Summary of Conclusions

Policy:

1. The Principals reaffirmed the current U.S. strategy on Bosnia, agreeing to press forward with our efforts aimed at maximizing pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to accept the Contact Group proposal. In addition to encouraging Milosevic's steps to isolate the Bosnian Serbs with limited sanctions relief, we will make an all-out effort to implement the disincentives agreed earlier by the Contact Group, in particular to carry out air strikes in response to violations of the exclusion zones. Lifting the Arms Embargo:

2. The Principals reviewed the preliminary results of the interagency study on options for lifting the arms embargo and directed that planning continue, pointing to completion of a detailed planning document by DoD. Outstanding issues with alternatives and specific options should be promptly identified for subsequent Principal's consideration. Action: Joint Staff and OSD.

3. The Principals requested an operational and legal analysis of the impact of the Nunn language on NATO operations in the Balkans. Action: Joint Staff.

Sanctions:

4. The Principals confirmed current U.S. strategy to proceed with sanctions resolutions as discussed by the Contact Group in Geneva, but stressed the importance of early and thorough interagency coordination. Action: NSC and State.

5. The Principals agreed the U.S. should participate in the ICFY sanctions monitoring mission by providing personnel and resources. Action: OVP prepare options.

6. The Principals affirmed the importance of maintaining the effectiveness of the existing sanctions regime, but recognized the necessity not to appear to be tightening sanctions on Serbia at this time. Action: OVP to develop initiatives for improving the enforcement of existing sanctions.

7. The Principals decided that the U.S. should not present specific proposals on additional sanctions relief in return for additional steps by the FRY at this time, pending creation of an acceptable border monitoring regime and implementation of "phase 1" sanctions relief.

MEMORANDUM FOR EXECUTIVE SECRETARY, NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

FROM: EXECUTIVE SECRETARY, DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
Prepared by T Walton, OSD Yugo. Task Force, x56516

SUBJECT: U.S. Observers for Serbian/Bosnian Border

In response to your memorandum of October 1, 1994, on U.S. Participation in the Serbian Border Monitoring Mission, USDP Slocombe has requested the Secretary of the Army to act on this matter. Any further queries or instructions should be referred to his office.

We have already begun a search for qualified personnel for this important mission and hope to deploy them as soon as possible.

The Yugoslav Task Force in the Office of the Secretary of Defense will continue their regular contacts with the NSC on the observer mission and monitor its progress. The Department of the Army point of contact is COL Gibson, Army Materiel Command, (703) 274-8195.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Principals Committee Review of Bosnia Policy

Principals met Tuesday afternoon to review planning for lifting of the arms embargo and our political strategy from now until mid-October, after which you have pledged to introduce a UN Security Council resolution to lift the embargo.

Principals agreed we should press forward with our current strategy aimed at maximizing pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to accept the Contact Group proposal. In addition to encouraging Milosevic's steps to isolate the Bosnian Serbs with limited sanctions relief, we will make an all-out effort to implement the disincentives agreed earlier by the Contact Group, in particular to carry out air strikes in response to violations of the exclusion zones. This will require pressuring Boutros-Ghali and reluctant allies (especially the UK) to override the objections of the UNPROFOR commanders to any use of air power.

Principals continue to see major risks in lifting the embargo, even if done multilaterally. They recognized that there may be factors arguing for delay when the October 15 deadline (now established in the DoD Authorization Bill) rolls around: Allies and the Russians may argue that more time is needed for other Contact Group measures to play out, and thus oppose a lift resolution in the Security Council in November; and the Bosnians themselves may prefer to wait till spring if there is no way to persuade UNPROFOR to remain after lift. Indeed, the JCS military planners have concluded that the rearmament program and air campaign that must accompany lift could be more effectively pursued if we delayed for 4-6 months.

Nevertheless, Principals agreed that we had to uphold our commitment to the Congress to act on multilateral lift after October 15, and that the prospect of lift provides important leverage vis-a-vis the Serbs and our Contact Group partners. If the Contact Group strategy shows promise in mid-October, we may be able to gain some flexibility on timing of lift from the Congress. (We will not, however, have much flexibility in implementing the Nunn amendment provision that DoD cease funding of enforcement of the arms embargo after November 15; but that is a far more limited action than unilateral lift in that we would at most be restricted from participating in aspects of NATO's sanctions enforcement in the Adriatic.)

Diplomatic Strategy on Bosnia: Short and Mid-Term

SUMMARY: This paper sets forth considerations for American strategy towards the Bosnian conflict in the short and mid-term. The short term is defined as the period leading up to the October 15 date for commencement of discussions on a multilateral lift resolution, as set out in President Clinton's August 10 letter to Nunn and in the Nunn-Mitchell amendment. Mid-term is defined as the period following October 15 until the end of 1994. This is the period in which the question of whether the United States moves towards unilateral lift is likely to be decided.

The analysis considers steps in all important aspects of our efforts, i.e. within the Contact Group and in NATO; with the parties to the conflict; with Congress and with the press. It concludes with an agenda for near and mid-term action. END SUMMARY

THE CURRENT SITUATION

The current situation is characterized by an uneasy and oft-broken military truce with considerable political maneuvering behind the scenes. There are several untested assumptions, including the intentions of the Russians and other Contact Group members, the sincerity of Milosevic and the ability of the Sarajevo government to maintain its position.

While the Contact Group remains the best means for avoiding a breakdown of current efforts and preventing a situation from arising in which the U.S. could be forced to assume sole responsibility for the crisis, its internal cohesion could be tested severely in coming weeks. Both Russia and France appear to be pushing alternative visions for a peace process based on support for Milosevic, while the UK and others remain adamantly opposed to moving to strict enforcement of the exclusion zones out of fear for the safety of their UNPROFOR forces.

It must also be assumed that adoption of the Nunn-Mitchell amendment has not ended the debate over lift. Although the House has passed the conference committee report on the Defense Authorization Bill containing Nunn-Mitchell and the Senate should follow suit as soon as it reconvenes, additional attempts to legislate unilateral lift, such as the Dole amendment, could surface before Congress recesses. The election campaign will ensure further debate. Our integrated strategy must include provisions for participating in and directing this debate.

Among the important events which have taken place in the Bosnian conflict since the Geneva III ministerial are:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- A Bosnian Serb referendum supporting rejection of the the Contact Group proposals and stepped up harassment of the humanitarian relief effort by Pale;

-- Adoption of the Nunn-Mitchell amendment containing strong hortatory language calling for Administration action in support of multilateral lift and calling for the submission of a plan and consultations for unilateral lift if multilateral lift fails;

-- A decision by Milosevic to close his borders and cut other links with Pale as a means to force acceptance of the Contact Group proposals;

-- A growing belief on the part of the Bosnian Muslims that they can prevail if widespread hostilities return, combined with difficulties in making a go of the Federation;

-- Statements by the leading participants in UNPROFOR that they will leave Bosnia if the arms embargo is lifted;

-- Efforts by Kozyrev to paint Milosevic's steps as constituting a qualitatively new situation which requires abandonment of the July 30 Contact Group commitments and a major readjustment of Contact Group strategy.

IMPLICATIONS FOR U.S. STRATEGY

These events have strengthened the impression that the Bosnian Serbs will not accept the Contact Group plan in the near or medium term and that there is an inevitability to a lifting of the arms embargo and a widening of the war.

The dangers for the American position in such a situation are several:

-- A tendency by other players to assume that if a firm solution is not achieved by October 15, political efforts will be swamped by renewed hostilities, as the U.S. pushes for multilateral lift, and failing that, moves to lift the arms embargo unilaterally. This could lead both to major conflicts with important partners and to an image that the United States was now responsible for a wider war.

-- As October 15 approaches, difficulties in maintaining unity in the Contact Group and within NATO which could undermine efforts to push towards a political settlement. In particular, erosion of the consensus that the Contact Group must be firm with both Belgrade and Pale could lead to considerable disarray. Such a development could lead to conflicts in the Group. Equally devastating could be renewed hostilities and loss of momentum on the ground.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- If pressure for a political settlement is undermined by the above two developments, we could find ourselves isolated both diplomatically and militarily. Our only options would be either to stand by as the war expanded or to ourselves enter the conflict.

Avoiding the diplomatic and military isolation and the crisis for our relations with major partners which could result from such a development must be a major goal of short term American strategy.

AN INTEGRATED APPROACH

The large number of elements in play require continuous oversight to ensure an integration of important factors and opportunities for influence. Our approach should focus on three basic goals:

-- To preserve a common political strategy within the Contact Group which helps avoid American isolation by incorporating our internal political debate as a legitimate aspect of management of the crisis. We have from the beginnning accepted the political needs of the Europeans and the Russians as important elements of a common strategy. We should make clear to Contact Group members and other allies that the Administration's political decision to work with proponents of lift was taken after careful deliberation and that it will not be possible to remove this element from the equation.

Indeed, the pressure of lift can work in our favor if we do not break ranks with each other. Our task should be to use all the tools at our disposal to create conditions which make lift both politically and factually unnecessary. Mere warnings by the others of the consequences of lift will not serve this purpose.

-- On the basis of the above, to convince other Contact Group members that continuation of the incentives/disincentives strategy towards Belgrade as well as Pale is strongly in our joint interest. We should make clear that unless it maintains this foundation, agreed at the Naples summit, the Contact Group will be in danger of being whipsawed by each new short term development. There is enough flexibility in this approach to allow us to utilize various elements of the incentives/disincentives strategy to bring the greatest possible pressure to bear towards a political settlement, while at the same time taking care of the often conflicting political needs of the major members.

-- With Congress and with the press, to make clear how these various steps are integrated into a negotiating strategy which should be given time to work. At the same time, to continue planning for various post-lift scenarios and discuss the political and military implications of lift with Congress on the basis of this planning. Congress should accept that it shares responsibility with the Administration for successful implementation of our strategy. There should be no finger pointing once the going gets rough.

IMMEDIATE STEPS

Despite Pale's intransigence, the situation is not stalemated. Russian diplomatic efforts, NATO planning both for enforcement of exclusion zones and UNPROFOR redeployment and events on the ground provide elements for a dynamic situation. We are not yet clear about Milosevic's intentions, for example. Our Charge in Belgrade argues convincingly that he will probably play his hand for all that it is worth, with any sign of decisive action coming later in the process.

More than five weeks remain until the October 15 date set by President Clinton and echoed in the Nunn-Mitchell amendment for commencing action in the UN. Even then, we will have two weeks or more to organize the debate. The goal of our immediate steps should be to inject as much dynamism into our efforts as possible. Establishing a dynamic process, which demonstrates clearly understandable elements of progress, is the best means of dealing successfully with the debate over lift.

In particular, we should seek to ensure that the Bosnian Serbs are not allowed to create a de facto stalemate. Application of the tools agreed by the Contact Group, combined with strong diplomatic pressure, can meet this danger. The question now is finding the right mix.

There is, for example, general agreement that an important goal is to isolate Pale diplomatically and logistically as a means of increasing pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to accept the Contact Group plan.

But despite the results of the recent Contact Group meeting in Berlin, there is no consensus on how to achieve this goal:

-- the Russians wish to reward Milosevic for his blockade of Pale with progressive stages of sanctions relief. Their approach would be to accept Milosevic's promises at face value and remove him from the disincentive portion of the Contact Group strategy.

-- the European Contact Group members seem willing to go along with this approach. They have hopes that it might work and see it as a means of preserving unity with the Russians.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Above all, they see it as an alternative to lifting the arms embargo, which they hope to avoid at all costs. The French and British in particular are watching events closely for implications of the future of their deployments in UNPROFOR.

-- the United States is willing to consider relief for Belgrade, on the condition that Milosevic demonstrate his good intentions by accepting a border monitoring mechanism and by taking political steps with other former Yugoslav Republics, such as recognizing their borders.

The agreement worked out in Berlin on September 6 and 7 meets our core needs in providing for a credible monitoring effort without giving too much away to Belgrade. At the same time, it provides the Russians with Contact Group recognition for the steps that Milosevic has taken that they can use effectively with their domestic audience. Although the Russians may press for even greater recognition as events unfold, the Berlin agreement represents a genuine desire by all parties to maintain Contact Group unity. This should stand us in good stead as we move to implement the other more controversial elements of our fundamental strategy.

We should now move ahead with the following steps:

-- a strong presentation in NATO and with the Russians on the need to underline the determination of the Contact Group with increased enforcement of exclusion zone violations, particularly by NATO air strikes undertaken in coordination with UNPROFOR.

-- careful discussion in NATO, with the UN and bilaterally on future prospects for UNPROFOR. In particular we should utilize apparent French willingness to consider redeployments to construct a plan for a longer term role in support of a peace process.

-- a concerted effort with individual members of Congress to explain our strategy and seek to involve them in the debate from the beginning.

-- a systematic press strategy which adopts clearly-understandable themes and seeks to ensure that they are reflected in both news articles and sympathetic commentary.

-- work in individual capitals. Our Ambassadors in Contact Group countries should be encouraged to enter the frankest possible dialogue with host governments. We should improve our backgrounding of other posts to ensure detailed presentation of our views by other Ambassadors as well.

-- stepped up consideration within the USG of the military and financial implications of various steps related to the possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR and lifting of the arms embargo. Possibilities of responding positively to continued strong British and French pressure for an American ground role, even in a support capacity, must be explored carefully.

-- more detailed consideration of the economic and political measures the United States could support on the ground to help ease the crisis and push towards a solution. Such measures should be focussed on all players in the conflict.

-- more active press background which describes the interrelated nature of US strategy and which builds the lift aspect into our strategy, explaining what the possible U.S. role might be. We should take pains to counteract any sense of conflict or rift with Russia and our major allies.

TOWARDS OCTOBER 15

As October 15 approaches, we should be able to describe a package of strategies and measures which is focussing maximum pressure towards a negotiated settlement. Assuming that a settlement has not yet been reached, we should begin to incorporate UN discussion of a multilateral lift resolution into our strategy in a self-confident and pragmatic way:

-- With other members of the Contact Group, we should gain agreement that the UN debate should be a time to review all aspects of the conflict and the efforts undertaken so far. The goal of this review should be to gain agreement within the Security Council on specific, firm steps which can be taken to demonstrate the precariousness of further delay. These conclusions should include a judgement on the growing political support for lift in the U.S., but also should focus again on efforts to pressure recalcitrant parties.

This would be the point to decide whether new negotiating efforts with new objectives might be considered or not. It would also be the time to be ready with ideas for a future role for UNPROFOR, including possible enhanced American support. If we are to have a card to play with our allies on UNPROFOR, it would probably be wise to play it at this point.

-- With Belgrade, our approach will depend on how honestly Milosevic has cooperated with us. The week or two prior to October 15 might be a time for a high level U.S. envoy who could make clear to Belgrade the consequences and opportunities in various courses of action.

-- With Congress and the press, we should describe carefully the goals of the UN debate, seek congressional agreement on tactics and possible outcomes. With both Congress and the press, this period should mark an intensification of dialogue which prepares the way for probable failure of a multilateral lift resolution. The ongoing U.S. election campaign is likely to play an important role in this debate.

At this point, we should be talking frankly with Congress about the political, military and legal implications of unilateral lift. We should be clear with major proponents of lift what the joint political responsibility will be.

-- With Sarajevo, we should intensify our dialogue on possible options and encourage the Bosnians to support a joint approach with us in public and with contacts in the United States.

-- During this period, we should also be exploring more carefully steps which can be taken in the broader context to stabilize the situation. These include a more systematic approach to the problems of Kosovo; strategies in international organizations and longer term projects such as a regional arms control scheme for the region.

OCTOBER 15 AND BEYOND

All these strands will come together as we make good on the commitment made by President Clinton to introduce a lift resolution in the Security Council within the two weeks following October 15. By this time, we should have a fair view of the positions of all the key parties and the possibilities for further action.

-- We will have a much better idea of the prospects for passage of a lift resolution in the Security Council. The attitudes of the British, French and Russians will be key.

-- We will have briefed Congress in detail on what we believe we would need to do militarily to assist the Bosnian government after lift and have a much better understanding of how much pressure or support we can expect from the Hill.

-- The Bosnian government will itself have a better appreciation for what could happen after lift, and this too will influence our calculations.

-- Finally, there will be developments on the ground in Bosnia--the fighting situation and the humanitarian relief effort, the position of UNPROFOR and the possible implementation of strict enforcement, and the results of Milosevic's campaign against Pale.

We will need to weigh all these elements in deciding whether to press the lift resolution forward to a vote or to propose alternative approaches. If our assessment points in the direction of pressing the lift resolution, then we can move forward. On the other hand, if we decide that Milosevic's campaign is working and needs more time to succeed, this may argue for holding off on the lift resolution, particularly if support for lift is lacking among key players. Other alternatives are also possible. If strict enforcement has been implemented by this time, we may want to continue with this for a longer period before moving for agreement on lift. Or, our conversations with Congress may convince us (or convince them) that they are unwilling to support the military action we believe necessary to assist the Bosnian government under a lift scenario.

Other possibilities may also emerge depending on how events unfold. If we decide for any reason, however, not to press forward with a lift resolution, or if we do but fail to secure its passage, then we are committed, by the President's letter to Nunn, to consult with the Congress on the possibility of unilateral lift. Given the timing, it is likely that any serious consultations on unilateral lift will need to await the convening of the new Congress in January. We will also need to respond appropriately to the other provisions of the Nunn-Mitchell amendment, particularly those cutting off funds for U.S. enforcement of the arms embargo.

By that time, there will likely be new elements to factor into our equations as we make clear to Congress the extremely damaging effect that unilateral lift could have on many of our key foreign policy equities, as well as the additional demands it would place on our military responsibility for the conflict in Bosnia.

Summary of Conclusions

Sanctions:

1. The Principals agreed to continue to push for completion of the easing and tightening resolutions in New York and to continue to insist on Krajina linkage in the easing resolution. Secretary Christopher will consult with allies on options for moving forward with sanctions. ~~(C)~~

2. Regarding Milosevic's closure of his border with Bosnian Serb territory, the Principals agreed that an effective international monitoring system was essential if the UNSC were to be able to determine whether to extend the delay in imposition of new sanctions or to take other sanctions measures in response to Serbian enforcement of the embargo. ~~(C)~~

one clause deleted (C)

Lifting the Arms Embargo:

3. Principals agreed the goal in seeking a multilateral lifting of the arms embargo on the Federation is to provide the Bosnians with a defensive capability to ensure the inherent right of self-defense. A detailed planning document developing a concept of how arms might be provided, and including a range of options, should be developed within two weeks time. Action: OSD and JCS to develop comprehensive plan. ~~(S)~~

4. The U.S. should be prepared to provide air support, but not ground troops, to the Bosnian government in connection with the arms embargo lifting in the likely event of increased Bosnian Serb military action against the Federation. Planning should focus on the development of robust air options, including the use of air power for tactical, punitive, deterrent, or other purposes. Planning should include options for responses to Bosnian Serb action against the eastern enclaves, Sarajevo, Tuzla, and elsewhere. Scenarios considered should include: 1) air options following complete UNPROFOR withdrawal, and 2) air strike options within the context of a remaining, reconfigured UNPROFOR presence following lift. Planning should assume action in the NATO context, or within a coalition of willing allies. Action: OSD and JCS. ~~(S)~~

5. On the future of UNPROFOR, Principals agreed to review options for a new role for UNPROFOR. The options should include at a minimum, a defense of Sarajevo model, and a humanitarian aid escort mission through Federation territory. Once the options are developed and reviewed by the Principals, they will be presented to the allies. Action: OSD and JCS to develop options. ~~(C)~~

6. The U.S. will seek multilateral support for the lifting of the arms embargo against the Bosnian government. NATO should remain engaged as we move toward a more robust use of air power. Action: State develop a paper outlining a diplomatic and Congressional strategy for achieving these objectives, including options for sustaining the negotiating track. ~~(C)~~

The Eastern Mediterranean:

7. A Presidential emissary to both Greece and Turkey should deliver a strong message to each country warning that recent incidents, and the overall increase in Greek-Turkish military tensions, risk leading to serious erosion of U.S. support for both countries. The envoy's message should be specific, with sticks and carrots for each country. Action: State to draft concept and talking points. ~~(S)~~

8. The new U.S. Special Coordinator for Cyprus should be identified and announced as soon as possible. It should be someone perceived by all sides as impartial. Action: State to recommend candidates. ~~(C)~~

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

9. On Macedonia, the previously tasked study of reinforcing UNPROFOR there should be completed, concurrent with the completion of the arms embargo lift paper. Further attention is required to economic assistance to Macedonia as well. Action: OSD and JCS to develop options for UNPROFOR-Macedonia reinforcement planning by end of August. State to develop options for increased economic assistance. ~~(C)~~

Options for Improving the Military Capabilities of the Bosnian Federation

The US Government has three basic option for improving the military capabilities of the Bosnian Federation by organizing, training, and equipping its forces. These options apply to the main components of such a program--funding, acquisition, and delivery. The options are: (a) the United States sponsors the lifting of the arms embargo, steps aside, and lets the international arms market provide whatever the Federation can afford, (b) the United States contributes part of the funding, weapons, training, and transport in conjunction with its NATO Allies and others, and (c) the United States alone provides the bulk of what is needed by the Federation.

Options for funding. The JCS estimates that roughly from $100-300 million would be needed to enable the Federation to improve meaningfully its ability to wage war against the Bosnian Serbs, depending upon whether the United States went with a light or a heavy option. Although loans to the Federation are a possible option, the Bosnian government's ability to repay large sums anytime soon is subject to doubt. Moreover, it is virtually certain that the international financial institutions would not provide loans for acquiring weapons.

- No US funding. The Federation already has funds set aside for acquiring arms, has received weapons from Iran, and gets financial support from sympathetic Muslim countries, such as Saudi Arabia. Allowing these established mechanisms to function without hindrance would be the least expensive option for the United States but would also open the way to increased influence in Bosnia for Muslim countries, including Iran and other radical states.

- Multilateral funding. This option requires a new grouping of countries, hopefully predominantly Western, that would provide funding. In lieu of cash contributions, Allies could assist by providing in kind assistance, such as weapons, transport, or training sites. Multilateral funding would make it possible to tap into potential sources of major contributions (such as the Saudis) without giving up control of the operation. The advantages of this option are that it spreads the burden and gives Western countries first claim on whatever influence is derived by funding the operation. The disadvantage is that this option is likely to be difficult to implement because most West European countries are already complaining about the costs of their operations in Bosnia and are unlikely to come up with significant amounts of money.

- US funding. By unilaterally providing most or perhaps all of the funds necessary, the United States maximizes its control over the operation and stands to gain the most influence with the Federation. The disadvantages are that this is the most expensive option and the United States will bear sole responsibility for any difficulties encountered. The outlay of cash could be significantly reduced by providing weapons from US stocks (see below).

Options for sources of weapons. Bosnian forces are most capable of quickly absorbing equipment which resembles Warsaw Pact models with which Federation troops are already familiar. Federation officials have requested modest amounts of weapons--including small arms, artillery, helicopters, tanks, anti-tank rockets, and air defense equipment--but this may not be their entire shopping list. Training would also be necessary, especially for any heavy or non-Warsaw pact equipment. Options for training include: (a) non-US personnel conducting training in Bosnia, (b) US and non-US personnel conducting training in Europe, and (c) US personnel conducting training in the United States.

- International arms market. Plenty of Soviet bloc weapons are readily available at reasonable prices. Allowing the Federation to make purchases on the open market would reduce the administrative burden on the United States. On the other hand, the United States would lose a degree of control (such as over the amount of offensive weapons) and open market purchases would also increase the potential for corruption and problems with quality control.

- East European or NATO stocks. Purchasing from Eastern Europe would provide weapons that would require the least training for Federation troops and would provide welcome income for countries that are bearing much of the burden of enforcing sanctions. The US Government would have to determine whether sufficient trainers are available from US or East European sources. Material and training from NATO sources would be less appropriate, and providing such weapons might generate objections and delays from some of the Allies, such as Greece.

- US stocks. Providing weapons from US stocks would reduce the cash outlay and maximize US control by, for example, limiting the amount of offensive weapons provided. US weapons would also be available quickly during the period of Federation vulnerability to Serb attack immediately after a lifting of the embargo is announced. However, considerable training (six to twelve months) would be necessary before large amounts of US equipment could be used effectively. Moreover, providing weapons changes the United States from a neutral outsider to an active belligerent clearly taking sides in the conflict. Providing large amounts of weapons will increase the scope and intensity of the fighting, which in turn will exacerbate the humanitarian crisis.

Options for delivery. Transporting weapons to the Federation forces involves two distinct problems: (a) shipping the weapons from their source to the border of land-locked Bosnia, which will require cooperation from Croatia, and (b) moving the weapons from the border to training areas or the front, which will require transport through a conflict zone. Supplies can be deliver by sea, air, or land. Although sea routes provide the most capacity, ultimately land routes will be necessary to move large amounts of cargo quickly to the Bosnian forces. Bottlenecks are likely to develop because of the shortage of suitable ports (Split and Ploce), the limited number of airfields capable of handling large cargo aircraft, and the poor condition of many roads. Considerable amounts probably will have to be delivered by air drops, which are the most expensive option. Weapons shipments will also have to compete with relief supplies for scarce transport capacity. Federation forces, with limited resources and the distractions of conducting a war, are unlikely to be of much assistance in assuring transport across Bosnian territory.

- Private transportation. Although it will add to the costs, private entrepreneurs could arrange shipment to sites adjacent to Bosnia. It is unlikely, however, that they would take responsibility for delivery all the way to Federation forces.

- Multilateral participation. Contribution of funds or transport from others, such as NATO or a coalition of the willing, would spread the burden. The UN or other international organizations are unlikely, however, to support sending weapons to Bosnia. A coalition of the willing will be difficult to arrange. Other countries' heavy lift resources are limited. Even if they have the resources, other countries are likely to be hesitant about making deliveries through a conflict zone.

- US transport. Under the guidelines provided by the NSC, this would be limited, on the ground, to providing transport only as far as the border, with no US forces in Bosnia. Providing transport for all or part of the way will add to the cost for the United States and increase the risk of US involvement in the fighting, especially through attacks on US aircraft. The large amounts of supplies required and the vulnerability of many Bosnian airfields to Serb artillery mean that it will impossible to deliver what is needed by air. Large numbers of aircraft would be needed, especially for the final leg, and with Bosnian airfields likely to be threatened, much of the delivery probably would have to be made by air drops.

INFORMATION PAPER

SUBJECT: UNPROFOR II After Lifting the Arms Embargo (U)

1. (U) Purpose. To examine establishing an effective force, a new UNPROFOR II in Bosnian Federation Territory, with missions to protect Sarajevo and to maintain the flow of humanitarian aid following the decision to lift the arms embargo.

2. ~~(S)~~ Background. 17 August PC tasked DOD to examine options for new UNPROFOR roles to include defense of Sarajevo and maintenance of the humanitarian aid escort mission. Some hope expressed that these options could be used to gain the UK and FR.

3. (U) Assumptions. Creation of an UNPROFOR II requires the following assumptions and conditions be met.

a. ~~(S)~~ Whether multilateral or unilateral lifting of the arms embargo occurs, UNPROFOR will be placed in a hostile environment. Current UNPROFOR forces are not equipped, trained or mandated to conduct peace making military operations required to effect a withdrawal from a hostile environment.

b. ~~(S)~~ If the arms embargo is lifted, intelligence assessments indicate UNPROFOR will be threatened by Bosnian Serbs and Muslims alike. Withdrawal planning under benign and hostile conditions are underway. NATO will agree to provide augmenting forces to assist UNPROFOR in its withdrawal in a non-permissive environment. Successful withdrawal of UNPROFOR includes no hostages held in country by any of the warring factions.

c. ~~(S)~~ Since the current UNPROFOR is not equipped, or with a mandate to conduct peace making operations, the next UNPROFOR element will require a new mandate and a significant improvement in combat, combat support, and combat service support equipment (fighting vehicles, transportation vehicles, logistics, engineers, communication, intelligence, etc.). The UN or another source will agree to field this equipment for UNPROFOR to protect itself and conduct its mission.

d. ~~(S)~~ Before UNPROFOR withdraws, especially under hostile conditions, the new, and heavier-equipped UNPROFOR II will be reconstituted and mission capable to handle a more hostile role of peacemaking.

e. ~~(S)~~ UNPROFOR II will need a robust Chapter VII ROE and a redefined mission of defending Bosnian government territory. The new UN mandate will clearly state the need for a continued UNPROFOR/UNHCR presence outside of Bosnia given the implicit acceptance of the risks of a widened conflict after lifting the arms embargo. UNSYG Boutros-Ghali will order the current

CLASSIFIED BY DIRECTOR J-5
DECLASSIFY ON OADR

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

UNPROFOR be withdrawn from all of the former Yugoslavia.

f. ~~(S)~~ Air support, whether NATO, multinational, or US, will be necessary to protect Sarajevo and UN humanitarian aid. UNPROFOR's presence is necessary for NATO to support any UNSCR. Even the reconstitution of UNPROFOR for the more robust mission will likely require a new NAC decision. Having forced western Europeans from UNPROFOR, it may be difficult to obtain a NAC decision to provide air support to the reconstituted UNPROFOR or to BH. Without NATO support, the US will need to develop a coalition to provide this air support.

g. ~~(S)~~ US or NATO air support will require necessary basing, logistics support, overflight rights, intelligence and C2 agreements. If UNPROFOR stays in any configuration, current NATO support will continue. If, however, the US develops a coalition air force, much diplomatic action will be required to either renew current support or find new support.

h. ~~(S)~~ All UN agencies and associated organizations will likely withdraw under the protection of UNPROFOR. Continued UN humanitarian operations for Bosnia will cease. UN funding will be provided for contracted PVOs to provide further necessary aid. UNPROFOR II will accept the mission of protecting deliveries to the Bosnian government.

i. ~~(S)~~ State will seek continued Croatian permission to support both UNPROFOR resupply and humanitarian aid efforts via their rail heads and POEs. Breakdown of the Federation will require significant follow-on UN support to supply and/or rescue their UNPROFOR II force isolated in central Bosnia. Additional combat troops may then be required to open LOCs into Bosnia.

4. (U) Situation

a. ~~(S)~~ Sarajevo. Muslim and Serb factions have clearly established areas of control in the city and local environs. Frontlines are complicated given the previous ethnically intermingled neighborhoods. The Bosnian Army consists of up to 28,500 troops in their areas of Sarajevo with another 10-15,000 between Mt. Igman, Visoko, and Vares. Total 38,500-43,000. BSA forces around Sarajevo city total around 9,000 with 6-7,000 near Olovo-Vares. Current UNPROFOR presence has provided a general cessation of shellings. With a non-belligerent UNPROFOR I gone, a larger UNPROFOR II replacement force will be required to fill this defensive void.

b. ~~(S)~~ Neretva Valley. The Bosnians and HVO control the key LOC from Mostar to Jablanica with 10-15,000 troops. The Croat HVO controls south of Mostar and in a central enclave near Konjic with 14,000 troops. The BSA control areas generally away from the LOC except near Konjic and Sarajevo. Forces are relatively smaller in these areas (just over 6,000) of rugged terrain. Closing traffic flow through the LOC requires only cutting one of 72 individual choke points.

5. (U) Discussion

a. (U) At present there are a little over 20,000 UNPROFOR troops in BH, of which 14,200 are from the ten NATO contributing countries. France (5000), UK (3600), Netherlands (1900), and Spain (1400) contribute 11,900 of the total NATO contributing force to UNPROFOR. All of these nations have indicated they will withdraw if the arms embargo is lifted.

b. (U) Canada (800) has also indicated it would leave. The withdrawal of Belgium (400), Denmark (300), Norway (300), and Portugal (71) would most likely follow since these nations gain much of their service support from the aforementioned Big 4. Turkey, with approximately 1500, would probably consider staying.

c. (U) Of the remaining troop contributors in BH, Malaysia has approximately 1500, Ukraine 550, Russia 500, Egypt 400, Sweden 1000, Pakistan 1100, and Jordan 100. It is likely Russia, Ukraine, and Sweden would also follow NATO nations in UNPROFOR withdrawal. That leaves Turkey, Pakistan, Malaysia, Egypt and Jordan with approximately 6650 troops.

d. (U) The UN, under the current peacekeeping mission, has been unable to find adequate troop contributions to meet current UNPROFOR missions. It should prove ~~equally~~ even more difficult to find contributors for the more dangerous mission following a lifting of the arms embargo.

e. (U) All non-NATO forces required significant equipment assistance and training before they were able to assume their current mission. With the withdrawal of the NATO contributing countries, the support structure to UNPROFOR in BH would disappear.

a. ~~(C)~~ Although there are countries ~~who~~ which would like to come to the assistance of BH, it is unlikely they would participate in UNPROFOR II without the participation of a major first world power, such as the US, UK, or France.

b. ~~(C)~~ If UNPROFOR II could be assembled, there would be significant cost to the UN to enable the forces to reach theater and conduct their mission.

c. ~~(S)~~ Composition of the UNPROFOR II would likely come from, at best, UNPROFOR contingents or Bosnian government supporters from Islamic countries already in place. UNPROFOR II will likely be considered belligerents by the Bosnian Serbs and eventually cause disintegration of the US-brokered Bosnian Federation. Already Catholic Bosnian Croats have expressed considerable concern over the "Islamicization" within the GOBH.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

d. ~~(C)~~ Creating an UNPROFOR II with the specific mission of protecting Sarajevo will require the same number of troops current preliminary UNPROFOR planning indicates are needed to secure the Sarajevo airport and establish a 15km ground corridor to federation territory in a non-permissive environment:

- Sarajevo airport

  - 1 x air mobile brigade
  - 1 x attack helicopter battalion
  - 2 x light infantry brigades to secure suburban areas
  - 1 x air mobile brigade to secure landing corridor

- 15km Ground Corridor (additional forces)

  - 1 x air mobile brigade
  - 1 x attack helicopter battalion to secure Mt. Igman
  - 1 x mech battalion to secure Hadzici
  - 1 x light infantry brigade for northern corridor

e. ~~(S)~~ UNPROFOR II would have to overcome the very situation - increased combat activity - that prompted the UNPROFOR I's withdrawal in the first place. In effect, without adequate forces, to include support, UNPROFOR II would be expected to survive, a la Dien Bien Phu, with land routes interdicted, the air field probably closed, and water, electricity, and gas turned off. Even with planned force levels, UNPROFOR II's mission of providing humanitarian assistance to Sarajevo would be extremely difficult under the situations created by strict enforcement of the exclusion zones or lifting the arms embargo regardless of US or NATO air support.

f. ~~(S)~~ As the current UNPROFOR withdraws under hostile conditions, occupying the limited road networks (FC UNPROFOR BH estimates one to three months to accomplish), the remaining UNPROFOR contingent will remain without the necessary equipment and infrastructure, essentially unprotected and vulnerable. Even if the UN wished to continue humanitarian assistance, the movement of troops and equipment to the south would seriously impede humanitarian convoys.

g. ~~(S)~~ Under hostile conditions, NATO estimates a division equivalent force will be necessary to secure the Sarajevo airport and area around Sarajevo. UNPROFOR withdrawal planning also estimates a division equivalent would be required to secure the major lines of communication from the Adriatic into central Bosnia and a reinforced battalion equivalent to

Options for Continuing Humanitarian Relief in Bosnia

Planning for dealing with the humanitarian crisis in Bosnia will have to take into account two likely scenarios: (a) the UN dramatically restructures UNPROFOR (with a different mix of contributors if the West Europeans follow through on their threats to leave), and (b) the UN orders UNPROFOR and UN relief agencies to withdraw (most other private agencies also leave). The onset of winter, the effects of which will be felt as early as October, will complicate US options under both scenarios. Continuation of the status quo is unlikely, given the dissatisfaction of the major West European contributors. Indeed, Secretary General Boutros-Ghali has announced that UNPROFOR will be withdrawn if the arms embargo is lifted.

Options with a restructured UNPROFOR. A restructured UNPROFOR would probably be smaller and almost certainly would be less capable after the West Europeans withdraw their logistics networks, which have been supported many other contingents. It will also have a less neutral appearance, 3.3(b)(6) EO13526 3.3(b)(6) 3.3(b)(6) These factors will complicate UNPROFOR's ability to protect humanitarian aid shipments and may increase pressure on the United States to play a greater role in humanitarian relief. The remaining contingents will also press for assurances that the United States will evacuate them if the situation deteriorates.

- Mission. A smaller UNPROFOR will have difficulty fulfilling all of its previous missions and probably will have to reduce its geographic scope by pulling out of the eastern enclaves (Gorazde, Zepa, and Srebrenica) and/or Bihac, in the northwest. The options for the United States will be (a) let these outlying areas fall to the Bosnian Serbs, (b) assist in evacuating UN personnel and perhaps even local residents (c) try to hold the outlying areas and use air power to deter Bosnian Serb attacks or strike back if attacks occur.

- Transport. Land transport will almost certainly become difficult during the surge in fighting that is expected to follow lifting the arms embargo. Vulnerable airports, such as Sarajevo, are also likely to be unavailable for considerable periods. With the Federation's limited resources and many other problems, it is far from certain that the Bosnian Government could assure the security of transport routes, especially to vulnerable areas such as Sarajevo, Bihac, and the eastern enclaves. Options for the United States will be (a) provide vastly more air drops to isolated areas and (b) use air power to protect convoys and major population centers. If these prove inadequate, pressure will increase for the United States to deploy ground forces to forestall a humanitarian disaster.

Options if UNPROFOR leaves. A withdrawal of UNPROFOR is likely to unfold under one of two scenarios. (a) Withdrawal takes place in a permissive environment, in which UN forces have the time and freedom from harassment to withdraw their personnel and equipment. This scenario is likely to preclude calls for US protection of UNPROFOR but will open the issue of how to assure delivery of aid. (b) Withdrawal takes place in a non-permissive environment, with guerrilla-style attacks and/or civilian blockades. If this scenario takes place, the United States will be faced not only with requests to help in providing protection for aid deliveries but also demands to assist in rescuing UNPROFOR.

UNHCR officials have said they will leave if the arms embargo is lifted. Activities by the remaining non-government organizations (NGOs) would probably be restricted to more secure areas, which are likely to be the least needy. Without assistance from UNPROFOR, the options for protection are (a) to depend on the Federation to protect convoys, (b) to try to protect with air power, and (c) to let convoys fend for themselves. None of these are likely to be sufficient. Utilities (water, electricity, natural gas) for major population centers in Bosnia could be cut immediately; food and medicine could be in short supply within as soon as 30 days in some vulnerable areas, such as the eastern enclaves.

If funds, supplies, and transport (including aircraft) from the international community continue to be available, the key elements will be providing both delivery and protection in Bosnia. The US Government will have three options:

- Decline to provide protection. Since delivery of aid, especially to vulnerable outlying areas, would be impossible without some force on the ground to assure security, the departure of UN forces and a US refusal to deploy troops on the ground would mean an end to the humanitarian relief mission for sizable numbers of Bosnian citizens. Sarajevo, Bihac, and the eastern enclaves are the areas where this is most likely to happen. A humanitarian disaster, with attendant press coverage, would be all but inevitable.

- Work with others to provide protection through air power. Even if they have pulled out their troops, our European Allies still have an interest in continuing a relief effort in Bosnia, if for no other reason than to forestall another wave of refugees from flowing into Western Europe. The United States would have to convince Allied governments to try to use NATO air power to protect airfields and convoy routes associated with the relief effort.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

The disadvantage of this option is that air power alone is likely to prove insufficient to assure security for humanitarian relief.

- US assumes responsibility for protection. If air power alone does not assure delivery of humanitarian relief, the United States will have to reconsider sending ground forces to protect deliverers. To succeed in such a mission, it potentially would be necessary to deploy large numbers of troops and to expose them to considerable risk. Previous NATO studies have estimated, for example, that 100,000 or more troops would be required to control a corridor from the port of Ploce to Sarajevo.

LIFTING THE ARMS EMBARGO: THE POLICY CONTEXT

The principal objective of proceeding down the path of incentives/disincentives toward lifting the arms embargo is to get Pale to reconsider its position and accept the Map--in other words, it is designed to bring about a negotiated peace settlement. Specifically, lifting the arms embargo is intended to provide B-H with the self-defense capability necessary to defend the proposed Federation territory outlined by the CG Map. This translates into an ability to hold current territory, take enough of the high ground around Sarajevo to make it defensible, be able to ensure that humanitarian aid gets in, and conduct limited other offensive operations to seize lands proposed to be under Federation control by the Map but currently in the hands of the Bosnian Serbs. It is a course of action fraught with peril.

The U.S. will insert no ground troops, advisors, or logisticians into B-H. Even so, whether as a unilateral lifting or as part of an orchestrated, multilateral effort, lifting will be perceived as dramatically raising U.S. involvement and the stakes. We will be perceived as having chosen to side with the Bosnian Govt. We will be ever more responsible for training and equipping the Bosnian Govt. forces, most likely in the U.S. and for at least a year so that the effect can play out on the battlefield. Even given that increased level of involvement (including a transition period during which U.S. air power will be used to help equalize the battlefield), there is no guarantee of success. In fact, absent committed U.S. ground forces, no amount of air power can prevent the BSA from overrunning the eastern enclaves and strangling Sarajevo.

We do not want to act alone, but acting multilaterally will be a difficult proposition, as each of the actors tends to see things from its unique vantage point. UNPROFOR will withdraw in a nightmare scenario of hostages seized and the potential for heavy casualties. Moreover, without an intense diplomatic effort and logistical and military support, we will sour relations with our NATO and UN allies as well as undermine the partnership we are trying to build with Russia and our efforts to enforce UN embargoes that we support.

It is the purpose of the sections that follow to identify the key concerns of the other nations that have interests in the outcome of the current conflict. Containing and then ending the conflict while not fracturing the current (albeit fragile) consensus for action is paramount to the success of our planning. What we need to do is balance carefully the at times competing objectives of maintaining the unity of the CG and getting the Bosnian Serbs to reverse their position and accept the Map. Going too far too quickly down the path of extension followed by more robust enforcement of the Exclusion Zones and then lifting the arms embargo is certain to fracture the unity of the CG. It is an awful idea. On the other hand, not proceeding down the path of incentives/disincentives is likely to perpetuate the status quo--continuing war and frustration. Yet there may be reason to consider a course of action that does not include the major outside powers imposing a solution or thrashing the Serbs militarily. The history of the Balkan Wars suggests that ultimately Serbia may extend itself territorially beyond the means of its military power, thus inviting its many neighbors with territorial claims--Bosnia, Croatia, Hungary , and Albania--to pile on, regain lost lands, and restore a more natural equilibrium.

Diplomatic Strategy on Bosnia: Short and Mid-Term

SUMMARY: This paper sets forth considerations for American strategy towards the Bosnian conflict in the short and mid-term. The short term is defined as the period leading up to the October 15 date for commencement of discussions on a multilateral lift resolution, as set out in President Clinton's August 10 letter to Nunn and in the Nunn-Mitchell amendment. Mid-term is defined as the period following October 15 until the end of 1994. This is the period in which the question of whether the United States moves towards unilateral lift is likely to be decided.

The analysis considers steps in all important aspects of our efforts, i.e. within the Contact Group and in NATO; with the parties to the conflict; with Congress and with the press. It concludes with an agenda for near and mid-term action. END SUMMARY

The current situation is characterized by an uneasy and oft-broken military truce with considerable political maneuvering behind the scenes. There are several untested assumptions, including the intentions of the Russians and other Contact Group members, the sincerity of Milosevic and the ability of the Sarajevo government to maintain its position.

While the Contact Group remains the best means for avoiding a breakdown of current efforts and preventing a situation from arising in which the U.S. could be forced to assume sole responsibility for the crisis, its internal cohesion could be tested severely in coming weeks. Both Russia and France appear to be pushing alternative visions for a peace process based on support for Milosevic, while the UK and others remain opposed to moving to strict enforcement of the exclusion zones out of fear for the safety of their UNPROFOR forces. Expansion of the exclusion zones appear to be a dead letter.

It must also be assumed that adoption of the Nunn-Mitchell amendment has not ended the debate over lift. Although the House has passed the conference committee report on the Defense Authorization Bill containing Nunn-Mitchell and the Senate should follow suit as soon as it reconvenes, additional attempts to legislate unilateral lift, such as the Dole amendment, could surface before Congress recesses. The election campaign will ensure further debate. Our integrated strategy must include provisions for participating in and directing this debate.

Among the important events which have taken place in the Bosnian conflict since the Geneva III ministerial are:

-- A Bosnian Serb referendum supporting rejection of the the Contact Group proposals and stepped up harassment of the humanitarian relief effort by Pale;

-- Adoption of the Nunn-Mitchell amendment containing strong hortatory language calling for Administration action in support of multilateral lift and calling for the submission of a plan and consultations for unilateral lift if multilateral lift fails;

-- A decision by Milosevic to close his borders and cut other links with Pale as a means to force acceptance of the Contact Group proposals;

-- A growing belief on the part of the Bosnian Muslims that they can prevail if widespread hostilities return, combined with difficulties in making a go of the Federation;

-- Statements by the leading participants in UNPROFOR that they will leave Bosnia if the arms embargo is lifted;

-- Efforts by Kozyrev to paint Milosevic's steps as constituting a qualitatively new situation which requires abandonment of the July 30 Contact Group commitments and a major readjustment of Contact Group strategy.

IMPLICATIONS FOR U.S. STRATEGY

These events have strengthened the impression that the Bosnian Serbs will not accept the Contact Group plan in the near or medium term and that there is an inevitability to a lifting of the arms embargo and a widening of the war.

The dangers for the American position in such a situation are several:

-- A tendency by other players to assume that if a firm solution is not achieved by October 15, political efforts will be swamped by renewed hostilities, as the U.S. pushes for multilateral lift, and failing that, moves to lift the arms embargo unilaterally. This could lead both to major conflicts with important partners and to an image that the United States was now responsible for a wider war.

-- As October 15 approaches, difficulties in maintaining unity in the Contact Group and within NATO which could undermine efforts to push towards a political settlement. In particular, erosion of the consensus that the Contact Group must be firm with both Belgrade and Pale could lead to considerable disarray. Such a development could lead to conflicts in the Group. Equally devastating could be renewed hostilities and loss of momentum on the ground.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- If pressure for a political settlement is undermined by the above two developments, we could find ourselves isolated both diplomatically and militarily. Our only options would be either to stand by as the war expanded or to ourselves enter the conflict.

Avoiding the diplomatic and military isolation and the crisis for our relations with major partners which could result from such a development must be a major goal of short term American strategy.

AN INTEGRATED APPROACH

The large number of elements in play require continuous oversight to ensure an integration of important factors and opportunities for influence. Our approach should focus on three basic goals:

-- To preserve a common political strategy within the Contact Group which helps avoid American isolation by incorporating our internal political debate as a legitimate aspect of management of the crisis. We have from the beginnning accepted the political needs of the Europeans and the Russians as important elements of a common strategy. We should make clear to Contact Group members and other allies that the Administration's political decision to work with proponents of lift was taken after careful deliberation and that it will not be possible to remove this element from the equation.

Indeed, the pressure of lift can work in our favor if we do not break ranks with each other. Our task should be to use all the tools at our disposal to create conditions which make lift both politically and factually unnecessary. Mere warnings by the others of the consequences of lift will not serve this purpose.

-- On the basis of the above, to convince other Contact Group members that continuation of the incentives/disincentives strategy to keep pressure on Belgrade and to isolate Pale is strongly in our joint interest. We should make clear that unless it maintains this foundation, agreed at the Naples summit, the Contact Group will be in danger of being whipsawed by each new short term development. There is enough flexibility in this approach to allow us to utilize various elements of the incentives/disincentives strategy to bring the greatest possible pressure to bear towards a political settlement, while at the same time taking care of the often conflicting political needs of the major members.

-- With Congress and with the press, to make clear how these various steps are integrated into a negotiating strategy which should be given time to work. At the same time, to continue planning for various post-lift scenarios and discuss the political and military implications of lift with Congress on the basis of this planning. Congress should accept that it shares responsibility with the Administration for successful implementation of our strategy. There should be no finger pointing once the going gets rough.

IMMEDIATE STEPS

Despite Pale's intransigence, the situation is not stalemated. Russian diplomatic efforts, NATO planning both for enforcement of exclusion zones and UNPROFOR redeployment and events on the ground provide elements for a dynamic situation. We are not yet clear about Milosevic's intentions, for example. Our Charge in Belgrade argues convincingly that he will probably play his hand for all that it is worth, with any sign of decisive action coming later in the process.

More than five weeks remain until the October 15 date set by President Clinton and echoed in the Nunn-Mitchell amendment for commencing action in the UN. Even then, we will have two weeks or more to organize the debate. The goal of our immediate steps should be to inject as much dynamism into our efforts as possible. Establishing a dynamic process, which demonstrates clearly understandable elements of progress, is the best means of dealing successfully with the debate over lift.

In particular, we should seek to ensure that the Bosnian Serbs are not allowed to create a de facto stalemate. Application of the tools agreed by the Contact Group, combined with strong diplomatic pressure, can meet this danger. The question now is finding the right mix.

There is, for example, general agreement that an important goal is to isolate Pale diplomatically and logistically as a means of increasing pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to accept the Contact Group plan.

But despite the results of the recent Contact Group meeting in Berlin, there is no consensus on a design to achieve this goal:

-- the Russians claim Milosevic is taking a big political risk in blockading Pale. Their approach would be to accept Milosevic's promises at face value, provide sanctions relief and be quick to remove him from the disincentive portion of the Contact Group strategy.

-- the European Contact Group members are sympathetic to the Russian assessment of the domestic political danger of Milosevic's move. They have hopes that sanctions relief might work and see it as a means of preserving unity with the Russians.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Above all, they see it as an alternative to lifting the arms embargo, which they hope to avoid. The French and British in particular are watching events closely for implications of the future of their deployments in UNPROFOR.

-- the United States is willing to consider an initial phase of sanctions relief for Belgrade, on the condition that Milosevic demonstrate his good intentions by accepting a border monitoring mechanism. Further relief would require political steps with other former Yugoslav Republics, such as recognizing their borders.

The agreement worked out in Berlin on September 6 and 7 meets our core needs in providing for a credible monitoring effort while making a gesture to Belgrade. At the same time, it provides the Russians with Contact Group recognition for the steps that Milosevic has taken that they can use effectively with their domestic audience. Although the Russians will press for even greater recognition as events unfold, the Berlin agreement represents a genuine desire by all parties to maintain Contact Group unity. This should stand us in good stead as we move to implement the other more controversial elements of our fundamental strategy.

We should now move ahead with the following steps:

-- a strong presentation in NATO and with the Russians on the need to underline the resolve of the Contact Group with increased enforcement of exclusion zone violations, particularly by NATO air strikes against exclusion zone violations, undertaken in coordination with UNPROFOR.

-- careful discussion in NATO, with the UN, and bilaterally on future prospects for UNPROFOR. In particular we should encourage the French and UK to consider redeployments as part of a plan for a longer term role in support of a peace process.

-- a concerted effort with individual members of Congress to explain our strategy and seek to involve them in the debate from the beginning.

-- a systematic press strategy which adopts clearly-understandable themes and seeks to ensure that they are reflected in both news articles and sympathetic commentary.

-- work in individual capitals. Our Ambassadors in Contact Group countries should be encouraged to enter the frankest possible dialogue with host governments. We should improve our backgrounding of other posts to ensure detailed presentation of our views by other Ambassadors as well.

-- stepped up consideration within the USG of the military and financial implications of various steps related to the possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR and lifting of the arms embargo. Possibilities of responding positively to continued strong British and French pressure for an American ground role, even in a support capacity, must be explored carefully.

-- more detailed consideration of the economic and political measures the United States could support on the ground to help ease the crisis and push towards a solution. Such measures should be focussed on all players in the conflict.

-- more active press background which describes the interrelated nature of US strategy and which builds the lift aspect into our strategy, explaining what the possible U.S. role might be. We should take pains to counteract any sense of conflict or rift with Russia and our major allies.

As October 15 approaches, we should be able to describe a package of strategies and measures which is focussing maximum pressure towards a negotiated settlement. Assuming that a settlement has not yet been reached, we should begin to incorporate UN discussion of a multilateral lift resolution into our strategy in a self-confident and pragmatic way:

-- With other members of the Contact Group, we should gain agreement that the UN debate should be a time to review all aspects of the conflict and the efforts undertaken so far. The goal of this review should be to gain agreement within the Security Council on specific, firm steps which can be taken to demonstrate the precariousness of further delay. These conclusions should include a judgement on the growing political support for lift in the U.S., but also should focus again on efforts to pressure recalcitrant parties.

This would be the point to decide whether new negotiating efforts with new objectives might be considered or not. It would also be the time to be ready with ideas for a future role for UNPROFOR, including possible enhanced American support. If we are to have a card to play with our allies on UNPROFOR, it would probably be wise to play it at this point.

-- With Belgrade, our approach will depend on how honestly Milosevic has cooperated with us. The week or two prior to October 15 might be a time for a high level U.S. envoy who could make clear to Belgrade the consequences and opportunities in various courses of action.

-- With Congress and the press, we should describe carefully the goals of the UN debate, seek congressional agreement on tactics and possible outcomes. With both Congress and the press, this period should mark an intensification of dialogue which prepares the way for probable failure of a multilateral lift resolution. The ongoing U.S. election campaign is likely to play an important role in this debate.

At this point, we should be talking frankly with Congress about the political, military and legal implications of unilateral lift. We should be clear with major proponents of lift what the joint political responsibility will be.

-- With Sarajevo, we should intensify our dialogue on possible options and encourage the Bosnians to support a joint approach with us in public and with contacts in the United States.

-- During this period, we should also be exploring more carefully steps which can be taken in the broader context to stabilize the situation. These include a more systematic approach to the problems of Kosovo; strategies in international organizations and longer term projects such as a regional arms control scheme for the region.

OCTOBER 15 AND BEYOND

All these strands will come together as we make good on the commitment made by President Clinton to introduce a lift resolution in the Security Council within the two weeks following October 15. By this time, we should have a fair view of the positions of all the key parties and the possibilities for further action.

-- We will have a much better idea of the prospects for passage of a lift resolution in the Security Council. The attitudes of the British, French and Russians will be key.

-- We will have briefed Congress in detail on what we believe we would need to do militarily to assist the Bosnian government after lift and have a much better understanding of how much pressure or support we can expect from the Hill.

-- The Bosnian government will itself have a better appreciation for what could happen after lift, and this too will influence our calculations.

-- Finally, there will be developments on the ground in Bosnia--the fighting situation and the humanitarian relief effort, the position of UNPROFOR and the possible implementation of strict enforcement, and the results of Contact Group and Milosevic's campaign to isolate Pale.

We will need to weigh all these elements in deciding whether to press the lift resolution forward to a vote or to propose alternative approaches. If our assessment points in the direction of pressing the lift resolution, then we can move forward. On the other hand, if we decide that Milosevic's campaign is working and needs more time to succeed, this may argue for holding off on the lift resolution, particularly if support for lift is lacking among key players. Other alternatives are also possible. If strict enforcement has been implemented by this time, we may want to continue with this for a longer period before moving for agreement on lift. Or, our conversations with Congress may convince us (or convince them) that they are unwilling to support the military action we believe necessary to assist the Bosnian government under a lift scenario.

Other possibilities may also emerge depending on how events unfold. If we decide for any reason, however, not to press forward with a lift resolution, or if we do but fail to secure its passage, then we are committed, by the President's letter to Nunn, to consult with the Congress on the possibility of unilateral lift. Given the timing, it is likely that any serious consultations on unilateral lift will need to await the convening of the new Congress in January. We will also need to respond appropriately to the other provisions of the Nunn-Mitchell amendment, particularly those cutting off funds for U.S. enforcement of the arms embargo.

By that time, there will likely be new elements to factor into our equations as we make clear to Congress the extremely damaging effect that unilateral lift could have on many of our key foreign policy equities, as well as the additional demands it would place on our military responsibility for the conflict in Bosnia.

