?
- What will NATO do if Islamic UNPROFOR units begin to fight on the Bosnian Government's side during withdrawal operations? If Russian or others begin to fight on the Bosnian Serb side?
- What will NATO do if Milosevic openly supports or enters the war on the Bosnian Serb side?
- What will NATO do if Bosnian Government forces are being overrun and call for assistance?
- What action will NATO take if it is forced to take prisoners?
- What action will NATO take if it encounters prison camps with unacceptable conditions?
- What action will NATO take if it receives information that war atrocities are occurring?
- What action will NATO take if it needs Serbian support to defuse tension? Will it negotiate safe passage for withdrawing UNPROFOR elements through Serbia?

Policy Options during Withdrawal:

- Attacks on or hostage taking of NATO forces or UN evacuees:
  - •• Use of lethal force is authorized for self-defense purposes, but not for securing the return of hostages.
  - •• Use of lethal force is authorized to deal with attacks on NATO forces/UN evacuees, and for securing the return of hostages. Every effort will be made to ensure that all NATO forces and UN personnel are safely withdrawn from the region.
- Warring-party inter-fighting (atrocities, territory overrun):
  - •• Take action to attenuate/halt any fighting.
  - •• Take action against the Serbs only.
  - •• Take action to attenuate/halt fighting to the extent it does not place the withdrawal operation at further risk.
  - •• Take action only if necessary to facilitate the withdrawal.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

7/12

- Outside lethal support (from Croatia, Serbia, or from intervening UN nations such as Russia or a Muslim state), including fighting for and the turnover of weapons to, a warring faction:
  - •• Respond impartially against all efforts to provide outside lethal support.
  - •• Respond against any outside lethal support for Serb forces.
  - •• Respond impartially against any outside lethal support that could adversely impact the withdrawal operation.

Proposed Policy during Withdrawal:

NATO is authorized to use lethal force, as necessary, to protect its forces and UN evacuees, and to secure the return of NATO/UN hostages. Every effort will be made to ensure that all NATO forces and UN evacuees are safely withdrawn from the region. NATO will take action to attenuate/halt fighting between the warring parties as necessary to facilitate the withdrawal. NATO will respond impartially against any outside lethal support effort that could adversely impact the withdrawal operation.

Policy Options after Withdrawal:

- Seek to implement "lift and strike":
  - •• Convince the UN to multilaterally lift the arms embargo.
  - •• Convince NATO to terminate DENY FLIGHT and SHARP GUARD to facilitate the flow of weapons into the region.
  - •• Convince Serb-friendly nations not to arm/train the Serbs, and Bosnian/Croatian-friendly nations to arm/train the Bosnian and Croatian governments.
  - •• Convince NATO to conduct an air campaign against the Bosnian Serbs.
  - •• Convince the warring parties to stop fighting once Bosnia's survival is ensured.
- Seek to implement "lift only":
  - •• Continue to support the arms embargo and SHARP GUARD.
  - •• Convince NATO to conduct an air campaign against the Serbs.
  - •• Convince Serb-friendly nations not to enter the fight on the side of the Serbs.
  - •• Convince the warring parties to stop fighting once Bosnia's survival is ensured.
- Seek to contain the conflict:
  - •• Continue to support the arms embargo, SHARP GUARD, and DENY FLIGHT, and use of NATO airpower, if requested, for protection of UN personnel and in response to safe area violations.
  - •• Obtain international community support for, and NATO agreement to conduct, an air campaign against Serb forces should it become necessary to help ensure Bosnia's survival as a state.

Proposed Policy: See strategy paper.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE (MO) 05.08. '95 18:59 NO. 14601208S5 PAGE 15

Question: What is NATO's responsibility in dealing with violations of safe areas and exclusion zones?

- o What will NATO do if safe areas are shelled?
- o What will NATO do if heavy weapons violations occur?
- o What will NATO do if the Bosnian Serbs lay siege to or attack the eastern enclaves? If they fall?
- o What will NATO do if sniping incidents occur?
- o What will NATO do if during the course of the withdrawal either Sarajevo or Zagreb come under attack by Serb forces?

Policy Options:

- Respond to all safe area and exclusion zone violations.
- Respond to violations to the extent practical without adversely impacting on withdrawal operations.
- Respond only as necessary to ensure a successful withdrawal.

Proposed Policy:

NATO's mission and priority for commitment of forces, including airpower, would be to conduct the withdrawal of UN forces. Its mission would not be to defend the Bosnian population, nor to support Bosnian Government forces. NATO would be expected to respond to safe area and exclusion zone violations to the extent practical without adversely impacting on withdrawal operations. In those areas where UN forces are being withdrawn, NATO's response to safe area and exclusion zone violations would be as required to facilitate the withdrawal operation.

NATO forces would take appropriate self-defense measures to protect themselves and those being withdrawn. If a concentration or movement of heavy weapons in any area, even an area not designated as a safe area or exclusion zone, were determined to be capable of threatening the withdrawal operation, such weapons would be subject to NATO attacks. Similarly, NATO forces would have authority to destroy/neutralize weapons in collection sites that could be reasonably expected to fall into the hands of those who would attempt to use them against the withdrawal effort. In these situations, NATO-UN dual-key procedures would not apply.

Apart from the withdrawal operation, NATO would continue to meet its obligations in support of UN elements outside the NATO Commander's area of control as the situation might permit and according to existing arrangements. In areas (safe areas, exclusion zones, or otherwise) where no withdrawal operations are being conducted, NATO could respond to heavy weapons violations if doing so, in the NATO Commander's judgment, would not adversely impact on the withdrawal operation. In these areas, which would be outside the NATO Commander's area of control, the dual-key arrangement would remain in effect. Responses in areas not previously addressed (i.e., those outside the safe areas and exclusion zones) would require further NAC approval.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE (MO) 05.08. '95 18:59 NO. 4601208855 PAGE 16

Question: What is the NATO governing policy in resolving territorial and equipment disputes?

- o What will NATO do if disputes erupt between parties over territory that NATO occupies or is withdrawing from? Does NATO return it to the internationally recognized country or to the party who had prior control?
- o What will NATO do with equipment if parties will not allow equipment to be peacefully withdrawn?
- o Will NATO deal only with the recognized Government of Bosnia in resolving disputes or will it also deal with the Pale Serbs? The Herceg-Bosnia authorities?

Policy Options:

- Ensure territory/equipment is returned to the party that had control prior to UN intervention.
- Attempt to leave as much territory/equipment in the hands of the Bosnian Government as feasible.
- Leave dispensation of territory/equipment to the warring parties.
- NATO on-scene commanders will allocate territory/equipment in the way that best supports the withdrawal operation.

Proposed Policy:

NATO on-scene commanders will allocate territory/equipment in the way that, in their judgment, best supports the withdrawal operation. As a general rule, consistent with mission safety, equipment should be destroyed, and territory should be returned to the Bosnian Government.

Question: Command and Control.

- o What is the acceptable model for "coordination" between the UN SRSG and the NATO Commander?
- o What if the UN mandate requests withdrawal only from certain areas? Will NATO have total control/NATO ROE/no dual-key?
- o What command-and-control arrangements will NATO make to accommodate those UNPROFOR units which refuse to come under NATO OPCON?
- o What will the U.S. do if the UN demands TACON of NATO forces during the 14-day period after the NATO main body begins deployment, but before the conditions are met for Transfer of Authority (TOA) from UNPROFOR to NATO?

Policy Options:

- Establish a command-and-control arrangement whereby the UN and NATO mutually agree on all withdrawal decisions.
- Establish a flexible OPLAN 40104 arrangement whereby, inter alia, the following could be accommodated:
  - •• If it chooses to depart without NATO assistance, UNPROFOR could depart in whole or in part under its own control.
  - •• UNPROFOR could conduct a withdrawal involving limited NATO support along the lines of current arrangements.
  - •• If direct NATO involvement is required, then NATO would control the withdrawal operation.
- Establish an arrangment whereby any NATO involvement in a UN withdrawal automatically activates theater-wide NATO command and control, commitment of NATO (and U.S.) forces, implementation of NATO ROE, and elimination of dual key.

Proposed Policy:

NATO will develop OPLAN 40104 that gives NATO the flexibility to fully support a UN withdrawal if it must, and that allows the flexibility to tailor the level of Alliance support (as laid out in the second option above) required, if any. [As currently laid out, NATO is engaged from the outset under any withdrawal situation.]

Question: What is the mission of the NATO force? Will it be clear to the soldier, Congress, news media, and public what we are doing and why? What is success?

Policy Options:

- NATO's mission is to withdraw UNPROFOR and others requesting evacuation; and after withdrawal, to take up UNPROFOR's humanitarian assistance mission and, if necessary to ensure Bosnia survives, to join Bosnian Government forces in their fight against the Serbs. Success is when all NATO and UNPROFOR troops are withdrawn from the area, fighting has stopped, and Bosnia's survival is guaranteed.
- NATO's mission is to withdraw UNPROFOR and to the extent it can, to continue to meet its NATO and UN obligations in support of the UN's humanitarian assistance efforts. Success is when all NATO and UNPROFOR troops are withdrawn from the area, and humanitarian assistance is still being provided to the extent the fighting permits.
- NATO's mission is to withdraw UNPROFOR. Success is when all NATO and UNPROFOR troops are withdrawn.

Proposed Policy:

NATO's mission is to withdraw UNPROFOR and to the extent it can, to continue to meet its NATO and UN obligations in support of the UN's humanitarian assistance efforts.

MEMORANDUM TO: THE DEPUTIES COMMITTEE

FROM: The Peacekeeping Core Group

SUBJECT: Paying for Expanded UN Operations in Bosnia

The PCG proposes the following policy on the issue of the funding the expansion of UN operations in Bosnia:

1. The US will support the expansion of UN forces in and around Bosnia by approximately 10,000 forces, which will be under UN command and for which costs will be assessed as a UN operation.

2. Toward that end, the US will support a Security Council resolution to increase the ceiling of the peacekeeping force as necessary (the ceiling needs to be increased by 6000 to permit an adddition to the force of 10,000).

3. The US will assist the expanded force by providing lift, equipment and support for that equipment, on a reimbursable basis with the UN. The US will also provide intelligence and close air support on a non-reimbursable basis.

4. The assessed cost to the US of the expanded UN force will be assumed by the State Department (150 account CIPA funds). Although the cost for the expanded UN force is not certain yet, it may exceed $150 million per year above the cost of the previously existing force. There are currently no funds in FY95 of FY96 to cover this expense. State will, however, consult with Congress about ways in which to appropriate such funds.

UNPROFOR ON JUNE 12. THE BRITISH AND FRENCH HAVE PRODUCED A NEW TEXT AND THEY PUT IT IN BLUE. THEIR INTENTION IS TO REQUEST A VOTE ON JUNE 14. AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT URGED THE UK AND FRENCH PERMREPS TO DELAY PUTTING THE DRAFT IN BLUE AND TO HOLD OFF ON A VOTE UNTIL NEXT WEEK. TY RESPONDED THAT THEY HAD RECEIVED FIRM INSTRUCTIONS TO MOVE AHEAD QUICKLY. DISCUSSION OF DELAY WOULD HAVE TO OCCUR IN CAPITALS. THE CO-SPONSORS ACCEPTED A NUMBER OF AMENDMENTS PROPOSED BY THE NON-ALIGNED CAUCUS OR THE BOSNIAN DELEGATION, BUT NOT THE TWO AMENDMENTS THAT BOSNIAN FOREIGN MINISTER SACIRBEY SAID WERE MOST IMPORTANT. DURING THE COUNCIL'S DISCUSSION CHINESE PERMREP QIN SAID THAT THE PROPOSED RAPID REACTION FORCE VIOLATED STANDARD PEACE KEEPING PRINCIPLES AND THAT HIS GOVERNMENT WOULD HAVE DIFFICULTY SUPPORTING IT. UNDERSECRETARY GENERAL ANNAN ANSWERED QUESTIONS ABOUT THE PROPOSED FORCE FROM THE RUSSIANS AND OTHER TROOP CONTRIBUTORS. END SUMMARY.

MEETINGS OF THE CONTACT GROUP PLUS ITALY

3. THE BRITISH AND FRENCH CONVENED MORNING AND AFTERNOON MEETINGS OF THE CONTACT GROUP PLUS ITALY TO DISCUSS THE TEXT. UK PERMREP HANNAY AND FRENCH PERMREP MERIMEE EMPHASIZED THAT THEY HAD INSTRUCTIONS TO "GO BLUE" EVENING OF JUNE 12 AND TO PRESS THE RESOLUTION TO A VOTE ON JUNE 14. RUSSIAN PERMREP LAVROV ARGUED THAT THE CONTACT GROUP HAD TO KEEP IN MIND THE POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS OF THE TEXT. IT THEREFORE NEEDED TO "BE BALANCED," AND SHOULD NOT GIVE THE IMPRESSION THAT THE FORCE WAS BEING DEPLOYED TO WAGE WAR ON THE SERBS. LAVROV CIRCULATED A NUMBER OF AMENDMENTS THAT CONDEMNED BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT MILITARY OFFENSIVES, UNDERLINED THE NEED FOR STRICT ENFORCEMENT OF THE ARMS EMBARGO, AND CLARIFIED THAT THE FORCE WOULD COMPLY WITH UNPROFOR'S EXISTING MANDATE, RULES OF ENGAGEMENT, AND COMMAND STRUCTURE. THE UK AND FRANCE TRIED TO MEET THE RUSSIAN CONCERNS IN PREAMBULAR PARAGRAPHS. (AS OF 2100 JUNE 12 WE HAD NOT RECEIVED THE UPDATED TEXT.)

4. THE CONTACT GROUP PLUS ITALY LATER MET WITH BOSNIAN PERMREP SACIRBEY. SACIRBEY PROPOSED A NUMBER OF AMENDMENTS OF HIS OWN, THE MOST IMPORTANT OF WHICH, HE SAID, WAS LANGUAGE RECOGNIZING BOSNIA'S RIGHT TO SELF-DEFENSE AND SPECIFYING THAT SERB-CONTROLLED TERRITORY AROUND THE SAFE AREAS WILL HAVE TO BE DEMILITARIZED ALONG WITH THE SAFE AREAS THEMSELVES. THE UK AND FRANCE AGREED TO A NUMBER OF SACIRBEY'S AMENDMENTS, BUT NOT THOSE TWO POINTS. SACIRBEY EMPHASIZED THE IMPORTANCE OF USING THE RAPID REACTION FORCE TO OPEN THE MOUNT IGMAN ROAD INTO SARAJEVO. SACIRBEY ADDED THAT HIS GOVERNMENT WOULD OPPOSE ANY EFFORT TO ESTABLISH A NEW FRAMEWORK FOR THE PEACE

PROCESS THAT DOWN-GRADED THE IMPORTANCE OF THE CONTACT GROUP.

5. IN A THIRD CONTACT GROUP SESSION, AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT SAID THAT THE U.S. WAS CONCERNED ABOUT THE WAY THE TEXT ADDRESSED SAFE AREAS. SHE EMPHASIZED THAT WE HAD QUESTIONS ABOUT THE WAY IN WHICH THE NEW FORCE WOULD BE USED, THE RULES OF ENGAGEMENT UNDER WHICH IT WOULD OPERATE, WHETHER OR NOT ITS OPERATIONS WOULD BE ~~C O N F I D E N T I A~~L SECTION 02 OF 04 USUN NEW YORK 002358

-- FORCE MOVES AHEAD

BASED ON THE NEED TO OBTAIN THE CONSENT OF THE TWO PARTIES, AND ITS COST. THE UNITED STATES WOULD NOT BE ABLE TO SUPPORT A RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING DEPLOYMENT OF THE FORCE UNTIL THESE QUESTIONS WERE ANSWERED. SHE NOTED THAT THE CONCEPT CONTAINED IN THE SYG'S JUNE 9 LETTER SEEMED TO BE AT ODDS FROM THAT OF THE PARIS MEETING OF DEFENSE MINISTERS. THUS, THE IDEA BEHIND THE FORCE SEEMED TO BE SHIFTING, AND THERE WAS SERIOUS CONCERN IN WASHINGTON THAT THE CO-SPONSORS WERE TRYING TO MOVE TOWARDS A VOTE TOO QUICKLY. MERIMEE AND HANNAY DENIED THAT THE CONCEPT UNDER WHICH THE FORCE WOULD OPERATE HAD EVOLVED SINCE PARIS. THE ONLY THING HOLDING UP DEPLOYMENT WAS THE COUNCIL'S DECISION.

6. AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT URGED HANNAY AND MERIMEE TO DELAY GOING BLUE. EACH SAID THEY HAD FIRM INSTRUCTIONS TO PRESS AHEAD RAPIDLY. HANNAY SAID THAT THEY WOULD PUT THE RESOLUTION TO A VOTE AND "OTHER DELEGATIONS WOULD HAVE TAKE THEIR RESPONSIBILITIES." IF THE RESOLUTION WAS NOT ADOPTED HIS GOVERNMENT WOULD HAVE NO CHOICE BUT TO WITHDRAW ITS TROOPS FROM UNPROFOR. DURING PRIVATE DISCUSSIONS WITH AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT, HANNAY AND MERIMEE EMPHASIZED THAT THE RAPID REACTION FORCE WAS NOT THE BEGINNING OF A WITHDRAWAL FROM BOSNIA OR AN ATTEMPT TO MAINTAIN THE STATUS QUO. RATHER, MERIMEE SAID THAT IN HIS OPINION IT WAS THE "BEGINNING OF AN ESCALATION." WHILE UNPROFOR'S RULES OF ENGAGEMENT WOULD NOT CHANGE, THE FORCE WOULD EFFECT HOW THOSE RULES WERE IMPLEMENTED. IT WOULD BE EASIER FOR UNPROFOR TO ACT ROBUSTLY IF ITS TROOPS WERE BACKED BY TANKS AND HEAVY ARTILLERY THAN IF THEY WERE NOT. SIMILARLY, HANNAY AND MERIMEE DOWNPLAYED THE ROLE SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE AKASHI WILL PLAY IN DETERMINING HOW THE FORCE WILL BE USED. THEY ARGUED THAT, WHILE

AKASHI HAS PLAYED A MAJOR ROLE IN DECIDING FOR OR AGAINST THE USE OF AIR POWER, HE HAD PLAYED A MINOR ROLE IN DECISIONS REGARDING DAY-TO-DAY MILITARY OPERATIONS.

DISCUSSION DURING SECURITY COUNCIL'S INFORMAL MEETING

7. IN AN INFORMAL UNSC SESSION JUNE 12, MEMBERS DISCUSSED THE DRAFT TEXT. USYG ANNAN RESPONDED TO QUESTIONS POSED BY RUSSIAN PERMREP LAVROV. LAVROV EXPRESSED CONCERNS IN THE FOLLOWING AREAS: (1) USE OF THE RAPID REACTION FORCE OUTSIDE OF BOSNIA; (2) THE PROPOSED COMPOSITION OF THE RAPID REACTION FORCE; (3) A BREAKDOWN OF THE PRECISE NUMBERS OF UNPROFOR FORCES AND PERSONNEL; (4) THE TIMING OF THE DEPLOYMENT OF THE RAPID REACTION FORCE AND ITS RELATION TO THE CONCLUSION OF AGREEMENTS; (5) THE FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS OF THE FORCE; AND (6) THE CHAIN OF COMMAND AND DECISION-MAKING CHAIN THAT WOULD APPLY TO THE FORCE.

8. ANNAN STATED THAT THE UN CHAIN OF COMMAND WILL APPLY TO THE FORCE AND THAT UN COMMANDERS ON THE GROUND WILL HAVE OPERATIONAL CONTROL OF THE FORCE. THE FORCE WILL CONSIST OF MEMBERS FROM THE UK, CANADA, SPAIN, NEW ZEALAND, AND SLOVAKIA. ANNAN STRESSED THAT THE FORCE WILL OPERATE ON THE PRINCIPLE OF THE STRATEGIC CONSENT OF THE PARTIES INVOLVED AND WILL SEEK THE COOPERATION OF THE PARTIES. THE PURPOSE OF THE RAPID REACTION FORCE WOULD BE ENHANCED PROTECTION OF PEACEKEEPING FORCES, AND THE FORCE COMMANDER WOULD HAVE FLEXIBILITY IN DETERMINING HOW TO BEST ACHIEVE THIS. WHILE ACKNOWLEDGING THAT THE SUBJECT OF FINANCING THE FORCES WAS A DIFFICULT ONE, ANNAN DECLINED TO DISCUSS FIGURES, SAYING THAT THIS MUST BE WORKED OUT WITH THE DONOR COUNTRIES. IN RESPONSE TO BRITISH, AS WELL AS RUSSIAN CONCERNS, ANNAN SAID THAT THE FORCE COULD EVENTUALLY BE USED IN CROATIA BUT THAT THIS WOULD ENTAIL FURTHER DISCUSSION. THE UK ALSO REQUESTED CLARIFICATION OF THE CEILING ON THE NUMBER OF NEW FORCES, WHICH ANNAN STATED AS 15,000, A FIGURE WHICH ENCOMPASSES POTENTIAL REINFORCEMENTS FROM INDIVIDUAL CONTINGENTS.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

9. THE NON-ALIGNED CAUCUS PROPOSED A SERIES OF AMENDMENTS TO THE DRAFT RESOLUTION. THE UK AND FRANCE, STRESSING THE URGENCY OF TIMING, AGREED TO MEET WITH THE NAM CAUCUS LATER IN THE DAY.

10. THE CHINESE OBJECTED STRONGLY TO THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A RAPID REACTION FORCE ON THE GROUNDS THAT IT CONSTITUTED ENFORCEMENT RATHER THAN PEACEKEEPING AND, AS SUCH, FUNDAMENTALLY ALTERED THE NATURE OF UNPROFOR. CHINA STATED THAT, WHILE THE FOCUS OF UNPROFOR SHOULD BE ON CONFIDENCE BUILDING AND ON ACHIEVING A CEASEFIRE, THE CREATION OF A RAPID REACTION FORCE WOULD MERELY MAKE UNPROFOR A PARTY TO THE CONFLICT.

DISCUSSION AT TROOP CONTRIBUTOR'S MEETING

11. AT AN UNPROFOR TROOP CONTRIBUTOR'S MEETING ON JUNE 12, USYG ANNAN DISCUSSED THE IMPLICATION OF THE OFFER OF THE FRENCH, BRITISH, AND DUTCH TO CREATE A RAPID RESPONSE FORCE. HE ALSO ADDRESSED THE CONCERN OF MANY UNPROFOR CONTRIBUTORS THAT THEY BE PERMITTED TO PROVIDE WEAPON REINFORCEMENTS, ASSURING THEM THAT THIS WOULD BE POSSIBLE AND DIRECTING THEM TO CONTACT THE MILITARY ADVISOR'S OFFICE FOR BILATERAL TALKS TO ARRANGE THE DETAILS.

12. ANNAN RESPONDED TO QUESTIONS FROM CONTRIBUTOR COUNTRIES, MANY OF WHOM CALLED FOR RENEWED EFFORTS TO RESTART THE PEACE PROCESS AND EXPRESSED INTEREST IN THE SYG'S MENTION OF THE POSSIBILITY OF A "NEW POLITICAL INITIATIVE." USYG GHAREKHAN SAID THAT POLITICAL INITIATIVES SHOULD OCCUR SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE REINFORCEMENT OF UNPROFOR AND STRESSED THAT THIS WAS THE DOMAIN OF THE CONTACT GROUP.

13. MUSLIM BLOC COUNTRIES EXPRESSED CONCERN FOR THE PROTECTION OF SAFE AREAS AND QUESTIONED WHETHER THE RAPID REACTION FORCE WOULD TAKE ON THIS ROLE. ANNAN STATED THAT, WHILE IT WAS HOPED THAT THE PRESENCE OF THE FORCE WOULD DETER AGGRESSION, THE FORCE DID NOT HAVE A MANDATE TO PROTECT CIVILIANS. MANY COUNTRIES QUESTIONED THE COMPOSITION OF THE FORCE (FRENCH, BRITISH, DUTCH) AND CALLED FOR BROADER PARTICIPATION. ANNAN STATED THAT THE NEED FOR COHESIVE, SELF-SUFFICIENT FORCES, WHICH HAD TRAINED TOGETHER AND POSSESSED INTER-OPERABLE EQUIPMENT, HAD DICTATED THE FORCE COMPOSITION.

14. OTHER QUESTIONS CONCERNED WHY THE NEW FORCE WOULD NOT WEAR BLUE HELMETS AND DRIVE WHITE VEHICLES. ANNAN RESPONDED THAT GREEN VEHICLES WOULD OPERATE MORE EFFECTIVELY AT NIGHT (HE CITED SOMALIA AS A PRECEDENT) AND THAT THE DISTINCT APPEARANCE OF THE NEW FORCE WOULD

HAVE A POSITIVE PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT. ON THE ISSUE OF HOSTAGES, ANNAN STATED THAT EFFORTS WERE UNDERWAY TO SECURE THE RELEASE OF THE REMAINING HOSTAGES, BUT THAT THE CREATION OF THE RAPID REACTION FORCE HAD NO BEARING ON THIS PROCESS.

15. COMMENT: WE HAVE NO REASON TO DOUBT THAT THE BRITISH AND FRENCH DELEGATIONS HAVE RECEIVED FIRM INSTRUCTIONS TO PRESS FOR A VOTE BY JUNE 14. U.S. Suggested Changes to UK/French Draft Resolution

Redraft Operative paragraphs 6 and 7 as follows:

6. Demands that the parties respect fully the status of the safe areas and ensure UNPROFOR's unimpeded access to the safe areas, and in particular that they cease attacks on the safe areas and refrain from initiating military attacks therefrom;

7. Underlines the benefit of demilitarization of the safe areas and encourages the Secretary General to further intensify efforts aimed at reaching agreement with the parties on modalities and the territorial extent of such demilitarization; preambular e: we can accept everything up to "23 December 1994 (S/1995/8). We can not accept the last phrase.

U.S. Views on the changes proposed by the Russian Federation is as follows:

preambular i and j: We can not accept either.

operative 1: We can accept the compromise suggested by Ambassador Hannay. The paragraph should make clear that the Bosnian Serbs are responsible for blockading or detaining UNPROFOR personnel.

operative 6: Might be able to accept mentioning both the Bosnian Serbs and the Bosnian government.

operative 7 bis: We can not accept.

operative 7 terr: We do not want to go beyond "notes the SYG's report".

operative 8 bis: We believe this paragraph is not necessary.

REPORT TO CONGRESS OF POSSIBLE PROVISION OF ASSISTANCE TO THE UNITED NATIONS IN SUPPORT OF A PEACEKEEPING OPERATION

Pursuant to section 407(a)(5) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 1994-1995, P.L. 103-236, this report provides notification of the possibility that the United States may provide assistance to the United Nations in support of its peacekeeping operations in the former Yugoslavia.

As was briefed to certain members and staff on March 20 and April 21, the Administration has authorized the prepositioning in Croatia of 20 U.S. military communicators as part of a NATO group of 80 persons. Our senior military commanders recommended this action as an essential step to ensure that a communications network is in place to support NATO should a decision be made to assist in the withdrawal of the United Nations Protection Force (UNPROFOR) from Bosnia. The Department of Defense has informed us that the cost of sustaining these 20 communicators and associated equipment in Croatia for a period of six months will not exceed one million dollars. The cost of this prepositioning did not, therefore, pass the formal notification threshold. The U.S. expense for this deployment will be borne by the Department of Defense.

NATO planning also calls for a follow-on precautionary prepositioning in Croatia of about 1,500 communicators and support staff, of which it is anticipated the U.S. would provide approximately 460 persons. The purpose of this step is to complete the preparations for the communications network begun by the earlier group of 80 persons, to be ready to be used should the decision be made for NATO assistance in the withdrawal of UNPROFOR. We are discussing with our NATO allies how the full cost of the predeployment is to be shared. We are not seeking U.N. reimbursement. We anticipate that the costs to the U.S. government will exceed the notification threshold of $3 million.

The decision to deploy the 1500-person group has not yet been taken.

These precautionary steps do not represent any change in the U.S. position that UNPROFOR should remain in Bosnia. Prudent planning to ensure the efficient and safe withdrawal of UNPROFOR, if necessary, can help convince troop contributors to maintain their commitment to UNPROFOR. NATO's military authorities advise that this prepositioning is essential to maintain NATO command and control over a withdrawal operation.

I shall provide notification in a subsequent message of other possible U.S. steps to provide assistance to UN peacekeeping operations in the former Yugoslavia, in light of recent developments.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

REPORT TO CONGRESS OF POSSIBLE PROVISION OF ASSISTANCE TO THE UNITED NATIONS IN SUPPORT OF A PEACEKEEPING OPERATION

Pursuant to section 407 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 1994-1995, P.L. 103-236, this report provides notification of the possibility that the United States may provide assistance to the United Nations to support peacekeeping operations in the former Yugoslavia. This could include assistance in connection with either a withdrawal of UN related personnel from Bosnia, or an emergency extraction of UNPROFOR units from positions which have become untenable to positions elsewhere in the former Yugoslavia which are safe, or the establishment of a rapid reaction force.

The Administration has previously discussed possible assistance to UNPROFOR with certain members and staff of the designated Congressional committees in phone calls on March 20, April 21, and May 29. Staff were also briefed on March 31 and Members on May 19 and May 26. ~~On June 9~~, we are submitting a separate notification with respect to prepositioning of communicators and support staff in Croatia as a precautionary step in case withdrawal became necessary.

NATO planning for a possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR calls in addition for early action involving training and exercises, preparations for a possible deployment of NATO forces, and acquisition of communications equipment that would be NATO owned, but which could be used in a possible evacuation of UN forces. We are discussing with our NATO allies how the full cost of the predeployment is to be shared. We are not seeking reimbursement. We anticipate that the costs to the U.S. government will exceed the notification threshold of $3 million.

As was made clear in the briefings on May 19 and 26, and in the statement released after the May 29 meeting of the Contact Group, the Administration strongly supports UNPROFOR's continued operation in Bosnia. No final decision has been made on U.S. participation in a withdrawal, beyond the initial deployment of 20 personnel. The President informed our Allies last December, however, that the U.S. is prepared, in principle, to commit U.S. ground forces to a NATO operation to assist UN Peace Forces to withdraw from the former Yugoslavia if the UN decides that it can no longer perform its mission and requests NATO's help in withdrawing, and if the North Atlantic Council approves acting on the UN request. This action would also extend to helping in an emergency extraction of UN Peace Forces from positions which have become untenable to positions of safety within the former Yugoslavia.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Should an UNPROFOR withdrawal or partial withdrawal be necessary, a deployment in which the U.S. would provide a substantial number of troops and other assistance could be authorized. We are discussing with our NATO allies how this cost would be shared. We are also discussing within the Administration how the U.S. will fund its share of the operation.

We have also joined the Contact Group call for a reinforced UNPROFOR. While we do not contemplate any new U.S. role in UNPROFOR, we might join and assist in a NATO effort, if requested, to make UNPROFOR more robust and more defensible.

Our allies in NATO, and in particular France and Britain, which already have troops on the ground in Bosnia and some of whose peacekeeping forces have been taken hostage by the Bosnian Serbs, have proposed the creation of a rapid reaction force that would protect and support the peacekeepers. At this time, it is contemplated that the force would be authorized as part of UNPROFOR by the Security Council in a resolution. The U.S. is prepared to provide appropriate assistance and support, short of ground forces, for such a force. This could logically include, for example, close air support to assist in the defense of the force; transfer or loan of equipment, including attack helicopters, radars, communications gear and night vision equipment; airlift support to move forces and equipment to the theater of operation; and provision of intelligence to local commanders. The modalities for creating and deploying such a force are at a formative stage, and we are now discussing this matter within NATO and bilaterally. At this time, until we have determined the precise elements of the support and the terms on which it would be provided, a reliable estimate of its cost is not available.

The Administration intends to continue to consult with the Congress on assistance to UN peacekeeping efforts in the former Yugoslavia. As the situation develops, we will provide the Congress with more detailed information about U.S. assistance and support through consultations and the monthly reports submitted under section 407.

Executive Summary
OpPlan 40104 Withdrawal Financing Options

- NATO OpPlan 40104 costs in total about $2 billion for all participants. DOD's role constitutes about 50% of the operation (or $1 billion). With NATO/U.N. assessments, U.S. upfront costs could go as high as $1.4 billion.

- Of the four financing options outlined, the three U.S.-crafted options all have some form of cost sharing - either through a combination of NATO and UN assessments or by calling on Allies to pay our U.N. assessment for UNPROFOR. Allies and others in UN unlikely to be sympathetic to U.S. options to assess others (NATO/UN) to pay for U.S. participation. Rapid Reaction Force (RRF) funding outcome is a new factor; impact of RRF on options needs to be assessed.

- If a funding request to Congress is made, Congress likely will demand that offsets be presented. (Oklahoma City requests are offset). There are no known offsets at this time.

- U.S. costs are largely Defense O&M expenditures. Costs are estimated to occur both in FY 95 and FY 96; as time passes, more costs will shift to FY 96. Funding can be obtained:

  - for FY 95, by requesting an offset supplemental appropriations or by absorbing within existing resources (both very difficult in last quarter of FY 95);
  - for FY 96, through adjustments within FY 96 appropriations bills now pending in Congress. A Presidential decision to shift funds (offsets) would be required.

- Option I (HYBRID) is most financially advantageous to U.S. It shares costs between NATO Allies (including U.S.), which bear 2/3rds of costs, and other U.N. members, which bear 1/3rd of costs. The NATO costs are funded by levying NATO infrastructure/admin cost sharing on its members (heretofore never done for operations). U.S. and others reimbursed largely by other NATO allies. The net U.S. cost after reimbursements is $330 million.

- Option II (NATO minus UNPROFOR) is the next most financially advantageous to U.S. It splits costs between those units originally in UNPROFOR (U.N. pays these) and those NATO forces involved in withdrawal (NATO pays through its infrastructure/admin cost sharing formula). U.S. and others reimbursed for participating through NATO assessments. Net U.S. cost is $430 million.

- Option III (Allies Preferred Option) costs U.S. the most and NATO Allies pay significantly less than under other options. Most of withdrawal costs are funded either by U.N. assessments or by NATO participating countries with the U.S. paying most of its own way. Utilizes existing structures (U.N. assessments and NATO infrastructure/admin cost sharing). U.S. is reimbursed very little (only $160 million out of $1 billion). Net U.S. cost is $1,020 million .

- Option IV (Pay Your Own Way/Voluntary Fund) would require all participating nations to pay their own national costs (U.S. = $1 billion). There would be an agreement that others (NATO/other U.N.) would pay U.S. assessments to the UN for the cost of UNPROFOR including arrears. Net U.S. cost is $1,010 million.

FINANCING WITHDRAWAL ONLY IN THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA

June 16, 1995

Background

The United States has agreed in principle to participate in a NATO-led withdrawal from Bosnia should that be necessary. The cost of a withdrawal operation would be approximately $1.95 billion, with DOD paying roughly $1.0 billion (51%) in FY 1995 dollars for its prominent role in the operation. There has been considerable discussion both within the Administration and with NATO allies on financing arrangements for such an operation. Due to required planning, forward movement of the operation, and the long lead times to gain approval in NATO and the U.N. for a funding mechanism and budget authorization, timely action is required to ensure an approved funding mechanism that benefits the United States is in place. This paper discusses options for funding these costs, with varying results for net U.S. costs, once the U.S. has been reimbursed. The effect of the new Rapid Reaction Force (RRF) on these options, including costs and viability of options, has not been assessed pending resolution of the funding/operational questions of RRF.

Cost Options

The financing options are described on the following pages in terms of both gross U.S. costs (paid up front), net U.S. costs (after reimbursements from either NATO or U.N.), and the estimated supplemental request to Congress that would be needed. (See Table 1 attached for a detailed break-out of the costs for each of the options.) A total of nine options (including five analyzed by NATO) for paying FY 1995 Bosnia costs were considered. However, only four options, representative of major funding approaches and resulting in lower net U.S. costs, are evaluated in this paper. The four options considered are:

- Hybrid (NATO/non-NATO U.N. Cost Sharing). This is a U.S. originated option which would have to be introduced at NATO and the UN. The option shares costs between the U.S., NATO allies, and other U.N. member states and would have the least net cost to the United States.

- NATO minus UNPROFOR. This option is a U.S. government proposed variant of one originated by NATO. It would fund UNPROFOR through the U.N. budget during withdrawal, with NATO paying for all remaining costs, including transportation, of the additional forces required for withdrawal.

- Allies Preferred Option (Enhanced UNPROFOR & U.N. Share). This is the option preferred by our 15 NATO allies. NATO would only fund common costs of HQ and some commo/engineering. The U.N. would pay most of the in-theater costs, which would be funded through U.N. assessments. Participating troop countries would pay the majority of their own costs.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Pay-Your-Own-Way/Voluntary Contribution Fund. DOD would pay its $1.0 billion estimated share of the withdrawal operation without any reimbursements. State Department FY 1995 assessed U.N. peacekeeping costs for Bosnia (approximately $500 million) would be paid by other nations to a U.N. voluntary contribution fund.

Financing Budget Costs

Regardless of which option is chosen, the Administration will be required to present a request to Congress that identifies how the withdrawal plan will be paid for while remaining within budget ceilings. At present, Defense Comptroller has estimated DOD costs by fiscal year, assuming a six month operation starting July 1. FY 1995 costs are estimated at $530 million and FY 1996 costs are estimated at $470 million. This does not include any possible NATO assessment (which could add up to an additional $420 million).

There are no known offsets to cover these costs in FY 95 or in FY 96. A Presidential decision would be required to identify the necessary offsets. Offsets required for FY 1995 would be exceedingly difficult as we are entering the fourth quarter and most FY 1995 appropriations have already been spent. Final resolution of the FY 1995 supplemental/rescission bill, which the President vetoed, is also a factor.