Military Situation in Bihac

Fighting in the Bihac enclave has intensified between Government and Serb forces since the collapse of Abdic's Muslim separtist forces in August.

Bosnian and Krajina Serb forces have launched attacks--possibly coordinated--on Bosnian government forces and have concentrated on seizing key lines of communication along the southern edge of the enclave and maintaining a demilitarized zone between Krajina Serb and Bosnian government territory in the northeastern corner of the enclave.

Shelling of Bihac city, which is the actual safe area, has been negligible, but shelling of the Muslim cities of Cazin and Buzim has increased. If the UN declared a 20-km exclusion zone around Bihac city, Cazin would fall within and Buzim would fall outside. (See map.) 3.5c

Bosnian Serb forces have deployed as many as 6,000 troops around the Bihac enclave. 1.4c Krajina Serb forces have reinforced their forces around Bihac with additional troops, tanks, and artillery--primarily near the demilitarized zone--and may have as many as 2,000 troops deployed in the area. Bosnian government V Corps forces number at least 6,000, deployed throughout the enclave. 3.5c

The fiercest fighting in recent weeks has continued to be for control of the Grabez Plateau, the high ground five kilometers west of Bihac city. The Bosnian Serbs apparently are attempting to control key lines of communication connecting Serb-held territories in Bosnia and the Krajina.

BIHAC: POSSIBLE EXCLUSION ZONE

Bosnian and Krajina Serbs have attacked the Bosnian Government's V Corps in the northwest area of the Bihac pocket. The Bosnian and Krajina Serbs appear to be attempting to gain control over rail and road links between their territories which they used when the area was under the Abdic regime. Reducing or eliminating the V Corps would also allow the Bosnian Serbs to free forces for use elsewhere.

Gen. Delic has suggested that a 25 km. exclusion zone be created around Bihac. Gen. Rose is considering a 3 km. zone, if the fighting moves closer to Bihac city.

The NAC's April 22 decision provided that exclusion zones will be created around the remaining safe areas not so protected [Zepa, Srebrenica, Tuzla and Bihac] if they are: attacked by heavy weapons; or threatened by a concentration of heavy weapons. In neither case is further NAC action required.

The decision clearly states UNPROFOR and NATO commanders must reach a "common understanding" regarding threatening concentrations of heavy weapons, but requires no UNPROFOR pre-approval for NATO commanders to declare a new exclusion zone in response to an attack by heavy weapons on a safe area. NATO military authorities are authorized by the NAC to declare an existing safe area an exclusion zone if it is attacked by heavy weapons simply by giving "due public notice" of the fact. UNPROFOR would be needed to help delineate the boundaries of the exclusion zone and assist in its enforcement. Since Bihac is bordered by Croatian and Bosnian Serb territory, the boundaries of the zone must be carefully considered. The Bosnian Government reports that the Croats would accept an exclusion zone covering Croat territory near Bihac.

Implementation of the April 22 decision is complicated by the lack of precise boundaries for the safe areas. UNPROFOR assumes the safe areas are the population centers, not the confrontation lines. Hence Gen. Rose's position that the fighting must move closer to Bihac city to trigger the creation of an exclusion zone. Consultations with the Allies on the margins of the Sept. 9 NAC indicated a distinct lack of enthusiasm to create another exclusion zone.

In addition, the UN wrote to NATO on September 9 and requested that close air support be extended in situations in which the security of UNPROFOR personnel in Bihac and other regions is jeopardized by military actions emanating from Croatia. The NAC will consider this request on Sept. 14. While the extension of close air support for UNPROFOR throughout Croatia is stalled due, inter alia, to questions of managing air traffic in Croat airspace, it should be possible to honor this more limited UN request.

If the fighting moves closer to Bihac city, there are compelling reasons to establish an exclusion zone around Bihac. It could head off terrible suffering by civilians and avoid destruction in the city -- as occurred when the Bosnian Serbs attacked Gorazde. The establishment and enforcement of a Bihac exclusion zone, and the extension of CAS to parts of Croatia from which attacks could be launched on Bosnia, would send a signal to the Bosnian Serbs of NATO's continued resolve to press for an end to the fighting in Bosnia. This would dovetail with our strategy pressing the Bosnian Serbs hard over the next few weeks to accept the Contact Group map.

SUSTAINING THE BOSNIAN FEDERATION

WHY WE NEED THE FEDERATION

Attempting to preserve the Federation should be a key U.S. objective in any Bosnian scenario for several reasons. First, the Federation is the linchpin of Muslim-Croat rapprochement. Second, the Federation provides a strategic counterweight to Serb domination in the region. Third, it could serve as the basis for a viable settlement along the lines of the Contact Group plan. Thus, quite apart from our "godfather" role in brokering the Federation agreement, we have an interest in helping the Federation manage strains stemming from the legacy of Muslim-Croat fighting and intensified conflict with the Serbs.

WHAT WE MIGHT CONSIDER IF FIGHTING INTENSIFIES

If the military situation in Bosnia heats up as a result of the lifting of the arms embargo, and particularly if UNPROFOR leaves, the Federation will come under unprecedented pressure. Federation positions including Sarajevo, the eastern enclaves, Brcko, the region between Olovo and Ribnica, and Bihac will remain vulnerable until peace is achieved, and are likely to be among the first targets of stepped up Serb attacks. Should we decide to try to sustain the Federation if fighting increases, we will need to consider the extent to which we wish to continue to provide, or increase provision of, support of the following types:

- o diplomatic and political support, including in the most extreme case support for a government forced to leave Sarajevo for a temporary location in the heartland of the Federation;

- o military assistance, including continued advice on integration of government and HVO units, provision of air support, training and provision of goods not covered by the arms embargo, and if the arms embargo is lifted, weapons and military equipment.

- o democratization and institution-building assistance to shore up the Federation at local levels;

- o economic and humanitarian aid. In the event of expanded war, this would naturally mean assistance toward maintaining a subsistence level, not actual reconstruction aid.

It is important to bear in mind that the UN, through UNPROFOR and UNHCR, and private international organizations including the ICRC, are already providing significant indirect support to the Federation. If the UN and NGOs were to withdraw entirely, it would be exceedingly difficult to keep the Federation alive.

DIPLOMATIC SUPPORT

In a situation of all-out war that results in further territorial gains by the Serbs, the Bosnian government and Federation will need all the diplomatic and political support the international community can provide, both in multilateral organizations and bilaterally. Continued recognition of the Bosnian government would help prevent a collapse of confidence, a leadership vacuum, and a total breakdown of order. Should Sarajevo fall and the government be forced to move to core areas of the Federation in order to survive, we would need to consider whether and how to help with an evacuation, whether to provide logistical support for an exiled-in-place regime, and whether to use U.S. ground forces in large numbers to move the government or defend what was left of its territory.

Three projects suggested by Embassy Bosnia that provide diplomatic and political support for the Federation under any scenario are already being undertaken. They are as follows:

-- Organizing a training course for aspiring Federation diplomats: USIA and USAID have both expressed an interest in funding such a course; Ambassador Jackovich is discussing logistics and course-content with retired U.S. diplomats who might teach the course.

-- Visits to the U.S. by local Federation officials: Embassy Sarajevo is working with USIA to arrange visits by appropriate individuals.

-- Periodic high-level U.S. visits to Bosnia. Assistant Secretary Holbrooke, who said at his Senate confirmation hearings that the Balkans would be the site of his first official travel, has recently returned from a trip that included Bosnia.

MILITARY SUPPORT

An intensification of fighting with the Bosnian Serbs would subject the fragile military accord between the Bosnian government army and the HVO militia to increased strain. Whether or not the embargo is lifted, we will need to work for military integration of the two forces and to overcome deep-seated suspicions hindering that process. General Galvin, who spearheaded negotiations on the military aspects of the Federation, has visited Federation leaders and made suggestions. He may have further thoughts in this regard.

In a lift situation, provision of U.S. weapons to the Bosnian government per se will likely fuel suspicions of many Bosnian Croats, who will fear that the weapons might ultimately be used against the HVO. Bosnian Croat leaders might accordingly press Croatia to step up arms deliveries to HVO units. Thus if we pursue lift, we will need to consider carefully how to provide weapons, which types of weapons to supply, and whether and how to offer training in their use.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Regardless of whether we pursue lift, we need to address the Bosnian government's outstanding request for non-lethal assistance, including uniforms, tents, and supplies such as canteens, to the Federation. (These requests are endorsed by Embassy Bosnia.) State has included Bosnia in its 1996 request for IMET funds; this should facilitate military-to-military contacts and discussions of non-lethal assistance in any circumstances, and decisionmaking on strategic assistance should the arms embargo be lifted.

We earlier told our Allies we would help expedite the withdrawal of UNPROFOR troops should this become necessary for security reasons. The UK has said it "fully intends to cash the check" if the arms embargo is lifted; thus after October 15 we may face a decision on whether to provide military support to assist with UNPROFOR evacuation or redeployment from both government and HVO-controlled territory. In some cases UNPROFOR troops have helped quell disturbances between government and HVO units; the departure of UNPROFOR may allow Muslim-Croat resentment to resurface in some areas.

It goes almost without waying that if the eastern enclaves or Sarajevo are threatened, strangled, or overrun as a result of increased fighting, pressure to step up the level of U.S. (and/or NATO) involvement will rise dramatically.

DEMOCRATICIZATION AND INSTITUTION-BUILDING

In early July Prime Minister Silajdzic discussed with Ambassador Redman the idea of a US commission that would help jump-start implementation of the Federation constitution and recommend ways to build support for the Federation at the municipal and cantonal levels. Even in the context of expanded war, we should do whatever we can to strengthen Federation institutions and public confidence in the Federation.

Working with Embassy Bosnia, Brian Atwood recently approved a proposal by USAID's Office of Transition Initiatives to use up to $1 million to explore Federation-strengthening options. Provided the security situation permits, a Task Force comprised of economists, dispute resolution practitioners, governance experts and civil engineers will travel to Bosnia in November/December to strengthen local efforts at reconciliation, particularly through Federation institutions, and to identify opportunities for U.S.-supported projects in municipal government, housing rehabilitation and the private sector, including, tangible, immediate support to the extent possible. The survey will look specifically at small, central Bosnian communities, including some of those most affected by Croat-Muslim fighting and refugee movements, such as Vitez, Travnik, Bugugno and Gorni Vakuf. The experts will also look at cities where different ethnic groups continue to live and work together to examine ways in which U.S. support could reinforce their positive example. Another team will look at ways to implement the March Federation constitution.

CSCE has a mandate to appoint ombudsmen; and a representative of the CSCE chairman went to Sarajevo in August to try to get the Bosnian government to nominate acceptable ombudsmen and prepare for the opening of CSCE's Sarajevo office. Through the Commission that Silajdzic proposed and otherwise, we should encourage CSCE efforts.

ECONOMIC AND HUMANITARIAN AID

A return to anything approaching full-scale war would almost certainly halt rehabilitation efforts. Thus the focus of any U.S. aid program in a post-lift situation would be on sustaining a subsistance level of existence for the Bosnian people. The likely withdrawal or redeployment of UNPROFOR under lift would complicate an already difficult humanitarian effort, particularly during winter months.

If fighting intensifies, the U.S. must be ready to address the most pressing humanitarian needs in short order, especially in Sarajevo, where in the absence of Bosnian Serb agreement to let supplies through, the city could quickly be surrounded and cut off from relief deliveries. The situation would be even more acute in the beleaguered and vulnerable eastern enclaves. We will need to take opportunities for provision of assistance where they occur and remain flexible and prepared to act quickly to meet needs such as repair of water distribution networks, repair and maintenance of electrical power and telecommunication sources, provision of health care, and so on.

Under the assumption that the hostility level in Bosnia will remain high, USAID is planning to commit $1 million to the UN Trust Fund for Sarajevo and up to $9 million in its FY 1994 Bosnia budget for urgent, Sarajevo-related activities such as rehabilitating the city's gas distribution and heating systems; and airlifting $3 million worth of pharmaceutical supplies and medical equipment to the city; and advising city managers directly responsible for the city's rehabilitation.

Embassy Bosnia has proposed three humanitarian relief projects to help shore up the Federation that are already being carried out in whole or in part. Specifically, they are:

-- Support for the Bosnian Croat Monastery/Hospital at Nova Bila: At Ambassador Jackovich's request, USAID has agreed to assist in this effort.

-- Replacement of Mostar's "Masala" Bridge: This has been undertaken by the British, the UN and the EU administration.

-- Refugee registration and pre-fabricated housing: At the suggestion of Assistant Secretary Oakley of PRM, Ambassador Jackovich will work with the International Rescue Committee on its UNHCR-sponsored refugee registration effort in central Bosnia. USAID will study the feasibility of housing rehabilitation as part of long-term reconstruction efforts. But given the cost and logistical problems of a pre-fabricated housing program, USAID has said it is unlikely to fund direct housing construction.

Embassy Bosnia has also suggested that the road around Mount Igman be repaired. The route, which is unpaved and therefore closed during most of the winter, is the government's sole life-line to the capital. In recent weeks, the Igman route has been placed under virtual Bosnian Serb control through use of sniper fire. As any project would require the unlikely cooperation of the Bosnian Serbs, we do not plan to go forward for the time being.

SUBJECT: IZETBEGOVIC RE-ASSESSES LIFTING ARMS EMBARGO

1. ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SUMMARY. IZETBEGOVIC APPEARED TO BE RE-ASSESSING THE CONSEQUENCES OF LIFTING THE ARMS EMBARGO. FOLLOWING AN INTERVIEW IN THE PRESS A FEW WEEKS AGO WHICH HINTED AT A POSSIBLE SHIFT IN THINKING, IZETBEGOVIC REVEALED TO US ELEMENTS OF WHAT COULD EMERGE AS A NEW BOSNIAN STRATEGY ON THE EMBARGO. THE PRESIDENT MIGHT PROPOSE A SIX-MONTH "MORATORIUM" ON LIFTING, THUS GIVING THE CONTACT GROUP MORE TIME TO NEGOTIATE AND CONTINUE PRESSURE ON THE SERBS. SOME MEMBERS OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY WOULD BE EXPECTED TO CONTINUE TO IMPORT ARMS INTO BOSNIA DURING THE MORATORIUM. IN ADDITION, DURING THE SIX-MONTH PERIOD: UNPROFOR WOULD REMAIN IN PLACE; NATO/U.S. WOULD DEFEND "EXCLUSION ZONES" AND "SAFE AREAS"; THE FEDERATION, INCLUDING ITS ARMED FORCES, WOULD BE STRENGTHENED; AND, THE CONTACT GROUP WOULD CONTINUE NEGOTIATIONS. IT APPEARED TO US THAT IZETBEGOVIC HAD YET TO REFINE THE DETAILS OF THIS STRATEGY BUT COULD BE EXPECTED TO DO SO IN FURTHER TALKS WITH BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT AND FEDERATION OFFICIALS. HE CAN ALSO BE EXPECTED TO BROACH THIS ISSUE WITH USG OFFICIALS WHEN HE TRAVELS TO THE U.S. AT THE END OF THIS MONTH END SUMMARY.

3. IN MEETINGS WITH THE AMBASSADOR IN SARAJEVO SEPTEMBER 8-10, BOSNIAN PRESIDENT ALIJA IZETBEGOVIC REVEALED NEW ELEMENTS IN BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT THINKING ABOUT THE CONSEQUENCES OF LIFTING THE ARMS EMBARGO.

A CAMPAIGN TO GET THE EMBARGO LIFTED HAS BEEN A PIVOTAL BOSNIAN FOREIGN POLICY OBJECTIVE SINCE THE WAR BEGAN. PUBLIC REMARKS AND COMMENTS IN DISCUSSIONS WITH HIGH-LEVEL VISITORS HAVE TENDED TO REINFORCE THIS RHETORIC. HOWEVER, BEHIND THE SCENES, THERE APPEARSTO BE AN ONGOING HIGH-LEVEL DEBATE ABOUT THE ADVISABILITY OF LIFTING THE EMBARGO.

4. WE CAUTION THAT IZETBEGOVIC'S THINING DOES NOT/NOT REPRESENT SOME NEW COORDINATED BOSNIAN "FALL STRATEGY." RATHER, THIS APPEARS TO US TO BE AN INITIAL ATTEMPT TO DIGEST MISGIVINGS EXPRESSED BY UNPROFOR AND OTHERS ABOUT THE CONSEQUENCES OF LIFTING, AS WELL AS CONTINUED GRAPPLING WITH AN ATTEMPT TO CHART A PLAN FOR THE NEXT SEVERAL MONTHS, WHICH WOULD TAKE INTO ACCOUNT A VARIETY OF FACTORS. THESE WOULD INCLUDE THE APPARENT STALEMATE ON THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN, THE STALLED BOSNIAN ARMY OFFENSIVE AND ANTICIPATED PROBLEMS WITH THE DELIVERY OF HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE TO A VULNERABLE POPULATION DURING A THIRD WINTER OF WARFARE.

5. THE FOUNDATION FOR THE NEW STRATEGY IS IZETBEGOVIC'S RE-ASSESSMENT OF THE WISDOM OF LIFTING THE ARMS EMBARGO. IN ORDER TO REVISE THE CALENDAR, HE IS EXPLORING THE POSSIBILITY OF PROPOSING A SIX-MONTH MORATORIUM (FROM OCTOBER 15/NOVEMBER 15 TO APRIL 15/MAY 15), MOVING THE EFFECTIVE DATE OF POSSIBLE LIFTING AHEAD TO THE SPRING OF 1995. IZETBEGOVIC BELIEVES THAT, DURING THIS SIX-MONTH PERIOD, FOUR ESSENTIAL THINGS SHOULD HAPPEN: 1) UNPROFOR WOULD REMAIN IN PLACE; 2) NATO, AND THE USG, WOULD VIGOROUSLY ENFORCE "EXCLUSION ZONES" AND "SAFE AREAS"; 3) THE FEDERATION, INCLUDING ITS ARMED FORCES, WOULD BE ASSISTED AND STRENGTHENED; AND, 4) THE CONTACT GROUP WOULD BE ABLE TO CONTINUE PEACE TALKS. HE ALSO THINKS THAT SOME MEMBERS OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY SHOULD, DURING THE SIX-MONTH PERIOD, CONTINUE TO IMPORT ARMS "VIA COVERT CHANNELS" INTO BOSNIA.

6. DURING DISCUSSIONS, IZETBEGOVIC ALSO ELABORATED ON OTHER POINTS ABOVE. HE SAID HE THOUGHT IT IMPORTANT THAT UNPROFOR REMAIN IN PLACE AT LEAST THROUGH WINTER, THEREBY ALSO FACILITATING RELIEF EFFORTS. HE WANTED UNPROFOR TO REMAIN IN THE EASTERN ENCLAVES, WHICH WOULD THEN BE MORE VIGOROUSLY DEFENDED ALSO BY NATO (AND THE USG) FROM THE AIR. IN THIS REGARD, HE NOTED THAT THE INFAMOUS "BLUE ROUTE" INTO SARAJEVO, CLOSED SINCE THE END OF JULY, IS LOCATED WITHIN THE SARAJEVO "TOTAL EXCLUSION ZONE." HE RECOMMENDED THAT IT BE OPENED THROUGH STRONGER AND MORE COORDINATED EFFORTS BETWEEN UNPROFOR AND NATO. DE-MILITARIZATION OF SARAJEVO -- OR OF OTHER AREAS -- COULD ONLY TAKE PLACE IF UNPROFOR STAYED, IZETBEGOVIC SAID IN REFERENCE TO UNPROFOR GEN. ROSE'S PROPOSALS FOR DE-MILITARIZATION OF THE CAPITAL.

7. IN ADDITION TO OUR CONVERSATIONS WITH IZETBEGOVIC, WE HAVE DISCUSSED IN DETAIL CONSEQUENCES OF LIFTING THE ARMS EMBARGO ALSO WITH FEDERATION PRESIDENT KRESMIR ZUBAK AND EJUP GANIC, WHO PLAYS A PIVOTAL DUAL ROLE AS FEDERATION VICE PRESIDENT AND MEMBER OF THE BOSNIAN REPUBLIC GOVERNMENT'S COLLECTIVE PRESIDENCY. (FEDERATION/REPUBLIC PRIME MINISTER HARIS SILAJDZIC

HAS BEEN OUT OF THE COUNTRY ON A TOUR OF ISLAMIC COUNTRIES.) ODDLY, WE HAVE NO INDICATIONS THAT THESE KEY FIGURES HAVE MET ALL TOGETHER THEMSELVES IN ORDER TO COORDINATE A STRATEGY, ALTHOUGH THE OPPORTUNITY TO DO SO MAY PRESENT ITSELF IN THE DAYS BEFORE IZETBEGOVIC'S TRAVEL TO THE U.S.

8. IN PUBLIC REMARKS AND COMMENTS TO HIGH-LEVEL VISITORS, BOTH ZUBAK AND GANIC WOULD APPEAR AS WEDDED TO LIFTING THE EMBARGO AS IS IZETBEGOVIC HIMSELF. HOWEVER, IN OUR DISCUSSIONS, BOTH DISPLAYED HINTS OF FLEXIBILITY IN THEIR POSITIONS, PERHAPS AS THE RESULT OF RE-ASSESSING THE CONSEQUENCES OF LIFTING, THE MIX OF FACTORS INVOLVED AND THE DESIRE TO MAINTAIN AN INTERNATIONAL PEACE PROCESS THAT WOULD CONTINUE TO EXERT PRESSURE ON THE KARADZIC SERBS.

9. COMMENT: OUR INITIAL READING IS THERE IS MUCH THAT IS SEEMINGLY IRRECONCILABLE IN THIS STRATEGY, PARTICULARLY IZETBEGOVIC'S VIEW THAT ARMS COULD CONTINUE TO BE IMPORTED DURING A FORMAL "MORATORIUM." IN ADDITION, THE PRESIDENT APPEARED TO BELIEVE THAT UNPROFOR COULD REMAIN WITH ITS PRECISE CURRENT DEPLOYMENT, IN SPITE OF INDICATIONS FROM OUR ALLIES TO THE CONTRARY. BUT, AT ANY RATE, HE SEEMED DETERMINE TO DEVELOP A STRATEGY THAT WOULD MAINTAIN INTERNATIONAL ENGAGEMENT IN BOSNIA, BUT AVOID PRECIPITOUS ACTIONS -- SUCH AS TOTAL UNPROFOR WITHDRAWAL – THAT COULD HAVE CALAMITOUS CONSEQUENCES FOR THE BOSNIANS. IZETBEGOVIC'S SHIFT IN EMPHASIS FROM THE BOSNIAN REPUBLIC GOVERNMENT TO THE CROATO-BOSNIAK FEDERATION IS ALSO SIGNIFICANT. FOR HIS PART, FEDERATION PRESIDENT ZUBAK APPEARED TO BE MORE CONCERNED THAT, IF THE EMBARGO IS LIFTED, IT NOT BE TO THE BENEFIT OF THE BOSNIAN ARMY ALONE, BUT OF THE COMBINED CROATO-BOSNIAK FEDERAL ARMED FORCES. WE WERE, IN ANY CASE, IMPRESSED THAT THE BOSNIANS APPEAR NOW TO BE SERIOUSLY RETHINKING A FORMERLY SACRED PLATFORM IN THEIR FOREIGN POLICY: GETTING THE ARMS EMBARGO IMMEDIATELY LIFTED. WE CAN EXPECT THAT IZETBEGOVIC WILL HAVE MORE TO SAY ON THIS WHEN HE COMES TO THE U.S. AT THE END OF THE MONTH. JACKOVICH

Diplomatic Strategy on Bosnia: Short and Mid-Term

SUMMARY: This paper sets forth considerations for American strategy towards the Bosnian conflict in the short and mid-term. The short term is defined as the period leading up to the October 15 date for commencement of discussions on a multilateral lift resolution, as set out in President Clinton's August 10 letter to Nunn and in the Nunn-Mitchell amendment. Mid-term is defined as the period following October 15 until the end of 1994. This is the period in which the question of whether the United States moves towards unilateral lift is likely to be decided.

The analysis considers steps in all important aspects of our efforts, i.e. within the Contact Group and in NATO; with the parties to the conflict; with Congress and with the press. It concludes with an agenda for near and mid-term action. END SUMMARY

The current situation is characterized by an uneasy and oft-broken military truce with considerable political maneuvering behind the scenes. There are several untested assumptions, including the intentions of the Russians and other Contact Group members, the sincerity of Milosevic and the ability of the Sarajevo government to maintain its position.

While the Contact Group remains the best means for avoiding a breakdown of current efforts and preventing a situation from arising in which the U.S. could be forced to assume sole responsibility for the crisis, its internal cohesion could be tested severely in coming weeks. Both Russia and France appear to be pushing alternative visions for a peace process based on support for Milosevic, while the UK and others remain adamantly opposed to moving to strict enforcement of the exclusion zones out of fear for the safety of their UNPROFOR forces.

It must also be assumed that adoption of the Nunn-Mitchell amendment has not ended the debate over lift. Although the House has passed the conference committee report on the Defense Authorization Bill containing Nunn-Mitchell and the Senate should follow suit as soon as it reconvenes, additional attempts to legislate unilateral lift, such as the Dole amendment, could surface before Congress recesses. The election campaign will ensure further debate. Our integrated strategy must include provisions for participating in and directing this debate.

Among the important events which have taken place in the Bosnian conflict since the Geneva III ministerial are:

-- A Bosnian Serb referendum supporting rejection of the the Contact Group proposals and stepped up harassment of the humanitarian relief effort by Pale;

-- Adoption of the Nunn-Mitchell amendment containing strong hortatory language calling for Administration action in support of multilateral lift and calling for the submission of a plan and consultations for unilateral lift if multilateral lift fails;

-- A decision by Milosevic to close his borders and cut other links with Pale as a means to force acceptance of the Contact Group proposals;

-- A growing belief on the part of the Bosnian Muslims that they can prevail if widespread hostilities return, combined with difficulties in making a go of the Federation;

-- Statements by the leading participants in UNPROFOR that they will leave Bosnia if the arms embargo is lifted;

-- Efforts by Kozyrev to paint Milosevic's steps as constituting a qualitatively new situation which requires abandonment of the July 30 Contact Group commitments and a major readjustment of Contact Group strategy.

IMPLICATIONS FOR U.S. STRATEGY

These events have strengthened the impression that the Bosnian Serbs will not accept the Contact Group plan in the near or medium term and that there is an inevitability to a lifting of the arms embargo and a widening of the war.

The dangers for the American position in such a situation are several:

-- A tendency by other players to assume that if a firm solution is not achieved by October 15, political efforts will be swamped by renewed hostilities, as the U.S. pushes for multilateral lift, and failing that, moves to lift the arms embargo unilaterally. This could lead both to major conflicts with important partners and to an image that the United States was now responsible for a wider war.

-- As October 15 approaches, difficulties in maintaining unity in the Contact Group and within NATO which could undermine efforts to push towards a political settlement. In particular, erosion of the consensus that the Contact Group must be firm with both Belgrade and Pale could lead to considerable disarray. Such a development could lead to conflicts in the Group. Equally devastating could be renewed hostilities and loss of momentum on the ground.

-- If pressure for a political settlement is undermined by the above two developments, we could find ourselves isolated both diplomatically and militarily. Our only options would be either to stand by as the war expanded or to ourselves enter the conflict.

Avoiding the diplomatic and military isolation and the crisis for our relations with major partners which could result from such a development must be a major goal of short term American strategy.

AN INTEGRATED APPROACH

The large number of elements in play require continuous oversight to ensure an integration of important factors and opportunities for influence. Our approach should focus on three basic goals:

-- To preserve a common political strategy within the Contact Group which helps avoid American isolation by incorporating our internal political debate as a legitimate aspect of management of the crisis. We have from the beginnning accepted the political needs of the Europeans and the Russians as important elements of a common strategy. We should make clear to Contact Group members and other allies that the Administration's political decision to work with proponents of lift was taken after careful deliberation and that it will not be possible to remove this element from the equation.

Indeed, the pressure of lift can work in our favor if we do not break ranks with each other. Our task should be to use all the tools at our disposal to create conditions which make lift both politically and factually unnecessary. Mere warnings by the others of the consequences of lift will not serve this purpose.

-- On the basis of the above, to convince other Contact Group members that continuation of the incentives/disincentives strategy towards Belgrade as well as Pale is strongly in our joint interest. We should make clear that unless it maintains this foundation, agreed at the Naples summit, the Contact Group will be in danger of being whipsawed by each new short term development. There is enough flexibility in this approach to allow us to utilize various elements of the incentives/disincentives strategy to bring the greatest possible pressure to bear towards a political settlement, while at the same time taking care of the often conflicting political needs of the major members.

-- With Congress and with the press, to make clear how these various steps are integrated into a negotiating strategy which should be given time to work. At the same time, to continue planning for various post-lift scenarios and discuss the political and military implications of lift with Congress on the basis of this planning. Congress should accept that it shares responsibility with the Administration for successful implementation of our strategy. There should be no finger pointing once the going gets rough.

IMMEDIATE STEPS

Despite Pale's intransigence, the situation is not stalemated. Russian diplomatic efforts, NATO planning both for enforcement of exclusion zones and UNPROFOR redeployment and events on the ground provide elements for a dynamic situation. We are not yet clear about Milosevic's intentions, for example. Our Charge in Belgrade argues convincingly that he will probably play his hand for all that it is worth, with any sign of decisive action coming later in the process.

More than five weeks remain until the October 15 date set by President Clinton and echoed in the Nunn-Mitchell amendment for commencing action in the UN. Even then, we will have two weeks or more to organize the debate. The goal of our immediate steps should be to inject as much dynamism into our efforts as possible. Establishing a dynamic process, which demonstrates clearly understandable elements of progress, is the best means of dealing successfully with the debate over lift.

In particular, we should seek to ensure that the Bosnian Serbs are not allowed to create a de facto stalemate. Application of the tools agreed by the Contact Group, combined with strong diplomatic pressure, can meet this danger. The question now is finding the right mix.

There is, for example, general agreement that an important goal is to isolate Pale diplomatically and logistically as a means of increasing pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to accept the Contact Group plan.

But despite the results of the recent Contact Group meeting in Berlin, there is no consensus on how to achieve this goal:

-- the Russians wish to reward Milosevic for his blockade of Pale with progressive stages of sanctions relief. Their approach would be to accept Milosevic's promises at face value and remove him from the disincentive portion of the Contact Group strategy.

-- the European Contact Group members seem willing to go along with this approach. They have hopes that it might work and see it as a means of preserving unity with the Russians.

Above all, they see it as an alternative to lifting the arms embargo, which they hope to avoid at all costs. The French and British in particular are watching events closely for implications of the future of their deployments in UNPROFOR.

-- the United States is willing to consider relief for Belgrade, on the condition that Milosevic demonstrate his good intentions by accepting a border monitoring mechanism and by taking political steps with other former Yugoslav Republics, such as recognizing their borders.

The agreement worked out in Berlin on September 6 and 7 meets our core needs in providing for a credible monitoring effort without giving too much away to Belgrade. At the same time, it provides the Russians with Contact Group recognition for the steps that Milosevic has taken that they can use effectively with their domestic audience. Although the Russians may press for even greater recognition as events unfold, the Berlin agreement represents a genuine desire by all parties to maintain Contact Group unity. This should stand us in good stead as we move to implement the other more controversial elements of our fundamental strategy.

We should now move ahead with the following steps:

-- a strong presentation in NATO and with the Russians on the need to underline the determination of the Contact Group with increased enforcement of exclusion zone violations, particularly by NATO air strikes undertaken in coordination with UNPROFOR.

-- careful discussion in NATO, with the UN and bilaterally on future prospects for UNPROFOR. In particular we should utilize apparent French willingness to consider redeployments to construct a plan for a longer term role in support of a peace process.

-- a concerted effort with individual members of Congress to explain our strategy and seek to involve them in the debate from the beginning.

-- a systematic press strategy which adopts clearly-understandable themes and seeks to ensure that they are reflected in both news articles and sympathetic commentary.

-- work in individual capitals. Our Ambassadors in Contact Group countries should be encouraged to enter the frankest possible dialogue with host governments. We should improve our backgrounding of other posts to ensure detailed presentation of our views by other Ambassadors as well.

-- stepped up consideration within the USG of the military and financial implications of various steps related to the possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR and lifting of the arms embargo. Possibilities of responding positively to continued strong British and French pressure for an American ground role, even in a support capacity, must be explored carefully.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- more detailed consideration of the economic and political measures the United States could support on the ground to help ease the crisis and push towards a solution. Such measures should be focussed on all players in the conflict.

-- more active press background which describes the interrelated nature of US strategy and which builds the lift aspect into our strategy, explaining what the possible U.S. role might be. We should take pains to counteract any sense of conflict or rift with Russia and our major allies.

As October 15 approaches, we should be able to describe a package of strategies and measures which is focussing maximum pressure towards a negotiated settlement. Assuming that a settlement has not yet been reached, we should begin to incorporate UN discussion of a multilateral lift resolution into our strategy in a self-confident and pragmatic way:

-- With other members of the Contact Group, we should gain agreement that the UN debate should be a time to review all aspects of the conflict and the efforts undertaken so far. The goal of this review should be to gain agreement within the Security Council on specific, firm steps which can be taken to demonstrate the precariousness of further delay. These conclusions should include a judgement on the growing political support for lift in the U.S., but also should focus again on efforts to pressure recalcitrant parties.

This would be the point to decide whether new negotiating efforts with new objectives might be considered or not. It would also be the time to be ready with ideas for a future role for UNPROFOR, including possible enhanced American support. If we are to have a card to play with our allies on UNPROFOR, it would probably be wise to play it at this point.

-- With Belgrade, our approach will depend on how honestly Milosevic has cooperated with us. The week or two prior to October 15 might be a time for a high level U.S. envoy who could make clear to Belgrade the consequences and opportunities in various courses of action.

-- With Congress and the press, we should describe carefully the goals of the UN debate, seek congressional agreement on tactics and possible outcomes. With both Congress and the press, this period should mark an intensification of dialogue which prepares the way for probable failure of a multilateral lift resolution. The ongoing U.S. election campaign is likely to play an important role in this debate.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

At this point, we should be talking frankly with Congress about the political, military and legal implications of unilateral lift. We should be clear with major proponents of lift what the joint political responsibility will be.

-- With Sarajevo, we should intensify our dialogue on possible options and encourage the Bosnians to support a joint approach with us in public and with contacts in the United States.

-- During this period, we should also be exploring more carefully steps which can be taken in the broader context to stabilize the situation. These include a more systematic approach to the problems of Kosovo; strategies in international organizations and longer term projects such as a regional arms control scheme for the region.

OCTOBER 15 AND BEYOND

All these strands will come together as we make good on the commitment made by President Clinton to introduce a lift resolution in the Security Council within the two weeks following October 15. By this time, we should have a fair view of the positions of all the key parties and the possibilities for further action.

-- We will have a much better idea of the prospects for passage of a lift resolution in the Security Council. The attitudes of the British, French and Russians will be key.

-- We will have briefed Congress in detail on what we believe we would need to do militarily to assist the Bosnian government after lift and have a much better understanding of how much pressure or support we can expect from the Hill.

-- The Bosnian government will itself have a better appreciation for what could happen after lift, and this too will influence our calculations.

-- Finally, there will be developments on the ground in Bosnia--the fighting situation and the humanitarian relief effort, the position of UNPROFOR and the possible implementation of strict enforcement, and the results of Milosevic's campaign against Pale.

We will need to weigh all these elements in deciding whether to press the lift resolution forward to a vote or to propose alternative approaches. If our assessment points in the direction of pressing the lift resolution, then we can move forward. On the other hand, if we decide that Milosevic's campaign is working and needs more time to succeed, this may argue for holding off on the lift resolution, particularly if support for lift is lacking among key players. Other alternatives are also possible. If strict enforcement has been implemented by this time, we may want to continue with this for a longer period before moving for agreement on lift. Or, our conversations with Congress may convince us (or convince them) that they are unwilling to support the military action we believe necessary to assist the Bosnian government under a lift scenario.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(FR) 09.09. '94 20:01 NO. 14601200 98 PAGE 8

Other possibilities may also emerge depending on how events unfold. If we decide for any reason, however, not to press forward with a lift resolution, or if we do but fail to secure its passage, then we are committed, by the President's letter to Nunn, to consult with the Congress on the possibility of unilateral lift. Given the timing, it is likely that any serious consultations on unilateral lift will need to await the convening of the new Congress in January. We will also need to respond appropriately to the other provisions of the Nunn-Mitchell amendment, particularly those cutting off funds for U.S. enforcement of the arms embargo.

By that time, there will likely be new elements to factor into our equations as we make clear to Congress the extremely damaging effect that unilateral lift could have on many of our key foreign policy equities, as well as the additional demands it would place on our military responsibility for the conflict in Bosnia.

SUSTAINING THE BOSNIAN FEDERATION

WHY WE NEED THE FEDERATION

Attempting to preserve the Federation should be a key U.S. objective in any Bosnian scenario for several reasons. First, the Federation is the linchpin of Muslim-Croat rapprochement. Second, the Federation provides a strategic counterweight to Serb domination in the region. Third, it could serve as the basis for a viable settlement along the lines of the Contact Group plan. Thus, quite apart from our "godfather" role in brokering the Federation agreement, we have an interest in helping the Federation manage strains stemming from the legacy of Muslim-Croat fighting and intensified conflict with the Serbs.

WHAT WE MIGHT CONSIDER IF FIGHTING INTENSIFIES

If the military situation in Bosnia heats up as a result of the lifting of the arms embargo, and particularly if UNPROFOR leaves, the Federation will come under unprecedented pressure. Federation positions including Sarajevo, the eastern enclaves, Brcko, the region between Olovo and Ribnica, and Bihac will remain vulnerable until peace is achieved, and are likely to be among the first targets of stepped up Serb attacks. Should we decide to try to sustain the Federation if fighting increases, we will need to consider the extent to which we wish to continue to provide, or increase provision of, support of the following types:

- o diplomatic and political support, including in the most extreme case support for a government forced to leave Sarajevo for a temporary location in the heartland of the Federation;

- o military assistance, including continued advice on integration of government and HVO units, provision of air support, training and provision of goods not covered by the arms embargo, and if the arms embargo is lifted, weapons and military equipment.

- o democratization and institution-building assistance to shore up the Federation at local levels;

- o economic and humanitarian aid. In the event of expanded war, this would naturally mean assistance toward maintaining a subsistence level, not actual reconstruction aid.

It is important to bear in mind that the UN, through UNPROFOR and UNHCR, and private international organizations including the ICRC, are already providing significant indirect support to the Federation. If the UN and NGOs were to withdraw entirely, it would be exceedingly difficult to keep the Federation alive.

DIPLOMATIC SUPPORT

In a situation of all-out war that results in further territorial gains by the Serbs, the Bosnian government and Federation will need all the diplomatic and political support the international community can provide, both in multilateral organizations and bilaterally. Continued recognition of the Bosnian government would help prevent a collapse of confidence, a leadership vacuum, and a total breakdown of order. Should Sarajevo fall and the government be forced to move to core areas of the Federation in order to survive, we would need to consider whether and how to help with an evacuation, whether to provide logistical support for an exiled-in-place regime, and whether to use U.S. ground forces in large numbers to move the government or defend what was left of its territory.

Three projects suggested by Embassy Bosnia that provide diplomatic and political support for the Federation under any scenario are already being undertaken. They are as follows:

-- Organizing a training course for aspiring Federation diplomats: USIA and USAID have both expressed an interest in funding such a course; Ambassador Jackovich is discussing logistics and course-content with retired U.S. diplomats who might teach the course.

-- Visits to the U.S. by local Federation officials: Embassy Sarajevo is working with USIA to arrange visits by appropriate individuals.

-- Periodic high-level U.S. visits to Bosnia. Assistant Secretary Holbrooke, who said at his Senate confirmation hearings that the Balkans would be the site of his first official travel, has recently returned from a trip that included Bosnia.

MILITARY SUPPORT

An intensification of fighting with the Bosnian Serbs would subject the fragile military accord between the Bosnian government army and the HVO militia to increased strain. Whether or not the embargo is lifted, we will need to work for military integration of the two forces and to overcome deep-seated suspicions hindering that process. General Galvin, who spearheaded negotiations on the military aspects of the Federation, has visited Federation leaders and made suggestions. He may have further thoughts in this regard.

In a lift situation, provision of U.S. weapons to the Bosnian government per se will likely fuel suspicions of many Bosnian Croats, who will fear that the weapons might ultimately be used against the HVO. Bosnian Croat leaders might accordingly press Croatia to step up arms deliveries to HVO units. Thus if we pursue lift, we will need to consider carefully how to provide weapons, which types of weapons to supply, and whether and how to offer training in their use.

Regardless of whether we pursue lift, we need to address the Bosnian government's outstanding request for non-lethal assistance, including uniforms, tents, and supplies such as canteens, to the Federation. (These requests are endorsed by Embassy Bosnia.) State has included Bosnia in its 1996 request for IMET funds; this should facilitate military-to-military contacts and discussions of non-lethal assistance in any circumstances, and decisionmaking on strategic assistance should the arms embargo be lifted.

We earlier told our Allies we would help expedite the withdrawal of UNPROFOR troops should this become necessary for security reasons. The UK has said it "fully intends to cash the check" if the arms embargo is lifted; thus after October 15 we may face a decision on whether to provide military support to assist with UNPROFOR evacuation or redeployment from both government and HVO-controlled territory. In some cases UNPROFOR troops have helped quell disturbances between government and HVO units; the departure of UNPROFOR may allow Muslim-Croat resentment to resurface in some areas.

It goes almost without waying that if the eastern enclaves or Sarajevo are threatened, strangled, or overrun as a result of increased fighting, pressure to step up the level of U.S. (and/or NATO) involvement will rise dramatically.

DEMOCRATICIZATION AND INSTITUTION-BUILDING

In early July Prime Minister Silajdzic discussed with Ambassador Redman the idea of a US commission that would help jump-start implementation of the Federation constitution and recommend ways to build support for the Federation at the municipal and cantonal levels. Even in the context of expanded war, we should do whatever we can to strengthen Federation institutions and public confidence in the Federation.

Working with Embassy Bosnia, Brian Atwood recently approved a proposal by USAID's Office of Transition Initiatives to use up to $1 million to explore Federation-strengthening options. Provided the security situation permits, a Task Force comprised of economists, dispute resolution practitioners, governance experts and civil engineers will travel to Bosnia in November/December to strengthen local efforts at reconciliation, particularly through Federation institutions, and to identify opportunities for U.S.-supported projects in municipal government, housing rehabilitation and the private sector, including, tangible, immediate support to the extent possible. The survey will look specifically at small, central Bosnian communities, including some of those most affected by Croat-Muslim fighting and refugee movements, such as Vitez, Travnik, Bugugno and Gorni Vakuf. The experts will also look at cities where different ethnic groups continue to live and work together to examine ways in which U.S. support could reinforce their positive example. Another team will look at ways to implement the March Federation constitution.

CSCE has a mandate to appoint ombudsmen; and a representative of the CSCE chairman went to Sarajevo in August to try to get the Bosnian government to nominate acceptable ombudsmen and prepare for the opening of CSCE's Sarajevo office. Through the Commission that Silajdzic proposed and otherwise, we should encourage CSCE efforts.

ECONOMIC AND HUMANITARIAN AID

A return to anything approaching full-scale war would almost certainly halt rehabilitation efforts. Thus the focus of any U.S. aid program in a post-lift situation would be on sustaining a subsistance level of existence for the Bosnian people. The likely withdrawal or redeployment of UNPROFOR under lift would complicate an already difficult humanitarian effort, particularly during winter months.

If fighting intensifies, the U.S. must be ready to address the most pressing humanitarian needs in short order, especially in Sarajevo, where in the absence of Bosnian Serb agreement to let supplies through, the city could quickly be surrounded and cut off from relief deliveries. The situation would be even more acute in the beleaguered and vulnerable eastern enclaves. We will need to take opportunities for provision of assistance where they occur and remain flexible and prepared to act quickly to meet needs such as repair of water distribution networks, repair and maintenance of electrical power and telecommunication sources, provision of health care, and so on.

Under the assumption that the hostility level in Bosnia will remain high, USAID is planning to commit $1 million to the UN Trust Fund for Sarajevo and up to $9 million in its FY 1994 Bosnia budget for urgent, Sarajevo-related activities such as rehabilitating the city's gas distribution and heating systems; and airlifting $3 million worth of pharmaceutical supplies and medical equipment to the city; and advising city managers directly responsible for the city's rehabilitation.

Embassy Bosnia has proposed three humanitarian relief projects to help shore up the Federation that are already being carried out in whole or in part. Specifically, they are:

-- Support for the Bosnian Croat Monastery/Hospital at Nova Bila: At Ambassador Jackovich's request, USAID has agreed to assist in this effort.

-- Replacement of Mostar's "Masala" Bridge: This has been undertaken by the British, the UN and the EU administration.

-- Refugee registration and pre-fabricated housing: At the suggestion of Assistant Secretary Oakley of PRM, Ambassador Jackovich will work with the International Rescue Committee on its UNHCR-sponsored refugee registration effort in central Bosnia. USAID will study the feasibility of housing rehabilitation as part of long-term reconstruction efforts. But given the cost and logistical problems of a pre-fabricated housing program, USAID has said it is unlikely to fund direct housing construction.

Embassy Bosnia has also suggested that the road around Mount Igman be repaired. The route, which is unpaved and therefore closed during most of the winter, is the government's sole life-line to the capital. In recent weeks, the Igman route has been placed under virtual Bosnian Serb control through use of sniper fire. As any project would require the unlikely cooperation of the Bosnian Serbs, we do not plan to go forward for the time being.

Summary of Conclusions
Meeting of NSC Principals Committee
DATE: October 18, 1994
LOCATION: White House Situation Room
TIME: 2:30 - 3:30pm

SUBJECT: Summary of Conclusions of Principals Committee Meeting on Bosnia (S)

PARTICIPANTS:

Chair
Anthony Lake

OVP
Leon Fuerth

State
Secretary Warren Christopher
David Gergen
Charles Thomas

DOD
Deputy Secretary John Deutch

UN
Ambassador Madeleine Albright

CIA
Director James Woolsey

JCS

Summary of Conclusions

Strategy:

1. The Principals affirmed our goal to use the next six months in an intensive effort to achieve a political settlement based on the Contact Group proposal. They agreed to press forward with the "Bold Approach" and the Zagreb-Four plan to induce Milosevic to effect a total cut-off of the Krajina Serbs and recognize borders, with a view to further isolating the Bosnian Serbs. Principals requested a short paper within forty-eight hours summarizing key issues encompassing the bold approach and how we would relate those to sanctions relief. Action: State.

2. The Principals agreed that the U.S. will circulate a draft UNSC resolution on or about October 29 calling for a multilateral lifting of the arms embargo by a date certain in the spring (hard-trigger). The resolution should include a "build-down" strategy, if possible. The further agreed to consult closely along the way with the Bosnians and the Congress. Principals will review progress and consider next steps in early November.

Action: State/USUN.

Lifting the Arms Embargo:

3. The Principals reviewed the progress of military planning and directed that the Departments of Defense and State continue their efforts, consulting with Congress on outstanding issues relating to lift with a view to resolving issues by January 1. The Principals recognized that allies expect the U.S. to provide ground forces, if necessary, to assist with UNPROFOR withdrawal, although we have made no specific commitment to do so. Action: Joint Staff and OSD.

4. The Principals agreed we will implement the Nunn-Mitchell amendment requirement to cease funding for enforcing the arms embargo and requested a briefing by November 1 on the modifications necessary and the operational implications of U.S. limitations of enforcing the arms embargo. The Principals also requested companion papers on how to deal with this issue at the United Nations and NATO. EO 13526 1.4c EO 13526 1.4c Action: Briefing - Joint Staff. Papers - State/ OSD 1.4(c)

Sanctions:

5. The Principals stressed the importance of fulfilling commitments and for rapid deployment of the U.S. monitors participating in the ICFY sanctions monitoring mission in Serbia. DoD agreed to provide 20 to complement the 20 being provided by State. Action: OVP.

6. The Principals discussed the effectiveness of the border closure and directed the interagency working group on Bosnia to review the status of Serbian compliance prior to each 30-day review with a view to determining if action should be taken to terminate sanctions relief. The IWG should coordinate demarches to Serbia and other capitals based on available evidence. Action: OVP, NSC, and State.

Strict Enforcement

7. The Principals reviewed the progress of efforts underway to improve strict enforcement of exclusion zones and directed that efforts be taken with the British and French at the United nations with a view to obtaining a more positive UN response on the new NATO airstrike standards. Action: State.

2. Summary. At the October 17 Contact Group Meeting the Brits launched an EU-3 proposal for "Plan B" (aka the "comprehensive approach" or "The Way Ahead") that essentially feeds back the agreed U.S. initiative. Russian CG Rep-designate Zotov said his personal reaction was "positive." Zotov had not had the benefit of a readout of the Secretary's meeting with Kozyrev this morning, nor is he fully read-in on CG issues. Thus, his positive reaction must be seen in that light. Nevertheless, in pitching Plan B, the UK and GE made an effective case as to how this idea helps Milosevic out of the box in which he has been left by the intransigent Pale Serbs.

3. I also laid down a marker, as we have already done bilaterally with the CG nations, that we fully intend to present a lift resolution that meets the President's commitment to Congress. I noted that we hoped to avoid a squabble with our allies. Launching the comprehensive approach at the same time would deflect attention from lift and properly return it to a new dynamic initiative for resolving the conflict in former Yugoslavia. After some grumbling, the Allies responded positively to our willingness to consult with them in the usual UN fashion after tabling the resolution. They agreed, that although they would be constrained to publicly oppose the U.S. resolution, they could do so in language that minimizes fallout. At the same time, they accepted enthusiastically our concept of molding the comprehensive approach into the lift resolution. end summary

4. The Contact Group met for 2.5 hours at USUN on Oct. 17. At Russian request, only Contact Group representatives attended. Russian Rep Nikiforov was accompanied by Rep-designate Zotov. Today's agenda was devoted to the "lift" resolution and "The Way Ahead." The CG will meet again tomorrow, October 18 at 9:30 a.m.

Lift

5. Paralleling what we had explained bilaterally to the CG countries, I reviewed our firm intention to lay down, at the end of the month, a lift resolution which meets the President's commitment to Congress and the GOBH. I underscored our strong intention to avoid a public squabble with the allies but pointed out again that given the choice of a noisy dispute with allies and not meeting the President's commitment we would opt for the former. I noted our willingness to provide an advance copy of our proposed resolution and to discuss the wording. I warned, however, that we would not accept dilution of what had been stated in the President's letter to Congress. I then pointed out that after the resolution had been tabled, we would expect to consult, especially with the CG countries, as we normally would do with any UN resolution. We would hope to work out language that was acceptable to us and them.

6. I then emphasized the importance of melding in the comprehensive" negotiating track. This would serve to move the issue from the increasingly sterile debate over lift to the more productive area of a broad peace plan for the most neuralgic issues in the former Yugoslavia. I commented that such a plan could be in parallel or could be embedded in the lift resolution.

7. We concluded the discussion of lift with general agreement that everybody wished to avoid acrimony over the lift resolution and that the Europeans could make public their reaction to our lift approach without generating the sense of a breakown in the cohesiveness of the Contact group or a great row between the U.S. and the troop providers. I suggested that careful advance planning and consultations could find the right words to shift the focus from "lift" to the "way ahead."

The Way Ahead aka "Plan B" or The Comprehensive Approach

8. The UK then presented their proposed version of "Plan B (attached)." They said it had been approved by the EU-3 and would no doubt be readily approved by the rest of the 12. Their Plan B is essentially what we had brainstormed about in the CG and what the PC agreed to on Oct. 7. In presenting the plan, the UK and Germany directed their comments to the Russians. They forcefully laid out the advantages of the plan for Milosevic. The UK rep pointed out that Plan B was an escape hatch for Milosevic, who was now at the mercy of the intransigent Bosnian Serbs when it came to further sanctions relief. German Rep Steiner commented that, if accepted, Plan B could provide swift sanctions relief to Milosevic, the issue on which Kozyrev had been so insistent.

9. Initially, the Russians were suspicious that Plan B would simply add another set of demands to those already contained in the CG Peace Plan. We corrected this misunderstanding. Zotov responded that his "initial reaction was positive, speaking personally." Nikiforov has always been supportive of this approach so his agreement was to be expected. It should be noted that Zotov is attending his first CG meeting since leaving his Syrian posting two weeks ago. Thus, he is not up to speed on CG theology. Furthermore, neither Zotov nor Nikiforov had been briefed on the Secretary's discussions today with Kozyrev.

10. In this regard I had in hand, from one of the contact group members (strictly protect), Lord Owen's report to the EU on his was still not prepared to make any formal link of sanctions to a Croatian solution.

Next Steps

11. The UK and Germany hoped that at the reinforced CG meeting on Wednesday there would be agreement "in principle" on Plan B. I responded that from the U.S. standpont we would welcome the opportunity to move fast on this initiative. We agreed that alot of work would be necessary to flesh out the proposal and make it acceptable. (For example, the EU language on equal rights won't fly with the US.) If something is to be ready in time for the lift resolution we would need to meet early next week to flesh out the Plan B initiative.

MULTI-TRACK APPROACH

The existing Contact Group plan for Bosnia-Herzegovina is termed Plan A and all elements of it remain valid. Plan B offers an additional, wider approach.

PLAN B: A WIDER APPROACH

Requirements on Milosevic:

(i) Recognition of Slovenia, Croatia, Bosnia-Herzegovina and Macedonia within their internationally accepted borders.

(ii) Maintenance of Milosevic's acceptance of the Contact Group plan for Bosnia (with the Contact Group making clear that there will be equality of rights for the Bosnian-Croat and Bosnian Serb Entities provided this is not inconsistent with the integrity of the Union of Bosnia-Herzegovina; and also making clear that mutually agreed land swaps are possible once the Contact Group map has been accepted in principle).

(iii) A solution to the Krajinas on the basis of acceptance of the ICFY plan.

(iv) Maintenance of the regime whereby exports from the FRY to the Bosnian Serbs are restricted to humanitarian assistance until the Contact Group plan is accepted by Pale; and maintenance of the FRY policy that exports to the Krajina Serbs are similarly restricted, until the ICFY Krajinas plan is accepted (monitoring arrangements may need to be considered).

~~SECRET/NODIS~~

UNSC RESOLUTION TO LIFT THE ARMS EMBARGO

The resolution we introduce on or about October 28 should be a straight-forward call for the rescinding of the arms embargo effective April 1. If our efforts to pass this resolution are successful, we will have met the President's commitments to both the Hill and to President Izetbegovic regarding lift while, at the same time, getting our partners to agree to a broader strategy approach.

The Council is more likely to accept a resolution incorporating a comprehensive approach to peace than one that simply calls for lifting the embargo. The British and French already have signalled their willingness to support a resolution that proposes a broader, longer-term strategy.

- Still, every government represented in the Council has deep reservations about any resolution incorporating lift.

- Foreign Secretary Hurd has stated behind closed doors that "the only party that wants to lift the embargo now is the US Congress, and the American Administration should be able to control the Congress."

- We cannot allow such rifts to destroy the Contact Group's effectiveness.

In New York, other Council members will be looking for us to move quickly to fallback positions once we are faced with objections to various aspects of our proposal. Their objections will include:

- It is wrong at this stage to wed ourselves to automatic lift at some set future date. The overall situation may have changed by then and a decision with such potentially drastic repercussions should be reviewed again in the light of changed conditions.

- By setting any future date for lift, we could be giving the signal to the Bosnian Serbs to attack exposed UNPROFOR positions.

- A decision on lift now would force UNPROFOR to plan for redeployment and withdrawal; these plans would almost certainly include pullout from the Eastern enclaves well before the actual date of lift. Such a pullout would lead quickly to an escalation of violence and a flood of refugees.

One other important consideration to keep in mind before negotiations begin in the Council is that any draft resolution tabled in New York could be -- and usually is -- leaked to the media.

- If the press sees an aggressively worded draft agenda proposed by the USG and later compares it to a resolution we might be compelled to accept that is less assertive than we would like, then we would face significant public and congressional criticism.

Subject: Nunn-Mitchell Amendment on Lifting Bosnia Arms Embargo

This memorandum contains agreed inter-agency guidance on the interpretation of the Nunn-Mitchell Amendment (§1404) of the FY-95 DOD Authorization Act. As described in greater detail below, its provisions fall into three categories: (1) a series of hortatory provisions, which have no legally binding effect; (2) requirements to report to and consult with Congress; and (3) most important, a prohibition on funding that would preclude us from participating in activities in the Adriatic to enforce the Bosnia embargo against other countries.

1. Hortatory provisions. Subsections (a), (b), (c), (d), (e) and (g) of the Nunn-Mitchell Amendment are hortatory.*/ While these provisions may be important politically, they create no legal obligation for the Executive branch to act or to refrain from acting.

2. Reporting and Consultation Requirements. Subsection (f)(1) of the Nunn-Mitchell Amendment requires the President to submit two plans to (and consult with) Congress if -- by the earlier of November 15 or 15 days from the time that we introduce a lift resolution -- the UNSC has not agreed to such a resolution and the Bosnian Serbs have not accepted the Contact Group proposal.

Subsection (f)(1)(C) would require the President to submit a plan "regarding the unilateral termination by the United

*/ This category includes the provisions that state that the President should formally introduce and support resolutions in the United Nations Security Council:

-- to terminate the Bosnia arms embargo, unless the Bosnian Serbs accept the Contact Group proposal by October 15 or 10 days after the Act is signed, whichever is later (subsection (e)); and

-- to authorize selective lifting of the arms embargo to allow provision of defensive weapons to Bosnia if Bosnian Serb factions attack safe areas (subsection (g)).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

States of compliance with the Bosnia arms embargo". The content of the plan is left virtually entirely to the President's discretion. For instance, depending upon what the President considers appropriate at the time, he could advocate unilateral termination in only very limited circumstances or upon the occurrence of developments very unlikely to occur, or he could refrain from advocating unilateral termination at all -- so long as ihe submits an underlying plan "regarding" unilateral termination. In addition, whatever plan is submitted, there is no requirement that the President proceed to implement the plan if he subsequently considers it unwise to do so.

Subsection (f)(1)(B) would require the President to submit a plan "on the manner in which United States Armed Forces and the military forces of friendly states would provide training" to the Bosnians outside of Bosnia. Again, the content of the plan is left virtually entirely to the President's discretion, and the provision does not require that the President proceed to implement the plan, or otherwise to provide training.

3. Termination of funds for enforcing the embargo. The same circumstances that would trigger the reporting and consultation requirements described above would also trigger the funding prohibition contained in subsection (f)(2).

Under subsection (f)(2), appropriated funds would be unavailable--

> "for the purpose of participation in, support for, or assistance to the enforcement of the Bosnia arms embargo by any Department, agency or other entity of the United States (or by any officer or employee of the United States or member of the Armed Forces of the United States) other than as required of all United Nations member states under [UNSC Resolution 713] and the Charter of the United Nations."

The statement of managers that accompanied the conference report for the bill indicates the intent of the conferees to distinguish between what is mandatory under UNSC Resolution 713 and what is voluntary. The conferees state, for example, that the United States may enforce the embargo by using its Customs agents and other law enforcement powers to stop the export of defense articles and services from the United States. On the other hand, the conferees state, it is voluntary for any state to join the naval and air "picket line" that enforces the embargo in the Adriatic and the air over the Balkans, or to provide assistance or support to other states to help them do so.

Subsection (f)(3) indicates two important exceptions to the funding restriction contained in subsection (f)(2):

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- Subparagraph (A) states that the President may waive the funding prohibition "in the case of United States military personnel serving in NATO headquarters." We interpret the President's waiver authority under this subparagraph, consistent with statement of managers language that accompanied the conference report, as applying to United States military personnel serving in headquarters positions for NATO's Supreme Allied Commander and the Commander-in-Chief, Allied Forces Southern Europe, as well as to subordinate headquarters staffs, such as those for the Commander, Joint Task Force Provide Promise and his subordinate headquarters staffs.

-- Subparagraph (B) states that nothing in the prohibition "is intended to impede enforcement of sanctions against Serbia". We interpret this subparagraph to mean that, if an activity is of a nature that failure to undertake it would impede enforcement of sanctions against Serbia, the Nunn-Mitchell Amendment does not prohibit the President from undertaking it.

By its terms, subsection (f)(2) would apply to the use of funds only if used "for the purpose" described therein. Accordingly, we interpret subsection (f)(2) not to prohibit activities undertaken for other purposes, even if such activities provide indirect, incidental or collateral support or assistance for the Bosnia embargo.

Finally, there is an important constitutional issue connected with the language applying the restriction to all United States departments, agencies, and entities, and to all United States officers and employees. Insofar as such language could be construed to require the President or other Executive branch officers or employees to espouse or refrain from espousing certain substantive positions, either within the United States or in the course of dealing with foreign officials, it would impermissibly infringe on the authorities and responsibilities of the President and the Executive branch under the Constitution. Accordingly, the President will interpret subsection (f)(2) as not restricting his ability, or the ability of other Executive branch officers or employees, from freely espousing (or refraining from espousing) any substantive views on these matters, and as not restricting any activity that is diplomatic in nature. A signing statement reiterating these concerns has been prepared for the President's use at enactment of the FY-95 DOD Authorization Act.

1. (U) IN ACCORDANCE WITH JOINT STAFF DIRECTION (REF A), FOLLOWING IS USCINCEUR'S OPERATIONAL ASSESSMENT OF THE IMPACT OF THE NUNN-MITCHELL AMENDMENT (REF B) ON MILITARY SUPPORT TO SHARP GUARD, DENY FLIGHT, AND RELATED OPERATIONS. THE LANGUAGE IN THE AMENDMENT LEAVES LATITUDE FOR INTERPRETATION AND WHEN COMBINED WITH THE PRESIDENTIAL SIGNING STATEMENT AND SECSTATE ANALYSIS, LEAVES ROOM FOR BROAD FLEXIBILITY.
2. (S) EXECUTIVE SUMMARY. IT IS OPERATIONALLY IMPOSSIBLE TO DISTINGUISH OPERATIONS SUPPORTING THE BOSNIA ARMS EMBARGO FROM THOSE ENFORCING SANCTIONS AGAINST SERBIA. OUR OPERATIONAL ANALYSIS INDICATES THAT OPERATIONS IN SUPPORT OF SHARP GUARD, DENY FLIGHT, TASK FORCE ABLE SENTRY, AND PROVIDE PROMISE WOULD CONTINUE UNHINDERED. EXCEPTIONS WOULD OCCUR UNDER VERY NARROW SETS OF CIRCUMSTANCES, PARTICULARLY DENY FLIGHT NO-FLY ZONE ENFORCEMENT AGAINST UNAUTHORIZED AIR SHIPMENTS, BUT THESE WOULD BE RARE AND WOULD NOT SIGNIFICANTLY IMPACT OPERATIONS. IN THE EVENT THIS INTERPRETATION IS INCORRECT, THE CONSEQUENCES COULD BE FAR REACHING AND COULD IMPACT ON VIRTUALLY ALL OPERATIONS IN THE AREA.
3. (U) ANALYSIS. THE PRESIDENTIAL SIGNING STATEMENT (REF C) AND SECSTATE ANALYSIS (REF D) BOTH MAKE A KEY INTERPRETATION OF THE AMENDMENT REGARDING SUBSECTION (F)(3)(B). THE PRESIDENT STATES "I SIGN THE BILL WITH THE UNDERSTANDING THAT IT THEREFORE WOULD NOT AFFECT THE UNITED STATES ABILITY TO PARTICIPATE IN ACTIVITIES IN THE ADRIATIC THAT ARE NEEDED IN ORDER TO AVOID IMPEDING ENFORCEMENT OF SANCTIONS AGAINST SERBIA...EVEN IF DOING SO PROVIDES INDIRECT OR INCIDENTAL SUPPORT OR ASSISTANCE FOR THE BOSNIA ARMS EMBARGO". THE SECSTATE ANALYSIS CONCURS: "IF AN ACTIVITY IS OF A NATURE THAT FAILURE TO UNDERTAKE IT WOULD IMPEDE ENFORCEMENT OF SANCTIONS AGAINST SERBIA, THE NUNN-MITCHELL AMENDMENT DOES NOT PROHIBIT THE PRESIDENT FROM UNDERTAKING IT".
4. (S) THE AMENDMENT STATES THAT "NO FUNDS...MAY BE USED FOR THE PURPOSE OF PARTICIPATION IN, SUPPORT FOR, OR ASSISTANCE TO THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE BOSNIA ARMS EMBARGO... [BUT] NOTHING IN [THIS LANGUAGE] IS INTENDED TO IMPEDE ENFORCEMENT OF SANCTIONS AGAINST SERBIA". NONE REPEAT NONE OF THE OPERATIONS IN THE REGION EXIST SOLELY TO ENFORCE THE ARMS EMBARGO AGAINST BOSNIA. OPERATIONS SHARP GUARD AND DENY FLIGHT ENFORCE UNITED NATIONS SANCTIONS EQUALLY AMONG ALL TARGET NATIONS, INCLUDING THE ARMS EMBARGO AND SERBIAN SANCTION ENFORCEMENT. IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO SEPARATE ONE FROM THE OTHER. TERMINATING U.S. MILITARY SUPPORT TO OPERATIONS ENFORCING THE EMBARGO WOULD NECESSARILY IMPEDE ENFORCEMENT OF SANCTIONS AGAINST SERBIA, THEREBY VIOLATING THE CLEAR INTENT OF SUBSECTION (F)(3)(B). AS SUCH, IT IS OUR ANALYSIS, AS SET FORTH BELOW, THAT OPERATIONS IN SUPPORT OF SHARP GUARD AND DENY FLIGHT WILL BE ABLE TO CONTINUE UNCONSTRAINED (EXCEPT AS SET FORTH IN PARAGRAPH 8 BELOW).

5. (S) CERTAIN MILITARY OPERATIONS WOULD NOT BE AFFECTED IN ANY CASE SINCE THEY DO NOT CONTRIBUTE TO ENFORCING THE ARMS EMBARGO, EVEN INDIRECTLY. THEY INCLUDE THE 60 BED HOSPITAL IN ZAGREB, COMBAT SEARCH AND RESCUE EFFORTS, TASK FORCE ABLE SENTRY OPERATIONS, AND CLOSE AIR SUPPORT AND AIRSTRIKE OPERATIONS FOR DENY FLIGHT.

6. (S) TASKS SUPPORTING OPERATION SHARP GUARD. TASKS BELOW SUPPORT OPERATION SHARP GUARD AND ITS MISSION TO CONDUCT OPERATIONS TO MONITOR AND ENFORCE COMPLIANCE WITH U.N. SANCTIONS (RESOLUTIONS 713, 757, 787, AND 820). PREVENTING ALL UNAUTHORIZED SHIPPING FROM ENTERING THE TERRITORIAL WATERS OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA (SERBIA AND MONTENEGRO) AND ALL ARMS FROM ENTERING THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA.

6A. (S) TWO DESTROYERS UNDER NATO OPCON/TACON CONDUCT MARITIME INTERDICTION OPERATIONS (MIO). SPECIFICALLY, THEY:

6A1. (S) PATROL ASSIGNED AREAS.

6A2. (S) STOP ALL MERCHANT SHIPS ENTERING THE ADRIATIC SEA.

6A3. (S) BOARD SUSPECT SHIPS IF REQUIRED TO OBTAIN NECESSARY INFORMATION.

6A4. (S) DIVERT SHIPS TO PORTS FOR FURTHER INSPECTION, AS REQUIRED.

6B. (S) ONE SUBMARINE UNDER U.S. OPCON AND NATO TACON, PROVIDES DIRECT SURVEILLANCE SUPPORT. IT IS ASSIGNED TO NATO COMMANDER SUBMARINE FORCES MED.

6B1. (S) THE SUBMARINE CREW PROVIDES INTELLIGENCE AND WARNING INFORMATION TO COMMANDER TASK FORCE 440, WHO IS DIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR ENFORCEMENT OF THE OPERATION.

6C. (S) EIGHT P-3C AIRCRAFT PROVIDE 24 HOUR SURVEILLANCE AND SUCAP COVERAGE FOR OPERATION SHARP GUARD FORCES. FOUR OF THE AIRCRAFT OPERATE UNDER DIRECT NATO CONTROL.

6C1. (S) THE AIRCRAFT PROVIDE CRITICAL SHIPPING INFORMATION TO COMMANDER TF40 TO ALLOW SURFACE SHIP INTERCEPTION OF MERCHANT SHIPS.

6D. (S) ONE U.S. CRUISER REMAINS UNDER U.S. OPCON, BUT DIRECTLY SUPPORTS SHARP GUARD.

6D1. (S) ACTS AS THE ANTI-AIR WARFARE COORDINATOR (AAWC).

6D2. (S) ACTS AS THE NAVAL TACTICAL DATA SYSTEM (NTDS) COORDINATOR (CALLED REDCROWN).

6D3. (S) PROVIDES NTDS LINK WITH NATO AWACS.

6E. (S) U.S. CARRIER BATTLE GROUP OR MARG PERIODICALLY ASSUMES RESPONSIBILITY FOR SEVERAL SHARP GUARD TASKS.

6E1. (S) SURFACE/SUBSURFACE SURVEILLANCE AND CONTROL.

6E2. (S) ELECTRONIC WARFARE AND ELECTRONIC SUPPORT MEASURES.

6E3. (S) AIRBORNE COMMAND AND CONTROL.

6E4. (S) COMBAT SEARCH AND RESCUE.

6E5. (S) COORDINATES WITH JFACC AND NATO CAOC FOR DENY FLIGHT OPERATIONS, AND WITH COMMANDER TF440 FOR SHARP GUARD.

6E6. (S) SHARES INFORMATION WITH SHARP GUARD FORCES ON SHIPPING CONTACTS AND HIGH INTEREST MERCHANT VESSELS. THIS HELPS FORCES MAINTAIN AN ACCURATE AND COMPLETE SURFACE PICTURE WHICH IS ESSENTIAL TO THE OVERALL SANCTION EFFORT.

7. (S) TASKS SUPPORTING OPERATION DENY FLIGHT. TASKS BELOW SUPPORT OPERATION DENY FLIGHT AND ITS THREE MISSIONS TO: CONDUCT UNDER A [illegible] AERIAL MONITORING AND ENFORCE COMPLIANCE WITH UNSCR 816 WHICH [illegible]

FLIGHTS BY FIXED AND ROTARY WING AIRCRAFT IN THE REPUBLIC OF BOSNIA-HERCEGOVINA NO FLY ZONE, TO PROVIDE PROTECTIVE AIR COVER (CAS) AT THE REQUEST OF AND CONTROLLED BY UNPROFOR UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF UNSCR 836, AND TO--ON ORDER AND IN COORDINATION WITH THE U.N.--CONDUCT APPROVED AIR STRIKES AGAINST DESIGNATED TARGETS THREATENING THE SECURITY OF THE U.N. SAFE AREAS OF BIHAC, GORAZDE, SARAJEVO, SREBENICA, TUSLA, AND ZEPA.

7A. (S) OUR ANALYSIS INDICATES NUNN-MITCHELL WOULD HAVE LITTLE IMPACT ON ENFORCEMENT OF UNSCR 836, WHICH AUTHORIZES CAS AND AIRSTRIKE MISSIONS, SINCE THOSE ARE RELATED TO ENFORCEMENT OF THE EXCLUSION ZONES, AND TO SAFETY OF U.N. PERSONNEL AND DO NOT AFFECT EMBARGO OPERATIONS.

7B. (S) ANALYSING THE IMPACT ON ENFORCEMENT OF THE NO-FLY ZONE IS PROBLEMATIC. ENFORCEMENT OF THE NO-FLY ZONE PROTECTS U.N. PERSONNEL FROM AIR ATTACKS, MONITORS AND ENFORCES EXCLUSION ZONES, AND PREVENTS UNAUTHORIZED SHIPMENTS FROM ENTERING BOSNIA- HERCEGOVINA. ONLY THOSE FLIGHTS SPECIFICALLY PROHIBITING UNAUTHORIZED SHIPMENTS WOULD BE AFFECTED BY THE AMENDMENT. IN PRACTICE, DENY FLIGHT NO-FLY ZONE ENFORCEMENT OPERATIONS ALMOST EXCLUSIVELY SUPPORT THE PROTECTION AND EXCLUSION ZONE ASPECTS OF THE MISSION. AS SUCH, IT IS OUR ANALYSIS THAT WHILE A FEW FLIGHTS MAY BE AFFECTED, THE PRACTICAL IMPACT WILL BE NEGLIGIBLE. SPECIFIC TASKS IN SUPPORT OF ALL ASPECTS OF DENY FLIGHT FOLLOW.

7C. (C) COMBAT AIRCRAFT, OPERATING WITHIN A NATO C2 STRUCTURE, WORK UNDER COMMANDER ALLIED FORCES SOUTHERN EUROPE (COMAIRSOUTH), WITH DAY TO DAY OPERATIONAL CONTROL OF MISSION TASKING DELEGATED TO COMMANDER 5TH ALLIED TACTICAL AIR FORCE (5ATAF).

7C1. (C) FORCES SUPPORTING CAS AND NO-FLY ZONE (NFZ) ENFORCEMENT INCLUDE EIGHT USMC F/A-18D AND TWELVE USAF F-16C.

7C2. (S) TWELVE USN F/A-18C (OR F-14) SUPPORT ONLY THE NFZ.

7C3. (S) CAS OPERATIONS ARE CONDUCTED BY EIGHT USAF F-15E, TWELVE USAF O/A-10, SIX USN F/A-18C (OR A-6E).

7C4. (S) THREE USAF AC-130 PROVIDE GUNSHIP SUPPORT, AS REQUIRED.

7D. (C) COMBAT SUPPORT AIRCRAFT.

7D1. (S) THREE USAF EC-130 AND TEN USAF KC-135 PROVIDE C2 AND REFUELING SUPPORT TO DENY FLIGHT AIRCRAFT.

7D2. (S) USAF CREWMEN ARE ASSIGNED TO THE NATO AIRBORNE EARLY WARNING FORCE, PROVIDING SURVEILLANCE, C2, AND FIGHTER DIRECTION.

7E. (C) OTHER SUPPORT FORCES PROVIDE FUEL, ORDNANCE, ADMINISTRATIVE, AND LIFE SUPPORT AS REQUIRED FOR AIR OPERATIONS.

7F. (S) U.S. SURFACE SHIPS IN THE ADRIATIC OPERATING UNDER U.S. OPCON PROVIDE DIRECT AND INDIRECT SUPPORT TO DENY FLIGHT OPS.

7F1. (S) SERVE AS LAUNCH PLATFORMS FOR CARRIER BASED AIRCRAFT.

7F2. (S) PROVIDE DATA LINKS TO NATO AEW AIRCRAFT.

7G. (C) RECONNAISSANCE AIRCRAFT.

7G1. (S) RC-135'S AND EP-3'S PROVIDE THREAT WARNING, NOT ONLY TO DENY FLIGHT AIRCRAFT, BUT TO OPERATION PROVIDE PROMISE HUMANITARIAN AIRLIFT OPERATIONS AS WELL.

7G3. (S) U-2'S OFFER LIMITED THREAT WARNING AND INTELLIGENCE DATA, AND PROVIDE IMAGERY TO SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT OF THE EXCLUSION ZONES.

7H. (C) SPECIAL OPERATIONS FORCES CONDUCT:

7H1. (C) COMBAT SEARCH AND RESCUE.

7H2. (C) NIGHT ATTACK MISSIONS, AS REQUIRED.

7H3. (C) RECONNAISSANCE SUPPORT.

7I. (C) INTELLIGENCE SUPPORT IS PROVIDED FOR A VARIETY OF MISSIONS. IMPLEMENTATION OF NUNN-MITCHELL WOULD CURTAIL INTELLIGENCE WHICH WAS STRICTLY LIMITED TO KNOWLEDGE OF ILLEGAL ARMS SHIPMENTS TO BOSNIA. THIS REPRESENTS ONLY A SMALL PART OF THE U.S. INTELLIGENCE PRODUCTION AND DISSEMINATION, BUT A SIGNIFICANT PORTION OF THE NATO INTELLIGENCE EFFORT.

8. (S) UNDER A VERY NARROW SET OF CIRCUMSTANCES, IT IS CONCEIVABLE THE AMENDMENT WOULD IMPACT ON OPERATIONS. THE CIRCUMSTANCES REQUIRE PERFECT KNOWLEDGE OF AN INBOUND ARMS SHIPMENT TO BOSNIA, WITH ONLY

DRAFT

U.S. INTERDICTION RESOURCES READILY AVAILABLE. IN THAT EVENT, A U.S. MILITARY OFFICER OCCUPYING A NATO LEADERSHIP POSITION WOULD BE PLACED IN THE IMPOSSIBLE SITUATION OF BEING REQUIRED BY NUNN-MITCHELL NOT TO ORDER U.S. FORCES TO BOARD AND DIVERT THE SHIP, BUT REQUIRED BY NATO RULES TO DO EXACTLY THE OPPOSITE. THE U.S. SHIP COMMANDER RECEIVING SUCH AN ORDER WOULD BE PLACED IN A SIMILARLY IMPOSSIBLE SITUATION.

9. (S) THE FORGOING ANALYSIS CLEARLY FORCASTS ONLY MINIMAL IMPACT ON OPERATIONS, PRIMARILY BECAUSE OF THE FLEXIBILITY ALLOWED BY THE LANGUAGE OF THE AMENDMENT. IF, HOWEVER, THE ANALYSIS IS INCORRECT, AND THE PROVISIONS OF THE AMENDMENT ARE STRICTLY INTERPRETED, WITH THE CAVEAT IN SUBSECTION (F)(3)(B) MINIMIZED, THE RESULTS WOULD BE FAR REACHING AND WOULD AFFECT NEARLY ALL OPERATIONS, EVEN THOSE NOT SUPPORTING THE EMBARGO. 9A. (C) U.S. MILITARY SUPPORT TO OPERATION SHARP GUARD WOULD EFFECTIVELY SHUT DOWN. OPERATIONS DENY FLIGHT, PROVIDE PROMISE, AND TASK FORCE ABLE SENTRY WOULD ALSO BE NEGATIVELY IMPACTED. AND EVEN THOUGH MEMBERS OF NATO STAFFS ARE EXCLUDED FROM THE PROVISIONS OF THE AMENDMENT, THEY WOULD BE PLACED IN AN UNTENABLE COMMAND AND CONTROL RELATIONSHIP. NUMEROUS U.S. PERSONNEL, INCLUDING CINCSOUTH AND COMAIRSOUTH, WORK WITH AFSOUTH AND SUBORDINATE NATO STAFFS TO PROVIDE OPERATIONAL DIRECTION AND ADMINISTRATION. BECAUSE OF THIS RELATIONSHIP, STRICT NUNN-MITCHELL IMPLEMENTATION COULD UNDERMINE THE COMMAND AND CONTROL STRUCTURE AND THE CREDIBILITY OF THE LEADERSHIP BY PLACING THE OFFICERS IN UNTENABLE POSITIONS.

9B. (U) OPERATION PROVIDE PROMISE. ALTHOUGH OPERATION PROVIDE PROMISE DOES NOT SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT OF THE ARMS EMBARGO, ITS HUMANITARIAN AIRLIFT MISSIONS COULD ALSO BE AFFECTED. BOTH AIRLAND AND AIRDROP MISSIONS CURRENTLY REQUIRE THE AVAILABILITY OF THREAT WARNING, C2, FIGHTER CAP, AND CSAR FOR EXECUTION. IF THESE ACTIONS WERE NOT CONTINUED, AIRLAND AND AIRDROP MISSIONS WOULD EITHER BE TERMINATED OR CURTAILED IN THE ABSENCE OF ROE OR MISSION CHANGES.

10. (C) OTHER IMPORTANT IMPACT. IT IS DIFFICULT TO PREDICT WITH CERTAINTY THE REACTION OF THE BOSNIAN SERBS OR OTHER WARRING FACTIONS TO THE IMPLEMENTATION OF NUNN-MITCHELL. OUR INITIAL ASSESSMENT IS THAT IT WILL LIKELY CAUSE THEM TO TAKE AN OPENLY HOSTILE STANCE TOWARD U.S. OPERATIONS, SINCE IT WOULD BE VIEWED AS ABANDONING OUR IMPARTIALITY. OPEN HOSTILITIES WOULD JEOPARDIZE THE U.N. HUMANITARIAN MISSION AND PRESENT A THREAT TO U.S. AIRCRAFT, AIRCREWS, SHIPS, AND SAILORS IN THE REGION.

11. (U) RULES OF ENGAGEMENT. ASIDE FROM THE PRECONDITIONS FOR AIRLAND AND AIRDROP MISSIONS, IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO PREDICT NECESSARY CHANGES TO ROE IN THE ABSENCE OF A STRICT LEGAL INTERPRETATION OF PROHIBITED ACTIVITIES AND THE INHERENT SUBSEQUENT MISSION CHANGES.

12. (S) SUMMARY. IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO DISTINGUISH OPERATIONS SUPPORTING THE ARMS EMBARGO FROM THOSE ENFORCING SANCTIONS AGAINST SERBIA. OUR OPERATIONAL ANALYSIS INDICATES THAT OPERATIONS IN SUPPORT OF SHARP GUARD, DENY FLIGHT, TASK FORCE ABLE SENTRY, AND PROVIDE PROMISE WOULD CONTINUE UNHINDERED. EXCEPTIONS WOULD OCCUR UNDER VERY NARROW SETS OF CIRCUMSTANCES, PARTICULARLY DENY FLIGHT NO-FLY ZONE ENFORCEMENT AGAINST UNAUTHORIZED AIR SHIPMENTS, BUT THESE WOULD BE RARE AND WOULD NOT SIGNIFICANTLY IMPACT OPERATIONS.

OFFICE OF THE REPUBLICAN LEADER
WASHINGTON, DC 20510-7020

October 8, 1994

The President
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

We are writing to express our serious concern over recent reports that your administration may have decided to delay introducing and supporting a U.N. Security Council resolution to terminate the illegal and unjust embargo on Bosnia and Herzegovina. Not only would such a decision put in question the commitment you personally made to the Congress in August, it would also place the United States squarely on the side of those countries that have appeased the Serb aggressors. Therefore, we urge you to act on your commitment and lead the international community to support Bosnia and Herzegovina's fundamental and sovereign right to self-defense.

Last week the Bosnian Government, in a good-faith effort, proposed a compromise that would seek a vote in the U.N. Security Council in October on a resolution that would immediately terminate the arms embargo in legal terms, but would delay implementation to a date certain six months from the time of the resolution's adoption. Some of our allies seem to be deliberately misinterpreting this compromise, describing it as a request to deter any action on the embargo for six months. It is clear that any resolution which is not passed promptly and which does not contain a date certain for the automatic lifting of the arms embargo would not meet the Bosnian Government's criteria.

During Senate consideration of the FY 1995 defense appropriations bill, you wrote to Senator Sam Nunn reaffirming your administration's support for lifting the international arms embargo on Bosnia and Herzegovina that has "penalized the victim in this conflict." Moreover, you stated that if by October 15 the Bosnian Serbs have not agreed to the Contact Group proposal of July, it would be your intention to support a resolution in the U.N. Security Council to terminate the arms embargo. It was this personal commitment that also provided the basis for a compromise in the House-Senate conference on the FY 1995 defense authorization bill and forestalled -- at the administration's request -- a termination of the U.S. arms embargo at a future date.

As supporters of Bosnia's right to self-defense, we believe that any U.S.-sponsored resolution that falls short of the Bosnian Government's compromise position -- immediate action to lift, but implementation delayed for six months -- would not meet your commitment to the Congress.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Mr. President, your administration has an historic opportunity to end the policies of appeasement that have characterized the international community's approach to the brutal war of aggression against Bosnia and Herzegovina. Both the House and the Senate have voted to terminate the arms embargo on Bosnia and Herzegovina unilaterally if a multilateral termination is not forthcoming. We expect the administration to argue energetically for U.N. Security Council adoption of a new resolution lifting the arms embargo on Bosnia. Should such a resolution fail or should a non-binding resolution be adopted, we will pursue further efforts to terminate the U.S. embargo upon our return next session.

We hope to hear from you soon on this critical issue.

Sincerely,

ISSUES PAPER

Subject: Issues Associated With Lifting the Arms Embargo (U)

1. LIFTING THE ARMS EMBARGO:

WHAT WEAPONS PACKAGE SHOULD BE PROVIDED TO THE BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT?

OPTIONS:

a. Use the intelligence community assessment as the basis for the weapons package to be provided to the Bosnian army.

b. Use the Bosnian government request as the basis for the weapons package provided to the Bosnian army.

c. Discuss US assessments with the Bosnian government and develop a hybrid package.

RECOMMENDATION: Use the US assessment as the basis for continued planning purposes, but work with the Bosnian government to develop a hybrid package. Any package developed must include the support needed to employ and maintain it (C2, transport, sustainment, maintenance and training).

WHAT ROLE SHOULD THE USG PLAY IN PROVIDING WEAPONS?

OPTIONS:

a. Seek Congressional support for supplemental DOD funding to support specific US contributions to a hybrid package.

b. Ask Congress to provide funding for non-US portions of a hybrid package.

c. Seek voluntary funding and/or equipment from other nations.

d. Ask Congress to provide financial assistance to the Bosnian government which would allow them to purchase the assets identified in the hybrid package.

RECOMMENDATION: The USG should provide limited funding and act as a facilitator in order to ensure that the Bosnian army is provided with the assets identified in the hybrid package. This would require Congressional funding for the US contribution, coordinating foreign donations (financial or material), and, possibly, purchasing foreign equipment. In order to support such an effort a Defense Cooperation Account (DCA), with requisite legislative authority, should be established.

HOW DO WE LIMIT THE EXTENT AND DURATION OF OUR SUPPORT RELATIONSHIP WITH THE BOSNIAN MILITARY?

OPTIONS:

a. Set no limit, tie US credibility to Bosnian success.

b. Establish a clear limit (1-2 years) to US support.

c. Set a more ambiguous limit, such as the Bosnian capability to defend themselves.

RECOMMENDATION: Set a more ambiguous limit for US support. A time frame for reviewing this limit, say a year, should be established. US commitment should be for air support only, no ground troops. Any training should take place outside Bosnia.

HOW CAN THE USG MINIMIZE THE PERIOD OF VULNERABILITY BEFORE THE BOSNIAN ARMY IS REARMED AND TRAINED?

OPTIONS:

[redacted] EO 13526 1.4a, 1.4(c)

c. Assuming the Serbian border can be kept closed, delay initiation of lift 6 months in order to force BSA to deplete fuel and ammunition reserves.

RECOMMENDATION: [redacted] EO 13526 1.4a, 1.4(c) [redacted] Although not operationally necessary, theater air capabilities could be strengthened as a deterrent (show of force). Use diplomacy and suasion to limit Serbian support for the BSA. Encourage detailed Bosnian-UNPROFOR cooperative transition planning as part of the UN withdrawal.

HOW DO WE DEAL WITH REVERSALS ON THE BATTLEFIELD, RECOGNIZING THAT WE WILL NOT COMMIT GROUND FORCES?

OPTIONS:

a. Escalate air operations in support of Bosnian defensive efforts.

b. Increase offensive strike operations against Bosnian Serb targets.

c. If Serbia intervenes directly, conduct strike operations against targets in the FRY.

~~SECRET/NOFORN~~

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

d. Offer further incentives for Serbia to tighten its cut off of the Bosnian Serbs. This isolation of the battlefield could have a significant effect on BSA military capabilities.

RECOMMENDATION: Escalate air operations, but limit additional support to air only, maintaining the Administration commitment of no US ground forces. This limitation in USG support should be made clear to Bosnian government officials during the September/October consultations. Unfortunately, Bosnian officials think air power will force the Bosnian Serbs into submission. NOTE: Strangulation/impending loss of Sarajevo might necessitate reconsideration of this policy.

2. US SUPPORT FOR DELIVERY OF HUMANITARIAN AID

IS THE USG PREPARED TO ASSUME PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITY FOR HUMANITARIAN SUPPORT, TO INCLUDE OPENING A GROUND CORRIDOR TO SARAJEVO, IF NATO AIR AND BOSNIAN GROUND EFFORTS ARE UNSUCCESSFUL?

NOTE: Airdrop operations would likely continue and be accelerated as necessary to help meet humanitarian needs. Providing Sarajevo airport remains open, airlift might continue to be used to provide aid to the capital. Threats to US aircraft would certainly increase and losses should be anticipated. Air efforts alone, however, will not be capable of dealing with Bosnian humanitarian needs. Providing the minimum food, water, fuel, and medical supplies needed by the estimated 1.4 million in need (UNHCR estimate) requires ground convoys.

OPTIONS:

a. Encourage a stay behind UNPROFOR to deliver aid in the core Federation territory, including Sarajevo.

b. Contribute additional equipment (trucks, engineering gear, water purification equipment, etc.) to the Bosnian government (or a stay behind UNPROFOR) to assist the humanitarian effort.

c. Escalate air operations in support of Bosnian efforts to deliver aid, to include possible use of attack helicopters.

RECOMMENDATION: US/NATO commitments should be restricted to air support. Additional equipment contributions could be provided on an as needed basis. We must make it clear to the Bosnian government that this is the limit of our humanitarian effort. They must understand that a cost of lifting is that the burden of opening and maintaining ground LOCs rests with Federation forces. However, public opinion may drive a reconsideration under the worst circumstances.

3. US SUPPORT FOR UNPROFOR WITHDRAWAL

WHAT IS THE USG WILLING TO PROVIDE AS PART OF A NATO OPERATION TO ASSIST UNPROFOR WITHDRAWAL IN A NON-PERMISSIVE ENVIRONMENT?

a. Contribute US unique capabilities--attack helos, tac air, hostage rescue teams, lift (but no ground troops)--to the NATO extraction effort.

b. Inform our allies we will fully participate in a NATO led UNPROFOR extraction effort and contribute ground troops, if necessary.

RECOMMENDATION: We will need to conduct exploratory discussions at NATO on both military and political levels, as well as bilateral talks, to attempt to limit the level of US ground participation. However, US support for UNPROFOR withdrawal is essential to alliance solidarity. The United States must be prepared, as a last resort, to contribute its fair share to the extraction effort.

BOSNIA STRATEGY

Concept: The Bold Option

In the coming six months our goal remains to

- get Bosnia through the winter, in particular by ensuring that UNPROFOR stays and Bosnian Serbs efforts to disrupt humanitarian shipments are minimized;
- gain Bosnian Serb acceptance of the Contact Group Plan;
- lay the groundwork for establishing a broader stability in the region into which a Bosnian settlement could be encapsulated, i.e. "Bosnia only" will not work.

Our strategy should be based on a comprehensive approach, which if necessary allows us to by-pass the Bosnian Serbs while we establish incentives -- including second-phase sanctions relief -- for Belgrade to relinquish its drive for a greater Serbia. Our "bold approach" aims to assemble "modules" which can be utlized separately, alone or in various combinations, or as an integrated package:

- In by-passing an intransigent Pale the Contact Group would work with Izetbegovic, Tudjman and Milosevic to negotiate a comprehensive agreement including Sector East, Krajina -- and the Bosnian Serbs.
- The "Zagreb Four" plan would be launched as part of a comprehensive approach. It could also be proposed separately, although given the centrality of the Serb-Croat it should be encompassed in the larger package.
- Enhancing the coordination of the contact group members and achieving a better consensus in developing short and long term strategies.
- Offering Belgrade full sanctions suspension in return for
  - -- Recognition of all its neighbors -- including FYROM.
  - -- Maintaining a total cut-off of assistance to the Bosnian and Krajinan Serbs if they refuse to accept the Contact Group and Zagreb Four plans.
  - -- Permitting the redeployment of CSCE monitor missions in Kosovo and developing a longterm process of negotiations with the Albanian community whose aim will be the eventual restoration of Kosovo's autonomous status.

- Stabilizing the Bosnian Federation. We must move quickly in the next six months to make good on our aid commitments and work to develop the political institutions of the Federation through development assistance funding and through a coordinated approach to ongoing EU efforts on the ground. We must also stress the Federation in our public policy toward Bosnia.

  -- We should seek ESF money in a supplemental appropriation to provide the Federation with budgetary relief thereby allowing more money to go to defense. We should explore all possibilities within the limits of existing UN resultions and US law to assist the Federation's military.

Pressure on Pale

- As we develop incentives for Belgrade to continue its reorientation, we must also maintain maximum pressure on Pale through robust enforcement of NATO exclusion zone decisions.

- We should reverse the salami slicing process by which the Bosnian Serbs have steadily reduced the UNPROFOR's scope of action. At the same time we should be more assertive about protecting US and NATO assets. Specific actions which might be worth exploring include:

  -- A no radar zone over Bosnia. Any air defense radar transmitting should be attacked with anti-radiation missiles.

  -- Missile sites that fire at NATO aircraft should be taken out. USNATO 3695 suggests we could get French support for such an initiative.

  -- We should make clear we will not accept any interference with US humanitarian flights. We should assess whether this might be done under Article 51. We should retaliate immediately if somebody shoots at our cargo aircraft.

  -- More generally, we should capitalize on the strong positive reaction to our deployments in Haiti and Iraq to send a similarly tough message to the Bosnian Serbs.

  We may also want to reiterate that acceptance of the Contact Group plan opens the door to negotiations among the parties to rectify aspects with which they have problems including access to the sea, constitutional principles, and possible exchanges of territory.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Lift

- Lift remains our stated option As we develop our lift resolution we must

  -- table a comprehensive resolution on or about October 28 with a hard trigger which establishes clearly our position favoring lift.

  -- prepare to negotiate within the Contact Group and the UNSC on the trigger mechanism to avoid a public split which could ultimately embolden the Bosnian Serbs or undermine Belgrade's incentive to break with Pale and Knin.

Nunn-Mitchell

We should take advantage of Nunn-Mitchell to separate ourselves from the NATO Adriatic operation enforcing the embargo against Bosnia and Croatia. In particular, we should stop the intelligence support that has been an important factor in preventing the shipment of arms to the Bosnians. We should inform NATO that we must redeploy our contingent southward off the Montenegrin coast to enforce the embargo against Serbia.

Public Policy

- As we move to lift we must develop a public consensus on the meaning and implications of lift beyond just the moral dimension. In particular, does it inevitably mean USG strike along with lift?

- Initial sounds from Congress on our bold approach have been positive. We must strengthen the public and congressional understanding of our approach. Above all, we must develop strong bipartisaniship on our policy, with the understandin that thousands of lives depend on our steadiness and purposefulness.

Looking Ahead: Avoiding Spill-Over, Stabilizing the Region

- We need to engage the CSCE especially in Kosovo where the absence of its monitoring missions has worsened the human rights situation and undermined moderate elements in the Albanian community.

- We need to stabilize other major players in the region. FYROM is most at risk. We must aim before the hard winter sets in to make an all-out effort to settle Greece's dispute with its tiny neighbor.

- The EU should consider a plan which holds open the possibility that states of the former Yugoslavia could join, thereby allowing European integration to outpace Serb nationalism.

Congressional Strategy: Short-term:

Congressional interest in our diplomatic activities in Bosnia remains high despite the fact that Congress is in recess. Press reports questioning our resolve in introducing a UNSC resolution on lift prompted 50 senators to send a letter October 8 to the President demanding that we go forward with the resolution and putting a marker down that the Senate will revisit this issue when it reconvenes next year if no resolution or a non-binding resolution is passed.

We should continue regular briefings throughout the recess to assure Congressional staffers that we are serious about moving on all diplomatic fronts. EUR DAS Bob Frasure briefed key SFRC and HFAC staffers October 11. We will have Ralph Johnson and Dan Serwer brief on our assistance efforts in Bosnia by the end of the month. Further briefings by Frasure and/or Charlie Thomas should be done as our negotiations on the UNSC resolution come to an end and we introduce our resolution. Once ICFY monitor Dick Erdman returns, we can take him up to the Hill as well to brief on the situation on the Serb-Bosnian Serb border.

Longer Term: Beyond November 15

Our longer term Congressional strategy will depend on the situation on the ground as well as our success in implementing a robust UNSC resolution. If we are able to get UN agreement to stricter enforcement, and are able to act accordingly, we will want to brief key staffers as those strikes go forward. Further, after November 15 we will have to brief staffers on our operations in the Adriatic to assure them that we are in compliance with Nunn-Mitchell in taking no action to enforce the Bosnian arms embargo.

If serious fighting involving either NATO or UNPROFOR breaks out, or the Serbs succeed in taking steps to strangle off Sarajevo or the other exclusion/safe zones, we will want to make calls on key Senators and Congressmen to explain our responses. If the situation on the ground continues to deteriorate, we will have to address further Congressional attempts to force unilateral lift on us early in the new year.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

SUPPORTING THE BOSNIAN FEDERATION

Objectives

As the President has indicated, significant, tangible support for Bosnia is a key component of U.S. policy toward former Yugoslavia. Our immediate objective is to minimize harm to the general population from the ongoing conflict and its consequences. At the same time, we can advance the longer-term goal of creating a viable state, politically and economically, based on the Federation. We have made a good start down this road, but need to do more.

Principal Elements

Our expanded assistance program would include the following:

Humanitarian assistance: Building on the more than $681 million in "survival" aid provided in FY 1993 and 1994, we can start channeling food, medicine, and services through Federation institutions.

Community reconciliation and Federation-building: A major focus of the $20 million package announced at the Clinton-Izetbegovic summit, Ralph Johnson's mission is developing specific programs. We should seek to energize EU and especially CSCE efforts toward this end, as well as do more through USIS IV and other outreach programs.

Economic support and reconstruction: We need to move quickly on the $10 million committed for Sarajevo reconstruction and $6 million for private-sector support. All these assistance efforts require adequate support facilities with ready access to Bosnia and to PVOs, so we should establish the necessary offices in Sarajevo, Split, and Zagreb as soon as possible.

Security assistance: With or without some lifting of the arms embargo, we should provide the maximum amount of non-lethal aid consistent with UN resolutions and U.S. law.

Political and diplomatic support: We should exploit Izetbegovic's suggestion for an "International Commission for the Federation" as a vehicle for coordinating and promoting assistance and helping resolve ethnic conflict. Possible members include the U.S., Germany, Croatia, and one or two others. We should seek greater international support for and recognition of the Federation, particularly in Western Europe.

Public affairs: We should make sure that American NGO's, Congress, the press and other interested parties are aware of these efforts. This will have a multiplier effect, as well as help sustain our support over the long haul.

DECL: OADR

REVISED
(m/o 18 OCT 93

STRICT ENFORCEMENT UPDATE

Current Status: In spite of the July 30 Contact Group decision to step up enforcement of exclusion zones, the UN has requested that NATO respond to violations on only a few occasions. On October 7, as a follow-up to action by NATO Defense Ministers in Seville, the NAC approved new standards for strikes (see Tab 1) designed to raise the stakes by speeding response time, expanding the range of targets, and doing away with advance warnings. Boutros-Ghali's reaction to the new standards -- that they pose "problems" for the UN -- suggests high-level approaches may be required if we are to move ahead on this key "disincentive".

Boutros-Ghali's Problems: In discussions October 10 with Madeleine Albright, Boutros complained that decisions on the use of air power and the number of targets would have to remain with the UN. As NATO's new standards specify that the "dual key" arrangement will continue -- and thus the UN will retain its ability to decide on strikes -- Boutros' comment is puzzling and indicates his basic disagreement with NATO strikes.

Boutros also noted that advance warnings might have to be provided in some cases to avoid collateral damage. The new NATO standards, by contrast, say "strikes will be conducted without tactical warning." (One reason for this is to protect NATO planes.) It might be possible to prevent NATO and the UN from coming to loggerheads by selecting targets where strikes could cause little or no collateral damage; this would be coordinated between NATO and UNPROFOR.

The Real Issue: Above and beyond stated objections to the new standards, Boutros, Rose and Akashi basically oppose strict enforcement because they believe it compromises UNPROFOR's neutrality, endangers its safety, and jeopardizes the goal of a negotiated settlement. In meetings October 17, a NATO team sent to New York talked its way through the new standards in a manner designed to reassure UN staff and make clear that the standards preserve UN decisionmaking power and do not presage a shift away from internationally agreed goals. But preliminary reports suggested the team found UN officials uncompromising.

Diplomatic Options: After the NAC is briefed formally October 19 on the team's New York meetings, we will need to deliver a demarche to Boutros, and get the British and French to do the same, to the effect that the UN should not undermine enforcement of Security Council resolutions and Contact Group commitments and should put the NATO standards into operation. There may be ways to use diplomatic suasion to get Boutros to pressure UN officials on the ground; Rose and Akashi may be more willing to turn their dual key if Boutros is insistent that doing so is what he expects in response to violations. Eventually, we may have to decide whether to compromise on the principle of "no advance warning". The UK seems to be leaning in this direction in spite of its NAC support for unannounced strikes (only the Canadians raised objections).

NATO Self-defense Actions: NATO military staff is seeking to determine whether NATO planes can undertake some air strikes without UN say-so. NATO self-defense rules of engagement appear to allow immediate counter-attacks when NATO aircraft come under fire; thus the UN's dual key might not have to turn for NATO planes to defend themselves. Self-defense strikes under NATO-only ROE could not be used to respond to exclusion zone violations where NATO itself is not attacked. Still, we might wish to explore this way around the dual key, even though it could grieviously harm relations in New York and Moscow, if the UN continues to oppose strict enforcement.

A Note on Expansion of Exclusion Zones: With the agreement of the Principals Committee, the July 30 Ministerial call for an increase in the number of exclusion zones has gone unanswered largely because the UN says UNPROFOR lacks troops to cover new zones. Although exclusion zones are defended by NATO, they are defined by UNPROFOR troops, who notify NATO when violations occur. The UN (with UK and French support) has made clear that unless the number of UNPROFOR troops increases, establishing new zones and maintaining existing ones cannot occur simultaneously.

Redeployment: We have advocated UNPROFOR redeployment as a means of both carving out new exclusion zones and allowing strict enforcement to commence, but the UN has been slow to move. This is because two key requirements for peacekeeping are mutually exclusive: on the one hand, UNPROFOR's mandate is to protect the most threatened areas; on the other, the UN (and all members) want UNPROFOR to be safe. When pressed to move UNPROFOR to defensible areas so strict enforcement can begin, the UN expresses the fear that surrounded enclaves will fall should UNPROFOR leave. When pressed to move UNPROFOR to cities like Maglaj and Doboj, where new exclusion zones might quell persistent fighting, the UN says the areas are too unsafe. In short, the vulnerability of much of the Bosnian government's territory, and the limited capacity of NATO and UNPROFOR in their current configurations to make a difference, check the effectiveness of strict enforcement as a pressure tactic.

Russian Angle: An additional constraint on our ability to move ahead on strict enforcement is Russia's enormous sensitivity about NATO in general. On October 11 we shared the NATO decision sheet containing the new air strike standards with the Russians. We have yet to receive a formal response, but Lord Owen's read-out of his October 13 lunch with Kozyrev makes clear that Russia is not happy. Like Boutros, the Russians apparently plan to make advance warning a bone of contention; they are claiming that NATO's new standards were devised behind their backs and need further (i.e., drawn-out) review. A non-paper delivered to Peter Tarnoff October 7 emphasized that "disporportionate and sudden strikes" would bring about the same outcome as lifting the arms embargo.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

NEW NATO AIR STRIKE STANDARDS

On October 7 the NAC adopted new standards for NATO air strikes in Bosnia as follows:

- strikes will be conducted in accordance with existing NATO mandates and procedures, including dual-key arrangements and the principle of proportionality;
- strikes will be conducted on a timely basis -- that is, as soon as possible after a violation or any other event giving rise to the need for a strike;
- strikes will be conducted without tactical warning to the offending party;
- before any use of air power, target sets will be agreed by CINCSOUTH and UNPROFOR; and
- for each use of air power, a minimum of four targets will be authorized by CINCSOUTH and the Force Commander UNPROFOR, with the agreed target set, and respecting the principle of proportionality, for attack by NATO aircraft; which of these targets are actually attacked will be determined by the NATO air component commander according to tactical consideration.

WASHINGTON, DC 20510-6050

The Honorable William J. Perry
Secretary of Defense
The Pentagon
Washington D.C. 20301

September 30, 1994

Dear Bill:

We are writing to ask you to conduct an expedited policy review of the military impact of a build down strategy as an alternative to the lifting of the United Nations Arms Embargo on the government of Bosnia Herzegovina.

As you know, there is strong support in the Congress for reducing the disparities in defense capability among the parties involved in the conflict in Bosnia. Some members of Congress have supported a unilateral lifting of the embargo, others have favored a multilateral lifting that would involve our NATO allies who have troops on the ground with the UNPROFOR forces.

All versions of the lift strategy have the downside that the introduction of more arms, especially heavy armament, could increase the level of violence in Bosnia and thus run counter to the widely shared objective of ending the military conflict. Our allies have been particularly concerned about this prospect, and have stated their intention to withdraw their troops from UNPROFOR if the arms embargo on the Bosnian government is lifted. They are convinced that such a move would lead to a significant increase in violence in Bosnia including Serbian attacks on allied troops.

The recent change of policy by the government of Bosnia Herzegovina regarding the timing of a lift of the arms embargo, and the recent closing of the Serbian-Bosnian border has provided the opportunity for a new US approach which could lead to the leveling of the field in Bosnia we have sought, while also leading to a reduction in violence. This new approach would be to eliminate the heavy equipment held by all sides in Bosnia in a step by step process. We feel this approach warrants a serious and comprehensive review at the highest levels within the Department of Defense.

The build down concept is the flip side of the idea of lifting the arms embargo on the Bosnian government. The idea would be to level the ground by eliminating all or most of the heavy equipment on both sides by either destroying it or removing it from Bosnia. This could apply to all tanks, artillery, and

This strategy, like the strategy of lifting the arms embargo raises serious questions which merit your review. How would our NATO allies react to such a proposal? How would the factions in Bosnia likely react? Would such an approach be enforceable? Could we find economic incentives to make the proposal attractive to the factions?

If feasible, we believe a proposal along these lines could garner broad support in the Congress and could set the stage for renewed efforts to develop a negotiated settlement of the Bosnian crisis. We know that the lifting of the arms embargo has met with significant implementation obstacles. A build-down policy may have similar disadvantages. We therefore urge you to conduct an immediate policy review of such a strategy to assess its merit.

As you consider this alternative approach to the current legal requirement for the President to request a multilateral lifting of the arms embargo, we would also appreciate your assessment of the outcome of compliance with current law, in view of the recent changes of policy by the governments of Serbia and Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Sincerely,

Richard C. Lugar
U.S. Senator

Sam Nunn

Summary of Conclusions

UNSCR on Lifting the Arms Embargo

1. The Principals briefly reviewed the status of the U.S.-circulated UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) proposing multilateral lifting of the arms embargo on Bosnia-Herzegovina and deferred decisions on next steps until further consultations are completed later in the week.

Implementing Nunn-Mitchell

2. The Principals agreed we will implement modifications to operations to comply fully with the Nunn-Mitchell amendment requirement that the U.S. cease enforcement of the arms embargo against the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina and directed that modifications to military and intelligence operations be presented to Senator Nunn on an urgent basis. Secretary Perry agreed to call Senator Nunn requesting a meeting for Thursday, November 10. Action: DoD will set up the meeting and lead a team to brief Senator Nunn.

Military Operations

3. The Principals decided that as of midnight November 12, 1994, U.S. forces may no longer take part in actions whose purpose is to enforce the arms embargo against the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina. U.S. forces may no longer divert or deliberately delay vessels containing only arms bound for the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina unless those weapons present a threat to NATO forces. Mixed cargo shipments may be diverted. EO 13526 1.4c EO 13526 1.4c Action: State/DoD prepare appropriate guidance.

EO 13526 1.4c

Consultations with Congress

5. The Principals agreed that additional calls to key Senate and House members would be made on Friday, November 11 following consultations with Senator Nunn. Action: State to develop a call list and talking points.

6. The Principals discussed options for submitting plans and consulting with Congress on training Bosnian forces and unilateral lifting of the arms embargo. They directed that an interagency team with representation from State, DoD and CIA orally present generic plans on training and unilateral lift early in the week of November 14, and that preparations be undertaken for serious consultations with Congress on the issues associated with multilateral lift to begin soon thereafter and to be continued with the new Congress in early 1995. Action: State/DoD/CIA

7. The Principals requested that the CIA prepare a Special National Intelligence Estimate on the implications of multilateral lifting of the arms embargo for use during Congressional consultations. Action: CIA.

Consultations with Allies

8. The Principals directed that appropriate consultations be conducted at the UN and NATO on Friday, November 11 to inform allies of U.S. intentions and actions associated with compliance with Nunn-Mitchell. A briefing should also be provided to the Russians. Action: State to draft appropriate guidance cables.

Public Affairs

9. The Principals requested that a press background briefing be held Friday at the Pentagon with State and NSC representation to discuss the modifications to military operations necessary to comply with Nunn-Mitchell. (It was subsequently agreed to do press calls only, not a background briefing). Action: OSD/Joint Staff.

Sanctions:

10. The Principals took note of the actions taken by the interagency working group to develop a strategy to monitor the Inter-Serbian border closure and received an update on the deployment of U.S. border monitors. Action: State will examine options for replacing the State contingent of border monitors after 90 days.

Bihac and Overall Level of Conflict in the Region

11. The Principals discussed the serious situation in Bihac and the intensified fighting throughout Bosnia and directed that the interagency working group continue to monitor events closely with a view to taking action to defuse the situation where possible. Action: CIA increase intelligence watch. State and DoD develop appropriate diplomatic and military options to ease the impending humanitarian crisis in Bihac. Interagency working group consider options for deterring a widening of the Bosnian conflict to other regions and for dealing with renewed shelling of Sarajevo.

Summary of Conclusions

UNSCR on Lifting the Arms Embargo

1. The Principals briefly reviewed the status of the U.S.-circulated UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) proposing multilateral lifting of the arms embargo on Bosnia-Herzegovina and deferred decisions on next steps until further consultations are completed later in the week.

Implementing Nunn-Mitchell

2. The Principals agreed we will implement modifications to operations to comply fully with the Nunn-Mitchell amendment requirement that the U.S. cease enforcement of the arms embargo against the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina and directed that modifications to military and intelligence operations be presented to Senator Nunn on an urgent basis. Secretary Perry agreed to call Senator Nunn requesting a meeting for Thursday, November 10. Action: DoD will set up the meeting and lead a team to brief Senator Nunn.

Military Operations

3. The Principals decided that as of midnight November 12, 1994, U.S. forces may no longer take part in actions whose purpose is to enforce the arms embargo against the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina. U.S. forces may no longer divert or deliberately delay vessels containing only arms bound for the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina unless those weapons present a threat to NATO forces. Mixed cargo shipments may be diverted. EO 13526 1.4c EO 13526 1.4c Action: State/DoD prepare appropriate guidance.

Consultations with Congress

5. The Principals agreed that additional calls to key Senate and House members would be made on Friday, November 11 following consultations with Senator Nunn. Action: State to develop a call list and talking points.