For any proposal presented to the Hill, Congress likely will also want to know the nature of the reimbursement arrangements (from either NATO or the UN) to insure that if it credits reimbursements against the budgetary costs, there is a reasonable chance that these reimbursements will be made as projected. Given past experience, should there be any costs incurred in FY 95, reimbursements would only be made after FY 95 has ended.

I. Hybrid (NATO/non-NATO U.N. Cost Sharing) Option

U.S. Gross Cost: $1,330 m. Net Cost: $330 m. Supplemental Request: $1,330 m.

Description: A contract would be negotiated between NATO and the U.N. whereby NATO, in charge of all forces, provides all withdrawal services and initially pays for them. In return, the U.N. would assess other non-NATO nations to help pay for NATO withdrawal costs.

Financing Mechanism: The U.N. would establish a separate fund to receive contributions; this fund would help pay for withdrawal. The U.N. would then assess all its non-NATO member states for their normal share (approx. 32%, or $620 million) of the $1.95 billion withdrawal operation. These assessments would be used by the U.N. to fund the costs of withdrawing non-NATO UNPROFOR forces to their home countries as well as U.N. administrative and support costs estimated at $200 million. Any remaining funds (approx. $420 million) would be given to NATO to reimburse NATO members' costs. NATO would pay the remaining 68% of the $1.95 billion withdrawal cost (i.e. roughly $1,330 million) by assessing each of its members for their share based on NATO administrative cost assessed rates.

U.S. Gross Costs: DOD would incur up front roughly $1.0 billion in costs for withdrawal. It would also pay up front approximately $320 million in new NATO assessments (i.e. 24% of $1,330 million). The State Department would incur a nominal, new U.N. assessment of roughly $10 million to cover UNPROFOR soldier and equipment deployment flights to Germany.

Reimbursements: The U.N. would reimburse NATO with the resources remaining in the contribution fund. In turn, NATO would have to reimburse its member states out of the U.N. reimbursement as well as out of its own assessments. However, NATO does not currently have any reimbursement mechanism, and some argue the likelihood of NATO reimbursement is uncertain. DOD would expect to be reimbursed its entire initial cost of operations (i.e. deployment and logistics costs of $1.0 billion incurred before the U.N. or NATO has raised funds from its assessments) from these resources.

Supplemental Request: The new supplemental request to Congress would be $1,330 million. DOD's share would be $1,320 million ($1,000 million withdrawal + $320 million NATO Assessment). State Department's share would be $10 million. The supplemental request would in principle be offset by later reimbursements (approximately $1.0 billion). Any reimbursements would be deposited with Treasury. If offset by reimbursements, the net supplemental request would equal $330 million.

Advantages

- Lowest net U.S. cost; U.S. taxpayer pays less than in other options;
  -- Congress likely to be more receptive to lower costs.
- Requires fewer offsets for supplemental request.
- Spreads some burden of withdrawal costs to non-NATO U.N. members providing greater equity between U.S., other NATO, and other U.N. members.

Disadvantages

- Might be difficult to gain agreement from the U.N. and NATO to implement for several reasons:
  1. U.N. asked to pay for part of NATO's costs but has no command over forces since this is a NATO "rescue" of U.N. peacekeepers.
  2. Dual funding mechanisms between U.N. and NATO have never been used before. Would require a level of cooperation and coordination between U.N. and NATO that has never been attempted. Process to reach agreement likely to be time consuming and difficult with certain NATO allies.
  3. NATO allies costs greater than in other options (increases NATO assessment).
  4. Russians and others may balk at underwriting NATO through U.N. assessments.
- Significant senior White House and policy official involvement would likely be required to secure NATO allies and U.N. agreement.
- Reimbursements from NATO may be very slow or may not be made.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

II. NATO Minus UNPROFOR Option

U.S Gross Cost: $1,430 m. Net Cost: $430 m. Supplemental Request: $1,430 m.

Description: NATO would provide and pay all costs for the new troops and equipment needed for withdrawal. The U.N. would retain budgetary control over all UNPROFOR forces, including those of NATO member states, for the six month period they are being drawn down.

Financing Mechanism: The U.N. would fund all costs (approximately $210 million) incurred by UNPROFOR forces (e.g. logistics) during withdrawal. It would do so partially out of its current UNPROFOR budget. For the remainder, the U.N. would assess its member states to redeploy UNPROFOR troops and equipment back to their home countries. NATO would fund the costs (e.g. deployment/ redeployment, basic logistics) of all forces used for withdrawal that were not originally in UNPROFOR. It would do so by assessing NATO member states for their share of the operation, which is anticipated to total approximately $1,740 million.

U.S. Gross Costs: DOD would pay up front roughly $1.0 billion for withdrawal. It would also pay up front approximately $420 million in new NATO assessments (i.e. 24% of $1,740 million) as part of its share to cover all NATO costs. The State Department would incur a nominal, new U.N. assessment of roughly $10 million to cover UNPROFOR soldier and equipment deployment flights to Germany.

Reimbursements: There would be no reimbursements from the U.N. NATO would reimburse its member states out of its own assessments. However, NATO does not currently have any reimbursement mechanism and some argue the likelihood of NATO reimbursement is uncertain. Nonetheless, DOD would expect to be reimbursed its entire initial cost of operations (approx. $1.0 billion).

Supplemental Request: The new supplemental request to Congress would be $1,430 million. DOD's share would be $1,420 million ($1,000 million withdrawal + $420 million NATO Assessment). State's share would be $10 million. The supplemental request might be offset by reimbursements (approx. $1.0 billion). Any reimbursements would be deposited with Treasury. If fully offset by reimbursements, the net supplemental request would equal $430 million.

Advantages

- Fairly simple division of responsibility between U.N. and NATO.
- A lower net cost for the U.S. (though higher than the Hybrid Option).
- NATO allies might accept this option as a fallback from its preferred option.
  -- However, NATO allies might not agree to NATO paying transportation costs, preferring instead that nations pay their own transport costs.

Disadvantages

- Higher net U.S. costs than Hybrid option.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- U.S. share of NATO assessment would increase if any NATO nation makes a political decision to opt out of participating in withdrawal, since assessment shares are based upon the number of nations participating in operations.
- Reimbursements from NATO would require new financial procedures to be created and may be very slow or may not be made.

III. Allies Preferred Option (Enhanced UNPROFOR & U.N. Share)

U.S. Gross Cost: $1,180 m. Net Cost: $1,020 m. Supplemental Request: $1,180 m.

Description: This is the preferred option of our 15 NATO allies because it places as much of the withdrawal costs as possible on the U.N. and U.S. (as opposed to NATO) budgets. The U.N. would fund some of the withdrawal costs of NATO. Specifically, it would maintain control of all UNPROFOR forces (as in NATO minus U.N. Option above) and it would fund the basic logistics costs of all troops (NATO and UNPROFOR) on the ground in Bosnia. Nations sending troops for the withdrawal operation would pay the majority of costs (e.g. deployment / redeployment, logistics outside of Bosnia, et al.). NATO would fund only the common costs of headquarters and communications / engineering requirements.

Financing Mechanism: The U.N. would increase the size of the UNPROFOR budget by the equivalent of 6,000 additional troops that had been authorized in the original mandate (although no troops would actually be added to UNPROFOR). The U.N. would use the increased funds to pay partially the costs incurred by UNPROFOR forces during withdrawal (as in NATO Minus U.N. Option above). It would also assess its member states for the costs of providing logistics to the withdrawal force in Bosnia. The participating nations would pay those costs not covered by the U.N. or NATO (for common costs of approx. $110 million) out of their own treasuries. NATO would assess its member states to cover its common costs.

U.S. Gross Costs: DOD would pay up front roughly $1.0 billion for withdrawal. It would also pay up front approximately $30 million in new NATO assessments for common costs. The State Department would incur a new U.N. assessment of approximately $150 million. These costs total $1,180 million.

Reimbursements: Both the U.N. and NATO would owe DOD reimbursements totaling approximately $160 million.

Supplemental Request: The new supplemental request to Congress would be $1,180 million. DOD's share would be $1,030 million ($1,000 million withdrawal + $30 NATO Assessments). State Department's share would be $150. The supplemental request might be offset by reimbursements (approx. $160 million). Any reimbursements would be deposited with Treasury. If offset by reimbursements, the net supplemental request would equal $1,020 million.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Advantages

- NATO allies strongly support: they pay much lower U.N. assessments than NATO assessments -- e.g. for U.K., U.N. assessment is 3 times lower than for NATO).
- Obviates the need for agreement on a NATO assessments and reimbursement mechanism.

Disadvantages

- Highest net U.S. costs (more than double the other options) of almost all options.
- U.S. pays disproportionately vis-a-vis other NATO allies because of the sizeable U.S. role in the withdrawal.
- Congress likely to balk at this arrangement.
- Requires large offsets (around $1 billion) in agency budgets, displacing other high priority programs.
    -- Offsets may not be available this late in the fiscal year.

IV. Pay-Your-Own-Way/Voluntary Contribution Fund Option

U.S. Gross Cost: $1,010 m. Net Cost $1,010 m. Supplemental Request: $1,010 m.

Description: Each nation would pay its own costs in executing the withdrawal operation. NATO member troops currently in UNPROFOR would revert back to their respective nations' militaries. Non-NATO members of UNPROFOR would remain under UNPROFOR while being drawn down.

Financing Mechanism: Each nation would pay its own costs from its own treasury. The U.N. would cover the costs of extracting non-NATO UNPROFOR troops from within the existing UNPROFOR budget. Because the U.S. would be paying the majority of withdrawal costs (i.e. $1.0 of $1.95 billion) while representing just over one third of all forces in theater (including UNPROFOR troops being withdrawn), our NATO allies and others (Japan, Saudi Arabia, et al.) would agree to pay $500 million (or more depending upon Rapid Reaction Force funding outcome) to a special U.N. voluntary fund. This fund would be used to pay the FY 1995 State Department U.N. assessment arrearages for UNPROFOR. As a practical matter, this option shifts the burden of U.S. international peacekeeping obligations in Bosnia from the State Department budget to the Defense budget. This occurs because DOD bears costs, that otherwise would be reimbursed, to permit the U.S. to solicit funds to cover the existing UNPROFOR assessment.

U.S. Gross Costs: DOD would pay up front roughly $1.0 billion for withdrawal. State would have a small $10 million cost for UN assessments.

Reimbursements: There would be none.

Supplemental Request: The new supplemental request to Congress for DOD's costs would be $1 billion (gross and net). State would have a small $10 million cost for UN assessments. There would be no offseting reimbursements.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Advantages

- Would eliminate U.S. UNPROFOR arrears.
- Helps maintain U.N. solvency.

Disadvantages

- Would have significantly higher U.S. net costs because there would be no reimbursements to the U.S.
- Would be difficult to sell to the Congress, since U.S. covers the majority of the costs of the withdrawal effort.
- The other countries would have to commit in advance to paying certain amounts to the U.N. fund to insure that commitments exist to cover the $500+ million. This would require active solicitation of funds along the Desert Storm model. Most other countries are not likely to make contributions.
- Would be strongly resisted by DoD and most likely Congress as an attempt, albeit indirect, to cover U.N. assessments in the DoD budget by precluding a supplemental request for State to pay its U.N. assessment arrearages.
- Some believe this raises questions of H.R. 7 'crediting' for U.N. assessments that the Administration opposed.

ISSUE PAPER

Issue: This paper provides a rough order of magnitude assessment of the current USG support provided to the UN in support of UNSCRs in the Former-Yugoslavia. In addition, we provide a brief assessment of the potential impact of USG support for the Rapid Reaction Force authorized by the UN Security Council on 16 June.

DOD OUTLAYS (Reimbursed & Non-reimbursed)

This section outlines the cost of USG contributions to the operation of UNPROFOR and associated UN Security Council Resolutions governing the operations in and around the former-Yugoslavia. In general, the US pays approximately $300 million* per year in support of the operations ($297 million in FY 94, $317 million in FY 95 based on FY 94 level of operations, and $363 million in FY 96 based upon current FY 95 outlays). Reimbursement for these costs is negligible, $1.0 million in FY 94. The cost of the USG's 30.4% peacekeeping assessment for support of UNPROFOR must be added to this figure for a comprehensive cost accounting. Cost of UNPROFOR in FY 94 was $1.6 billion resulting in a US assessment of approximately $530 million. Total cost is therefore estimated to be $847 million for FY 95. others?

* This figure of $300 million for USG support includes our participation in DENY FLIGHT, SHARP GUARD, humanitarian airlift, ABLE SENTRY and PROVIDE PROMISE FORWARD. ?

DOD IMPACT

For FY 95 any significant increase in the costs of US operations in the former-Yugoslavia as a result of our support for the RRF would require either a supplemental or reprogramming. In the current political atmosphere, it is highly unlikely we could obtain any supplemental that would not require offsets. Limited assistance to the RRF in FY 95 could probably be absorbed in current O&M levels. DOD

There are no funds in the FY 96 budget for UNPROFOR operations. SECDEF has stated that any additional O&M funds provided by Congress would be used to pay for contingency operations. Baseline contingency operation costs for FY 96 are $1.2 billion. Any significant additional costs for the RRF or 40104 would require a supplemental or reprogramming. Again it is highly unlikely we could obtain any supplemental funding that did not require offsets.

Impact of Funding Crisis on UN Ability to Operate

-- The Rapid Reaction Force has brought to a head the peacekeeping funding problem. Even without this additional strain on UN budgets, we were concerned about the potential for UN insolvency by next summer. Adding more than $800 million to the UN tab would make a financial crisis more likely.

-- The danger will be most acute next summer, but there is some chance of a financial crisis in October when the UN regular budget will be $170 million overdrawn. An overdraft of about $50 million in October is normal, and usually covered by borrowing from peacekeeping until we pay our assessment. This year our non-payment of peacekeeping assessments may leave the PK account too poor to cover the UN's cash flow needs.

-- If the RRF is deployed as a UN funded operation, with the UN providing the lift and accommodations, but not reimbursing troop contributors or governments, we would estimate a UN out of pocket cost of about $180 million for the first six months without the standby French force and about $230 million if it deploys. While this cash flow requirement would greatly increase the risk of an early insolvency, our best guess is that UN peacekeeping would still be able to operate into 1996. This does not take into account the unknown cost of other ongoing deployments undertaken by the UN to bring UNPROFOR up to its authorized troop strength.

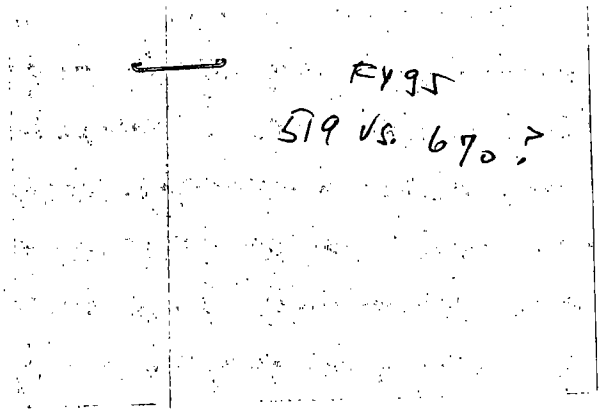
-- The UN owes commercial creditors and governments about $1 billion for services and supplies and governments about $700 million for troop reimbursements and equipment depreciation. When 1995 equipment depreciation costs are added in early 1996 the total owed for peacekeeping will jump to about $2.5 billion.

-- The UN stays afloat by paying its most urgent bills first, and letting governments wait for reimbursement. In the past most UN peacekeeping debts were to member states. An increased reliance on more cost-effective commercial contractors and a debt overhang that will exceed $2.5 billion dollars in early 1996 has left the UN vulnerable to a "run on the bank scenario" if cash flows dries up. If that happens, all operations, including those in the Middle East and Cyprus, could be affected. Some troops could be stranded in the field.

-- Last fall we received $1.2 billion in supplemental and FY-95 money for peacekeeping. Our remittances to the UN were used to make long-overdue payments to troop contributing countries. Prior to our payment several countries had threatened to withdraw their troops from existing operations. This problem will likely resurface in the fall.

-- Although it is not an imminent problem, we could loose our vote in the General Assembly if our arrears reach the amount of our assessments for the preceding two years.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY



CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Peacekeeping Funding Crisis - Congressional Strategy

-- By the end of FY-95 we will owe the UN $670 million for peacekeeping; more if the RRF is an assessed operation.

-- State has requested $445 million for peacekeeping in FY-96. This included only $211 million for UNPROFOR; enough for six months. DoD requested $65 million to pay for UNMIH (Haiti) and UNPREDEP (Macedonia); they will not get this money. We have no money budgeted for MINURSO (Western Sahara), which was to have ended in FY-95. By the end of FY-96 we may owe the UN more than $1 billion for peacekeeping.

-- There is bipartisan concern, approaching outrage, on the Hill about our willingness to incur large obligations for peacekeeping without adequate consultation. The Gilman, Livingston, Rogers letter, the notification provisions of the FY 94-95 State authorization bill, and the peacekeeping provisions of HR 7, S 5 and this years funding legislation for State clearly demonstrate Congress's ire.

-- Our request this year for a $672 million emergency supplemental for peacekeeping was rejected. At typical 150 account foreign aid outlay rates it would require several billion dollars in program cuts to offset this request.

-- We tried last year to establish a contingency fund for peacekeeping to get around problems created by not knowing when the budgets are submitted what crises will occur. Congress was not receptive.

-- Recently, however, Rogers, Domenici, Kassebaum, Hamilton and a few others have signaled that they might be open to discussing the funding problem. Any solution would require closer consultations with Congress on peacekeeping.

-- Monthly briefings have informed staff, but there is a need for face to face exchanges between senior Administration officials and key Members of Congress.

-- The Peacekeeping Core Group has endorsed a State proposal to offer Congress regular consultations between senior Administration officials and key Congressional leaders in exchange for the creation of an ERMA like contingency fund for peacekeeping.

-- Our first opportunity for such consultation may come next week. Unfortunately, it will involve MINURSO (Western Sahara), an operation viewed by many on the Hill as fundamentally flawed and by some as a prime example of UN mismanagement. Congress even passed a recision of MINURSO's remaining FY-95 funds, but the President vetoed the bill. Since it was due to close in 1995 we have no money budget for FY-96. If we extend MINURSO without adequate consultation with Congress and a plan for how we will pay, we can expect a Congressional reaction similar to that we saw last week.

-- We will also need to explain our decision on funding the RRF.

Executive Summary
OpPlan 40104 Withdrawal Financing Options

- NATO OpPlan 40104 costs in total about $2 billion for all participants. DOD's role constitutes about 50% of the operation (or $1 billion). With NATO/U.N. assessments, U.S. upfront costs could go as high as $1.4 billion.

- Of the four financing options outlined, the three U.S.-crafted options all have some form of cost sharing - either through a combination of NATO and UN assessments or by calling on Allies to pay our U.N. assessment for UNPROFOR. Allies and others in UN unlikely to be sympathetic to U.S. options to assess others (NATO/UN) to pay for U.S. participation. Rapid Reaction Force (RRF) funding outcome is a new factor; impact of RRF on options needs to be assessed.

- If a funding request to Congress is made, Congress likely will demand that offsets be presented. (Oklahoma City requests are offset). There are no known offsets at this time.

- U.S. costs are largely Defense O&M expenditures. Costs are estimated to occur both in FY 95 and FY 96; as time passes, more costs will shift to FY 96. Funding can be obtained:

  - for FY 95, by requesting an offset supplemental appropriations or by absorbing within existing resources (both very difficult in last quarter of FY 95);
  - for FY 96, through adjustments within FY 96 appropriations bills now pending in Congress. A Presidential decision to shift funds (offsets) would be required.

- Option I (HYBRID) is most financially advantageous to U.S. It shares costs between NATO Allies (including U.S.), which bear 2/3rds of costs, and other U.N. members, which bear 1/3rd of costs. The NATO costs are funded by levying NATO infrastructure/admin cost sharing on its members (heretofore never done for operations). U.S. and others reimbursed largely by other NATO allies. The net U.S. cost after reimbursements is $330 million.

- Option II (NATO minus UNPROFOR) is the next most financially advantageous to U.S. It splits costs between those units originally in UNPROFOR (U.N. pays these) and those NATO forces involved in withdrawal (NATO pays through its infrastructure/admin cost sharing formula). U.S. and others reimbursed for participating through NATO assessments. Net U.S. cost is $430 million.

- Option III (Allies Preferred Option) costs U.S. the most and NATO Allies pay significantly less than under other options. Most of withdrawal costs are funded either by U.N. assessments or by NATO participating countries with the U.S. paying most of its own way. Utilizes existing structures (U.N. assessments and NATO infrastructure/admin cost sharing). U.S. is reimbursed very little (only $160 million out of $1 billion). Net U.S. cost is $1,020 million .

- Option IV (Pay Your Own Way/Voluntary Fund) would require all participating nations to pay their own national costs (U.S. = $1 billion). There would be an agreement that others (NATO/other U.N.) would pay U.S. assessments to the UN for the cost of UNPROFOR including arrears. Net U.S. cost is $1,010 million.

FINANCING WITHDRAWAL ONLY IN THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA

June 16, 1995

Background

The United States has agreed in principle to participate in a NATO-led withdrawal from Bosnia should that be necessary. The cost of a withdrawal operation would be approximately $1.95 billion, with DOD paying roughly $1.0 billion (51%) in FY 1995 dollars for its prominent role in the operation. There has been considerable discussion both within the Administration and with NATO allies on financing arrangements for such an operation. Due to required planning, forward movement of the operation, and the long lead times to gain approval in NATO and the U.N. for a funding mechanism and budget authorization, timely action is required to ensure an approved funding mechanism that benefits the United States is in place. This paper discusses options for funding these costs, with varying results for net U.S. costs, once the U.S. has been reimbursed. The effect of the new Rapid Reaction Force (RRF) on these options, including costs and viability of options, has not been assessed pending resolution of the funding/operational questions of RRF.

Cost Options

The financing options are described on the following pages in terms of both gross U.S. costs (paid up front), net U.S. costs (after reimbursements from either NATO or U.N.), and the estimated supplemental request to Congress that would be needed. (See Table 1 attached for a detailed break-out of the costs for each of the options.) A total of nine options (including five analyzed by NATO) for paying FY 1995 Bosnia costs were considered. However, only four options, representative of major funding approaches and resulting in lower net U.S. costs, are evaluated in this paper. The four options considered are:

- Hybrid (NATO/non-NATO U.N. Cost Sharing). This is a U.S. originated option which would have to be introduced at NATO and the UN. The option shares costs between the U.S., NATO allies, and other U.N. member states and would have the least net cost to the United States.

- NATO minus UNPROFOR. This option is a U.S. government proposed variant of one originated by NATO. It would fund UNPROFOR through the U.N. budget during withdrawal, with NATO paying for all remaining costs, including transportation, of the additional forces required for withdrawal.

- Allies Preferred Option (Enhanced UNPROFOR & U.N. Share). This is the option preferred by our 15 NATO allies. NATO would only fund common costs of HQ and some commo/engineering. The U.N. would pay most of the in-theater costs, which would be funded through U.N. assessments. Participating troop countries would pay the majority of their own costs.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Pay-Your-Own-Way/Voluntary Contribution Fund. DOD would pay its $1.0 billion estimated share of the withdrawal operation without any reimbursements. State Department FY 1995 assessed U.N. peacekeeping costs for Bosnia (approximately $500 million) would be paid by other nations to a U.N. voluntary contribution fund.

Financing Budget Costs

Regardless of which option is chosen, the Administration will be required to present a request to Congress that identifies how the withdrawal plan will be paid for while remaining within budget ceilings. At present, Defense Comptroller has estimated DOD costs by fiscal year, assuming a six month operation starting July 1. FY 1995 costs are estimated at $530 million and FY 1996 costs are estimated at $470 million. This does not include any possible NATO assessment (which could add up to an additional $420 million).

There are no known offsets to cover these costs in FY 95 or in FY 96. A Presidential decision would be required to identify the necessary offsets. Offsets required for FY 1995 would be exceedingly difficult as we are entering the fourth quarter and most FY 1995 appropriations have already been spent. Final resolution of the FY 1995 supplemental/rescission bill, which the President vetoed, is also a factor.

For any proposal presented to the Hill, Congress likely will also want to know the nature of the reimbursement arrangements (from either NATO or the UN) to insure that if it credits reimbursements against the budgetary costs, there is a reasonable chance that these reimbursements will be made as projected. Given past experience, should there be any costs incurred in FY 95, reimbursements would only be made after FY 95 has ended.

I. Hybrid (NATO/non-NATO U.N. Cost Sharing) Option

U.S. Gross Cost: $1,330 m. Net Cost: $330 m. Supplemental Request: $1,330 m.

Description: A contract would be negotiated between NATO and the U.N. whereby NATO, in charge of all forces, provides all withdrawal services and initially pays for them. In return, the U.N. would assess other non-NATO nations to help pay for NATO withdrawal costs.

Financing Mechanism: The U.N. would establish a separate fund to receive contributions; this fund would help pay for withdrawal. The U.N. would then assess all its non-NATO member states for their normal share (approx. 32%, or $620 million) of the $1.95 billion withdrawal operation. These assessments would be used by the U.N. to fund the costs of withdrawing non-NATO UNPROFOR forces to their home countries as well as U.N. administrative and support costs estimated at $200 million. Any remaining funds (approx. $420 million) would be given to NATO to reimburse NATO members' costs. NATO would pay the remaining 68% of the $1.95 billion withdrawal cost (i.e. roughly $1,330 million) by assessing each of its members for their share based on NATO administrative cost assessed rates.

U.S. Gross Costs: DOD would incur up front roughly $1.0 billion in costs for withdrawal. It would also pay up front approximately $320 million in new NATO assessments (i.e. 24% of $1,330 million). The State Department would incur a nominal, new U.N. assessment of roughly $10 million to cover UNPROFOR soldier and equipment deployment flights to Germany.

Reimbursements: The U.N. would reimburse NATO with the resources remaining in the contribution fund. In turn, NATO would have to reimburse its member states out of the U.N. reimbursement as well as out of its own assessments. However, NATO does not currently have any reimbursement mechanism, and some argue the likelihood of NATO reimbursement is uncertain. DOD would expect to be reimbursed its entire initial cost of operations (i.e. deployment and logistics costs of $1.0 billion incurred before the U.N. or NATO has raised funds from its assessments) from these resources.

Supplemental Request: The new supplemental request to Congress would be $1,330 million. DOD's share would be $1,320 million ($1,000 million withdrawal + $320 million NATO Assessment). State Department's share would be $10 million. The supplemental request would in principle be offset by later reimbursements (approximately $1.0 billion). Any reimbursements would be deposited with Treasury. If offset by reimbursements, the net supplemental request would equal $330 million.

Advantages

- Lowest net U.S. cost; U.S. taxpayer pays less than in other options;
  -- Congress likely to be more receptive to lower costs.
- Requires fewer offsets for supplemental request.
- Spreads some burden of withdrawal costs to non-NATO U.N. members providing greater equity between U.S., other NATO, and other U.N. members.

Disadvantages

- Might be difficult to gain agreement from the U.N. and NATO to implement for several reasons:
  1. U.N. asked to pay for part of NATO's costs but has no command over forces since this is a NATO "rescue" of U.N. peacekeepers.
  2. Dual funding mechanisms between U.N. and NATO have never been used before. Would require a level of cooperation and coordination between U.N. and NATO that has never been attempted. Process to reach agreement likely to be time consuming and difficult with certain NATO allies.
  3. NATO allies costs greater than in other options (increases NATO assessment).
  4. Russians and others may balk at underwriting NATO through U.N. assessments.
- Significant senior White House and policy official involvement would likely be required to secure NATO allies and U.N. agreement.
- Reimbursements from NATO may be very slow or may not be made.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

II. NATO Minus UNPROFOR Option

U.S Gross Cost: $1,430 m. Net Cost: $430 m. Supplemental Request: $1,430 m.

Description: NATO would provide and pay all costs for the new troops and equipment needed for withdrawal. The U.N. would retain budgetary control over all UNPROFOR forces, including those of NATO member states, for the six month period they are being drawn down.

Financing Mechanism: The U.N. would fund all costs (approximately $210 million) incurred by UNPROFOR forces (e.g. logistics) during withdrawal. It would do so partially out of its current UNPROFOR budget. For the remainder, the U.N. would assess its member states to redeploy UNPROFOR troops and equipment back to their home countries. NATO would fund the costs (e.g. deployment/ redeployment, basic logistics) of all forces used for withdrawal that were not originally in UNPROFOR. It would do so by assessing NATO member states for their share of the operation, which is anticipated to total approximately $1,740 million.

U.S. Gross Costs: DOD would pay up front roughly $1.0 billion for withdrawal. It would also pay up front approximately $420 million in new NATO assessments (i.e. 24% of $1,740 million) as part of its share to cover all NATO costs. The State Department would incur a nominal, new U.N. assessment of roughly $10 million to cover UNPROFOR soldier and equipment deployment flights to Germany.

Reimbursements: There would be no reimbursements from the U.N. NATO would reimburse its member states out of its own assessments. However, NATO does not currently have any reimbursement mechanism and some argue the likelihood of NATO reimbursement is uncertain. Nonetheless, DOD would expect to be reimbursed its entire initial cost of operations (approx. $1.0 billion).

Supplemental Request: The new supplemental request to Congress would be $1,430 million. DOD's share would be $1,420 million ($1,000 million withdrawal + $420 million NATO Assessment). State's share would be $10 million. The supplemental request might be offset by reimbursements (approx. $1.0 billion). Any reimbursements would be deposited with Treasury. If fully offset by reimbursements, the net supplemental request would equal $430 million.

Advantages

- Fairly simple division of responsibility between U.N. and NATO.
- A lower net cost for the U.S. (though higher than the Hybrid Option).
- NATO allies might accept this option as a fallback from its preferred option.
  -- However, NATO allies might not agree to NATO paying transportation costs, preferring instead that nations pay their own transport costs.

Disadvantages

- Higher net U.S. costs than Hybrid option.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Advantages

- NATO allies strongly support: they pay much lower U.N. assessments than NATO assessments -- e.g. for U.K., U.N. assessment is 3 times lower than for NATO).
- Obviates the need for agreement on a NATO assessments and reimbursement mechanism.

Disadvantages

- Highest net U.S. costs (more than double the other options) of almost all options.
- U.S. pays disproportionately vis-a-vis other NATO allies because of the sizeable U.S. role in the withdrawal.
- Congress likely to balk at this arrangement.
- Requires large offsets (around $1 billion) in agency budgets, displacing other high priority programs.
    -- Offsets may not be available this late in the fiscal year.

IV. Pay-Your-Own-Way/Voluntary Contribution Fund Option

U.S. Gross Cost: $1,010 m. Net Cost $1,010 m. Supplemental Request: $1,010 m.

Description: Each nation would pay its own costs in executing the withdrawal operation. NATO member troops currently in UNPROFOR would revert back to their respective nations' militaries. Non-NATO members of UNPROFOR would remain under UNPROFOR while being drawn down.

Financing Mechanism: Each nation would pay its own costs from its own treasury. The U.N. would cover the costs of extracting non-NATO UNPROFOR troops from within the existing UNPROFOR budget. Because the U.S. would be paying the majority of withdrawal costs (i.e. $1.0 of $1.95 billion) while representing just over one third of all forces in theater (including UNPROFOR troops being withdrawn), our NATO allies and others (Japan, Saudi Arabia, et al.) would agree to pay $500 million (or more depending upon Rapid Reaction Force funding outcome) to a special U.N. voluntary fund. This fund would be used to pay the FY 1995 State Department U.N. assessment arrearages for UNPROFOR. As a practical matter, this option shifts the burden of U.S. international peacekeeping obligations in Bosnia from the State Department budget to the Defense budget. This occurs because DOD bears costs, that otherwise would be reimbursed, to permit the U.S. to solicit funds to cover the existing UNPROFOR assessment.

U.S. Gross Costs: DOD would pay up front roughly $1.0 billion for withdrawal. State would have a small $10 million cost for UN assessments.

Reimbursements: There would be none.

Supplemental Request: The new supplemental request to Congress for DOD's costs would be $1 billion (gross and net). State would have a small $10 million cost for UN assessments. There would be no offseting reimbursements.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Advantages

- Would eliminate U.S. UNPROFOR arrears.
- Helps maintain U.N. solvency.

Disadvantages

- Would have significantly higher U.S. net costs because there would be no reimbursements to the U.S.
- Would be difficult to sell to the Congress, since U.S. covers the majority of the costs of the withdrawal effort.
- The other countries would have to commit in advance to paying certain amounts to the U.N. fund to insure that commitments exist to cover the $500+ million. This would require active solicitation of funds along the Desert Storm model. Most other countries are not likely to make contributions.
- Would be strongly resisted by DoD and most likely Congress as an attempt, albeit indirect, to cover U.N. assessments in the DoD budget by precluding a supplemental request for State to pay its U.N. assessment arrearages.
- Some believe this raises questions of H.R. 7 'crediting' for U.N. assessments that the Administration opposed.

ISSUE PAPER

Issue: This paper provides a rough order of magnitude assessment of the current USG support provided to the UN in support of UNSCRs in the Former-Yugoslavia. In addition, we provide a brief assessment of the potential impact of USG support for the Rapid Reaction Force authorized by the UN Security Council on 16 June.

DOD OUTLAYS (Reimbursed & Non-reimbursed)

This section outlines the cost of USG contributions to the operation of UNPROFOR and associated UN Security Council Resolutions governing the operations in and around the former-Yugoslavia. In general, the US pays approximately $300 million* per year in support of the operations ($297 million in FY 94, $317 million in FY 95 based on FY 94 level of operations, and $363 million in FY 96 based upon current FY 95 outlays). Reimbursement for these costs is negligible, $1.0 million in FY 94. The cost of the USG's 30.4% peacekeeping assessment for support of UNPROFOR must be added to this figure for a comprehensive cost accounting. Cost of UNPROFOR in FY 94 was $1.6 billion resulting in a US assessment of approximately $530 million. Total cost is therefore estimated to be $847 million for FY 95.

* This figure of $300 million for USG support includes our participation in DENY FLIGHT, SHARP GUARD, humanitarian airlift, ABLE SENTRY and PROVIDE PROMISE FORWARD.

DOD IMPACT

For FY 95 any significant increase in the costs of US operations in the former-Yugoslavia as a result of our support for the RRF would require either a supplemental or reprogramming. In the current political atmosphere, it is highly unlikely we could obtain any supplemental that would not require offsets. Limited assistance to the RRF in FY 95 could probably be absorbed in current O&M levels.

There are no funds in the FY 96 budget for UNPROFOR operations. SECDEF has stated that any additional O&M funds provided by Congress would be used to pay for contingency operations. Baseline contingency operation costs for FY 96 are $1.2 billion. Any significant additional costs for the RRF or 40104 would require a supplemental or reprogramming. Again it is highly unlikely we could obtain any supplemental funding that did not require offsets.

Impact of Funding Crisis on UN Ability to Operate

-- The Rapid Reaction Force has brought to a head the peacekeeping funding problem. Even without this additional strain on UN budgets, we were concerned about the potential for UN insolvency by next summer. Adding more than $800 million to the UN tab would make a financial crisis more likely.

-- The danger will be most acute next summer, but there is some chance of a financial crisis in October when the UN regular budget will be $170 million overdrawn. An overdraft of about $50 million in October is normal, and usually covered by borrowing from peacekeeping until we pay our assessment. This year our non-payment of peacekeeping assessments may leave the PK account too poor to cover the UN's cash flow needs.

-- If the RRF is deployed as a UN funded operation, with the UN providing the lift and accommodations, but not reimbursing troop contributors or governments, we would estimate a UN out of pocket cost of about $180 million for the first six months without the standby French force and about $230 million if it deploys. While this cash flow requirement would greatly increase the risk of an early insolvency, our best guess is that UN peacekeeping would still be able to operate into 1996. This does not take into account the unknown cost of other ongoing deployments undertaken by the UN to bring UNPROFOR up to its authorized troop strength.

-- The UN owes commercial creditors and governments about $1 billion for services and supplies and governments about $700 million for troop reimbursements and equipment depreciation. When 1995 equipment depreciation costs are added in early 1996 the total owed for peacekeeping will jump to about $2.5 billion.

-- The UN stays afloat by paying its most urgent bills first, and letting governments wait for reimbursement. In the past most UN peacekeeping debts were to member states. An increased reliance on more cost-effective commercial contractors and a debt overhang that will exceed $2.5 billion dollars in early 1996 has left the UN vulnerable to a "run on the bank scenario" if cash flows dries up. If that happens, all operations, including those in the Middle East and Cyprus, could be affected. Some troops could be stranded in the field.

-- Last fall we received $1.2 billion in supplemental and FY-95 money for peacekeeping. Our remittances to the UN were used to make long-overdue payments to troop contributing countries. Prior to our payment several countries had threatened to withdraw their troops from existing operations. This problem will likely resurface in the fall.

-- Although it is not an imminent problem, we could loose our vote in the General Assembly if our arrears reach the amount of our assessments for the preceding two years.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

TAB E

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Peacekeeping Funding Crisis - Congressional Strategy

-- By the end of FY-95 we will owe the UN $670 million for peacekeeping; more if the RRF is an assessed operation.

-- State has requested $445 million for peacekeeping in FY-96. This included only $211 million for UNPROFOR; enough for six months. DoD requested $65 million to pay for UNMIH (Haiti) and UNPREDEP (Macedonia); they will not get this money. We have no money budgeted for MINURSO (Western Sahara), which was to have ended in FY-95. By the end of FY-96 we may owe the UN more than $1 billion for peacekeeping.

-- There is bipartisan concern, approaching outrage, on the Hill about our willingness to incur large obligations for peacekeeping without adequate consultation. The Gilman, Livingston, Rogers letter, the notification provisions of the FY 94-95 State authorization bill, and the peacekeeping provisions of HR 7, S 5 and this years funding legislation for State clearly demonstrate Congress's ire.

-- Our request this year for a $672 million emergency supplemental for peacekeeping was rejected. At typical 150 account foreign aid outlay rates it would require several billion dollars in program cuts to offset this request.

-- We tried last year to establish a contingency fund for peacekeeping to get around problems created by not knowing when the budgets are submitted what crises will occur. Congress was not receptive.

-- Recently, however, Rogers, Domenici, Kassebaum, Hamilton and a few others have signaled that they might be open to discussing the funding problem. Any solution would require closer consultations with Congress on peacekeeping.

-- Monthly briefings have informed staff, but there is a need for face to face exchanges between senior Administration officials and key Members of Congress.

-- The Peacekeeping Core Group has endorsed a State proposal to offer Congress regular consultations between senior Administration officials and key Congressional leaders in exchange for the creation of an ERMA like contingency fund for peacekeeping.

-- Our first opportunity for such consultation may come next week. Unfortunately, it will involve MINURSO (Western Sahara), an operation viewed by many on the Hill as fundamentally flawed and by some as a prime example of UN mismanagement. Congress even passed a recision of MINURSO's remaining FY-95 funds, but the President vetoed the bill. Since it was due to close in 1995 we have no money budget for FY-96. If we extend MINURSO without adequate consultation with Congress and a plan for how we will pay, we can expect a Congressional reaction similar to that we saw last week.

-- We will also need to explain our decision on funding the RRF.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met on July 11 and 12 to consider appropriate responses to the Bosnian Serb assault and occupation of the UN Safe Area at Srebrenica. (U)

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
2010-0533-M

2. Deputies agreed on the need to reassert UNPROFOR's ability to carry out its humanitarian and protection missions in Bosnia, and to halt the pattern of successful Bosnian Serb military aggressiveness that has marked the past month. They also agreed that failure to reverse this pattern will result in attacks on the other enclaves and renewed strangulation of Sarajevo, precipitating the collapse of the UNPROFOR mission and initiation of a withdrawal under circumstances that will be perceived as defeat for the UN, NATO and our allies. They also expressed concern that it would accelerate passage of unilateral lift legislation by the Congress in a manner that would damage relations with our allies. (S)

3. Deputies agreed on the following immediate actions (U):

- To support the UNSCR introduced by the French calling for the use of all available resources to restore the Srebrenica Safe Area, although acknowledging privately that UNPROFOR does not now possess the military capability to reverse the Bosnian Serb occupation of Srebrenica (nor, in all likelihood, to prevent the fall of Zepa). (Action: State/USUN) (S)

- To weigh in with Milosevic (and, through the UN, with Karadzic and Mladic) to obtain support for UNHCR efforts to assist in the movement, care and supply of the refugees and the Dutch UNPROFOR troops in Srebrenica; at the same time, to work with the Bosnian government to obtain their consent for the evacuation of the refugees to Tuzla rather than forcing them to remain unsupported behind Serb lines. (Action: State) (S)

- To use public statements and consultations with allies to send a clear signal of continuing U.S. resolve to support the retention of UNPROFOR as the best available option for resolving the crisis short of a major Balkan war. (Action: All) (S)

- To review the viability of U.S. and NATO quick/emergency withdrawal options as a matter of highest priority in light of the speed with which Srebrenica was overrun. (Action: OSD/JCS) (S)

4. Beyond these immediate actions, Deputies also agreed on the need to work with allies on the development of a follow-on strategy to deter further Serb provocations and prevent the collapse of the UNPROFOR mission (Action: NSC/State/OSD): (S)

- At a minimum, this strategy must preserve Bosnian government presence in and access to Sarajevo, and it must sustain

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

UNPROFOR deployments in Federation territory so as to continue maintaining peace where it exists. (S)

- To this end, we will support robust use of the existing elements of the RRF to secure overland access to Sarajevo using the Mt. Igman route and possibly to restore control over Sarajevo airport. (S)
- Given the political imperative not to be seen as abandoning all of the eastern enclaves and the fact that NATO credibility (through commitment to enforcing the weapons exclusion zone) is engaged in Gorazde, the strategy should include a commitment to protect this safe area, even if protection of Zepa proves unfeasible. (S)

5. Finally, Deputies agreed that efforts to stabilize the situation will be critical to our efforts to avoid Congressional action on unilateral lift. (C)

BOSNIA ENDGAME STRATEGY

Summary: With the fall of Srebrenica and Zepa, we need to make an all-out effort in the coming weeks to restabilize the situation on the ground, restore UNPROFOR's credibility in Sarajevo, Central Bosnia and Gorazde (see separate paper), and press for a realistic diplomatic settlement this year. If this effort fails, we should let UNPROFOR collapse this year and help the Bosnians obtain the military capabilities needed to level the playing field. This would be underpinned during a one-year transition period by air strikes to protect Sarajevo and the other safe areas, reinforced if possible by an UNPROFOR successor force based on a coalition of the willing. Following the transition, the Bosnians would be on their own.

Restabilization post-Srebrenica and Zepa: We have little time to devise and implement steps to strengthen UNPROFOR and halt the pattern of increasingly aggressive Serb behavior. If we do not change the status quo, the Serbs will move on Gorazde and renew the strangulation of Sarajevo, and the French will likely decide to withdraw -- leading to UNPROFOR's collapse and a protracted NATO withdrawal operation in circumstances that will represent a defeat for the UN and the Alliance. It will also guarantee passage of unilateral lift by the Congress in a manner that will damage relations with our allies and make it impossible to sustain a Presidential veto.

Our priority is to shore up UNPROFOR in Sarajevo and Central Bosnia by reducing its vulnerability, using the RRF to open secure routes to Sarajevo, and making more aggressive use of NATO air power (under a single key) to halt Serb artillery attacks on the exclusion zones. We should also support efforts to deter a Serb attack on Gorazde, recognizing that a U.S. contribution to this effort may be needed to prevent a French decision to pull out. In order for this strategy to succeed, we need to persuade the Bosnian Government that it is in its interest to keep UNPROFOR even if this means writing off Srebrenica and Zepa and concentrating UNPROFOR's efforts in Sarajevo and Central Bosnia. We would also need to be sure, before embarking on steps to protect Gorazde, that Bosnian forces will defend the enclave, since even a reinforced UNPROFOR presence is not capable of doing this on its own.

Pressing for a political settlement this year: The best way of avoiding an UNPROFOR withdrawal and the new challenges of a post-withdrawal strategy would be to make an all-out effort at obtaining a political settlement this year. The strengthened UNPROFOR and more aggressive use of NATO air power described above will restore some of the leverage we have lost over the past year vis-à-vis the Bosnian Serbs. But we will also need to offer some new inducements to break the logjam surrounding "acceptance" of the Contact Group plan. The loss of Srebrenica and Zepa may open the way to more realistic territorial solutions, and we will need to have a heart-to-heart discussion with the Bosnians aimed at eliciting greater flexibility on the map, constitutional arrangements, and possibly the Bosnian Serbs' right to secede from the Union after an initial period. We will also need to sweeten our offers to Milosevic in order to encourage him to put real pressure on the Bosnian Serbs. At Annex I is a more detailed gameplan for an early diplomatic breakthrough.

Supporting Bosnia's Survival post-UNPROFOR: If the last-ditch effort to obtain a settlement fails and/or we fail to restabilize the situation on the ground, we will need to face up to the issue of UNPROFOR withdrawal (including how to mitigate the risks of OPLAN 40104 and secure Congressional support) and implementing a post-withdrawal strategy. Indeed, it would be preferable to face these issues this year rather than having to implement a messy and protracted NATO withdrawal operation in the middle of the election campaign, when the parties will have an even greater incentive to embarrass us or try to draw us into the conflict. We should begin consulting with our key Allies now on our post-withdrawal strategy in order to bolster their resolve to strengthen UNPROFOR in the short term, and to force them to face up to their responsibility to help support Bosnia's survival if withdrawal must occur.

Leveling the playing field: Our post-withdrawal strategy should have as its goal providing the Bosnians with sufficient military capability to survive the immediate Serb onslaught, consolidate their authority over Sarajevo and Central Bosnia and, within a short period of time, to begin to regain territory allotted to them under the Contact Group proposal. This would make the ultimate resolution of the conflict the result of a balance of power on the ground rather than dependent on the actions of the international community.

- Our preferred approach would be to lift the arms embargo multilaterally through passage of a UNSC resolution, perhaps part of the same resolution terminating UNPROFOR's mandate and authorizing withdrawal. Our allies have indicated they will go along with lift after UNPROFOR withdrawal. To secure a Russian abstention, we would, at a minimum, need to make the lift applicable to all republics of the former Yugoslavia (including Serbia-Montenegro), and we might also need to accept substantial sanctions relief for Belgrade as well.
- [redacted] EO 13526 1.4c

Additional Support during the Transition: Although the Bosnians are stronger now than when we first pushed lift-and-strike in 1993, until they acquire and assimilate new arms, they will still need additional support to survive the Serbs' preemptive offensives. At a minimum, we will need to help the Bosnians ensure the survival of Sarajevo as the linchpin of a future Bosnian state. Therefore, for a one-year transition period, we would:

- Press our NATO Allies to continue enforcing the no-fly zone, to deprive the Serbs of air superiority (this would, of course, require preemptive SEAD); as a fallback, we would enforce the NFZ through a coalition of the willing.
- Conduct aggressive air strikes against a broad range of Bosnian Serb military targets to protect Sarajevo (and possibly the other remaining safe areas) against Serb artillery attacks. This would preferably be done through NATO or, if our allies refused to renew the NATO mandate post-UNPROFOR, through a U.S.-led coalition of the willing. The air strikes would be based on new UNSC authority (since existing authority under 836 and 844 is tied to UNPROFOR) or, as a fallback, on a Bosnian Government request for collective self-defense. Forward air controllers would be provided by members of the UNPROFOR successor force, if available (see below), since we would want to avoid assigning this function to the Bosnian Government. We would limit the commitment to Sarajevo and possibly the other safe areas to avoid becoming full-scale combatants; in any case, Bosnian ground forces, with HVO cooperation, can hold their own in Central Bosnia.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Support the deployment of a successor force to UNPROFOR to reinforce the Bosnians' hold on Sarajevo and the other safe areas, and to continue to promote stability in Federation-controlled areas of Central Bosnia. Such a force would be a coalition of the willing composed of those UNPROFOR contributors willing to remain plus new forces from Islamic countries (except states like Iran -- the Bosnians would have to agree to rule that out). If possible, the force would be deployed under a Chapter VII UN mandate with the explicit mission of supporting Bosnia against Serb aggression. Otherwise, the force would deploy at the request of the Bosnian Government, invoking Article 51 of the UN Charter. (The humiliating prospect of Islamic countries taking the place of European countries in solving a European problem could prompt some of our Allies to stay and participate in the successor force.)

We would set a time limit of one year (end of 1996) on the NFZ and air strike commitments, making clear to the Bosnians that once the playing field is leveled, they are on their own. The mandate of the successor force could extend beyond a year if the coalition members were willing. In addition to providing arms and training to reinforce the Bosnians' ground force capabilities, we would ensure they obtained effective air defenses to counter Serb air capabilities when the NFZ lapsed. EO 13526 1.4c

Keeping Belgrade Out. Leveling the playing field becomes a much more formidable challenge if Belgrade intervenes on a large scale in support the Bosnian Serbs. We would offer substantial sanctions relief to induce Milosevic to stay out, fully seal the border, and accept a much larger international monitoring force. We could also encourage Milosevic by brokering a mutually favorable deal with Tudjman over the Krajina and Sector East (see below). We would at the same time warn Milosevic that, if we detect Serbian military support, we will use air power against Serbian forces operating inside Bosnia and against the Drina bridges and other supply routes, and that we do not rule out strikes against military targets inside Serbia.

Regional containment strategy: As we moved to arm the Bosnians, we would need to take a range of steps to prevent a widening of the conflict to other parts of the region, to include:

- Reinforcing UNPREDEP in Macedonia to deter Serbian border encroachments and a new crackdown in Kosovo, together with a reaffirmation of our warnings to Milosevic regarding air strikes against Serbia in the event he provokes armed conflict in Kosovo;
- Strengthening UNCRO and providing increased economic assistance to Croatia to discourage Tudjman from launching a full-scale war in Krajina in the near term (while at the same time encouraging continued low-level attrition operations that could help limit Krajina Serb support to the Bosnian Serbs);
- Possibly going even further to broker a Belgrade-Zagreb deal whereby Milosevic would abandon the Krajina (Sectors North and South) to Tudjman in return for a piece of Sector East and assurances regarding Bosnian Serb confederation with the FRY following a settlement; and
- Possibly deploying preventive peacekeeping forces along Hungary's and Albania's borders with the FRY.

We would, at the same time, intensify our efforts to sustain the Federation and Bosnian-Croat military cooperation. And we would make clear that we stand ready to broker a political settlement and assist in its implementation, although at this stage we would jettison the Contact Group approach and devise a new basis for the negotiations.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Annex I: Gameplan for a Diplomatic Breakthrough in 1995

To achieve an agreement this year that reflects the changing strategic realities, we will need to adapt elements of the Contact Group plan while preserving its essential core as the starting point.

- We would begin with a heart-to-heart talk with the Bosnians, stressing that, in light of the fall of Srebrenica and Zepa and renewed Western readiness for tougher action, they must think more realistically about the shape of a settlement (map, constitutional arrangements, even 51:49). They also need to bend in their demand that the Serbs "accept" the CG plan as the "starting point" and agree to at least exploratory CG contacts or proximity talks with Pale.
- In talks with Pale, we would float possible modifications to the Contact Group map. At the outset, these would preserve the 51:49 ratio, but provide for a more compact and cohesive territory for the Federation (e.g. trading Srebrenica, Zepa -- and possibly Gorazde -- plus a widening of the Posavina corridor for full Federation control over Sarajevo and additional territory in central Bosnia). Consistent with a recent Silajdzic proposal to Juppé, we could state that up to 10 percent of the Contact Group map was subject to renegotiation.
- Ultimately, we should be prepared to press the Bosnians to accept less than 51% if they can obtain higher-quality territory and more defensible Federation frontiers in Central Bosnia.
- We would, similarly, develop the Contact Group's proposed constitutional principles to show the Serbs the amount of autonomy their republic would have within the Union and the scope of the "parallel special relationship" with Serbia.
- If necessary, we would press the Bosnians to agree that the Serbs can conduct a referendum on secession after 2-3 years, as had been agreed in the 1993 Invincible package. We would argue that, if the Bosnians cannot persuade the Serb population that their best future lies in reintegration, there is no point in blocking the peaceful separation of the Union along the lines of the Czechoslovak model.
- We would propose to the Allies and Russians mutual participation in funding a post-settlement "mini-Marshall Plan" for the Balkans, including the prospect of EU association agreements, designed to foster regional economic recovery and integration and thereby give all parties a stake in peace.

In tandem with these steps, we and our Contact Group partners should tell Milosevic the time has come for him to put up or shut up, i.e. that:

- We will terminate the current sanctions relief in September if he has not recognized Bosnia and taken visible action to terminate military support for Pale (and Knin);
- Moreover, if sanctions relief is terminated and the ICFY mission departs, any resumption of large-scale support for Pale will be met not only by a tightening of economic sanctions against the FRY, but by U.S. or NATO air strikes against the Drina bridges and key supply routes.
- At the same time, in conjunction with the threat of terminating sanctions relief for non-compliance, we would increase the rewards offered to Milosevic for initial positive steps, such as suspending all non-strategic trade sanctions if he recognizes Bosnia and/or really seals the border, and perhaps lifting vice suspending a few of the phase-one sanctions.

F: Chris Hill

SUBJECT: BILDT/MILOSEVIC

1. Below is a message from Carl Bildt to the Foreign Ministers of the Contact Group countries and Spain.

BEGINS

2. I have now concluded a final round of talks with President Milosevic on the recognition/sanctions relief package in parallel and in contact with the talks on the situation on the ground between Generals Mladic and Rupert Smith in accordance with the procedures that were agreed upon last weekend.

3. This double-track approach has, in my opinion, taken us a considerable way forward during the day. Detailed reporting on the Mladic/Smith meeting will be available through UNPROFOR channels, but in the "generals' talks" it was possible to agree some of the issues left unresolved in the preliminary talks on these issues last weekend, and in my talks with Milosevic we virtually completed the package.

4. We can thus achieve both a significant easing of the problems we have had on the ground during the past few months - in particular Gorazde and Sarajevo - and at the same time move into a new phase in the overall political effort.

5. When I was asked to continue these talks, the key issue that had not been resolved was the sanctions reimposition mechanism. During the course of the talks, I believe we have managed to find a formula that meets our basic objectives and which Milosevic can accept. The main hurdle to an agreement has thus been overcome, and we have to make up our minds on whether we want it or not given the circumstances and given our wider political strategy in the conflict.

6. The mechanism that Milosevic and I have agreed upon means that we will now use the autumn and winter to try to achieve a political settlement in Bosnia with his active support, but that we can reconsider our policy and - if he has given anything other than humanitarian assistance to the Bosnian Serbs in the meantime - reimpose sanctions during next spring. The decision to go back to sanctions will be taken by a panel of five countries (permanent members of the Security Council) by simple majority. It will be based on the reporting of the ICFY Mission through the Secretary General, or through evidence provided by panel member countries.

7. When discussing this mechanism, I believe we have to do it from the broader political perspective. With Belgrade recognising Bosnia and Hercegovina within its internationally recognised borders, and with the FRY agreeing to a set of principles for the constitutional and territorial settlement of the dispute, we are very effectively limiting the future options available to the Bosnian Serbs.

8. If Milosevic gets the support he needs for this package in the weeks ahead, it will be most difficult for Pale to continue dreaming about the things they are still dreaming about. At the same time, it will be clearly demonstrated that the outside world is not pursuing a policy that is anti-Serb in general, but one that isolates destructive policies. I believe most observers will say that this will radically increase the pressure on the Bosnian Serb leadership. Pale's nationalist rhetoric will sound increasingly hollow if it finds that the vast majority of Serbs are turning their backs on it.

9. We can have no guarantees that this package will solve the problems of Bosnia quickly and smoothly. This will not happen. There are limits to what Milosevic can do to influence events, and there are at times limits to what he is prepared to do. But I cannot see an alternative policy that has a better chance of bringing about the political changes imperative to a peaceful settlement of the conflict.

10. We will naturally have to continue to monitor Milosevic's behaviour extremely carefully. That applies in particular to the closing of the border. We agreed that the ICFY Mission will be reinforced. Indeed the problems I am having in this respect are mainly due to lack of funding and lack of personnel from ICFY contributing countries, rather than reluctance on Milosevic's part. There has also been a noticeable lack of input to the ICFY Mission from countries that often report that they have information indicating that the border is not as closed as it should be. We must improve our joint performance in the areas of both money and personnel, with an ICFY Mission substantially augmented and with substantially better information from other means of monitoring the border.

11. There is nothing in the agreement - which is important - to prevent the ICFY Mission from reporting violations throughout the nine month grace period. This has obvious effects both on political relations and on the economic possibilities of using the nine month period effectively since there will be a great reluctance on the part of the outside world to go into long-term arrangements with Serbian enterprises if they see the risk of sanctions returning next spring. Milosevic is aware of this.

12. On the other issues in the package, there have been substantial negotiations back and forth going on for months. Milosevic has tried to bring up the state succession issue time after time, but this has been refuted. He has urged us to be more flexible on defining strategic sanctions, and here we have reason to be more forthcoming in order to give him his necessary "critical mass". But the essence of the package remains the recognition of Bosnia and Hercegovina, the suspension of sanctions and the possibility of returning to them next spring if there is clear evidence that he has gone back on his support for the Contact Group plan or he has given more than humanitarian support to the Bosnian Serbs.

13. Today Milosevic employed his by now familiar tactic of raising a number of old issues again to see if there was after all some flexibility on our side, as well as some final arguing over the unresolved issues.

14. His number one remaining concern is over the freezing of financial assets. Most of the day - in addition to discussions on the general situation and prospects ahead - was spent on this issue. As an old banker he argues with force and conviction, and tried as hard as he could to secure progress. At the end of the meeting - because I decided from the beginning that it would be unproductive to continue into the night - he dropped demands for the unfreezing of Central Bank assets, but continued to argue for the unfreezing of the assets of commercial banks and private enterprises. I argued that it was sometimes difficult to draw the dividing line between governmental and private assets that some sanctions have to remain in order to provide incentives for the future and that I "so oder so" did not judge that I had any margin for manoeuvre on this issue.

15. On other issues, we made progress. Milosevic accepted my wording on paragraph four of the framework document ("As the basis for the realisation of the Contact Group plan , it is agreed that") thus dropping his long-fought for demand ("It is agreed that"). I accepted the EU list of strategic sanctions with the addition of a final sentence "Provisions should be agreed for normal steel production". The figures for this should be sorted out by experts within a month.

16. We wrestled over the outstanding issues and ended by my saying that I could present his argument on the unfreezing of commercial assets to the Contact Group. But there was a 95 per cent chance that it would be refused, but that I would be prepared to argue forcefully for suspended sports sanctions to be lifted (with 60 per cent chance of success) and that an oil figure of 400,000 metric tonnes per months would make sense politically, although I could have squeezed him down to 375,000 metric tonnes.

17. The package as it now stands will thus have to be agreed or rejected by us on Friday. I have promised him a letter from the

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Contact Group, in the name of the foreign ministers, on Saturday offering him an agreement and asked that he reply during the weekend. Although he made angry noises about his "critical mass" being crippled and us being unfair, I am fairly convinced that he will buy the package without the unfreezing of commercial assets but with sports and oil there. I naturally said that there was the possibility of the Foreign Ministers throwing it all - me included - out of the window.

18. If we endorse and he agrees on the package, Milosevic will make it public with a major speech to the nation, thus launching his political offensive during the next few days. We should make it public at the same time.

19. In the aftermath of Srebrenica, it will not be easy to present to public opinion in our respective countries the fact that we are entering into an agreement with Milosevic. I have noted that the Prime Minister Siladjic in one of his frequent CNN interviews has said that responsibility for "genocide" in Bosnia lies with the "Fascist-Stalinist monster" in Belgrade. Although this is extreme even by his standards, similar sentiments have been echoed elsewhere.

20. But policy has to be long-term. We have been pursuing the search for this agreement for a long time, and any cool analysis of our policy options for the months ahead should make us more rather than less interested in it now. Abandoning it now by rejecting an agreement that is within our grasp would force us to devise another policy, and would make Milosevic revise his approach.

21. Milosevic's possibilities for influencing Bosnian Serb military activities are certainly not non-existent but are not unlimited. Mladic is pursuing his own war in the interests of what he considers his people, and although he listens to political advice and political orders coming from either Pale or - sometimes - Milosevic, it is my impression that he makes the actual decisions on his own. We can at times use Milosevic to moderate and influence him, but there are distinct limits to what can be achieved as long as we cannot get the Bosnian government to agree to some form of military restraint, at best in the form of a cessation of hostilities.

22. We are thus, when it comes to the situation on the ground, in the difficult position that there are limits to what we can achieve with Mladic as long as we cannot get Sarajevo to stop fighting, and there are distinct limits to the pressure we can apply to the Bosnian Government as long as we cannot show real improvements on the ground in terms of Sarajevo access and other key issues.

23. I do not believe that we can extract ourselves from this situation by some kind of show of force unless we are prepared to escalate as far as it takes. Mladic has seen our policy spasms in the past, and he is likely to test them early and decisively in order to see how much cold steel we are ready to take and use.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

24. If we are talking in terms of military options, I would advise you very strongly to be ready for a ride that might well be very rough. Bosnian Serbs are ready to wage war against UNPROFOR in the - so far correct - belief that there are distinct limits to how far we are prepared to escalate. It is my opinion that any serious intent on our side to escalate must be preceded by a considerable change in the deployment and operation of UNPROFOR including the option for troop contributing nations to get out if they so wish. You cannot ask nations to provide troops for peace-keeping and then drag them into war without consulting them or giving them the option of leaving

25. The double-track negotiating approach which I have set up has now produced effects both in terms of the possibility of us entering into a new political phase and in terms of a substantial easing of the acute situation on the ground both for our forces and for the humanitarian effort.

26. To have the aid and food convoys rolling into Sarajevo again is important from the humanitarian as well as political point of view. To be able to resupply and rotate in Gorazde is important for other - but equally obvious - reasons.

27. I am continuing to Split this evening. I will proceed on Thursday morning to Kiseljak for a meeting with General Rupert Smith and from there along the road that we will now again have access to into Sarajevo where I intend to brief President Izetbegovic on the broad outlines of what has been discussed. I will also bring up with him the possibility of a meeting between himself and President Milosevic, as well as ask him for clarification of some of the statements made recently by a number of his ministers concerning the future of the UN effort in Bosnia. I will then return to Split in order to fly to London, arriving late on Thursday evening.

FINAL 19/7

FRAMEWORK AGREEMENT

BETWEEN THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA AND THE COUNTRIES OF THE CONTACT GROUP

1. The Contact Group countries have stated, that a key to the future stability of the region of former Yugoslavia is the early and mutual recognition between all its states within their internationally recognized borders as this provides the basis for the negotiations that are essential in order to promote the political settlements of the disputes of the region, and paves the way for the peaceful cooperation between all the peoples and states of the region.

2. In the context of mutual recognition between the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and Bosnia and Herzegovina, and provided that the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia respectively supports or implements the other provisions below, the Contact Group governments are prepared to recommend to the UN Security Council the sanctions relief as envisaged in the annex, to take effect simultaneously with recognition.

3. In an act of recognition between the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and Bosnia and Hercegovina, the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia will recognize Bosnia and Herzegovina within its internationally recognized borders.

4. As the basis for the realization of the Contact Group plan, it is agreed that:

A. Bosnia and Herzegovina should be a union of two entities, the "Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina" and the "Republika Srpska."

B. There should be balanced and equal treatment of the "Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina" and the "Republika Srpska."

C. Both the entities should have the right to establish parallel special relationships with neighbouring countries, consistent with the integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

D. Any future political rearrangements brought about by any community within either entity will not change the status of the other entity within the union, as described in subparagraphs A, B and C above.

E. The 51:49 parameter of the territorial proposal of the Contact Group would remain the basis for a settlement. This territorial proposal would be open for adjustment by mutual agreement.

F. There would be provision in the settlement for refugees and displaced persons to be able to return to their homes of origin.

5. Redeployment to the lines agreed would take place as soon as there was agreement between the two sides on any territorial adjustments and on constitutional arrangements.

6. A cessation of hostilities agreement should be concluded to enable the opening and completion of the negotiations. Such an agreement should include all the elements of the cessation of hostilities agreement of 31 December 1994.

7. As regards Croatia, following the passage of Security Council resolution 981, there should now immediately be further normalization of economic relations and the start of negotiations on a final political settlement between Zagreb and Knin.

8. The Contact Group underlines the need for maintenance by the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia of the border closure except for humanitarian assistance. The UNPF Mission will be reinforced.

FINAL 19/7

SANCTIONS RELIEF ANNEX

1. All UN mandated trade, financial and economic sanctions against the FRY as well as the sanctions suspended by SCR 943 (1994), except those on trade in strategic goods* (aside from oil and petroleum products which will be subject to a special regime) and except the frozen [illegible] existing accounts will be suspended sine die.

2. New accounts will be able to operate freely, and cash brought from the FRY can be deposited in them.

3. The FRY will be able to import each month seasonally adjusted amounts of oil and petroleum products in a quantity not to exceed normal monthly usage. The FRY will assure that none of these supplies will be reexported or allowed to leave the country. The FRY agrees that oil and petroleum products will be imported through the port of Bar and via the Danube.

4. Sanctions that have been suspended would be reimposed by decision of a panel consisting of the five permanent members of the Security Council if, after a report by the Secretary General on the basis of the ICFY Mission, or a report by a permanent member of the Security Council, it is concluded that the FRY is not implementing its decision to close the border with Bosnia except for humanitarian assistance or is no longer supporting the Contact Group plan. Such a decision can be taken no earlier than after reviewing nine months after sanctions have been suspended in accordance with this agreement. The decision of the panel is taken by a simple majority (three out of five).

5. After Bosnian Serb authorities accept the Contact Group plan as a starting point for negotiations, the lifting of sanctions against the FRY will begin, commencing with the phase one sanctions now suspended. Simultaneously, the FRY will restore conditions for normal trade and contacts with Bosnia and Hercegovina.

6. When a cessation of hostilities is in place and negotiations by the Bosnian parties have begun on the implementation of the Contact Group plan, suspended sanctions will be lifted. Strategic sanctions will be suspended and the oil regime will remain in effect.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

7. When the Contact Group plan is implemented on the ground and the respective forces have withdrawn to the agreed territorial delimitations, the remaining sanctions will be lifted, aside from those frozen assets associated with state succession questions.

* Strategic items to be crude oil, petroleum products, coal, iron, steel, other metals, petrochemicals (other than for agricultural use, textiles and normal plastics) and energy related equipment for new production. Provisions should be agreed for normal steel production.

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE intended to be proposed by Mr. DOLE (for himself, Mr. LIEBERMAN Helms, Thurmond, Biden, D'Amato, McCain, Fe Warner, Hatch, Kyl, Moynihan, Stevens, Cochran, Hutch Viz: Mack, Coverdell, Packwood, Murkowski, Specter, Strike all after the enacting clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Bosnia and Herzegovina Self-Defense Act of 1995".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) For the reasons stated in section 520 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (Public Law 103–236), the Congress has found that continued application of an international arms embargo to the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina contravenes that Government's inherent right of individual or collective self-defense under Article 51 of the United National Charter and therefore is inconsistent with international law.

(2) The United States has not formally sought multilateral support for terminating the arms embargo against Bosnia and Herzegovina through a vote on a United Nations Security Council resolution since the enactment of section 1404 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995 (Public Law 103–337).

(3) The United Nations Security Council has not taken measures necessary to maintain international peace and security in Bosnia and Herzegovina since the aggression against that country began in April 1992.

SEC. 3. STATEMENT OF SUPPORT.

The Congress supports the efforts of the Government of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina—

(1) to defend its people and the territory of the Republic;

(2) to preserve the sovereignty, independence, and territorial integrity of the Republic; and

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(3) to bring about a peaceful, just, fair, viable, and sustainable settlement of the conflict in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

SEC. 4. TERMINATION OF ARMS EMBARGO.

(a) TERMINATION.—The President shall terminate the United States arms embargo of the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina, as provided in subsection (b), following—

(1) receipt by the United States Government of a request from the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina for termination of the United States arms embargo and submission by the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina, in exercise of its sovereign rights as a nation, of a request to the United Nations Security Council for the departure of UNPROFOR from Bosnia and Herzegovina; or

(2) a decision by the United Nations Security Council, or decisions by countries contributing forces to UNPROFOR, to withdraw UNPROFOR from Bosnia and Herzegovina.

(b) IMPLEMENTATION OF TERMINATION.—The President may implement termination of the United States arms embargo of the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina pursuant to subsection (a) prior to the date of completion of the withdrawal of UNPROFOR personnel from Bosnia and Herzegovina, but shall, subject to subsection (c), implement termination of the embargo pursuant to that subsection no later than the earlier of—

(1) the date of completion of the withdrawal of UNPROFOR personnel from Bosnia and Herzegovina; or

(2) the date which is 12 weeks after the date of submission by the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina of a request to the United Nations Security Council for the departure of UNPROFOR from Bosnia and Herzegovina.

(c) PRESIDENTIAL WAIVER AUTHORITY.—If the President determines and reports in advance to Congress that the safety, security, and successful completion of the withdrawal of UNPROFOR personnel from Bosnia and Herzegovina in accordance with subsection (b)(2) requires more time than the period provided for in that subsection, the President may extend the time period available under subsection (b)(2) for implementing termination of the United States arms embargo of the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina for a period of up to 30 days. The authority in this subsection may be exercised to extend the time period available under subsection (b)(2) for more than one 30-day period.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(d) PRESIDENTIAL REPORTS.—Within 7 days of the commencement of the withdrawal of UNPROFOR from Bosnia and Herzegovina, and every 14 days thereafter, the President shall report in writing to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives on the status and estimated date of completion of the withdrawal operation. If any such report includes an estimated date of completion of the withdrawal which is later than 12 weeks after commencement of the withdrawal operation, the report shall include the operational reasons which prevent the completion of the withdrawal within 12 weeks of commencement.

(e) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be interpreted as authorization for deployment of United States forces in the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina for any purpose, including training, support, or delivery of military equipment.

(f) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section—

(1) the term "United States arms embargo of the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina" means the application to the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina of—

(A) the policy adopted July 10, 1991, and published in the Federal Register of July 19, 1991 (58 FR 33322) under the heading "Suspension of Munitions Export Licenses to Yugoslavia"; and

(B) any similar policy being applied by the United States Government as of the date of completion of withdrawal of UNPROFOR personnel from Bosnia and Herzegovina, pursuant to which approval is denied for transfers of defense articles and defense services to the former Yugoslavia; and

(2) the term "completion of the withdrawal of UNPROFOR personnel from Bosnia and Herzegovina" means the departure from the territory of Bosnia and Herzegovina of substantially all personnel participating in UNPROFOR and substantially all other personnel assisting in their withdrawal, within a reasonable period of time, without regard to whether the withdrawal was initiated pursuant to a request by the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina, a decision by the United Nations Security Council, or decisions by countries contributing forces to UNPROFOR, but the term does not include such personnel as may remain in Bosnia and Herzegovina pursuant to an agreement between the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the government of any country providing such personnel.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies agreed to begin meeting on the Bosnia crisis via SVTS on a daily basis until further notice. (C)

2. USUN reported on Boutros-Ghali's refusal to meet with U.S., UK and French Ambassadors to discuss implementation of the London Conference decisions until he was presented with a "non-paper" on the concept being considered by NATO. A joint UK/French/USUN draft was discussed, and Deputies tasked a working group chaired by OSD to revise the non-paper and provide a cleared version for use in New York that evening, drawing on the President's phone call with French President Chirac (who wanted to ensure a role for General Janvier, UNPF Theater Commander, and the UN SYG in the decision cycle for initiating any Bosnia-wide phase in an air campaign) and conversations between the CJCS and the National Security Advisor on the best way to respond to the French concerns. The revision was completed and cleared for use in New York. ~~(S)~~

3. Deputies discussed briefly the problems of expanding the London Conference decisions to include Safe Areas beyond Gorazde. They agreed that USNATO should seek NAC language setting the stage for a transition from a strictly Gorazde-centered policy to one that applied to other Safe Areas but that it would not be practical to insist on expanding the London ultimatum of extensive air strikes to additional Safe Areas in the July 25 NAC decision. (Action: State) ~~(S)~~

4. Deputies noted that the Croatian government had notified Ambassador Galbraith of its intention to launch an attack into the Bihac sector during the early morning of July 25. They agreed that, given the deteriorating military situation in Bihac and the inability immediately to apply the London agreement to Bihac, it would be inappropriate to attempt to dissuade the Croatians from their plans. However, it also was agreed that the Croats should be warned against taking this opportunity to launch an attack against Knin, with the accompanying risk of a multi-front campaign and possibly drawing Serbian Government forces into the conflict. (Action: State) ~~(S)~~

5. Following a read-out on the President's call to Chirac, Deputies noted that several key elements of what had apparently been agreed in London now seemed to be coming undone. They agreed that a major effort involving multiple phone calls by Principals to their UK and French counterparts should be undertaken to restore the London consensus. This effort would key off the work being done to reach U.S./UK/French agreement on the non-paper for Boutros-Ghali. (Action: All) ~~(S)~~

6. Deputies reviewed the results of the interagency working group tasked on July 22 to develop alternatives to the Dole resolution calling for unilateral lift of the arms embargo on Bosnia and a legislative strategy to preclude the President having to cast an unsustainable veto of the Dole legislation. They endorsed the conclusion of the group that a series of amendments should be sought that would: (1) change the triggering mechanism to ensure that the Bosnian government could not unilaterally start the clock on a requirement for the U.S. to lift the embargo; (2) endorse the efforts to strengthen UNPROFOR through the RRF and the London Conference; and (3) change the requirement from unilateral lift to multilateral lift. They agreed that a Presidential veto should be recommended if the requirement for unilateral lift remained. They agreed that key Principals would brief a bipartisan Congressional group on July 25 regarding the desired amendments and the implications of the London Conference. (Action: NSC/All) (S)

7. Deputies reviewed progress toward satisfying tasking from the July 22 DC regarding the need for new diplomatic initiatives and critical decisions associated with possible transition to a post-UNPROFOR environment in Bosnia. They considered the need to look at multiple diplomatic options and tracks given the fluid nature of the current environment and the need to move thinking beyond the current "Milosevic track." OVP agreed to work with State in producing a new drafts for further consideration by Deputies and Principals. (Action: OVP/State). (S)

Summary of Conclusions

Implementation of London Decisions

1. Deputies reviewed the issues that had arisen in that day's ongoing discussions in the North Atlantic Council regarding implementation of the London decision on Gorazde. They agreed that we could agree to the French proposal that UN authority for Option 1 and 2 air strikes be delegated to the UNPF theater commander, General Janvier, with the expectation that he would delegate authority for close air support to the local commander.

2018-0533-M (2.16)

They agreed that, in light of French opposition to delegating authority for Option 3 air strikes to Janvier, we would agree to defer a NAC decision on the modalities for UN-NATO coordination until the time Option 3 authority was sought. This would be without prejudice to the U.S. position that a decision by UN Secretary General Boutros-Ghali was not required. (C)

2. Deputies also agreed that the U.S. should oppose UK efforts to require a new NAC decision before attacks could take place against troop concentrations within the Gorazde zone of action (ZOA) under Option 2, as well as UK efforts to limit the size of the ZOA. (C)

Contact Group Discussion of Bildt Negotiations

3. Deputies discussed the approach that Ambassador Frasure should take in the July 26 Contact Group meeting to discuss the package negotiated by EU negotiator Bildt with Serbian President Milosevic. They agreed that we should not endorse or provisionally accept the Bildt-Milosevic package but that we needed to take a sufficiently positive stance to encourage continued UK/French support for serious NATO military action. (C)

4. Deputies agreed that Ambassador Frasure should inform Contact Group counterparts that we support continued efforts by Bildt, that we believe it essential that Bildt consult further with the Bosnian Government to address their concerns and that we see a need for improvements to the package in the following areas:

-- sanctions reimposition mechanism (the U.S. remains opposed a de facto lifting of sanctions in the guise of suspension; we are prepared to continue to work on the idea of a five-nation review panel, but cannot commit to the idea until other aspects of the Bildt-Milosevic package are resolved);

-- length of the grace period before reimposition could occur (nine months is clearly too long); and

-- the strength of Milosevic's commitments on closure of the Serbian-Bosnian border and acceptance of increased numbers of international monitors.