6. The Principals discussed options for submitting plans and consulting with Congress on training Bosnian forces and unilateral lifting of the arms embargo. They directed that an interagency team with representation from State, DoD and CIA orally present generic plans on training and unilateral lift early in the week of November 14, and that preparations be undertaken for serious consultations with Congress on the issues associated with multilateral lift to begin soon thereafter and to be continued with the new Congress in early 1995. Action: State/DoD/CIA

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

7. The Principals requested that the CIA prepare a Special National Intelligence Estimate on the implications of multilateral lifting of the arms embargo for use during Congressional consultations. Action: CIA.

Consultations with Allies

8. The Principals directed that appropriate consultations be conducted at the UN and NATO on Friday, November 11 to inform allies of U.S. intentions and actions associated with compliance with Nunn-Mitchell. A briefing should also be provided to the Russians. Action: State to draft appropriate guidance cables.

Public Affairs

9. The Principals requested that a press background briefing be held Friday at the Pentagon with State and NSC representation to discuss the modifications to military operations necessary to comply with Nunn-Mitchell. (It was subsequently agreed to do press calls only, not a background briefing). Action: OSD/Joint Staff.

Sanctions:

10. The Principals took note of the actions taken by the interagency working group to develop a strategy to monitor the Inter-Serbian border closure and received an update on the deployment of U.S. border monitors. Action: State will examine options for replacing the State contingent of border monitors after 90 days.

Bihac and Overall Level of Conflict in the Region

11. The Principals discussed the serious situation in Bihac and the intensified fighting throughout Bosnia and directed that the interagency working group continue to monitor events closely with a view to taking action to defuse the situation where possible. Action: CIA increase intelligence watch. State and DoD develop appropriate diplomatic and military options to ease the impending humanitarian crisis in Bihac. Interagency working group consider options for deterring a widening of the Bosnian conflict to other regions and for dealing with renewed shelling of Sarajevo.

INFORMATION PAPER

Subject: Operational Changes for US Forces Required by Implementation of the Nunn-Mitchell Amendment (U)

1. (U) Background. Following the 18 Oct 94 Principal's Committee meeting the Joint Staff was tasked to provide a detailed explanation of the operational modifications necessary for US forces participating in sanctions enforcement operations. As a result, the Joint staff directed USEUCOM to conduct a detailed analysis of current operational directives and rules of engagement (ROE). The EUCOM response provides the basis for recommended changes to operational procedures for US forces.

2. ~~(C)~~ General.

a. ~~(C)~~ In accordance with the provisions of the Nunn-Mitchell Amendment current procedures have been reviewed and will be adjusted so as to comply with the legislation.

b. ~~(C)~~ Applicability. Based on previous analysis it has been determined that the provisions of Nunn-Mitchell will only directly apply to Operation SHARP GUARD and associated supporting activities. Operations DENY FLIGHT, Task Force ABLE SENTRY, JTF PROVIDE PROMISE [redacted] 1.4(c) 1.4(d) c. Mission Instructions. Mission orders to US forces participating in enforcement operations are issued through NATO command channels. Accordingly, NATO command authority will issue modified mission instructions to participating US forces after being advised of US national restrictions to the use of US contributed forces. Following final approval of mission changes by the Joint Staff, USEUCOM will be directed to issue instructions to US forces which explain national restrictions on their employment and to clarify the provisions of the US law.

3. Operational Changes. Effective 12 Nov 94, US forces may no longer take part in actions which serve to enforce the arms embargo against the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

a. ~~(C)~~ Prohibited actions. US forces may no longer divert or deliberately delay vessels containing only arms known to be destined for the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina. Vessels containing the following shipments are excepted:

(1) ~~(C)~~ Arms which present a threat to NATO forces (regardless of destination). These weapons are defined as air-to-air, ground-to-air, air-to-ground, and anti-naval force weapons, and weapons of mass destruction. This position is derived from the inherent right of self defense and mutual protection of coalition forces. Issues include:

(a) ~~(C)~~ No warring factions may fly in the airspace over the conflict area, therefore weapons designed to attack aircraft cannot be intended to affect the outcome of the conflict, but only to threaten coalition aircraft.

(b) ~~(C)~~ Air-to-ground weapons are excepted because their are no aircraft authorized to fly to deliver them.

(c) ~~(C)~~ Anti-naval weapons can only be perceived as a threat because the only combat naval vessels afloat are not a party to the conflict.

(d) ~~(C)~~ Weapons of mass destruction would introduce a new dimension to the conflict and clearly threaten coalition forces.

(2) ~~(C)~~ Prohibited cargo other than arms destined for the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

(3) ~~(C)~~ All prohibited cargo, to include arms, destined for other than the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

b. ~~(C)~~ Permissible actions. US forces in all situations:

(1) ~~(C)~~ May continue to board and inspect vessels to determine or verify cargo and destination.

(2) ~~(C)~~ May continue to submit reports IAW Annex D (Definitions and Explanation of terms for Boarding and Searching Operations), to the Combined NATO/WEU Concept of operations for the Implementation of UNSCR 820 in the Adriatic - Operation SHARP GUARD.

(3) EO 13526 1.4c, 1.4(d) EO 13526 1.4c, 1.4(d) to track vessels containing arms for the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina, to ensure destination and cargo dispensation claims are met. They may not report on the location of those vessels unless the destination or cargo dispensation claims are changed.

c. ~~(C)~~ Intelligence.

(1) ~~(C)~~ Intelligence organizations under USEUCOM control will adhere to instructions EO 13526 1.4c

(2) ~~(C)~~ Upon implementation of the law on 12 Nov 94, information relating solely to the knowledge of arms destined for the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina must be marked and treated as NOFORN. Exceptions will apply to those arms which present a threat to NATO/UN forces, or those which may be airborne and reportable pursuant to Operation DENY FLIGHT.

4. ~~(C)~~ ROE. No US ROE need to be modified, since US forces operating in SHARP GUARD do so under NATO/WEU ROE. Adherence by US forces to several of the NATO/WEU ROE will have to be modified with respect to their applicability to enforcement of the arms embargo against the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

a. ~~(C)~~ These ROE found in Annex F, of the Concept of Operations include:

(1) ~~(C)~~ ROE 108. Acting as necessary to cause ships to heave to and submit to boarding and inspection. (Caveat - causing physical damage to the vessel, the firing of warning shots, non disabling fire and disabling fire may be used as qualified by ROE 135, 136, and 137.)

(2) ~~(C)~~ ROE 109. Acting as necessary against non military units to implement NATO direction of merchant/fishing vessels. (Caveat - causing physical damage to the vessel, the firing of non disabling fire and disabling fire are prohibited.)

(3) ~~(C)~~ ROE 134. Taking military control of a merchant vessel violating the UN embargo of the former Yugoslavia is permitted.

(4) ~~(C)~~ ROE 139. Forces may act as necessary to cause ships to divert. Causing physical damage to the vessel, the firing warning shots, non disabling fire and disabling fire may be used as qualified by ROE 135, 136, and 137.

(5) ~~(C)~~ ROE 135, 136, and 137. All specify the use of inert ordnance.

b. ~~(C)~~ EUCOM has recommended a change in the form of a note be submitted to the NATO/WEU Concept of Operations to accommodate implementation of Nunn-Mitchell. Such a note would be similar in form to the note included in Annex F, ROE, of the Concept of Operations regarding rules governing Hellenic ships. It would also be consistent with the rules governing control of national forces as outlined in paragraph 18 of the NATO/WEU Concept. Recommended change would read,

"Except for US personnel acting at designated NATO headquarters staff positions on NATO or NATO subordinate staffs, US officers participating in SHARP GUARD will not apply ROE 108,109, 134, and 139 if they encounter a vessel containing arms exclusively intended for the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina, unless the arms or the vessel pose a threat to NATO/WEU forces."

5. ~~(C)~~ Concerns.

a. ~~(C)~~ Regardless of the adjustments made to permit continued US force participation in Operation SHARP GUARD, the effect of Nunn-Mitchell will be to undermine NATO command and control relationships. NATO led UNSCR enforcement operations will be commanded by US officers dual hatted as NATO officers with national instructions inconsistent with those agreed to by NATO. This will undermine the credibility of US officers and weaken US leadership in the alliance.

b. ~~(C)~~ Implementation of the Nunn-Mitchell Amendment sets a bad precedent for NATO operations. Although other nations have imposed national restrictions on their forces, there are serious implications for the US doing so. It will open the door for other nations to follow suit, due to their favoring one faction over another. Not all of these will favor the US position. This policy, coming from the alliance's leading power will serve to weaken the alliances ability to establish and maintain common positions.

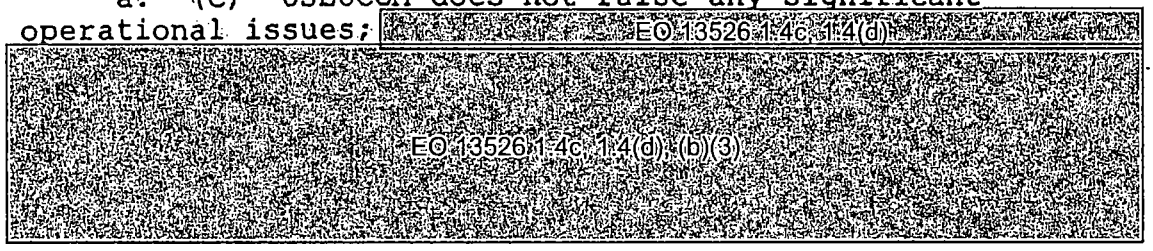
6. (U) USEUCOM Issues.

a. ~~(C)~~ USEUCOM does not raise any significant operational issues;



b.

7. Recommendation. Upon approval by the Principal's Committee of a common position forward changes to US NATO and USEUCOM.

NUNN-MITCHELL AMENDMENT AND INTELLIGENCE SHARING ABOUT BOSNIAN ARMS EMBARGO

I. Legal Analysis

As of November 12, 1994, the Nunn-Mitchell provision of the DOD authorization act will prohibit the expenditure of appropriated funds for intelligence support in those limited circumstances where the purpose of that support is participation in, support for, or assistance to voluntary aspects of the Bosnian arms embargo.

The effect of the funding prohibition is limited. It does not prohibit collection activities, but restricts passage of intelligence information on the arms flows to Bosnia where the information is provided solely to enforce the Bosnian embargo:

-- Congress intended to continue support under UN Resolution 713 and to preclude voluntary enforcement of the Bosnian arms embargo unless it would impede the enforcement of the Serbian economic and arms embargo.

-- The President indicated in a signing statement that the provision applies only when appropriated funds are used "for the purpose of" enforcing the arms embargo.

-- The prohibition would not affect the ability of the US to participate in activities that are necessary to avoid impeding the enforcement of the Serbian embargo or other authorized purposes, even if indirect, consequential or incidental support to enforcement of the Bosnian embargo results.

The US is not required to cease providing information concerning violations of US law or relating to other arms shipments, or information which supports the Serbian embargo but which may also support enforcement of the Bosnian embargo. Moreover, the US Government may continue to provide information about arms shipments to Bosnia where the purpose for that support is driven by concerns other than enforcement of the Bosnian embargo.

-- Examples include passage of intelligence necessary for the defense of allied forces or facilities, or necessary to maintain intelligence liaison relationships.

Caveat: Although a strict reading of the statute's "purpose" test would permit the continuation of a number of activities that support voluntary enforcement of the embargo, activity that reasonably can be expected to result in enforcement may raise questions about compliance with the spirit as well as the letter of the law.

-- Dissemination of intelligence from joint collection sites, information for liaison enhancement, and other activities should not be undertaken without senior review even if not strictly intended for enforcement where there is a significant potential an enforcement action will result. Passage of strategic rather than tactical intelligence is less likely to raise such a concern, and activities that are necessary for other purposes and that actually are beyond US control may proceed.

II. Intelligence Activities Under Nunn-Mitchell

A. Intelligence support can be divided into several different categories for purposes of assessing the impact of the funding prohibition:

Intelligence Collection. The funding prohibition would not affect the actual collection of intelligence. A joint collection activity not directed solely at enforcement of the Bosnian embargo with allied countries may continue where its cessation would impede the enforcement of the Serbian embargo.

Intelligence Support Concerning Illegal Arms Shipments to Bosnia.

-- Defense articles and services exported from the US or with another US nexus and destined for Bosnia. Intelligence support may continue concerning these activities, which are required by U.N. Security Council Resolution No. 713, and which are also a violation of US law.

-- Arms shipments destined for Bosnia in violation of the U.N. arms embargo that has no US nexus. Intelligence support concerning these types of shipments solely for the purpose of enforcing the Bosnian arms embargo must cease as of 12 November 1994.

-- OPERATION SHARP GUARD actions exclusively taken to effect the arms embargo against the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina are affected.

-- Actionable information relating solely to the knowledge of arms destined for the government of Bosnia-Herzegovina must be marked and treated as NOFORN--not to be disseminated to foreign nationals without prior review. It also may not be used in any US Government action to enforce the Bosnian arms embargo unless a violation of US law is involved.

-- It may be possible to delay dissemination of actionable intelligence on Bosnian arms shipments until it can no longer support an enforcement action. However, this approach should be carefully reviewed, as even "after the fact" intelligence can be used in support of long-range enforcement efforts.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

[0036]

B. Determining the Purpose of the Activity:

-- Where the purpose for providing such intelligence support is other than to enforce the arms embargo--such as the enforcement of the no-fly zone (Operation DENY FLIGHT); enforcement of the myriad of actions authorized by other U.N. resolutions in this area, including the Serbian arms and economic embargo and force protection for US or cooperating country forces; intelligence liaison enhancement; or any other authorized purposes -- the intelligence support may continue to be provided even if an incidental or indirect support to enforcement of the Bosnian arms embargo results.

-- Arms Shipments to Serbia and Other Countries Except Bosnia. Intelligence support may continue to be provided to enforce the Serbian embargo or the requirements of other U.N. sanctions, as may intelligence support concerning arms shipments to destinations except for Bosnia.

-- Other Intelligence. Intelligence support not related to the "deliveries of weapons and military equipment to Bosnia," see U.N. Security Council Resolution No. 713, may continue to be provided in accordance with existing authorities and established procedures.

-- Finished Intelligence. Finished intelligence which contains no information upon which an enforcement action could be based may continue to be provided.

IMPLEMENTING NUNN-MITCHELL: CONGRESSIONAL STRATEGY

Nunn-Mitchell will obligate the Administration to do three things:

(1) end use of funds "for the purpose" of participation in, support for, or assistance to the enforcement of the arms embargo against Bosnia;

(2) submit a plan to Congress and consult on the "manner in which US Armed Forces would provide training" to the Bosnian military; and

(3) submit a plan to Congress and consult "regarding the unilateral termination" by the US of compliance with the embargo.

The funding cutoff is effective November 12. While there is some ambiguity about when the two plans must be submitted to Congress, we should submit them promptly on November 14 (and should begin our consultations on that date) if we want to avoid controversy with Congress on this point.

Implementation of the funding cutoff: As indicated above, Nunn-Mitchell prohibits use of funds for the purpose of participating in, supporting, or assisting enforcement of the arms embargo against Bosnia. As a legal matter, and consistent with the President's signing statement, we interpret the Amendment as not prohibiting activities undertaken for other purposes --- e.g., for enforcing the arms embargo against Croatia -- even if doing so provides indirect or incidental support or assistance for the embargo. This interpretation allows for more flexibility in continuing activities in the area than some on the Hill will want. As an example, under this approach, US forces could interdict shipments carrying weapons destined for both Croatia and Bosnia, on the theory that doing so is need to continue enforcement against Croatia. But since most shipments of arms for Bosnia would also contain arms for Croatia (as they would in most cases need to transit Croatia), Nunn-Mitchell would have significantly less impact on US operations under this interpretation than some on the Hill would want or expect.

BK - I agree w/ more w/ Hill than we do

JCS has prepared draft plans for implementing the cutoff as described above (attached). The Administration will need to decide as a policy matter whether it wishes to take additional steps in order to avoid arguments with Congress that we are not in keeping with the spirit of Nunn-Mitchell. We also need to make similar decisions about the extent to which we will limit intelligence sharing under the Amendment (CIA prepared an initial draft paper on this, but is reportedly re-working it).

The Hill will continue to monitor closely how we implement the Amendment. We understand that a Staffdel is already considering a visit as early as November 14 to NATO's Southern Command to investigate our implementation.

Submission of plans and consultation: JCS/OSD are now working on the plan for training the Bosnians. EUR is putting together a plan regarding unilateral lift, using EUCOM data and projections. On November 14, the President will need to submit these plans (unless he authorizes you or Secretary Perry to do so). We will also need to again make calls on key members on both sides of the aisle, while at the same time doing comprehensive briefings for staffers. Briefings should begin as quickly as possible and should include strong representation from JCS, DOD, and CIA.

Having submitted our plan and done those briefings (and implemented the funding cutoff), we will not be required legally to take further action unless Congress forces us to do so, probably when it returns in full session in February. It is likely that the new Congress will be even less supportive of our views on lift than the current one, particularly if Republicans take the Senate. In fact, if Senator Dole becomes majority leader, we cannot exclude the possibility that he may press hard to revisit the lift issue in December with the lame-duck Congress.

That said, laying out the considerable costs and risks of unilateral lift at this time may discourage some Members from forcing us down that course when they regroup in February. In any case, we will have won some time to try to get Bosnia through the winter and to let our Contact Group strategy work against the Pale Serbs.

Waiver for NATO Headquarters Personnel: There remains one technical aspect of implementing Nunn-Mitchell: The President may have to exercise the waiver authority in the Amendment for U.S. military personnel serving in NATO headquarters positions. Even though a limited number of such personnel are working exclusively on this issue (perhaps even none), this has already been the source of some contentious questions on the Hill. We told Senate staffers last Thursday that we would discuss this issue with them before exercising the waiver. JCS is already preparing the waiver; we need to make sure that it is coordinated with us, so that we are in a position to keep the Hill apprised in advance and avoid needless controversy.

UNSC LIFT RESOLUTION: PROGRESS REPORT

Ambassador Albright circulated our draft resolution to an informal meeting of the Council on October 28. The responses in that meeting and to our demarches in Council-member capitals have produced no surprises: the UK, France, and Russia oppose and will abstain, but would veto if they felt it necessary; China is negative, though not actively engaged, and will abstain; Spain is opposed and will abstain or vote no; New Zealand, the Czech Republic, Argentina, and Brazil are only slightly less negative than the foregoing, but will almost certainly abstain (New Zealand has said it will abstain) or vote no; Rwanda, Djibouti, Oman, and Pakistan favor the resolution and will vote yes. Nigeria has been ambivalent but will probably vote yes.

The UNGA resolution on Bosnia passed November 3, but with 12 fewer yeas and four more abstentions than last year. Of SC members, UK, France, Russia, China, Spain, Czech Republic, New Zealand, Brazil, Argentina, and Nigeria abstained. Pakistan, Djibouti, Oman, and Rwanda joined the U.S. in favor. Since a call to the Council to lift the arms embargo was the most prominent part of this non-binding resolution, the vote gives a strong indication of relative support for the arms lift resolution.

In her bilateral consultations with other members on assuming the Council presidency, Ambassador Albright discussed the arms lift resolution, as one of many issues facing the Council in November.

The mission plans to continue lobbying for the resolution early in the week of November 7-11, once pressing and potentially distracting Council business on Somalia and Rwanda is cleared away. Ambassador Albright intends to schedule open Council debate on Bosnia for Tuesday-Wednesday, November 8-9 to give non-Council members a chance to weigh in on the arms lift question.

Inter-Serb Sanctions -- An Assessment Strategy

On October 4, 1994, an initial, 100-day period of Serbian sanctions relief went into effect. Prior to January 15, the Security Council will have to act to extend that sanctions relief. At that point, the U.S. Government will need to have an opinion on whether to support the extension. At their October 17 meeting on Bosnia, the Principals tasked the IWG to form a preliminary judgment, prior to the 100th day, whether FRY authorities have effectively implemented Milosevic's decision to close the border with Bosnian Serb-held territory. This memorandum lays out a proposed strategy for carrying out that task, based on ideas generated by a Special Working Group made up of representatives of the IWG and Serbia Sanctions Task Force. The SWG will be responsible for implementing the strategy and submitting recommendations and analysis to the IWG for forwarding to Principals.

The strategy is designed to help ensure that the border closure/monitoring process, and our decisions relative to it, collectively have enough integrity to withstand public and Congressional scrutiny. To do this, we propose to use intelligence and other sources of information to identify shortcomings and to convert these into "litmus tests" to be considered in Belgrade and elsewhere. We will use the litmus tests to identify serious gaps in the border closure/monitoring regime and will take into account the degree to which our concerns have been addressed as we formulate our position on the 100th day.

ASSESSING COMPLIANCE

There is no clear standard for what constitutes "effective closure" in either the UN resolution relaxing sanctions or in Contact Group negotiations. Therefore, it is up to U.S. policy-makers to decide what is meant by the term "effective" as a foundation for our own position on the 100th day and for supportive diplomacy between now and then. There are several elements to consider, including:

- ICFY Mission Director Pellnaes's own reporting, both as submitted through formal channels and as obtained through intelligence sources.

- Our full intelligence take on cross-border traffic, ICFY mission operations, ICFY-FRY cooperation, the impact of the closure in Bosnia, and other relevant indicators.

- How countries other than the FRY are carrying out responsibilities inherent in phase 1 sanctions relief, including support for ICFY border monitoring mission and enforcement of modified sanctions provisions, e.g.: the degree to which countries are fulfilling their responsibility to monitor and report on air and ferry service to the FRY originating in their territory.

Even under the best of circumstances, our information will present an incomplete picture. It is unlikely that there will be so much evidence of cheating that ICFY will declare that the border is not closed in one of their 30-day interim reports. Instead, a mixed pattern will persist throughout the 100-day period. At the end, we will be faced with a value judgment.

ESTABLISHING "LITMUS TESTS"

Given the lack of a precise standard for border closure, the best strategy is to use available information to identify weaknesses in Belgrade's enforcement efforts and demand corrective action. This approach keeps the burden of proof on Belgrade. Our tactic should be to make the FRY want to satisfy us by addressing problem areas that we have identified. The goal is to lay down markers establishing measurable performance standards to which Belgrade can be held accountable. In addition, we should also call attention to weaknesses in the ICFY monitoring system and failure on the part of other countries to meet reporting and monitoring obligations in implementing phase 1 sanctions relief. In the process, we will create a record of healthy skepticism about Belgrade's performance as well as uncertainty as to whether we will support extension of sanctions relief at the 100th day. Further, if properly coordinated with the ICFY mission, our demands will help reinforce Pellnaes's efforts.

Our initial analysis produced the following list of litmus tests:

1. Demand permanent physical obstruction of all border crossings not monitored on 24-hour basis. Pellnaes has too few monitors to cover all border crossings on a 24-hour basis. The Serbs insist that all crossings remain open during the day. Temporary barriers are erected at night. However, unless someone observes the crossings through the night, there is no way to be sure that these barriers effectively halt night-time traffic. Banning all cross-border traffic at some of these sites and erecting permanent barriers would reduce the mission's workload and would ease verification since any observed crossing at such a site would constitute a violation.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

2. Stopping the "tractor trade." Large numbers of tractors and other vehicles are crossing the border daily near Badovinci in Montenegro. ICFY monitors report that up to 70% carry add-on fuel tanks used to smuggle gasoline and diesel across the border. Stopping this trade would eliminate a significant source of fuel for the Bosnian Serbs.

3. 24-hour presence at the factory near Priboj. Pellnaes has been having trouble gaining access to this facility which sits on the inter-Serb border and is suspected to be the site of military-related smuggling. Recent reports, however, indicate that ICFY now has a 24-hour access. Nonetheless, the factory remains a sensitive site, and we should give special attention to the level of ICFY-FRY cooperation there.

4. Effective controls on the Montenegro-to-Serbia rail line. The Bar-to-Serbia rail line cuts through Bosnian territory at one point. This raises the possibility that goods -- or even entire rail cars -- might be dropped off the trains as they pass through Bosnia. The ICFY mission is trying to establish effective controls, including inspection and sealing of rail cars and prohibiting stops inside Bosnia. We should demand FRY cooperation in setting up and implementing these controls.

5. Ending shipment of goods from Serbia to Krajina via Bosnian Serb territory. Owen has apparently directed the ICFY mission to allow the Serbs to transship humanitarian goods to the Krajina via Bosnian Serb territory. Pellnaes has said that such shipments are necessary to avoid a humanitarian crisis in Krajina over the winter. The problem is that there is no effective control over the convoys once they enter Bosnian Serb territory and the supplies that do reach the Krajina can leak back into Bosnia. We should register our concern and demand that the convoys be halted.

6. Stopping Cross-border helicopter flights. ICFY monitors and other observers have reported helicopter flights between Serbia and Bosnia. Pellnaes has been trying to put monitors at FRY airfields to ensure that helicopters are not being used to resupply Bosnian Serb forces. We should insist that these flights stop.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

7. Insisting on effective reporting and monitoring. At some point, we should seek a UN assessment of whether countries have instituted the reporting and monitoring procedures necessary to ensure that only authorized cargoes are being carried on air and ferry service to the FRY. If these procedures are not in place, a substantial sanctions loophole exists, calling into question the efficacy of partial sanctions relief.

SPECIAL WORKING GROUP ACTIONS

The SWG is preparing a series of demarches and instructions for use with Belgrade, ICFY headquarters and the mission in Belgrade, other Contact Group members, and at the UN. These cables will lay out our litmus-test strategy and give our views of the border closure and the effectiveness of the ICFY mission. IWG members will see these cables as part of the normal clearance and crosshatch process.

In addition, the SWG will, at each 30-day report point, provide an evaluation of the situation on the border and the FRY's responses to our demands. This will establish the context for our policy decision prior to the 100-day mark as well as identify the need for mid-course corrections to our strategy.

Implications of the Bihac Offensive

The Bosnian Army launched its most successful offensive of the war on 24 October around Bihac in northwestern Bosnia, capturing some 250 to 300 square kilometers of territory. We anticipate a further escalation of the fighting, although Government forces remain incapable of decisively altering the current distribution of territory. Bosnian Government successes may induce Zagreb to launch an attack against the Krajina Serbs. Meanwhile, the food situation is critical for 200,000 people in the Bihac enclave; Serb obstruction of aid there and elsewhere could put many at risk. 3.5c

The Bihac Offensive

Increasingly effective leadership, growing tactical skill, and high morale--combined with an improved logistics situation--were key to the Bosnian Army's Fifth Corps success. The operation was also directed at what is widely perceived to be the weakest Bosnian Serb forces.

-- The Army's high command successfully coordinated the Bihac operation with attacks near Doboj, Gradacac, and Kupres in order to tie down Bosnian Serb forces. 3.5c Bosnian Serb forces already have retaken some territory in counterattacks. The Bosnian Government Fifth Corps is spread thin and is awkwardly deployed after its rapid advance, which probably exceeded initial goals.

-- Local Bosnian Serb Army (BSA) troops--reinforced by units from as far away as the Posavina corridor--have forced a government withdrawal from Kulen Vakuf and about 50 square kilometers of recently captured territory, according to [illegible] press reports. 1.4c

-- The Krajina Serbs are supporting the Bosnian Serb counterattack by shelling some Government positions and supplying troops, according to a variety of reports. They are also reportedly mobilizing additional forces. 3.5c

Bosnian Croats Join the Conflict

Bosnian Croat forces are actively supporting the Government offensives near Bihac and Kupres--their first major joint offensive with government troops since 1992. Zagreb almost certainly had to approve of the Bosnian Croat participation in the Kupres attack.

-- The joint operations at Kupres, long advocated by the Muslims, almost certainly will help to ease Muslim-Croat tensions elsewhere in Bosnia.

Bosnian Forces Potential Gains Limited

Despite the recent successes, the Bosnian Army remains incapable of decisively defeating the Serbs or even seizing all the territory given it under the Contact Group plan.

-- Sarajevo is now able to coordinate multiple operations that maximize their manpower advantage and its infantry formations--especially its special assault units--are increasingly effective.

-- Government forces will have difficulty making similar gains elsewhere where they generally face larger numbers of more mobile and better trained and equipped Serb troops.

Fighting Will Continue to Intensify

Recent Government successes probably will lead to a major increase in fighting.

-- Bosnian Croat attacks have reignited fronts quiet since 1992. Government forces are likely to continue launching multiple attacks throughout the country to stretch the Serbs thin.

-- Meanwhile, the BSA will respond vigorously and rapidly--especially if key Serb areas are threatened.

Possible Spillover of Fighting

Government successes could cause fighting to spillover into Croatia or draw "Yugoslav" and possibly Croatian forces into combat in Bosnia.

Clinton Library Photocopy

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- 1.4c Serbian "volunteers" could cross into Bosnia if the government advances continue. Yugoslav Army elements almost certainly will try to increase covert support to the Bosnian Serbs, especially if they continue to lose ground.

-- 1.4c A prompt Croatian attack could take advantage of the Krajina and Bosnian Serb preoccupation with the Bihac offensive. 3.5c

Grave Humanitarian Conditions Loom

1.4c the food situation for 200,000 people in the Bihac enclave is critical and some could face starvation by mid-winter. Bosnian Serb retaliation against aid deliveries could cause a deterioration of conditions in Bihac and elsewhere in Bosnia.

-- An additional 30,000 people, Bosnian refugees from the enclave who fled after rebel Muslim leader Abdic's fall, are ill-prepared for winter and depend on UN food and water deliveries. Meanwhile, Bosnian Government offensives south of Bihac have forced 10,000 Serbs from their homes, 1.4c

-- Last week, Serb officials linked authorization for UN fuel deliveries to a suspension of the Bihac offensive and have since denied most UN fuel convoy requests. Serb authorities are going to require 24-hours advance notification for using the Sarajevo airport road, significantly complicating airlift deliveries. 3.5c

SEC. 1404. BOSNIA AND HERCEGOVINA.

(a) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this section—

(1) to express the sense of Congress concerning the international efforts to end the conflict in Bosnia and Hercegovina; and

(2) to establish a process to end the arms embargo on the Government of Bosnia and Hercegovina.

(b) STATEMENT OF SUPPORT.—The Congress supports the efforts of the Contact Group to bring about a peaceful settlement of the conflict in Bosnia and Hercegovina based upon the Contact Group proposal.

(c) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that:

(1) The United States should work with the member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and with other permanent members of the United Nations Security Council to bring about a peaceful settlement of the conflict in Bosnia and Hercegovina which maintains the territorial integrity of Bosnia and Hercegovina.

(2) A peaceful settlement of the conflict must preserve an economically, politically, and militarily viable Bosnian state capable of exercising its rights under the Charter of the United Nations as part of a peaceful settlement, which rights include the inherent right of a sovereign state to self defense.

(3) The acceptance of the Contact Group proposal by the Government of Bosnia and Hercegovina should lead to the lifting of the Bosnia arms embargo.

(4) In providing weapons to the Bosnian Government or taking other actions, care should be taken to provide for the safety of the United Nations Protection Force (UNPROFOR) and the civilian personnel working for the United Nations or nongovernmental volunteer organizations.

(5) The United States should immediately seek to organize an international effort to provide assistance to the states bordering Serbia and Montenegro to bring about more effective enforcement by those states of the international economic sanctions on the Government of Serbia and Montenegro.

(d) GENERAL UNITED STATES POLICY.—The United States should exercise leadership within the international community to cause the Bosnian Serb faction to accept the Contact Group proposal. Such action should be taken on separate but complementary international and unilateral tracks, as set forth in subsections (e), (f), and (g).

(e) INTERNATIONAL POLICY.—If the Bosnian Serbs do not accept the Contact Group proposal by the date that is the later of October 15, 1994, or the end of the 10-day period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, the President (or his representative) should, not later than 14 days thereafter, formally introduce and support in the United Nations Security Council a resolution to terminate the Bosnia arms embargo. The resolution should provide for the termination of the arms embargo no later than December 1, 1994 (and may allow for the termination to be accomplished in stages ending no later than that date).

(f) UNILATERAL UNITED STATES POLICY.—(1) If by the earlier of November 15, 1994, or the end of the 15-day period beginning on the date on which a resolution described in subsection (e) (or a similar resolution) is formally introduced, the United Nations Security Council has not agreed to such a resolution and the Bosnian Serbs have not accepted the Contact Group proposal—

(A) the funding limitation specified in paragraph (2) shall be in effect;

(B) the President shall submit a plan to, and shall consult with, Congress on the manner in which United States Armed Forces and the military forces of friendly states would provide training to the armed forces of the Government of Bosnia and Hercegovina outside of the territory of Bosnia and Hercegovina; and

(C) the President shall submit a plan to, and shall consult with, Congress regarding the unilateral termination by the United States of compliance with the Bosnia arms embargo and the implications thereof.

(2) If the funding limitation specified in this paragraph is in effect pursuant to paragraph (1)(A), then no funds appropriated by any provision of law may be used for the purpose of participation in, support for, or assistance to the enforcement of the Bosnia arms embargo by any Department, agency or other entity of the United States (or by any officer or employee of the United States or member of the Armed Forces of the United States) other than as required of all United Nations member states under the United Nations Security Council resolution referred to in subsection (h)(3) and the Charter of the United Nations.

(3)(A) The President may waive the limitation in paragraph (2) in the case of United States military personnel serving in NATO headquarters positions.

(B) Nothing in paragraph (2) is intended to impede enforcement of sanctions against Serbia.

(g) INTERIM POLICY.—If the Bosnian Serb faction attacks any area within those areas that have been designated by the United Nations as "safe areas", the President (or his representative) should promptly formally introduce and support in the United Nations Security Council a resolution that authorizes a selective lifting of the Bosnia arms embargo in order to allow the provision of defensive weapons (such as anti-tank weapons, counter-battery radars, and mortars) to enable the forces of the Government of Bosnia and Hercegovina to defend the safe areas.

(h) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section:

(1) The term "Contact Group" means the group composed of representatives of the United States, Russia, France, Britain, and Germany seeking to bring about a peaceful settlement of the conflict in Bosnia and Hercegovina.

(2) The term "Contact Group proposal" means the peace proposal of the Contact Group that has been agreed to by the Government of Bosnia and Hercegovina and rejected by the Bosnian Serb faction.

(3) The term "Bosnia arms embargo" means application to the Government of Bosnia and Hercegovina of the arms embargo imposed by United Nations Security Council resolution 713, of September 25, 1991.

Subtitle B—Assistance Activities

SEC. 1411. OVERSEAS HUMANITARIAN, DISASTER, AND CIVIC AID PROGRAMS.

(a) OHDACA PROGRAMS.—For purposes of section 301 and other provisions of this Act, programs of the Department of Defense designated as Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, and Civic Aid (OHDACA) programs are the programs provided by—

(1) sections 401, 402, 2547, and 2551 of title 10, United States Code;

(2) section 404 of title 10, United States Code, as added by section 1412; and

(3) section 1413 of this Act.

(b) LIMITATION.—Not more than one-half of the amount authorized to be appropriated in section 301 for those programs may be obligated until the regulations required to be prescribed by subsection (a) of section 1504 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1994 (Public Law 103-160; 107 Stat. 1839) have been prescribed.

SEC. 1412. FOREIGN DISASTER ASSISTANCE.

(a) AUTHORITY.—Subchapter I of chapter 20 of title 10, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"§404. Foreign disaster assistance

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The President may direct the Secretary of Defense to provide disaster assistance outside the United States to respond to manmade or natural disasters when necessary to prevent loss of lives.

"(b) FORMS OF ASSISTANCE.—Assistance provided under this section may include transportation, supplies, services, and equipment.

"(c) NOTIFICATION REQUIRED.—Not later than 48 hours after the commencement of disaster assistance activities to provide assistance under this section, the President shall transmit to Congress a report containing notification of the assistance provided, and proposed to be provided, under this section and a description of so much of the following as is then available:

"(1) The manmade or natural disaster for which disaster assistance is necessary.

"(2) The threat to human lives presented by the disaster.

"(3) The United States military personnel and material resources that are involved or expected to be involved.

"(4) The disaster assistance that is being provided or is expected to be provided by other nations or public or private relief organizations.

"(5) The anticipated duration of the disaster assistance activities.

"(d) ORGANIZING POLICIES AND PROGRAMS.—Amounts appropriated to the Department of Defense for any fiscal year for Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, and Civic Aid (OHDACA) programs of the Department shall be available for organizing general policies and programs for disaster relief programs for disasters occurring outside the United States.".

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections at the beginning of such subchapter is amended by adding at the end the following new item:

"404. Foreign disaster assistance.".

SEC. 1413. HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE PROGRAM FOR CLEARING LANDMINES.

(a) PROGRAM AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of Defense shall carry out a program for humanitarian purposes to provide assistance to other nations in the detection and clearance of landmines. Such assistance shall be provided through instruction, education, training, and advising of personnel of those nations in the various procedures that have been determined effective for detecting and clearing landmines.

(b) FORMS OF ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary may provide assistance under subsection (a) by—

(1) providing Department of Defense personnel to conduct the instruction, education, or training or to furnish advice; or

(2) providing financial assistance or in-kind assistance in support of such instruction, education, or training.

(c) LIMITATION ON UNITED STATES MILITARY PERSONNEL.—The Secretary of Defense shall ensure that no member of the Armed Forces of the United States—

(1) while providing assistance under subsection (a), engages in the physical detection, lifting, or destroying of landmines (unless the member does so for the concurrent purpose of supporting a United States military operation); or

(2) provides such assistance as part of a military operation that does not involve the Armed Forces of the United States.

(d) USE OF FUNDS.—Of the amount authorized to be appropriated by section 301 for Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, and Civic Aid (OHDACA) programs of the Department of Defense, not more than $20,000,000 shall be available for the program under subsection (a). Such amount may be used—

(1) for activities to support the clearing of landmines for humanitarian purposes, including activities relating to the furnishing of education, training, and technical assistance;

(2) for the provision of equipment and technology by transfer or lease to a foreign government that is participating in a landmine clearing program under this section; and

(3) for contributions to nongovernmental organizations that have experience in the clearing of landmines to support activities described in subsection (a).

(e) NOTICE TO CONGRESS.—The Secretary of Defense shall provide notice to Congress of any activity carried out under this section.

Summary of Conclusions

Measures to Deal with the Bihac Situation

1. The Principals agreed on the need to move forward in an expeditious but deliberate manner to gain support for actions to prevent Bihac from being overrun and to stabilize the situation, in order to return the focus to obtaining a negotiated settlement.

2. Principals approved the following set of triggers (action-forcing mechanisms) and potential responses as a basis for bilateral discussions with the British and French before taking further action in the NAC.

TRIGGERS

- o Serb offensive captures more territory in the Bihac area than held prior to the Bosnian Government offensives.
- o Serious artillery attacks on Bihac City.
- o Serious attacks against the Bangladeshi Battalion.
- o Bihac City suffers strangulation.

MENU OF OPTIONS

- o Establish exclusion zone (Dimensions negotiable).
- o Close Air Support in defense of UNPROFOR (Requires TACP insertion -- no new UN or NAC decisions required).
- o Close air support in response to artillery attacks from Croatia (NAC has approved; requires Croatian approval).
- o Extend Deny Flight ROE to permit attacking air defense assets in Croatia displaying hostile intent (Requires decisions at UN and NATO).
- o Modify existing authorities to authorize "hot pursuit" of aircraft attacking targets in Bosnia from Croatian airfields.

Implementing Nunn-Mitchell

3. The Principals reviewed progress on implementing Nunn-Mitchell and directed that efforts continue with Congressional members after refinement of the briefing by DoD to ensure that Congressional lift advocates fully understand the implications of lift. Our aim is to ensure that they are prepared to provide the required political and financial support if and when multilateral lift becomes necessary. Principals agreed that we remain opposed to unilateral lift.

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE

Natl Sec Advisor has seen

THROUGH: ALEXANDER VERSHBOW AV

FROM: DON KERRICK (K)

SUBJECT: Principals Committee Meeting on Bosnia, November 18, 1994.

PURPOSE OF MEETING

Principals need to agree on an approach to the Bihac problem and review progress on implementing Nunn-Mitchell and decide next steps on both. Agenda at Tab I.

I. Bihac

With limited time, ask the CIA to briefly update the current situation and give their assessment of what the likely outcome will be, including the prospects for Croatian intervention. State should review the progress of ongoing diplomatic efforts. Key issues:

0 Strategy: Goal is to defuse and contain. Deter Croatian intervention. Prevent humanitarian disaster and collapse of Contact Group and peace process.

-- Need to agree on approach. Agencies differ. DoD reluctant to press for the unachievable. Fears further rejection only makes it worse. State wants aggressive action for domestic political reasons and given strategic risks of inaction. Fears inaction will lead to collapse of peace process and wider war.

-- What are the next steps? Call for NAC to push exclusion zone? Other military options? Ride it out?

-- Do we engage the President now? Views differ on when to engage and for what purpose. Draft letters to Major/Mitterrand at Tab II.

Pls letter

II. UNSC Lift Resolution

Resolution remains on the table at the UN. Next steps: compromise resolution or push to vote? No resolution may be better than weak resolution.

III. Managing Nunn-Mitchell Implementation

Ask JCS to provide a brief update on the progress of implementing the modifications to military operations. Reaction calming down, but can expect hearings, etc.

IV. Next Steps with Allies and Congress

Allied reaction stabilizing, although much public play about status of alliance. Emphasize need to consult ahead of time on Hill activities regarding lift.

First round of briefings went as well as could be expected. Proponents of unilateral lift critical, others say fine. Secretary Perry directed rewrite of Hill briefing to showcase lift implications. Next version due next week. We will need to ensure it doesn't come down too hard against multilateral lift. Next round of member briefings likely in conjunction with GATT session. Issue: How to deal with Dole and others over next sixty days? Have proposed SECDEF/CJCS host members privately in December. Dole response at Tab III.

V. Contact Group Status Report

Contact Group met yesterday. Not much progress. May have stepped back on sanctions relief in Plan B, with EU advocating total relief in Phase II. Agreed on political goals for December 2 Ministerial. Reporting cable at Tab IV.

ACTION

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Messages to Prime Minister Major and President Mitterrand on Bihac

Purpose

To urge British and French Support for establishing an Exclusion Zone Around Bihac

Background

The situation in Bihac is grim and continuing to deteriorate. Efforts at NATO to establish an exclusion zone around Bihac are stalled, with little prospects for approval unless direction from capitals is received. The UN and UNPROFOR are reluctant to act even with a Bangladeshi battalion trapped in Bihac, ill-equipped and without adequate supplies. Ambassador Albright convoked an emergency session of the Security Council to underscore the urgency of the situation.

The British and the French have been skeptical of an exclusion zone, citing lack of UNPROFOR troops. They believe the Bosnian Government is getting its comeuppance for the recent offensives. High-level pressure is needed if we are to convince them to address the consequences of inaction and to work with us for strong action at the UN and NATO.

The Vice President, Secretary Christopher, and Ambassadors Albright and Hunter, agree that your intervention is needed if there is to be any further progress.

RECOMMENDATION

That you approve the message to Prime Minister Major at Tab A and President Mitterrand at Tab B.

PLEASE DELIVER THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT CLINTON TO PRIME MINISTER MAJOR.

BEGIN TEXT:

DEAR JOHN:

I WRITE TO EXPRESS MY DEEP CONCERN ABOUT THE RAPIDLY DETERIORATING SITUATION IN THE BIHAC AREA OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA AND TO URGE YOUR SUPPORT FOR IMMEDIATE ACTION TO HALT THE BOSNIAN SERB OFFENSIVE.

AS YOU KNOW, THE BIHAC SITUATION IS GRIM. WE CANNOT RULE OUT THE COLLAPSE OF THE ENTIRE BIHAC POCKET, WHICH COULD EVOLVE INTO A WORST-CASE SCENARIO THAT COULD REIGNITE THE WAR IN CROATIA. THE COLLAPSE OF BIHAC WOULD MARK A DANGEROUS TURNING POINT IN THE WAR, JEOPARDIZING PROSPECTS FOR ANY AGREEMENT BASED ON THE CONTACT GROUP PROPOSAL, WHILE POSSIBLY LEADING TO CROATIAN INTERVENTION AND A WIDENING OF THE WAR. ALL PREVIOUS PROGRESS, INCLUDING THE BOSNIAN-CROAT FEDERATION ITSELF, COULD QUICKLY UNRAVEL, LEAVING A MUCH MORE SERIOUS PROBLEM TO BE RESOLVED.

THEREFORE, I AM ASKING YOU TO JOIN US AT THE UN AND IN NATO IN OBTAINING AGREEMENT ON DECISIVE STEPS TO ADDRESS THE BIHAC SITUATION. WE HAVE PROPOSED THE RAPID ESTABLISHMENT OF AN EXCLUSION ZONE AROUND BIHAC BASED ON NATO'S APRIL DECISION ON PROTECTING THE SAFE AREAS. THIS WOULD CREATE A FIREWALL TO END THE FIGHTING AND SEND A SIGNAL TO THE CIVILIANS IN BIHAC THAT WE WILL NOT ALLOW THEIR CITY TO BE OVERRUN. ESTABLISHMENT OF SUCH A ZONE WOULD, OF COURSE, REQUIRE THAT THE BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT AGREE TO GIVE UP WEAPONS HELD WITHIN THE ZONE AND TO DESIST FROM USING THE BIHAC AREA AS A BASE FOR MILITARY OPERATIONS IN THE AREA. WE BELIEVE A 10-KILOMETER ZONE WOULD BE FEASIBLE WITH A MODEST REDEPLOYMENT OF UNPROFOR TROOPS. IF YOU HAVE OTHER IDEAS FOR HANDLING THE SITUATION, HOWEVER, WE ARE PREPARED TO DISCUSS THEM. BUT WE MUST TAKE FIRM ACTION NOW. FAILURE TO ACT COULD HAVE SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES.

BY ACTING NOW, WE WILL PRESERVE THE OPPORTUNITY THAT WE AND OUR CONTACT GROUP PARTNERS HAVE CREATED FOR A BROADER APPROACH TO THE SEARCH FOR A REGIONAL SETTLEMENT. IT IS CLEARLY IMPORTANT THAT WE MOVE PROMPTLY TO CONTAIN THE FIGHTING IN BIHAC AND RETURN THE FOCUS TO OBTAINING A NEGOTIATED SETTLEMENT. THE ALTERNATIVES SEEM

MUCH WORSE AND THAT IS WHY I BELIEVE WE MUST ACT TOGETHER NOW. I LOOK FORWARD TO YOUR SUPPORT AND TO SEEING YOU SOON IN BUDAPEST.

PLEASE DELIVER THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT CLINTON TO FRENCH PRESIDENT FRANCOIS MITTERRAND.

BEGIN TEXT:

DEAR MR. PRESIDENT:

I WRITE TO EXPRESS MY DEEP CONCERN ABOUT THE RAPIDLY DETERIORATING SITUATION IN THE BIHAC AREA OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA AND TO URGE YOUR SUPPORT FOR IMMEDIATE ACTION TO HALT THE BOSNIAN SERB OFFENSIVE.

AS YOU KNOW, THE BIHAC SITUATION IS GRIM. WE CANNOT RULE OUT THE COLLAPSE OF THE ENTIRE BIHAC POCKET, WHICH COULD EVOLVE INTO A WORST-CASE SCENARIO THAT COULD REIGNITE THE WAR IN CROATIA. THE COLLAPSE OF BIHAC WOULD MARK A DANGEROUS TURNING POINT IN THE WAR, JEOPARDIZING PROSPECTS FOR ANY AGREEMENT BASED ON THE CONTACT GROUP PROPOSAL, WHILE POSSIBLY LEADING TO CROATIAN INTERVENTION AND A WIDENING OF THE WAR. ALL PREVIOUS PROGRESS, INCLUDING THE BOSNIAN-CROAT FEDERATION ITSELF, COULD QUICKLY UNRAVEL, LEAVING A MUCH MORE SERIOUS PROBLEM TO BE RESOLVED.

THEREFORE, I AM ASKING YOU TO JOIN US AT THE UN AND IN NATO IN OBTAINING AGREEMENT ON DECISIVE STEPS TO ADDRESS THE BIHAC SITUATION. WE HAVE PROPOSED THE RAPID ESTABLISHMENT OF AN EXCLUSION ZONE AROUND BIHAC BASED ON NATO'S APRIL DECISION ON PROTECTING THE SAFE AREAS. THIS WOULD CREATE A FIREWALL TO END THE FIGHTING AND SEND A SIGNAL TO THE CIVILIANS IN BIHAC THAT WE WILL NOT ALLOW THEIR CITY TO BE OVERRUN. ESTABLISHMENT OF SUCH A ZONE WOULD, OF COURSE, REQUIRE THAT THE BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT AGREE TO GIVE UP WEAPONS HELD WITHIN THE ZONE AND TO DESIST FROM USING THE BIHAC AREA AS A BASE FOR MILITARY OPERATIONS IN THE AREA. WE BELIEVE A 10-KILOMETER ZONE WOULD BE FEASIBLE WITH A MODEST REDEPLOYMENT OF UNPROFOR TROOPS. IF YOU HAVE OTHER IDEAS FOR HANDLING THE SITUATION, HOWEVER, WE ARE PREPARED TO DISCUSS THEM. BUT WE MUST TAKE FIRM ACTION NOW. FAILURE TO ACT COULD HAVE SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES.

BY ACTING NOW, WE WILL PRESERVE THE OPPORTUNITY THAT WE AND OUR CONTACT GROUP PARTNERS HAVE CREATED FOR A BROADER APPROACH TO THE SEARCH FOR A REGIONAL SETTLEMENT. IT IS CLEARLY IMPORTANT THAT WE MOVE PROMPTLY TO CONTAIN THE FIGHTING IN BIHAC AND RETURN THE FOCUS TO OBTAINING A NEGOTIATED SETTLEMENT. THE ALTERNATIVES SEEM

Dear Mr. Leader:

I share your deep concern about the deteriorating situation in and around the town of Bihac in northwest Bosnia-Herzegovina. In the last few days, Bosnian Serb forces have rolled back most of the Bosnian Government's recent gains, and they appear bent on overrunning other areas that have been under Government control. We are particularly disturbed at the large-scale involvement of Serb forces from the Krajina region of Croatia.

As the Bihac crisis began to escalate over the weekend, we took action on a number of fronts. In an emergency session of the UN Security Council on Sunday, Ambassador Albright won agreement to a Presidential statement condemning the Serb offensive and the cross-border actions of the so-called Krajina Serbs. She also began consultations with the UN on possible steps that could be taken in response, including the possible establishment of an exclusion zone around Bihac. On Sunday, our Ambassadors in NATO capitals raised our concerns with our NATO allies. They called for establishment of an exclusion zone based on the earlier NATO decisions authorizing air strikes to defend against heavy weapons attacks on the safe areas. This proposal was taken up in the North Atlantic Council on Tuesday, and Allies agreed that the NATO Military Authorities should consult with their UN counterparts on creating an exclusion zone around Bihac. At the same time, we have been consulting with the government of Croatia on NATO's behalf in order to obtain its approval for NATO to conduct close air support, if requested by the UN, against artillery and other targets in the Krajina region that have been involved in the assault on Bihac.

We are continuing to press our Allies on establishing an exclusion zone. Ambassador Albright is convening the Security Council Thursday afternoon to underscore the seriousness of the situation and to urge action by the UN in coordination with NATO.

I hope you will stay in touch on this issue. I will always welcome your ideas as we work to resolve it.

Sincerely,

The Honorable Robert Dole
Minority Leader
United States Senate

E.O. 12356: DECL: OADR
TAGS: PREL BK HR SR ETTC
SUBJECT: CONTACT GROUP NOV. 17 MEETING: RESULTS

1. ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SUMMARY: THE CONTACT GROUP AGREED THAT THE DECEMBER 2 MINISTERIAL MUST ACHIEVE CONCRETE RESULTS THAT WOULD DEMONSTRATE CONTACT GROUP UNITY AND PROVIDE A DYNAMIC IMPETUS TO THE PEACE PROCESS. THE NON-U.S. MEMBERS READILY ACCEPTED THE SUBSTANCE OF A PROPOSED U.S. GAME PLAN FOR THE MINISTERIAL. THAT PLAN WOULD CALL ON THE MINISTERS TO REAFFIRM THEIR SUPPORT FOR THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN FOR BOSNIA. IN ORDER TO COUNTERACT POSSIBLE PALE MISUNDERSTANDING OF PLAN A, MINISTERS COULD LAY OUT A CHRONOLOGY OF EXACTLY WHAT WOULD HAPPEN FOLLOWING PALE SERB ACCEPTANCE OF THE MAP. IN ADDITION, MINISTERS COULD PROVIDE A RINGING ENDORSEMENT OF PLAN B.

3. IN CONSIDERING SANCTIONS RELIEF UNDER PLAN B, WE RAN INTO STRONG RUSSIAN AND EU INSISTENCE ON FULL SANCTIONS RELIEF IN PHASE II. THEY ARGUED VEHEMENTLY THAT A BOLD DECISION BY MILOSEVIC REQUIRED A BOLD RESPONSE BY THE CONTACT GROUP. IN THIS CONTEXT, WE WERE ABLE TO GET EUROPEAN AGREEMENT TO ADDING THE INCENTIVE ELEMENTS FROM THE EU ACTION PLAN TO PLAN B. THESE ELEMENTS WOULD HELP ENSURE THAT MILOSEVIC MAINTAINED HIS ADHERENCE TO COMMITMENTS UNDER PLAN B. WE WILL NEED FURTHER DISCUSSIONS ON THE QUESTION OF SANCTIONS RELIEF.

4. IT WAS AGREED THAT THE CONTACT GROUP SHOULD VISIT ZAGREB, SARAJEVO AND BELGRADE DURING THE WEEK PRECEEDING THE CG MINISTERIAL. THE CG (MINUS THE RUSSIANS WHO HAD ALREADY DEPARTED) ALSO DECIDED TO MEET ON DECEMBER 1 AND WILL RECOMMEND A CONTACT GROUP MEETING REINFORCED BY POLITICAL DIRECTORS ON DECEMBER 2, THE MORNING BEFORE THE MINISTERIAL. END SUMMARY

CONTACT GROUP MINISTERIAL GAME PLAN AGREED

5. ALL MEMBERS OF THE CONTACT GROUP STRONGLY CONCURRED ON THE NEED FOR THE DEC. 2 CONTACT GROUP MINISTERIAL TO PRODUCE CONCRETE RESULTS WHICH DEMONSTRATED CONTACT GROUP UNITY AND COHESION. IN ADDITION, WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE RUSSIANS WHO STILL HAVE TO CONSULT WITH KOZYREV, ALL AGREED WITH THE PROPOSED U.S. GAME PLAN FOR THE MINISTERIAL. THE COMPONENTS OF THE GAME PLAN ARE AS FOLLOWS:

– PLAN A: THE MINISTERIAL SHOULD PRODUCE A DECLARATION THAT CLARIFIES WHAT HAPPENS IF THE CONTACT GROUP MAP IS ACCEPTED BY THE PALE SERBS. THE NEED FOR THIS IS BASED ON CONTACT GROUP DISCUSSIONS WITH MILOSEVIC, RUSSIAN CG REPRESENTATIVE ZOTOV'S MEETING WITH MILOSEVIC YESTERDAY, AND RECENT INTEL INDICATING THAT THE PALE SERBS MAY INDEED MISUNDERSTAND THE CONTACT GROUP PROPOSAL. WE SUGGESTED THAT THE MINISTERIAL PAPER LAY OUT IN CHRONOLOGICAL ORDER EXACTLY WHAT STEPS WOULD FOLLOW PALE SERB ACCEPTANCE OF THE MAP. IT SHOULD PARTICULARLY EMPHASIZE THAT THE PALE SERBS WOULD HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO NEGOTIATE ON CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUES AND POSSIBLE LAND SWAPS BEFORE THE INITIATION OF WITHDRAWALS. IT WOULD ALSO PROVIDE FOR GUARANTEES OF THE NEW DEMARCATION LINES.