They agreed that Ambassador Frasure should also underscore that, given the situation on the ground, the negotiations must proceed in tandem with genuine restabilization and de-escalation by the Bosnian Serbs; otherwise it would politically untenable for us to move ahead with a deal with Milosevic. Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met August 11 to discuss a) the itinerary of the team that will go to the region to consult with parties to the conflict; b) the situation on the ground, including Croatian military intentions; c) planning for humanitarian assistance to Krajina Serb refugees in Bosnia and Serbia; d) UN planning for UNCRO drawdown; e) NATO inability to enforce the No Fly Zone over Banja Luka; and f) Serb threats to move refugees to Vojvodina and Kosovo. (S)

2. Deputies agreed:

- The Lake/Tarnoff team would meet with Holbrooke and Drew in London Sunday afternoon before the latter proceeded to ex-Yugoslavia. (Action: All) (S)

- Secretary Perry would call Defmin Susak August 11 to warn him of the dangers of military movements at this time, whether in Sector East, inland toward Montenegro from Dubrovnik, or around Banja Luka. In the course of the demarche Perry would reiterate our insistence on civil treatment of refugees. If Susak's reaction was not reassuring, the Vice President would follow up on the Perry call with a call to Tudjman. (Action: OSD/OVP) (S)

- State and USUN would work with UN and UNHCR officials to help the latter develop a comprehensive plan of regional refugee assistance. The plan would take into account the needs of all displaced persons, including Krajina Serbs, and would call for unimpeded access to Sarajevo and Gorazde, as well as to Banja Luka. Once the plan were developed, the U.S. would consider how best to contribute to it and to refugee relief efforts already under way on the part of ICRC and other organizations. (Action: State/USUN) (S)

- USUN would work with UN officials to prevent precipitous action on the part of Boutros-Ghali and Akashi with regard to UNCRO drawdown, particularly considering the volatile situation in Sector East. At the same time, the Peacekeeping Core Group and others would continue to look at ways to rationalize UNCRO and consider changes to its mandate, composition and location commensurate with the changed circumstances on the ground. USUN would not attempt to slow down UN discussions, but would aim to slow down action. (Action: USUN/PCG) (S)

- On the No Fly Zone enforcement issue, State would send a cable to USNATO instructing Ambassador Hunter to make the point that now was not the time to raise the issue of attempting SEAD, considering the diplomatic initiatives under way and the presence of large numbers of refugees in the vicinity of Banja Luka. (Action: State) (S)

- CIA would continue monitoring Serb threats to move refugees from the Krajina to Vojvodina and Kosovo, and compare threats with actions. Should forced movements to Kosovo appear imminent, agencies would consider the utility of reissuing the 1992 Kosovo warning. State would review the language of the 1992 warning to determine if it remains appropriate. (Action: CIA/State) (S)

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met August 14 to discuss a) the situation on the ground, including the Serb build-up near Sector East and the GoBH/HV offensives in west-central Bosnia; b) the Vice President's calls to Izetbegovic and Tudjman; c) planning for settlement implementation; d) UNCRO drawdown and the posibility of UNCRO's managing pro-Abdic refugee problems in Sector North; e) Serb refugee resettlements, including transfers to Kosovo and harrasment of non-Serbs in Sandjak and Vojvodina.

2. Deputies agreed:

- a Principals meeting would be held Tuesday, August 15, to review progress made by the Lake/Tarnoff team, to discuss Kosovo, and to formulate a plan for dealing with Bildt and for responding to diplomatic initiatives like the French offer of a three-way Summit. (Action: NSC/State)

- State would finalize its cable on UNCRO drawdown, reiterating the need for a measured approach especially in Sector East and asking for UN views on whether UNCRO could be of assistance in managing current refugee problems in Sector North. (Action: State)

- State would prepare talking points for consideration by principles on Serb resettlement of Krajina refugees into Kosovo. When approved, the points would likely be used by A/S Holbrooke in Belgrade, with a follow-up demarche by Rudy Perina. (Action: State)

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies met August 18 to review the status of DoD's post-settlement implementation planning effort and discuss arming and training the Federation forces. They agreed to reconvene on Tuesday, August 22 to accomplish two tasks:

- review more detailed discussion paper on peace settlement implementation based on Deputies discussion, to be prepared by

OSD with input from JCS and others as appropriate, that would be forwarded to Principals later in the week;

- review a paper on arm and train, in which JCS would attempt to frame questions and lay out a mechanism for decisionmaking. This paper would also be presented to Principals later in the week. (S)

IMPLEMENTATION

2. Deputies accepted as a working assumption (although this was disputed by some) that the force would largely be deployed to Federation territory. (S)

3. Deputies were in agreement that the mandate of the NATO-led Peace Implementation Force (PIF) should include all necessary use of force in self-defense, whether through air power or other means. (S)

4. With regard to the mandate of the force vis-a-vis protecting Federation territory from Serb attack, some participants advocated security guarantees akin to NATO Chapter V protection; anything short of this was described as making the PIF ineffectual. Other participants called for lesser guarantees in the form of air power alone, under the arrangements envisioned at the July 1995 London Conference but country-wide. Participants agreed the subject required further consideration. (S)

5. Deputies agreed that if the Bosnian government or Federation violated the terms of settlement by launching major offensives to gain strategic advantage, the PIF would leave. (S)

6. If the Serbs violated the terms of the agreement by launching major campaigns to gain strategic advantage, the PIF would undertake actions that moved up a pre-established ladder of escalation. (S)

7. All agreed that the PIF would take an even-handed approach, using force as necessary, to counter renegade or isolated military activities on the part of either side, so long as they did not constitute major offensives. (S)

8. With regard to the mission of the force, Deputies discussed four elements:

- Separation of forces: Separation of forces would be done voluntarily by the parties to the agreement, but the PIF would be authorized to effect the movement of forces that had not done so voluntarily. (S)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Disarmament: Some Deputies noted that this task would be subordinate to separation of forces, as troops would not have to be disarmed inside areas they were given at settlement. Other Deputies noted that we would need to guard against appearing to sanction an arms race in territory under the control of the parties. (S)

- Heavy weapons: Deputies noted that build-down was an option that needed to be explored further. The task of controlling heavy weapons was also discussed in relation to separation of forces and demilitarization. (S)

- Demilitarization: The Deputies agreed that there should be narrow DMZs along the borders. They agreed to examine analyses of weapons limitation zones to supplement the DMZs. Deputies further discussed zones of separation, including notions of two-tiered zones with inner zones of separation and outer buffer exclusion zones. (S)

9. Deputies agreed that the PIF should be under NATO command and control, with arrangements for non-NATO troops. Deputies noted that dissuading the Russians and Islamic-country forces from participating in post-settlement implementation might be politically difficult. (S)

10. Deputies agreed peacekeeping forces would continue to operate in Macedonia and Croatia under UN auspices and would not be incorporated into the PIF. The UN would also continue to operate civilian functions such as UNCIVPOL and UNHCR in the PIF area of responsibility. (S)

11. On the subject of phasing, Deputies agreed that initial deployment should occur quickly, once the UN made a request, through means of a NATO command and control headquarters being set up on the ground and the resubordination of the RRF. A Joint Commission would be established to coordinate political and military issues with local officials. NATO OPLAN 40104, containing planning for UNPROFOR withdrawal, might be used as a basis for planning out initial deployments, which would have to occur in conjunction with the removal of UNPROFOR units not a part of NATO and not willing to remain. (S)

12. As for the exit strategy, Deputies discussed DoD's estimate that the force would remain in place for nine months. Some participants considered nine months sufficient for arm and train to be effective; others felt the establishment of buffers and CBMs, separation of forces, and other aspects of the mission would take more time. DoD noted that using OPLAN 40104 as the basis for planning would facilitate drawdown of the PIF itself, when the time came. (S)

13. Deputies agreed that next steps for the USG, once Principals endorsed the DoD paper, would include a possible key allies meeting to refine plans and make arrangements for a NAC to bless an updated version of OPLAN 40104 encompassing settlement implementation as well as withdrawal. (S)

ARM AND TRAIN

14. Deputies agreed arming and training was a function parallel to implementation planning. Basic assumptions included:

- that we would equip the Federation (as opposed to other entities);
- that the U.S. would attempt to lead a multilateral effort;
- that our goal would be to build up the core defensive capabilities of the Bosnian army;
- that we would attempt to counterbalance the strengths of the BSA. (S)

15. Deputies noted that even if there were no peace plan implementation, there might still be a requirement to arm and train, so planning needed to get under way. (S)

8. With regard to the mission of the force, Deputies discussed four elements:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Separation of forces: Separation of forces would be done voluntarily by the parties to the agreement, but the PIF would be authorized to effect the movement of forces that had not done so voluntarily. ~~(S)~~

- Disarmament: Some Deputies noted that this task would be subordinate to separation of forces, as troops would not have to be disarmed inside areas they were given at settlement. Other Deputies noted that we would need to guard against appearing to sanction an arms race in territory under the control of the parties. ~~(S)~~

- Heavy weapons: Deputies noted that build-down was an option that needed to be explored further. The task of controlling heavy weapons was also discussed in relation to separation of forces and demilitarization. ~~(S)~~

- Demilitarization: The Deputies agreed that there should be narrow DMZs along the borders. They agreed to examine analyses of weapons limitation zones to supplement the DMZs. Deputies further discussed zones of separation, including notions of two-tiered zones with inner zones of separation and outer buffer exclusion zones. ~~(S)~~

9. Deputies agreed that the PIF should be under NATO command and control, with arrangements for non-NATO troops. Deputies noted that dissuading the Russians and Islamic-country forces from participating in post-settlement implementation might be politically difficult. ~~(S)~~

10. Deputies agreed peacekeeping forces would continue to operate in Macedonia and Croatia under UN auspices and would not be incorporated into the PIF. The UN would also continue to operate civilian functions such as UNCIVPOL and UNHCR in the PIF area of responsibility. ~~(S)~~

11. On the subject of phasing, Deputies agreed that initial deployment should occur quickly, once the UN made a request, through means of a NATO command and control headquarters being set up on the ground and the resubordination of the RRF. A Joint Commission would be established to coordinate political and military issues with local officials. NATO OPLAN 40104, containing planning for UNPROFOR withdrawal, might be used as a basis for planning out initial deployments, which would have to occur in conjunction with the removal of UNPROFOR units not a part of NATO and not willing to remain. ~~(S)~~

12. As for the exit strategy, Deputies discussed DoD's estimate that the force would remain in place for nine months. Some participants considered nine months sufficient for arm and train to be effective; others felt the establishment of buffers and CBMs, separation of forces, and other aspects of the mission would take more time. DoD noted that using OPLAN 40104 as the basis for planning would facilitate drawdown of the PIF itself, when the time came. ~~(S)~~

13. Deputies agreed that next steps for the USG, once Principals endorsed the DoD paper, would include a possible key allies meeting to refine plans and make arrangements for a NAC to bless an updated version of OPLAN 40104 encompassing settlement implementation as well as withdrawal. ~~(S)~~

14. Deputies agreed arming and training was a function parallel to implementation planning, ~~and would be expensive and prove controversial with Congress~~. Basic assumptions included:

- that we would equip the Federation (as opposed to other entities);
- that the U.S. would attempt to lead a multilateral effort;
- that our goal would be to build up the core defensive capabilities of the Bosnian army;
- that we would attempt to counterbalance the strengths of the BSA. ~~(S)~~

15. Deputies noted that even if there were no peace plan implementation, there might still be a requirement to arm and train, so planning needed to get under way. ~~(S)~~

Deputies Committee Discussion Paper
Humanitarian Assistance and Refugees

1. Access for humanitarian deliveries throughout FRY: Little has come of this effort. UNHCR is supportive; Belgrade said it has little control over the actions of the Bosnian Serbs.

Possible initiatives: Amb. Spiegal could raise with Mrs. Ogata and urge public statement from UNHCR; 2) we could demarche European capitals and urge public statements from them; 3) we could seek formal action at UN; 4) we could ask that this issue be raised by U.S. negotiators in the region.

2. Humanitarian assistance to Belgrade: Currently, State/PRM aid to UNHCR can go to Bosnian Serbs in Bosnia, but not to activities in the FRY. Likewise, State/PRM aid to ICRC is earmarked for use "particularly" in Bosnia and Croatia. State's political statement has not, up to now, had a large impact on the amount of humanitarian aid reaching priority beneficiary populations in the FRY. Based on recent increase in humanitarian needs and subject to a needs assessment, State and AID would now like to consider relief support to UNHCR, ICRC and other international and non-governmental organizations for projects in the FRY.

3. Money for Humanitarian Assistance: We have substantial monies remaining in humanitarian assistance accounts at State for the end of FY 95 (more than $80 million in unspent MRA and ERMA). Some of this will need to go to Rwanda and other areas of dire need, but much might go to Bosnian relief.

Possible initiative: Should we come forward with more aid and, if so, can and should we use it as a means to encourage greater access to all areas of need?

Humanitarian Assistance and Refugees

1. Access for humanitarian deliveries throughout FRY: Little has come of this effort. UNHCR is supportive; Belgrade said it has little control over the actions of the Bosnian Serbs.

Possible initiatives: Amb. Spiegal could raise with Mrs. Ogata and urge public statement from UNHCR; 2) we could demarche European capitals and urge public statements from them; 3) we could seek formal action at UN; 4) we could ask that this issue be raised by U.S. negotiators in the region.

2. Humanitarian assistance to Belgrade: Currently, State/PRM aid to UNHCR can go to Bosnian Serbs in Bosnia, but not to activities in the FRY. State's political statement has not, up to now, had a large impact on the amount of humanitarian aid reaching priority beneficiary populations in the FRY. Based on recent increase in humanitarian needs and subject to a needs assessment, State and AID would now like to consider relief support to UNHCR, ICRC and other international and non-governmental organizations for projects in the FRY.

3. Money for Humanitarian Assistance: We have substantial monies remaining in humanitarian assistance accounts at State for the end of FY 95 (more than $80 million in unspent MRA and ERMA). Some of this will need to go to Rwanda and other areas of dire need, but much might go to Bosnian relief.

DRAFT

Implementing a Balkan Peace Settlement (U)

Scenario: ~~(S)~~ A peace plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina is accepted by all warring parties and includes a cessation of hostilities. There is international commitment to implement the provisions of the plan, including economic, diplomatic and military components. The principal military requirement is to create a stable environment during a limited period wherein the Bosnian Muslim-Croat Federation (the "Federation") is able to develop an effective self-defense relative to the Bosnian Serbs. To meet this requirement, two parallel programs are conducted: Multilateral security assistance to provide equipment and training to the Federation forces; a NATO force to implement the peace plan.

Assumptions: ~~(S)~~

- Public and Congressional support for the plan has been achieved.
- All parties to the conflict agree to the settlement and the peace plan; both NATO and the UN Security Council endorse it by resolution as a NATO-led, non-blue helmeted, operation.
- At the appropriate time, as specified in the peace agreeement, forces of all sides move to designated areas, except in isolated instances.
- The arms embargo is lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia.
- Croatia continues its support for and cooperation with the Federation.
- Border monitors on the Bosnia-Serbia border are withdrawn.
- There will be no UN involvement in military decision making for the operation.
- UNPROFOR mission completed, withdrawal authorized.
- UNCRO/UNPREDEP operations continue under UN control.
- Humanitarian assistance operations now underway continue and are adequate.
- US ground forces will be committed to the peace implementation force.
- Federation forces, once armed and trained, have to defend their country.

Mission: ~~(S)~~ On order, CINCSOUTH assumes operational control of designated NATO and non-NATO forces and conducts operations to enforce the terms of the peace agreement in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Specified Tasks: ~~(S)~~ The Peace Implementation Force ("PIF") will:

- Deter violations of the cease-fire,
- Monitor and enforce compliance by all parties with the peace agreement,
- Ensure self defense and freedom of movement of the peace force,
- Facilitate the provision of humanitarian aid in Bosnia-Herzegovina and be prepared to secure convoys, and
- Employ NATO air power in support of peace enforcement operations and in defense of peace implementation forces.

Parallel functions: ~~(S)~~ The following functions will be performed by entities other than the PIF:

- Security Assistance (Arm/Train): Multilateral security assistance forces will provide equipment and related training to Federation forces to improve their ability to defend against outside aggression. This function could be conducted principally outside B-H and would be accomplished as rapidly as possible to permit early withdrawal of the PIF.
- Air Support: Deny Flight operations will continue throughout the PIF's mission in Bosnia. These forces will provide no-fly zone enforcement, close air support, suppression of enemy air defenses, and possibly strike operations to support the PIF (along the lines agreed in London in July).
- UNPROFOR Withdrawal: The UN will organize and conduct the withdrawal of those UNPROFOR forces not transitioning to the PIF.
- Other Support: Humanitarian assistance, human rights monitoring, and economic reconstruction efforts will proceed in parallel with the implementation of the plan.

Desired End State: ~~(S)~~ The mission of the PIF will be complete when the terms of the peace plan have been implemented by all parties and the Federation has enhanced its self-defense capability relative to the Bosnian Serbs.

Issues: ~~(S)~~ The following issues should be discussed in the interagency before proceeding with further planning for execution of the peace plan:

(1) Mission/Force Calculus: SACEUR, who will execute the mission, will refine the forces he will need to do the job, seeking to develop a force sufficient to do the tasks assigned based on mission analysis. He has been requested by CJCS to provide an estimate of the forces required and a timeline for the operation as soon as possible.

(2) Initiation: Deployment of the PIF should be ordered as promptly as feasible upon all parties' acceptance of the peace plan and issuance of the necessary mandates.

(3) Timing: Building the existing FR/UK/NL RRF onto the PIF will significantly reduce the time needed to assemble the force. The time needed to fully deploy the PIF will depend on its size and sourcing.

(4) UNPROFOR Withdrawal: The UN-organized withdrawal of those elements of UNPROFOR which will not transition to the PIF while the other elements of the PIF are deploying into the region will represent a considerable logistic effort and will tax the logistic infrastructure in Bosnia-Herzegovina and Croatia.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(5) Transition Period: The most vulnerable period with the greatest potential for a breakdown of the cease-fire will be during the simultaneous movement of NATO, UN and warring parties to transition to the peace agreement. Quick transition to the PIF will minimize the risk of early violation of the peace plan. Issues include enhanced authority for the UNPROFOR commander's use of airpower in advance of turnover, prompt withdrawal of those elements of UNPROFOR least capable of self-defense, rapid and clear transfer of authority to the PIF commander, explicit definition of PIF tasks and those assigned to UNPF during the transition, and rapid deployment of the US element of the PIF.

(6) Continuation of Air Support: An additional period of NATO Deny Flight support to the Federation after departure of the PIF could be needed to provide additional support to the Federation while its self-defense capabilities are being upgraded.

(7) Force Recruitment: Forces beyond those currently in the RRF and other NATO elements of UNPROFOR and those contributed by the US may be needed for the operation. A diplomatic effort to solicit additional forces may be needed.

(8) Force Composition: US/NATO policy must be formulated with respect to (a) Russian participation in the PIF, (b) Islamic nation participation in the PIF, and (c) Radical Islamic entities' involvement in arming/financing Federation forces.

(9) Mandate: For the PIF to work, both UNSC and NAC must support the mission with the appropriate mandate(s) (including Chapter VII ROE) and provide authority to the PIF as necessary for it to carry out its mission as a NATO-led (vice UN) operation with rules of engagement appropriate to its mission.

(10) Status of Forces: Given recent experiences in deploying the RRF, early attention should be given to completing comprehensive status of forces agreements for the PIF.

(11) Financing: Mission cost and financing arrangements must be determined. As this will be a NATO rather than a UN operation, the same questions will arise as have arisen during the staffing of OPLAN 40104. Within the US, a decision will be needed to seek new appropriations from the Congress. A timeline for financial decisions will be needed.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(12) Sequencing: The sequence of events within the USG, within the Contact Group, at NATO, at the UN and within the US, NATO, and UN military chains of command required to execute the plan remains to be developed.

(13) Congressional Consultation: A legislative plan must be developed for the Congressional consultations/approvals and/or legal processes that will be necessary and the steps which should be taken to avoid having Congressional and legal processes inordinately delay necessary military steps.

(14) Participation Criteria: The USG should set the same criteria for participation in this mission as were set for OPLANs 40103 and 40104. (Exclusively NATO C3, demonstrated peace in place, robust ROE, etc.)

(15) Follow-on Activities: Consideration should be given now to developing the concept for a much smaller UN or regionally-organized peacekeeping force that would monitor continuing compliance with the peace agreement following withdrawal of the PIF.

Deputies' Committee Action: ~~(S)~~ Recommend that the Deputies' Committee:

- Confirm the principles contained in this paper.
- Recommend Principals approve the above mission statement.
- Conduct preliminary discussion of and assign staffing responsibility for the issues identified.
- Direct State/OSD/JCS to initiate US planning and push for prompt initiation of NATO planning for the mission.

Multilateral Equipping and Training of the Bosnian Federation (U)

Scenario: ~~(S)~~ A peace plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina is accepted by all warring parties and includes a cessation of hostilities. There is international commitment to implement the provisions of the plan, including economic, diplomatic and military components. The principal military requirement is to create a stable environment during a limited period wherein the Bosnian Muslim-Croat Federation (the "Federation") is able to develop an effective self-defense relative to the Bosnian Serbs. To meet this requirement, two parallel programs are conducted: multilateral equipping and training of the Federation forces; a NATO force to implement the peace plan.

Assumptions: ~~(S)~~

- Public and Congressional support for the plan has been achieved.
- The arms embargo is lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia.
- Legal requirements for provision of equipment have been met.
- Overt operation.
- Bosnian Federation requests assistance.
- Croatia continues its support for and cooperation with the Federation.
- Croatia will grant access through its territory to Bosnia.
- "No-Fly" Zone will continue to be enforced.
- BSA will retain its offensive capability.
- Bosnian Federation Army can disengage to re-equip, re-organize, and train.
- Adequate training facilities and logistics are available.

Mission: ~~(S)~~ On order, USCINCEUR assumes operational control of a multi-national force from designated NATO and Non-NATO nations and conducts operations to equip and train selected elements of the Bosnian Federation Army to enhance its capability to defend the territorial integrity of the Bosnian Federation.

Intent: ~~(S)~~

- Multi-national effort, US led.
- Enhance Federation Army existing core capabilities and units.
- Develop Federation Army capability to sustain training program.
- Counter-balance Bosnian Serb Army (BSA) strengths.
- Focus on defensive tasks at the company and battalion levels and on brigade and higher staff operations.

Specified Tasks: ~~(S)~~

- USCINCEUR assume operational control of a multi-national force for the mission.
- Assess Federation Army capabilities and needs

- In coordination with the Federation Army, plan their reorganizing, reequiping, and training.
- Form a multi-national training and equipping team to execute the mission
- Facilitate the provision of equipment to the Federation Army by donor nations.
- Assist the Federation Army to execute the plan
- Ensure the self-defense and freedom of movement of the training and equipping team.

Framework: ~~(S)~~
- Equip/train would not be conducted by NATO Peace Implementation Force.
- Multilateral equip/train effort would be under US leadership.
- Training conducted primarily outside the Bosnian Federation. Other alternatives include Croatia, other European locations, or US.
- Equipment would be US, Former Warsaw Pact, or a mix.

Concept of Operations: ~~(S)~~ This would be a five-phase operation with phases overlapping:
- Phase I -- Assessment. Assess the doctrine, organization, equipment and training status. Determine equipment and training required; assess availability of equipment and training. Prepare legal basis for provision of equipment.
- Phase II -- Establish the support structure. Position equipment, organize training teams, and establish training facilities.
- Phase III -- Equip.
- Phase IV -- Train. Integrate leaders and equipment into units, complete individual training, and conduct unit training.
- Phase V -- Sustainment. Exercise units and transition units to training base facilities.

Desired End State: ~~(S)~~ Bosnian Federation Army has the capability of defending the territorial integrity of the Bosnian Federation against aggressors without external combat support (less "No Fly" Zone enforcement) within six months of mission start.

Issues: ~~(S)~~ The following issues should be discussed in the interagency before proceeding with further planning for execution of multilateral security assistance:

1. Initiation: Should begin as promptly as feasible upon all parties' acceptance of the peace plan and issuance of the necessary mandates.

2. Timing: The most vulnerable period with the greatest potential for a breakdown of the cease-fire is the transition period between the present situation with UNPROFOR in place and implementation of the peace plan with NATO in place. Needs to move on same timeline as peace implementation plan.

DRAFT
CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

3. Continuation of Air Support: Sustainment of "No-Fly" Zone operations and future Bosnian Federation air defense and air forces.

4. Methods/Financing: Costs, authorities, and financing arrangements (drawdown, security assistance, international contributions) must be determined. Within the US, a decision will be needed to seek new appropriations from the Congress. A timeline for financial decisions will be needed.

5. Sequencing: The sequence of events within the USG, within the Contact Group, at NATO, at the UN and within the US, NATO, and UN military chains of command are required to execute a multilateral equip/train program.

6. Congressional Consultation: A legislative plan must be developed for the Congressional consultations/approvals and/or legal processes that will be necessary and the steps which should be taken to avoid having Congressional and legal processes inordinately delay the necessary steps.

7. Legal: SOFAs, status of trainers/training area under the Law of Armed Conflict. Transfer of classified equipment and information.

8. Command and Control: US leadership of multinational effort. Missions tasked to CINCEUR, and most likely delegated to USAREUR for detailed planning, coordination and execution. Integrating the activities of the other donor nations.

9. Risk of enduring commitment: Tying US to Bosnian Federation Army failure.

10. Availability of Equipment. Availability of Former Warsaw Pact equipment, spare parts, and consumables.

Deputies' Committee Action: ~~(S)~~ Recommend the Deputies' Committee:

- Confirm the assumptions, mission, and specified tasks to meet the arming and training requirements while the two parallel programs (Arm & Train and implementation of the peace plan) are conducted.
- Recommend Principals approve the above mission statement.
- Conduct preliminary discussion of and assign staffing responsibility for these issues, and possibly others which are identified.
- Direct State/OSD/JCS to initiate US planning and push for prompt initiation of multilateral involvement.

Bosnia

Deputies Committee Discussion Paper
Humanitarian Assistance and Refugees

1. Access for humanitarian deliveries throughout FRY: Little has come of this effort. UNHCR is supportive; Belgrade said it has little control over the actions of the Bosnian Serbs.

Possible initiatives: Amb. Spiegal could raise with Mrs. Ogata and urge public statement from UNHCR; 2) we could demarche European capitals and urge public statements from them; 3) we could seek formal action at UN; 4) we could ask that this issue be raised by U.S. negotiators in the region.

2. Humanitarian assistance to Belgrade: Currently, State/PRM aid to UNHCR can go to Bosnian Serbs in Bosnia, but not to activities in the FRY. Likewise, State/PRM aid to ICRC is earmarked for use "particularly" in Bosnia and Croatia. State's political statement has not, up to now, had a large impact on the amount of humanitarian aid reaching priority beneficiary populations in the FRY. Based on recent increase in humanitarian needs and subject to a needs assessment, State and AID would now like to consider relief support to UNHCR, ICRC and other international and non-governmental organizations for projects in the FRY.

3. Money for Humanitarian Assistance: We have substantial monies remaining in humanitarian assistance accounts at State for the end of FY 95 (more than $80 million in unspent MRA and ERMA). Some of this will need to go to Rwanda and other areas of dire need, but much might go to Bosnian relief.

Possible initiative: Should we come forward with more aid and, if so, can and should we use it as a means to encourage greater access to all areas of need?

Summary of Conclusions

Implementation of a Bosnia Peace Settlement

1. Deputies met to finalize development of an integrated political/military plan for implementation of a Bosnian peace settlement. They reached agreement on several elements and tasked papers on several issues that require further analysis. These papers and a further and more detailed iteration of the OSD paper on the Peace Implementation Force (PIF) will be reviewed at another Deputies Meeting on Monday, August 28 (Action: OSD). Deputies will also review a paper for Principals summarizing key recommendations and issues for decision (Action: NSC). (S)

2. Overall Concept: Deputies agreed that our goal in implementing a settlement is to preserve Bosnia-Herzegovina as a single state comprised of two highly autonomous units. Our priority is to ensure the survival of the Bosniac-Croat Federation; this should be accomplished in the context of unity with the Bosnian Serb entity along with rights of association with Croatia and Serbia. (S)

Deputies agreed that the Peace Implementation Force (PIF) should be deployed primarily (but not exclusively) in Federation territory. The operational commander should have broad authority for self-protection of the force and to enforce the cease-fire and separation of forces against incidents initiated by any party, using overwhelming force if necessary. At the same time, Deputies agreed the PIF should have defined limits on the scope of its responsibilities and operational conduct. The Deputies agreed that the response to massive violations of the agreement would be "evenhanded but asymmetrical." In the event of Bosnian Serb violation of the agreement, the PIF should be authorized to respond using air and ground forces, but this response should follow a ladder of escalation. In the event of serious Bosnian Government violation of the agreement, the PIF would withdraw. Deputies further agreed the PIF should not disarm the parties and that some tasks, such as demarcation of borders and resettlement of civilians, could be accomplished by civilian officials or agencies. (S)

Taskings: State to draft brief overall mission statement for the PIF reflecting the limited tasks above. NSC to write a short paper identifying possible additional tasks for the PIF that may prove necessary, for example, if the settlement establishes a stronger central government or Bosnia-wide institutions. CIA to do an assessment of the Bosnian government's conception of a settlement and how this may alter the PIF's mission. OSD to do detailed mission statement as part of OSD paper. (S)

3. Gorazde: Deputies noted that Principals, in light of Bosnian Government resistance to trading Gorazde for other territories, had requested an examination of the requirements for ensuring the viability of Gorazde if it remains part of the Federation under the terms of a settlement. (S)

Taskings: DOD and CIA to assess implications for the PIF and the longer-term defense requirements for Gorazde following the departure of the PIF, using the Contact Group map as the baseline, but considering territorial improvements (e.g., larger corridor) as well. (S)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

4. Arms Limitations: Deputies agreed that our goal of establishing a stable military balance could best be achieved by a hybrid approach that would support enhancement of the self-defense capabilities of Federation armed forces (ABH and HVO) in tandem with efforts to reach agreement among all the parties to certain arms limitations or reductions. They agreed to separation zones (DMZs) and to examine inventory limits on CFE treaty limited equipment. They agreed that an arms control regime should have a regional context. (S)

Taskings: State, in coordination with OSD, to develop detailed options for narrow DMZs, separation of heavy weapons and/or exclusion zones, overall limits on heavy weapons and confidence-building measures that could be included as part of the settlement and/or pursued following implementation of a settlement. (S)

5. Exit Strategy: Deputies agreed that we need to establish a date certain for completion of the PIF mission. There was a consensus that the PIF should be terminated by the end of 1996. At the same time, we should identify mission-essential tasks that we would seek to complete prior to that date, although the PIF would withdraw whether or not all those tasks had been accomplished. (S)

Taskings: State to draft an initial timeline paper defining political, economic and military benchmarks for accomplishment of critical tasks. CIA to do an assessment of how the parties would react to knowing there was a date certain. (S)

6. National Participation/Funding: Deputies agreed that the PIF would be a NATO operation with limited non-NATO involvement. While there would be a UNSC resolution authorizing NATO to conduct the mission, there would be no dual key or other limitations on NATO command and control. Deputies agreed that no Ally should be excluded, but that the need for NAC consensus would force us to deal with Greek approval of Turkish participation. Deputies acknowledged that operational efficiency might be compromised by involvement of non-NATO forces but recognized that non-NATO participation will be politically necessary and, in some respects, desirable (e.g., as a proving ground for Partnership for Peace countries to operate with NATO forces). Non-NATO forces would be under NATO operational control similar to a CJTF. (S)

On funding, Deputies agreed that we would seek to follow the normal NATO approach, i.e., NATO and other contributors would pay their own way, with common costs assessed according to a variant of the NATO infrastructure formula. Funding arrangements more

advantageous to the U.S. would be difficult to negotiate with our Allies, but will be explored. (S)

Taskings: JCS/OSD to examine the political/military requirements and constraints of making the PIF a NATO-plus force, involving PFP partners and other non-NATO militaries. This should draw on previous NATO planning for implementation of the Vance-Owen plan (40103) and UNPROFOR extraction (40104). OSD/JCS to complete a cost estimate for the probable U.S. contribution to the PIF. The Peacekeeping Funding Group to reexamine alternative cost-sharing arrangements among the participants. (S)

7. Joint Commission: Deputies agreed that a Joint Commission with local subsidiaries should be established (comprising NATO, the Federation and the Bosnian Serbs) to resolve problems in implementing the military aspects of a settlement. This might have national and regional components. Deputies also agreed that there would be other aspects of settlement implementation (political, economic, humanitarian) that could be beyond the purview of the Joint Commission, and that we needed to develop a concept for how these would be handled and whether there would be a senior Secretary General's Representative for NATO, the UN or, perhaps, the OSCE. They agreed that any arrangement should exclude interference with the operation of the PIF (i.e., no dual keys). (S)

Tasking: State to draft a paper on the political analogue to the Joint Commission for implementing the non-military aspects of a settlement. (S)

8. Population Movements: Deputies agreed that the parties should have primary responsibility for population movements, with international relief agencies (UNHCR) providing secondary support. The PIF should generally avoid involvement in population movements, but it should be prepared to protect UNHCR personnel, aid convoys, and refugees in transit as necessary. Deputies also agreed that restitution and other forms of compensation were alternatives to resettlement that we should encourage the parties to explore. (S)

Tasking: State and USUN will do a paper on policy toward population movements, forced departures and associated enforcement mechanisms. (S)

Post-War Reconstruction Assistance

9. Deputies agreed that we urgently need a conceptual framework and initial plan for post-war regional reconstruction, as well as rough estimates of the overall cost, and the preferred cost-sharing among the U.S., EU, Japan and Islamic countries. They also expressed concerns about the difficulties of offsetting the U.S. contribution to the program on the basis of reductions in other programs. Deputies agreed that we would actively pursue the EU's offer to take the lead and press the EU, Japan and the Islamic states to clarify their contributions to the package. Deputies agreed that, in order to encourage Bosnian Government flexibility in the negotiations, Ambassador Holbrooke should be in a position by Monday to suggest the size of the U.S. contribution that the President will seek from the Congress in the event of a settlement (between $500 million and $1 billion over 3-5 years). They also agreed that we needed to inform the Congress immediately of our thinking on post-war reconstruction in the context of consultations on the progress of the U.S. diplomatic initiative. (S)

Taskings: State to develop a post-war reconstruction program for the region, in coordination with NSC, OMB, AID and other agencies. State to draft talking points for a call by National Security Advisor Lake to Spanish Foreign Minister Solana to reconfirm the EU's willingness to take the lead on reconstruction and to offer the parties such carrots as EU association and enhanced market access. State and NSC to draft talking points for Holbrooke's use with the Bosnians on August 28. State and NSC to draft a gameplan and talking points for Congressional consultations August 26-28; these points should be in the context of an overall review of the status of the peace initiative and should also reference our commitment to participate in an implementation force if there is an agreement they will explain our goals and why solid U.S. financial backing is essential. (S)

Sanctions

10. Deputies affirmed agreement on the main elements of our approach to sanctions relief for the FRY in the context of the U.S. diplomatic initiative: all UNSC sanctions, except those governing frozen assets subject to claims, would be suspended once there is a signed agreement; there would be a complete lifting of sanctions once implementation of the plan is completed; and Belgrade would receive less sweeping suspension of sanctions if it failed to agree to a solution for Eastern Slavonia at the time of signature. It was agreed that Deputies would need to decide at their next meeting how long we should hold Belgrade accountable for the actions of the Pale Serbs, and what would be the precise conditions for sanctions lifting. (S)

Tasking: OVP to circulate a paper on a proposed sanctions strategy, highlighting the 4 or 5 fundamental issues needing Deputies' attention, including the sanctions reimposition mechanism and linkages to a Croatia settlement and war crimes, in preparation for the Deputies' meeting on August 28. (S)

"Implementing a Balkan Peace Settlement (U)"

22 August 1995

~~(S)~~ KEY CHANGES TO OSD PAPER SINCE LAST DC (17 August):

- Assumptions concerning nature of peace plan itself added.
- Under "Specified Tasks", following items added:
  --Importance of rapid deployment
  –Enforce movement of units to designated areas.
- "Issues" added as follows:
  --"Pattern of Deployment"
  --"Federation Support"
  --"Zones of Separation"
  --"Armaments/Builddown"
  --"Contingent Responses"
  --"Mission Duration".

~~(S)~~ RECOMMENDED FOCUS FOR 23 AUGUST DC:

- To do its job, should the force be based and/or operate within Federation territory only or throughout Bosnia-Herzegovina? (Issue #1)

- What size force will be needed to implement the peace and how can the size be limited without endangering the ability to do the mission? (Issue #2)

- How will we reconcile US participation in both the impartial "peace implementation" mission and the inherently partial "equip and train" mission? Can our commitment to "Federation Support" if the peace fails be reconciled with the "peace implementation" mission? (Issue #5)

- What will happen if the peace breaks down? (Issue #18)

- The parallel "equip and train" mission will apparently be the controlling factor in mission duration. How long will it take and what are the military, diplomatic and domestic political consequences of mission duration? (Issue #19)

Implementing a Balkan Peace Settlement (U)
(Changes to paper since 17 August shown in bold italics)

Scenario: ~~(S)~~ A peace plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina is accepted by all warring parties and includes a cessation of hostilities. There is international commitment to implement the provisions of the plan, including economic, diplomatic and military components. The principal military requirement is to create a stable environment during a limited period wherein the Bosnian Muslim-Croat Federation (the "Federation") is able to develop an effective self-defense relative to the Bosnian Serbs. To meet this requirement, two parallel programs are conducted concurrently: Multilateral efforts to provide equipment and training to the Federation forces; a NATO-led force to implement the plan.