–PLAN B: THE MINISTERIAL SHOULD ALSO PROVIDE A RINGING ENDORSEMENT OF PLAN B, EMPHASIZING THE CRITICAL IMPORTANCE OF SERBIAN RECOGNITION OF ALL THE FORMER YUGOSLAV REPUBLICS AND ITS SUPPORT FOR THE Z-4 PROPOSAL.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

EQUAL RIGHTS ISSUE RESOLVED

6. THE PROPOSED EU LANGUAGE TO RESOLVE THE "EQUAL RIGHTS" QUESTION WAS ACCEPTED BY ALL CONTACT GROUP MEMBERS, ALTHOUGH ONCE AGAIN THE RUSSIANS WILL HAVE TO RAISE IT WITH KOZYREV. WE DON'T EXPECT THAT WILL BE A PROBLEM. WE BELIEVE THE NEW LANGUAGE IS A BIG IMPROVEMENT OVER WHAT THE RUSSIANS, BRITISH AND FRENCH HAVE BEEN SAYING IN PUBLIC. IT IS ALSO AN IMPROVEMENT OVER THE GENEVA III FORMULATION. THE OPERATIVE LANGUAGE OF THE NEW FORMULATION IS AS FOLLOWS: " IN THE CONTEXT OF BOSNIAN SERB ACCEPTANCE OF THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN, BALANCED TREATMENT FOR THE BOSNIAC-CROAT AND BOSNIAN SERB ENTITIES WILL BE ENSURED, INCLUDING THE ESTABLISHMENT OF PARALLEL SPECIAL RELATIONSHIPS WITH NEIGHBORING COUNTRIES, PROVIDED THIS IS NOT INCONSISTENT WITH THE INTEGRITY OF BOSNIA HERCEGOVINA." THE BRITISH NOTED IN THIS REGARD, THAT IN THEIR DISCUSSIONS WITH BOSNIAN PRIME MINISTER SILAJDZIC YESTERDAY HE WAS FORWARD LEANING ON THE SUBJECT OF LINKAGES BETWEEN THE PALE SERBS AND SERBIA AND HAD ASKED THAT WE PASS HIS POSITION ON TO MILOSEVIC.

SANCTIONS RELIEF IN PLAN B

7. EU MINISTERS HAVE AGREED ON A REVISED PLAN B UNDER WHICH ALL UN SANCTIONS WOULD BE SUSPENDED, REPEAT SUSPENDED, WHEN SERBIA RECOGNIZES BOSNIA AND CROATIA AND ACCEPTS AND SUPPORTS THE ZAGREB 4 PLAN. (TODAY WE INSISTED THAT PLAN B MUST INCLUDE RECOGNITION OF SLOVENIA AND MACEDONIA AS WELL. THE EUROPEANS, AND APPARENTLY THE RUSSIANS, INDICATED THEY COULD AGREE TO THIS IN THE CONTEXT OF U.S. ACCEPTANCE OF THE EU'S PLAN B PROPOSAL.)

8. WE ARGUED AGAINST FULL SANCTIONS RELIEF IN PHASE II BUT THE EUROPEANS WERE ADAMANT ON THE NEED FOR A TRULY BOLD RESPONSE TO A BOLD GESTURE BY MILOSEVIC. THE RUSSIANS, OF COURSE, WOULD BE PREPARED TO OFFER SANCTIONS RELIEF WITH NO FURTHER STEPS BY THE SERBS. WE AGREED TO CONTINUE DISCUSSIONS ON THIS ISSUE.

9. EU REPS AGREED WITH US ON THE CRITICAL IMPORTANCE OF INCLUDING A MECHANISM IN THE PLAN FOR REIMPOSING SANCTIONS SHOULD MILOSEVIC FAIL TO CONTINUE TO MEET HIS COMMITMENTS, I.E., PERIODIC SECURITY COUNCIL REVIEW AND POSITIVE ACTION TO CONTINUE SANCTIONS RELIEF. (THE RUSSIANS HAD ALREADY DEPARTED WHEN THIS WAS DISCUSSED.)

10. EU REPS INSISTED THAT SUSPENSION OF FINANCIAL SANCTIONS COULD NOT BE SEPARATED FROM TRADE SANCTIONS

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

BUT NOTED THAT RELEASE OF FROZEN ASSETS WOULD NEED TO BE CONSIDERED IN LIGHT OF "SUCCESSOR STATE" CONCERNS. THE EU CONSIDERED THE DEFINITION OF "STRATEGIC GOODS" (UNSCR 787 VERSUS EU ACTION PLAN) A MOOT ISSUE FOR PLAN B BECAUSE THEY WOULD NOT HOLD BACK SANCTIONS RELIEF ON TRADE IN STRATEGIC GOODS.

11. AT U.S. REQUEST, THE EUROPEANS AGREED TO INSERT THE INCENTIVE MEASURES CONTAINED INTHE EUROPEAN ACTION PLAN AS PART OF THE OVERALL PLAN B PACKAGE. THESE MEASURES WOULD BE HELD BACK TO HELP ENSURE FULL COMPLIANCE BY MILOSEVIC WITH THE PLAN. AMONG OTHER THINGS, THE MEASURES INCLUDE SPECIAL TRADE AGREEMENTS WITH THE EU (MUCH DESIRED BY MILOSEVIC) AND ACCESS TO THE IFI'S.

GAS FOR SERBIA

12. THE RUSSIANS AGAIN MADE A STRONG PITCH TO SEND "HUMANITARIAN" GAS TO SERBIA. WE RESPONDED THAT THIS WOULD BE UNACCEPTABLE AS LONG AS SARAJEVO WAS NOT RECEIVING GAS SUPPLIES AND WE WOULD CONSIDER IT ONLY IN THE CONTEXT OF THE NEW YORK SANCTIONS GROUP.

CONTACT GROUP VISIT TO THE CAPITALS

13. THE CONTACT GROUP DECIDED IT SHOULD VISIT BELGRADE, SARAJEVO AND ZAGREB DURING THE WEEK PRECEEDING THE CONTACT GROUP MINISTERIAL. WE NOTED THAT CONSULTATIONS WITH MILOSEVIC REGARDING HANDLING OF THE PALE SERBS WOULD BE ESSENTIAL IF WE WERE TO ADVANCE THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN AT THE CG MINISTERIAL. MORE IMPORTANTLY, THE CG HAD NOT BEEN TO SARAJEVO FOR THREE MONTHS AND THE GOBH WAS COMPLAINING THAT IT HAD NOT BEEN ADEQUATELY CONSULTED BY THE CONTACT GROUP. THE CONTACT GROUP WILL MEET IN PARIS ON NOVEMBER 27, BEFORE UNDERTAKING THE TRIP TO CAPITALS. THE CONTACT GROUP (MINUS THE RUSSIANS, WHO HAD ALREADY DEPARTED) ALSO AGREED TO A DECEMBER 1 MEETING AND RECOMMENDED A CG MEETING REINFORCED BY POLITICAL DIRECTORS ON THE MORNING OF DECEMBER 2. THE PURPOSE OF THESE MEETINGS WOULD BE TO FINALIZE PREPARATION FOR THE CG MINISTERIAL ON DECEMBER 2.

Next Steps on Bihac

1. The Principals discussed the current situation in the Bihac region and agreed that our main goals should be to end the fighting and support efforts to negotiate measures to permit humanitarian aid to reach the besieged population. The Principals agreed not to press further for strategic air strikes to roll back Serb forces. They affirmed that the U.S. will stand by its commitment through NATO to provide Close Air Support or air strikes if requested by UNPROFOR with the proviso that appropriate action is available to NATO to deal with the Serb air defense threat.

Short-Term Strategy

2. The Principals agreed to press for a broadened diplomatic strategy based upon the following elements:

- Country-wide cessation of hostilities for at least three months, and preferably six months, tied to a reinvigorated diplomatic effort.

- Demilitarization of the Bihac safe area within its established limits, to be enforced by existing UNPROFOR troops, possibly with limited augmentation by Dutch or other NATO-country elements with TACP capabilities.

- Bosnian Serb agreement to provide unimpeded access for humanitarian relief convoys to all safe areas and other hard-pressed areas of Bosnia, including opening the "blue route" for commercial access to Sarajevo.

- Bosnian Government agreement to comply with previous demilitarization agreements around Sarajevo.

- Renewed diplomatic contacts with all parties by the Contact Group (and/or through the convening of an international conference).

  -- While we would end the freeze on contacts with the Bosnian Serbs, the Contact Group map would remain as the starting point for negotiations on territory; nevertheless, the Contact Group could explore informally possible land swaps on the basis of mutual consent among the parties.

  -- The Contact Group would make clear that constitutional principles and the question of links to neighboring states would be on the table, on the basis of "balanced" treatment for the Bosniac-Croat Federation and the Bosnian Serb entity.

- A modified "Plan B" should still be offered to Milosevic.

  -- However, in return for U.S. agreement to the EU's front-loaded approach to sanctions relief, we should insist on more stringent conditions, possibly to include Bosnian Serb compliance with cessation of hostilities and humanitarian access agreements, as well as steps purely in Milosevic's control (mutual recognition, support for Z-4 plan, etc.).

  -- We will also insist on short periods for sanctions suspension and a credible mechanism for reimposing the sanctions if Milosevic ceases to comply with the conditions.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- We will also press Milosevic to cut off support for the Krajina Serbs, including closing the Serbian-Croatian border in Sector East, with the sanctioning of international monitors.

- Final litmus tests should be laid down by Contact Group as the basis for a decision in January (at the end of 100-day period) on whether to extend the limited sanctions relief that is now in effect for Serbia. We should demand much stricter compliance than currently being demonstrated, including "zero option" for fuel and military shipments to the Bosnian Serbs, physical closure of most crossings, and perhaps agreement to increase the number of monitors.

- We should warn Milosevic that sanctions tightening, and not just an end to sanctions suspension, will occur if we are not satisfied at the 100-day mark.

- We should press forward with efforts to contain spillover: push Z-4 plan, press for Belgrade dialogue with Kosovo Albanians, strengthen support for Macedonia.

Longer-Term Strategy

3. The Principals deferred decision on steps to take should the short-term approach fail to produce desired progress. The Principals were asked to consider the following elements, or a combination thereof, of a longer-term strategy as a basis for discussion at a future meeting:

- Multilateral lift and strike, preceded by an orderly (NATO-assisted) departure of UNPROFOR. U.S. would set time limit for its military support and air involvement (1-2 years), after which Bosnians would be on their own. Diplomatic efforts would continue in the hope that lift would bring Bosnian Serbs to their senses.

- Reinforcement of UNPROFOR and redefinition of its mission so that NATO air power can be used more aggressively on the basis of its current mandates. (This might have to include a U.S. ground force commitment, unless we would want a largely Islamic-country force).

- U.S. disengagement from diplomatic efforts, focus on containment of spillover to Croatia and Kosovo. Plan for maintaining sanctions against Serbia and Bosnian Serbs for the long term, with international community refusing to recognize Serb territorial conquests. UNPROFOR would remain in a purely humanitarian role, to the extent possible.

Dealing with NATO and Allies

U.S. - NATO Relationship

4. The Principals discussed the impact of recent events in Bosnia on NATO and strongly reaffirmed the importance of the alliance to the United States, recognizing that future U.S. involvement in Bosnia should be conducted in concert with our allies.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Impact of Nunn-Mitchell on NATO

Principals acknowledged allied concerns that Nunn-Mitchell was the first step leading to unilateral lifting of the arms embargo which could have serious consequences on the alliance. They agreed to make strong statements opposing unilateral lift in the upcoming Ministerials and in public.

U.S. Participation in NATO Ground Operations in Bosnia

The Principals reviewed the state of planning at NATO and within UNPROFOR for the withdrawal of UNPROFOR forces from Bosnia should that be required. They recognized that uncertainty surrounding U.S. ground forces participation in a NATO operation to assist UNPROFOR withdrawal required clarification. They agreed to recommend to the President that he authorize Secretaries Christopher and Perry to inform the allies that the U.S. agreed to participate in such an operation in principle, to include ground forces, pending review of the plan, alternatives and Congressional consultants. Action: OSD/JCS to prepare paper summarizing current state of NATO/UNPROFOR military planning and framing degree of U.S. commitment as a basis for decision memo for the President.

Dealing with Congress and the Public

5. The Principals agreed that efforts should continue to raise the awareness in Congress about the implications of unilateral lifting of the arms embargo and to strongly oppose unilateral lift in public and in Congressional consultations. Secretary Perry will begin the next round of consultations this week using his weekly breakfast with key members. The Principals further agreed to DoD hosting private sessions with key members. The Principals directed that talking points be prepared outlining next steps in Bosnia. Action: NSC to develop talking points.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRIME MINITSTER
TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES MESSAGE TO PRESIDENT CLINTON

DEAR BILL
BIHAC HAS UNDERLINED THE PROBLEMS WE ALL FACE IN OUR EFFORTS TO MOVE BOSNIA TOWARDS PEACE. MORE THAN EVER, WE NEED TO BE CLEAR ABOUT THE ROAD AHEAD AND HOW WE CAN BEST WORK TOGETHER.
THE NATO STRIKE ON UDBINA AIRFIELD WAS THE RIGHT RESPONSE TO THE AIR ATTACKS BY THE CROATIAN SERBS. THE TARGETING TODAY BY NATO OF SAM SITES INCLUDING THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR ATTACKS ON BRITISH HARRIERS WAS ALSO RIGHT. I WORRY OF COURSE THAT, DAY BY DAY, NATO IS BEING DRAWN FURTHER INTO THIS CIVIL WAR. BUT WE HAVE GIVEN UN AND NATO COMMANDERS THE AUTHORITY TO CALL ON AIR STRIKES IF THEY BELIEVE THESE ARE NEEDED FOR UNPROFOR TO FULFIL ITS MANDATE FOR BIHAC AND OTHER SAFE AREAS. IF THEY DO SO, I SHALL FULLY SUPPORT THEIR DECISION.

YOU AND I KNOW THAT THERE WILL NOT BE A MILITARY SOLUTION IN BOSNIA AND WE HAVE BOTH SAID SO IN PUBLIC. WE SHOULD DO EVERYTHING WE CAN TO REINFORCE THIS MESSAGE. UNPROFOR IS NOT EQUIPPED, STRUCTURED OR MANDATED TO IMPOSE PEACE, PARTICULARLY WHEN THE PARTIES THEMSELVES SEEM TO WANT WAR. NOR CAN ONE FORCE GROUND TROOPS TO WITHDRAW BY BOMBING THEM FROM THE AIR. WE MUST URGENTLY REDOUBLE OUR EFFORTS TO BRING ABOUT A POLITICAL SETTLEMENT. WARREN CHRISTOPHER, DOUGLAS HURD AND OTHER CONTACT GROUP FOREIGN MINISTERS WILL HAVE TO FINALISE HOW TO DO THIS WHEN THEY MEET NEXT WEEK. THE CONTACT GROUP HAS MESSED AROUND FOR TOO LONG. IT MUST RE-ENGAGE WITH THE WARRING PARTIES AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. WE CANNOT LET THEM STRING US ALONG INDEFINITELY. BUT WE MUST ALLOW ENOUGH TIME TO SEE IF A POLITICAL SOLUTION CAN BE FOUND BEFORE THE SPRING.

I SYMPATHISE WITH YOUR DIFFICULTIES WITH CONGRESS. I SHALL SEE SENATOR DOLE NEXT WEEK, AND MAKE SURE HE UNDERSTANDS OUR CONCERNS ABOUT THE APPROACH HE ADVOCATES. I WILL TELL HIM, AMONG OTHER THINGS, THAT NATO IS NOT AVAILABLE FOR WAGING WAR ON BEHALF OF THE BOSNIAN MUSLIMS.

I SEE TWO VERY SERIOUS RISKS IN THE WAY MATTERS ARE DEVELOPING. FIRST, THE PRESSURE FROM CONGRESS FOR UNILATERAL LIFT IS ENCOURAGING MILITANCY ON THE GROUND. THIS MAY IN ITSELF FORCE UNPROFOR TO WITHDRAW. THAT WOULD BE A DIFFICULT MILITARY OPERATION. ALLIANCE PLANNING IS BASED ON HAVING US FORCES ON THE GROUND TO EXECUTE IT AT ACCEPTABLE RISK. THE DAMAGE TO BOSNIA WOULD BE INCALCULABLE. THE WAR WOULD ESCALATE AND THE GAINS OF THE LAST YEAR WOULD BE LOST. I ALSO FEAR THAT WAR WOULD REIGNITE IN CROATIA.

THE SECOND RISK IS EVEN MORE FAR-REACHING. WE HAVE WORKED HARD IN LONDON, DRAWING ON THE STATEMENTS FROM THE US ADMINISTRATION, TO LIMIT THE STRAIN WITHIN THE ALLIANCE CAUSED BY THE US DECISION TO WITHDRAW FROM OPERATION SHARP GUARD. WE HAVE POINTED TO THE LIMITED PRACTICAL EFFECT OF THIS DECISION AND THE CONTINUED COOPERATION WITHIN THE ALLIANCE ON OTHER ASPECTS OF BOSNIA POLICY. BUT EUROPEAN MEMBERS OF THE ALLIANCE REMAIN DEEPLY CONCERNED ABOUT THE DIVERGENCE OVER BOSNIA.

WE IN BRITAIN ARE ACUTELY AWARE OF WHAT THE TRANSATLANTIC RELATIONSHIP HAS MEANT TO US FOR GENERATIONS.

WE HAVE ALSO STRONGLY SUPPORTED US POLICY TOWARDS RUSSIA, WHICH MAY BE LOST ALTOGETHER IF OUR COOPERATION WITH RUSSIA OVER BOSNIA COLLAPSES AND YOU AND THE RUSSIANS BACK DIFFERENT SIDES IN THE WAR.

WE MUST FIND WAYS OF ENSURING THAT BOSNIA DOES NOT PREJUDICE OUR WIDER COMMON AND STRATEGIC INTERESTS.

I AM NOW CONSIDERING HOW WE SHOULD BEST PROCEED. AT THE MOMENT WE ARE BEING DRIVEN TOO MUCH BY EVENTS AND EXTERNAL FORCES. SIMPLY RATCHETING UP THE AIRSTRIKES WILL NOT MOVE THE SITUATION FORWARD, BUT COULD FORCE UNPROFORS WITHDRAWAL. IT IS HIGH TIME THE CONTACT GROUP REGAINED THE INITIATIVE AND CONFRONTED THE PARTIES WITH THE POTENTIAL CONSEQUENCES OF THEIR ACTIONS. NEXT WEEKS MEETING IS AN OPPORTUNITY WE MUST TAKE.

I SHALL BE CONSULTING CABINET COLLEAGUES EARLY NEXT WEEK, AND WOULD WELCOME YOUR VIEWS BEFORE THEN. DO YOU SEE A WAY OF BREAKING THE DOWNWARD SPIRAL?

YOURS EVER

THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE
WASHINGTON, DC 20301-1000

29 November 1994

MEMORANDUM FOR THE ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR NATIONAL SECURITY AFFAIRS

SUBJECT: US Participation in UNPROFOR Withdrawal Operations (U)

~~(S-NF)~~ NATO's detailed planning for the withdrawal of UNPROFOR will not be complete until mid-December. However, the emerging concept is as follows: NATO will assume command of the theater, including operational command of UNPROFOR within Bosnia-Herzegovina. Forward command posts from NATO, including a corps, a subordinate division, and several brigade level headquarters, will deploy to Bosnia. Although the actual level of NATO forces required will be based on intelligence estimates and political conditions at the time of mission execution, this operation could require heavy support, including four to five additional brigades. Some or all of the NATO forces and supporting elements would be pre-positioned into the theater or inside Bosnia before the actual withdrawal commences in order to deter resistance from warring elements.

~~(S-NF)~~ Up to now, we have declined to commit to participation in this proposed operation. Now, in view of the frictions that have developed within the Alliance, it is important at the upcoming series of meetings with NATO that the Secretary of State, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and I be authorized to tell our counterparts that the United States agrees in principle to participate in a NATO-led operation to support UNPROFOR's withdrawal, including committing ground forces, subject to our review of the detailed plans and consultations with Congress.

Summary of Conclusions

Diplomatic Strategy

1. The Principals reviewed the status of diplomatic efforts. Noting the importance of showing progress before the Congress convenes in January, the Principals agreed to press for a cease-fire and an early meeting of the parties, under Contact Group direction, that builds on the December 2 Contact Group Ministerial decisions. State will discuss this with Contact Group partners and invite the parties to attend. Action: State.

Status of UNPROFOR

2. The Principals discussed the status of NATO planning for the withdrawal of UNPROFOR, noting that the NATO planning should be completed within a week and would be followed by a request to capitals to identify specific force contributions.

3. The Principals agreed to encourage UNPROFOR to stay and to look for ways that would contribute to a permissive withdrawal, should withdrawal become necessary, and to identify measures to improve the effectiveness of UNPROFOR in response to recent Bosnian Serb actions. Should withdrawal from Bosnia become inevitable, the Principals agreed that efforts should be made to retain UNPROFOR in Croatia and Macedonia. Action: DoD develop UNPROFOR options.

4. The Principals agreed that further discussions should be held with the French and other Allies on the possibility of reopening Sarajevo airport and a humanitarian corridor from the coast to Sarajevo (Blue Route). The U.S. approach will be to support the route opening as a French initiative to preclude the perception that we might be pressing for action which we are unwilling to support with ground forces. Further consideration should also be given to the option of disabling Serb weapons at collection sites around Sarajevo and then withdrawing UNPROFOR personnel from the sites. Action: DoD and State develop options and strategy.

5. The Principals discussed strategy following UNPROFOR withdrawal and agreed that we will continue to support a multilateral lifting of the arms embargo as the option of last resort should the Bosnian Serbs continue to reject a cease-fire and negotiations based on the Contact Group proposal. The Principals requested a round-up of the responses to last week's State cable to NATO and capitals regarding our post-withdrawal strategy. Action: State provide summary of responses by COB December 14.

Sanctions

6. The Principals discussed the upcoming 100-day decision point on extending sanctions relief for the Serbian border closure. They agreed that while the U.S. position should be based upon the facts available at the time, they do not favor an open-ended extension, preferring at most a 100-day extension.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Congressional Strategy

7. The Principals reaffirmed their desire for continued efforts to raise the awareness in Congress about the implications of a unilateral lifting of the arms embargo and to strongly oppose unilateral lift in public and in Congressional consultations. The Principals noted the possible need to use the veto to counter unilateral lift efforts.

8. The Principals discussed whether it would be politically prudent to seek or encourage Congressional authorization for U.S. participation in a NATO-led operation to support UNPROFOR withdrawal, without compromising the President's legal prerogatives to act without such authorization. They agreed to defer a decision on a recommendation to the President until further consultations with both the outgoing and incoming leadership are completed. The Principals requested an informal head-count be conducted to better understand Congressional thinking about U.S. participation in UNPROFOR withdrawal. Action: NSC and State provide summary of Congressional thinking.

9. The Principals agreed that efforts should continue to raise the awareness in Congress about our Bosnia policy and the implications of a unilateral lifting of the arms embargo. They reaffirmed that our policy will be to strongly oppose unilateral lift in public and in Congressional consultations, and to draw a distinction between unilateral and multilateral lift. It was agreed that traveling teams should offer briefings to members during the Congressional recess. Action: OSD, JCS, State and NSC to organize briefings.

Deputies Committee Meetings

10. The Principals agreed to the convening of periodic Deputies Committee meetings on Bosnia.

INFORMATION

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Principals' Review of Bosnia Policy

Principals met on Monday afternoon to review our Bosnia policy in the wake of your decision in principle to commit U.S. ground forces to assist in UNPROFOR withdrawal and Chris's December 2 meeting with his Contact Group counterparts.

Focus on Diplomacy: Everyone agreed that it was critical to use the weeks between now and the arrival of the new Congress to show concrete progress toward a diplomatic settlement. Absent such progress, it will be much harder to fend off legislation mandating a unilateral lifting of the arms embargo. (Whether you should threaten to veto any such legislation was discussed briefly; it is the subject of a separate memorandum.)

Chris will be contacting his Contact Group counterparts in the next few days to coordinate efforts to convene a meeting of the parties under Contact Group aegis before year's end. Our special envoy, Ambassador Charles Thomas, believes both sides are eager to negotiate territorial trade-offs once a time-limited ceasefire is agreed. The challenge will be to persuade the Bosnian Serbs to accept a 3-4 month ceasefire now that they feel they have successfully intimidated the international community from taking decisive action against them. While Milosevic has put some pressure on the Bosnian Serbs through his closure of the border, Chris feels we cannot rely solely on the Serbian leader, who -- despite his personal grudge against Karadzic -- has not abandoned his Greater Serbia ambitions.

Restoring UNPROFOR's Credibility: Principals noted that, in the wake of your decision to support UNPROFOR withdrawal and with the specter of lifting the arms embargo post-withdrawal, allies have reaffirmed their desire to keep UNPROFOR in place. Following up on Bill Perry's and my encouraging talks with French Defense Minister Léotard, we will explore at NATO several options for increasing UNPROFOR's effectiveness: redeploying or reconfiguring UNPROFOR so that it can better defend itself against Serb attacks; opening a humanitarian corridor from the coast to Sarajevo; and (once again) disabling Serb heavy weapons at collection sites around Sarajevo as a basis for withdrawing UNPROFOR personnel from these vulnerable sites. We will continue to take the position that if, despite our best efforts, UNPROFOR withdrawal cannot be avoided, then our strategy should be to lift the arms embargo multilaterally.

Dealing with the Congress: Principals weighed the pros and cons of seeking or encouraging a Congressional authorization in the event we have to deploy ground forces to support UNPROFOR withdrawal. No one suggested conceding Presidential prerogatives as a legal matter. But opinion was divided on whether it would be politically prudent to seek an authorization given the risk of American casualties and the need for bipartisanship, or whether this would simply be an invitation to amendments tying U.S. participation to unilateral lift. It was agreed to revisit this question after we have a clearer sense of Congressional attitudes toward U.S. participation in a withdrawal operation.

In any event, we will step up our consultations on Bosnia with the incoming Congressional leadership in the coming weeks. The aim will be to build support for our diplomatic approach and to highlight the dangers of unilateral lift -- in terms of damaging NATO and making the U.S. solely responsible for the conflict. In pursuing these consultations, we will be careful to distinguish between unilateral and multilateral lift, given the potential need for Congressional support for a lift-and-strike strategy if diplomatic efforts fail.

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Principals' Review of Bosnia Policy

Principals met on Monday afternoon to review our Bosnia policy in the wake of your decision in principle to commit U.S. ground forces to assist in UNPROFOR withdrawal and Chris's December 2 meeting with his Contact Group counterparts.

Focus on Diplomacy: Everyone agreed that it was critical to use the weeks between now and the arrival of the new Congress to show concrete progress toward a diplomatic settlement. Absent such progress, it will be much harder to fend off legislation mandating a unilateral lifting of the arms embargo. (Whether you should threaten to veto any such legislation was discussed briefly; it is the subject of a separate memorandum.)

Chris will be contacting his Contact Group counterparts in the next few days to coordinate efforts to convene a meeting of the parties under Contact Group aegis before year's end. Our special envoy, Ambassador Charles Thomas, believes both sides are eager to negotiate territorial trade-offs once a time-limited ceasefire is agreed. The challenge will be to persuade the Bosnian Serbs to accept a 3-4 month ceasefire now that they feel they have successfully intimidated the international community from taking decisive action against them. While Milosevic has put some pressure on the Bosnian Serbs through his closure of the border, Chris feels we cannot rely solely on the Serbian leader, who -- despite his personal grudge against Karadzic -- has not abandoned his Greater Serbia ambitions.

Restoring UNPROFOR's Credibility: Principals noted that, in the wake of your decision to support UNPROFOR withdrawal and with the specter of lifting the arms embargo post-withdrawal, allies have reaffirmed their desire to keep UNPROFOR in place. Following up on Bill Perry's ~~encouraging~~ and very encouraging talks with French Defense Minister Léotard, we will explore at NATO several options ~~from~~ for increasing UNPROFOR's effectiveness: redeploying or reconfiguring UNPROFOR so that it can better defend itself against Serb attacks; opening a humanitarian corridor from the coast to Sarajevo; and disabling Serb heavy weapons at collection sites around Sarajevo as a basis for withdrawing UNPROFOR personnel from these vulnerable sites.

Proposed Congressional Strategy

During the month of December, we should continue with Hill briefings and principal-to-principal conversations on our overall Bosnia policy. We will have to adjust our message as a result of the recent decision to commit U.S. forces for the withdrawal of UNPROFOR. We should also consider whether and when a Presidential meeting with key Congressional leaders would be appropriate as urged by both Rep. Hamilton and Sen. Lugar.

Before beginning briefings, we must also consider whether or not to seek Congressional authorization for U.S. participation in the NATO led operation. The problem with seeking an authorization is that we could fail to get Congressional approval. We would then have to decide whether or not to move forward with our decision to participate in any case. In addition, it is important to understand any authorization will likely be loaded up with amendments that would attempt to dictate the terms of our Bosnia policy (time limits, command and control, rules of engagement, prohibition on a dual key, etc.). While these provisions may be acceptable in substance, it would set a precedent for seeking an authorization on any future operations of this kind.

The benefit for seeking an authorization is putting Congress on record in support of a potentially dangerous mission. In addition, if we secure Congressional support we put ourselves in a much stronger position to fend off troubling legislative initiatives that might cut off funds or call for a date certain for the withdrawal of our troops. Finally, by seeking Congressional support, we are sending a strong signal to the Hill that we are making every effort to work with them.

We recommend undertaking further discussions with the Hill regarding our decision to participate in the operation before making a final decision. If the response is favorable, we then need to judge whether the conditions likely to be imposed in the authorization are tolerable. If they are not, then we will have to reconsider our options. We need to gear our Hill discussions over the coming weeks with this in mind.

We recommend that both DoD and State work together in discussing our overall Bosnia policy with the Hill and our specific decision to participate in principle in a NATO-led operation to facilitate the withdrawal of UNPROFOR should that become necessary. It is crucial that we speak with one voice on this issue.

We will also continue to work with the relevant committees to set up briefings and hearings in January. Should we decide to seek an authorization and should such an authorization become necessary, we will step up efforts considerably in working with and briefing the Hill on the importance of our participation in the NATO operation.

The President
The White House
Room 102 East Wing
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

We support a change in U.S. policy toward Bosnia. Current policy has been on a path of encouraging increased violence and assuming greater U.S. responsibility for the outcome of the conflict. The net effect of current policy is to embolden the Bosnian Muslim-Croat forces to continue the fighting indefinitely, believing the United States is their ally against the Bosnian Serbs.

Last week, we completed a fact-finding trip to Europe consulting with several U.S. and European diplomats and military officials closest to this conflict. Most of those officials believe that current U.S. policy needs reconsideration. We agree. The view we bring to you represents a consensus opinion calling for a redirection in U.S. policy.

No one challenges U.S. intentions. But the complexity of the Bosnian conflict defies understanding. We found that no nation or international organization has a complete picture of the situation. Each is working hard to find a solution, but without collective unity of effort...it could be described as a "Tower of Babel" situation.

The UN Protection Force (UNPROFOR) has not been given sufficient credit, particulary in the media, for successfully providing humanitarian relief and controlling violence. The continued presence of UNPROFOR in the region is critical to achieving a cease fire and any future political solution.

NATO unity is jeopardized by recent U.S. unilateral action concerning Bosnia. Our proposed unilateral lift of the arms embargo and robust use of air power threatens the safety of our allies' troops on the ground. We are convinced that the strength and unity of NATO is more important than pursuing short-sighted and expedient policies in Bosnia. Independent U.S. action undermines U.S. leadership and influence which most NATO members regard as key to effective security and stability in Europe.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

We urge that U.S. policy be modified to reflect a realistic appraisal of the political, social, and military conditions in Bosnia. Despite its repugnant picture, the lines are drawn in Bosnia...we cannot roll back the clock. All parties are resolved to defend their ground and are blinded by irrationality, hatred, and deep distrust.

Unfortunately, it is clear that many Americans have a simplistic view of the conflict. The most obvious misconception is that the Serbs are the "bad guys" while the Muslim-Croats are the "good guys." However, the tragic record of loathsome behavior and willful violations of civility show that all parties have very dirty hands in this conflict.

Recognizing these difficulties, we believe a consensus éxists within UNPROFOR, NATO, and among our friends in Europe that negotiations can bring about agreement in Bosnia. Accordingly, we support a change in U.S. policy that follows these themes:

- Harmonize U.S. Bosnian policy with NATO's long-term aims for unity and European security.
- Contain the conflict to Bosnia.
- Do not take sides. Support UNPROFOR's impartial task of humanitarian relief and peacekeeping.
- Get a cease fire as soon as possible.
- Talk to the Bosnian Serbs and the Muslim-Croat Government. Bring all parties to the negotiating table.
- Work through the Contact Group to redraw the map, negotiate a settlement, and establish security guarantees for all sides.

We believe a window of opportunity exists to end widespread violence in the region. Bosnians are tired of war. A military stalemate exists that prevents either side from gaining meaningful results. Now is the time to start negotiating an attainable settlement.

The President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

As we discussed on the telephone yesterday, I believe that there is strong sentiment in the Congress that something must be done to establish rough military parity in Bosnia by eliminating the current Serb advantage in heavy weapons, thereby allowing the Bosnians to defend themselves and thus accelerating a negotiated end to the Bosnia conflict. Some members of Congress favor accomplishing this through a unilateral U.S. lifting of the arms embargo on Bosnia. Others support lifting the embargo multilaterally. Unfortunately, there is little hope that this latter approach will be agreed upon by NATO or by the U.N. Security Council.

I believe that the cohesion of NATO will be seriously threatened if the United States pursues a unilateral lift of the arms embargo. This will lead to our allies basically saying to us that Bosnia is now the responsibility of the United States.

Senator Lugar and I have asked Secretary Perry to review an alternative strategy. With the cohesion of NATO at issue if the U.S. undertakes a unilateral lift, we suggest the following three-prong approach.

(1) The zones in Bosnia from which all heavy weapons are excluded would be expanded step by step.

(2) Any heavy weapon detected in a proscribed area would be subject to NATO air attack.

(3) In areas where air attack is not adequate, we and our NATO allies would undertake partial lifting of the embargo by providing the Bosnians with a carefully selected package of defensive arms (anti-tank weapons, mortars).

Enclosed is a copy of the letter we sent to Secretary Perry, setting forth this basic approach. I am also enclosing a copy of Secretary Perry's reply.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Our NATO allies may have serious concerns with this approach, particularly while UNPROFOR is deployed throughout Bosnia. There is no doubt that our strategy involving enforcement from the air will be very difficult as long as UN forces remain on the ground in Bosnia. However, if our allies will not agree to a multilateral lifting of the arms embargo, a multilateral "build-down" of heavy weapons would be much preferable to a unilateral U.S. arms build-up in Bosnia. It could be discussed with our allies as a policy option that would meet Congressional concerns while avoiding the grave problems for U.S.-European relations associated with a unilateral lift.

I hope you will give this idea careful consideration.

Sincerely,

WASHINGTON, DC 20510-6050

The Honorable William J. Perry
Secretary of Defense,
The Pentagon
Washington D.C. 20301

September 30, 1994

Dear Bill:

We are writing to ask you to conduct an expedited policy review of the military impact of a build down strategy as an alternative to the lifting of the United Nations Arms Embargo on the government of Bosnia Herzegovina.

As you know, there is strong support in the Congress for reducing the disparities in defense capability among the parties involved in the conflict in Bosnia. Some members of Congress have supported a unilateral lifting of the embargo, others have favored a multilateral lifting that would involve our NATO allies who have troops on the ground with the UNPROFOR forces.

All versions of the lift strategy have the downside that the introduction of more arms, especially heavy armament, could increase the level of violence in Bosnia and thus run counter to the widely shared objective of ending the military conflict. Our allies have been particularly concerned about this prospect, and have stated their intention to withdraw their troops from UNPROFOR if the arms embargo on the Bosnian government is lifted. They are convinced that such a move would lead to a significant increase in violence in Bosnia including Serbian attacks on allied troops.

The recent change of policy by the government of Bosnia Herzegovina regarding the timing of a lift of the arms embargo, and the recent closing of the Serbian-Bosnian border has provided the opportunity for a new US approach which could lead to the leveling of the field in Bosnia we have sought, while also leading to a reduction in violence. This new approach would be to eliminate the heavy equipment held by all sides in Bosnia in a step by step process. We feel this approach warrants a serious and comprehensive review at the highest levels within the Department of Defense.

The build down concept is the flip side of the idea of lifting the arms embargo on the Bosnian government. The idea would be to level the ground by eliminating all or most of the heavy equipment on both sides by either destroying it or removing it from Bosnia. This could apply to all tanks, artillery, and heavy mortars.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

This strategy, like the strategy of lifting the arms embargo raises serious questions which merit your review. How would our NATO allies react to such a proposal? How would the factions in Bosnia likely react? Would such an approach be enforceable? Could we find economic incentives to make the proposal attractive to the factions?

If feasible, we believe a proposal along these lines could garner broad support in the Congress and could set the stage for renewed efforts to develop a negotiated settlement of the Bosnian crisis. We know that the lifting of the arms embargo has met with significant implementation obstacles. A build-down policy may have similar disadvantages. We therefore urge you to conduct an immediate policy review of such a strategy to assess its merit.

As you consider this alternative approach to the current legal requirement for the President to request a multilateral lifting of the arms embargo, we would also appreciate your assessment of the outcome of compliance with current law, in view of the recent changes of policy by the governments of Serbia and Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Sincerely,

Richard C. Lugar

WASHINGTON, THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

7 October 1994

The Honorable Sam Nunn
Chairman, Committee on Armed Services, SROB Room 228
United States Senate
Washington, DC 20510-6050

Dear Sam:

I am pleased to respond to your letter of September 30, 1994 asking me to review the military impact of a build down strategy.

You present an intriguing concept. Bosnia build down is a conceptual breakthrough that captures the moral high ground on this issue--namely, that there is another way to level the battlefield. Rather than increase arms through lifting the embargo, we may be able to reduce the number of available weapons through a regulated process.

Indeed our current Bosnia policy might be seen as the first phase of a build down strategy. Our commitment to robust enforcement of the exclusion zones and our effort to seal the border between Serbia and Bosnia-Herzegovina represent the first steps in an arms reduction process. An interagency team is working to develop a phased strategy that would move from these early steps to a more comprehensive build down of all heavy weapons, including tanks, artillery, and heavy mortars. Obviously, we will need to address a number of difficult questions about verification, enforcement, assurances against circumvention, and economic incentives that might make the proposal more attractive. We are confident that we can find solutions to these problems, and we will keep you informed as we proceed. We are extremely grateful to you and Dick Lugar for developing the concept and bringing it to our attention.

You asked for our assessment of the outcome of compliance with the current law. We intend to abide fully by the intent of the law. If the Bosnians Serbs have not accepted the Contact Group's proposal by October 15, the President intends within two weeks of that date to introduce and support a UN Security Council Resolution to terminate the arms embargo on Bosnia-Herzegovina. We are considering various formulations of the lift resolution that would delay implementation for six months, as President Izetbegovic proposed at the United Nations last week.

With respect to the limitation on the use of funds in Section 1404(f)(2), we are reviewing our rules of engagement and will make any changes necessary to comply with the law. We also intend fully to maintain the arms embargo on Serbia and to that end will continue our operations in the Adriatic. In his statement on signing the bill the President noted that it would not affect the

US government's ability to participate in activities in the Adriatic needed to enforce sanctions against Serbia.

The President has also agreed that if no UN resolution on multilateral lift is passed within a reasonable period of time, he will consult with the Congress on next steps, to include the possibility of unilaterally lifting the embargo. In our view, this step should be considered after all other remedies are exhausted. The consequences of unilateral lift are perilous: Americanizing the conflict, as well as prolonging and intensifying it; precipitating an arms race; souring relations with our NATO and UN allies; undermining the partnership we are building with Russia; causing retaliatory attacks on UNPROFOR and the collapse of its mission; and in the end not offering any guarantee of ultimate success on the battlefield.

We appreciate your willingness to work with us in finding a solution to the complex and seemingly intractable problem of bringing peace to Bosnia. You have my assurance that we will consult regularly and work with you at every opportunity.

Sincerely,

Bill Perry

Summary of Conclusions

RUSSIA/CHECHNYA

1. The Principals reviewed the situation on the ground in and around Grozny and discussed the likelihood that Russian forces will continue to face opposition from irregular forces, perhaps augmented by outside mercenaries. The CIA was requested to produce a short (2 pg) paper analyzing the implications of the Chechnya affair for surrounding ethnic regions (e.g., Ingushetia, Dagestan, Abkhazia) and actions those regions may be taking in reaction to Chechnya. Action: CIA. (S)

2. The Principals agreed on the need for a careful line of public comment that welcomed positive developments, like the prospect of eventual free elections in Chechnya, while not seeming to cheerlead blindly for what might prove an unacceptable solution, e.g., installation of a puppet regime. Press guidance prepared for the President's use was circulated to ensure that comments by Principals or their spokespersons would be consistent. (S)

3. Principals discussed the need to identify points of leverage we may be able to use to influence Yeltsin and other Russian officials to make the right choices on reform issues and in further steps in Chechnya. Such points could include the scheduling of the next summit, or the nature of Russian participation in Halifax G-7 meeting. Action: NSC and State to develop a game plan. (S)

4. Ambassador Albright discussed persistent problems with Russian positions at the U.N. which directly counter or challenge our interests, most notably the UNMIH mandate issue. Principals agreed that if attempts over the coming week to convince the Russians to support the U.S. position are unsuccessful, the President should seek Yeltsin's support in a letter. Action: State to continue diplomatic efforts; NSC to draft letter, if needed. (S)

FORMER YUGOSLAVIA

Bosnia:

1. Principals reviewed the status of the cease-fire and cessation of hostilities agreement and Contact Group efforts to renew negotiations on a political settlement. They agreed that Deputies should review territorial and constitutional issues that will arise in the negotiations but that the USG must be careful to avoid any appearance of departing from its commitment to the Contact Group plan. Recognizing the possibility of a continuing impasse in the negotiations, Principals directed that a mid-term diplomatic strategy paper be prepared for Deputies' review as preparation for a future discussion by Principals. Action: State. (S)

2. Principals discussed the upcoming Washington visit of Bosnian Prime Minister Silajdzic and the impact it could have on Congressional support for unilateral lifting of the arms embargo. State undertook to circulate a paper outlining a strategy for handling the Silajdzic visit. Action: State. (S)

Croatia:

3. Principals reviewed options available for responding to President Tudjman's decision to terminate UNPROFOR's mandate in Croatia when it expires on March 31. Recognizing the important strategic interests that the U.S. has in Croatia, the Principals directed that talking points prepared for USDP Slocombe's meeting with President Tudjman be appropriately modified to focus on the risks of the decision on the ground, our commitment to a reinvigorated diplomatic effort aimed at reintegration of the occupied areas, and our support for retention of at least part of the UNPROFOR contingent. Action: OSD/State (S)

4. Principals discussed the potential difficulties of withdrawing UNPROFOR from Croatia, in the event withdrawal takes place, and asked the Deputies to promptly review the political and military aspects of supporting UNPROFOR withdrawal. Action: State and JCS prepare papers on political and military aspects of U.S./NATO support for withdrawal of UNPROFOR/Croatia. (S)

Congressional and Public Affairs Strategy:

5. Principals discussed next steps in dealing with Congress following the previous week's interagency briefings and asked that an unclassified version of LTG Clark's testimony on unilateral lifting of the arms embargo be prepared for follow-up briefings on the Hill. Principals agreed on the importance of defeating a vote on unilateral lift rather than allowing the Congress to put the President in the position of having to use the veto. They also agreed to defer a decision on the timing for publishing Secretary Perry's op-ed. (S)

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals reviewed the progress of efforts to renew negotiations on a political settlement, options for responding to the French proposal for an international conference, and prospects for achieving mutual recognition of all former Yugoslav Republics as a means of further isolating the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs. They agreed that recognition by Belgrade of Bosnia and Croatia, if genuine, would be a positive step toward resolving the Balkans conflict, although not a panacea. Principals approved a renewed effort with Milosevic aimed at achieving meaningful mutual recognition of all former Yugoslav Republics. (Action: State) ~~(S)~~

2. Principals discussed options for handling the French proposal for an international conference to promote cross-recognition and launch new negotiations. They agreed that a conference would only be useful if it is well prepared and produces positive results. Principals agreed that State should engage Contact Group partners to shape the conference agenda, making clear the conditions for U.S. support and participation. (Action: State) ~~(S)~~

3. Principals reviewed options for suspending sanctions against Belgrade in return for cross-recognition of all former Yugoslav Republics, continued endorsement of the Contact Group plan, continued closure of the FRY border to all but humanitarian supplies for Pale and Knin, and support for the Zagreb-4 plan. They authorized discussions with Contact Group partners aimed at developing a common position on the degree of sanctions relief we would be willing to trade for recognition. Principals approved the Plan B alternative in the OVP paper as the starting position for achieving a common position, with flexibility to accept further compromises short of the full EU position. (Action: OVP/State) ~~(S)~~

4. Principals reviewed the status of NATO military planning to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia and Croatia. They agreed that, while we should continue to press Croatia to retain at least a reduced UNPROFOR presence, our planning should assume that the Croatian decision will not be reversed. Therefore, Principals agreed to support NATO's Phase I prepositioning of communications equipment to establish a theater communications architecture that will support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia, as well as implementation of a peace plan should a peace agreement be reached. Principals directed that talking points be prepared for calls to appropriate Congressional staff informing them of the Administration's support for Phase I prepositioning. (Action: State and NSC) ~~(S)~~

5. Principals also agreed that the U.S. could inform NATO Military Authorities of the forces the U.S. would provide to an UNPROFOR withdrawal operation from Bosnia, while reaffirming that their actual deployment would be contingent on a final review of the plans and consultations with Congress. (Action: JCS) ~~(S)~~

6. Principals discussed extending to Croatia the President's decision, in principle, to commit U.S. ground forces to a NATO operation supporting UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia. They agreed to recommend to the President that he authorize U.S. participation in a NATO operation to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia should it become necessary. They directed that a decision memorandum for the President be prepared that includes the concept, rough size, and duration of the mission. (Action: NSC with JCS input) They also directed that a legislative strategy be prepared for consulting with the Congress if the

President approves the recommendation. (Action: State and NSC) ~~(S)~~

7. Principals discussed the status of efforts at the United Nations to strengthen UNPROFOR in Bosnia. Reiterating their support for the strengthening measures adopted at the December Chiefs of Defense meeting in The Hague, they requested that the Deputies review the issue and make a formal recommendation on next steps. (Action: JCS) ~~(S)~~

8. Principals discussed a longer-term strategy in the event diplomacy fails to achieve a negotiated settlement and UNPROFOR withdraws from Bosnia and Croatia. They requested more comprehensive planning on options to contain the conflict should fighting rekindle, with special emphasis on strengthening forces in Macedonia to deter expansion of the war. (Action: OSD) Principals also requested an analysis of the impact on the region should current UN forces in Macedonia be reinforced or replaced. (Action: CIA) ~~(S)~~

MUTUAL RECOGNITION

Pros:

- Serbia's recognition of its neighbors offers the chance to put the Serb leadership on the record in opposing a greater Serbia. As such recognition would be a major step.

- Serbia's recognition of Croatia and Bosnia also puts pressure on Knin and Pale to reach agreement on autonomy before their leverage begins to dissipate.

- Assuming recognition also includes Macedonia -- a step we must insist on -- it would help stabilize the political situation in Skopje and give Gligorov a major and much needed boost. As it would be accompanied by some sanctions relief, recognition would be a tremendous help to the beleaguered Macedonian economy which is suffering from the effects of enforcing sanctions against Serbia and the embargo imposed by Greece.

- Recognition also offers Serbia a chance to reenter the international community, a development which might help arrest the ominous centralization and trend toward a more brutal Milosevic dictatorship.

Cons

- It will be difficult for the international community to develop consensus on the meaning of recognition. Milosevic, as his foreign minister has already done, may offer recognition by the "Federal Republic of Yugoslavia," a formulation which some of our Contact Group partners will accept, but which would not forswear a greater Serbia.

- Any approach to Milosevic for recognizing his neighbors will likely require a steep price in sanctions relief. We can expect serious disagreements within the Contact Group on how far to go. Sensing a lack of international resolve Milosevic may well hold out for a maximum position.

- Milosevic may recognize the borders of his neighbors, but he is unlikely to include relations with Izetbegovic, and will try to show within Serbia that his decision was not made at the price of Serb interests. We must therefore seek more than a one-line TANJUG release and look for ways to link recognition with UN membership for Serbia.

- Recognition would also need to be made in tandem with a strengthened Serb commitment to closing the inner Serb border and in breaking the ties between the Bosnian Serb army and the JNA. Ultimately, the Bosnians may have to defeat the BSA on the field to recapture territory while Milosevic endures the unendurable by blocking military assistance.

- Finally, sanctions relief for recognition implies a slide from the CG plan.

CROATIA STRATEGY FOLLOW-UP

DRAFT

U.S. Goals

- Using UNPROFOR, minimize chance of Serbo-Croat hostilities and support peace efforts in Bosnia;

-- Promote a settlement between Croatia and Serbs, testing parties' willingness to negotiate;

-- Limit damage if hostilities erupt.

Where we are

-- Presidential letter asked Tudjman to leave UNPROFOR intact, but he was determined to expel it from UNPAs.

-- U.S. laid down marker on 5 essential UNPROFOR elements:

1. Monitor Serbo-Croat separation zones;

2. Maintain liaison with Knin;

3. Help implement confidence-building measures;

4. Support Bosnia/Macedonia, including relief convoys;

5. Operate Zagreb headquarters.

-- Croats have not closed door on these five, but only agree to Bosnia-related measures so far.

-- They have put out feelers about other monitors (WEU, NATO, OSCE, EU), and we are probing their thinking without compromising our insistence on continued UN presence.

-- Threat of UNPROFOR pull-out is high risk:

o puts pressure on Serbs to settle;

o could spark brutal war.

-- Because Tudjman wants time to let his threat work on Serbs, a visible approach on a compromise now would meet another rebuff.

-- Also, time lets our displeasure work on Tudjman, particularly if his threats bear little fruit.

-- Serious bargaining on a reduced UNPROFOR mandate is unlikely until the March 31 deadline approaches.

Framework for action

-- In run-up to mandate renewal, U.S. should:

  - o lay groundwork for those negotiations;
  - o try to launch political talks, making clear that progress is up to parties, not us;
  - o prepare to limit human and diplomatic casualties if war erupts.

-- Best way to maximize possibilities for UNPROFOR retention is to promote Serbo-Croat talks:

  - o Further progress on economic confidence-building creates additional agreed tasks for UNPROFOR;
  - o Progress toward political talks would give Tudjman cover in explaining any "compromise" on UNPROFOR.
  - o Much depends on Zagreb's (false?) hopes for mutual recognition from Belgrade.

-- Immediate approach to Tudjman should be limited to NATO contingency planning;

  - o emphasizing withdrawal from Bosnia rather than Croatia;
  - o but recognizing that the two are virtually inseparable.

-- We should argue that separation zone monitoring must remain integrated with UN operations, pending further probing on Croatian thinking by Portuguese WEU Presidency.

-- The redefined UNPROFOR mandate would include at least the five essential elements identified by U.S.

  - o UNSC Resolution could require language for new tasks UNPROFOR assumed under cease-fire and ECBM agreements.
  - o Although many Vance Plan mandates remain unimplemented (demilitarization, refugee return), formally eliminating them would send wrong signal.

-- We would urge UNPROFOR to start redeploying quietly to minimize possibilities for troops being taken hostage or getting caught in cross-fire.

DECISION PAPER

Subject: Pre-positioning for Bosnia Contingencies (U)

1. (~~C~~) Purpose. To provide information for Interagency decision on the early commitment of US communications personnel and assets when SACEUR requests, and the NAC approves, the early deployment of the initial C3 package and other Phase 1 actions prior to NAC approval of OPLAN 40104 and a NAC decision to execute the remaining phases of the withdrawal operation.

2. (U) Background.

a. (~~C~~) There is general consensus that negotiations have stalled and renewed warfare in Bosnia (and Croatia) this Spring is likely. This is not to detract from the importance of continuing to pursue negotiations as the only means of preventing a resumption of fighting, but reflects the realities of the situation. Since the same pre-positioning is required for either peace plan implementation or withdrawal support, NATO military authorities desire to take prudent military measures to support either eventuality.

b. (~~C~~) The following confluence of factors supports the need to be ready to conduct an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia in April/May 1995: the expiration of the UNPROFOR mandate in Croatia (31 March), the expiration of the four month cessation of hostilities agreement (30 April), the Bosnian government push to give the Bosnian Serbs a 2 month deadline to start negotiations or return to open warfare, the next sanctions renewal review (late April), and the return of good weather when Spring arrives.

c. (~~C~~) Final MC and NAC approval of OPLAN 40104 could take several weeks. If approval is unduly delayed SACEUR may request the NAC to authorize the deployment of the C3 package and other Phase 1 actions in advance of OPLAN approval and a decision to actually commence the withdrawal operation.

d. (~~C~~) SACEUR has established the following planning timelines for an UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia: (derived from a combination of OPLAN 40104 and information provided by SACEUR)

PHASE 1 (PREPARATION) (Duration: 4 weeks, commencing 6-8 weeks prior to a NAC decision to execute the withdrawal)

- SACEUR would request NAC approval of the OPLAN or a separate NAC decision to implement Phase 1.
- Logistic/Movement Control actions must be initiated. Deployment of pre-positioned assets provided by the US required, date uncertain.
- Installation of C3 architecture commences. Includes deployment of pre-positioned assets provided by the US.

PHASE 2 (DEPLOYMENT OF MAIN BODY OF TROOPS BEFORE ACTUAL WITHDRAWAL OPERATIONS BEGIN) (Duration 2-4 weeks)

- The NAC decision to execute the withdrawal starts Phase 2.
- Two to four weeks are required before the initial 3 NATO brigades (2-US, 1.4d begin operations in Bosnia.

The OPLAN estimates a decision not to deploy prepositioned C3 assets would delay the operation by about 10 days. SACEUR is reexamining this timeline and attempting to implement actions which shorten the time required for Phase 1.

3. (U) Pre-positioned C3 Package Details.

a. (~~C~~) The C3 package, consisting of about 800 personnel and equipment EO 13526 1.4d , provides a full, secure military communications system with ties to theater tactical systems, NATO systems, national military systems, commercial phone systems, and the UNPROFOR system. Personnel would EO 13526 1.4d No personnel would be deployed to Bosnia or the Krajina as part of the initial C3 package. The number of C3 nodes to be activated during pre-positioning, the number of soldiers, and their nationalities are still being refined, as is the number of support and security troops.

b. (~~C~~) Included in the four week Phase 1 preparation period is the time to finalize national contributions, prepare personnel and equipment for movement, negotiate appropriate contracts for the use of civilian communications lines and satellite frequencies, and purchase off-the-shelf communications equipment to supplement the military system. It actually

3/10

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

c. (~~C~~) The initial cost of deploying this C3 package is under $2 million. Once deployed and operational, the manpower can be reduced by about half, and it will cost about $500,000 per month to maintain operational. There is currently $14 million in the NATO peacekeeping fund. Although funding decisions have not been agreed at NATO or between NATO and the UN, it is anticipated no additional funding would be required at this time.

d. (~~C~~) The CINCSOUTH OPLAN 40104 C3 package supplements and interfaces with that already established for DENY FLIGHT and SHARP GUARD, and provides the dedicated communications circuits necessary to support an UNPROFOR withdrawal from both Bosnia and Croatia. The existing communications systems are not adequate for a significant ground operation.