Assumptions: ~~(S)~~

- The peace plan includes the following provisions:
  - A cessation of hostilities.
  - Mutually recognized borders between the warring parties.
  - A joint commission to facilitate implementing and maintaining the provisions of the agreement.
  - At the appropriate time, forces of all sides move to designated areas.
  - The arms embargo is lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia and no disarmament by the warring parties is required.
  - The parties will not interfere with the activities of the PIF or the activities of humanitarian assistance organizations.
- Public and Congressional support for the plan has been achieved.
- All parties to the conflict agree to the settlement and the peace plan; both NATO and the UN Security Council endorse it by resolution as a NATO-led, non-blue helmeted, operation.
- Croatia continues its support for and cooperation with the Federation.
- Border monitors on the Bosnia-Serbia border are withdrawn.
- There will be no UN involvement in military decision making for the operation.
- UNPROFOR's mission is completed and its withdrawal is authorized.
- UK, FR and perhaps other elements of UNPROFOR transition to the NATO-led peace implementation force.
- UNCRO (reduced) & UNPREDEP operations continue under UN control.
- Humanitarian assistance operations underway continue and are adequate.
- US ground forces will be committed to the peace implementation force.
- Federation forces, once armed and trained, have to defend their country.

Mission: ~~(S)~~ On order, CINCSOUTH assumes operational control of designated NATO and non-NATO forces and conducts operations to enforce the terms of the peace agreement in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Classified by USDP

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Specified Tasks: ~~(S)~~ As long as the peace plan is substantially observed and only isolated violations occur, the Peace Implementation Force ("PIF") will:

- Deploy into the area as rapidly as possible to stabilize the situation, using existing FR/UK/NL RRF capabilities already in place to reduce the time needed to generate a credible military capability,
- Deter and respond to violations of the cease-fire,
- Monitor and enforce compliance by all parties with the peace agreement,
- Enforce movement of recalcitrant units to agreed positions, if necessary,
- Interact with the commission established in the peace plan,
- Ensure its own self defense and freedom of movement,
- Facilitate the provision of humanitarian aid in Bosnia-Herzegovina and be prepared to secure convoys, and
- Employ NATO air power in support of peace enforcement operations and in defense of peace implementation forces.

Parallel Functions: ~~(S)~~ The following functions will be performed by entities other than the PIF:

- Equipping & Training: Multilateral forces will provide equipment and related training to Federation forces to improve their ability to defend against outside aggression. This function could be conducted principally outside Bosnia-Herzegovina, would be accomplished as rapidly as possible to permit early withdrawal of the PIF, and may be in the context of efforts to limit growth of the external threat to the Federation.
- Air Support: Deny Flight operations will continue throughout the PIF's mission in Bosnia-Herzegovina. These forces will provide no-fly zone enforcement, close air support, suppression of enemy air defenses, and possibly strike operations to support the PIF (along the lines agreed in London in July).
- UNPROFOR Withdrawal: The UN will organize and conduct the withdrawal of those UNPROFOR forces not transitioning to the PIF.
- Other Support: Humanitarian assistance, human rights monitoring, and economic reconstruction efforts will proceed in parallel with the implementation of the plan.

Desired End State: ~~(S)~~ The mission of the PIF will be complete when the terms of the peace plan have been implemented by all parties and the Federation has enhanced its self-defense capability relative to the Bosnian Serbs.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Issues: ~~(S)~~ The following issues should be resolved in the interagency as development of the peace plan and planning for its execution continue:

(1) Pattern of Deployment: Discussions during development of the PIF concept have posited that the PIF might be stationed only on Federation territory as opposed to stationing throughout Bosnia-Herzegovina. Such stationing could detract from the perception of impartiality needed to carry out the PIF mission. Further, PIF deployment should initially focus on those areas most likely to be contentious during plan implementation.

(2) Mission/Force Calculus: SACEUR, who will execute the mission, is refining the forces he will need to do the job, seeking to develop a force sufficient to do the tasks assigned based on mission analysis. The expected degree of cooperation by the warring parties will be important in determining force requirements.

(3) Initiation: Deployment of the PIF should be ordered as promptly as feasible upon all parties' acceptance of the peace plan and issuance of the necessary mandates.

(4) UNPROFOR Withdrawal: The UN-organized withdrawal of those elements of UNPROFOR which will not transition to the PIF while the other elements of the PIF are deploying into the region will represent a considerable logistic effort and will tax the logistic infrastructure in Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatia and Serbia.

(5) Federation Support: The degree to which NATO will protect the Federation from Bosnian Serb aggression and the PIF's role in that mission requires resolution, as does NATO's response in the event that Croatian support for the plan and/or the Federation is withdrawn.

(6) Transition Period: The most vulnerable period with the greatest potential for a breakdown of the cease-fire will be during the simultaneous movement of NATO, UN and warring parties to transition to the peace agreement. Quick transition to the PIF will minimize the risk of early violation of the peace plan. Issues include enhanced authority for the UNPROFOR commander's use of airpower in advance of turnover, prompt withdrawal of those elements of UNPROFOR least capable of self-defense, rapid and clear transfer of authority to the PIF commander, explicit definition of PIF tasks and those assigned to UNPF during the transition, C2 relationships between the PIF and UNCRO/UNPREDEP, and rapid deployment of the US element of the PIF.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(7) Zones of Separation: Implementation of the peace plan could involve the establishment of demilitarized zones (DMZs) along the border between the Federation and the Bosnian Serbs and/or the establishment of heavy weapons exclusion zones to reduce the likelihood of cross-border attacks. The size and location of these zones and the PIF responsibilities for them must be determined.

how much more ?

(8) Armaments/Builddown: Federation self-defense capabilities vis-a-vis the Bosnian Serbs could be more quickly enhanced if the flow of arms to the Bosnian Serbs were constrained either as part of or an adjunct to the agreement. During the course of the negotiations, concepts which can help limit Bosnian Serb offensive capabilities should be pursued.

(9) Continuation of Air Support: An additional period of NATO Deny Flight support to the Federation after departure of the PIF could be needed to provide additional support to the Federation while its self-defense capabilities are being upgraded.

(10) Force Recruitment: Forces beyond those currently in the RRF and other NATO elements of UNPROFOR and those contributed by the US may be needed for the operation. A diplomatic effort to solicit additional forces may be needed.

(11) Force Composition: US/NATO policy must be formulated with respect to (a) which UNPROFOR forces should transition to the PIF, (b) Russian participation in the PIF, (c) Islamic nation participation in the PIF, and (d) Radical Islamic entities' support to Federation forces.

IRAN none

(12) Mandate: For the PIF to work, both UNSC and NAC must support the mission with the appropriate mandate(s) (including Chapter VII ROE) and provide authority to the PIF as necessary for it to carry out its mission as a NATO-led (vice UN) operation with rules of engagement appropriate to its mission.

(13) Status of Forces: Given recent experiences in deploying the RRF, early attention should be given to completing comprehensive Status of Forces Agreements for the PIF.

(14) Financing: Mission cost and financing arrangements must be determined. As this will be a NATO rather than a UN operation, the same questions will arise as have arisen during the staffing of OPLAN 40104. Within the US, a decision will be needed to seek new appropriations from the Congress. A timeline for financial decisions will be needed.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(15) Sequencing: The sequence of events within the USG, within the Contact Group, at NATO, at the UN and within the US, NATO, and UN military chains of command required to execute the plan remains to be developed.

(16) Congressional Consultation: A legislative plan must be developed for Congressional consultations/approvals and/or legal processes that will be needed and the steps which should be taken to avoid having these processes inordinately delay necessary military steps.

(17) Participation Criteria: The USG should set the same criteria for participation in this mission as were set for OPLANs 40103 and 40104. (Exclusively NATO C3, demonstrated peace in place, robust ROE, etc.)

(18) Contingent Responses: In the event of a systematic breakdown of the peace and the return of wide-scale war, the PIF will:

- If the breakdown is precipitated by Federation forces' aggression, the PIF will defend itself and withdraw from Bosnia-Herzegovina. Deny Flight air support and equipping and training the Federation forces will cease.
- If the breakdown is precipitated by Bosnian Serb forces' aggression, the PIF will assist the Federation in its defense, with support from Deny Flight air assets. NATO air will also be prepared to conduct wider attacks consistent with the London agreement. Equipping and training Federation forces will continue.
- If the breakdown is due to the actions of both parties or the situation is ambiguous, further policy direction will be provided.

(19) Mission Duration: The duration of the PIF mission will be determined by both the time needed for it to perform its peace implementation tasks and the time it takes other forces to accomplish the equipping and training functions described above. The "equip and train" function will probably be the controlling factor for PIF withdrawal. Withdrawal itself could take several months.

(20) Follow-on Activities: Consideration should be given now to developing the concept for a much smaller UN or regionally-organized peacekeeping force that would monitor continuing compliance with the peace agreement following withdrawal of the PIF.

Principals' Committee Action: ~~(S)~~ Recommend that the Principals' Committee:

- Confirm the principles contained in this paper.
- Approve the above mission statement.
- Confirm the list of issues.
- Confirm initiation of US planning and support prompt initiation of NATO planning for the mission.

Multilateral Equipping and Training of the Bosnian Federation (U)

Scenario: (S) A peace plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina is accepted by all warring parties and includes a cessation of hostilities. There is international commitment to implement the provisions of the plan, including economic, diplomatic and military components. The principal military requirement is to create a stable environment during a limited period wherein the Bosnian Muslim-Croat Federation (the "Federation") is able to develop an effective self-defense relative to the Bosnian Serbs. To meet this requirement, two parallel programs are conducted concurrently: multilateral effort to provide equipment and training to the Federation forces; a NATO-led force to implement the peace plan.

Assumptions: (S)

- Public and Congressional support for the plan has been achieved.
- The arms embargo is lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia.
- Legal requirements for provision of equipment have been met.
- Overt operation.
- Bosnian Federation requests assistance.
- Croatia continues its support for and cooperation with the Federation.
- Croatia will grant access through its territory to Bosnia.
- "No-Fly" Zone will continue to be enforced.
- BSA will retain its offensive capability.
- Bosnian Federation Army can disengage to equip and train.
- Adequate training facilities and logistics are available.

Mission: (S) On order, USCINCEUR assumes operational control of a multi-national force from designated NATO and non-NATO nations and conducts operations to equip and train selected elements of the Bosnian Federation Army to enhance its capability to defend the territorial integrity of the Bosnian Federation.

Intent: (S)

- Multi-national effort, US led.
- Enhance Federation Army existing core capabilities and units.
- Develop Federation Army capability to sustain training program.
- Counter-balance Bosnian Serb Army (BSA) strengths.
- Focus on defensive tasks at the company and battalion levels and on brigade and higher staff operations.
- Begin as promptly as feasible upon all parties' acceptance of the peace plan and issuance of the necessary mandates.
- Move concurrently on same timeline as peace implementation plan.

Specified Tasks: ~~(S)~~

- USCINCEUR assume operational control of a multi-national force for the mission.
- Assess Federation Army capabilities and needs.
- In coordination with the Federation Army, plan their equipping and training.
- Form a multi-national training and equipping team to execute the mission.
- Facilitate the provision of equipment to the Federation Army by donor nations.
- Assist the Federation Army to execute the plan.
- Ensure the self-defense and freedom of movement of the training and equipping team.

Framework: ~~(S)~~

- Equip/train would not be conducted by NATO Peace Implementation Force.
- Multilateral equip/train effort would be under US leadership.
- Training conducted primarily outside the Bosnian Federation. Other alternatives include Croatia, other European locations, or US.
- Equipment would be US, former Warsaw Pact, or a mix.

Concept of Operations: ~~(S)~~ This would be a five-phase operation with phases overlapping:

- Phase I -- Assessment. Assess the doctrine, organization, equipment and training status. Determine equipment and training required; assess availability of equipment and training. Prepare legal basis for provision of equipment.
- Phase II -- Establish the support structure. Position equipment, organize training teams, and establish training facilities.
- Phase III -- Equip.
- Phase IV -- Train. Integrate leaders and equipment into units, complete individual training, and conduct unit training.
- Phase V -- Sustainment. Exercise units and transition units to training base facilities.

Desired End State: ~~(S)~~ Bosnian Federation Army has the capability of defending the territorial integrity of the Bosnian Federation against aggressors without external combat support within nine months of mission start.

Issues: (S) The following issues should be discussed in the interagency before proceeding with further planning for execution of multilateral security assistance:

(1) Legal. There are significant domestic and international legal issues that must be resolved by interagency coordination. The primary domestic legal consideration is determining legal authority for providing US assistance. A legislative strategy must be developed for Congressional consultations. International legal concerns include SOFAs, for both the training site country and B-H, and the status of trainers and training sites under the Law of Armed Conflict.

What limitations is Congress likely to place on US participation in this effort? How much time will be required to establish a comprehensive SOFA for training in Croatia, a NATO member country, possible Middle East nations?

(2) Funding.

Funding requirement. Assessment of equipment and training requirements must establish overall funding requirement. At a minimum, funding must include equipment, spares, consumables, maintenance, sustainment. Funding must also be found for building a Federation air defense capability and for any No-Fly Zone operations past initial equip and train timeline.

Funding sources. Funding sources must be identified to include US, regional organizations, and bilateral. Within USG, must consider all existing legal authorities: security assistance, supplemental appropriation, and drawdown. If drawdown, what is the potential impact on readiness? If new appropriations are necessary, how long will Congressional approval take? Will Congress be willing to apply the $100 million proposed in the Senate bill? Will they establish a formal Security Assistance funding level? Internationally, can a "Gulf" account be established? What is the best means to acquire third country contributions/ procurements/grants? Can solicitation of international funding begin now as a signal of US commitment?

(3) Equipment availability.

Availability. Equipment necessary to establish balance of power must be available, sustainable, maintainable. Equipment must be available for transport into region within timeline established. Issues requiring further definition during assessment phase:

What type of equipment: former Warsaw Pact, NATO, US, mixed? Current estimate indicates former Warsaw Pact equipment is the best option because of relative cost and availability, and it presently forms the basis of Federation equipment inventory. Would departing UNPF units be willing to leave some equipment behind? Are spare parts and consumables available? Is stock (US and other contributing nations) sufficient to meet requirement and timeline? Can equipment be maintained and sustained by Bosnian Federation forces? What international linkages and leverages are involved with sustaining particular types of equipment? What is effect of linkages on long-term stability?

(4) Command and Control.

Establishing US command authority for equip and train operations for Bosnian Federation. US leadership must be established to ensure multinational efforts are coordinated to achieve the desired end state. Mission will be tasked to CINCEUR, and most likely delegated to USAREUR for detailed planning, coordination, and execution. Efforts by the international community to equip and train warring factions could easily result in small "arms race" establishing an imbalance of power thereby destabilizing the region. How will other nations be integrated into effort? Will others accept US leadership? Can the US prevent/limit participation by potentially disruptive nations (e.g. Iran)? How will unity of effort be achieved to avoid multiple, uncoordinated equip/train efforts? Can UN/EU/NATO/CSCE establish international authority for unity of effort?

(5) Operational.

Multinational air support. There are two scenarios to consider. If there is a peace agreement, then what air support should be provided the Federation during the equip/train program? Should the air support be extended beyond the program for some limited period? If there is no agreement, then what air support should be provided and for how long? Under both conditions, where are NFZ operations continued: over Federation, over Federation and SRBH, or over all of Former Yugoslavia? Should NFZ include fixed wing, helicopters, active SAM sites?

Federation air defense. Should we assist the Bosnian Federation in establishing air defense to counterbalance Bosnian Serbs? Is air defense capability provided the Federation from the outset of the equip/train program? How should establishment of Federation air defense be coordinated so as to minimize potential threat to Deny Flight? What capability should the Federation possess: guns, missiles, a mix?

Defensive force. The arms embargo will be lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia. Establishment of numerical limits and zonal sub-limits (DMZs, areas of restricted maneuvering/operations) may be required for all warring parties to achieve and maintain a balance of power. Such limits could include heavy equipment (tanks, APCs, aircraft, naval vessels), and force structure (active and reserve). Decisions required: What are the limits necessary for

Federation self-defense? At what point does a strong defensive force become a possible offensive threat to regional stability? How many tanks, mortars, aircraft, ships? Who determines limits: warring parties via peace plan, EU, CSCE, NATO, or US? Who develops initial stabilization measures (measures of transparency, constraint, reinforce confidence, monitoring compliance/evaluation)? Who maintains measures: EU, CSCE, NATO?

(6) Risk of enduring US commitment. Direct US ties to the Bosnian Federation Army may result in long term commitment. Failure of Bosnian Army may be US failure. Must establish exit strategy which disengages US from maintaining the Bosnian Federation. What is the exit strategy? Is it based on time, capability of Bosnian Federation forces to counter threat?

Deputies' Committee Action: (S) Recommend the Deputies' Committee:

- Confirm the assumptions, mission, and specified tasks to meet the arming and training requirements while the two parallel programs (Arm & Train and implementation of the peace plan) are conducted.
- Recommend Principals approve the above mission statement.
- Conduct preliminary discussion of and assign staffing responsibility for these issues, and possibly others which are identified.
- Direct State/OSD/JCS to initiate US planning and push for prompt initiation of multilateral involvement, to include hosting an international conference in Washington to solicit multi-national support.

Former Yugoslavia Post-Settlement Assistance

- $1 billion is our estimate of USG assistance funding (not including peacekeeping) required if peace breaks out.
  - -- Reconstruction would focus on Bosnia and the UNPA's in Croatia--that is where the war damage has occurred.
  - -- Humanitarian aid would be distributed more broadly, assuming the ban on U.S. aid in Serbia is lifted.
  - -- Payment of arrears is critical to Bosnia joining the IMF and World Bank and should be regarded as an essential aspect of the post-settlement assistance.
- Likely international affairs (function 150) budget levels for FYs 1996-97 include funding for only a fraction of the reconstruction requirements identified.
  - -- Humanitarian assistance should be adequate to meet projected needs, but nothing is budgeted to help clear former Yugoslavia arrears to IFIs.
- Were the Administration to seek additional funding for the former Yugoslavia from Congress as part of the normal appropriations process, appropriators may well insist on offsetting cuts from other programs.
  - -- The most likely source of offsets would be SEED and NIS funds.
  - -- SEED has only $30 million for Bosnia in FY 96 (out of anticipated $324 million); an additional contribution of $100 million would greatly diminish our ability to foster irreversible democratic and market transitions in Central Europe and seriously endanger the success so far achieved.
  - -- Alternatively, appropriators might agree to provide additional funding in the FY 96 Foreign Operations Appropriations Bill, so long as overall budget allocations are not exceeded. We have argued to have additional funding provided for the MDBs, Economic Support Funds, NIS account and other priorities.
- Our best shot would be to get a Bosnia/Croatia FY 95 supplemental or FY 96 budget amendment through Congress before the end of the fiscal year (September 30).
- Such a supplemental would include:
  - -- reimbursements for DOD costs;
  - -- about $600 million to pay UNPROFOR arrears;
  - -- reconstruction costs.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Wendy Sherman, who will discuss this with you directly, has declined to clear this material, believing the EU should be heard from first and that USG funding would necessarily have to come out of existing 150 appropriations.

- EUR believes EU willingness to be forthcoming in the event of a peace settlement is unquestionable.

- EB has also objected on grounds that the U.S. share should be less and that Bosnian arrears are so large as to warrant further discussion of how the issue should be resolved.

Talking points

--The USG would need a $1 billion assistance package over three years to do its part in supporting a peace agreement, in addition to the funding required for peacekeeping.

--We would look to Western Europe, Japan and the Muslim countries to cover the additional $3 billion required.

--In State's view, the best way to fund this assistance package would be an end-of-year supplemental that also includes the peacekeeping requirements.

(if needed)

--No reconstruction funding should be requested for Serbia, which has suffered no war damage. The USG bar on humanitarian assistance there should be lifted. Once FRY arrears are paid (we do not propose USG funding for this purpose), Serbia would have access to IFI funding.

Concept Paper

Comprehensive Post-settlement Assistance Package for Ex-Yugoslavia

1. Principles

a. Humanitarian assistance should be driven by needs, with equal treatment across ethnic groups and a clear phasedown strategy.

b. Reconstruction assistance should reinforce political and economic objectives:

--preservation of territorial integrity of sovereign states (in particular Bosnia-Herzegovina)

--multiethnic democracy

--return of refugees

--development of private enterprise and a market economy

c. Limited military cooperation should --contribute to stability

--limit the potential for future conflict

--encourage observance of international norms

--exclude indicted war criminals.

2. Mechanisms

a. Humanitarian assistance should continue to be delivered by U.N. organizations, PVOs and national governments.

b. Reconstruction assistance should be implemented in coordination with national governments (ie, Zagreb and Sarajevo) and NGO's; donor coordination should be through the IBRD.

c. Military assistance should also be coordinated through national governments.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

3. Country-specific considerations

a. Croatia:

--Humanitarian: needs should decline as displaced persons and refugees return to their homes.

--Reconstruction/development: aid should be focussed on the former UNPA's, where it should be used to encourage return of Serb as well as Croat refugees.

--Military: PMRI and IMET to continue.

b. Bosnia:

--Humanitarian: obstacles to return of Croat, Muslim and Serb DP's and refugees should be removed, but realistically many may choose not to do so; continuing but declining need for humanitarian assistance.

--Reconstruction/development: aid should be conditional on reestablishment of multiethnic society, which would mean no assistance to areas that will not permit return of DP's and refugees or refuse to build up democratic institutions open on an equal basis to all.

--Military: likewise, assistance should be directed to and through multiethnic institutions (Federation Army) and not permitted to ethnically pure ones (HVO, Bosnian Serb Army).

c. FRY:

--Humanitarian: Croatian Serb refugees should be encouraged to return by establishment of conditions of safety and decency in Croatia, but realistically speaking many may choose not to do so; there will be a continuing need for humanitarian assistance.

--Economic and democratic development: Serbia proper has suffered no war destruction; assistance should be through normal IFI mechanisms; USG would not help clear arrears.

--Military: limited IMET program for the FRY military, conditional on no crackdown in Kosovo.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

4. Resources required and available

a. Croatia:

--Humanitarian: current $200 million?

--Reconstruction/development:

- Current: FY95 $14.5 million; FY96 $9.6 million
- Needed: $100 million/year for reestablishment of multiethnic society in former UNPA's.

--Military: IMET FY95 $65,000; MPRI is paid by the GoC.

b. Bosnia

--Humanitarian: current: about $800 million

--Reconstruction/Development:

- Current: FY95 $25.2 million
- Needed in the event of a settlement: $300 million in the first year, rising to $500 million in each of the next two years

--Military:

- Current: FY95 $70,000, FY 96 $200,000
- Needed in the event of a settlement: DoD "arm and train" plus $10 million for "military in a democracy" focussed on the Federation Army

c. FRY

--Humanitarian: current: nil

--Economic and democratic development

- Current: nil
- Needed in the event of a settlement: nil

--Military: begin small IMET program

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

5. Current international context: spending is at about $1.2 billion/year

a. Humanitarian assistance: current expenditure (FY 95) about $1 billion, not counting UNPROFOR; this should decline with a settlement

b. Reconstruction/development: current expenditure is almost entirely in Bosnia, at perhaps $220 million per year ($170 million from Western Europe)

c. Military: minimal, except for unknown amount of Islamic country military assistance to the GoBH

6. Comprehensive international aid package for the future: $4.0 billion over three years

a. Requirement: $1.9 billion in the first year

--Humanitarian assistance: $1000 million

--Reconstruction/development: $400 million

--Payment of arrears: $500 million (one-time)

$1.2 billion in the second year, $900 million in the third, with humanitarian assistance declining, reconstruction/development increasing (see charts)

b. U.S. share

--One-quarter of total ($500 million in the first year, $1 billion total)

c. Burdensharing

--One-quarter from Europe

--One-quarter from Islamic moderates

--One-quarter from the Japanese

* Includes all territory of Bosnia-Herzegovina as defined in 1992.  focuses on economic development and reconstruction activities in conflicted areas only.

ASSUMPTIONS:

Peace will be achieved by the end of the calendar year.

Assistance program will only cover territory within internationally recognized borders.

Program aim is to quickly and effectively provide assistance, demonstrating U.S. committment to countries who have signed the peace agreement. This budget assumes bi-lateral programs undertaking both short-term and longer-term economic, democratic and social development. These assistance efforts are expected to encourage other bi-lateral as well as multi-lateral assistance.

The U.S. assistance program is to renovate, rehabilitate and strengthen key assistance sectors. Major infrastructure rehabilitation will require multi-national (IFIs) participation. The 3 year intervention is to be complementary to the full fledged involvement of the IFIs. Our timeline assumes the IFIs will increasing undertake the infrastructure renovation.

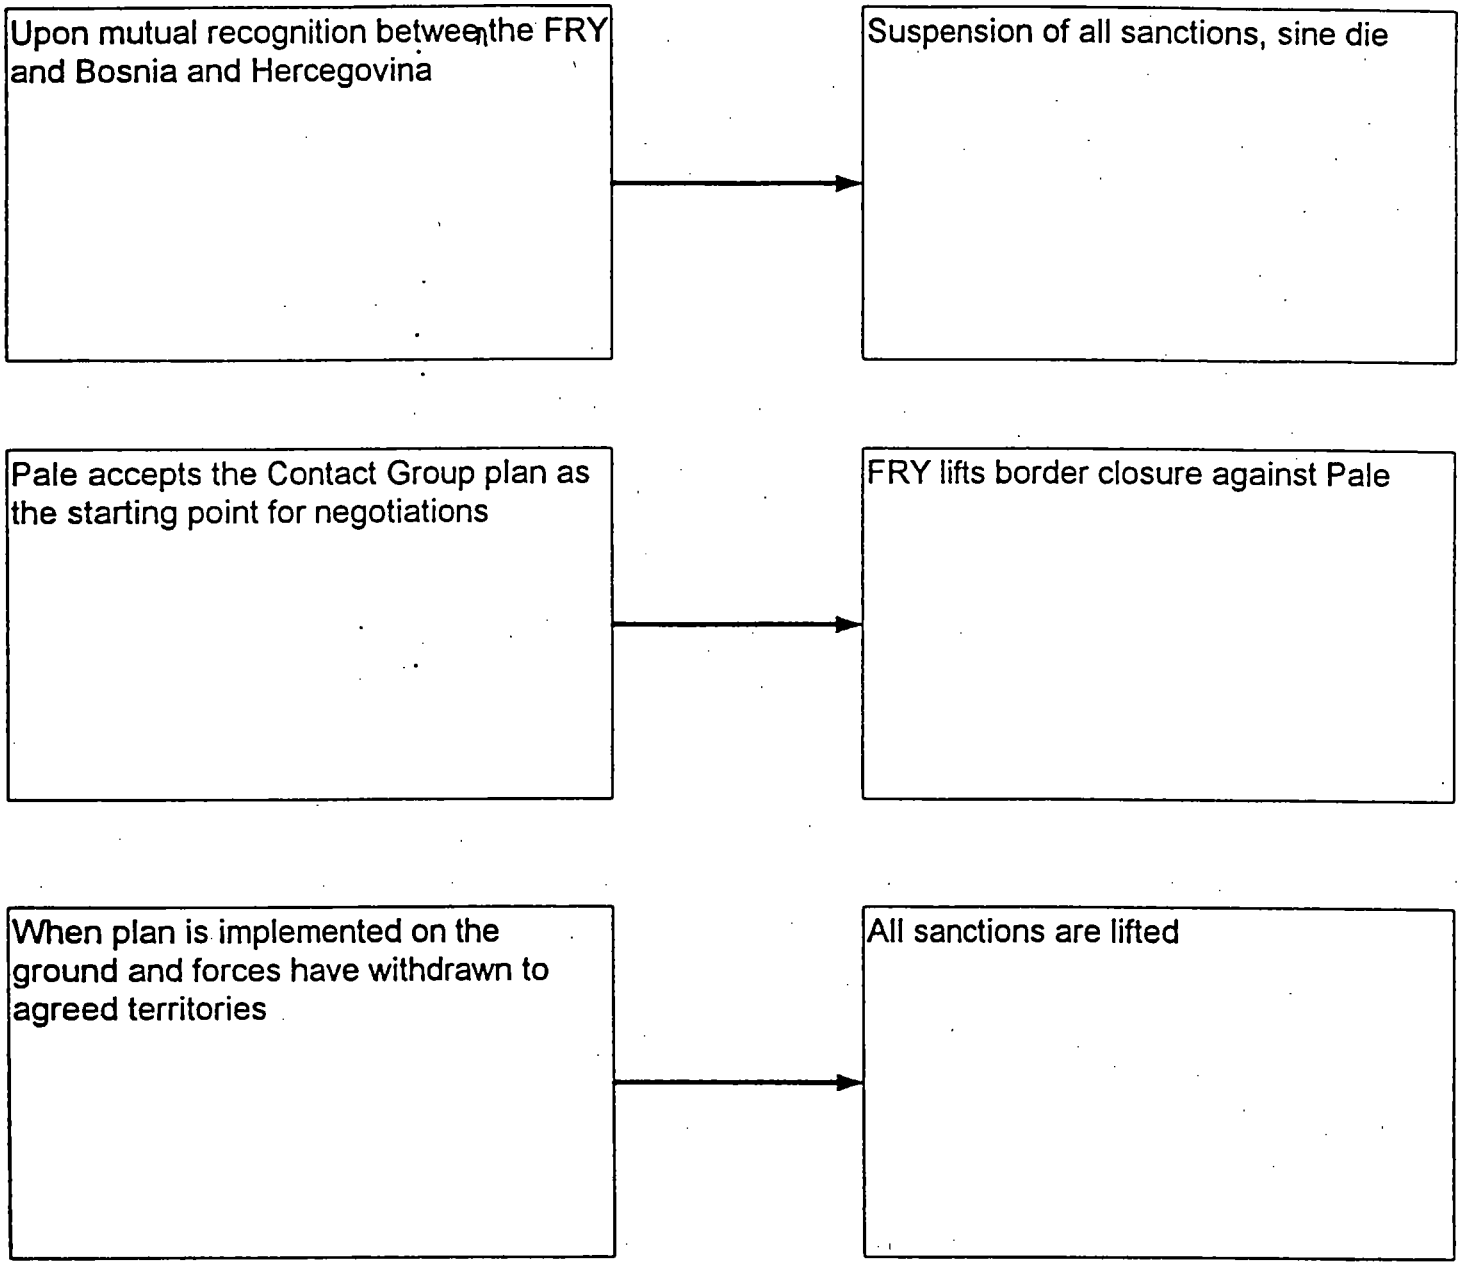
Milosevic's "Framework Agreement"

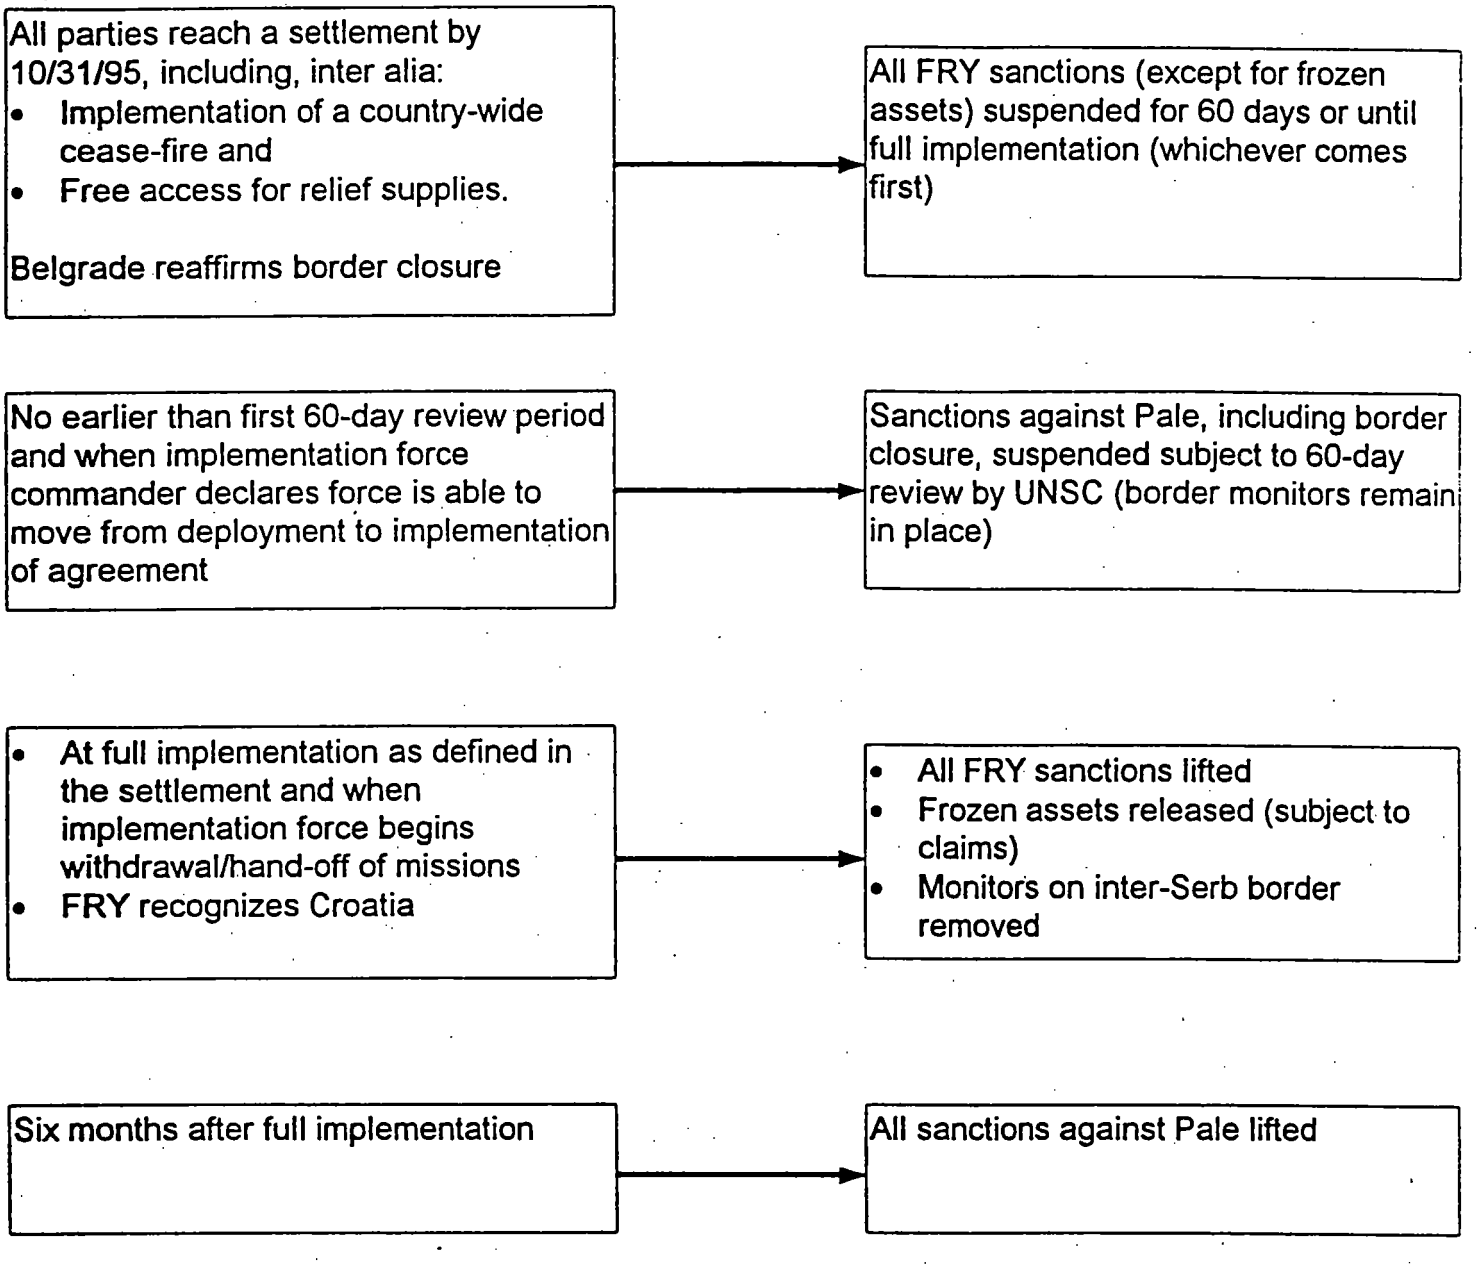


Frozen assets: Not mentioned, but probably released in first step.

Reimposition mechanism: None.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Proposed Sanctions Strategy - 8/21/95



Reimposition mechanisms:

- Automatic if settlement not implemented by date specified in the settlement.
- Automatic upon report by implementation force commander that Pale and/or Belgrade is impeding implementation or otherwise failing to fulfill obligations
- UNSC must vote to extend sanctions suspensions every 60 days during the implementation period.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Proposed Sanctions Strategy - 8/21/95

Suspension

- If the parties reach a settlement by October 31, the Contact Group will recommend that the UNSC suspend all sanctions against Belgrade (except the freeze on assets). Settlement must include, inter alia:
    - Country-wide cease-fire.
    - Full access for relief supplies.
    - FRY commitment to maintain border closure.

- Sanctions against Pale -- including the FRY's closure of its border with Bosnia -- will remain in place until at least 60 days after the settlement is signed and until the implementation force commander reports that sufficient forces have deployed for the force to begin its implementation mission.