4. (~~C~~) Discussion. The issues for consideration are: (a) the probability of UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia this Spring, (b) the balance between the political signals this deployment sends and the military preparations needed to carry out a successful operation, and (c) the US leadership role in NATO.

a. (~~C~~) There is a pessimistic consensus that the cessation of hostilities is likely to collapse and war will return to Bosnia this Spring.

b. (~~C~~) Tudjman is serious about not renewing the UNPROFOR mandate. UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia will probably lead to Croat-Krajina Serb fighting, which could spill over into Bosnia.

c. (~~C~~) Pre-positioning the C3 package is a prudent military action to prepare for a timely UNPROFOR withdrawal operation. Should a peace agreement be reached, NATO is better prepared for peace plan implementation. If the status quo continues, the C3 package is small enough that it can be repositioned and the experience factored into future planning.

d. (~~C~~) A significant military concern is the deployment of US signal, logistic, transport, and engineering assets for a NATO operation prior to NAC approval of the OPLAN and determination of D-Day. These assets would be unavailable for other contingencies while committed to NATO. The effect on readiness must be weighed against the risks involved in lengthening the OPLAN's deployment schedule. The requirement to pre-position logistical, transportation, movement control, and engineer assets during Phase 1 has not been determined.

e. (~~C~~) Pre-positioning will send several signals: NATO is serious about taking meaningful action, NATO supports UNPROFOR, and that UNPROFOR is serious about leaving if war breaks out. Careful control of these signals is required to ensure the proper message is sent. These signals could prompt the warring parties to get serious about coming to a negotiated settlement, or precipitate action by one or both sides.

f. (C) Other options short of pre-positioning to speed implementation after a NAC decision to execute include:

- Pre-stage required assets for prepositioning at home bases.

EO 13526 1.4d

g. (C) Since the President has already committed to US participation in an UNPROFOR withdrawal, including the use of ground troops, the deployment of several hundred communications personnel outside the high threat area is a low profile, low risk, high gain decision. It would show US leadership in the Alliance and send a signal that NATO is serious about supporting UNPROFOR.

5. (U) Recommendations.

a. (C) Inform SACEUR that the US government will approve the concept of pre-positioning the initial C3 package, including US personnel, and other Phase 1 actions prior to final NAC decisions on OPLAN 40104 approval and execution of the remaining phases of the withdrawal operation when the issue is formally raised and approved at the NAC.

b. (C) Provide guidance to the US Mission to NATO to support discussions on prepositioning with Croatian authorities to ensure NATO access to required facilities.

The Balkans--Options for the Worst Case

UNPROFOR Withdrawal.

Pressure is growing for a general withdrawal of UN military forces from the Balkans. The Croatians demand that UNPROFOR begin leaving Croatia at the end of March; European contributors will pull out of UNPROFOR in Bosnia if the US passes a unilateral lift law, and Congressional support for US funding for UNPROFOR is in doubt . In addition to a general frustration with UNPROFOR and the lack of progress toward a peace settlement, any one of the above actions could generate the momentum to end the UNPROFOR operations in the Balkans. This paper addresses the implications of a total UN withdrawal and options to support US security interests in the region without UNPROFOR.

Scenario:

- UNPROFOR withdraws from Croatia and Bosnia; considers withdrawal from Macedonia;
- U.S. Congress passes the unilateral lift legislation;
- Fighting intensifies in Bosnia and breaks out between Croats and Krajina Serbs.
- Islamic nations increase their deliveries of military equipment to Bosnia; Islamic UNPROFOR troop contributors remain in Bosnia through bilateral arrangements;
- Milosevic increases assistance to the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs; Serbs seek support from Russia.
- Humanitarian assistance becomes far more difficult in Bosnia; new humanitarian requirements develop in Croatia; some NGOs remain, but deliveries of aid will be severely disrupted;

Assumptions:

- NATO forces successfully extract UNPROFOR from Bosnia and Croatia and leave no residual forces in either area.
- Operations DENY FLIGHT and SHARP GUARD will end with UNPROFOR withdrawal.
- Once lifted from Bosnia, the arms embargo will be lifted from Macedonia and Slovenia as well.

Implications for the U.S.:

The scenario above constitutes the path to a wider Balkan War and the breakdown of the current diplomatic and military containment policy in the region. Such a scenario raises the stakes and involves U.S. vital interests in preventing the spread of the conflict in Southern Europe. Thus, the new problem is re-establishing containment of the conflict within the new bounds.

The greatest spillover threat is to the south where Greece and Turkey could be engaged as combatants on opposite sides of a conflict. While Slovenia might be destabilized by a war in Croatia, Austria and Hungary provide a stable buffer on the north of the conflict area. In the south, Macedonia is key to stability. If UNPROFOR withdraws from Croatia and Bosnia, a stability force is still mandatory in Macedonia.

Stability Options for Macedonia.

- Command and Control:
  -UN retains responsibility under a rump UNPROFOR or a new organization.
  -A European organization (WEU or EU) creates a military structure for Macedonia.
  -NATO assumes the mission in Macedonia.
  -US takes unilateral responsibility for containment of the conflict;

- Deploy additional US/NATO combat forces to Macedonia;

- Deploy conventional ground forces Albania, naval forces in the Adriatic and air forces to the region, possibly in Macedonia and Albania.

- Expand operations DENY FLIGHT and SHARP GUARD over Croatia, Macedonia and Albania.

- Conduct defensive military training and force development programs in Macedonia.

- Promote political and economic programs to supplement military stability measures.

Discussion:

The UN option retains an overly cumbersome command structure with a confusing mandate and a tarnished track record. Nor is it in the U.S. interests to act unilaterally in any conflict with implications just as vital if not more vital for Europe than the U.S. Unilateral US action risks damage to NATO, PFP, and our emerging partnership with Russia. Moreover, the American people would likely be particularly hesitant to support any U.S. involvement of ground combat forces without a similar commitment from our NATO allies. Finally, it would be logistically difficult if not impossible to get so involved without the direct support of our NATO allies.

A NATO-run containment strategy has intrinsic merit. Containment of the conflict is a European problem first and foremost, and NATO has the existing political and military infrastructure to support such activities. An exclusively NATO-led operation would not be plagued by the dual-key, chain-of-command difficulties that have characterized the current state of affairs in Bosnia to date.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

If The Process Breaks Down

Since the signing of the Washington Accords last spring, we have had almost a year of relative--if unhappy--stability in the former Yugoslavia. But we are now heading into a dangerously fluid period.

By May, three scenarios, broadly speaking, seem possible:

A. An exploding and interconnecting war beginning in the Krajina and then spreading to Central Bosnia. Milosevic may intervene. The UNPROFOR position in Bosnia could become untenable and a NATO-led extraction effort will be increasingly difficult.

B. A Serb/Croat accommodation could suddenly emerge after much huffing and puffing which could include some kind of Zagreb assurances on the Krajina and leads into a brutal carve up of Bosnia with Greater Serbia, an enlarged Croatia, and a rump Muslim reservation wedged between the two states. UNPROFOR would leave or serve disgracefully as the custodian. The Croatians stated publicly in Munich that this will never happen, but...

C. Enhanced stabilization in the region as a result of broader acceptance of borders, the maintenance of the current cessations of hostilities and movement into negotiations that would protect Serb rights/autonomy in both Bosnia and Croatia.

Obviously we want to move toward the third possibility and avoid the other two. This requires a vigorous diplomatic effort as well as strong support for the Federation.

We must frankly admit that our chances of nudging the situation into a mutual recognition track are no better than one in five. We are probably not able to offer Milosevic enough to draw him forward, considering nationalist pressures in Belgrade. Thus we are likely to face a crisis of some sort--war or bloody carve-up of Bosnia--and soon.

Assuming that disengagement is not feasible, our position during that period should have the following elements:

-- Contain the conflict if at all possible. Even if UNPROFOR disintegrates we should keep forces in Macedonia with a NATO flag if need be.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- Hold the Contact Group together, partly for possible future use, partly to inhibit the members from leaning to one side or another.

-- Do all we can to hold the Federation together as noted above.

-- Keep the pressure via sanctions on Milosevic as the man who said no to recognition and the arch villain in the drama.

-- Continue to oppose lift pressures in Washington unless some of our allies begin to see some virtue in multilateral lift.

With the next conflagration, if it is to occur, this war may burn itself out. There may be some possibility of a settlement that we can help put in place, if we are near at hand.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals met to review the U.S. position on additional sanctions relief for Milosevic in return for Serbian recognition of Bosnia, Croatia and other former Yugoslav republics within their existing borders. While they agreed that mutual recognition, in itself, will not lead to political settlements, the possibility that recognition might alter the strategic equation and head off a new war in Croatia justified the risks of our support. Therefore, Principals authorized our Contact Group representative to agree to offer a total suspension of sanctions on the FRY in return for mutual recognition, subject to the following conditions:

A. Conditions proposed by State:

-- that Milosevic's recognition of Croatia, Bosnia, Macedonia and Slovenia in their internationally recognized borders be genuine and unequivocal;

-- that sanctions be suspended for 2-month periods, with a positive vote by the UN Security Council required to renew each time;

-- that the sanctions enforcement regime against the FRY remain in place, so that sanctions can be reimposed on short notice;

-- that the "outer wall" of sanctions be kept in place, i.e. measures going beyond UNSC resolutions: no assistance from the IFIs or the EU; no granting of a UN seat to the FRY; and no readmission to OSCE (for our part, we would not recognize the FRY at this time);

-- that there be a significant toughening up of the monitoring regime on the Bosnia/Serbia and Croatia/Serbia borders, including several hundred more monitors plus equipment such as radars to help deal with the helicopter problem;

-- that there be continued firm adherence by Milosevic to the Contact Group plan for Bosnia;

-- that Milosevic endorse the principles in the Zagreb-4 peace plan for Croatia, i.e. the reintegration of the occupied areas under Croatian sovereignty, with autonomy for historically Serb-majority areas; and

-- that nothing be done to in any way affect the commitment to the War Crimes Tribunal.

B. Additional conditions added by Principals:

-- that before we pursue Milosevic's recognition of Croatia, we insist that Tudjman agree to extend UNPROFOR's mandate in return for recognition.

-- that the sanctions relief not go into effect until after the inter-Serbian border is more tightly closed and the Europeans have deployed the additional monitors required; and

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- that we secure Tudjman's agreement to terminate economic relations with the Krajina Serbs, since this could undermine the effects of Milosevic's cut-off of support to the Krajina and permit the Bosnian Serbs to receive support through the back door.

2. Principals directed our Contact Group representative to put down a marker that, if this initiative fails and the war resumes, our partners will reciprocate our flexibility by supporting the kinds of coercive measures against the Bosnian Serbs that they agreed to previously but never implemented. We would not, however, make their commitment to such measures a quid pro quo.

3. Principals directed that talking points be prepared for dealing with the press and for briefings on the Hill. (Action: State/NSC)

SUBJECT: "DOUBLE-TRACKING" CONTACT GROUP CONSULTATIONS IN SARJEVO: HIGH-LEVEL BOSNIAN VIEWS

REFTELCON AND REFFAX - JACKOVICH-FRASURE 2/10/95

1. ~~SECRET~~ EXDIS - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SUMMARY. UNDER INSTRUCTIONS FROM THE DEPARTMENT, AMBASSADOR JACKOVICH MET IN SARAJEVO WITH IZETBEGOVIC, GANIC AND SILAJDZIC FEB. 10-12 IN ORDER TO "DOUBLE-TRACK" CONVERSATIONS HELD JUST A FEW DAYS EARLIER BY GERMAN CONTACT GROUP MEMBER STEINER, WHO OUTLINED A PACKAGE OF LIFTING OF SANCTIONS IN EXCHANGE FOR RECOGNITION OF BOSNIA AND CROATIA BY SERBIA. THE BOSNIANS WERE GENERALLY "ON BOARD," THOUGH THEY STRESSED THE NECESSITY FOR COMPLETE SEALING OF THE SERBIAN BORDER AND INDICATED THAT LIFTING THE ARMS EMBARGO WOULD REMAIN AT LEAST A CONTINGENCY OPTION IN CASE THE PACKAGE FAILED. THEY ALSO CAUTIONED THAT A TRIPARTITE SUMMIT AMONG PRESIDENTS OF BOSNIA, CROATIA AND SERBIA WOULD HAVE TO BE WELL ORGANIZED IN ADVANCE WITH THE QUESTION OF RECOGNITION BEING AN ABSOLUTE PRE-REQUISITE. THE BOSNIANS FORESEE NO PROBLEMS WITH THE RUSSIANS BUT PREDICTED THAT THE FRENCH AND BRITISH WOULD PROVE TO BE MAJOR OBSTACLES. PRIME MINISTER SILAJDZIC IN PARTICULAR OUTLINED A SLIGHTLY DIFFERENT APPROACH. HE SAID THAT RECOGNITION OF BOSNIA SHOULD BE LINKED TO A BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT DECLARATION ON THE RIGHTS OF SERBS IN BOSNIA, WHILE LIFTING OF SANCTIONS ON BELGRADE SHOULD BE LINKED WITH CLOSING OF THE SERBIAN BORDER. HE ALSO PUSHED FOR ENDORSEMENT OF THE CONTACT GROUP MAP BY THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL, AN ACT WHICH WOULD -- AMONG OTHER THINGS -- ASSURE SOME IN WASHINGTON THAT THE BOSNIANS WOULD NOT ATTEMPT TO RETRIEVE MORE THAN 51 PERCENT OF BOSNIAN TERRITORY IN THE

EVENT OF "LIFT." END SUMMARY

3. THE AMBASSADOR REVIEWED THE ENTIRE GERMAN PACKAGE, AS PRESENTED BY GERMAN CONTACT GROUP MEMBER MICHAEL STEINER IN SARAJEVO EARLIER IN THE WEEK, WITH THE TOP BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT LEADERSHIP. HE HELD SEPARATE MEETINGS WITH PRESIDENT ALIJA IZETBEGOVIC, VICE PRESIDENT EJUP GANIC AND PRIME MINISTER HARIS SILAJDZIC. THE IZETBEGOVIC AND GANIC MEETINGS WERE HELD IMMEDIATELY UPON THE AMBASSADOR'S RETURN TO SARAJEVO ON FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 10, WHILE THE SILAJDZIC CONVERSATION WAS DELAYED UNTIL SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 12, DUE TO THE PRIME MINISTER'S ILLNESS (FLU).

4. IN THE MAIN (AS REPORTED BY REFTELCON), THE TOP BOSNIAN POLITICAL LEADERSHIP APPEARED TO SUPPORT THE GERMAN PACKAGE. THE PURPOSE OF OUR MEETING, AS INSTRUCTED BY THE DEPARTMENT WAS TO "DOUBLE-TRACK" THE GERMAN REPRESENTATIVE AND TO DETERMINE WHETHER THERE WERE NUANCES OR SLIPPAGE IN THE APPARENT ENDORSEMENT DELIVERED TO STEINER. ALL THREE BOSNIAN LEADERS APPEARED TO BE "ON BOARD," ALTHOUGH SILAJDZIC'S POSITION (AS REPORTED PREVIOUSLY) IS THE MOST DIFFICULT TO PIN DOWN.

5. AS AN INTRODUCTION, WE TOLD ALL THREE THAT THE MEETINGS WITH STEINER AND THE FOLLOW-UP BY THE AMBASSADOR WERE DESIGNED TO ASSUAGE APPREHENSION IN SARAJEVO THAT INTERNATIONAL MEDIATION EFFORTS WERE MOVING APACE WITHOUT PRIOR CONSULTATION OF THE BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT, SOMETHING SARAJEVO HAD COMPLAINED ABOUT FREQUENTLY IN THE PAST.

TRIPARTITE SUMMIT

7. ALL THREE AGREED ON THE GENERAL CONCEPT OF HOLDING A TRIPARTITE SUMMIT, WITH PRE-ARRANGED CONCLUSIONS ALONG THE LINES OF THE GERMAN PACKAGE. IZETBEGOVIC SPECIFICALLY PROPOSED A TIMEFRAME IN LATE MARCH, TO FOLLOW HIS MARCH 17 VISIT TO BONN AND MEETING WITH CHANCELLOR KOHL.

8. GANIC SAID THAT THE BOSNIANS INTENDED TO MEET WITH TUDJMAN SEPARATELY PRIOR TO THE TRIPARTITE SUMMIT, IN ORDER TO PRESENT A UNITED FRONT WITH THE CROATIANS AND IN ORDER TO PRE-EMPT ANY ATTEPT BY ZAGREB TO CUT A SEPARATE DEAL WITH XBELGRADE AT BOSNIA'S EXPENSE. GANIC ALSO INSISTED THAT THE TRIPARTITE SUMMIT BE HELD IN THE PRESENCE OF U.S. AND GERMAN REPRESENTATIVES, "IF ONLY AS NOTE-TAKERS." IT WOULD BE

ACCEPTABLE TO USE THE CONTACT GROUP AS A "COVER," HE SAID, BUT "ESSENTIAL TO HAVE AMERICANS AND GERMANS IN THE ROOM."

9. ALL THREE -- ESPECIALLY SILAJDZIC -- INSISTED THAT THERE COULD BE NO MEETING WITHOUT PRIOR AGREEMENT ON RECOGNITION, AS THE LEAST THAT COULD BE OBTAINED FROM SUCH A SUMMIT. (THE INTERNAL GOBH MEMCON NOTED THAT STEINER LISTED THREE COUNTRIES FOR WHICH RECOGNITION WOULD BE SOUGHT: BOSNIA, CROATIA AND MACEDONIA. RECOGNITION OF CROATIA WAS LINKED BY STEINER TO ZAGREB RETAINING SOME FORM OF UNPROFOR PRESENCE. STEINER ALSO REPORTEDLY TOLD THE BOSNIANS THAT BONN ASSESSED THE CHANCES OF MILOSEVIC SIGNING ON TO THE ENTIRE PACKAGE AT NO MORE THAN 50-50.)

10. BOTH IZETBEGOVIC (WITH RELUCTANCE) AND GANIC (AFTER DISCUSSION) WERE WILLING TO COUNTENANCE FULL LIFTING OF ECONOMIC SANCTIONS AGAINST BELGRADE. SILAJDZIC DEMURRED, AND PRESENTED AN ENTIRELY DIFFERENT DYNAMIC FOR THE TALKS, AS DESCRIBED BELOW.

11. IZETBEGOVIC SAID HE HAD PUSHED AT FIRST WITH STEINER FOR ONLY PARTIAL LIFTING OF SANCTIONS, BUT THEN HAD AGREED WITH THE GERMAN ON FULL SANCTIONS RELIEF, IF RPT IF A COMPLETE SEALING OF THE BORDER WITH SERBIA COULD BE ASSURED. THE PRESIDENT ALSO WANTED U.S. OR NATO TECHNICAL AND AERIAL MEANS TO BE EMPLOYED AS PART OF AN ENHANCED BORDER MONITORING OPERATION. HE SAID THE TWO-MONTH REVIEWING MECHANISM SHOULD BE SERIOUS AND THAT SANCTIONS SHOULD BE RE-INSTITUTED IF THE BORDER IS NOT SEALED.

12. ON THIS SAME SUBJECT, GANIC BEGAN TO DEMUR AND EVEN STATED THAT SANCTIONS SHOULD BE LIFTED ONLY "TO A GREAT EXTENT." AFTER SOME THOUGHT, HOWEVER, (AS IF RECALLING A STANCE PREVIOUSLY COORDINATED WITH IZETBEGOVIC), HE FINALLY SAID THAT FULL LIFTING COULD BE DONE "IF THE BORDER IS COMPLETELY CLOSED."

13. ACCORDING TO THE INTERNAL GOBH MEMCON, STEINER ALSO EMPHASIZED ENHANCED SANCTIONS ON THE KARADZIC SERBS AS PART OF A POLICY OF ENHANCED ISOLATION OF PALE. IN THIS REGARD, THE GERMAN IS CITED AS SUGGESTING THAT TELECOMMUNICATIONS LINKS COULD BE CUT AND STATING THAT "THE AMERICANS AND GERMANS WOULD FAVOR THIS, WHILE THE FRENCH AND BRITISH ARE OPPOSED." ACCORDING TO THIS ACCOUNT, STEINER EVEN SAID THAT THE RUSSIANS FAVOR CUTTING RADIO/TELEVISION TRANSMISSIONS, WHILE THE GERMANS THEMSELVES ARE NOT IN FAVOR OF THIS MOVE.

14. SILAJDZIC'S APPROACH ESSENTIALLY RE-ASSESSES THE ENTIRE DYNAMIC OF THE TALKS. THE PRIME MINISTER SUGGESTED THAT MILOSEVIC SHOULD ONLY BE OFFERED A GOBH DECLARATION ABOUT

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

SERB RIGHTS IN BOSNIA IN EXCHANGE FOR RECOGNITION OF BOSNIA. SUSPENSION OF SANCTIONS, HE CONTINUED, SHOULD ONLY BE OFFERED IN EXCHANGE FOR SEALING THE BORDER. THE FIRST TWO ITEMS ARE "FIXED," HE EXPLAINED, WHILE THE NEXT TWO ARE "VARIABLE." "THE SANCTIONS SHOULD ONLY BE LIFTED IN CORRESPONDENCE TO THE EXTENT OF REAL CLOSING OF THE BORDER," SILAJDZIC SAID, INDICATING A SORT OF PARALLEL CALIBRATING OF BOTH EFFORTS. HE DEFINITELY FAVORED ONLY PARTIAL LIFTING OF SANCTIONS, BASED ON THIS EVENTUAL CALIBRATION.

15. FURTHER, SILAJDZIC SAID MILOSEVIC SHOULD BE LED INTO "DEMANDING" A BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT DECLARATION ON SERB RIGHTS (AND IMPLIED HE WOULD GET IT), BUT SHOULD BE TOLD BY THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY PUBLICLY THAT HE WOULD "GET NOTHING" IN EXCHANGE FOR EXTENDING RECOGNITION. LIKEWISE, HE SAID THAT A MILOSEVIC REQUEST FOR FULL LIFTING OF SANCTIONS SHOULD BE CONTRIVED, TO WHICH THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY WOULD RESPOND WITH AN OFFER OF PARTIAL SUSPENSION.

16. AS NOTED IN PREVIOUS REPORTING, SILAJDZIC ALSO FAVORED TAKING THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN AND MAP TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL FOR ENDORSEMENT. HE CLAIMED TO HAVE OBTAINED RUSSIAN SUPPORT FOR THIS IDEA DURING HIS RECENT VISIT TO MOSCOW, BUT WAS DISAPPOINTED AT THE "LUKE-WARM" RESPONSE IN WASHINGTON. IN OUTLINING WHAT HE SAW AS ADVANTAGES TO SUCH AN APPROACH, SILAJDZIC SAID: A) THE CG PLAN THEN BECOMES IMMUTABLE; B) THE MODERATES (AMONG BOTH RUSSIANS AND SERBS) ARE HELPED; AND, C) THE HAWKS (AMONG BOTH RUSSIANS AND SERBS) ARE HELPED (PRESUMABLY BECAUSE THE APPROACH WOULD PROVIDE A FACE-SAVING EXIT). IN ADDITION, ENDORSEMENT BY THE SECURITY COUNCIL WOULD HELP DISPEL FEARS IN WASHINGTON THAT THE BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT, IN THE EVENT OF A LIFTING OF THE ARMS EMBARGO, WOULD STRIVE TO RETRIEVE TERRITORY BEYOND THE 51 PERCENT ALLOCATED IT UNDER THE CONTACT GROUP MAP. (COMMENT: WE UNDERSTAND THIS LATTER POINT WAS THE SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION BETWEEN SILAJDZIC AND SENATOR BIDEN DURING THE PRIME MINISTER'S RECENT VISIT TO WASHINGTON. END COMMENT)

17. MOST OF ALL, SILAJDZIC APPEARED TO LAMENT THE ABSENCE OF A CLEAR TIMETABLE OF DEADLINES WHICH WOULD HAVE TO BE MET BY THE SERBS BEFORE HARSHER MEASURES WOULD BE APPLIED (SUCH AS "LIFT"). INDEED, THE INSTITUTION OF A TWO-MONTH REVIEW MECHANISM WAS VIEWED BY SILAJDZIC ESSENTIALLY AS A MEANS FOR THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY TO AVOID SETTING MORE MEANINGFUL DEADLINES.

18. ALL THREE BOSNIANS ADHERED TO THE POLICY OF PURSUING "LIFT" AS A FINAL CONTINGENCY OPTION, IN THE EVENT THAT THE ENTIRE GERMAN PACKAGE FAILED. GANIC REVEALED THAT HE INTENDED TO TRAVEL TO THE U.S. ON ANOTHER "LIFT"-ADVOCACY

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

TOUR, PROBABLY IN APRIL. BUT THE VICE PRESIDENT ALSO WAS QUICK TO NOTE THE REAL VALUE OF "LIFT" AS A "NEGOTIATING PLOY" AND A "THREAT" TO HOLD OVER THE SERBS, RATHER THAN AS AN IMPLEMENTABLE REALITY. "BUT IF WAR COMES AGAIN," HE SAID, "WE MUST CONTINUE WORKING ON 'LIFT' WITH OUR FRIENDS AND WITH CONGRESS."

19. SILAJDZIC TOLD US THAT STEINER PUSHED FOR A BOSNIAN RETREAT FROM INSISTENCE ON "LIFT," AND THAT HE -- SILAJDZIC -- HAD REBUFFED HIM. THE PRIME MINISTER INDICATED THAT "LIFT" HAD BECOME SUCH A POLITICAL PILLAR WITH THE BOSNIANS THAT YIELDING ON THIS POINT WAS ESSENTIALLY A NON-STARTER. THE INTERNAL BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT MEMCON ACCOUNT CITED STEINER AS URGING THE BOSNIANS TO COMMUNICATE TO U.S. CONGRESS THAT INSISTENCE ON "LIFT" WAS NO LONGER AN IMMEDIATE NECESSITY. THE BOSNIANS EVIDENTLY TURNED HIM DOWN.

COORDINATION AMONG ALLIES

20. ALL THE BOSNIAN LEADERS ENVISIONED THE PACKAGE AS A JOINT U.S. AND GERMAN INITIATIVE. THEY BELIEVED THAT THE RUSSIANS WOULD BE AMENABLE, BUT FORESAW CONSIDERABLE OBSTACLES IN THE BRITISH AND FRENCH. GANIC EVEN REFERRED TO A "GERMAN-AMERICAN ALLIANCE" AND PROPOSED THAT THE AMERICANS WORK ON THE BRITISH WHILE THE GERMANS SHOULD PRESSURE THE FRENCH.

21. PREDICTABLY, SILAJDZIC EVINCED MORE BITTERNESS ABOUT COORDINATION AMONG ELEMENTS OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY. HE SAID THAT ONE REASON WHY HE HAD TRAVELED TO THE COUNTRIES OF THREE CONTACT GROUP MEMBERS IN A MATTER OF DAYS (U.S., RUSSIA, GERMANY) WAS TO FACILITATE COORDINATION AMONG THESE COUNTRIES' GOVERNMENTS. "I HAVE TO TELL THE SAME THING THREE TIMES IN THREE CAPITALS, BECAUSE OF THE LACK OF COORDINATION," HE SAID.

COMMENT

22. THE PURPOSE OF THIS MESSAGE IS TO PROVIDE WASHINGTON WITH A MORE DETAILED AND NUANCED READ-OUT OF BOSNIAN VIEWS, AS A FOLLOW-ON TO STEINER'S MEETINGS WITH SARAJEVO AUTHORITIES. WE WERE STRUCK BY THE APPARENT ADHERENCE TO THE GENERAL PACKAGE BY IZETBEGOVIC AND GANIC, AS WELL AS BY THE DIFFERENT APPROACH PROPOSED BY SILAJDZIC. WE CAUTION THAT SOME OF THE NUANCES AIRED BY THE BOSNIANS COULD MASK MORE PROFOUND PROBLEMS WITH THE PACKAGE, ALTHOUGH THIS IS SOMETHING THAT WILL PRESUMABLY ONLY EMERGE AT A LATER DATE, IF EVER. Following cable from Paris details French thinking on conditions for sanctions relief and for holding of international conference. Note French would insist that Tudjman agree to extension of UNPROFOR's mandate as part of deal with Belgrade. (Also note French admonishment to Owen -- he just doesn't get it). SV

SUBJECT: GOF OUTLINES STEPS TOWARDS BOSNIA CONFERENCE

REF: HILL-BELLAMY TELCON 2/13/95

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SUMMARY. AS DEPARTMENT IS AWARE, THE BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT HAS DISCUSSED WITH GERMAN CG REP STEINER A PACKAGE WHICH COULD FORM THE BASIS OF SARAJEVO-BELGRADE AND ZAGREB-BELGRADE MUTUAL RECOGNITION ACCORDS. THE FRENCH SEE PROMISE IN THIS AND WILL PROPOSE THAT THE CG WORK INTENSIVELY AND DISCREETLY TO NAIL DOWN THESE ACCORDS BEFORE ANNOUNCING AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE IN PARIS. END SUMMARY.

3. FOREIGN MINISTER JUPPE'S NATIONAL SECURITY ADVISER BRUNO RACINE SUMMONED US ON SHORT NOTICE FEBRUARY 13 TO EXPLAIN GOF VIEWS GOING INTO THE FEBRUARY 14 CG MEETING IN PARIS.

4. RACINE NOTED THAT KOHL HAD GIVEN MITTERRAND AN UNEQUIVOCAL COMMITMENT TO WORK TOWARDS AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON BOSNIA. GERMAN CG REP STEINER HAD RETURNED OVER THE WEEKEND FROM SARAJEVO WHERE, RACINE SAID, HE HAD OBTAINED "VERY PRECISE PROPOSALS" FROM THE BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT. THESE PROPOSALS WERE IN LINE WITH WHAT THE FRENCH, BRITISH AND GERMANS HAVE BEEN DISCUSSING AMONG THEMSELVES OVER THE PAST WEEK.

5. NOTING THAT THE U.S. MAY ALREADY HAVE THIS INFORMATION (RACINE HAD BEEN BRIEFED BY STEINER THE EVENING OF FEBRUARY 12), RACINE DESCRIBED THE BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT'S "PRINCIPLES" AS FOLLOWS:

A. RECOGNITION BY BELGRADE OF ALL YUGOSLAV SUCCESSOR

PER E.O. 13526

2013-0682-M

STATES, INCLUDING MACEDONIA.

B. IF THE BOSNIAN SERBS CONTINUE THEIR REFUSAL TO ACCEPT THE CG PLAN, BELGRADE WILL TIGHTEN CLOSURE OF ITS BORDER WITH BOSNIA.

C. ALL/ALL SANCTIONS ON BELGRADE SUSPENDED FOR A FIXED, BUT RENEWABLE, TIME PERIOD.

D. A CONTINUING CEASEFIRE, RENEWABLE EACH TIME THE SANCTIONS SUSPENSION IS RENEWED.

E. BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT GUARANTEES OF THE "EQUAL RIGHTS" OF THE BOSNIAN SERBS PER THE CONTACT GROUP'S LANGUAGE LAST DECEMBER.

F. INCREASED ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE TO THE BOSNIA FEDERATION, WITH A PROVISION TO EXTEND THIS AID TO THE BOSNIAN SERBS ONCE THEY ACCEPT THE CG PLAN.

G. A BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT UNDERTAKING TO TELL TO THE U.S. CONGRESS PRIVATELY -- NO/NO PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT -- THAT THE TIMING IS NOT RIGHT FOR LIFTING THE ARMS EMBARGO.

6. THE GOF WILL PROPOSE AT THE FEBRUARY 14 CG MEETING THAT THE CG CAPITALIZE QUICKLY ON THIS OPENING. THE FRENCH WILL SUGGEST THAT A U.S./GERMAN CG TEAM TRAVEL TO SARAJEVO TO CONFIRM THE PRINCIPLES LISTED ABOVE. A FRENCH/BRITISH CG TEAM WOULD SIMULTANEOUSLY VISIT BELGRADE TO SOUND OUT MILOSEVIC IN GENERAL TERMS. THESE VISITS WOULD HAVE TO BE ACCOMPLISHED WITH THE UTMOST DISCRETION, WITHOUT PUBLICITY OF ANY KIND. A VISIT TO ZAGREB WOULD FOLLOW SOME TIME LATER.

7. JUPPE SPOKE TO KOZYREV FEBRUARY 13 BUT DID NOT GET INTO MANY OF THE DETAILS ABOVE. THE FRENCH RECOGNIZE THAT THE RUSSIANS WILL PROBABLY WANT TO BE ASSOCIATED WITH THIS EFFORT BUT PREFER THAT THEY NOT BE INCLUDED ON THE MISSION TO BELGRADE AT THIS STAGE.

8. ADDING AT LEAST ONE NEW DIMENSION TO THE QUESTION OF MUTUAL RECOGNITION, RACINE SAID THE FRENCH BELIEVE THAT THE CG SHOULD INSIST, AS PART OF THE ZAGREB-BELGRADE PACKAGE, THAT ZAGREB AGREE TO THE EXTENSION OF UNPROFOR IN CROATIA. RACINE REPORTED THAT STEINER PERSONALLY WAS DETERMINED ON THIS POINT.

9. RACINE ALSO INDICATED THAT THE FRENCH ARE THINKING ABOUT RAISING THE "LEVEL" OF THE CG REPS SENT TO BELGRADE AND SARAJEVO. HE IMPLIED THAT FRENCH REP DE SEDOUY WOULD NOT BE THE GOF'S CHOICE FOR SUCH A MISSION.

10. THE GOF'S PLAN IS FOR THE CG TO WORK INTENSIVELY, PERHAPS DIVIDING ITS LABORS AMONG MEMBER STATES, TO NAIL DOWN "99 PERCENT" OF SEPARATE BELGRADE-SARAJEVO AND BELGRADE-ZAGREB ACCORDS BEFORE ANNOUNCING AN INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE IN PARIS. THERE IS NO POINT IN DISCUSSING THE LEVEL OF ATTENDANCE AT THIS CONFERENCE, RACINE SAID, BEFORE WE KNOW WHAT RESULTS WE CAN EXPECT FROM IT.

11. IN A FINAL NOTE, RACINE MENTIONED RECENT GOF CONTACTS WITH LORD OWEN IN WHICH THE FRENCH HAD

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

INFORMED OWEN BLUNTLY OF THE LOW ESTEEM IN WHICH HE IS HELD IN THE U.S. OWEN ATTRIBUTED THIS ENTIRELY, SAID RACINE, TO AMBASSADOR GALBRAITH, TO WHICH THE FRENCH REPLIED THAT HE HAD FENCES TO MEND IN WASHINGTON IN ANY CASE. RACINE SAID THE FRENCH, IN THEIR EU PRESIDENCY CAPACITY, ARE THINKING ABOUT TASKING OWEN TO CONCENTRATE FOR THE TIME BEING ON KEEPING THE KRAJINA SERBS IN LINE. THIS COULD HELP TO MINIMIZE THE RISK OF OWEN LAUNCHING PRIVATE INITIATIVES WHICH CONFLICT WITH THE CG EFFORTS.

FOR SANDY BERGER

-- We would be willing in Paris to agree with the Europeans--and Izetbegovic--on full sanctions relief, if our views on the following points are fully taken into consideration.

-- We should insist that the sanctions regime remains in place with a strong positive renewal clause on relief, i.e. the UNSC would have to agree each two months

-- We should also insist that an outer wall of "sanctions" be kept in place including nothing from the IFI's, the EU, no UN seat, nothing on OSCE, etc. (hold back)

-- We would also insist on genuine recognition of Croatia, Bosnia, Macedonia and Slovenia in their internationally accepted borders. (In return we could agree to recognize the FRY.)] WHY?

-- There must be a significant toughening up of the ICFY line on the Bosnia/Serbia and Croatia/Serbia borders, including several hundred more monitors plus equipment such as radars. (Resources could be drawn from the SAM teams currently operating in the outer ring.)] NO (per LF)

Summary of Conclusions for Meeting of the NSC Principals Committee
DATE: February 21, 1995
LOCATION: White House Situation Room
TIME: 3:00 - 3:40pm

SUBJECT: Summary of Conclusions of Principals Committee Meeting on Bosnia and Croatia (S)

PARTICIPANTS:

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals discussed the recent increase in reports of violations of the no-fly zone. They recognized that investigations by the UN and NATO have been unable to confirm the reported activity. Concerned that reporting has indicated that NATO is no longer enforcing the no-fly zone, Principals requested a detailed documentation of recent helicopter and fixed wing activity and a recap of NATO procedures to enforce the no-fly zone, with a view to NATO using the information to correct the public record. (Action: JCS) (S)

2. Principals discussed efforts to obtain Serbian recognition of Bosnia, Croatia, and other former Yugoslav republics within their existing borders in exchange for sanctions relief (Plan B). Principals agreed that while prospects for success were remote, we should not agree to any further sanctions relief or other measures that would "sweeten" the offer now under consideration. They directed that our Contact Group partners be informed of our seriousness before their meeting with Milosevic later this week. (Action: State) Principals also requested that Deputies consider how long the Plan B proposal should remain on the table. (Action: Deputies) (S)

3. Principals discussed the impact on the War Crimes Tribunal of the present Plan B proposal. They decided not to add Serbian cooperation with the War Crimes Tribunal as an additional condition for sanctions relief in the context of mutual recognition. Principals agreed, however, that further relief from the "outer wall" of sanctions would still be subject to many additional conditions including cooperation with the War Crimes Tribunal. (S)

4. Principals discussed options for the longer term should diplomatic efforts fail to achieve a negotiated settlement. They requested that the Deputies undertake a review of potential scenarios to frame policy choices likely to be faced in the next 2-3 months. The review should include estimated time-lines for events on the ground in Bosnia, Croatia and neighboring areas, an analysis of the likely evolution of allied and Congressional attitudes, and U.S. policy options. (Action: Deputies/ Interagency) (S)

5. Principals discussed a request from Milosevic, channeled through a private U.S. citizen, for a one-time meeting with Congressman Bill Richardson. They agreed that Richardson should be informed that we oppose such a meeting as Milosevic already has direct high-level access to the U.S. Government. (S)

SUBJECT: CG WESTERN CAUCUS--THE EUROPEANS WILL COME BACK ON THURSDAY

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. UK/US/FRENCH CONTACT GROUP MEMBERS CAUCUSED THIS MORNING (FEBRUARY 20) IN BELGRADE. THE FRENCH REPORTED THAT THERE IS A MEETING WITH MILOSEVIC TENTATIVELY SCHEDULED FOR THURSDAY AFTERNOON. IT IN THEORY COULD BE A CONTACT GROUP SESSION OR A EUROPEAN "SOUNDING", AS WE DISCUSSED IN PARIS ON TUESDAY.

3. WE QUICKLY AGREED THAT THE THURSDAY SESSION SHOULD BE A EUROPEAN SESSION FOR THE FOLLOWING REASONS:

-- AS US REP ARGUED STRONGLY, OUR EUROPEAN COLLEAGUES NEED TO MAKE IT ABSOLUTELY CLEAR TO MILOSEVIC THAT THE U.S. BAG OF CARROTS IS EMPTY AND WASHINGTON IS FED UP WITH MILOSEVIC'S GAMES. IT WILL OBVIOUSLY BE A LOT EASIER TO DO THIS IN A COLORFUL WAY IF THE AMERICANS ARE NOT IN THE ROOM.

-- MILOSEVIC'S ATTITUDE SEEMS TO BE HARDENING GIVEN THE EVOLUTION FROM FRASURE'S MEETING TO KOZYREV'S. TUS A HIGHLY VISIBLE, FULL CG SESSION ON THURSDAY COULD LEAD US TO A PUBLIC BREAKDOWN AND THE END OF THE GAME ABRUPTLY.

-- FINALLY THE RUSSIANS ARE CLEARLY WAY OFF THE CG

RESERVATION AND WOULD BE UNLIKELY TO TAKE PART IN THE THURSDAY SESSION. IN HIS PUBLIC REMARKS HERE YESTERDAY, KOZYREV REFERRED TO THE CG'S ACTIONS AS INADEQUATE. (IT IS ALSO NOT CLEAR WHERE THE ABSENT GERMANS STAND ON THIS ENTERPRISE. DEJAMMET SAID HE WOULD INSIST THEY JOIN THE FRENCH/BRITISH EFFORT ON THURSDAY.)

4. ASIDE FORM THE POINTS ABOVE, IT WAS VERY CLEAR THAT, AFTER THE SEPARATE US AND RUSSIAN MEETINGS WITH MILOSEVIC THAT NEVILLE-JONES AND DEJAMMET WANTED A SEPARATE EUROPEAN BITE OF THE BITTER APPLE. THEY WERE ALSO CONCERNED BY PERCEPTIONS (IN THE PRESS AND AMONG FELLOW EUROPEANS) THAT THE CG CAME TO TOWN BUT ONLY THE AMERICANS AND KOZYREV SAW MILOSEVIC. A PUBLIC LINE WAS AGREED THAT THE WEEKEND CONSISTED OF CONSULTATIONS AND SOUNDINGS AT VARIOUS LEVELS BUT NO SPECIFICS ON WHO SAW WHOM.

5. WE FURTHER AGREED ON THESE POINTS:

-- THE EUROPEANS WILL GIVE US AN IMMEDIATE READOUT ON THURSDAY. THERE SHOULD BE A CG MEETING IN PARIS NEXT WEEK TO CONSIDER NEXT STEPS.

-- WE SHOULD ALL GO BACK TO THE RUSSIANS VERY STRONGLY ON KOZYREV'S BELGRADE PERFORMANCE. IN THAT REGARD ZOTOV STRESSED YESTERDAY THAT MOSCOW CONTINUES TO REJECT PLAN B. THUS, NO MATTER WHAT MILOSEVIC SAYS, WE ARE NOT IN A POSITION TO DRAW UP AN AGREED PROPOSAL ON RECOGNITION/SANCTIONS SUSPENSION.

6. MILOSEVIC APPEARS TO HAVE MADE HIS POINT BY STIFFING THE CG YESTERDAY. BUT WE MAY NOT SEE ANY MORE SIGNS OF FLEXIBILITY. PERINA

E.O. 12356: DECL:OADR
TAGS: PREL, SR
SUBJECT: MILOSEVIC STIFFS THE CONTACT GROUP

1. ~~SECRET~~ ENTIRE TEXT.

2. BEGIN SUMMARY: IN THE WAKE OF KOZYREV'S VISIT TO BELGRADE, MILOSEVIC HAS REFUSED TO SEE THE CONTACT GROUP ASSEMBLED IN TOWN TODAY TO DISCUSS THE RECOGNITION/SANCTIONS SUSPENSION INITIATIVE. BRITISH AND FRENCH POLITICAL DIRECTORS ARE FURIOUS. THE RUSSIANS ARE GOING BACK TO MILOSEVIC TODAY TO URGE HIM TO SEE THE CG. THE FALLBACK FOR THE EUROPEANS IS A BILATERAL OR JOINT MEETING WITH THE SERBIAN PRESIDENT. THE BRITISH/FRENCH HAVE FORCEFULLY TOLD THE RUSSIANS THAT, IF MILOSEVIC'S DECISION STANDS, IT WILL HAVE VERY SUBSTANTIAL IMPLICATIONS FOR THE FUTURE OF THE CG AND RELATIONS WITH MOSCOW IN GENERAL AS SUPPOSEDLY KOZYREV HAD COME TO TOWN TO BOLSTER CG PEACE EFFORTS AT A VERY DIFFICULT TIME. END SUMMARY.

3. CG MEMBERS ASSEMBLED IN BELGRADE THIS MORNING WITH NEVILLE-JONES REPRESENTING LONDON AND DEJAMMET FROM THE QUAI. FRASURE RETURNED OVERLAND FROM ZAGREB. ZOTOV REMAINED AFTER THE KOZYREV VISIT. (THE GERMANS WERE REPRESENTED BY THEIR CHARGE; STEINER IS APPARENTLY ILL.)

4. AT A CG LUNCH TODAY, ZOTOV DEBRIEFED ON THE KOZYREV/MILOSEVIC MEETINGS REPORTING THAT, DESPITE URGING FROM THE RUSSIAN FOREIGN MINISTER, THE SERBIAN PRESIDENT SAID HE WOULD NOT MEET WITH THE CG; THEY COULD TALK TO HIS FOREIGN MINISTER. THAT SET OFF A FIRESTORM WITH THE BRITISH AND FRENCH. (THE FRENCH ARE ALSO UNHAPPY ABOUT FRASURE'S FRIDAY MEETING WITH MILOSEVIC BUT THE FOCUS WAS CLEARLY ON KOZYREV WHO WAS SUPPOSEDLY COMING HERE TO PAVE THE WAY FOR THE CG.) AFTER LENGTHY DISCUSSION, THE HAPLESS ZOTOV AGREED TO GET BACK TO MILOSEVIC TO INSIST UPON A CG MEETING. THE FALLBACK IS A FRENCH/BRITISH SESSION. THE FEELING HERE IS THAT MILOSEVIC WILL NOT BE WILLING TO RECONSIDER ON THE CG BUT MAY SEE THE FRENCH/BRITISH. FRENCH/BRITISH REPS PLAN TO LEAVE MONDAY AFTERNOON, ASSUMING THE SITUATION IS NOT RESOLVED.

5. IN HIS READ-OUT ON THE KOZYREV VISIT, ZOTOV CHARACTERIZED MILOSEVIC AS REACTING NEGATIVELY TO THE CG PROPOSAL BUT NOT EXPLICITLY REJECTING IT. ZOTOV SAID THAT MILOSEVIC SEEMED ALMOST "OFFENDED" BY SUSPENSION RATHER THAN LIFTING OF SANCTIONS AND INDICATED TO KOZYREV THAT HE WOULD REFUSE TO SEE THE CONTACT GROUP BECAUSE THE PROPOSAL WAS "NOT SERIOUS." MILOSEVIC APPEARED TO ARGUE FOR "BOLDER STEPS" BY THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY IN RETURN FOR BIGGER GAINS, WHILE NOT CLEARLY LAYING OUT WHAT HE WANTS APART FROM LIFTING OF SANCTIONS.

6. POINTS RAISED BY MILOSEVIC DURING THE DISCUSSION WITH KOZYREV INCLUDED THAT:

-- ANY SUMMIT MEETING WOULD HAVE TO BE WELL-PREPARED WITH NO AMBIGUITY ON WHAT BELGRADE RECEIVES;

-- THERE WAS A PROBLEM WITH WHAT SHOULD BE RECOGNIZED, I.E. STATES, BORDERS ETC.

-- THE ECONOMIC AGREEMENT IN CROATIA WAS WORKING WELL BUT BEING ENDANGERED BY TUDJMAN'S TACTICS. THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY MUST PRESSURE TUDJMAN TO BRING HIM TO HIS SENSES, AND NOT APPLY PRESSURE ONLY TO BELGRADE;

-- HE (MILOSEVIC) WAS WORKING ON THE PEACE OPTION IN BOTH BOSNIA AND CROATIA AND WOULD CONTINUE DOING SO REGARDLESS OF WHAT THE CG DID OR OFFERED; AND

-- MLADIC AND THE BANJA LUKA REGION OF BOSNIA WERE ON MILOSEVIC'S SIDE AND HE WOULD EVENTUALLY PREVAIL, THOUGH THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY COULD HELP BY STRENGTHENING HIS HAND THROUGH SANCTIONS RELIEF.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

7. ZOTOV ADMITTED THAT "FRANKLY, THERE WAS LITTLE NEW" IN MILOSEVIC'S COMMENTS, THOUGH IT APPEARED THAT HE WANTED TO CONTINUE THE PROCESS. KOZYREV REPORTEDLY ARGUED THAT THE CASE FOR THE CG PROPOSAL AND "APPLIED PRESSURE" FOR MILOSEVIC TO BE FORTHCOMING. NONETHELESS, ZOTOV SEEMED NOT SURPRISED BY MILOSEVIC'S REFUSAL TO MEET THE CONTACT GROUP, SAYING THAT THIS REFLECTED HIS OVERALL DISAPPOINTMENT WITH THE CURRENT PROPOSAL.

COMMENT:

8. AS WE REPORTED AFTER OUR LUNCH WITH MILOSEVIC, THE SERBIAN PRESIDENT IS IN A TOUGH, SELF-CONFIDENT, INDEED ARROGANT, MOOD AND BELIEVES HE IS BASICALLY IN CONTROL OF EVENTS. HE MAY BE PREPARED TO DEAL BUT APPARENTLY NOT ON THE TERMS THAT WE ARE PREPARED TO OFFER, AND CERTAINLY NOT IN THE FOUR/SIX WEEKS TIMEFRAME WE HAVE IN MIND.

9. IN A BRITISH/FRENCH/US/GERMAN CAUCUS AFTER THE LUNCH, THERE WAS A FEELING THAT KOZYREV HAD CLUCKED ALL TOO SYMPATHETICALLY TO THE KIND OF CONCERNS THAT MILOSEVIC RAISED AND, AS A RESULT, THE SERBIAN PRESIDENT HAD BEEN EMBOLDENED TO STIFF THE CG. IN A PART OF THE WORLD WHERE OVERPLAYING YOUR CARDS IS A STANDARD PRACTICE--I HAD THAT SENSE OF TUDJMAN YESTERDAY AS WELL--MILOSEVIC MAY NOW THINK THAT SOMEHOW THE CG WILL TRUDGE BACK TO THE GREENGROCER AND COME UP WITH A LOT MORE CARROTS. THAT IS OF COURSE NOT LIKELY TO HAPPEN, NOR SHOULD IT HAPPEN. (MILOSEVIC'S HUBRIS IS NOT DISSIMILAR TO KARADZIC'S STIFFING OF THE CG WHEN LOGIC MIGHT HAVE DICTATED THAT HE SHOULD ENTER INTO A PLAN/MAP NEGOTIATION AND THEN TRY TO MAKE IT ENDLESS AS THE CEASEFIRE SOLIDIFIED TO HIS BENEFIT.)

10. IN A PERVERSE WAY, THIS OUTCOME--IF IT STANDS--VALIDATES OUR DECISION TO AGREE TO FULL REPEAT FULL SANCTIONS SUSPENSION AS PART OF A HYPOTHETICAL PACKAGE. THERE IS THUS NO WAY WE CAN BE BLAMED BY OUR EUROPEAN COLLEAGUES FOR THE OUTCOME OF THIS GAMBIT, AS MIGHT HAVE BEEN THE CASE IF WE HAD INSISTED ON HOLDING BACK CRUCIAL CARROTS. THAT PROVIDES LITTLE COMFORT, HOWEVER, IN A SITUATION IN WHICH OUR SELF-DESCRIBED "LAST CHANCE" CG DIPLOMATIC INITIATIVE APPEARS TO BE SLIDING TOWARD THE SERBIAN ROCKS. PERINA

FROM AMBASSADOR FRASURE

E.O. 12356: DECL:OADR
TAGS: PREL, SR, HR, BK
SUBJECT: LUNCHEON WITH MILOSEVIC--HE DIDN'T SAY NO

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SUMMARY: ALONG WITH THE CHARGE, I HAD A THREE HOUR PRIVATE LUNCH WITH MILOSEVIC AT,ONE OF TITO'S HUNTING LODGES WEST OF BELGRADE. THE SERBIAN PRESIDENT WAS ENERGETIC, AVUNCULAR, AND SELF CONFIDENT. AFTER HE WENT OVER SOME RECENT HISTORY, I OUTLINED THE LATEST CONTACT GROUP PLAN ON RECOGNITION/SANCTIONS SUSPENSION, TERMING IT PERHAPS A LAST CHANCE FOR PEACE. MILOSEVIC SHOWED VERY FEW CARDS, HAD SOME POSITIVE AND NEGATIVE COMMENTS, AND DIDN'T SAY NO. I THINK HE WANTS TO NEGOTIATE, BUT IT WILL BE A VERY TOUGH NEGOTIATION BECAUSE, ASIDE FROM THE BURDEN OF SANCTIONS, HE FEELS HE IS OPERATING FROM A POSITION OF STRENGTH. DESPITE THIS, IT MAY BE THAT "THERE IS A LOT OF POSSIBILITIES," AS MILOSEVIC CONCLUDED. END SUMMARY.

3. I TOLD MILOSEVIC I THOUGHT WE ARE AT A FUNDAMENTAL FORK IN THE ROAD. ONE ROAD WILL TAKE US TO A RENEWED WAR THIS SPRING PROBABLY STARTING IN CROATIA AND THEN CONNECTING INTO BOSNIA. ASKED FOR HIS VIEWS, MILOSEVIC LAUNCHED INTO A FAIRLY FAMILIAR HISTORICAL EXEGISIS BLAMING THE GERMANS AND OTHERS FOR THE COLLAPSE OF YUGOSLAVIA.

4. I TOLD MILOSEVIC I HAD NOT COME TO NEGOTIATE BUT I KNEW HE WOULD BE SEEING KOZYREV LATER TODAY. IT MIGHT BE USEFUL IF I OUTLINED SOME OF THE KEY ASPECTS IN THE CONTACT GROUP APPROACH. MILOSEVIC LISTENED INTENTLY TO

MY DESCRIPTION OF THE SANCTIONS SUSPENSION/RECOGNITION PACKAGE. I PARTICULARLY NOTED THE NEED FOR BORDER CLOSURE AND COVERED THE NECESSITY FOR HIM TO CONTINUE TO SUPPORT THE CG PLAN FOR BOSNIA. I EXPLAINED OUR EVOLUTION FROM FULL Z-4 PLAN TO Z-4 PRINCIPLES. MILOSEVIC'S RESPONSES ARE NOTED BELOW.

CROATIA--"IF THE SERBS NEED HELP..."

5. INDICATING THAT HE SPOKE REGULARLY WITH TUDJMAN, MILOSEVIC MADE IT CLEAR HE FELT THE CROATIANS ARE OVERPLAYING THEIR CARDS. TUDJMAN HAD TOLD HIM HIS GENERALS BELIEVE THEY CAN TAKE THE UN SECTORS BACK IN FOUR DAYS. "I TOLD HIM NOT TO TRUST GENERALS -- I FIRED EIGHTY OF THEM." ACCORDING TO MILOSEVIC, THE CROATIAN ARMY HAS ONLY EIGHT GOOD BRIGADES; ONLY 10 PERCENT OF DRAFTEES SHOW UP FOR SERVICE. IN CONTRAST, KRAJINA SERBS HAVE 80,000 OF THE BEST FIGHTING MEN IN EUROPE. "KRAJINA SERBS WOULD RATHER FIGHT THAN WORK."

6. MILOSEVIC DID NOT SAY HE WOULD RECOGNIZE CROATIA, BUT IT WAS CLEARLY LESS OF A PROBLEM THAN RECOGNIZING BOSNIA. ASKED WHETHER SECTOR EAST COULD BE INCLUDED IN A DEAL, MILOSEVIC RESPONDED POSTIVELY BUT POINTED TO THE NEED FOR A TRANSITIONAL PERIOD, PERHAPS TWO YEARS. HE WAS CONTEMPTUOUS OF THE Z-4 PLAN, ARGUING THAT A PHASED APPROACH BEGINNING WITH ECONOMIC MEASURES WAS PREFERABLE. IN THAT REGARD, OWEN IS RIGHT, MILOSEVIC REMARKED. THE SERBIAN PRESIDENT SAW MERIT IN OUR REVISED APPROACH OF ENDORSEMENT OF Z-4 PRINCIPLES, WITHOUT BUYING INTO IT. HE FLARED UP, HOWEVER, WHEN I SUGGESTED THAT ENDORSEMENT OF Z-4 PRINCIPLES WOULD PROTECT HIM FROM CHARGES OF SELLING OUT THE KRAJINA SERBS: "DON'T TRY TO PRESS MY EGO BUTTON!"