Reimposition

- The settlement should define what constitutes full implementation and establish a date certain to accomplish those goals. Sanctions against Belgrade and Pale will be automatically reimposed if the agreement was not implemented by that date -- unless the UNSC votes to extend sanctions relief on the grounds that Belgrade and Pale has made good-faith efforts to fulfill the settlement and delays are the result of GOBH actions.

- Sanctions against Belgrade and Pale will be automatically reimposed if at any time during the implementation period ICFY reports that Belgrade is no longer enforcing the border closure and/or the Commander of the Peace Implementation Force reports that the Bosnian Serbs have

    - impeded deployment of the PIF or otherwise prevented it from accomplishing its mission,

    - stalled implementation through refusal to re-deploy forces or failure to abide by the final map,

    - violated the country-wide cessation of hostilities, and/or

    - interfered with humanitarian deliveries.

- During the implementation period, the UNSC must vote every 60 days to extend sanctions relief based on Pale's efforts to implement the peace settlement as outlined in the preceding paragraph and Belgrade's continued closure of the border and support for the peace process.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Lift

- Upon full implementation of the peace settlement and FRY recognition of Croatia, the Contact Group will recommend that all sanctions against Belgrade be lifted (including frozen assets except for those subject to claims).

- Six months after full implementation, the UNSC will vote to lift all sanctions against Pale, provided the Bosnian Serbs continue to live up to the terms of the settlement.

Flexibility

- If there is no settlement by October 31, the Contact Group retains the option of recommending more limited sanctions relief (e.g.: oil import quota, non-strategic trade, etc.), subject to periodic renewal by the UNSC, if Belgrade has

  - recognized Croatia and Bosnia,

  - tightened its border closure with Bosnia, and

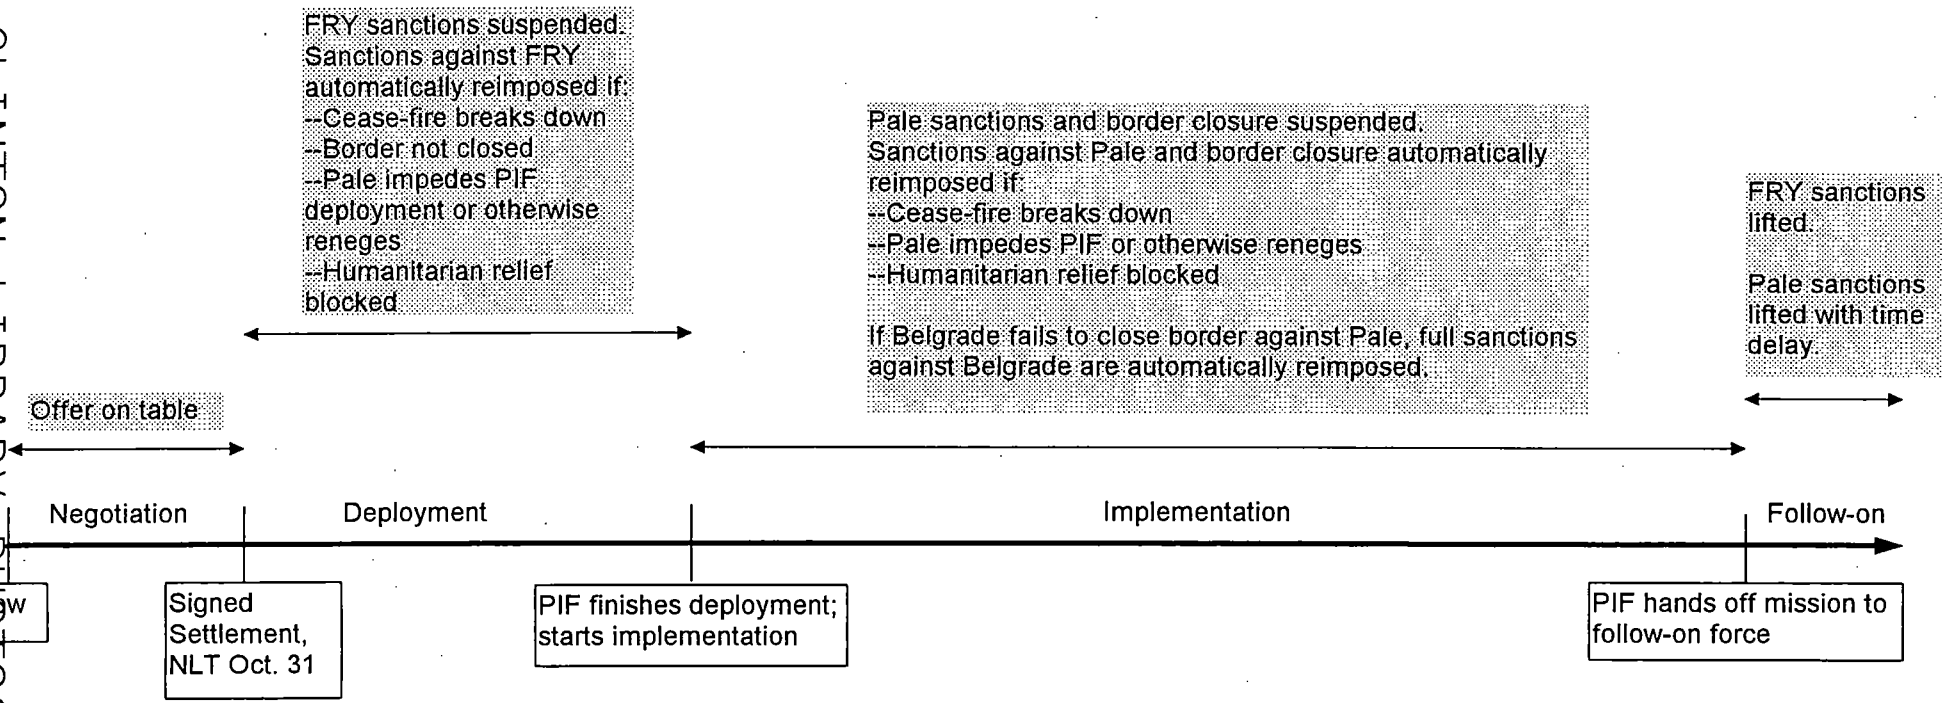
  - induced Pale to enter into a country-wide cease-fire and allow free passage of humanitarian supplies.

(This approach is similar to the Bildt approach, as modified and limited in the USG's August 2 internal paper.)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

SUBJECT: Addendum to Proposed Sanctions Relief Package

It is important to visualize what happens during the implementation phase of the settlement to understand how the proposed reimposition measures hold Belgrade and Pale accountable for their actions. The following time-line illustrates automatic reimposition arrangements and how primary accountability shifts from Belgrade to Pale once the PIF deploys and begins its implementation mission.



CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Automatic reimposition occurs when the PIF commander declares that actions by the Bosnian Serbs are preventing his force from deploying or otherwise accomplishing its mission. This is a highly credible trigger because it depends on the commander's assessment of threats to his force's safety and its ability to carry out specific tasks. The proposed sanctions relief strategy supplements these automatic reimposition procedures with a requirement that the Security Council vote every 60 days to extend sanctions relief. Any permanent member of the Council can veto the extension, thus causing reimposition of sanctions.

Belgrade and other Contact Group members may find the 60-day review too restrictive. Because of the credibility of the automatic reimposition provisions, we may be able to accept an arrangement under which any permanent Security Council member can challenge the sanctions suspensions at any time on grounds that Belgrade and/or Pale have reneged on obligations. Sanctions would then be reimposed if three of the five permanent members votes to end sanctions relief.

Summary of Conclusions

Implementation of a Bosnia Peace Settlement

1. Deputies met to advance the integrated political/military plan for implementation of a Bosnian peace settlement. They agreed to finalize a draft memo to Principals by Wednesday, August 30, summarizing their main conclusions and recommendations on: (A) issues affecting the ongoing negotiations, and (B) issues relating to implementation of a Bosnian peace settlement (Action: NSC). (S)

2. Peace Implementation Force: Deputies expressed satisfaction with the latest draft of the DoD concept paper on "Implementing a Peace Settlement." In reviewing the NSC paper on "Additional Tasks for the PIF," they agreed that the PIF should only play a limited role, as essential to the conduct of its core mission, in such areas as civil works, population movements, and relief support. They also agreed that some of the possible additional functions, such as border demarcation/monitoring and arms control implementation, should be conducted by civilian authorities. State offered to address the integration of requisite political and military functions in its paper on the political counterpart to the PIF Joint Commission. They also agreed that the IWG should review the DoD paper on Gorazde at the August 29 SVTS (Action: State/NSC). (S)

3. DENY FLIGHT, Air Cover, and the PIF: Deputies discussed the problems of creating a stable military balance during and after the implementation of the settlement given the fact that the Bosnian Government has no aircraft or air defenses to counter the Bosnian Serb's Air Force and links to the integrated air defense network of the former Yugoslavia. JCS and OSD noted that giving the Bosnian government aircraft or even a limited air defense capability would be very costly. State argued that if NATO air strikes were the equalizer in the pre-PIF era, they should remain so during implementation of a settlement and, if necessary, for a period of time after the PIF's departure. Deputies agreed these issues should be highlighted in the memorandum to Principals and that they would discuss this issue further in the context of their review of a State paper on timelines for implementation of a settlement. As a first step, JCS will draft a paper on continuation of air support beyond the PIF (Action: JCS). (S)

4. Economic Reconstruction Plan: Deputies agreed that discussion with the parties, other donors, or the Congress of specific dollar figures for the reconstruction plan at this point is both premature and possibly counterproductive. They agreed that Principals should endorse a general statement on the scope of the plan and a range of U.S. contributions to it. They agreed the plan should include: a humanitarian element, which would decline over a two-year period; provisions for reconstruction of infrastructure, with a major role for the IFIs; and support for market reforms and restructuring to ensure that the old socialist economic legacy is overcome. They also agreed that the U.S. should serve as a catalyst in this effort, with the EU taking the lead and with major contributions from Japan and the Islamic states -- including those in Southeast Asia. They agreed that the State paper on reconstruction should be refined to clarify the scope of the plan. State was also tasked with a gameplan for consultations with the EU, Japan, Islamic states, and the IFIs to be presented to Principals. Treasury agreed to do a paper examining various debt issues, including arrearages (Action: State/Treasury). (S)

5. Sanctions Relief: Deputies reviewed the OVP papers on sanctions relief under the U.S. diplomatic initiative. They agreed to defer the question of whether the offer of suspension is open-ended or time-limited. They also discussed the mechanism for reimposition and the linkage to Croatia, noting the time-sequencing problem if achievement of a settlement on Eastern Slavonia takes longer than the 10-12 months envisioned for sanctions suspension. They agreed that the issues of sanctions relief for Pale and how long to hold Milosevic accountable for the Pale Serb actions should be open to review as the negotiations evolve (No new action). (S)

6. Arm and Train: Deputies discussed the DoD paper briefly and agreed that training could be conducted in Bosnia by non-PIF personnel. They also agreed that the IWG should review the following questions during its August 29 SVTS: provision of close air support/no-fly enforcement during the implementation period; how to exclude participation by Iran in the coalition; legal matters; funding; involvement of allies/others; whether/how this program could be conducted in the absence of a UN Security Council resolution to lift the arms embargo; and Croatia's involvement (Action: IWG). (S)

7. Outstanding Papers: Deputies agreed to review at a later date State papers on arms control, implementation timelines, and a political analogue to the Joint Commission; DoD papers on cost estimates for the U.S. contribution to the PIF and how to make the PIF work as a NATO force; and OMB's paper on financing options for the PIF. Summary of Conclusions

Implementation of a Bosnia Peace Settlement

1. Deputies met to finalize development of an integrated political/military plan for implementation of a Bosnian peace settlement. They reached agreement on several elements and tasked papers on several issues that require further analysis. These papers and a further and more detailed iteration of the OSD paper on the Peace Implementation Force (PIF) will be reviewed at another Deputies Meeting on Monday, August 28 (Action: OSD). ~~(S)~~

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
CIA Historical Collections Division
NARA 10-14 10/1/2013
2013-0682-M (3.22)

Deputies will also review a paper for Principals summarizing key recommendations and issues for decision (Action: NSC). ~~(S)~~

2. Overall Concept: Deputies agreed that our goal in implementing a settlement is to preserve Bosnia-Herzegovina as a single state comprised of two highly autonomous units. Our priority is to ensure the survival of the Bosniac-Croat Federation; this should be accomplished in the context of unity with the Bosnian Serb entity along with rights of association with Croatia and Serbia. ~~(S)~~

Deputies agreed that the Peace Implementation Force (PIF) should be deployed primarily (but not exclusively) in Federation territory. The operational commander should have broad authority for self-protection of the force and to enforce the cease-fire and separation of forces against incidents initiated by any party, using overwhelming force if necessary. At the same time, Deputies agreed the PIF should have defined limits on the scope of its responsibilities and operational conduct. The Deputies agreed that the response to massive violations of the agreement would be "evenhanded but asymmetrical." In the event of Bosnian Serb violation of the agreement, the PIF should be authorized to respond using air and ground forces, but this response should follow a ladder of escalation. In the event of serious Bosnian Government violation of the agreement, the PIF would withdraw. Deputies further agreed the PIF should not disarm the parties and that some tasks, such as demarcation of borders and resettlement of civilians, could be accomplished by civilian officials or agencies. ~~(S)~~

Taskings: State to draft brief overall mission statement for the PIF reflecting the limited tasks above. NSC to write a short paper identifying possible additional tasks for the PIF that may prove necessary, for example, if the settlement establishes a stronger central government or Bosnia-wide institutions. CIA to do an assessment of the Bosnian government's conception of a settlement and how this may alter the PIF's mission. OSD to do detailed mission statement as part of OSD paper. ~~(S)~~

3. Gorazde: Deputies noted that Principals, in light of Bosnian Government resistance to trading Gorazde for other territories, had requested an examination of the requirements for ensuring the viability of Gorazde if it remains part of the Federation under the terms of a settlement. ~~(S)~~

Taskings: DOD and CIA to assess implications for the PIF and the longer-term defense requirements for Gorazde following the departure of the PIF, using the Contact Group map as the baseline, but considering territorial improvements (e.g., larger corridor) as well. ~~(S)~~

4. Arms Limitations: Deputies agreed that our goal of establishing a stable military balance could best be achieved by a hybrid approach that would support enhancement of the self-defense capabilities of Federation armed forces (ABH and HVO) in tandem with efforts to reach agreement among all the parties to certain arms limitations or reductions. They agreed to separation zones (DMZs) and to examine inventory limits on CFE treaty limited equipment. They agreed that an arms control regime should have a regional context. ~~(S)~~

Taskings: State, in coordination with OSD, to develop detailed options for narrow DMZs, separation of heavy weapons and/or exclusion zones, overall limits on heavy weapons and confidence-building measures that could be included as part of the settlement and/or pursued following implementation of a settlement. ~~(S)~~

5. Exit Strategy: Deputies agreed that we need to establish a date certain for completion of the PIF mission. There was a consensus that the PIF should be terminated by the end of 1996. At the same time, we should identify mission-essential tasks that we would seek to complete prior to that date, although the PIF would withdraw whether or not all those tasks had been accomplished. ~~(S)~~

Taskings: State to draft an initial timeline paper defining political, economic and military benchmarks for accomplishment of critical tasks. CIA to do an assessment of how the parties would react to knowing there was a date certain. ~~(S)~~

6. National Participation/Funding: Deputies agreed that the PIF would be a NATO operation with limited non-NATO involvement. While there would be a UNSC resolution authorizing NATO to conduct the mission, there would be no dual key or other limitations on NATO command and control. Deputies agreed that no Ally should be excluded, but that the need for NAC consensus would force us to deal with Greek approval of Turkish participation. Deputies acknowledged that operational efficiency might be compromised by involvement of non-NATO forces but recognized that non-NATO participation will be politically necessary and, in some respects, desirable (e.g., as a proving ground for Partnership for Peace countries to operate with NATO forces). Non-NATO forces would be under NATO operational control similar to a CJTF. ~~(S)~~

On funding, Deputies agreed that we would seek to follow the normal NATO approach, i.e., NATO and other contributors would pay their own way, with common costs assessed according to a variant of the NATO infrastructure formula. Funding arrangements more

advantageous to the U.S. would be difficult to negotiate with our Allies, but will be explored. ~~(S)~~

Taskings: JCS/OSD to examine the political/military requirements and constraints of making the PIF a NATO-plus force, involving PFP partners and other non-NATO militaries. This should draw on previous NATO planning for implementation of the Vance-Owen plan (40103) and UNPROFOR extraction (40104). OSD/JCS to complete a cost estimate for the probable U.S. contribution to the PIF. The Peacekeeping Funding Group to reexamine alternative cost-sharing arrangements among the participants. ~~(S)~~

7. Joint Commission: Deputies agreed that a Joint Commission with local subsidiaries should be established (comprising NATO, the Federation and the Bosnian Serbs) to resolve problems in implementing the military aspects of a settlement. This might have national and regional components. Deputies also agreed that there would be other aspects of settlement implementation (political, economic, humanitarian) that could be beyond the purview of the Joint Commission, and that we needed to develop a concept for how these would be handled and whether there would be a senior Secretary General's Representative for NATO, the UN or, perhaps, the OSCE. They agreed that any arrangement should exclude interference with the operation of the PIF (i.e., no dual keys). ~~(S)~~

Tasking: State to draft a paper on the political analogue to the Joint Commission for implementing the non-military aspects of a settlement. ~~(S)~~

8. Population Movements: Deputies agreed that the parties should have primary responsibility for population movements, with international relief agencies (UNHCR) providing secondary support. The PIF should generally avoid involvement in population movements, but it should be prepared to protect UNHCR personnel, aid convoys, and refugees in transit as necessary. Deputies also agreed that restitution and other forms of compensation were alternatives to resettlement that we should encourage the parties to explore. ~~(S)~~

Tasking: State and USUN will do a paper on policy toward population movements, forced departures and associated enforcement mechanisms. ~~(S)~~

Post-War Reconstruction Assistance

9. Deputies agreed that we urgently need a conceptual framework and initial plan for post-war regional reconstruction, as well as rough estimates of the overall cost, and the preferred cost-sharing among the U.S., EU, Japan and Islamic countries. They also expressed concerns about the difficulties of offsetting the U.S. contribution to the program on the basis of reductions in other programs. Deputies agreed that we would actively pursue the EU's offer to take the lead and press the EU, Japan and the Islamic states to clarify their contributions to the package. Deputies agreed that, in order to encourage Bosnian Government flexibility in the negotiations, Ambassador Holbrooke should be in a position by Monday to suggest the size of the U.S. contribution that the President will seek from the Congress in the event of a settlement (between $500 million and $1 billion over 3-5 years). They also agreed that we needed to inform the Congress immediately of our thinking on post-war reconstruction in the context of consultations on the progress of the U.S. diplomatic initiative. ~~(S)~~

Taskings: State to develop a post-war reconstruction program for the region, in coordination with NSC, OMB, AID and other agencies. State to draft talking points for a call by National Security Advisor Lake to Spanish Foreign Minister Solana to reconfirm the EU's willingness to take the lead on reconstruction and to offer the parties such carrots as EU association and enhanced market access. State and NSC to draft talking points for Holbrooke's use with the Bosnians on August 28. State and NSC to draft a gameplan and talking points for Congressional consultations August 26-28; these points should be in the context of an overall review of the status of the peace initiative and should also reference our commitment to participate in an implementation force if there is an agreement they will explain our goals and why solid U.S. financial backing is essential. ~~(S)~~

Sanctions

10. Deputies affirmed agreement on the main elements of our approach to sanctions relief for the FRY in the context of the U.S. diplomatic initiative: all UNSC sanctions, except those governing frozen assets subject to claims, would be suspended once there is a signed agreement; there would be a complete lifting of sanctions once implementation of the plan is completed; and Belgrade would receive less sweeping suspension of sanctions if it failed to agree to a solution for Eastern Slavonia at the time of signature. It was agreed that Deputies would need to decide at their next meeting how long we should hold Belgrade accountable for the actions of the Pale Serbs, and what would be the precise conditions for sanctions lifting. ~~(S)~~

Tasking: OVP to circulate a paper on a proposed sanctions strategy, highlighting the 4 or 5 fundamental issues needing Deputies' attention, including the sanctions reimposition mechanism and linkages to a Croatia settlement and war crimes, in preparation for the Deputies' meeting on August 28. ~~(S)~~

Scenario: ~~(S)~~

A peace plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina is accepted by all warring parties and includes a cessation of hostilities. There is international commitment to implement the provisions of the plan, including economic, diplomatic and military components. The principal military requirement is to create a stable environment during a limited period wherein the Bosnian Muslim-Croat Federation (the "Federation") is able to develop an enhanced self-defense relative to the Bosnian Serbs. To meet this requirement, two parallel programs are conducted concurrently: Multilateral efforts to provide equipment and training to the Federation forces and a NATO-led Peace Implementation Force ("PIF") to implement the plan. This paper addresses the latter.

Situation and Assumptions: ~~(S)~~

The Peace Plan

- The peace plan includes the following provisions:
  - A cessation of hostilities and an agreed cease-fire throughout the peace implementation period.
  - Mutually recognized borders between the warring parties.
  - A joint (PIF/Federation/Bosnian Serb) commission to facilitate implementing the provisions of the agreement and to resolve disputes through negotiation and mediation.
  - When the agreement is signed, all forces move to their respective territories, completing their movement within a few weeks.
  - The parties will not interfere with the activities of the PIF or activities of humanitarian assistance organizations.
  - The arms embargo is lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia.
- Public and Congressional support for the plan has been achieved.
- NATO and the UN Security Council endorse the plan by resolution.

The Participants in the Agreement

- The Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats, continuing to cooperate closely in the Federation, as well as the Bosnian Serbs, all agree to the peace plan.
- All parties to the agreement substantially observe its provisions with no more than isolated violations.
- The Federation remains viable and acts as a single governmental entity.
- Croatia continues its support for and cooperation with the Federation.
- Serbia continues its support for and cooperation with the Bosnian Serbs.

The Peace Implementation Force

- The UN sanctions and NATO charters a NATO-led, non-UN, peace enforcement (Chapter VII) operation to implement the plan.
- The operation will be conducted under exclusively NATO command and control, no UN involvement in military decision making.
- Robust rules of engagement are authorized for the operation
- Status of Forces Agreements covering PIF deployments are concluded with the Federation, the Bosnian Serbs, and other countries as necessary.
- The PIF will deploy immediately upon all parties' acceptance of the peace plan and issuance of the UN and NATO mandates.
- NATO Deny Flight forces become the air component of the PIF.
- UK/FR/NL (and perhaps other) UNPROFOR forces transition to the PIF.
- US ground forces will be committed to the PIF.
- Forces beyond US/UK/FR/NL needed for the operation will be solicited primarily from other NATO nations and Russia. Radical nations and those incapable of operating to NATO standards will not be included.

Related Activities

- UNPROFOR's mission is completed and its withdrawal is authorized.
- UNCRO (reduced) & UNPREDEP operations continue under UN control.
- Humanitarian assistance operations underway continue and are adequate.

Mission: ~~(S)~~ On order, CINCSOUTH assumes operational control of designated NATO and non-NATO forces and conducts operations to enforce the terms of the peace agreement in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Specified Tasks: ~~(S)~~ Tasks continue to be identified as the planning process matures; the list below will be refined. CINCSOUTH will:

- Establish the Peace Implementation Force (PIF) rapidly, building on FR/UK/NL RRF capabilities plus those of UNPROFOR nations forces joining the PIF; quickly deploy additional NATO forces required; operate principally from Federation territory,
- Establish liaison in the joint commission with Federation and Bosnian Serb army to facilitate implementation of the peace plan,
- Be prepared, as necessary, to mark boundaries set out by the peace plan in critical areas of separation between the warring parties,
- As necessary, enforce withdrawal of forces to conform to new boundaries,
- Enforce compliance by all parties with the provisions of the peace plan (e.g., enforcing the cease-fire and compliance by all parties with the buffer zone along the frontier between Federation and Bosnian Serb territory),
- Ensure self defense and freedom of movement of the PIF,
- Observe and prevent interference with any population movements that accompany the withdrawal of forces under the peace plan,

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Employ NATO air in support of PIF operations, and
- Be prepared to facilitate movement of UNHCR and other international organizations in the accomplishment of their humanitarian missions.

Parallel Functions: ~~(S)~~ The following functions will be performed by entities other than the PIF:

- Equipping & Training: Multilateral forces will provide equipment and related training to Federation forces to improve their self-defense capability. This function will be conducted both within and outside Federation territory, will be accomplished as rapidly as possible to permit timely withdrawal of the PIF, and may be undertaken in the context of some form of ceiling on Federation and Bosnian Serb defense capabilities.

- UNPROFOR Withdrawal: The UN will organize and conduct the withdrawal of those UNPROFOR forces not transitioning to the PIF.

- Other Support: Humanitarian assistance, human rights monitoring, and economic reconstruction efforts will proceed in parallel with implementation of the plan.

Mission Completion: ~~(S)~~ The mission of the PIF will be complete when the terms of the peace plan have been implemented by all parties and the Federation has enhanced its self-defense capability relative to the Bosnian Serbs. Withdrawal of the PIF ground forces by the end of 1996 is envisioned. NATO air assets may continue to be available to support the peace process for some period after PIF ground forces are withdrawn.

Post-PIF Activities: ~~(S)~~ It has been suggested that, following withdrawal of the PIF, a much smaller UN or regionally-organized force might monitor continuing compliance with the peace agreement. Interagency staffing is underway (State lead) to develop concepts for such a follow-on force.

Peace Deterioration: ~~(S)~~ In the event of a seriously deteriorating security environment (short of a complete breakdown of the peace), the PIF will be prepared to react immediately to stabilize the situation with assigned forces, calling in additional forces if necessary, preparing to implement more aggressive actions against violators, expanding air activity, and supporting diplomatic and informational activities.

In the event of a complete breakdown of the peace and the return of wide-scale war, the PIF will defend itself and:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- If the breakdown is precipitated by Federation forces and other non-military means of resolution are exhausted, withdraw from Bosnia-Herzegovina. Military support to the Federation will cease.

- If the breakdown is precipitated by Bosnian Serb forces, enforce the terms of the peace settlement with all force at its disposal. NATO air will be prepared to conduct wider attacks consistent with the London agreement. Military support to the Federation will continue.

- If the breakdown is due to the actions of both parties or the situation is ambiguous, further policy direction will be provided.

Issues: ~~(S)~~ The following items, among others, are being staffed in the interagency as development of the peace plan and planning for its execution continue:

- Possible Gorazde Enclave: The inclusion of the Muslim enclave in Gorazde as a part of the Federation under the peace agreement would have major implications for the tasks the PIF would be required to perform. An interagency working group (JCS lead) is examining these implications.

- Arms Controls: The peace plan could be accompanied by limitations on the types, amounts and locations of armaments the formerly warring parties will be permitted. Interagency work (State lead) is underway to explore various arms control initiatives (weapons exclusion zones, a regional "build down", confidence building measures, etc.) that might be pursued.

- Financing: Mission cost and international financing arrangements must be determined. As this will be a NATO rather than a UN operation, the same questions will arise as have arisen during the staffing of OPLAN 40104. The interagency Peacekeeping Funding Group (OMB lead) is working these questions.

Principals' Committee Action: ~~(S)~~ Recommend that the Principals' Committee:

- Confirm the principles contained in this paper.
- Approve the above mission statement.
- Confirm urgent planning for the mission.

Balkan Settlement Force
Mission Statement

Upon UNSCR approval, the Balkan Settlement Force is to deploy quickly and establish a dominance unquestioned by the disengaging parties. It is to create a secure environment within which the political undertakings of a settlement can go forward. The goal is to ensure both the survival of the Bosniac-Croat Federation and the preservation of Bosnia-Herzegovina as a single state (one comprised of two highly autonomous units with rights of association with Croatia and Serbia). Settlement force objectives toward achieving this goal include

-- initial efforts toward separation of forces and a diminished level of violence along lines of confrontation

-- pursuit of a broader reduction in the level of conflict, including enforcement activities - using overwhelming force as necessary - if required.

The overall effort is designed to allow the Federation to develop (with assistance by the Equip and Train Force) an indigenous and effective self-defense force viz. the BSA. The Force will facilitate the activities of UN and civilian agencies engaged in humanitarian and reconstruction tasks. While not charged with the disarming of local parties, its determined response to any threats against its own security or massive violations of the cease-fire will be "even-handed but asymmetrical".

Multilateral Equipping and Training of the Bosnian Federation (U)

Scenario: (S) A peace plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina is accepted by all warring parties and includes a cessation of hostilities. There is international commitment to implement the provisions of the plan, including economic, diplomatic and military components. The principal military requirement is to create a stable environment during a limited period wherein the Bosnian Muslim-Croat Federation (the "Federation") is able to develop an effective self-defense relative to the Bosnian Serbs. To meet this requirement, two parallel programs are conducted concurrently: multilateral effort to provide equipment and training to the Federation forces; a NATO-led force to implement the peace plan.

Assumptions: (S)
- Public and Congressional support for the plan has been achieved.
- The arms embargo is lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia.
- Legal requirements for provision of equipment have been met.
- Overt operation.
- Bosnian Federation requests assistance.
- Croatia continues its support for and cooperation with the Federation.
- Croatia will grant access through its territory to Bosnia.
- "No-Fly" Zone will continue to be enforced.
- BSA will retain its offensive capability.
- Bosnian Federation Army can disengage to equip and train.
- Adequate training facilities and logistics are available.

Mission: (S) On order, USCINCEUR assumes operational control of a multi-national force from designated NATO and non-NATO nations and conducts operations to equip and train selected elements of the Bosnian Federation Army to enhance its capability to defend the territorial integrity of the Bosnian Federation.

Intent: (S)
- Multi-national effort, US led.
- Enhance Federation Army existing core capabilities and units.
- Develop Federation Army capability to sustain training program.
- Counter-balance Bosnian Serb Army (BSA) strengths.
- Focus on defensive tasks at the company and battalion levels and on brigade and higher staff operations.
- Begin as promptly as feasible upon all parties' acceptance of the peace plan and issuance of the necessary mandates.
- Move concurrently on same timeline as peace implementation plan.

Specified Tasks: (S)

- USCINCEUR assume operational control of a multi-national force for the mission.
- Assess Federation Army capabilities and needs.
- In coordination with the Federation Army, plan their equipping and training.
- Form a multi-national training and equipping team to execute the mission.
- Facilitate the provision of equipment to the Federation Army by donor nations.
- Assist the Federation Army to execute the plan.
- Ensure the self-defense and freedom of movement of the training and equipping team.

Framework: (S)

- Equip/train would not be conducted by NATO Peace Implementation Force.
- Multilateral equip/train effort would be under US leadership.
- Training conducted primarily outside the Bosnian Federation. Other alternatives include Croatia, other European locations, or US.
- Equipment would be US, former Warsaw Pact, or a mix.

Concept of Operations: (S) This would be a five-phase operation with phases overlapping:

- Phase I -- Assessment. Assess the doctrine, organization, equipment and training status. Determine equipment and training required; assess availability of equipment and training. Prepare legal basis for provision of equipment.
- Phase II -- Establish the support structure. Position equipment, organize training teams, and establish training facilities.
- Phase III -- Equip.
- Phase IV -- Train. Integrate leaders and equipment into units, complete individual training, and conduct unit training.
- Phase V -- Sustainment. Exercise units and transition units to training base facilities.

Desired End State: (S) Bosnian Federation Army has the capability of defending the territorial integrity of the Bosnian Federation against aggressors without external combat support within nine months of mission start.

DRAFT

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Issues: (S) The following issues should be discussed in the interagency before proceeding with further planning for execution of multilateral security assistance:

(1) Legal. There are significant domestic and international legal issues that must be resolved by interagency coordination. The primary domestic legal consideration is determining legal authority for providing US assistance. A legislative strategy must be developed for Congressional consultations. International legal concerns include SOFAs, for both the training site country and B-H, and the status of trainers and training sites under the Law of Armed Conflict.

What limitations is Congress likely to place on US participation in this effort? How much time will be required to establish a comprehensive SOFA for training in Croatia, a NATO member country, possible Middle East nations?

(2) Funding.

Funding requirement. Assessment of equipment and training requirements must establish overall funding requirement. At a minimum, funding must include equipment, spares, consumables, maintenance, sustainment. Funding must also be found for building a Federation air defense capability and for any No-Fly Zone operations past initial equip and train timeline.

Funding sources. Funding sources must be identified to include US, regional organizations, and bilateral. Within USG, must consider all existing legal authorities: security assistance, supplemental appropriation, and drawdown. If drawdown, what is the potential impact on readiness? If new appropriations are necessary, how long will Congressional approval take? Will Congress be willing to apply the $100 million proposed in the Senate bill? Will they establish a formal Security Assistance funding level? Internationally, can a "Gulf" account be established? What is the best means to acquire third country contributions/ procurements/grants? Can solicitation of international funding begin now as a signal of US commitment?

(3) Equipment availability.

Availability. Equipment necessary to establish balance of power must be available, sustainable, maintainable. Equipment must be available for transport into region within timeline established. Issues requiring further definition during assessment phase:

What type of equipment: former Warsaw Pact, NATO, US, mixed? Current estimate indicates former Warsaw Pact equipment is the best option because of relative cost and availability, and it presently forms the basis of Federation equipment inventory. Would departing UNPF units be willing to leave some equipment behind? Are spare parts and consumables available? Is stock (US and other contributing nations) sufficient to meet requirement and timeline? Can equipment be maintained and sustained by Bosnian Federation forces? What international linkages and leverages are involved with sustaining particular types of equipment? What is effect of linkages on long-term stability?

(4) Command and Control.

Establishing US command authority for equip and train operations for Bosnian Federation. US leadership must be established to ensure multinational efforts are coordinated to achieve the desired end state. Mission will be tasked to CINCEUR, and most likely delegated to USAREUR for detailed planning, coordination, and execution. Efforts by the international community to equip and train warring factions could easily result in small "arms race" establishing an imbalance of power thereby destabilizing the region. How will other nations be integrated into effort? Will others accept US leadership? Can the US prevent/limit participation by potentially disruptive nations (e.g. Iran)? How will unity of effort be achieved to avoid multiple, uncoordinated equip/train efforts? Can UN/EU/NATO/CSCE establish international authority for unity of effort?

(5) Operational.

Multinational air support. There are two scenarios to consider. If there is a peace agreement, then what air support should be provided the Federation during the equip/train program? Should the air support be extended beyond the program for some limited period? If there is no agreement, then what air support should be provided and for how long? Under both conditions, where are NFZ operations continued: over Federation, over Federation and SRBH, or over all of Former Yugoslavia? Should NFZ include fixed wing, helicopters, active SAM sites?

Federation air defense. Should we assist the Bosnian Federation in establishing air defense to counterbalance Bosnian Serbs? Is air defense capability provided the Federation from the outset of the equip/train program? How should establishment of Federation air defense be coordinated so as to minimize potential threat to Deny Flight? What capability should the Federation possess: guns, missiles, a mix?

Defensive force. The arms embargo will be lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia. Establishment of numerical limits and zonal sub-limits (DMZs, areas of restricted maneuvering/operations) may be required for all warring parties to achieve and maintain a balance of power. Such limits could include heavy equipment (tanks, APCs, aircraft, naval vessels), and force structure (active and reserve). Decisions required: What are the limits necessary for

Federation self-defense? At what point does a strong defensive force become a possible offensive threat to regional stability? How many tanks, mortars, aircraft, ships? Who determines limits: warring parties via peace plan, EU, CSCE, NATO, or US? Who develops initial stabilization measures (measures of transparency, constraint, reinforce confidence, monitoring compliance/evaluation)? Who maintains measures: EU, CSCE, NATO?

(6) Risk of enduring US commitment. Direct US ties to the Bosnian Federation Army may result in long term commitment. Failure of Bosnian Army may be US failure. Must establish exit strategy which disengages US from maintaining the Bosnian Federation. What is the exit strategy? Is it based on time, capability of Bosnian Federation forces to counter threat?

Deputies' Committee Action: ~~(S)~~ Recommend the Deputies' Committee:

- Confirm the assumptions, mission, and specified tasks to meet the arming and training requirements while the two parallel programs (Arm & Train and implementation of the peace plan) are conducted.
- Recommend Principals approve the above mission statement.
- Conduct preliminary discussion of and assign staffing responsibility for these issues, and possibly others which are identified.
- Direct State/OSD/JCS to initiate US planning and push for prompt initiation of multilateral involvement, to include hosting an international conference in Washington to solicit multi-national support.

Confidence-Building/Arms Control Measures To Accompany Political Settlement

Assumption: It will be important that the U.S. offer the perspective of "arms build-down" in connection with any settlement package -- both to help build political support among allies and partners for the overall U.S. initiative and to assist in creating an environment within which the Federation-Bosnian Serb military balance can more easily be stabilized. Any set of proposals to that effect, however, would have to be phased and flexible, readily adapting to changing circumstances on the ground and open to expansion over time in both scope and application.

Step-by-Step Approach: In the first instance, we should concentrate on political/military confidence-building measures geared to specific areas and tactical situations along lines of confrontation within Bosnia itself. Their immediate objective would be to supplement and help stabilize the ceasefire contained in the settlement; accordingly, they would focus on disengagement of the parties, preliminary forms of weapons control, and transparency.

More specifically, this might include (perhaps within the text of any ceasefire component of a settlement):

-- Separation of forces and weapons along designated confrontation lines (e.g., 2 km for infantry, 10 km for mortars, 20 km for heavy weapons).

-- Ban of certain military activities, including aircraft activities, in selected areas.

-- Establishment of heavy weapons collection/deactivation sites.

-- Establishment of joint liaison/communication links among opposing local commanders under the active oversight of the Implementation Force.

-- Establishment of procedures for extensive monitoring all of the above measures by designated elements of the Implementation Force.

As progress is made with each of these measures, we would seek to expand them in scope and effect. As some would presumably be intended for a long duration, we would wish to build in the possibility that, as the NATO-led military implementation force draws down with the accomplishment of its basic mission, monitoring/verification duties might be eventually passed to another body -- perhaps some configuration of UN/OSCE observers.

Long-Term Perspective: Even as our immediate focus should be on local stabilizing measures within Bosnia proper to support the ceasefire and settlement, the U.S. should be prepared to offer -- at an appropriate political moment -- a long-term with an emphasis on a conmprehensive approach to the problems of the former Yugoslavia.

The stated objective of such a U.S. initiative for confidence-building/arms control measures for would be strengthening stability and security throughout the region, with the specific aim of eliminating disparities and capabilities for launching surprise attack and for initiating, at a regional level, large-scale offensive action. Reductions, limitations and the realization of a more defensive set of force postures might be examined as contributions to a more stable military balance.

Any initial deliberations among parties as to participation and modalities could take place in an informal setting, although the intention should always be to transfer any such the negotiations back into a more formal OSCE framework at an appropriate time. Recognizing the many inherent difficulties involved in any move towards a more ambitious arms control regime for the region, the U.S. objective would, in the first instance, be as much to set in place an ongoing process as the expectation of any early progress towards a CFE-like regime.

Concept Paper

Post-settlement Assistance Package for Bosnia and Croatia

Summary

- $1 billion is estimated USG assistance required over three years if peace breaks out (out of a total $4 billion, at least $3 billion from the EU, Japan and Muslim countries).
  - -- Reconstruction ($435 million) would focus on Bosnia and Croatian UNPA's--where war damage has occurred.
  - -- Humanitarian aid ($450 million paid out of existing budgets) would be distributed more broadly, assuming the ban on U.S. aid in Serbia is lifted.
  - -- Payment of arrears to IFI's (U.S. share as much as $125 million) is critical to Bosnia joining the IMF and IBRD; it is essential post-settlement assistance.
- The USG would look to the European Union to provide the largest portion of the assistance package and to coordinate the process, with major contributions also from Japan and Muslim countries. We have not yet discussed the global needs or burdensharing with other countries.

Principles

- Humanitarian assistance should be driven by needs

  --equal treatment across ethnic groups

  --strong focus on repatriation of DP's and refugees, and on demining

  --delivery continues through U.N. organizations, PVOs and national governments

  --clear phasedown strategy required

- Reconstruction assistance should reinforce political and economic objectives

  --preservation of territorial integrity of sovereign states (in particular Bosnia-Herzegovina)

  --multiethnic democracy

  --return of refugees

  --development of private enterprise and a market economy

  --regional integration and integration with Western Europe

  --implementation coordinated with Zagreb, Sarajevo and NGO's, donor coordination through the IBRD

What does this mean??

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

003/006 ELR/SA 09:17 09/07/95

Country-specific considerations

o Croatia

--Humanitarian: needs should decline as displaced persons and refugees return to their homes

--Reconstruction/development: aid should be focussed on the former UNPA's, where it should be used to encourage return of Serb as well as Croat refugees

o Bosnia

--Humanitarian: obstacles to return of Croat, Muslim and Serb DP's and refugees should be removed, but realistically many may choose not to do so; continuing but declining need for humanitarian assistance

--Reconstruction/development: aid should aim at reestablishment of multiethnic society, which would mean limited assistance to areas that will not permit return of DP's and refugees or refuse to build up democratic institutions open on an equal basis to all what kind of projects purpose? PROCESS FOR DEFINANCE

o FRY:

--Humanitarian: Croatian Serb refugees should be encouraged to return by establishment of conditions of safety and decency in Croatia, but realistically speaking many may choose not to do so; there will be a continuing need for humanitarian assistance

--Reconstruction/development: Serbia proper has suffered no war destruction; assistance should be through normal IFI and bilateral mechanisms, including USG support for democratic institutions; USG would not help clear arrears (but not object to others doing so)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

004/006 ELR/SA 0202 647 0967 17:31 96/27/90

International context

- Current spending is at about $1.2 billion/year

  --Humanitarian assistance: current expenditure (FY 95) about $1 billion, not counting UNPROFOR; this should decline with a settlement

  --Reconstruction/development: current expenditure is almost entirely in Bosnia, at perhaps $220 million per year ($170 million from Western Europe)

- International aid package in the event of a settlement: $4.0 billion over three years

  --$1.9 billion in the first year

  Humanitarian assistance: $1000 million

  Reconstruction/development: $400 million

  Payment of arrears: $500 million (one-time)

  --$1.2 billion in the second year, $900 million in the third, with humanitarian assistance declining, reconstruction/development increasing (see charts)

- U.S. share

  --Less than one-quarter of total ($500 million in the first year, $1 billion total)

  Reconcile w/ Perlin et al?

  --Burdensharing

  --More than one-quarter from Europe

  --One-quarter from Islamic moderates

  --One-quarter from the Japanese (with emphasis on humanitarian assistance)

  --Neither burdensharing nor global needs have yet been discussed with other countries.

BOSNIA -- SUPPORTING RECONSTRUCTION

Introduction

The prospects for peace in Former Yugoslavia, especially Bosnia-Hertzegovina (B-H), could be enhanced by western efforts to put forth a vision of reconstruction and external financing for this process.

But at the same time, the international financial community faces a shortage of resources. Financing Bosnia's reconstruction will necessarily need to be pieced together through a concerted effort of the international community -- by bilateral donors, by the international financial institutions, and hopefully by the private sector. In this regard, the Europeans have told us, in the context of assembling other country financing packages, that they would have adequate resources to help Bosnia at the appropriate time. It will thus be critical to engage them to step forward, while we do enough for our part so that we can exercise leadership. Also, under existing guidelines, the IMF and World Bank together could be expected to provide $500 million in loans for this purpose in the first year or two, some possibly on concessional terms.

Financing Plan -- Terms and Conditions

Reconstruction finance for Bosnia should entail several stages.

1. Needs Assessment: The IMF, World Bank and EBRD should quickly assemble a task force for a quick needs assessment study. The task force could be joined by experts, designated by capitals. It would prepare a paper for the international financial community, outlining: the macroeconomic stabilization, structural reform, and infrastructure requirements in B-H; a timetable for their implementation; their costs; and potential associated external financing.

The Netherlands has already started backing a Trust Fund at the World Bank to which the United States is now in the process of making a contribution. This Fund was created to allow the World Bank to defray the costs of conceptualizing a plan for reconstruction and its financing before B-H joined the IFIs. Financing from other donors would be welcomed and helpful for timely completion of the assessment.

2. Coordinating Mechanism: A coordinating mechanism should be quickly established to bring together IFIs and donors. The coordinating body will need to develop a financing package on the basis of the needs assessment task force report. The World Bank would be a logical choice to head the coordinating body. It has played such a role elsewhere in the world and also has established such expertise through its longstanding leadership of the consultative group process. If we are not resolute in supporting the Bank, the EU may volunteer itself for a coordinating role.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

3. Financing: Reconstruction will require an extraordinary effort by bilateral donors, complementing the efforts of the IFIs. Additionally, B-H must still become of a member of the Fund and Bank. It has arrears, however, of $409 million to the World Bank and $36 million to the IMF -- inherited from Yugoslavia -- that must be cleared prior to commencement of IFI activities.

Bilateral Donors' Role:

Bilateral donors will need to play a financing role in three respects.

First, they will need to support arrears clearance to allow B-H to normalize relations with the IFIs. Arrears-clearance exercises have typically been conducted by "support groups." Under a support group, a country takes the lead in assembling donor financing that can be lent to the arrears country once it has agreed to an IFI-supported reform package and covered by IFI disbursements. Germany (or the EU) might be a logical candidate to head the support group.

Second, they will need to provide new money for reconstruction. While it is not feasible to approximate these costs absent a needs assessment, the fact is that reconstruction costs for B-H will be large due to the ravages of war. Thus, substantial bilateral resources will be required. The donor community may wish to consider co-financing such lending with the IFIs, to leverage bilateral resources and to leverage sound reform.

Apart from small amounts of World Bank net income, the IFIs cannot provide grants. They do have the possibility of providing concessional support, though these amounts are limited. This reality underscores the imperative of active bilateral donor support.

For the United States, this means that we need to consider whether we can meet our responsibilities from the SEED budget or whether new appropriations will be required. We may be hard pressed to make an extraordinary bilateral commitment in the current budget environment as a supplemental appropriation is unlikely. In these circumstances, recourse to SEED funding may be inevitable.

Third, Treasury has agreed with B-H on and established a Fiscal Technical Assistance project. This project could be quickly activated to support reconstruction.

Additionally, there remains the thorny question of allocating the assets of the Former Yugoslav states. Bilateral donors may need to play a role in helping address this issue, perhaps either through the ICFY (International Conference on Former Yugoslavia) or some other mechanism.

IMF

The IMF would take the lead in providing general balance of payments support for macroeconomic stabilization.

- Under normal IMF loan terms, Bosnia could have access up to $200-300 million over two years at market terms, with repayments completed in five years. This financing would be strictly conditioned.

- It might be possible subsequently to roll such a loan into an IMF loan on concessional terms, assuming B-H fell under the per capital income threshold for such lending. With very generous treatment, B-H might receive $350 to 475 million from the IMF's concessional arm over a three year period. Such financing would also require strenuous adjustment measures.

- Sale of IMF gold to support B-H would be exceedingly difficult. It would require Congressional authorization and an 85% IMF super-majority vote. Such sales could probably only be used to finance interest rate subsidies on loans.

World Bank

The World Bank would take the lead on structural reform and reconstruction.

- Rehabilitation (critical import) lending, requiring an appropriate macroeconomic framework, might quickly infuse B-H with $100-200 million of disbursements in the first year following membership.

- Structural adjustment lending could quickly follow on, continuing the infusion of fast-disbursing balance of payments support.

- Project loans would be disbursed much more slowly and over a longer period, in support of infrastructural needs.

EBRD

The EBRD also can provide invaluable support for infrastructure projects, especially in the area of transport and telecommunications. The Bank has established expertise in helping privatize firms and developing financial sectors. It has a demonstrated track record in catalyzing private sector resources for its operations.

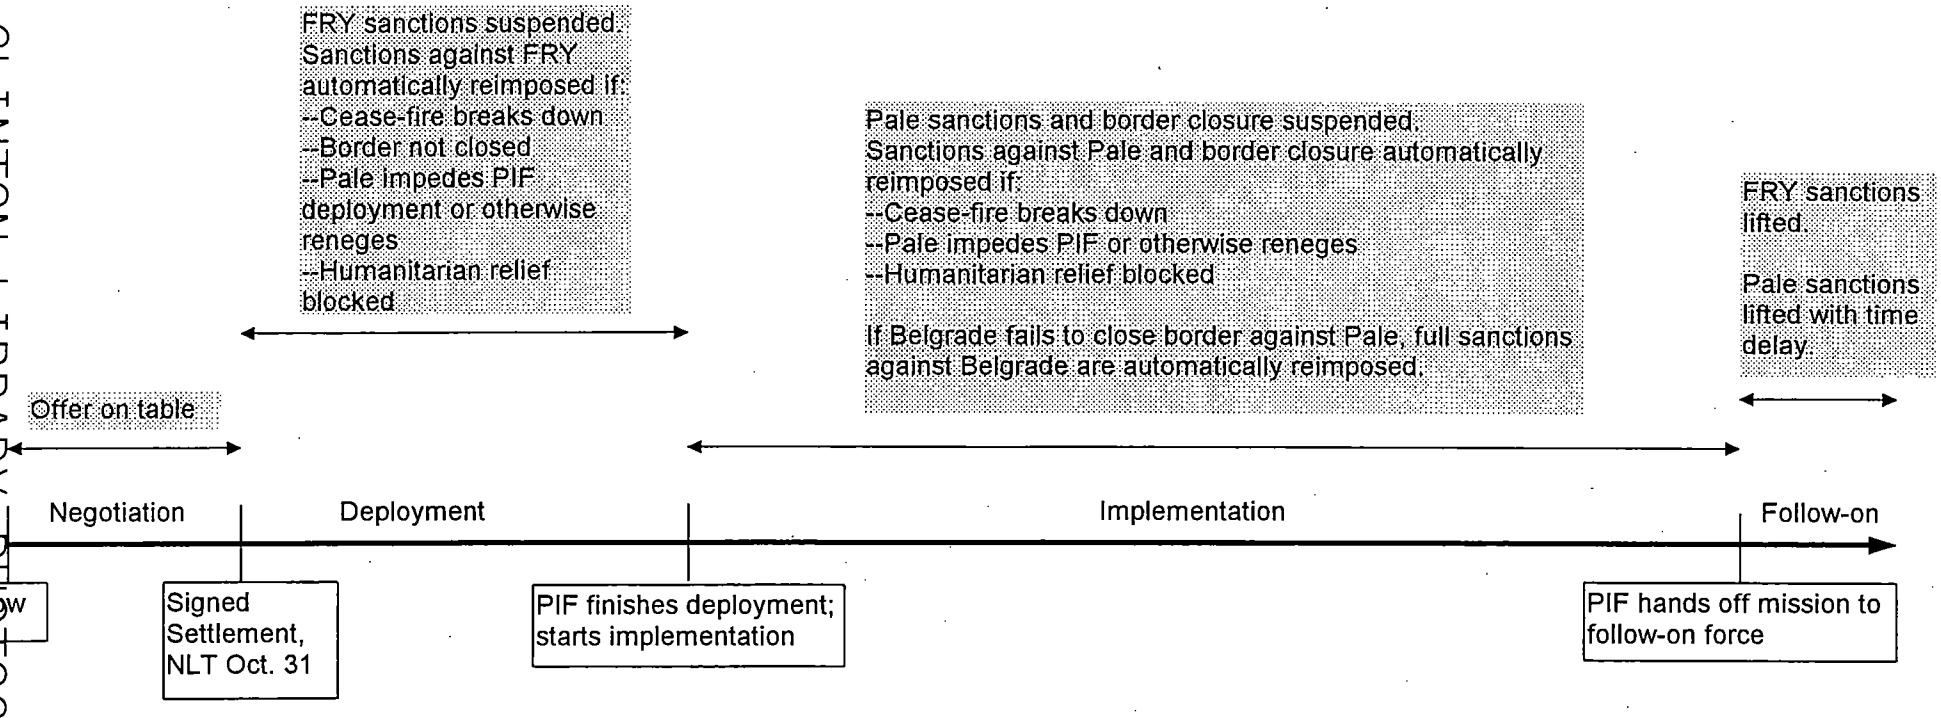
SUBJECT: Addendum to Proposed Sanctions Relief Package

It is important to visualize what happens during the implementation phase of the settlement to understand how the proposed reimposition measures hold Belgrade and Pale accountable for their actions. The following time-line illustrates automatic reimposition arrangements and how primary accountability shifts from Belgrade to Pale once the PIF deploys and begins its implementation mission.



CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Automatic reimposition occurs when the PIF commander declares that actions by the Bosnian Serbs are preventing his force from deploying or otherwise accomplishing its mission. This is a highly credible trigger because it depends on the commander's assessment of threats to his force's safety and its ability to carry out specific tasks. The proposed sanctions relief strategy supplements these automatic reimposition procedures with a requirement that the Security Council vote every 60 days to extend sanctions relief. Any permanent member of the Council can veto the extension, thus causing reimposition of sanctions.

Belgrade and other Contact Group members may find the 60-day review too restrictive. Because of the credibility of the automatic reimposition provisions, we may be able to accept an arrangement under which any permanent Security Council member can challenge the sanctions suspensions at any time on grounds that Belgrade and/or Pale have reneged on obligations. Sanctions would then be reimposed if three of the five permanent members votes to end sanctions relief.

~~SECRET~~
MEMORANDUM

To: NSC - Sandy Vershbow
OVP - Leon Fuerth

From: USUN/W - David Scheffer JSB
- Jim O'Brien

Subject: Proposed Sanctions Relief Package

We want to bring to your attention a few key issues with respect to the proposed sanctions relief package described in the August 21 memorandum and the addendum showing the time-line.

1. Outer Wall.

The outer wall is missing in both the memorandum and the time-line. Both documents should describe and affirm the long-held U.S. position on the outer wall: we will not agree to the FRY's joining the international community (including by receiving IFI funds, receiving membership in international organizations and institutions, and starting diplomatic relations) until it meets conditions including cooperation with the Tribunal, progress in Kosovo, and perhaps some link to Croatia.

The President reaffirmed the outer wall this March, noting that Serbian cooperation with the Tribunal is a condition of its rejoining the international community. (His letter to Representative Hoyer is attached.) We should not walk back from that commitment.

In addition to the political significance of the President's statement, there are strong merits to keeping the outer wall. It has one thing Milosevic ultimately wants: international legitimacy. It will remain relevant for years after economic sanctions are suspended or lifted, as IFI funds are allocated and disbursed or as the FRY seeks to join new international bodies. It will be diverse (many IFI projects, many organizations), allowing us to tailor punishments to whatever Milosevic has done wrong. And we will have unilateral control over many parts of it (for example, on membership in some international institutions or anything requiring Security Council approval).

Finally, keeping the outer wall permits more flexibility in the inner wall, as reflected in your latest iteration. If we exclude the outer wall, we undermine our case for the up-front sanctions relief outlined in the new inner wall proposal. We should not make explaining this to Congress and the public more difficult than we need to.

2. Cooperation with the War Crimes Tribunal.

On the second page of the August 21 memorandum, you set forth the issue of cooperation with the War Crimes Tribunal. We appreciate your raising this issue and recommend the following points be shared with the Deputies and the Holbrooke team.

We believe that economic sanctions relief for the FRY, in addition to the outer wall, should be conditioned on its cooperation with the Tribunal.

a. Cooperation with the Tribunal is a responsible condition. It reflects the FRY's international legal obligations as set forth by the Security Council, endorsed by the U.S. Government, and enshrined in basic tenets of international law.

b. Threatening sanctions for non-cooperation is working. Over the last several months, the Tribunal has told us (please protect) that it is starting to receive tentative, back-channel information from the FRY; intelligence reports in late August confirm this. (Milosevic is instructing FRY diplomats to inform on the notorious paramilitary Arkan, just as Milosevic has previously distanced himself from other suspected war criminals).

His tentative cooperation comes against a backdrop of several years' consistent statements by Ambassador Albright and the Secretary that we will consider cooperation with the Tribunal in decisions on economic and other sanctions relief; these have been reinforced by other officials (notably John Shattuck) in parallel to the spring and summer negotiations with Milosevic. It is of course difficult to parse how much Milosevic's cooperation is due to the prospect of economic sanctions rather than to the outer wall sanctions. It is certain, however, that it is premature to give up any part of our sanctions leverage just as we are getting the result we want.

c. Our new plan requires new thinking. As Bob Frasure noted during our discussions on this issue, if we move away from Contact Group and Bildt plans we should not consider ourselves constrained by our CG partners' old objection to conditioning economic sanctions relief on cooperation with the Tribunal.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

d. We are giving something to get this new condition. Our new proposal provides more immediate, liberal, and sweeping sanctions relief than the CG or Bildt proposal. Our agreement to do that (even in response for more immediate action by Milosevic) is a concession, and it is reasonable for us to add reasonable conditions to that sanctions relief.

e. The condition can be implemented flexibly. A key question is telling Milosevic what he has to do with the Tribunal to satisfy us. The standard is almost self-defining: cooperate with its requests, which themselves set a clear record of what he should do; furthermore, he should not obstruct its work or harbor those fleeing from it.

We could accept a procedure that would prevent us from invoking this condition unilaterally or arbitrarily. For example, we could require a report from Justice Goldstone, the Prosecutor, confirming that Belgrade is "manifestly obstructing the work of the Tribunal or manifestly not complying with requests from the Tribunal, in a manner and to a degree that severely undermines the ability of the Tribunal to investigate and prosecute those accused." Minor acts of non-cooperation, or the failure to surrender one or two indicted individuals, may not meet a standard of "manifestly obstructing" or "manifestly not complying" with the Tribunal. We can further set forth in some detail what constitutes non-cooperation or obstruction.

f. Politically, manifest Serbian failure to cooperate with the Tribunal will make it very difficult for the United States to support continued sanctions relief for Serbia. We would look foolish and appear weak, Congress would skewer us, and the victims of Serb atrocities would condemn us in perpetuity. Senator Dole in the middle of the Presidential campaign would make hay of our decision to lift sanctions when it becomes known -- as could happen -- that Belgrade were harboring indicted war criminals and obstructing the Tribunal's work. All of the leadership and investment we have committed to the Tribunal will be overtaken by that single act.

This last point might be made using the approach Mr. Tarnoff took to a Bosnian cease-fire in his August 3 letter to Carl Bildt: cooperation may not technically be a prerequisite to continued sanctions relief, but political realities make it nearly that way.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

3. Additional Notes on the Outer Wall.

We recognize that the outer wall faces two significant potential difficulties even if it is agreed in the package. First, economic reconstruction in the FRY may require release of IFI funds, removing part of the outer wall. Second, agreement among the states of the former Yugoslavia on succession issues (perhaps in the context of agreement on debts and liabilities) may determine the FRY's access to international bodies. (If the other successor states accept the FRY's assertion that it is the continuity of the SFRY, the FRY could claim automatic membership in many international organizations, including the United Nations, and the outer wall would erode further.)

We believe that ways can be found to reconcile these needs with the importance of keeping the outer wall, especially given the diversity of the outer wall. The pressures we can expect on these issues reinforce the significance of the outer wall to Milosevic and thus the importance of retaining it: just as we will face pressures to let it go, he must be concerned that he will lose the benefits it holds.

U.N. Actions for Implementation of U.S. Peace Plan

The implementation of the U.S. peace plan currently under negotiation will entail action on several fronts and for a sustained period of time at the United Nations. Failure or non-implementation of the peace plan also would involve U.N. actions. Many of the critical assumptions in the peace plan are based upon Security Council action that remains of an unpredictable character. Many of the steps in the peace plan likewise will be dependent on successful Council action. We cannot predict with certainty the full range of actions that would unfold at the United Nations, or the views other delegations on the Security Council will hold as the peace plan advances or falters. The peace plan--even if it is proceeding smoothly in capitals and on the ground--can be derailed or fatally delayed because of set-backs in the Security Council or non-cooperation by U.N. authorities.

Nonetheless, the following description of various U.N. actions relating to the peace plan offers an initial roadmap of U.N. actions that should be factored into the planning and implementation of the peace plan. As more details of the peace plan are worked out, and the views of relevant governments better known, U.N. actions can be gauged more accurately. The one certainty is that many of the actions described below will require heavy-lifting, both in New York and capitals.

This treatment of the subject is based on the August 22 draft of the documents entitled, "Implementing a Balkan Peace Settlement," and "Multilateral Equipping and Training of the Bosnian Federation," the August 21 draft of "Sanctions Issues for 8/22 Principals Committee Meeting" and its "Addendum to Proposed Sanctions Relief Package", and the Principals and Deputies meetings that discussed them.

I. Lift of the U.N. Arms Embargo

One of the assumptions in the plan is that, "The arms embargo is lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia and no disarmament by the warring parties is required." If the intention is to achieve multilateral as opposed to unilateral lift, that will require Security Council action.

U.N. Action: A new UNSC resolution that terminates UNSC Resolution 713 (1991) (and thus parts of subsequent resolutions that reaffirm UNSC Res. 713). This multilateral lift will require the affirmative vote or abstention of each P-5 Member (U.S., France, Russia, United Kingdom, China), and a total affirmative vote of at least nine UNSC members.

PER E.O. 13526
VL 2/6/2020 (3.29)
NLC-06-82-M

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Timing: The plan appears to contemplate immediate action on multilateral lift. Complicating factors include:

(1) Other Council or non-Council members with troops in UNPROFOR may insist that multilateral lift not be initiated until after UNPROFOR has withdrawn--a position consistent with their current thinking.

(2) Russia in particular might hold the multilateral lift vote hostage indefinitely to its long-stated right and intention to arm the Bosnian Serbs. If Russia votes for multilateral lift and then arms the Serbs, that might upset any arms build-down strategy built into the peace plan and probably would increase the level of arms that we would feel compelled to provide the Federation in order to achieve parity.

Conditionality:

(1) There may be considerable pressure within the Council to place some conditions on the multilateral lift (e.g., quantitative limitations on weapons exported to individual governments, types of weapons that can be imported, for use only in self-defense, no transfer outside the state's territory, labeling). Such conditionality could have a serious impact on our plan to multilaterally equip and train the Federation.

Specifically, some delegations may seek to require in the resolution that arms be delivered in-theater only at specified locations, which they would ask be monitored by the U.N.

(2) There may also be pressure to approve a suspension of the arms embargo rather than a lift. The suspension could be for one year and an automatic permanent lift thereafter unless the Council decides otherwise. Or a Council vote might be required to permanently lift after a period of suspension. The recent Security Council action to suspend the Rwanda arms embargo with conditions for one year, followed by lift unless the Council decided otherwise, may serve as a model for some delegations.

(3) Depending on the status of Sector East in Croatia, Zagreb may weigh in to condition any multilateral lift in order to impede FRY's ability to bolster its armaments in support of Serb control of Sector East. Furthermore, if UNCRO continues to have a presence in Sector East--a position we are encouraging--then troop contributors to UNCRO and the U.N. Secretariat may see a lift of the arms embargo as a potential threat to UNCRO personnel.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY.

II. PIF Deployment

Another assumption of the peace plan is that the Security Council will endorse the Peace Implementation Force by resolution as a NATO-led, non-blue helmeted operation.

U.N. action: PIF deployment would require a UNSC authorizing resolution for several reasons: 1) to provide clear uncontested legal authority for PIF to operate and use military force on Bosnian territory (one might construct a legal basis for PIF deployment without UNSC action, but it would be highly controversial, particularly with Council members); 2) to coordinate PIF deployment with UNPROFOR withdrawal; 3) other troop contributors to PIF would demand Council authorization; and 4) to confirm NATO command and PIF's responsibilities for parallel activities in which the U.N. remains involved (e.g., UNHCR, War Crimes Tribunal investigations and arrests, humanitarian aid).

Timing: A UNSC resolution should be adopted prior to October 31, and presumably with enough lead-time so that signing parties to the peace settlement are assured of PIF deployment immediately after October 31.

Conditionality: Numerous conditions might be proposed by Council members for authorization of PIF deployment. These conditions might include:

1) Coordination between the NATO-led operation and U.N. entities, including any remaining UNPROFOR contingents, UNHCR, UNCRO, and UNPREDEP. This would not necessarily be an attempt to create any new "dual keys," but rather to ensure that PIF operates under some agreed guidelines with respect to U.N. entities in the field.

2) The mandate and thus objectives of PIF would be addressed in the resolution--an exercise that will entail many of the issues about PIF's mandate that are being examined for the peace plan. This could include scope of authority, access to Bosnian Serb territory, host state consent and self-defense, and other use of force issues.

3) The resolution may need to revise existing UNSC authority to enforce the no-fly zone so that it is compatible with PIF. The current authority addresses the NATO-UNPROFOR relationship.

III. Withdrawal of UNPROFOR

A third critical assumption of the peace plan is that "UNPROFOR's mission is completed and its withdrawal is authorized." Details have not yet been worked out on the exact timing or modalities of an UNPROFOR withdrawal and how it is coordinated with PIF deployment. What constitutes completion of UNPROFOR's mission, particularly with respect to an anticipated PIF deployment, is ambiguous.

Timing and UNSC Action: The mandate for UNPROFOR expires on November 30, 1995. That would be the easiest date on which to adopt a radical change in the future of UNPROFOR. Prior to that date, UNPROFOR troops can be moved and the Secretary-General has inherent authority in some circumstances (such as intolerable risk or a request by the host country or troop contributors) to withdraw UNPROFOR troops from the theater. The withdrawal of British and Ukranian troops from Gorazde may serve as an example of what can be done without explicit UNSC direction prior to a vote to extend or terminate UNPROFOR's mandate.

Nonetheless, if there is a UNSC resolution authorizing PIF deployment adopted prior to October 31, it may be desirable to adopt a parallel resolution (one that, in the alternative, might be folded into the PIF resolution) that directs the withdrawal of UNPROFOR as PIF deploys. Otherwise, the Council would be seized with the issue soon thereafter, in November, when it determines the future of UNPROFOR on the roll-over date.

Conditionality: The complexity of an UNPROFOR withdrawal teamed with a PIF deployment (which necessarily would be engaged in covering an UNPROFOR withdrawal) would trigger discussion in the Council about various conditions.

1) The command and control of UNPROFOR in relation to PIF during the withdrawal would need to be addressed in the resolution.

2) The responsibilities of UNPROFOR during the withdrawal may need clarification. Is it tasked solely to withdraw, or also to continue to fulfill some of its existing responsibilities, particularly in assisting provision of humanitarian aid, during withdrawal?

3) The mandate of the Rapid Reaction Force during the withdrawal would be addressed. Elements of the RRF presumably will be folded into PIF. The UNSC resolution may seek to confirm that the RRF remains responsible for the protection of UNPROFOR throughout the withdrawal, and that while UNPROFOR remains in Bosnia the command of the RRF remains with the United Nations. How this squares with command arrangements for PIF and force build-up for PIF needs to be clarified.

4) The resolution probably would address UNPROFOR's responsibility for its own arms and equipment. Would it be required to withdraw all of its arms and equipment; would it be authorized to leave some behind for the PIF or old RRF that has joined PIF; would it be explicitly authorized to dump arms or equipment if necessary for its own safety during withdrawal (i.e., if sudden airlift of troops is required)?

CLINTON ~~SECRET~~ PHOTOCOPY.

5) The resolution may also address the funding implications of UNPROFOR withdrawal. Presumably a withdrawal would be assessed as a regular UNPROFOR expense, but there may be characteristics of it that we prefer to see paid for through alternative mechanisms (particularly in relation to simultaneous PIF deployment). Although the Council has no authority to determine assessments, the subject would be raised in the context of the resolution (as we experienced with the RRF resolution).

IV. Future of UNCRO and UNPREDEP

Decision made with respect to UNPROFOR and the peace settlement as a whole will influence Council decisions on the future mandate and deployment of UNCRO in Croatia and UNPREDEP in Macedonia. Depending on the cooperation of all parties concerned, decisions will need to be reached on force levels and locations for both peacekeeping operations (particularly UNCRO in Sector East and the American force level in UNPREDEP).

Timing: Like UNPROFOR, the mandates of UNCRO and UNPREDEP expire on November 30, 1995. That date will force the Council to reconsider the mandates and deployments of each operation. But the Council may see reason to address either one prior to the scheduled expiration date.

V. Sanctions Suspension/Lift/Enforcement

The proposed sanctions relief package for the peace plan will require a series of UNSC resolutions:

1) An initial resolution suspending sanctions against the FRY, with conditions and modalities for automatic reimposition. This resolution would need to be adopted before October 31 as part of the over-all plan, which includes signing of the peace settlement and PIF deployment.

2) Upon full deployment of the PIF and commencement of the implementation phase of the settlement, a resolution would be required to suspend sanctions on the Pale Serbs and suspend the border closure, as well as the conditions and modalities for automatic reimposition. This resolution logically would be required either immediately prior to or simultaneously with the start of the implementation phase of the settlement. One key issue would be what to do with the ICFY monitoring team on the border--should they "stand by" or "stand down"?

3) A resolution lifting all sanctions (except frozen assets subject to claims) on the FRY. This would be required upon full implementation of the peace settlement and FRY recognition of Croatia. The timing presumably would be immediately prior to or simultaneously with the determination by the Council that there has been full implementation and satisfactory FRY recognition of Croatia.

4) Six months after full implementation of the peace settlement, the UNSC would vote to lift all sanctions against Pale, provided the Bosnian Serbs continue to live up to the terms of the settlement.

5) Prior to full lift of sanctions, the Council can vote to override an automatic reimposition of sanctions on the grounds of good faith efforts by the parties.

6) Extension of suspension of FRY sanctions every 60 days would require a Council vote. Any permanent member of the Council could veto the extension, thus causing reimposition of sanctions. Thus every 60 days an extension vote would arise in the Council, prompting the need for a report on compliance to be delivered to the Council prior to the vote. How Council members approach each 60-day vote will be influenced by the conditions on the ground and the political dynamics in the peace settlement.

In the alternative to a 60-day cycle, there is discussion of a requirement to reimpose sanctions if three of the five permanent members vote to end sanctions relief--a condition that would have to be set forth in any suspension resolution. We must bear in mind that this alternative proposal has grave political and legal difficulties. It would be unprecedented in U.N. history and Council practice and raise questions under the U.N. Charter. Non-permanent members in particular would object.

Automatic reimposition: The proposal to give the PIF commander the power to reimpose automatically sanctions based upon his assessment of threats to his force's safety and its ability to carry its mission doubtless will stimulate much debate in the Council, and be very difficult to achieve. A set of conditions for such assessment and modalities for implementing a reimposition of sanctions would almost certainly have to be worked out in some detail in the suspension resolution.

VI. Movement of People and Work of UNHCR

Depending on how PIF deployment and UNPROFOR withdrawal are planned and implemented, UNHCR will determine whether or not it can remain on the ground in Bosnia. This decision will have a significant impact on how movements of people are handled as well as the delivery of humanitarian aid. A UNHCR withdrawal from Bosnia could trigger large movements of people, cripple efforts to deliver humanitarian aid, and thus seriously effect the mission of the PIF. Troop deployments and redeployments also could affect the safety of UNHCR personnel.

~~SECRET~~
CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY.

As the peace plan takes further shape, we will need to determine the likely conditions UNHCR will expect in the field in order to continue its work in Bosnia. Close coordination with Mrs. Ogata in Geneva will be essential. In particular, coordination between the PIF and UNHCR on the delivery of humanitarian aid--both in Federation territory and Bosnian Serb territory--will need to be coordinated. PIF will need to know what UNHCR expects of it in terms of convoy escort and protection, and UNHCR will need to know the limits of PIF capabilities.

VII. Economic Reconstruction

Implementing an economic reconstruction plan (particularly if it extends outside the Federation territory) will intersect with sanctions relief and the outer wall (access to IFI money, legitimacy in terms of membership in international institutions such as the United Nations). Therefore, certain U.N. actions will be required. These include:

1) UNSC resolutions on sanctions relief (described above).

2) Admission of the FRY into the United Nations. The FRY's presence at the United Nations and associated international organizations has been crippled by Security Council and General Assembly resolutions, all of which require the FRY to seek admission to the United Nations as a new member. We have staunchly refused to grant the FRY successor status to the former Yugoslavia. Therefore, many of the governments and international institutions engaged in funding a multilateral economic reconstruction plan may require as a precondition FRY legitimacy, namely admission to the United Nations. (U.N. admission is not the only way to gain legitimacy or obtain funding, of course, but in this case it may well prove to be a necessary benchmark.) The timing of any such vote in the Security Council and General Assembly will be influenced by full implementation of the peace settlement, Pale's performance, war crimes indictments, and Belgrade's position on claims on Yugoslavia's frozen assets. Belgrade's full recognition of all former republics of Yugoslavia may also be a condition to getting the necessary votes for admission to the United Nations.

VIII. War Crimes Tribunal

The War Crimes Tribunal will continue to investigate, indict, and issue arrest warrants, as well as request cooperation from relevant government authorities in the region. Such actions may influence the implementation of the peace settlement and the sanctions relief program, depending on the gravity of non-cooperation by Belgrade or Pale. Serb authorities in either city may react unpredictably to Tribunal activity, and in ways that have a direct impact on their compliance with the peace settlement and interaction with the PIF.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

IX. Role of the Secretary-General

It will be necessary to maintain close consultation with the U.N. Secretary-General throughout the negotiation and implementation of the peace settlement. His cooperation will be essential with respect to the withdrawal of UNPROFOR, the authority under which PIF will operate, and the execution of the sanctions relief package. One reason is that the Council will call upon the Secretary-General to issue reports prior to critical Council decisions on these matters. Those reports carry considerable weight with Council members. We also need his cooperation in bringing other governments along, particularly troop contributors to UNPROFOR.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Deputies discussed four topics: 1) the shape and mandate of the political implementation mechanism that would coordinate among the actors in-country during the settlement implementation period; 2) equipping and training the Bosnian Federation; and 3) funding strategies for various aspects of post-settlement policy. They agreed to defer discussion of reconstruction assistance until the return of Ralph Johnson from consultations with the EU. (C)

2. On the issue of the political implementation mechanism, Deputies agreed to the following:

- The mission of the political implementation mechanism will chiefly be to coordinate among, rather than to control, the organizations that will play a role in the region after settlement: the NATO implementation force (IFOR), EU, ICFY, OSCE, IFIs, UN, UNHCR, ICRC and other NGOs, bilateral players, etc. Depending on the terms of the settlement, however, some international elements might report directly to the mechanism, or it could be itself directly responsible for implementing certain tasks.
- The political implementation mechanism will serve as a bridge between the various international actors and local officials.
- There should be a strong leader of political stature as the head of the political implementation mechanism.
- The political implementation mechanism should be established as part of the settlement documents and thus have essentially free-standing authority, although we would hope it would be "blessed" by the Security Council.
- Its role will likely extend beyond the termination of the mandate of the peace implementation force. ~~(S)~~

3. State agreed to revise and combine its papers on the political implementation mechanism into a final draft for Deputies' consideration the week of September 11. The new draft should include:

- a clear mandate and delineation of tasks for the political implementation mechanism, with initial recommendations on degree of authority desirable on a function-by-function basis;
- pros and cons and recommendations on the desirability of an American head;
- possible transitional arrangements for the period prior to the constitution of the new implementation mechanism. (Action: State) ~~(S)~~

4. In light of the September 5 Principals' discussions of equip and train, Deputies reaffirmed that an interagency Task Force, chaired by State and including OSD, JCS, OMB, and others as necessary, would be formed to reexamine and redefine the U.S. role while adhering to our goal of establishing a Federation self-defense capability. Specifically, the Task Force was asked to look at the following questions and prepare a paper for Deputies' consideration the week of September 11:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- What degree of U.S. leadership, and what size U.S. contribution to the equip/train effort, will be required to keep negotiations going and further the peace implementation process?
- What type of U.S. involvement will be necessary to give us sufficient leverage to prevent pariah states from undertaking military assistance to the Federation?
- Would lifting the arms embargo be enough, in and of itself, to keep the peace implementation process going?
- What provisions and strategy should we pursue to ensure that feasible arms control/limitation mechanisms are included in the settlement agreement?
- When should we begin consultations with the Bosnians on their military needs and wishes?
- If a needs assessment is not possible, how can we best make decisions on the size of our contribution?
- What is the legal framework for equip and train?
- How will we finance our contribution? (Action: State/Task Force) ~~(S)~~

5. On the issue of funding for the range of post-settlement efforts, Deputies agreed that OMB would produce a paper laying out strategies to obtain sufficient resources to meet our policy goals. (Action: OMB) ~~(C)~~

6. Deputies briefly discussed the Croatian offensive inland from the Dalmatian coast toward Jajce and agreed that demarches should be made to Croatian leaders to urge restraint, especially as there were signs that the Serbs perceived the Croatian offensive as occurring in concert with the ongoing NATO strikes. (Action: State/NSC) ~~(S)~~

Issues for Discussion

Legal status of the implementation authority

Whatever the structure of the civilian and military implementation authority, its legal personality and status must be determined well in advance the settlement, preferably early in the negotiating process. Options include:

- o A UN body (note: virtually any international civilian authority will require a UNSC mandate, as will IFOR);
- o An entity affiliated with some other international organization, such as the EU or OSCE;
- → • A free-standing international control authority (or control commission) established by the peace agreement;
- o An entity combining complementary elements of the above options.