7. ASKED DIRECTLY IF HE WOULD INTERVENE IN CROATIA IF HIS PREDICTIONS WERE WRONG AND THINGS GO BADLY FOR THE KRAJINA SERBS MILITARILY, MILOSEVIC IMMEDIATELY RESPONDED: "IF THEY NEED OUR HELP, THEY WILL GET IT." MILOSEVIC CONCLUDED HOWEVER, THAT WOULD NOT HAPPEN. "I WARNED TUDJMAN THEY WILL BE SHELLING YOUR BEACHES FOR YEARS, NO TOURISTS, " HE EXCLAIMED. "TUDJMAN WILL RENEW A DIFFERENT MANDATE."

BOSNIA -- WAR WHEN THE SNOW MELTS

8. MILOSEVIC WAS CERTAIN THAT THE WAR WOULD BEGIN AGAIN THIS SPRING -- "THE MUSLIMS WILL START IT." HE FELT IT WOULD SOON TURN INTO A CROAT/MUSLIM CONFLICT. MILOSEVIC RECALLED THAT THE ONLY REASON TUDJMAN HAD AGREED TO THE FEDERATION WAS TO SAVE

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

THE ISOLATED CROAT POCKETS UP IN CENTRAL BOSNIA. WOULD THE SERBS NEED OUTSIDE HELP? MILOSEVIC WHO SAID HE HAD MET YESTERDAY WITH MLADIC FELT THE BOSNIAN SERBS COULD HOLD THEIR OWN.

9. ON KARADZIC AND HIS SUPPORTERS -- "CRAZY, MIDDLE-AGED IGNORANTS" - MILOSEVIC REPEATED HIS EARLY PREDICTIONS THAT IN THE END HE WOULD OVERCOME THEM. MLADIC IS NOW LIKELY TO BE THE NEXT ELECTED LEADER OF SERBIAN BOSNIA. THE WESTERN BOSNIAN SERBS ARE WILLING TO GIVE UP SARAJEVO TO GET A SETTLEMENT; KARADZIC IS NOT. THAT IS A KEY WEAKNESS FOR HIM. MILOSEVIC SUGGESTED THAT THE DIVISIONS WITHIN THE BOSNIAN GOVERNMENT ARE WIDENING, NOTABLY THOSE BETWEEN IZETBEGOVIC AND GANIC ON THE ONE HAND AND SILAJDZIC ("ONE TOUGH GUY.") PREDICTING AN INCREASING ISLAMIC SOCIETY -- "BETTER NOT TO MAKE EXCURSION INTO THAT" -- MILOSEVIC NONETHELESS SUGGESTED THAT OVER YEARS THE PARTS OF THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA WILL GROW BACK TOGETHER.

WILL THERE BE A NEGOTIATION?

10. I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT A LOT OF PEOPLE THINK WE ARE ON A FOOL'S ERRAND, TRYING TO ARRANGE A DEAL BASED ON THE SANCTIONS RELIEF/RECOGNITION PACKAGE. ARE THEY CORRECT? MILOSEVIC SAID HE IS FAVORABLE TO THE CONFERENCE IDEA SO LONG AS THERE IS EQUAL TREATMENT. WE MUST BE TREATED FAIRLY. BUT HE MUST GET FULL SANCTIONS RELIEF, NOT JUST SUSPENSION. I TOLD HIM THAT POSSIBILITY SIMPLY DOESN'T EXIST. HE RETORTED BITTERLY THAT HE HAD BEEN "TRICKED" ON THE GAS ISSUE. KOZYREV HAD SHOWN HIM A LETTER IN NOVEMBER FROM CHRISTOPHER THAT PROMISED IT. THE CONTACT GROUP HAD SAID IT WOULD HAPPEN. "NOW WINTER IS ALMOST OVER." I TOLD HIM I DIDN'T COME TO ARGUE OVER GAS. BUT PERHAPS THE EPISODE SHOWED THAT FULL SUSPENSION OF ALL SANCTIONS WAS THE WAY FORWARD. THEN WE WOULDN'T ARGUE OVER EACH DETAIL. US REFUSAL TO FOLLOW THROUGH ON THE GAS PROMISE SHOWED "AN ABSENCE OF STYLE," MILOSEVIC SNEERED.

11. I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT PART OF THE DEAL WOULD HAVE TO BE A SIGNIFICANT TIGHTENING UP OF THE BORDER WITH BOSNIA. THE HELICOPTER CAPER RAISED PRETTY SERIOUS QUESTIONS. MILOSEVIC SAID IT WAS "ARTIFICIALLY CREATED." MLADIC DOESN'T HAVE TWENTY HELICOPTERS. (MILOSEVIC DIDN'T ADD THAT HE HAS MANY MORE THAN TWENTY HELICOPTERS.) HE DIDN'T KNOW WHAT HAD HAPPENED. I CONTINUED THAT, IF A PACKAGE COULD BE PUT TOGETHER, IT WOULD MEAN SENDING SEVERAL HUNDRED MORE MONITORS TO THE BORDER PLUS

RADAR TO MONITOR IT. COULD HE LIVE WITH THAT? "OF COURSE. YES. IF YOU LIFT SANCTIONS, YOU CAN SEND U.S. OFFICERS TO THE BORDERS. BUT YOU WILL HAVE TO PAY FOR THEM."

12. I CONCLUDED BY ASKING AGAIN WHETHER THERE IS ANY POINT IN US PURSUING A NEGOTIATION AT THIS TIME? WHAT YOU ARE TELLING ME IS THAT WE ARE NOT JUST WASTING OUR TIME? NO, REPLIED MILOSEVIC, YOU ARE NOT. BUT IT MUST BE A PHASED PROGRESSION, AN EVOLUTION. HE CONCLUDED: "THERE IS A LOT OF POSSIBILITIES."

KOSOVO

13. AT THE END WE ASKED BRIEFLY ABOUT KOSOVO. MILOSEVIC WAS ESPECIALLY COCKY, CLAIMING THAT THE SITUATION IS QUIET AND NORMAL. DENYING THAT HE IS A SERB NATIONALIST, MILOSEVIC SAID THAT ALBANIANS IN KOSOVO WHO SEE THEMSELVES AS CITIZENS OF SERBIA HAVE NO PROBLEMS, COMPARING THEM TO HISPANICS IN TEXAS. MILOSEVIC STRESSED SERB DOMINANCE IN THE REGION, BUT THERE IS A NEED FOR REINTEGRATION AND ECONOMIC COOPERATION. (THROUGHOUT THE SESSION, WE FOUND OURSELVES DEALING WITH THE "NEW" MILOSEVIC -- A MODERATE, A MAN WHO REJECTS RABID NATIONALISM AND SUPPORTS INTEGRATION OF THE REGION INTO EUROPE.)

A COMMENT ON RUSSIA

14. THROUGHOUT THE CONVERSATION, MILOSEVIC REPEATEDLY REMARKED,"DON'T KEEP PUSHING US INTO THE ARMS OF THE RUSSIANS." ON THE WAY OUT, HE SAID HE WAS ON HIS WAY TO MEET KOZYREV, A MAN WITH A LOT OF PROBLEMS. I TOLD HIM CHECHNYA IS A CANCER IN THEIR SYSTEM IN MY VIEW. MILOSEVIC DREW ME ASIDE AND CONSPIRATORIALLY REMARKED THAT THE SOLUTION FOR THE CHECHEN PROBLEM WILL BE CHECHEN INDEPENDENCE.

MEMORANDUM FOR TONY LAKE

FROM: LEON FUERTH

SUBJECT: Controlling Release of FRY Frozen Assets under Plan B

One of the most important implementation issues underlying the Contact Group's Plan B offer to Milosevic is how to manage release of frozen assets. If the international community fails to handle this issue properly, Milosevic could get a massive infusion of cash that he can use to rectify his economy's most pressing problems or -- if the worst happens in Croatia or Bosnia -- finance a Serbian spring offensive. In the longer term, a maladroit release of assets will also give Milosevic significant advantage over the other Yugoslav successor states by helping him increase his creditworthiness while saddling others with a disproportionate share of outstanding Yugoslav debt.

Blocked assets include bank deposits, credits, debts, real estate and tangible property. We have a good idea of what is frozen in the U.S., but it is less clear how much is held by other governments as many were not as rigorous as we were in seizing assets in the first place and some have since allowed the Serbs to draw on frozen accounts to buy humanitarian goods.

Issues to address in releasing blocked assets include

- determining ownership (successor state issues are not yet settled)

- paying depositors, creditors, and other claimants (the Yugoslav institutions and firms whose assets were frozen owed a lot of money to a lot of people -- including numerous U.S. citizens and firms; those creditors have valid claims for payment if assets are unfrozen)

- payment of war reparations and other penalties

The U.S. Government should seek a thorough international inventory of frozen assets as a first step to their orderly distribution. Then, there should be a meeting of financial and banking experts to discuss how to unblock assets with due provision for the rights of successor states and creditors. We should continue to insist on resolution language mandating that assets not be released until ownership is resolved and legal rights of successor states, creditors, and other claimants are protected.

Remember that Milosevic is a banker. He will find it hard to object to such a process, while he certainly will be quick to take advantage of any openings we give him. So long as our approach requires that claims of others be adjudicated, the time frame for releasing frozen assets is relatively long, which tends to deny Milosevic short-term access for purposes we might find objectionable and preserves some leverage for settling other issues.

So long as we require that claims be adjudicated, the time frame for releasing frozen assets is relatively long, which limits Milosevic's short-term access for purposes we might find objectionable and preserves some leverage for settling other issues.

Implementing Plan B

Conditions for sanctions relief	Requirements to enforce conditions
Addressed in 2/15 CG Proposal
FRY recognition... must be genuine and unequivocal	• Clear definition of "genuine and unequivocal" recognition • Link definition to SC procedures for suspending and reimposing sanctions
Sanctions suspension for 2 month periods, positive SC vote needed for renewal each time	Unambiguous language in SC resolution suspending sanctions
Sanctions enforcement regime against FRY(S&M) must remain in place to allow quick reimposition of full sanctions	• SAMs structure remains in place • Front-line states retain enforcement mechanisms
Restrictions beyond UNSC resolutions to remain in force (no IFI assistance, no UN seat, no readmission to OSCE)	Agreement among CG that these items should be held back as long-term leverage against settlement of region's underlying security problems (e.g.: Kosovo, War Crimes Tribunal)
Significant toughening of monitoring regime on FRY borders with Bosnia and Croatia (more monitors and more equipment)	European agreement to deploy additional monitors and equipment
Sanctions relief to go into effect only after border is more tightly closed and Europeans have deployed additional monitors	Agreed definition of "acceptable" level of closure and monitoring
FRY continues to support CG plan for Bosnia	Links to reimposition and extension language in resolution
FRY endorses principles of Z-4 plan	Links to reimposition and extension language in resolution
NOT Addressed 2/15 CG Proposal
Mechanism for immediate revocation of sanctions relief if FRY reneges	Unambiguous language in SC resolution stipulating conditions under which sanctions relief would be revoked
Closing the "Back Door:" Goods reaching Pale via Croatian and GOBH territory threaten to make FRY border closure irrelevant	• GOC and GOBH commitment to control trade with Pale Serbs; plus CG/international agreement to control trade on Croatia/Bosnia border (or to cut off both Pale and Knin Serbs) • Support (monitors, technical assistance) for GOC and GOBH • Clarify UNPROFOR role
Protecting interests of successor states and other claimants as financial sanctions are suspended	Agreement that assets will not be released until successor state, creditor, and other claimants concerns have been addressed
Prohibiting trade facilitation agreements with the FRY	Trade preferences and other agreements should be included in the list of non-UNSC sanctions cited above

Summary of Conclusions

Croatian Decision to Eject UNPROFOR

1. Principals discussed strategy for convincing President Tudjman to reconsider his decision to terminate UNPROFOR's mandate, focusing on the approach that Assistant Secretary Holbrooke should take in his March 6 meeting with Tudjman. They approved the overall approach set forth in the State Department paper and draft talking points: on the one hand, a tough message insisting that Tudjman allow interpositional forces to remain in the separation zone between Croatian and Krajina Serb forces, and raising the prospect of punitive measures if Tudjman remains intransigent; on the other hand, an understanding of his difficult political environment and a willingness to work with him on a new mandate for a force to replace UNPROFOR.

2. In response to Tudjman's demand for peacekeeping forces or observers along Croatia's international border, Principals agreed that Holbrooke should unequivocally rule out the possibility that the U.S. would contribute to such a force. If Tudjman is prepared to agree to retaining the interpositional force in the separation zone, Holbrooke may indicate a readiness to take this up with U.S. Allies, but without encouraging him to believe there is a significant likelihood of NATO assuming this mission.

3. Principals agreed that the possibility of a visit by Tudjman to the U.S. in mid-March for the first anniversary of the Bosniac-Croat Federation could provide an inducement for Tudjman to compromise on UNPROFOR. They affirmed the Deputies' recommendation that Holbrooke should make clear that the minimum requirement for such a visit would be a three-month extension of UNPROFOR's mandate and Tudjman's agreement to retain interpositional forces as part of any UNPROFOR successor force.

4. Principals agreed that, following Holbrooke's meeting with Tudjman, we would seek German agreement on a joint demarche to Tudjman by the President and Chancellor Kohl.

5. Principals requested an analysis of the potential impact on Tudjman's policies and support for the Federation in the event the U.S. carried out punitive measures in the event he remained intransigent on ejecting UNPROFOR. (Action: CIA)

Step Two of NATO Prepositioning

6. To sustain our leadership of the Alliance, principals decided to recommend to the President that he authorize U.S. representatives to support a decision at NATO to implement Step Two prepositioning in Croatia of communications systems and personnel needed to support a possible UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia. This decision would be subject to prior Congressional consultations early in the week of March 6. (Based on subsequent discussion among Principals, it was agreed to delay implementation of these steps for one week.) (Action: NSC)

7. Principals agreed that, in the Congressional consultations, we would characterize this as a limited, precautionary move that is being taken without prejudice to a possible future decision to deploy U.S. forces as part of a NATO-led withdrawal of UNPROFOR. We would also state that we intend to consult closely with the Congress on the latter, if and when a decision is taken to withdraw UNPROFOR, and that we will seek prior Congressional approval of the necessary funding. (Action State and DOD, in coordination with NSC)

THE PRESIDENT HAS SEEN

MR. PRESIDENT

Attached is a decision memo from Tony Lake on U.S. participation in NATO's "Step Two" prepositioning of communications systems for use in possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR troops from Croatia. Step Two would involve agreement to deploy some 450 U.S. military personnel in Europe, 320 of them in Croatia -- though actual deployment would be subject to a further decision of the NAC.

Pros: Our participation would send the right signal about U.S. leadership in NATO. Our allies' forces on the ground are in danger and we must not be seen obstructing NATO military planning needed to protect them. Cons: prepositioning could embolden Tudjman to keep refusing any UNPROFOR successor force, moving us toward commitment of a large-scale ground force to help extract UNPROFOR, and in turn leading to a wider war.

Our allies would prefer to keep UNPROFOR in place and are reluctant to proceed with Step Two deployment at this time, fearing this could hasten UNPROFOR's departure and open the way for air strikes and lifting the arms embargo. But deployment may become unavoidable.

While recognizing the real risks, NSC Principals recommend approval of U.S. participation in Step Two. Leon and George concur, though George is concerned that this might trigger a War Powers debate. We have forwarded a copy of the memo to the Vice President. If you approve, State and Defense will consult with Congress next week before informing NATO of our decision.

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: U.S. Participation in Step Two of NATO Prepositioning for UNPROFOR Withdrawal

Purpose

To obtain your agreement for U.S. forces' participation in Step Two of NATO prepositioning for UNPROFOR withdrawal.

Background

Principals met Friday to discuss U.S. participation in Step Two of NATO's ongoing efforts to prepare to support a possible UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia. We are seeking your approval to inform NATO that the United States agrees to support Step Two of NATO's efforts to preposition communications systems and operators in Croatia. Step Two includes deployment of approximately 450 U.S. military personnel within Europe, including 320 to government-controlled areas of Croatia, although the timing of the actual deployment of the prepositioning force will be subject to a subsequent NAC decision in the next few weeks.

NATO and UNPROFOR military planning for UNPROFOR's possible withdrawal from Bosnia has been underway for several months. With UNPROFOR withdrawal a possibility this spring, NATO began to take action in February by executing Step One which initiated the process of establishing an enhanced theater communications system. No U.S. forces were involved. With Step One well underway, NATO is seeking approval to execute Step Two which will deploy military personnel to set up and operate the communications system.

Prepositioning is a necessary step to support a large operation. Nearly 1,800 personnel are involved, including the 450 Americans. The total NATO cost for prepositioning is estimated at $11.3M and comes from existing NATO funds (the U.S. pays 25 percent), although we will pay our own transportation and sustainment costs. An orderly withdrawal of UNPROFOR cannot begin until eight weeks after the prepositioning occurs; thus Shali argues that delaying a decision will put Allied forces at risk.

eight weeks after the prepositioning occurs; thus Shali argues that delaying a decision will put Allied forces at risk.

This decision would carry significant risks, even though it would send the right signal about U.S. leadership in NATO, support our military leaders and maximize military preparedness. In the worst case, it could set in motion a series of events leading to UNPROFOR's withdrawal and renewed fighting, with NATO and U.S. forces left on the ground to deal with the aftermath. Tudjman might welcome the NATO deployment as a stepping stone to a larger NATO and U.S. ground role as UNPROFOR's replacement. Emboldened by NATO and U.S. forces in Croatia, Tudjman could become even more intransigent on accepting an UNPROFOR successor force. This could move us closer to an actual commitment of ground forces for a large-scale operation to extract UNPROFOR, the exact dimensions of which will remain unknown until the plan is completed in about two weeks. With NATO on the ground, or positioned to extract UNPROFOR, the decision to withdraw UNPROFOR will be easier for the UN and troop contributors to make. If they withdraw, renewed fighting is a certainty and the wider war we feared will have been facilitated by NATO's deployment into Croatia. While we anticipate a subsequent NAC decision will be taken to deploy the forces into Croatia, with each incremental step, it becomes more unlikely that our decision will be reversible. In fact, if NATO decides to conduct the operation, large-scale U.S. participation is inevitable.

Not all Allies support prepositioning, so our decision may prove academic for the time being. The French have been the most adamant, calling for a delay on the grounds that putting NATO personnel on the ground in Croatia would undermine efforts to change Tudjman's mind. Other Allies have voiced similar concerns and fear that NATO prepositioning will set in train the steps described above, leading to UNPROFOR's withdrawal and the wider war that diplomatic efforts aim to prevent. They also see UNPROFOR's departure as the opening to lifting the arms embargo and accompanying air strikes. Allies prefer to keep UNPROFOR in place and muddle through.

After balancing the risks against the military requirements, Principals decided that, because of the danger to our Allies who have forces on the ground and to sustain our leadership of the Alliance, we should make the commitment to support Step Two. This will permit the personnel to be organized and trained, with their actual deployment subject to a further decision by the NAC. Principals agreed that we will not press those Allies who are reluctant to execute Step Two but that it is important that the U.S. not be seen as obstructing NATO military planning needed to reduce the risks to Allied forces.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Principals also concluded that, in view of the Congressional interest that the deployment of 320 U.S. military personnel to Croatia will generate, consultations must be completed before informing NATO of our decision. We would seek to cast this as a limited, precautionary move that is being taken without prejudice to a possible future decision to help in a NATO-led withdrawal of UNPROFOR. We would make clear that we intend to consult closely with the Congress on the latter (more formidable) undertaking and seek prior Congressional approval of the necessary funding. If you agree, State and Defense will brief leadership and key committee chairs early next week.

RECOMMENDATION

That you authorize U.S. representatives at NATO to support Step Two prepositioning, subject to consultations with Congress, and with the actual deployment of U.S. personnel to Croatia subject to a subsequent NAC and Principals' decision.

Not all Allies support prepositioning, so our decision may prove academic for the time being. The French have been the most adamant, calling for a delay on the grounds that putting NATO personnel on the ground in Croatia would undermine efforts to change Tudjman's mind. Other Allies have voiced similar concerns and fear that NATO prepositioning will set in train steps that will make UNPROFOR withdrawal more likely and lead to the wider war diplomatic efforts aim to prevent. Principals agree that while we will not press the Alliance to execute Step Two, it is important that the U.S. not be seen as obstructing NATO military planning needed to reduce the risks to Allied forces.

In considering this issue, we weighed the political risks to diplomatic efforts to reverse Tudjman's UNPROFOR decision against the military risks of delaying NATO's readiness to support withdrawal should it become necessary. The Principals decided, in balance, because of the danger to our Allies who have forces on the ground, and to sustain our leadership of the Alliance, we should make the commitment to support Step Two. This will permit the personnel to be organized and trained, with their actual deployment subject to a further decision by Principals and the NAC.

SUBECT: MILOSEVIC'S MARCH MEETING WITH
- EUROPEAN CG MEMBERS

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT

2. SUMMARY: UK CHARGE HAS PROVIDED COM WITH A READ-OUT OF THE FOUR-HOUR MEETING AND DINNER WHICH MILOSEVIC HAD WITH EUROPEAN CG MEMBERS ON THE EVENING OF MARCH 1. ACCORDING TO ROBERTS, MILOSEVIC PUT FORTH A PROPOSAL WHICH WOULD PROVIDE FOR LIFTING OF SANCTIONS AGAINST THE "FRY" A PARIS CONFERENCE AS PROPOSED BY JUPPE BY THE END OF MARCH, AND THE DRAFTING OF A DOCUMENT BETWEEN THESE TWO STEPS WHICH WOULD BE ADOPTED BY ALL PARTIES AT THE PARIS MEETING. THIS DOCUMENT WOULD CONTAIN, INTER ALIA, A SERIES OF AGREEMETS TO PROMOTE THE PEACE PROCESS IN BOSNIA AND CROATIA, INCLUDING THE CONSTITUTIONAL PRINCIPLES FOR BOSNIA AND AN ACCELERATED VERSION OF THE VANCE AGREEMENT FOR CROATIA. MILOSEVIC MADE CLEAR THAT RECOGNITION OF CROATIA WOULD COME ONLY TOWARD THE END OF THIS PROCESS, I.E. AFTER ANY MEETING IN PARIS. HE SEEMED TO SHOW GREATER READINESS TO RECOGNIZE BOSNIA, BUT REMAINED UNCLEAR ON WHETHER RECOGNITION WOULD COME AT THE PARIS MEETING. MILOSEVIC PROMISED TO PROVIDE TO THE EUROPEANS BY MARCH 3 SOME

SUGGESTED DRAFT LANGUAGE FOR THE DOCUMENT. NOTE: FRG CONTACT GROUP MEMBER STEINER (PLEASE PROTECT) ASKED TO MEET WTH COM BEFORE LEAVING BELGRADE TO PROVIDE HIS VIEW OF SOME POINTS WHICH WERE DIFFERENTLY INTERPRETED AT THE EU MEMBERS' CAUCUS FOLLOWING THE MEETING. STEINER'S VIEWS ARE IDENTIFIED BELOW WHEN DIFFERENT FROM UK READ-OUT. END SUMMARY

3. MILOSEVIC BEGAN HIS PRESENTATION BY SAYING THAT HE WANTED TO PROPOSE AN APPROACH THAT HE WAS "CONVINCED" WOULD BRING PEACE TO THE REGION BY THE SUMMER. THE APPROACH CONSISTED OF TWO STEPS PLUS SOME INTERVENING ACTION. THE FIRST STEP WOULD BE THE LIFTING OF ALL SANCTIONS AGAINST THE "FRY." THE SECOND STEP WOULD BE THE CONVENING OF A PARIS CONFERENCE, AS PROPOSED BY JUPPE, BY THE END OF MARCH. THE INTERVENING ACTION WOULD BE THE DRAFTING OF A DOCUMENT TO BE ACCEPTED BY ALL PARTICIPANTS IN PARIS.

4. THE DOCUMENT PREPARED FOR PARIS WOULD CONSIST OF THREE PARTS. THE FIRST PART WOULD BE LANGUAGE COMMITTING ALL SIDES TO SOLVING PROBLEMS THROUGH PEACEFUL MEANS, WITH AGREEMENT TO IMPOSE "SEVERE SANCTIONS" ON ANY SIDE CHOOSING THE WAR OPTION.

5. THE SECOND PART OF THE DOCUMENT WOULD REITERATE SUPPORT FOR THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN FOR BOSNIA AND SPELL OUT THREE CONSTITUTIONAL PRINCIPLES FOR BOSNIA. THESE THREE PRINCIPLES WOULD BE: A) THAT BOSNIA-HERCEGOVINA WOULD BE A UNION OF THE FEDERATION AND THE REPUBLIKA SRPSKA; B) THAT THESE TWO ENTITIES WOULD BE EQUAL AND HAVE EQUAL RIGHTS; AND C) THAT BOTH SIDES WOULD HAVE THE RIGHT TO CONFEDERATE OR HAVE A SPECIAL RELATIONSHIP WITH CROATIA OR THE "FRY," RESPECTIVELY.

6. MILOSEVIC SAID THAT THIS PART OF THE DOCUMENT WOULD ALSO HAVE AGREEMENT TO EXTEND THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES. WITH THIS IN PLACE, THE "FRY" AND BOSNIA WOULD AGREE UPON MUTUAL RECOGNITION. MILOSEVIC SAID THAT THE DOCUMENT COULD THUS BY-PASS NEGOTIATIONS ON CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUES AND LEAVE ONLY TERRITORIAL MATTERS UNSETTLED. HE SUGGESTED THAT AFTER THE PARIS MEETING, THE CONTACT GROUP COULD INVITE THE WARRING PARTIES IN BOSNIA TO A MEETING TO SETTLE TERRITORIAL ISSUES, WHICH SHOULD NOT BE PROBLEMATIC GIVEN THE ABOVE FOUNDATION. (NOTE: ACCORDING TO STEINER, THE EUROPEANS FAILED TO GET A CLEAR ANSWER FROM MILOSEVIC ON WHETHER RECOGNITION OF BOSNIA WOULD BE PART OF THE PARIS SCENARIO OR COME AFTERWARD.)

7. THE THIRD PART OF THE DOCUMENT WOULD CONCERN CROATIA. THE DOCUMENT WOULD CALL UPON BOTH KNIN AND ZAGREB TO BEGIN DIRECT NEGOTIATIONS ON A POLITICAL SETTLEMENT "IN PARALLEL" WITH FINALIZATION OF THE ECONOMIC AGREEMENT. ZAGREB WOULD ALSO AGREE TO CONTINUE

ALONG THE PATH OF THE VANCE PLAN (I.E. MAINTAIN THE UNPROFOR MANDATE) UNTIL A POLITICAL SETTLEMENT WAS REACHED. THE DOCUMENT WOULD FURTHER COMMIT MILOSEVIC
AND TUDJMAN TO BEGIN A SERIES OF BILATERAL MEETINGS--PERHAPS ALTERNATING IN ZAGREB AND BELGRADE--TO
"NORMALIZE" THEIR BILATERAL RELATIONS. MILOSEVIC
SPECULATED THAT THIS NORMALIZATION WOULD PROCEED
QUICKLY. HE MADE CLEAR UNDER QUESTIONING, HOWEVER, THAT RECOGNITION WOULD COME TOWARD THE END OF THIS PROCESS, AND THUS CLEARLY AFTER THE PARIS MEETING. (ACCORDING TO STEINER, WHEN PRESSED ON THIS POINT HE SAID THAT IT WOULD SURELY COME "BY THE END OF THE YEAR.")

8. MILOSEVIC CONCLUDED BY SAYING THAT THIS APPROACH WAS SIMILAR TO THE CG PLAN, ALTHOUGH IT INCLUDED LIFTING

- EUROPEAN CG MEMBERS

RATHER THAN SUSPENSION OF SANCTIONS AND A DIFFERENT
SEQUENCE OF EVENTS. HE SAID THAT IN THE CASE OF BOSNIA, BOTH WARRING SIDES WOULD BE "DISAPPOINTED," THE MUSLIMS
BECAUSE THEY DID NOT HAVE A UNITARY STATE AND THE BOSNIAN SERBS BECAUSE THEY DID NOT HAVE A SOVEREIGN STATE. IT WOULD NOT, HOWEVER, BE A BAD OUTCOME TO HAVE "EQUAL DISAPPOINTMENT."

9. FOLLOWING MILOSEVIC'S PRESENTATION, THERE WAS LENGTHY DISCUSSION IN TRYING TO ELUCIDATE PARTS OF THIS PACKAGE. THERE WAS NOT TOTAL CLARITY ON WHAT WOULD BE RECOGNIZED IN THE CASE OF BOSNIA, THOUGH AT ONE POINT
MILOSEVIC SAID HE WOULD RECOGNIZE "THE UNION."
MILOSEVIC WAS ALSO PRESSED ON WHY HE COULD NOT RECOGNIZE CROATIA EARLIER, AS PART OF THE PARIS MEETING. HE ARGUED THAT IT WAS NOT POSSIBLE TO RECOGNIZE CROATIA
"OVERNIGHT." PUBLIC OPINION HAD TO BE PREPARED FOR THIS, AND THERE WERE BILATERAL ISSUES AT STAKE, SUCH AS PREVLAKA AND THE OIL PIPELINE. HE REJECTED A SUGGESTION FROM THE EUROPEANS THAT "PRINCIPLES" COULD BE AGREED IN PARIS (AS IN THE CASE OF BOSNIA) THAT COULD HASTEN RECOGNITION. HE SAID THE PROCESS HAD TO "MATURE" AND THAT THE CG WAS UNDERESTIMATING THE SENSITIVITIES IN THE "FRY" ON SERB-CROAT RELATIONS.

10. ON OTHER POINTS, MILOSEVIC SAID HE HAD NO OBJECTION TO ENLARGEMENT OF THE ICFY BORDER MONITORING MISSION BY

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

AS MUCH AS THE CG WANTED. ON SANCTIONS RELIEF, HOWEVER, HE REPEATED FAMILIAR ARGUMENTS THAT LIFT RATHER THAN SUSPENSION WAS NECESSARY. HE SAID SUSPENSION WAS HUMILIATING AND REPEATED THAT IT COULD BE REVERSED BY ANOTHER FABRICATED HELICOPTER INCIDENT. LATER IN THE DISCUSSION, HE SAID THAT IN THE EVENT OF CLEAR VIOLATION OF AGREEMENTS ON HIS SIDE, THE SECURITY COUNCIL ALWAYS HAD THE OPTION TO RE-IMPOSE SANCTIONS.

11. THE MEETING CONCLUDED WITH THE EUROPEANS AGREEING TO STUDY MILOSEVIC'S PROPOSAL BUT STRESSING THAT THE GAP BETWEEN HIM AND THE CG REMAINED WIDE. MILOSEVIC SAID THAT TO MAKE HIS PROPOSAL CLEARER HE WOULD PROVIDE SOME DRAFT DOCUMENT LANGUAGE TO THE EUROPEANS BY MARCH 3. HE ASKED THAT PRESS ACCOUNTS OF THE MEETING NOT DIVULGE DETAILS AND MAKE REFERENCE ONLY TO GENERAL DISCUSSION OF THE PEACE PROCESS.

12. STEINER TOLD US IN CONFIDENCE THAT IN THE EUROPEAN CG CAUCUS AFTER THE MEETING, THE UK TOOK A MUCH MORE POSITIVE VIEW OF MILOSEVIC'S SUGGESTIONS THAN EITHER THE FRENCH OR THE GERMANS. TO THE SURPRISE OF THE EUROPEAN, MILOSEVIC DID NOT RAISE THE SUCCESSOR STATE ISSUE, UN MEMBERSHIP, OR INTERNATIONAL RECOGNITION FOR THE "FRY."

13. WE ARE SENDING THIS INFORMATION VIA NIACT IMMEDIATE PRECEDENCE BECAUSE IT CONVEYS INFORMATION RELEVANT TO MARCH 2 MEETINGS IN WASHINGTON AND PARIS. AN ORAL SUMMARY OF THE ABOVE WAS CONVEYED TO AMBASSADOR FRASURE VIA TELCON WITH COM PERINA. PERINA

APPROACH TO TUDJMAN

Attached are suggested talking points for Dick Holbrooke to use with President Tudjman on Monday. The approach, which must be calibrated to Tudjman's side of the conversation, proposes:

-- A tough message insisting that Tudjman allow the interpositional force to remain, coupled with

-- Understanding of his difficult political environment and our willingness to work with him on a new mandate/name for the force.

If Tudjman proves intransigent, Holbrooke may outline some sticks while hinting at carrots, or incentives, if he comes around. These carrots could also include our willingness to discuss with the allies the creation of an international force on Croatia's borders. At the same time, we would make clear that agreement on maintaining the interpositional force is a precondition for any consideration of a border force.

DECL: OADR

TALKING POINTS: HOLBROOKE-TUDJMAN

-- Mr. President, the United States appreciates the role you and your country have played over the past year. You have demonstrated wise and courageous leadership on many issues of war and peace.

-- You know how much we value your help in making the Bosnian Federation possible as we look towards the first anniversary of the Washington Accords.

-- Despite what we have accomplished, we now find ourselves at a crossroads in our relationship with your country.

-- We know the pressures you face from your public to settle the problem of the so-called "Krajina." It is a problem which has remained unresolved for too long.

-- We realize the frustration your public has felt about UNPROFOR's role. We are therefore ready to talk about an alternative to the UN Force in Croatia.

-- However, we absolutely insist that an essential element of any new or re-named force must be the maintenance of interpositional troops between your forces and the Krajina Serbs. Unless this happens, I want to be very clear with you: the full range of our relations and those of the EU will come into question.

(Note: The discussion at this point will be adjusted, based on Tudjman's response, using general references, as needed, to the kinds of carrots and sticks prepared for yesterday's DC meeting).

-- Mr. President, the withdrawal of the interpositional force would be a grave mistake, with grave consequences. In response, we would have to consider a range of specific responses, from such measures as closing diplomatic missions, opposing Croatia in the international financial institutions, and seeking UN sanctions. These would only isolate Croatia.

-- If war were to break out, we would have no choice but to hold you responsible.

-- Mr. President, we are prepared to work with you on finding a solution to the problem of restoring Croatian sovereignty in the so-called Krajina. Specifically, we are prepared to discuss with our allies the creation of an international border monitoring force. But we need your absolute assurances that the interpositional force will remain. If you cannot do so, it will endanger the full range of our bilateral relationship.

Punitive Bilateral Steps -- Sticks (ascending order of severity)

1. Suspend "Memorandum of Cooperation on Defense Relations" — Comment: limited practical result.

2. Revoke permission to open consulates in LA, Pitts, Cleveland — Comment: symbolic significance, No GOC plans to open these immediately.

3. Cut Cultural/Educational Exchanges — Comment: range of options from suspending applications for future exchanges to revoking visas for current visitors. High visibility if we wish.

4. Science/Technology: Suspend coop, freeze Jt Fund projects — Comment: requires advance notice to renounce agreement

5. Curtail Democracy and Rule of Law Programs — Comment: options range from refusing to fund new projects to shutting down existing ones.

6. Cut SEED economic programs for Croatia (not refugees or displaced Croatian population) such as new banking sector project

7. Commercial Treaties - cut off/hold up negotiations on Bilateral Investment, Intellectual Property Rights, Double Taxation Treaties. — Comment: Are in early stages of discussions, Croats studying U.S. models

8. Suspend negotiations now underway on PL-480 $5 million for commodity purchase (cotton).

9. Halt Defense Cooperation. — Comment: We have already suspended programs that would expand bilateral defense cooperation, e.g. IMET, Marshall Center

10. Close recently-opened consulate in New York.

11. Look into ending private military exchange (MPRI).

Positive Bilateral Steps - Carrots (ascending order of value)

1. Serbian Sanctions Linkage
-- Reaffirm U.S. commitment to keep significant sanctions on Belgrade until there is real progress toward reintegrating the Serb-held areas — Comment: if not public and high-level it's nothing new

2. Looser Interpretation of Arms Embargo — Comment: allow sales of grey area items. e.g. parachutes, trucks

3. Croatian Economic Sanctions Veto
-- Pledge to oppose sanctions on Zagreb if Croatia acts responsibly, e.g. peacekeeping essentials, no hostile acts

4. Presidential Meeting
-- Offer Tudjman meeting with the President during Federation commemoration or other suitable occasion

5. Additional U.S. aid.

6. U.S. support for Croatian participation in PFP — Comment: Requires NATO consensus to be achieved

7. Limited number of U.S. troops to participate in restructured and different mandate in Krajina.

Punitive Multilateral Steps (Ascending order of severity)

1. EU to drop/suspend/end negotiations for Cooperation Agreement

2. UN arms embargo
-- Enforce vigorously

(Note: Very tricky not to disadvantage Bosnia supply; we must be in compliance with Nunn-Mitchell re Bosnia)

3. International Financial Institutions
-- Freeze Croatia programs in EBRD, IBRD

(Note: Cut-off of IMF program inadvisable given Zagreb's excellent economic stabilization progress)

4. UN Economic Sanctions on Croatia

Positive Multilateral Steps (ascending order of value)

1. WTO Accession
Support Croatian accession to the World Trade Organization

2. Highway/Pipeline Security
-- "UNPROFOR Heavy" or NATO deployment to secure highway and oil pipeline.

Comment: both sides have already agreed on desirability of re-opening pipeline and highway

3. International Border Control
-- Organize force (largely symbolic) along lines Zagreb proposes
-- Requires Serb consent
-- Could build up from existing mandates in Vance Plan (JNA withdrawal monitoring), ICFY Mission (Krajina transshipments), and/or UNPROFOR (Highway checkpoints)

Comment: helping separate Krajina and Serbia accelerates Krajina reintegration

4. Air strikes
-- UN/NATO attacks on RSK positions in event of provocations

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

(3)

Option I - UNPROFOR Reconfigured and Re-named, UNPROFOR "Lite"

Essential elements of UNPROFOR Lite proposal and address other Tudjman concerns. Bottom line: must maintain force in cease-fire lines.

Possible Mission Elements:

-- A new name. e.g. International Monitor Force.

-- New Special Representative of the Secretary General (SRSG). Akashi would retain responsibility only for Bosnia and Macedonia.

-- Reduced troop presence of about 5,000 - 7,000 would continue to monitor the force separation line.

-- Small (less than 200) observer force would symbolically monitor the international border (more robust mandate would only set up mission for failure). This aspect of mission could be non-UN.

-- CIVPOL or civilian component might be retained to help implement economic confidence building measures (ECBM's), help protect minorities in the UNPA's and facilitate transitional arrangements in UNPA West.

PRO:

- o Perhaps only realistic alternative to current UNPROFOR.
- o British, French support concept.
- o Continued UN involvement facilitates broader international support.
- o Continuity and cost limitation by using existing forces and logistic infrastructure.
- o Gives Tudjman symbolic recognition of his borders and the start of an effort toward transition in UNPA West. Akashi is replaced in Croatia. Knin gets a force on the separation line in return for border monitoring force.
- o Better able to coordinate its actions with UNPROFOR Bosnia than non-UN force.
- o Less costly than current operation. Funding mechanism exists.
- o If we felt desirable as carrot for Tujdman, could include US contingent.

CON:

- o Unity of command lost with two SRSG's.
- o Still UN command, maybe not enough coverage for Tudjman.
- o Knin, the Bosnian Serbs, and the Bosniacs could all veto the border monitors.
- o Border monitors and effort to begin transition in UNPA West might prove ineffective. Having to pull border monitors out under pressure could have serious political costs.

Option II - Retaining UNPROFOR "As Is", "UNPROFOR Stout"

UNPROFOR would continue roughly at current manpower levels, with a presence in the UNPAs and along the ceasefire lines, and possibly an added presence along the international border. It would pursue its mandate in theory but not necessarily with the agreement of the parties, but with the warning that interference by the parties would invite a response.

PRO:

- o Continuity
- o Proven effectiveness
- o Maximize coordination of overall ex-Yugo policy

CON:

- o UNPROFOR (esp. Akashi) has no credibility with GOC
- o Requires Tudjman to back all the way down
- o Without Croatian agreement, would be in difficult political position
- o Difficult to secure UNSC, NAC agreement on vigorous response.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Option III - WEU Force

There has been discussion in European governments of the WEU providing the interpositional force. They might also be able to provide just border monitors, or other elements of the mandates sketched out above. WEU would be NATO in all but name, and no US troops.

PRO:

- "NATO Standard" troops could operate under more robust ROE if the political will was present.
- Would hand lead for solving the problem in Croatia back to the Europeans.
- Might involve very little cost to the U.S.

CON:

- Europeans have already said they are skeptical.
- Has never been tried. No precedent for success. Could be totally ineffective and lead to greater conflict.
- In practice unlikely to be much more assertive than UNPROFOR has been, which could erode both WEU and NATO credibility.
- Discontinuity with current UN operations.
- Russia and Islamic countries might feel marginalized.
- Europeans would expect cash contributions from the U.S. We have no effective way to contribute the large sums that would be expected.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Option IV - OSCE Force

The OSCE has limited experience with peacekeeping and is enmeshed in plans for an operation in Nagorno Karabakh. Doesn't yet have infrastructure to run a large operation. Probably could not do both in Croatia and NK. Might be better suited to perform just the border monitoring mission.

PRO:

- Would involve a credible, broad-based regional organization to which the U.S. belongs. Russia is also a member.
- Unless the U.S. were to contribute large numbers of troops or logistical support our costs might be very low. (8.3% of common costs)
- We would remain important players at a political level.
- Planning done for deployment to NK give the organization some experience in planning a large scale operation.

CON:

- Not clear who would contribute troops. Might result in offers primarily from Eastern European countries. Might not get enough troops.
- OSCE is a consensus organization. Anyone can veto.
- Unity of command in ex-Yugo would be compromised.
- OSCE has even more restrictive ROE than the UN.
- OSCE lacks peace-keeping experience and is tied up with Nagorno-Karabakh.
- No money budgeted for this. Cost sharing mechanism unclear and untested.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Option V - Multinational Force

A multinational coalition would probably act under authority of a UN mandate. Any combination of participants would require strong leadership. The U.S. is the only country that has effectively led a multinational military effort. England and France might be capable, but would probably have to rely heavily on our diplomatic capital.

PRO:

- Has potential to be the most robust option, by far.
- Although many countries may contribute token forces, the leaders of the coalition usually retain much tighter political control over the force.

CON:

- Most likely to require some U.S. troop presence on the ground.
- Increased risk of embroiling troop contributing nations directly in the conflict. Attacks on troops acting in national capacity may require retaliation.
- Not budgetted and no mechanism to share costs. US could be stuck with the bill.
- Unless the MNF troops were prepared to intervene militarily to stop aggression it could undermine credibility of the troop contributing nations.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ March 3, 1995

DECISION PAPER

ISSUE FOR DECISION: Should the U.S. support continued military preparations for UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia, and possibly Croatia, by approving the NATO proposal to commence Step Two prepositioning, which includes deployment of approximately 450 U.S. military personnel within Europe, including 320 to Croatia?

KEY POINTS

- No UN formal decision to withdraw UNPROFOR from either Bosnia or Croatia. Intelligence community assesses fighting will resume in Bosnia this spring with no immediate prospect for a negotiated settlement.

- Croatian President Tudjman insists UNPROFOR withdraw from the UNPAs between March 31 and June 30. Will likely result in fighting between the Croats and Krajina Serbs, with significant possibility of spillover into Bosnia.

- NATO planning to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia is contained in OPLAN 40104, which is continuously being updated. Initial NATO planning to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia should be complete by mid-March.

- Once Step 2 is authorized, it will take two weeks to assemble the force with two additional weeks to set up the communications system. It will take an additional 4-6 weeks until all forces are in theater ready to conduct withdrawal operations.

- Prepositioning is a necessary, but reversible, step to support a large military operation. The total number of personnel involved is approximately 1736, including 450 U.S. military personnel (320 in Croatia). The total NATO cost for prepositioning is estimated at $11.3M ($5M already authorized for step 1), to be paid out of existing NATO funds. (Countries pay own transport/sustainment costs.)

- When the NAC authorizes prepositioning step 2 it will issue a combined ACTWARN/ACTREQ officially notifying member states of the potential operation and requesting specific troop contributions. It will also issue three ACTWARNs, notifying nations of the potential requirements for: (1) logistics, movement, and reserve forces, (2) maritime and air forces, and (3) main body forces. Each subsequent step will require formal approval by the NAC.

2013-0682-M

PROs:

- Prudent preparation for a likely major military operation. Reduces lead-time from notification to execution.
- Demonstrates U.S. leadership in NATO alliance, reducing potential embarrassment to U.S. and NATO by preparing for a likely call for NATO assistance. An unplanned withdrawal could result in calls for U.S. unilateral support, or participation in a "coalition-of-the-capable" (U.S., UK, FR.), seriously damaging NATO.
- U.S. troops deploying to Croatia will be stationed in Zagreb and various seaports, not the UNPAs.
- This is a low-cost, potentially, reversible step. Actual expense to USG is movement of U.S. personnel within Europe.
- NATO deployment could sober Tudjman into adopting a reasonable approach to accepting an UNPROFOR alternative.

CONs:

- Tudjman could view NATO deployment as stepping stone to larger NATO and U.S. ground role as UNPROFOR replacement and become less willing to deal in current negotiations.
- Could be viewed as the U.S. supporting a step that leads to the withdrawal of UNPROFOR and the wider war we have been trying to avoid.
- Could make for easier UN decision to withdraw UNPROFOR from Croatia, and subsequently Bosnia.
- Places U.S. personnel on the ground in Croatia, apparently reversing long-standing policy, although U.S. forces now support UNPROFOR in Zagreb.
- Postures U.S. and NATO for a military operation with indeterminate start and end dates.
- First installment for an operation that could eventually require 20,000-30,000 U.S. military personnel and cost the USG about $1B. (U.S. incremental plus UN assessed costs.)
- Although arguably reversible, it will be difficult to withdraw from the operation once 450 U.S. personnel have deployed.
- Tough sell to a Congress, especially before the plan is understood: another UN peacekeeping operation, raises command and control of U.S. forces, requires significant funding or reprogramming, eventually puts U.S. troops on the ground in Bosnia and reopens issue of Congressional role in military operations.

o No apparent American public support.

ANALYSIS

Political risk versus military risk - how much is acceptable? If we preposition now, we have to weigh the unknown impact of NATO forces deploying into Croatia on the diplomatic efforts to reverse Tudjman's decision against the real costs of delay in NATO's readiness to support withdrawal should it become necessary.

The driving force for a decision now is related to retaining a strong leadership role within the Alliance so that NATO will be properly postured to conduct a successful military operation. If the only issue was military preparedness, the decision would be an easy one. Other factors complicate the decision making process.

There is no certainty as to how regional actors will react. The CIA estimates that Tudjman and hard-liners would probably welcome NATO involvement and encourage the NATO mission to expand and will look for ways to make NATO useful to him. The Knin Serbs may begin to take UNPROFOR hostages if they believe the initial NATO deployment is the forerunner of a larger NATO force to protect an UNPROFOR withdrawing from the Krajina.

It is unclear how a NATO deployment will impact on diplomatic efforts to turn Tudjman to a more accommodating stance. Proponents of delaying a decision argue that there are significant political risks to prepositioning. Prepositioning would fracture diplomatic efforts just getting underway and would be viewed by many as the first step to a much wider war. Others argue that Tudjman is manipulating the U.S. and others, and the more we implore him to deal, the more his power grows. Prepositioning married with a package of tough sanctions proposals and a commitment to work for a border force as long as he retains interpositional forces will puncture his balloon.

With the final push beginning next week and actual deployment of Step Two forces weeks away, it is unlikely that a Step Two decision will be a deal breaker or maker. The fog should clear some after next week's meetings with Tudjman.

When the NATO infrastructure is completed, some decision makers in capitals and at the UN could make a decision to withdraw easier to make, knowing NATO stands ready to support if things go awry.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

THE CONGRESSIONAL FACTOR

While Congressional reaction is rarely predictable, the Hill can probably be convinced to go along with a Step Two prepositioning as long as the Hill is consulted in advance, apprising them of the costs, substance and length of time of the mission. There will also be interest in the command and control issue, i.e. they will want a U.S. commander for U.S. troops.

Depending on the costs and magnitude of U.S. troops committed, it is possible there may be a convergence of support on the Hill for UNPROFOR withdrawal among opponents and proponents of unilateral lift. The lift and strikers see UNPROFOR as the main hurdle for the enactment of their policy. On the other hand, those who support continued UNPROFOR presence do understand the need for the U.S. to assist its NATO allies.

Nonetheless, any time American forces deploy abroad in harms way, heavy lifting is needed on the Hill. This is ultimately a winnable battle, but nothing can be taken for granted.

OPTIONS:

A. Approve prepositioning Step 2 without prejudice. Make clear decision to support Step 2 does not commit U.S. to overall operation. Inform Congress, and make subsequent decisions on timing of later steps and contribution of U.S. forces based on the status of negotiations and the evolving situation on the ground.

OR:

B. Defer a final decision on prepositioning until OPLAN 40104 is updated for UNPROFOR withdrawal from Croatia (mid-March at the earliest), the President has been briefed on the completed plan, Congress has been consulted, grants authorization, and a supplemental budget request has been approved or until circumstances on the ground require withdrawal to begin.

FORMER YUGOSLAVIA POLICY REVIEW

Introduction

As we approach a potentially critical period in the Balkans over the next three months, now is the time to review the fundamental principles guiding our policy. U.S. policy has, in fact, had some success over the past two years in containing the spread of the war, reducing the level of violence, keeping relief supplies flowing to most areas, and maintaining cohesion with Allies and Russia. What we have been unable to produce is a political settlement in Bosnia or Croatia that rolls back Serb gains sufficiently to be acceptable to the Bosnians and Croats, and to be perceived as "fair" (much less "just") in moral terms.

The fundamental problem has been a lack of leverage: sanctions and political pressure have been insufficient to sway the Serbs, and our efforts to bring NATO air power to bear have come to naught. In Bosnia, after almost a year of effort, the Contact Group is becoming a spent force, with its unity increasingly strained. In Croatia, the Z-4 plan for a political solution is, for all intents and purposes, stillborn, and Tudjman's decision to eject UNPROFOR threatens to destroy even the limited economic confidence-building measures developed over the past year.

As the CIA paper makes clear, there is no "peace faction" among any of the parties, and Milosevic's willingness to pressure his Serb cousins is limited. If we stay on our present course, the prospects are for an escalation of the war in Bosnia and a new war in Croatia, with the potential unraveling of our limited achievements to date, and increased pressures for U.S. involvement. The differences between the optimistic and pessimistic scenarios are largely ones of timing and degree. And as the risk of war increases in Bosnia and Croatia, the dangers of spillover to other areas grow as well.

If the war escalates, the withdrawal of UNPROFOR from Croatia, Bosnia or both will become increasingly likely -- creating the prospect of U.S. troops on the ground in former Yugoslavia in a hostile environment, the outcome we have most sought to avoid. As international efforts founder, the Bosnians will be able to make an increasingly convincing case for lifting the arms embargo; yet the odds of bringing our Allies and, especially, the Russians along will remain low. Moreover, lifting the arms embargo, to be effective, entails the United States taking other actions that increase our involvement and responsibility.

Interests and Objectives

Throughout the conflict, we have sought to protect several core U.S. interests: maintaining our strategic relationship with key Allies and protecting the credibility of NATO; avoiding a conflict with Russia that could undermine our efforts to promote reform and international cooperation; preventing the spread of the Bosnian conflict into a wider Balkan war that could destabilize southeastern Europe and draw in U.S. allies; and ensuring that the use of force to change borders and acts of genocide do not become legitimate forms of behavior in post-Cold War Europe.

Along with these core interests, we have pursued a range of more specific objectives, but have never set clear priorities among them:

- To stop or limit the fighting.
- To maintain relief supplies and reduce human suffering.
- To prevent the establishment by force of a Greater Serbia.
- To achieve a negotiated settlement acceptable to all parties that reverses at least some Serb territorial conquests and preserves the territorial integrity and international identity of Bosnia, Croatia and other ex-Yugoslav states.
- To prevent the spread of conflict to Kosovo, Macedonia, Albania and beyond.
- To keep U.S. ground forces out except in the context of implementing a political settlement.

The tools we have applied have varied over time in response to events, and as our priorities have shifted: Until the end of 1994, we sought to use NATO military power to enforce UNSC resolutions and to put pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to settle on terms that provided a better deal for the Bosnian Government ("air power in the service of diplomacy"). After Bihac, however, we consciously shifted the emphasis to maintaining NATO cohesion, recognizing that this would erode U.S. and Alliance credibility and reduce further our negotiating leverage. Yet we did not scale back our political objectives to match our reduced leverage -- leading to the present diplomatic impasse.

The result has been charges of fecklessness and an erosion of confidence in U.S. leadership on other issues. Therefore, we now need to step back and confront these inherent contradictions:

- On the one hand, our own principles, as well as public and Congressional pressures, make it difficult to disengage and effectively abandon the Bosnians.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- On the other hand, we do not presently have the means to attain the political goal we have set -- negotiated settlements that deprive the Serbs of some of their ill-gotten gains -- and we have not been prepared to commit those means. Moreover, there is limited public support in the U.S. or in Europe for doing so.

Basic Strategic Choices

Many of our decisions over the next 2-3 months will be driven by events on the ground. But some of our choices will depend on where we want to go in the longer term. Therefore, before considering specific options, Principals need to decide our overall strategic direction and whether the course chosen is politically sustainable. This, in turn, requires deciding what are our priority interests and sticking with that decision in terms of committing the resources needed to attain our goals. The following, in broad terms, are basic approaches to be considered:

1. Continue our present policy; muddle through while supporting the Bosnians: Maintain the Contact Group and continue to seek a political solution that provides a better deal for the Bosnians, but not commit to increased military pressure on their behalf; rely for leverage on sanctions and efforts to isolate the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs (recognizing that these will be inadequate to the task). Seek to contain the fighting and humanitarian suffering to the extent possible, while maintaining Alliance cohesion. Keep UNPROFOR in place in essentially its present form (improve its effectiveness, but don't press it to take a more confrontational stance against the Serbs). Seek to postpone any lifting of the arms embargo and don't push for use of NATO air power, since this would precipitate UNPROFOR's withdrawal. Continue to sustain the Federation. Take additional measures in the front-line states to contain spillover of the conflict, such as beefing up UNPROFOR/Macedonia.

   - This would maintain European and Russian support, reduce the risks of deeper U.S. military involvement, and recognize that, absent such involvement, political settlements are not achievable in the foreseeable future.

   - The gap between our goal of a "fair" settlement and our unwillingness to provide the means to that end, however, would leave us vulnerable to charges of diplomatic fecklessness. It would be difficult to persuade the public and pro-Bosnian elements in the Congress that, over time, the maintenance of sanctions, a continued stalemate on the ground, and the solidity of the Federation will bring the Bosnian Serbs to accept a settlement along the lines of the

Contact Group plan, and the Krajina Serbs to accept autonomy within Croatia.

- The main weakness of this approach, however, is that the Bosnians and the Croatians are not prepared to play along: Both are ready to pursue the military option with renewed vigor over the coming months, putting UNPROFOR's presence in doubt. And the Bosnians will campaign for lift when the ceasefire ends. Our continued rhetorical support for their cause would make it difficult for us to oppose.

2. Adopt a policy of neutrality toward the terms of a settlement and focus on active containment of the conflict: Openly acknowledge that achieving a better solution for the Bosnians is not possible without U.S. actions that it is not in our interest to take. Apart from this shift in approach to the diplomatic track, take essentially the same actions as under the previous approach. Make clear we do not believe multilateral lift is politically attainable and strongly oppose Congressional pressures to lift unilaterally. Abandon Contact Group or suspend its activities, making clear that it is up to the parties, not the international community, to find a mutually acceptable solution. Promote periodic ceasefire agreements. Advise the Bosnians of the need to be realistic about the facts on the ground and agree to terms that acknowledge Serb preeminence (accept territorial outcomes short of 51:49, Serb Confederation with Belgrade; seek protection through links to Croatia, etc.).