Previous practice and UN precedents in Haiti, Southern Africa, and Cambodia show that a shape-to-fit legal status can be arranged that can meet our political requirements.

Bureaucratic superstructure / Lines of Authority

Options for the implementation authority's leadership and administration include:

- o A Senior Implementation Coordinator (SIC) or Representative (SIR), preferably an American of significant stature, with consultative authority and/or a coordinating role vis. all international entities in Bosnia (UN agencies, OSCE, etc.); (See the attached paper on Implementation Superstructure);
- o A consultative commission, preferably chaired by a senior American, to perform this role;

The best option would be as light and flexible a bureaucratic superstructure as possible. The exact nature of bureaucratic support will be determined largely by the control/supervision over other international entities in Bosnia-Herzegovina, especially the military (including the joint commission), international organizations with expertise to offer on the ground, and local authorities, including intercommunal confidence-building entities. With appropriate revisions to reflect past mistakes, the existing UN model may be carried over; IFOR will take over from UNPROFOR and the implementation authority may assume the role now played by Akashi & Co.

IMPLEMENTATION STRUCTURE

Implementing the settlement in all its political, economic, humanitarian, military and other aspects will require a coordinating superstructure with a clear mandate to make the settlement work, as well as mobilization of a variety of organizations, most already active in the Balkans. This operation would require authorization from some combination of the UN Security Council, the warring parties (via the settlement agreement), and NATO.

The operation would be headed by a respected senior statesman, a strong personality and preferably an American to signify U.S. commitment and leadership role in brokering the settlement. This Senior Implementation Coordinator (SIC) would have a small secretariat, presumably located in Sarajevo. He would have overall responsibility for settlement implementation by working with local authorities and by overseeing international efforts. He would coordinate the work of independent agencies with specific functions, e.g. UNHCR, ECMM, and supervise staff for other tasks, e.g. conduct of elections.

A NATO-led Implementation Force (IFOR) would have responsibility for enforcing the peace agreement as required. Its commander would be the final authority on military and security matters. Ideally, IFOR would be incorporated into the overall structure as an independent agency. Alternatively, it could be set up separately from the general civilian implementation operation. The commander, or at least his chief of staff, should also be American.

The various agencies should be located in close proximity to the Senior Implementation Coordinator, with small liaison staffs in the same building. The SIC would not have formal line authority over the implementation agencies, but would work to ensure that various players do not duplicate tasks, do not undermine the work of other agencies, and do not contravene the general principles of the settlement.

The SIC would chair consultative meetings of the resident representatives of the main organizations active on the ground in Bosnia. Those agencies would include but not be restricted to IFOR, UN, UNHCR, EU/ECMM, OSCE, and IBRD. Other possibilities include ICFY, UNCRO, any UNPROFOR remnant, an international reconstruction mission, UN human rights monitors, Office of the UNSYG, Office of the NATO SYG, and possibly an arms-parity control organization. Major aid donors and/or other governments playing a key bilateral role in the settlement should also be included in the consultative meetings in an appropriate way.

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
VR 2/6/2020 (3.3(5)
DV-0682-M

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Meetings would review progress, exchanging information and coordinating efforts as directed by the SIC (although in some cases they would not be decision-making events, e.g. regarding IFOR or UNHCR operations). The SIC would exercise direction by virtue of his authority (presumably reinforced by a mandate to provide regular reports to the UNSC as with the ICFY co-chairs) and through his staff. As the senior international figure in Bosnia, he would be the locus for contact with the Federation and Serb Republic Governments and would maintain liaison offices in Belgrade, Zagreb, and possibly Skopje and elsewhere.

VV
What is his authority

Committees of the consultative meeting would meet as needed in the following, and perhaps other, fields:

-- Military Security

-- Human Rights

-- Resettlement

-- Reconstruction

-- Arms Control (and/or military assistance)

-- Confidence-Building

-- War Crimes

-- Democratic Elections and Institutions

-- Border Control

-- Legal/Dispute Settlement Issues

lots of structure

The SIC would designate a chairman for each of these committees, who could be either the local head of a relevant international agency or a deputy of the SIC. For example, the IFOR commander could chair the military committee, while the OSCE mission head chaired the arms control committee, and the SIC's top political adviser chaired the human rights/democracy-building committee. The guiding principle in organizing this structure should be pragmatism. To the extent possible, however, the structure should pave the way for Bosnian governmental institutions called for in the settlement, e.g. reconstruction commission, arbitration panel, and should provide important jobs to offer to nationals of various governments to help secure their support.

NO

The question of bringing Russia on board is discussed separately. It is worth noting here, however, that Russian participation in the IFOR and the arms control entity could help greatly in this effort.

DECL:OADR

POLITICAL IMPLEMENTATION STRUCTURES IN A BOSNIAN SETTLEMENT

The Task

We need to begin now to prepare for the establishment -- in the context of a Bosnian settlement -- of an on-the-ground political framework structure to integrate, coordinate and, to a lesser degree, oversee progress on the various political undertakings of a settlement package and the activities of international organizations and activities involved in different aspects of implementation.

"Peace implementation" will require not only a military component -- through the NATO-led PIF to ensure a secure environment within which implementation can go forward -- but also a means of ensuring there is continued facilitation of political negotiations among the parties, promotion of local conflict resolution and monitoring of human rights, coordination of economic reconstruction, delivery of humanitarian assistance, monitoring of various confidence-building/arms control measures of increasing scope. Both an overall political framework and a central coordinating mechanism will be required.

There are various models of previous international interventions -- such as Haiti, Cambodia -- on which we can draw in terms of structures, functions and experience. Bosnia, however, will be sui generis -- not least because of the difficulty in meshing the roles of key international organizations. We will, for example, want a political implementation structure that is seen as distinctively different from past UN operations in the regions and minimizes any future role of the UN secretariat. At the same time, NATO will be called upon to play an unprecedented role in leading the PIF whose freedom of action we will wish to protect. We will wish to draw upon resources of the EU and OIC, even while maximizing our own national influence.

How the United States seeks to define the role, mandate, structure and senior leadership of such an international on-the-ground political component of settlement implementation will directly affect:

-- the credibility of the package that our current negotiating efforts are promoting with the parties in the region;

-- our ability to generate sufficient diplomatic support for a NATO-led military implementation force along the lines we desire;

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
VR 2/6/2020 (3.4b)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- our ability to encourage and ensure continued progress in the various political undertakings of a settlement once launched; and,

-- the credibility of our exit strategy for the PIF and the withdrawal of its major U.S. elements by a date certain in late '96.

This latter point will be especially critical. While the NATO-led PIF is clearly intended to be of specific and limited duration, a political implementation structure would have the opportunity (indeed requirement) to run longer. (Just as an ongoing international presence to support and oversee democratic development within Haiti provided the context within which timely withdrawal of initial intervention forces was politically possible, so too will our announcement of an exit date and strategy for the PIF need to be accompanied by the sense that political mechanism for dealing with longer-term problems is in place in Bosnia.)

Defining the Framework Structure

From the U.S. perspective, any such on-the-ground political implementation structure (however labelled) should meet the following requirements:

-- It should have a clear political mandate and authority, not least to set it apart from the various international bodies and personalities that over time have come to claim a generalized or specific role in the former Yugoslavia (e.g., ICFY, ECMM, UN agencies, etc.). Its mandate/authority should flow directly and explicitly from the terms of the settlement among the parties themselves. As necessary, it should be blessed -- not necessarily created -- by a UNSC Resolution.

-- As the senior international authority for overall implementation in the region, it should be built around a few key leadership positions and a relatively light bureaucratic superstructure. It should not seek to create an entirely new on-the-ground presence to handle specialized tasks but rather have the task of integration and oversight of the "sub-contract work" of other agencies and efforts.

-- The head of this political framework structure (however labelled) should have a close and integral relationship with the NATO-led PIF but with no authority to control or inhibit PIF operations. (Put another way, this definitely would not be a recreation of Akashi's past role vis-a-vis UNPROFOR). The PIF should be seen as a consistent part of the overall implementation structure but clearly separate and distinct in its lines of command and control.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- The head of this political framework structure should also have -- again flowing from the terms of the settlement itself -- an established central role vis-a-vis the parties in the political processes set in motion by the settlement package. This will be particularly important in the context of facilitating post-settlement negotiations regarding practical details of the Bosnian Serbs' constitutional role within a unitary Bosnia.

-- Leadership staffing of this structure should maximize U.S. influence and direction. In particular, an American should occupy the position of senior international representative on the ground (however this is labelled - whether as High Commissioner or Personal Representative or the like). At the same time, it might prove politically important to carve out visible positions (in the appropriate areas of competency) for senior EU and Russian representatives.

Challenges in Defining Relationships with Other Institutions

Ideally, the United States would wish to see such a political implementation structure as separate and distinct from the UN as possible. As noted above, a prerequisite of this new operation would be a clear political break with UNPROFOR's past history. A complete break, however, would seem most unlikely to achieve.

-- The other members of the UNSC P-5 -- as well as the UN SYG -- will strongly insist, most likely as a price to a UNSC mandate to NATO for organization and command of the PIF, on some form of visible and meaningful UN role in political implementation.

-- At the same time, we will want to make full use of the resources and expertise of a host of UN and other specialized agencies.

-- Moreover, establishment of such a political operation would tax the current abilities of other organizations that might possibly assume such an institutional role -- OSCE or NATO itself. While casting this political framework structure in the context of either NATO or OSCE would not be impossible, it would require a major political effort on our part to realize.

-- Therefore, it is quite possible that we would face major pressures to at least designate the senior international representative with a label that ties the position to the UN SYG, even while designing the role and relationship in different terms from the past.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- Finally, it is also not yet clear the extent to which the Bosnian Government will be prepared to accept an international political presence that, at least according to our initial expectations, might be both long-term and intrusive.

Next Steps

As initial next steps, we would need to do the following:

-- Begin to stress, in our internal planning as well as in presentation to the parties, allies and others, "peace implementation" as a fundamentally political, as well as military, effort, thus requiring an on-the-ground political umbrella for the NATO-led PIF.

-- Refine precisely what tasks might be the priority for such a political implementation structure and how it might be organized to perform its integration, coordination and oversight roles.

-- Begin to develop specific options for how such an operation might be related to other bodies, not least being the UN SYG, in such a way as to meet our own bottom line.

-- Begin to identify possible U.S. personnel for key leadership positions.

POSITION PAPER

Subject: Russian and other Non-NATO Participation in NATO Implementation Force in Bosnia

1. (~~S~~) Purpose. To establish a Joint Staff/OSD position regarding Russian and other non-NATO participation in a NATO Implementation Force (IFOR) in Bosnia, in response to a tasking in the NSC Principals Committee meeting, 5 Sep 95.

2. (~~S~~) Background Points.

- In its memo to the Principals for the 5 Sep meeting, Deputies Committee agreed that:
  - ◊ The IFOR will be a NATO operation with limited non-NATO participation.
  - ◊ While operational efficiency of the IFOR will be reduced by involvement of non-NATO forces, non-NATO participation -- especially by Russia -- will be politically necessary and in some respects, desirable (e.g., as an opportunity for Partnership for Peace countries to operate with NATO forces).
  - ◊ Non-NATO forces must be militarily capable, interoperable with NATO, and fully equipped; EO 13526 1.4d EO 13526 1.4d
- Due to its strong geo-political interests in the Balkans and ethnic ties to the Serbs, the Russians in particular will want to participate in IFOR. Further, Russia has been engaged in the Bosnia crisis both diplomatically as a member of the Contact Group and militarily as a troop contributor to UNPF. There are 825 Russian soldiers in UNCRO's Sector East, 430 in Sarajevo, and 31 UNMO's in dispersed locations.
- The IFOR will set precedents for future NATO CJTFs in out-of-area operations.

3. (~~S~~) Discussion.

Non-NATO troop contributing countries, including Russia, are kept apprised of NATO planning by way of the Ad Hoc Planning and Coordination Group (AHPCG). This forum is appropriate for informing them of NATO's plans for IFOR and their proposed participation.

If the NATO plan for IFOR draws on past experience with OPLAN 40103 or OPLAN 40104, it will be a phased operation. Phase I will be the preparatory phase in which forces are trained, exercised and prepared for movement into the theater of operations. Training of non-NATO participants, to include basic familiarization with NATO procedures and operational concepts, could be accomplished in this phase. Forces currently assigned to UNPROFOR and deemed not interoperable with NATO forces [redacted] EO 13526 1.4d would not be invited to participate.

Agreement would have to be reached with the UN and with non-NATO participants for transfer of authority (TOA) to NATO. A Status of Forces Agreement (SOFA) would also be needed for all participants in the implementation operation.

Agreement on TOA may hinge on the presence of a UN representative in theater and/or a non-NATO military official in a key position. A UN civilian official could serve at Theater Command level for consultation on political issues. It is not clear at this point that this would be acceptable to NATO allies and non-NATO contributors alike. This issue requires planning to avoid undercutting our CJTF position at NATO.

Advantages of Russian and other non-NATO participation:

- Assists NATO's generation of overall force strength required for peace enforcement mission.
- Enhances prospects of long-term regional stability by taking advantage of Russian leverage with Serbs.
- Enhances relations with Russia and other non-NATO countries by acknowledging their interests in the region.
- Enhances Russian and other non-NATO countries' confidence in NATO.
- Enhances impartiality of IFOR by including Russia, a pro-Serbian participant.
- Takes advantage of opportunity to enhance PFP relationship with Russia and others.

~~SECRET~~

- Russia is capable of being self-sufficient and funding its participation, so NATO does not accept additional financial burden. Others should also pay their share.
- Increases likelihood of Russian support in UN Security Council.

Disadvantages of Russian and non-NATO participation:

- Detracts from IFOR effectiveness due lack of interoperability with non-NATO forces.
- Complicates command and control: EO 13526 1.4d
- EO 13526 1.4d
- Opens the door for non-NATO participation beyond desirable level and desirable participants.

4. (~~S~~) Recommendation. NATO IFOR should only include Russian and non-NATO contingents under the following conditions:

- specify that Russia's participation is a special case.
- specify requirement for NATO operational control of Russian and other non-NATO forces.
- EO 13526 1.4d
- encourage Russian and other non-NATO countries contribution consisting of combat support and combat service support forces, such as engineers, military police, logistics and transportation units.
- EO 13526 1.4d
- specify that the Ad Hoc Planning and Coordination Group is the appropriate body for bringing non-NATO troop contributors into the IFOR planning process.
- give further consideration to command and oversight issues, and their relationship to the US CJTF position at NATO.

IV

Equipping and Training the Bosnian Federation (U)

Scenario: (S) The developing situation in the Balkans will result in the near future in one of the following scenarios on the ground in Bosnia in which military assistance to the Bosnian Federation would take place:

- No peace settlement:
  - UNPROFOR remains and continues the mission.
  - UNPROFOR withdrawal.

- Peace settlement:
  - With large-scale NATO Peace Implementation Force (PIF).
  - With a token or no PIF.

This paper focuses on the peace settlement scenario with a PIF deployed upon the acceptance of a peace plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina by all warring parties. There is international commitment to implement the provisions of the plan, including economic, diplomatic and military components. While the peace settlement will preserve Bosnia as a single state in juridical terms, the two parts of the union will retain separate armed forces. Therefore, establishing a balance of power and preventing renewed conflict will require assisting the Federation to develop an effective self-defense capability relative to the BSA by the end of the period of peace plan implementation. To meet this requirement, two parallel programs are conducted concurrently: a US-led, multinational effort to provide equipment and training to the Federation forces; a NATO-led force to implement the peace plan.

Assumptions: (S)

- Public and Congressional support for the plan has been achieved.
- NATO consensus for effort exists.
- The arms embargo is lifted for all of the former Yugoslavia.
- Legal requirements for provision of equipment have been met.
- This will be an overt operation.
- Bosnian Federation remains a viable entity and requests assistance.
- Bosnian Federation Army can disengage to equip and train.
- Croatia continues its support for and cooperation with the Federation.
- Croatia will grant access through its territory to Bosnia.
- [redacted] EO 13526 1.4a
- Adequate equipment, training facilities, and logistics are available.

Mission: ~~(S)~~ On order, USCINCEUR assumes operational control of a multinational force from designated NATO and non-NATO nations and conducts operations to equip and train selected elements of the Bosnian Federation Army to enhance its capability to defend the territorial integrity of the Bosnian Federation.

Intent: ~~(S)~~

- Form a multinational coalition led by the US to equip and train the Federation Army.
- Enhance Federation Army's existing core capabilities and units.
- Strengthen military cohesion between the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat armed forces.
- Develop Federation Army's capability to sustain its own training program.
- Counter-balance BSA strengths.
- Focus on defensive tasks at the company and battalion levels and on brigade and higher staff operations.
- Begin as promptly as feasible.
- Training will not be conducted by the PIF.
- Support the mission logistically.

Desired End State: ~~(S)~~ Bosnian Federation Army has enhanced capability to defend the territorial integrity of the Bosnian Federation against Bosnian Serb aggression without external combat support within the time required; anticipated deadline is December 96.

Specified Tasks: ~~(S)~~

- USCINCEUR assumes operational control of a multinational force for the mission.
- Assess Federation Army capabilities and needs.
- In coordination with the Federation Army, plan their equipping and training.
- Establish the Multinational Training Team (MNTT).
- Facilitate the provision of equipment to the Federation Army by donor nations.

Concept of Operations: ~~(S)~~ Equipping and training the Federation will be a comprehensive operation beginning with an initial assessment of existing doctrine, organization, equipment, and training status. International conferences with contributing nations will be held to build consensus, obtain funding, and plan the integration of participating nations. Training sites and support structures will be established. Training location(s) has not been determined. Logistical support will be provided during the entire operation and lay the groundwork for a Federation logistical support system.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Issues: ~~(S)~~ The following issues should be discussed in the interagency before proceeding with further planning for execution of multilateral equipping and training.

(1) Legal. There are significant domestic and international legal issues that must be resolved by interagency coordination. The primary domestic legal consideration is to determine the legal status of the Bosnian Federation and the legal authority for providing US assistance. Legal authority is tied to recognized governments; the Federation is not a legal entity. Further, before defense articles can be provided, bilateral agreements must be signed governing end-use and legislation permitting the grant transfer of lethal excess defense articles (EDA) must be obtained. International legal concerns include SOFAs, for both the training site country and B-H, and the status of trainers and training sites under the Law of War.

What limitations is Congress likely to place on US participation in this effort? How much time will be required to establish a comprehensive SOFA for training site country(s)? What if the UNSC refuses to lift the arms embargo during the period of peace plan implementation?

(2) Funding.

Funding requirement. Competition for sources of funds will occur between equip and train, PIF, and economic reconstruction requirements. The equip and train funding requirement will be driven by the ultimate capability we want the Federation to possess, based on assessment of Federation forces requirements and constrained by realistic assumptions about FY 96 funds available. At a minimum, the package must include equipment, training, transportation of trainers and equipment, site preparation, spares, consumables, maintenance and sustainment. In addition, funding must support building a Federation air defense capability.

Funding sources. Foreign contributions will form an essential source of funding for the equip and train package. Some form of voluntary fund may be warranted.

There are several potential sources for the US contribution in FY 96. The authority for drawing upon most of these sources is dependent on a multilateral lifting of the arms embargo and a Presidential Determination making the Federation eligible for assistance. Most of the FY 96 military assistance funds are already programmed for ongoing programs; diversion of such funds to the Bosnian Federation will be at their expense. The state of the FY 96 appropriation bill and veto debates may be problematic.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

The potential sources of such US funding for FY 96 are:

- Excess Defense Articles (EDA): There may be limited resources available depending upon what type of equipment is to be transferred to the Federation. Consideration would have to be given to funds for refurbishment, training, transportation, and support of much of this equipment.

- DoD Title 10 Funds. Funds in the amount of $40 million are being requested in FY 96 for joint exercises and training under the Partnership for Peace separate from FMF program funding. DoD has also requested funding for "Traditional CINC Programs."

- Foreign Assistance Act (FAA) Drawdown Authority 506(a)(1): We expect $75 million in FY 96 drawdown authority (for all countries); readiness impact on US forces must be considered.

- Special Legislative Authority:

    - Special Bosnia Drawdown Authority. FY 95 Foreign Operations Appropriation Act includes a $50 million drawdown authority for the Government of Bosnia. Current authority expires 30 September 95, but renewal is included in the Senate's FY 96 legislation.

    - B-H Self Defense Fund. Bill pending that would authorize $50 million US contribution to international fund for the purpose of equipping and training the Bosnian Army.

- US-held Warsaw Pact Equipment Stocks. US currently has a limited inventory.

The allocation of the following programs for FY 96 has been determined and announced. The Administration might try to request a supplemental authorization to replenish some of these sources.

- Foreign Military Financing (FMF): Funding levels have not been passed by the Senate. Based on House levels ($3.211 billion), traditional earmarks and Presidential commitments will leave only $27 million available to meet worldwide commitments. DoD has already proposed allocating $20 million of this amount to Jordan and State has historically supported $5 million for worldwide demining activities.

- International Military Education & Training (IMET): $39 million may be appropriated in FY 96 for 135 eligible countries. Tentative allocations have $200,000 identified for the Bosnian Federation and $200,000 for Croatia.

(3) Equipment availability. Equipment necessary to establish balance of power must be identified, available, sustainable, and maintainable. Equipment must be available for transport into region within timeline established.

During the assessment phase, other issues must be resolved. It is recommended that a mix of equipment (former Warsaw Pact or NATO) be provided to the Federation. Current estimate is that the majority of items provided should be former Warsaw Pact equipment because of relative cost and availability. Further, this type of equipment presently forms the basis of Federation inventory. Alternatively, US equipment could fill existing voids in the Federation inventory (e.g., air defense, armored personnel carriers). There are indications that certain departing UNPF units may be willing to leave some equipment behind (e.g., APCs from Malaysia). Are spare parts and consumables available? Is stock (US and other contributing nations) sufficient to meet requirement and timeline? Can equipment be maintained and sustained by Bosnian Federation forces? What international linkages and leverages are involved with sustaining particular types of equipment? What is effect of linkages on long-term stability of Federation?

(4) Command and Control. US leadership must be established to ensure multinational efforts are coordinated to achieve the desired end state and to ensure that US maintains control over this program. Mission will be tasked to CINCEUR, and most likely delegated to USAREUR for detailed planning, coordination, and execution. A multinational conference will be necessary to plan the integration of other contributors and assert US leadership. This will also avoid multiple, uncoordinated equip and train efforts. US leadership will limit or prevent participation by potentially disruptive nations (e.g., Iran). US assistance should be conditional on the exclusion of radical Islamic states like Iran. After the equip and train period, US leverage on the Federation will likely diminish, so long-term regional arms control should be considered.

(5) Regional Arms Control. Efforts by the international community after the lifting of the arms embargo to equip and train warring factions could easily result in an arms race, resulting in an imbalance of power and thereby destabilizing the region. The establishment of inventory limits on CFE treaty limited equipment and zonal sub-limits (DMZs, areas of restricted maneuvering/operations) may be required for all warring parties in order to achieve and maintain a balance of power in the long-term. Such limits could include heavy equipment (tanks, APCs, aircraft, naval vessels) and force structure (active and reserve). What are the limits necessary for Federation self-defense? At what point does a strong defensive force become a possible offensive threat to regional stability? How many tanks, mortars, aircraft, ships? Who determines limits: warring parties via peace plan, EU, OSCE, NATO, or US? Who develops initial stabilization measures (measures of transparency, constraint, reinforce confidence, monitoring compliance/evaluation)? Who maintains measures: EU, OSCE, NATO? An arms control regime, to be effective, should have a regional context.

(6) Operational.

Multinational air support. If there is a peace agreement, air support will continue during the peace implementation effort. No Fly Zone (NFZ) operations will continue in the airspace of B-H, and authorized areas of Croatia, to maintain a ban on military flights. Close Air Support (CAS) in support of the PIF and air strikes to enforce the peace agreement will also be continued. The issue of extending NATO air support after PIF withdrawal to continue enforcement of the peace agreement requires further study. Only NFZ operations will be considered because CAS and air strikes will not be militarily required once the Federation has established an effective self-defense capability on the ground.

Federation air defense. The Federation does not possess an air force and it is recommended as part of a peace settlement that they will not be equipped with that capability. An air force is extremely expensive, very difficult to sustain and maintain, and constitutes an offensive threat. To compensate for this lack of an air capability, we should assist the Federation in establishing an appropriate air defense while ensuring the BSA air capability is subject to the proposed regional arms control regime. It is recommended that the Federation possess a mix of ADA assets; the exact mix and quantity have to be determined. The equipping phase should be timed so that armed weapons systems are not fielded prior to the termination of NATO air support. The Federation can be equipped and trained during the initial training period but weapons systems will not be armed with munitions until NATO air support is lifted.

(7) Risk of enduring US commitment. Direct US ties to the Bosnian Federation Army may result in long term commitment. Failure of Bosnian Army may be perceived as US failure. An exit strategy which disengages US from maintaining the Bosnian Federation must be established and linked to US security assistance to Bosnia.

Principals Committee Action: ~~(S)~~ Recommend the Principals Committee:

- Confirm the assumptions, mission, intent, desired end state, and specified tasks for the equipping and training operation.
- Conduct preliminary discussion of the issues.
- Direct State/OSD/JCS to initiate planning.
- Direct State/OSD to prepare a Congressional consultation plan.
- Authorize Joint Staff to coordinate an in-country assessment of Federation capabilities and needs.

Equip and Train: Diplomatic Considerations

Goals

Building diplomatic support for an equip and train endeavor may be a significant challenge, given the reluctance of some countries to support build-up, the absence of much leverage over the "FRY" and Croatia, and the inevitable linkage to arms control efforts. Nonetheless, our initial efforts should work toward

-- establishing the settlement agreement as a codification of the peaceful intent of the parties. The agreement should embody clear commitments on no-first-use of force. It might also include some kind of renunciation of seeking boundary changes by force. We need to emphasize the importance of a managed regional balance of power as a key to regional military instability.

-- building international acceptance of the rights of states in the region to have capabilities to defend themselves. Political acceptance of this is fundamental to acceptance of an equip and train mission, and might also be built into constitutional or settlement provisions.

-- establishing this effort as a controlled response to simple multilateral lift, which itself might be expected to prompt an uncontrolled regional arms race.

-- developing an arms control concept-regime that would integrate the notions of building down while building up. This regime might encompass a variety of measures under the aegis of different entities, including separation of forces, constraining and mediating disputes, establishment of confidence-building measures, and establishment of a broader arms control structure, possibly based on the 1993 crisis stabilizing measures developed by the OSCE for the Balkans.

Establishing Needs

Once the political foundation is set, we can move towards a field anaylsis or assessment of the kinds of needs that might be met through an equip and train mission. What kinds of equipment and/or weapons might be helpful? What kind of training in what environment is required? Can defensive capabilities be emphasized?

Diplomatic Consultations

This assessment might then be followed by presentations first to key allies at NATO. Achievement of a consensus on actual needs to be filled and notional means to do so should precede any presentation to other NATO allies.

Initial consultations must clearly distinguish between the equip and train force (ETF) and the IFOR, and establish that the ETF is a U.S.-led effort designed to meet specific needs within the context of the goals outlined above.

Consideration might then turn to identifying those countries best positioned to assist with filling those needs. For example

-- specific NATO (or even NACC) countries might be solicited by the U.S. to contribute expert trainers to programs.

-- other NATO (or NACC) countries might be approached to provide sites and support facilities for the out-of-Bosnia training. These countries might include Turkey, Hungary, Spain, etc.

-- finally, a select set of other countries from the OIC arena might be able to provide financial or equipment assistance in the effort. Specifically, Egypt might be well-positioned to provide Warsaw Pact equipment, or the OIC might be in a position to organize from members a financial/equipment contribution.

The bottom line should be that participating countries will be invited to assist based on their specific abilities to contribute in a controlled manner to the effort. This would all be done at U.S. suggestion/invitation, though close coordination at NATO, or at least with key allies, will remain important for maintaining political acceptance. Clear lines of consultation with arms control efforts (OSCE?) would be required from the time the assessment of needs was made to gauge the proper direction of build-up.

The extent of our own contribution may be critical to our asserting the lead role. In addition, we will face some tough decisions on solicitation of contributions. We will have to distinguish between acceptable and unacceptable (to the U.S.) contributions.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

For example, is France an acceptable training locale given its allergy to US forces? While Iranian trainers are not acceptable, is Iranian funding or equipment? Matching offers of training and equipment to specific requirements may help limit the involvement of radical states, but probably not preclude it entirely.

The introduction of equipment (and trained personnel) back into the Federation should be carefully timed to coincide with the 1996 envisioned withdrawal of the IFOR and the status of CBM development within the region.

Confidence-Building/Arms Control Measures
To Accompany Political Settlement

Assumption: It will be important that the United States offer the perspective of "arms build-down" in connection with any settlement package -- both to help build political support among allies and partners for the overall U.S. initiative and to assist in creating an environment within which the Federation-Bosnian Serb military balance can more easily be stabilized. Any set of proposals to that effect, however, would have to be phased and flexible, readily adapting to changing circumstances on the ground and open to expansion over time in both scope and application.

Step-by-Step Approach: In the first instance, we should concentrate on political/military confidence-building measures geared to specific areas and tactical situations along lines of confrontation within Bosnia itself. Their immediate objective would be to supplement and help stabilize the ceasefire contained in the settlement; accordingly, they would focus on disengagement of the parties, preliminary forms of weapons control, and transparency. CBM's

More specifically, this might include (perhaps within the text of any ceasefire component of a settlement):

-- Separation of forces and weapons along designated confrontation lines (e.g., 2 km for infantry, 10 km for mortars, 20 km for heavy weapons).

-- Ban of certain military activities, including aircraft activities, in selected areas.

-- Establishment of heavy weapons collection/ deactivation sites.

-- Establishment of joint liaison/communication links among opposing local commanders under the active oversight of the Implementation Force.

-- Establishment of procedures for extensive monitoring all of the above measures by designated elements of the Implementation Force.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

As progress is made with each of these measures, we would seek to expand them in scope and effect. As some would presumably be intended for a long duration, we would wish to build in the possibility that, as the NATO-led military implementation force draws down with the accomplishment of its basic mission, monitoring/verification duties might be eventually passed to another body -- perhaps some configuration of UN/OSCE observers.

Long-Term Perspective: Even as our immediate focus should be on local stabilizing measures within Bosnia proper to support the ceasefire and settlement, the United States should be prepared to offer -- at an appropriate political moment -- a long-term perspective for the region as whole. This would be consistent with an emphasis on a comprehensive approach to the problems of the former Yugoslavia.

The stated objective of such a U.S. initiative for confidence-building/arms control measures for would be strengthening stability and security throughout the region, with the specific aim of eliminating disparities and capabilities for launching surprise attack and for initiating, at a regional level, large-scale offensive action. Reductions, limitations and the realization of a more defensive set of force postures might be examined as contributions to a more stable military balance.

Any initial deliberations among parties as to participation and modalities could take place in an informal setting, although the intention should always be to transfer any such negotiations back into a more formal OSCE framework at an appropriate time. Recognizing the many inherent difficulties involved in any move towards a more ambitious arms control regime for the region, the U.S. objective would, in the first instance, be as much to set in place an ongoing process as the expectation of any early progress towards a CFE-like regime.

PHASE 2

Area of application: The territory of the successor States.

Start of application: As soon as possible after successful initiation of Phase I.

Objective: Creation of a balance of forces between the parties; removal of offensive capability by adoption of a defensive restructuring of force postures.

Content:
- detailed exchange of information;
- reductions;
- establishment of limitations;
- verification, as in Phase I.

Remarks: It will be important to develop incentives to gain their acceptance for the proposed measures. The mandate could be adopted in conjunction with the peace settlement, if possible setting targets and criteria for success.

Continuation of Air Support Beyond the Peace Implementation Force (PIF)

Scenario: (S) A peace plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina is accepted by all warring parties. A NATO-led Peace Implementation Force conducts operations to enforce the terms of the peace agreement in B-H. NATO air will continue No Fly Zone (NFZ) operations in the airspace of B-H, and authorized areas of Croatia, to maintain a ban on military flights as an essential element for the safety of the delivery of humanitarian assistance and a decisive step to maintain a cessation of hostilities, and will conduct Close Air Support (CAS) and air strike operations as required, to support the PIF. Operations could include associated support missions such as Suppression of Enemy Air Defenses (SEAD).

Assumptions: (S) The assumptions in the DoD papers "Implementing a Balkan Settlement" and "Multilateral Equipping and Training of the Bosnian Federation" apply.

Issue: (S) Should NATO continue air operations in the air space of B-H, after departure of the PIF?

Situation: (S) PIF forces have withdrawn from B-H. Multinational forces have completed efforts to equip and train selected elements of the Bosnian Federation Army and have enhanced its capability to defend the territorial integrity of the Bosnian Federation.

There are two alternatives for multinational forces efforts to equip and train the Bosnian Federation Armed Forces with an air defense capability to counter the potential air threat from the Bosnian Serbs: (1) To complete establishing an air defense capability in parallel with the equip and train efforts for ground forces with the delivery of actual weapons just prior to PIF withdrawal or; (2) To delay establishing an air defense capability until after PIF withdraws. The intent in establishing an air defense capability after the PIF withdraws is to not increase risk to NATO air operations while the PIF is in place. Continued NATO air operations would also require UNSC and NAC mandates beyond the PIF mission. ✓

Assessment: (S)

Close Air Support after the PIF withdraws: Equip and train efforts have provided Bosnian Federation with a self-defense capability including artillery and other heavy weapons. Considerations to continue CAS operations beyond the PIF include:

Pros:
- Augments Bosnian Federation capability to conduct defensive operations.

Cons:
- Commits NATO to the defense of the Bosnian Federation with no clear end state.
- Requires trained TACPs on the ground to be effective.
- Requires continued NATO air operations which include impacts on funding, manpower, readiness.
- Requires continued authority for pre-emptive SEAD throughout B-H -- potentially escalatory in nature. Enforcement puts NATO in a perceived position of a belligerent.
- Could result in captured US aircrew without US/NATO ground troops engaged.

Air Strike Operations after PIF withdraws: Equip and train efforts have provided Bosnian Federation with a self-defense capability including artillery and other heavy weapons. Considerations to continue air strike operations beyond the PIF include:

Pros:
- Provides Federation deep strike capability against the Bosnian Serbs.

Cons:

- Commits NATO to the defense of the Bosnian Federation with no clear end state.
- Requires continued NATO intelligence effort to maintain target lists.
- Requires continued NATO air operations which include impacts on funding, manpower, readiness.
- Requires continued authority for pre-emptive SEAD throughout B-H -- potentially escalatory in nature; places NATO in a perceived role of a belligerent.
- Could result in captured US aircrew without US/NATO ground troops engaged.

Pros:

- Under the case of delaying the equipping of an air defense capability, NFZ would maintain a balance of power in B-H until Bosnian Federation establishes air defense capability.

Cons:

- Requires continued NATO air operations which include impacts on funding, manpower, readiness.
- Requires continued authority for pre-emptive SEAD throughout B-H -- potentially escalatory in nature. Enforcement puts NATO in a perceived position of a belligerent.
- Could result in captured US aircrew without US/NATO ground troops engaged.

Conclusion: (S) CAS and air strikes are not militarily required once the Bosnian Federation has established an effective self defense capability on the ground. Once the Bosnian Federation air defense capability is established, there is no military requirement for NATO NFZ operations to maintain a balance of power in B-H.

To ensure NATO is not committed to defending the Bosnian Federation beyond the PIF, establishing the Bosnian Federation air defense capability should occur concurrently with other equip and train efforts and should be completed before the PIF withdraws. This end state can be achieved while minimizing the time period in which NATO air operations are at greater risk.

To minimize this period of vulnerability, the multinational equip and train forces could conduct the assessment of the Bosnian Federation air defense requirements, conduct training of operators outside of B-H, and identify and stockpile air defense equipment concurrently with other equip and train efforts with the ground forces. The final phase of actually equipping the Bosnian Federation air defense could commence just prior to the PIF withdrawal.

If as part of the peace negotiations, it is necessary to offer the Bosnian Federation an additional short term insurance policy after PIF withdrawal, only NFZ operations should continue and only then for a defined limited period of time. Actually equipping the Bosnian Federation air defense would be delayed until NFZ operations cease.