   - This course would also maintain good relations with the Europeans, avoid a confrontation with Russia, and reduce the potential for U.S. military involvement. We would concentrate our efforts in areas where we have been able to achieve some success: reducing the violence, delivering humanitarian relief, maintaining the Muslim-Croat ceasefire and the Federation, and preventing the spread of the conflict outside of Bosnia and possibly Croatia. By distancing ourselves from the Bosnians' political agenda, we might have greater success in keeping UNPROFOR in place.

   - We would suffer harsh criticism from some quarters in the Congress and the public for abandoning the Bosnians and performing another flip-flop. We would need to make the case that it is not in U.S. interests to intervene unilaterally to ensure Bosnian victory, that we cannot gain European or Russian support for firmer measures to help the Bosnians, and that lift alone would probably make things worse for them in any case. We would want to appeal to the significant number of Congressmen whose support for lift is soft, and who are not keen on the deeper military involvement that a credible lift-and-strike policy would require.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Assuming we can ride out the initial storm, this approach would lower expectations and adjust public opinion to the reality of a continued conflict for which there may be no immediate solution. It would put the onus on the parties to negotiate directly with one another, rather than forcing us to explain repeated failed diplomatic initiatives backed by empty threats. It would force the Bosnians to accept the reality of defeat and the fact that they are destined to live surrounded by Serbs. It might even lead to a de facto indefinite cessation of serious hostilities, reducing both human suffering and public pressures for action.

- The problem with this approach, like the first, is that we may not be able to ride out the storm: the Bosnians may succeed in getting Congress to lift unilaterally, possibly with sufficient votes to override a Presidential veto. Moreover, we would, effectively, be acquiescing in Serb aggression, setting a dangerous precedent for the future.

3. Containment of Conflict and Long-Term Quarantine of Greater Serbia: Abandon efforts to negotiate a political settlement and reimpose full sanctions against Serbia for the long haul. Make clear we will refuse to recognize Serb conquests in Bosnia and Croatia and we will continue to treat Serbia as a pariah state until Serbs accept settlements that restore territorial integrity of Bosnia and Croatia. Refrain from military intervention, take laissez-faire approach to continued fighting among the parties. Concentrate on humanitarian aid, bolstering the Federation politically and economically, and containing spillover to other parts of the region. If UNPROFOR were to withdraw, this could be combined with a lift-and-leave strategy.

   - This approach would be analogous to our approach to Soviet domination of Central and Eastern Europe during the Cold War, in which we were prepared to wait for decades for a just outcome -- isolating one party while promoting free-market development in the other. It would be based, again, on a recognition that there is no available political solution, and avoid perpetuating false expectations that the international community can impose a settlement. But in contrast to the previous approach, it would be based as well on a judgment that Milosevic remains the problem rather than the solution, despite his recent attempts to play the peacemaker -- distinguishing the victim from the victimizer.

   - It is doubtful Russia would agree if we reimposed the sanctions noose around Serbia, however. We might agree with the Russians to disagree about Serbia, perhaps lifting or suspending some or all multilateral sanctions against the FRY -- but maintaining U.S. sanctions -- in exchange for agreement on continued, tightened sanctions against the Pale and Knin Serbs (but recognizing that Milosevic will try to undermine these to the extent he can get away with it).

- The front-line states' enforcement of sanctions would be difficult to sustain absent substantial financial compensation. Without such compensation, long-term continuation of the sanctions could actually have a destabilizing effect on the region overall. Moreover, this long-term approach could result in further Serb territorial expansion and prolong the humanitarian and refugee crisis for years to come.

- As with approaches 1 and 2, it is not clear we could sustain this course in the face of pressure from the Congress and the Bosnians.

4. Increased U.S. commitment in support of Bosnians, apply military pressure to compel Serb acceptance of a settlement: In theory, this could involve either: (a) returning to our 1994 approach: press for a more robust UNPROFOR that is prepared to use force against Serbs and make active use of NATO close air support; resume NATO enforcement of exclusion zones, and possibly establish additional exclusion zones; if these measures prove insufficient, withdraw UNPROFOR and implement a multilateral lift-and-strike strategy; or (b) proceeding directly to lift and strike, after helping UNPROFOR to withdraw. In practice, only (b) is feasible, since Allies will not agree to robust military actions while their vulnerable UNPROFOR forces remain in place.

- This would align our policy with Congressional rhetoric and provide the means to back up our declared goals of helping the Bosnians and thwarting Serb ambitions. It would lead to increased fighting, at least in the short term, but might in time give the Bosnians the capability to recover territory and, by altering the situation on the battlefield, convince the Serbs to agree to an equitable political settlement.

- It would, however, create significant strains in our relations with our Allies and the Russians. Our readiness to participate in NATO extraction of UNPROFOR could provide the leverage to win Allied support in the UNSC for multilateral lift. But preventing a Russian veto would be more difficult. It would, at a minimum, require lifting sanctions against Serbia at the same time (although this may be necessary in any event to encourage Milosevic not to resume military support to his Serb cousins).

- Moreover, withdrawing UNPROFOR and explicitly committing to produce a Bosnian success would hasten the onset of the situation we have sought most to avoid, the deployment of U.S. ground forces, leaving us with the responsibility for organizing relief supplies and protecting the enclaves. And lift - whether unilateral or multilateral -- would commit us to arming and training the Bosnians for an indefinite period, as well as providing air cover, even if we tried to set a time limit on our support. In short, it could Americanize the war, with little likelihood of hastening a political settlement.

Near-Term Decisions

The foregoing choices pertain mainly to the decisions we will need to take in the coming months on Bosnia. In Croatia, the situation may be more urgent, and our goal more straightforward: to prevent a new war over the Krajina. To this end, we need to be clear at the outset that we do not support Croatian military action to reassert control over the Krajina Serbs, and increase pressure on Tudjman to retain at least some portion of UNPROFOR interposed between the warring parties in the separation zone. We cannot go too far in imposing punitive measures on Tudjman, however, given the importance of Tudjman's support for the Federation and our need to use Croatian territory to support any UN/NATO/U.S. operation in Bosnia. We must above all avoid driving Tudjman into an unholy alliance with Milosevic to carve up Bosnia.

Finally, to the extent that we decide to focus more on containment of spillover, beefing up or replacing UNPROFOR in Macedonia would take on greater urgency alongside the decisions that we will need to make with respect to Bosnia and Croatia.

With these considerations in mind, the following is a sketch of the options on which decisions will be needed over the next three months.

Options: Croatia

Near Term:

- Make renewed push (in tandem with Germans and other Allies) within next 10 days to convince Tudjman to extend UNPROFOR with reduced mandate (UNPROFOR Lite).
- Fallback: Press for one-time extension of March 31/June 30 deadlines to allow more time for negotiations.

  Issue: Whether to threaten limited punitive actions at this stage? Or should we offer Tudjman a carrot?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

If these initial efforts fail:

- Begin Step Two prepositioning for UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia no later than March 8 (will require Congressional consultations and decisions on funding).
- Offer new, high-level international negotiator to negotiate Croatian settlement, in tandem with final push for acceptance of UNPROFOR Lite.
- Agree in principle to Croatian proposal for international task force (ITF) to replace UNPROFOR that would monitor Croatian-Bosnian border on condition that Tudjman agrees to extend ceasefire, agrees the force will also police the separation zone, and agrees to negotiate with Krajina Serbs on basis of principles in Z-4 plan.

  Issues: Is ITF feasible? (Border force would be highly vulnerable to attack or hostage-taking by Bosnian and Krajina Serb forces, who have traditionally viewed such a force as threat to their survival, and whose acceptance would be a sine qua non. Allies would look to U.S. to join the force. But some token presence on the border may be the fig leaf Tudjman needs to back down on ejection of UNPROFOR; Krajina Serbs may accept if it is only way to keep international forces in separation zone.)

  Who would comprise the force? (Unarmed civilian monitors? Joint international-Croatian-Krajina Serb police force? NATO? WEU, backed by U.S. air support -- but recognizing that effectiveness would be limited without TACPs?)

Medium Term:

- Withdraw UNPROFOR from Croatia

  Issues: Nature of U.S. participation?

  How to discourage Tudjman from using NATO forces as cover for early offensive (sanctions or other punitive steps? carrots?).

  How to deter Krajina Serbs from seizing vacated UNPROFOR positions or threatening NATO forces (air strike threat?)

- Introduce civilian monitors to replace UNPROFOR (e.g. OSCE)

Long Term (post-UNPROFOR withdrawal):

- Contain fighting: Establish no-fly zone in Croatia? Other measures?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Decide whether to let Tudjman fend for himself (allowing possible Serb victory) or to provide limited support, despite our warnings that he will be on his own.

Options: Bosnia

Near Term:

- Keep Plan B on the table.

  Issues: If so, for how long? Possible modifications/ extensions that aren't sweeteners -- e.g. put forward detailed proposal on constitutional arrangements for future Bosnian Union?)

- Consider staged or scaled-back Plan B -- i.e. ask Milosevic to identify the steps he would take in "partial recognition" of Bosnia and Croatia, determine whether they could be linked to limited sanctions relief.

  Issues: What could Milosevic do beyond tightening border closure to justify sanctions relief? (We could not justify additional relief for tightening a border that should be sealed already. Possibilities: close the "back door" to Croatia; cooperate with the War Crimes Tribunal; recognize Bosnia's border and territorial integrity but not the Sarajevo Government.)

  Should we take parallel steps in support of Bosnians to reduce Bosnian/Congressional criticism -- e.g. IMET, other training for Bosnians?

- Continue efforts to isolate Pale irrespective of Plan B: increase border monitors; close Krajina back door.

- Consider whether to reduce or end the activity of the Contact Group as such, in order to emphasize the need for the parties themselves to undertake territorial and constitutional discussions. (This would permit private or individual mediators to operate.) Or agree to French international conference without prior agreement on mutual recognition?

- Explore efforts to increase international support for the Federation: material assistance and political support (envoys to and from, participation in international conferences, agreements such as our proposed 505 agreement, etc.)

- Approach the UN to reconsider its decision not to expand UNPROFOR with the troops already offered (i.e. urge UN to increase UNPROFOR numerically to enable it to deliver humanitarian assistance more effectively, especially along the Blue Route, as opposed to changing its ROE).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Medium Term:

Decision depends on the choice of overall strategic approach as described above:

- Muddle through, continue to support Bosnians rhetorically, continue diplomatic efforts, but focus on containment.
- Shift to policy of neutrality toward terms of settlement and active containment of conflict; end or suspend Contact Group activities, acknowledge we cannot produce better deal for Bosnians.
- Containment of conflict and long-term quarantine of Greater Serbia.
- Renewed push for military measures in support of Bosnians: withdraw UNPROFOR, multilateral lift and strike

Long Term:

- Maintain support for Federation to forestall Muslim-Croat splits. Intensify isolation of Pale and Knin Serbs.
- Maintain support for War Crimes Tribunal.
- Withdraw UNPROFOR, lift the arms embargo, with lift possibly implemented in stages (beginning with defensive weapons) and tied to "final offer" to accept Contact Group plan.

  Issue: Are we prepared to lift unilaterally if Allies support us in UNSC but Russians veto? Alternatives to lift?
- Abandon support for lift, take tough line with Congress and Bosnians, stick with one of the containment options.

Options: Containing Spillover

- Beef up or replace UNPROFOR/Macedonia

  Issues: When and how? (Enlarge existing force under UN command? Replace with NATO division?)
- Continue efforts to defuse Greece/FYROM dispute.
- Shore up outer wall of sanctions against Serbia.
- Expand bilateral aid/infrastructure programs in south Balkans.
- Expand bilateral military cooperation and economic cooperation with Albania, Bulgaria, Macedonia.
- High-level visits to front-line states.

DCI Interagency Balkan Task Force 24 February 1995

The Balkans: The Next Three Months 3.5c

Fighting is likely to resume this spring because Croatia and Bosnia do not accept the status quo, believe that they can gain political and territorial concessions from Serbs only through military force, and are highly skeptical of the international community's efforts to forge an equitable peace. Fighting is more likely to break out first in Bosnia in March with the collapse of the cessation of hostilities agreement. The scope and intensity of this could influence President Tudjman's calculations on regaining the Krajina by force, but Tudjman's decision on the renewal of conflict there will be taken independently of fighting in Bosnia. Clashes are likely by April or May in conjunction with the UNPROFOR pullout. In a second, less likely scenario, a combination of factors could postpone the fighting until later this year but not alter the deep clashes of interest. In a third scenario, all the warring factions would have to make fundamental changes to their political positions--even less likely in the near to mid term--in order for there to be real movement toward a stable peace in the region. 3.5c

Current Balkans leaders are pursuing irreconcilable demands that make even the beginning of a meaningful peace process in the next three months unlikely. At most, one or more of the key actors in the two major zones of conflict might be convinced to postpone military action. Postponement, however, is not necessarily a way station on the road to peace. Only a reordering of demands or a significant shift in the military situation on the ground would set the stage for a renewed effort to forge a lasting peace in the region. 3.5c

The Key Actors: What Drives Them?

Croatia: Guided by a vision of his personal historical role, mounting nationalist/political pressures which he has helped generate, and frustration with the international community, President Tudjman is now prepared to initiate large-scale military action to reintegrate the Krajina into Croatia. He is encouraged by claims of military superiority from his generals and his own belief that Serbian President Milosevic will not intervene. We do not have evidence Tudjman is working with a specific time schedule; however, having taken the bit in his teeth, it is unlikely he will stall for long or accept merely paper changes in UNPROFOR's mandate. There is no significant peace faction in the Croatian leadership. 3.5c

Krajina Serbs: Despite fractious personal differences, the Krajina Serb leadership adamantly refuses any form of reintegration, including the limited "autonomy" Zagreb is willing to offer. They will fight fiercely to protect their homeland and could escalate localized Croatian attacks by shelling major Croatian cities. If attacked, they expect help from the Bosnian Serbs and, in extremis, from Belgrade. There is no significant peace faction in Knin. 3.5c

Bosnian Government: Bosnian leaders firmly believe that they can regain territory from the Bosnian Serbs and preserve the concept of a unified Bosnia within its internationally recognized boundaries only by military pressure. They are increasingly confident of their own military capabilities and see the tide swinging in their favor as they look out several years. There is no significant politically organized opposition within the Muslim community to this vision. The Bosnian Croats are largely satisfied with the territory they now control and take their guidance from Zagreb, not Sarajevo. The Herzegovinian hardliners leading the Bosnian Croats ultimately hope to be integrated into a Greater Croatia, a vision that Tudjman does not discourage. 3.5c

Bosnian Serbs: Bosnian Serb leaders will accept nothing less than an independent state as an interim measure toward the creation of an ill-defined "Greater Serbia." They are willing to give up some of the territory they now control to reach an agreement, but until then will fight to keep what they have. They are committed to helping the Krajina Serbs. If pressed by Bosnian Government forces, they might also consider a major military campaign aimed at dealing the Bosnian Government a severe defeat. Although some divisions among leaders are now being publicized, even those advocating acceptance of the Contact Group plan agree with Karadzic on driving a hard bargain on territory and independence for a Bosnian Serb state. Army Commander Mladic despises Karadzic but also shares his goal for an independent Serbian Bosnia with ties to Serbia. 3.5c

Serbia: President Milosevic continues to be a cornerstone to a settlement but at the same time is only a secondary player with limited influence on those he helped into power in Pale and Knin. Milosevic is driven by a strong personal desire to remain in power. He seeks to end sanctions but not at the cost of important political values. He continues to support--for political if not necessarily personal reasons--the concept of a "Greater Serbia," which makes it unlikely he could recognize Croatia and Bosnia or refuse help to the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs if they appeared to be on the verge of serious setbacks. In the short run, he is unable, not just unwilling, to compel either the Krajina Serb or Bosnian Serb leaders to make compromises that they believe are not in their interest. There is no significant peace party in Serbia. 3.5c

Russia: Moscow's overall objectives will be to maintain an influential role in the international decision-making process on the Balkans as the Contact Group process wanes, while trying to keep the conflict contained and minimizing NATO's role. Tactically, Russian leaders will want to increase Russian leverage and head off all domestic criticism by pressing for full sanctions relief for Serbia. Moscow has limited influence with Belgrade--and even less with Pale--but the Russians have the capacity to play a spoiler role. They may pose obstacles to any international actions if they believe that the West is not accounting for Russian interests. 3.5c

EU Contact Group Members: Fearing renewed violence and a broader Balkan conflict, the European Union members of the Contact Group are desperate to keep the negotiating process alive but are increasingly frustrated with the intransigence of the feuding parties. Germany, Britain, and France--which holds the EU presidency and has the largest troop contingent in the former Yugoslavia--will focus on offering incentives for peace, wooing Zagreb with the prospect of EU aid and Belgrade with the promise of lifting sanctions. The EU members so far do not have a unified strategy for dealing with the renewal of full-scale war in Bosnia, according to various sources. Despite differing views, European Contact Group members agree on the need for Contact Group unity and are likely to maintain a coordinated position among themselves under French leadership. 3.5c

Three Scenarios

Renewed Fighting

It is likely that fighting will resume in Bosnia in the next two months, and clashes could then follow quickly in Croatia.

- The Bosnian Government has clearly focused on resupplying, reequipping and reorganizing its forces during the four-month cessation of hostilities (COH) in preparation for launching additional attacks to retake territory in central Bosnia. The Bosnian Serbs also believe that fighting will resume and are taking steps to increase military pressure on the Bihac enclave.

- The Bihac enclave will be the likely focal point of fighting for most of March as the Government V Corps clashes with Krajina Serb and rebel Muslim forces--which did not sign the COH agreement--supported by the Bosnian Serbs. Major gains by either faction around Bihac would probably cause the fighting to spread elsewhere in Bosnia, as the losing faction would attempt to pressure the other by attacking at other points.

- Fighting will probably increase in the rest of Bosnia by late March or early April as the weather improves--temperatures rise into the mid-50s--and the warring factions begin to jockey for military advantage prior to the end of the COH on 30 April. In 1994, fighting picked up substantially in April as the government launched a series of attacks in central Bosnia and the Serbs responded by assaulting Gorazde.

3.5c

- The Bosnian Serbs will probably make a push for new talks in late April and call for an extension of the COH agreement in an attempt to preempt a government attack. The Bosnian Government may accept additional talks under international pressure but will probably reject any extension of the COH agreement.

- The return of warmer, drier weather by May will probably lead to general fighting throughout Bosnia. Government forces will probably launch a series of local attacks--following their strategy of last year--especially in central and northern Bosnia. Government forces will probably make some territorial gains, as the Bosnian Serbs are stretched thin and essentially remain cut off from Serbia. Serb strategy has been to respond to any government attack with an overwhelming offensive--preferably against an isolated or poorly defended enclave--to press the government to abandon its offensive. The Bosnian Serbs, however, will be reluctant to commit their forces fully to a Bosnian offensive, because some may be needed to reinforce the Krajina Serbs in Croatia.

- The resumption of fighting will spark renewed discussion of the need to remove UNPROFOR from Bosnia. Heavy fighting in Bosnia at the same time as an UNPROFOR pullout from Croatia in May and June will spark calls in Paris and London to move toward a withdrawal before winter.

- A major resumption of hostilities in Bosnia, which included an all-out Bosnian Serb effort to take the eastern enclaves, could put at risk nearly 120,000 Muslims who would try to flee to the nearest Muslim-controlled territory. 3.5c

The fighting in Bosnia could influence the prospects for renewed clashes in Croatia, but Tudjman's decision on a renewal of the conflict there will be taken independently of the fighting in Bosnia.

- President Tudjman has ordered the UN to begin withdrawing from Croatia after 31 March and complete withdrawal by 30 June. The Croatians expect to come under increasingly heavy international pressure in the coming month to extend the UN mandate. They appear prepared to stand firm and exact a high price: an international monitoring force--possibly including forces from NATO or Contact Group states--on the Croatian border with Bosnia and Serbia, recognition of Croatia's international border by Belgrade, and demonstrable progress on reintegration of Serb-held territory. In late March or early April, Tudjman may make a push for new talks with the Krajina Serbs, in hopes that the UN pullout will pressure the Serbs to make additional concessions.

~~Secret~~

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

3.5c

Postponed Fighting

While the differences between the warring factions in Croatia and Bosnia make another round of fighting likely in the next three months, a combination of factors could postpone the fighting until later this year.

- Introduction of a follow-on peacekeeping force could delay renewed fighting in Croatia. Zagreb will only accept a new force that will take control of Croatia's border with Serbia and Bosnia. The Krajina Serbs are unlikely to accept such a force unless it also is charged with patrolling the current cease-fire line. If both factions compromised on this issue and some minimal international force--probably from the WEU or NATO--were in place in April before UNPROFOR begins withdrawing, fighting could be forestalled while a new round of negotiations took place.

- Zagreb will be reluctant to launch a major attack while substantial UN forces are still in Serb-held territories. If the UN withdrawal in April and May is particularly slow and a large number of peacekeepers remain in the region, Croatia may opt to postpone major military action until the fall, after the tourist season.

- If Croatia is seriously threatened with major economic sanctions in response to military attacks on the Krajina Serbs, Zagreb may delay military action until the international community's focus wanes or until Croatia can point to a serious Serb "provocation" to justify further military operations. 3.5c

Heavy fighting would be postponed in Bosnia if the Bosnian Government decided to delay its likely spring offensives.

- Heavy spring rains could impede resupply and movement of government forces, and they may wait until the drier months of June or July before launching major attacks.

- Government forces may wish to take advantage of the impact on the Serbs of renewed fighting in Croatia. Under such a scenario, they might postpone their attacks until the Bosnian Serbs are heavily engaged in the fighting in the Krajina, probably in June or later.

- The government could rethink its plans for military operations if serious negotiations were about to take place. These would require true concessions from the Bosnian Serbs prior to the start of talks, including removal of forces from key areas such as Sarajevo, and some form of acceptance of the original contact group plan. 3.5c

Movement Towards Peace

Despite five years of effort, the international community has not been able to affect the fundamental clashes of interests in the region. Unless the UN, NATO or some other outside actor is prepared for a massive long-term infusion of economic and military resources into the region, such changes are not likely in the near term. If all the warring factions made fundamental changes to their political positions, we would expect to see some of the following signs of movement towards agreement during the next three months.

- Croatia would have to accept the extension of the UNPROFOR mandate or the deployment of a new force that monitored the current cease-fire line by April in order to prevent renewed clashes--especially in the zone of separation this spring.

- By late spring, a new round of negotiations would have to begin, with both sides making major concessions. Croatia and the Krajina Serbs would have to be prepared to redraw existing international borders allowing the Serbs to live outside Croatian control. Alternatively, the complete Krajina Serb leadership would have to be replaced, and probably a substantial portion of the local Serb population removed to Bosnia or Serbia, leaving the Krajina inside Croatia.

- Negotiations could be based on a slightly less extreme scenario if Zagreb accepted significantly more "autonomy" for the Krajina Serbs than is contained in the Z-4 plan and the Krajina Serbs gave up the idea of any "special links" with Belgrade. 3.5c

Movement towards a solution in Bosnia would almost certainly be tied to developments in Croatia, but any movement towards peace there would also rely on a number of unprecedented developments.

- Initially, the Bosnian Government and Bosnian Serbs would have to accept an extension of the current cessation of hostilities accord after 30 April and begin implementing all of its measures, including the separation of forces and the deployment of peacekeepers between the warring factions.

- To support the talks, the Bosnian Government would have to abandon its goal of maintaining a unified Bosnia. The Serbs would have to back down from their plans for association with Serbia.

- Effective enforcement of the arms embargo, especially the cut-off of Iranian arms deliveries, could make Sarajevo more receptive to a diplomatic settlement.

- As stated earlier, Belgrade's recognition of Croatia and Bosnia is likely to lead to an increase in fighting in the short term. If the Krajina Serbs and

Summary of Conclusions

Former Yugoslavia Policy Review

1. Principals discussed overall U.S. strategy toward the former Yugoslavia and steps to prevent or contain renewed war in Bosnia this spring. They agreed that, in view of our limited leverage and the importance of maintaining the cohesion of NATO, we should maintain our current approach of diplomatic engagement, provision of humanitarian relief, keeping UNPROFOR in place, and measures to contain the conflict. Principals agreed that we should continue to support the Bosnian Government's goal of a political settlement consistent with the Contact Group proposal, but that we should seek to lower public expectations of immediate success; we should also avoid nurturing any illusions on the part of the Bosnian Government that we can deliver a settlement or that the U.S. or NATO will intervene militarily on their behalf. (S)

2. As a means to revive diplomatic efforts, Principals agreed that the U.S. Contact Group representative should explore the possibility of an agreement on constitutional arrangements for the future Bosnian union as a basis for securing Milosevic's recognition of Bosnia. (Action: State) They also agreed that additional options should be developed for using sanctions to increase the isolation of the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs. (Action: OVP) In the meantime, the Contact Group offer of sanctions relief in return for mutual recognition of Bosnia and Croatia should remain on the table, notwithstanding Milosevic's negative response to date. (S)

3. Principals agreed that we should seek to prevent or contain a reescalation of fighting in Bosnia as the end of the cessation of hostilities approaches. To this end, we should urge the Bosnians to exercise restraint by arguing that we see little prospect that they will improve their situation on the battlefield, that diplomatic efforts have not yet run their course, and that we remain committed to the goal of a political settlement that preserves Bosnia as a single state within its existing borders. We should, at the same time, give them incentives toward restraint by continuing to support the Bosniac-Croat Federation politically and economically. (S)

4. Principals discussed ways to restore UN and NATO credibility in order to deter new Bosnian Serb military attacks on the eastern enclaves and other areas. They agreed that the Interagency Working Group should look at the possibility of using NATO air power against Serb air defense sites around Bihac, both to enable the U.S. and NATO to conduct humanitarian air drops in that region and to discourage Serb efforts to strangle Srebrenica and other safe areas. The IWG should also consider options for enhancing the protection of other safe areas, such as the establishment of exclusion zones. These options should be developed with a view toward the possible launch of a U.S. initiative in the second week of April. (Action: IWG) (S)

Next Steps on Croatia

5. Principals discussed the follow-up to President Tudjman's March 12 agreement with the Vice President to work on the mandate for a new UN peacekeeping force in Croatia. They agreed that efforts should continue to complete negotiations by the end of the month on a UNSC mandate for the new force. They noted the continuing difficulties reported by Ambassador Albright with the Croatians on defining a realistic understanding of the mission of "controlling" the international borders. (S)

Step Two of NATO Prepositioning

6. Principals discussed the scaled-back or "mini" prepositioning option that had been developed by the NATO Military Authorities in response to some Allies' reluctance to support a larger prepositioning force. The scaled-back option consists of 80 personnel, including up to 20 Americans, who would be deployed to Croatia to set up a communications system to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia, should it become necessary. Principals decided to recommend to the President that he authorize U.S. representatives to support a decision at NATO to implement the scaled-back prepositioning option, including the deployment of up to 20 U.S. personnel to Croatia, following notification of Congress on Monday, March 20. They further agreed to provide Congress fuller briefings on March 22 by an interagency team. Principals agreed that, in informing Congress, we would characterize this as a limited, precautionary move that is being taken even though we oppose UNPROFOR withdrawal. (Action: NSC/DOD) (S)

7. Noting that the larger prepositioning option (1800 total personnel, 440 U.S., 310 of which would be in Croatia) is still an active option at NATO, Principals also agreed to recommend to the President that he authorize U.S. representatives to agree to form the larger prepositioning force and to conduct training in Germany. The actual deployment of these additional U.S. personnel to Croatia would be subject to another Principals and NAC decision. (Action: NSC) (S)

OPLAN 40104 Approval Process

8. Principals agreed to seek time on the President's schedule to brief him on NATO OPLAN 40104 that covers U.S. participation in UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia. (Action: NSC) They discussed the difficulties we will face in obtaining Congressional authorization and funding for the operation, as reflected in the recent letter from Senators Dole, Helms et al. on the subject. They agreed that, in spite of the difficulties, the scope of the operation argues in favor of seeking Congressional authorization and funding prior to making a commitment of U.S. troops to the operation. MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: U.S. Participation in Step Two Prepositioning for UNPROFOR Withdrawal from Bosnia.

Purpose

To obtain your agreement for U.S. forces to deploy to Croatia as part of NATO Step Two Prepositioning.

Background

Principals met Friday afternoon to discuss next steps in NATO prepositioning following this week's activities at NATO. Last week, you tentatively approved U.S. participation in a Step Two option that involved nearly 1800 personnel, including 450 Americans, 320 of which would deploy to Croatia. This was subject to completion of Congressional consultations and a subsequent decision by Principals before actual deployment of U.S. personnel to Croatia.

Facing criticism from some Allies, NATO military authorities this week developed a scaled-back prepositioning option involving only 80 personnel, including up to 20 Americans, who will deploy to Croatia to set up a communications system. NATO is seeking our agreement to identify and deploy the forces to support this step. Even with the smaller option, not all Allies support prepositioning, so our decision may not result in the immediate deployment of U.S. personnel to Croatia. But we should be prepared to deploy the 20 in any case.

The larger option you previously approved is still an active option and NATO is seeking our agreement to identify the forces (450 Americans) and to authorize training in Germany. A subsequent decision by the NAC will be required, however, before the larger force deploys to Croatia. Shali believes the decision is many weeks away.

After considering the impact of the Tudjman decision and the deteriorating situation in Bosnia, Principals agreed that we should agree to participate in this precautionary step. The Tudjman decision reduces the threat to the U.S. forces who will deploy to Croatia. But the ever-increasing likelihood that large-scale fighting will resume in Bosnia this spring necessitates the continuation of prudent military steps to prepare for UNPROFOR withdrawal should it become unavoidable.

If you agree, we will inform Congress on Monday of our intention to participate in the small NATO prepositioning step and follow with fuller briefings on Wednesday. We will cast this as a limited, precautionary move that is being taken even though we oppose UNPROFOR withdrawal. We will inform NATO of our decision on Tuesday.

We do not expect this step will provoke much controversy on the Hill, since the deal with President Tudjman makes UNPROFOR withdrawal unlikely, at least in the short term. But a new letter to you from Senators Dole, Helms et al. (attached) makes clear that we will face tough sledding if and when a decision to withdraw is made. The letter insists on full NATO command, without any UN dual-key, and robust rules of engagement as preconditions for U.S. participation in any NATO extraction operation (which are fully consistent with our position). But more importantly, the letter demands that Allies commit to support multilateral lifting of the arms embargo post-withdrawal as the quid pro quo for U.S. participation.

We are seeking time on your schedule to fully brief you on the NATO plan (OPLAN 40104) that covers U.S. participation in UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia. Principals agree that, notwithstanding the difficulties we will face on the Hill, the scope of the operation argues in favor of seeking Congressional authorization and funding in advance of committing U.S. troops to the operation.

RECOMMENDATION

MR. PRESIDENT

Attached is a decision memo from Tony Lake on U.S. participation in NATO's "Step Two" prepositioning of communications systems for use in possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR troops from Croatia. Step Two would involve agreement to deploy some 450 U.S. military personnel in Europe, 320 of them in Croatia -- though actual deployment would be subject to a further decision of the NAC.

Pros: Our participation would send the right signal about U.S. leadership in NATO. Our allies' forces on the ground are in danger and we must not be seen obstructing NATO military planning needed to protect them. Cons: prepositioning could embolden Tudjman to keep refusing any UNPROFOR successor force, moving us toward commitment of a large-scale ground force to help extract UNPROFOR, and in turn leading to a wider war.

Our allies would prefer to keep UNPROFOR in place and are reluctant to proceed with Step Two deployment at this time, fearing this could hasten UNPROFOR's departure and open the way for air strikes and lifting the arms embargo. But deployment may become unavoidable.

While recognizing the real risks, NSC Principals recommend approval of U.S. participation in Step Two. Leon and George concur, though George is concerned that this might trigger a War Powers debate. We have forwarded a copy of the memo to the Vice President. If you approve, State and Defense will consult with Congress next week before informing NATO of our decision.

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: U.S. Participation in Step Two of NATO Prepositioning for UNPROFOR Withdrawal

Purpose

To obtain your agreement for U.S. forces' participation in Step Two of NATO prepositioning for UNPROFOR withdrawal.

Background

Principals met Friday to discuss U.S. participation in Step Two of NATO's ongoing efforts to prepare to support a possible UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia. We are seeking your approval to inform NATO that the United States agrees to support Step Two of NATO's efforts to preposition communications systems and operators in Croatia. Step Two includes deployment of approximately 450 U.S. military personnel within Europe, including 320 to government-controlled areas of Croatia, although the timing of the actual deployment of the prepositioning force will be subject to a subsequent NAC decision.

NATO and UNPROFOR military planning for UNPROFOR's possible withdrawal from Bosnia has been underway for several months. With UNPROFOR withdrawal a possibility this spring, NATO began to take action in February by executing Step One, which initiated the process of establishing an enhanced theater communications system. No U.S. forces were involved. With Step One well underway, NATO is seeking approval to execute Step Two, which will deploy military personnel to set up and operate the communications system.

Prepositioning is a necessary step to support a large operation. Nearly 1800 personnel are involved, including the 450 Americans. The total NATO cost for prepositioning is estimated at $11.3M and comes from existing NATO funds (the U.S. pays 25 percent), although we will pay our own transportation and sustainment costs. An orderly withdrawal of UNPROFOR cannot begin until eight weeks after the prepositioning occurs; thus Shali argues that delaying a decision will put Allied forces at risk.

This decision would carry significant risks, even though it would send the right signal about U.S. leadership in NATO, support our military leaders and maximize military preparedness. In the worst case, it could set in motion a series of events leading to UNPROFOR's withdrawal and renewed fighting, with NATO and U.S. forces left on the ground to deal with the aftermath. Tudjman might welcome the NATO deployment as a stepping stone to a larger NATO and U.S. ground role as UNPROFOR's replacement. Emboldened by NATO and U.S. forces in Croatia, Tudjman could become even more intransigent on accepting an UNPROFOR successor force. This could move us closer to an actual commitment of ground forces for a large-scale operation to extract UNPROFOR, the exact dimensions of which will remain unknown until the plan is completed in about two weeks. With NATO on the ground, or positioned to extract UNPROFOR, the decision to withdraw UNPROFOR will be easier for the UN and troop contributors to make. If they withdraw, renewed fighting is a certainty and the wider war we feared will have been facilitated by NATO's deployment into Croatia. While we anticipate a subsequent NAC decision will be taken to deploy the forces into Croatia, with each incremental step, it becomes more unlikely that our decision will be reversible. In fact, if NATO decides to conduct the operation, large-scale U.S. participation is inevitable.

Not all Allies support prepositioning, so our decision may prove academic for the time being. The French have been the most adamant, calling for a delay on the grounds that putting NATO personnel on the ground in Croatia would undermine efforts to change Tudjman's mind. Other Allies have voiced similar concerns and fear that NATO prepositioning will set in train the steps described above, leading to UNPROFOR's withdrawal and the wider war that diplomatic efforts aim to prevent. They also see UNPROFOR's departure as the opening to lifting the arms embargo and accompanying air strikes. Allies prefer to keep UNPROFOR in place and muddle through.

After balancing the risks against the military requirements, Principals decided that, because of the danger to our Allies who have forces on the ground and to sustain our leadership of the Alliance, we should make the commitment to support Step Two. This will permit the personnel to be organized and trained, with their actual deployment subject to a further decision by the NAC. Principals agreed that we will not press those Allies who are reluctant to execute Step Two but that it is important that the U.S. not be seen as obstructing NATO military planning needed to reduce the risks to Allied forces.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Principals also concluded that, in view of the Congressional interest that the deployment of 320 U.S. military personnel to Croatia will generate, consultations must be completed before informing NATO of our decision. We would seek to cast this as a limited, precautionary move that is being taken without prejudice to a possible future decision to help in a NATO-led withdrawal of UNPROFOR. We would make clear that we intend to consult closely with the Congress on the latter (more formidable) undertaking and seek prior Congressional approval of the necessary funding. If you agree, State and Defense will brief leadership and key committee chairs early next week.

RECOMMENDATION

That you authorize U.S. representatives at NATO to support Step Two prepositioning, subject to consultations with Congress, and with the actual deployment of U.S. personnel to Croatia subject to a subsequent NAC and Principals' decision.

OFFICE OF THE MAJORITY LEADER
WASHINGTON, DC 20510-7010

The President
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

We are writing in regard to commitments made by your administration to assist in the withdrawal of U.N. troops from Croatia and Bosnia and Herzegovina. It is our understanding that the recent compromise with the Croatian government may require only a partial withdrawal of U.N. forces from Croatia -- that is if the militant Serbs agree -- and that U.S. involvement is likely to be very limited in such an operation. However, we are aware that you have already committed to providing U.S. military assistance, to include U.S. combat troops, to participate in the withdrawal of U.N. troops from Bosnia and Herzegovina should such a decision be made by either nations participating in UNPROFOR or the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

While we have consistently opposed your policy toward the former Yugoslavia, and have been critical of the inability and unwillingness of the U.N. forces to fulfill their mandate there, we recognize that U.S. participation to assist the withdrawal of U.N. forces may be necessary. However, we believe that such assistance should not be offered without strict conditions.

The first condition is that the entire withdrawal operation be under unified NATO command -- from start to finish. The "dual-key" arrangement under which NATO currently operates and is subordinate to the United Nations has been a military and political fiasco. Should such an arrangement be extended to any component of the withdrawal operation -- even under peaceful circumstances -- we would strongly oppose U.S. participation.

It is critical that the United States establish concretely and in advance that NATO command is a prerequisite to U.S. participation. As such, we would strongly recommend that this decision be explicitly stated in a U.N. Security Council resolution on the matter. A letter from the U.N. Secretary General in our view would be wholly insufficient; a binding commitment from the countries in the Security Council who are the largest troop contributors to UNPROFOR should be a minimum requirement.

Second, the rules of engagement must be robust. There must be no question that self-defense includes the right of retaliation -- at the discretion of the NATO commander. Those forces that may consider interfering with the withdrawal of U.N.

forces must know in no uncertain terms that if any U.N. or NATO troops are provoked or attacked that they will face massive and disproportionate retaliation, to include all their military assets, not just their immediately-engaged forces.

Third, there must be a common sense rule applied to the withdrawal of heavy equipment belonging to the U.N. protection forces. We understand that those of our allies participating in UNPROFOR would like to remove all of their equipment when they depart. If the environment is calm and peaceful, we would not object to using American forces to facilitate the withdrawal of equipment. Should we be faced with a hostile environment, however, we believe that American lives should not be endangered to rescue equipment.

Finally, U.S. assistance should be premised on an understanding with our allies that UNPROFOR's withdrawal clears the way for lifting the U.N. arms embargo on the Bosnian Government. To date, allied objections to lifting the arms embargo have centered on concerns about the safety of allied troops deployed in Bosnia-Herzegovina. If the United States assists in the withdrawal of U.N. forces, the allies must know that we will not tolerate equivocation on the matter of terminating the arms embargo. For three years the Bosnians have been denied their fundamental and inherent right to self-defense and watched as U.N. forces provided cover to the aggressor Serb forces. In sum, U.S. assistance in the withdrawal of UNPROFOR should be explicitly conditioned on the support of those nations for terminating the arms embargo.

Mr. President, we believe that these military and political conditions -- NATO command, robust rules of engagement, limitations on withdrawal of equipment, and allied agreement on next steps -- are not only essential to securing support from the U.S. Congress, but essential to the success of such a potentially dangerous operation. We look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Strom Thurmond Bob Dole

Jesse Helms

For Tony and Sandy:
In talks in Bonn, Izzy confirmed his unwillingness to extend ceasefire if Serbs haven't accepted Contact Group plan, but he did tell Kohl the Bosnians would not launch new offensives. The latter point, unfortunately, doesn't square with our intel assessments.

SUBJECT: BOSNIA - IZETBEGOVIC REJECTS CEASEFIRE EXTENSION DURING BONN VISIT

1. ~~(S)~~ SUMMARY: PRESIDENT IZETBEGOVIC WARNED THAT BOSNIA WOULD NOT APPROVE EXTENSION OF THE CEASEFIRE UNLESS THE SERBS AGREED TO THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN. ON HIS MARCH 16-17 VISIT TO BONN, IZETBEGOVIC TOLD CHANCELLOR KOHL AND FM KINKEL THAT PRESSURE MUST BE BROUGHT TO BEAR ON MILOSEVIC TO ISOLATE KARADZIC AND AGREE TO MUTUAL RECOGNITION, BUT HE ACKNOWLEDGED THAT MILOSEVIC WAS NOT YET READY TO TAKE SUCH STEPS. IZETBEGOVIC EXPRESSED CONCERN ABOUT NEW ARMS DELIVERIES TO THE BOSNIAN SERBS, WHICH GERMAN INTELLIGENCE CAN REPORTEDLY CORROBORATE. HE SAID PUBLICLY THAT HE WOULD WELCOME SCHWARZ-SCHILLING AS "CO-ARBITRATOR" FOR THE FEDERATION, FOLLOWING DISCUSSIONS WITH THE CHANCELLOR. END SUMMARY.

2. (U) DURING A MARCH 16-17 VISIT TO BONN, BOSNIAN PRESIDENT IZETBEGOVIC WARNED THAT HIS GOVERNMENT WOULD NOT APPROVE EXTENSION OF THE CEASEFIRE UNLESS THE SERBS AGREED TO THE CONTACT GROUP PEACE PLAN. "IF WE HAVE TO, WE ARE READY TO FIGHT," HE SAID, WHILE STRESSING BOSNIA'S CONTINUED SUPPORT FOR A POLITICAL SETTLEMENT. HE CALLED UPON THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY TO INCREASE ITS PRESSURE ON MILOSEVIC AND NOT ENTER INTO "LONG-DRAWN NEGOTIATIONS" UNTIL MILOSEVIC ACCEPTS THE PEACE PLAN. ANY WAVERING WOULD ONLY ENCOURAGE THE SERBS TO DREAM "GREAT POWER DREAMS."

3. ~~(C)~~ IZETBEGOVIC TOLD FM KINKEL PRIVATELY THAT PRESSURE MUST BE BROUGHT TO BEAR ON MILOSEVIC TO ISOLATE THE BOSNIAN SERBS AND AGREE TO MUTUAL RECOGNITION, ACCORDING TO BOSNIA CONTACT GROUP REP STEINER. IZETBEGOVIC ACKNOWLEDGED, HOWEVER, THAT MILOSEVIC WAS NOT READY TO TAKE SUCH STEPS. IZETBEGOVIC SAID THAT CONTINUATION OF THE CEASEFIRE ONLY PLAYED INTO THE HANDS OF KARADZIC AND CREATED A "CYPRUS" SOLUTION FOR BOSNIA THAT WAS UNACCEPTABLE.

4. ~~(S)~~ IZETBEGOVIC TOLD KINKEL THAT THE BOSNIAN SERBS CONTINUE TO RECEIVE ARMS AND SUPPLIES, AND THE BORDER MUST BE TRULY SEALED. STEINER SAID HE HAD JUST RECEIVED A TWO-PAGE

REPORT FROM THE GERMAN INTELLIGENCE SERVICE (BND) PROVIDING SPECIFIC INFORMATION, INCLUDING QUANTITIES AND DATES, OF WEAPONS DELIVERIES TO THE BOSNIAN SERBS. HE SAID ONE ENTRY INDICATED THE DELIVERY OF FIFTY TANKS. STEINER SAID HE WOULD PROVIDE THE BND REPORT TO THE EMBASSY, BUT WANTED FIRST TO VERIFY ITS SOURCING.

5. ~~(C)~~ IN HIS MEETING WITH CHANCELLOR KOHL MARCH 17, IZETBEGOVIC SAID THAT BOSNIA WOULD NOT TAKE OFFENSIVE MILITARY ACTION AGAINST THE SERBS. STEINER SAID KOHL PRESSED IZETBEGOVIC ON THIS ISSUE AND, AFTER THE MEETING, CHARACTERIZED IZETBEGOVIC'S COMMENTS AS "HELPFUL." IZETBEGOVIC EXPRESSED STRONG SUPPORT FOR THE FEDERATION.

6. ~~(C)~~ THE CHANCELLOR RAISED WITH IZETBEGOVIC THE POSSIBLE APPOINTMENT OF CDU BUNDESTAG MEMBER SCHWARZ-SCHILLING AS A "CO-ARBITRATOR" FOR THE FEDERATION WITH ROBERTS OWEN. STEINER SAID IZETBEGOVIC ONCE AGAIN ENDORSED SCHWARZ-SCHILLING AND AGREED TO RAISE THE ISSUE WITH WASHINGTON. AT THE PRESS CONFERENCE FOLLOWING THE MEETING, IZEBEGOVIC STATED THAT BOSNIA WOULD WELCOME SCHWARZ-SCHILLING AS A "CO-ARBITRATOR."

7. ~~(C)~~ IZETBEGOVIC MET FOR NEARLY TWO HOURS WITH SPD OPPOSITION LEADER RUDOLF SCHARPING AND OTHER MEMBERS OF THE BUNDESTAG. HE SPECIFICALLY APPEALED TO GERMANY AS A "GREAT MORAL POWER IN THE WORLD" TO USE ITS INFLUENCE, WARNING GERMANY NOT TO MAKE ANY CONCESSIONS UNTIL MILOSEVIC RECOGNIZED B-H AND CROATIA. STEINER SAID SCHARPING AND OTHERS WERE "ASTONISHED" THAT IZETBEGOVIC DID NOT RAISE THE ISSUE OF THE ARMS EMBARGO DURING THE MEETING.

8. ~~(C)~~ COMMENT: THE SCHWARZ-SCHILLING ISSUE REMAINS OF CONTINUING CONCERN TO THE FOREIGN OFFICE AND CHANCELLERY (SEPTEL). BONN IS ALSO WORRIED THAT CONFLICTING APPROACHES AMONG CONTACT GROUP MEMBERS HAVE SENT CONFUSING SIGNALS TO MILOSEVIC AND OTHERS IN THE REGION. FOLLOWING IZETBEGOVIC'S VISIT, KINKEL BELIEVES IT IS TIME TO REASSESS NEXT STEPS ON THE BOSNIA PEACE PROCESS.

SUBJECT: KEY NATO AMBASSADORS DISCUSS OPLAN 40104, NATO EXPANSION, RUSSIA

1. ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ -- ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SUMMARY. AT A MARCH 16 MEETING OF THE U.S., GERMAN, AND FRENCH PERMREPS AND THE BRITISH CHARGE, FRANCE COMPLAINED THAT THE MILITARY COMMITTEE IS FAILING TO DO ITS JOB ON OPLAN 40104, THAT THE NAC MUST REVIEW THE OPLAN TO ENSURE THAT IT IS CONSISTENT WITH THE POLITICAL MANDATE, AND THAT SOME POL-MIL ISSUES (E.G., RULES OF ENGAGEMENT) MUST BE CONSIDERED BY THE NAC. THE FOUR CONSIDERED THE POSSIBILITY OF A PARALLEL "PLAN B" OF SMALLER SIZE AND SHORTER TIME-LINE. THIS PARALLEL PLANNING -- SUPPRTED BY SYG CLAES AS AN ANSWER TO NATO'S PREPOSITIONING DILEMMA -- WOULD NEED TO BE MANDATED BY THE NAC AND INCLUDE CONSULTATIONS WITH TROOP CONTRIBUTING NATIONS. FRANCE WILL NOT JOIN THE U.S.-UK-GERMANY-ITALY JOINT DEMARCHE TO GREECE AND TURKEY. FRANCE AND GERMANY WANT TO TELL RUSSIA NOW THAT IT CAN NEVER JOIN NATO; THE UK AND US OPPOSED MAKING ANY SUCH STATEMENT. ALL AGREED THAT THE PROCEDURAL RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN NATO EXPANSION AND DEVELOPING THE NATO-RUSSIA RELATIONSHIP NEEDS TO BE WORKED OUT SOON; GERMANY AND FRANCE ARGUED THAT DECIDING ON THE NATO-RUSSIA RELATIONSHIP FIRST WOULD GIVE MOSCOW LEVERAGE ON EXPANSION. GERMANY ARGUED FOR BEGINNING DISCUSSIONS SOON ON WHAT SHOULD BE DONE ABOUT EXPANSION FROM DECEMBER ONWARD. GERMANY, FRANCE, AND BRITAIN FAVORED BRIEFING PARTNER STATES ON THE EXPANSION STUDY IN BRUSSELS, WITH POSSIBLE LATER BRIEFINGS IN CAPITALS. THE U.S. FAVORED BRIEFINGS IN CAPITALS. IT WAS AGREED THAT DCM'S WOULD REVIEW A U.S.-PROPOSED REORDERING OF THE EXPANSION STUDY. IT WAS AGREED THAT SYG CLAES DOES NOT NEED A PRE-DEBRIEF IN GENEVA ON THE CHRISTOPHER-KOZYREV MEETING, PROVIDED THERE IS A FULL COLLINS-KORNBLUM BRIEFING OF THE NAC. END SUMMARY.

3. AMBASSADOR VON RICHTHOFEN (GERMANY), AMBASADOR BLOT (FRANCE), AMBASSADOR HUNTER, AND BRITISH CHARGE SMITH MET MORNING OF MARCH 16.

4. REFERRING TO DISCUSSION AT THE MARCH 15 NAC, GERMANY OPPOSED ANY INTENSIVE REVIEW OR REWRITING OF OPLAN 40104 BY THE NAC. THE U.S. AND UK AGREED. (NOTE. THIS VIEW HAS

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

GAINED BROAD CURRENCY AMONG PERMREPS, AND SYG CLAES HAS MADE THIS POINT STRONGLY TO AMBASSADOR HUNTER. END NOTE). FRANCE ARGUED THAT THE MILITARY COMMITTEE HAS FAILED TO DO ITS JOB AND MERELY SENDS LISTS OF NATIONAL QUESTIONS BACK TO SHAPE; THAT THE NAC MUST MEASURE THE OPLAN AGAINST ITS MANDATE TO SEE WHETHER IT IS COMPLETE AND CONSISTENT WITH POLITICAL DIRECTIVES (GERMANY SUPPORTED THIS VIEW); AND THAT SOME POL-MIL ISSUES, SUCH AS RULES OF ENGAGEMENT AND CHAIN OF COMMAND, CANNOT BE LEFT TO THE MILITARY. THE SPC/R SHOULD PREPARE THESE ISSUES FOR NAC DISCUSSION. OPERATIONAL MATTERS SHOULD BE THE EXCLUSIVE PURVIEW OF THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES.

5. THE THREE PERMREPS AND THE UK CHARGE AGREED THAT A MAJOR POLITICAL PROBLEM HAS EMERGED WITH THE OPLAN. THE SIZE AND LENGTHY TIME-LINE OF OPLAN 40104 FOR BOSNIA MEAN THAT EACH WEEK'S DELAY IN TAKING PRACTICAL STEPS IN PREPOSITIONING MEAN A WEEK'S DELAY IN BEGINNING A WITHDRAWAL OPERATION, NOW BEYOND THE NOTIONAL END OF THE BOSNIAN CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES. THESE FOUR COUNTRIES THUS NOW FIND THEMSELVES SEPARATED FROM SEVERAL OF THE SMALLER TROOP CONTRIBUTING NATIONS (BELGIUM IS NOW SLIGHTLY LESS CONCERNED, FOLLOWING THE TUDJMAN ANNOUNCEMENT ON UN FORCES IN CROATIA). IT WAS SUGGESTED THAT NATO SHOULD ALSO CONSIDER A "PLAN B" THAT WOULD FOCUS MORE ON AN "EMERGENCY" SITUATION, WITH A SMALLER SIZE AND SHORTER TIME-LINE. FRANCE ARGUED THAT THE EXISTING OPLAN SHOULD HAVE SUCH FLEXIBILITY BUILT INTO IT. THE UK CAUTIONED ABOUT THE POLITICAL RISKS IF IT WERE KNOWN NATO WAS PREPARED TO BACK AWAY FROM THE EXISTING PLANNING ASSUMPTIONS. THE FOUR AGREED TO MEET AGAINST MARCH 20 ON THIS ISSUE. (COMMENT. LATER ON MARCH 16, VON RICHTHOFEN TOLD AMBASSADOR HUNTER HE HAD BEEN CALLED BY GERMAN CHOD NAUMANN, WHO SUPPORTS DEVELOPMENT OF A "PLAN B" ALONG THE ABOVE LINES. ON MARCH 15, SYG CLAES ALSO STRONGLY SUPPORTED THIS APPROACH IN CONVERSATION WITH AMBASSADOR HUNTER. IN MISSION'S JUDGMENT, ANY SUCH PARALLEL PLANNING WOULD NEED TO BE MANDATED BY THE NAC AND INCLUDE PRIOR CONSULTATIONS WITH NATO TCN'S. END COMMENT).

6. FRANCE CONFIRMED THAT IT WOULD NOT JOIN THE DEMARCHE (U.S.-UK-GERMANY-ITALY) TO GREECE AND TURKEY. IT WAS NOTED THAT GREECE HAS NOW OPPOSED SYG'S PROPOSED LETTER TO WEU ON CJTFS, WHICH WOULD HAVE DEALT WITH TURKEY'S DESIRE FOR ASSURANCES OF BEING ABLE TO TAKE PART IN WEU OPERATIONS INVOLVING CJTF'S.

7. GERMANY, FRANCE, AND THE UK FAVORED MAKING PRESENTATIONS OF THE NATO ENLARGEMENT STUDY TO PARTNERS IN A GROUP IN BRUSSELS, IN ORDER TO ENSURE EQUAL BRIEFINGS, WITH THE POSSIBILITY OF FOLLOW-UP MISSIONS TO INTERESTED CAPITALS. THE U.S. STRONGLY SUPPORTED HAVING JUST MISSIONS TO CAPITALS.

8. GERMANY SAID NATO NEEDS TO DECIDE WHAT TO DO ABOUT ENLARGEMENT FROM DECEMBER ONWARD, INCLUDING THE RELATIONSHIP TO THE RUSSIAN PRESIDENTIAL ELECTIONS. THE U.S. SAID THAT, IN ANY EVENT, THE NATO PROCESS MUST BE KEPT SEPARATE FROM DEVELOPMENTS IN RUSSIA. THE UK SUGGESTED A DILEMMA: A DESIRE TO BYPASS 1996 ALTOGETHER, WHILE RECOGNIZING THAT IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO DO THIS. GERMANY AND FRANCE AGREED THAT IT WAS NOT CLEAR HOW THAT COULD BE DONE.

9. FRANCE AND GERMANY BOTH ARGUED FOR TELLING RUSSIA NOW

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

THAT IT CAN NEVER JOIN NATO. THE UK SAID MOST BRITISH OFFICIALS THINK THAT RUSSIAN MEMBERSHIP CANNOT HAPPEN, BUT ARE CONSCIOUS OF THE DISADVANTAGES OF SAYING SO. THE U.S. AGREED. FRANCE ARGUED STRONGLY THAT THERE NEEDED TO BE TWO PILLARS OF EUROPEAN SECURITY -- NATO AND RUSSIA, INCLUDING ANY CIS STATES THAT WANTED TO JOIN WITH RUSSIA; AND THAT IF THIS WERE NOT RECOGNIZED, RUSSIA (WHICH WANTS TO DESTROY NATO) WOULD WANT TO JOIN NATO, WHICH WOULD REQUIRE CHANGING THE ALLIANCE, WHICH IS UNACCEPTABLE. GERMANY SAID THAT THE KEY WEST MEETING HAD AGREED NOT TO ADVERTISE AN ALLIED VIEW IN PUBLIC, AND THAT GERMANY FAVORED NATO'S NOT PUTTING INTO ANY COMMUNICATIONS THE IDEA THAT RUSSIA IS NOT EXCLUDED. THE U.S. SUGGESTED THAT EVEN SILENCE WOULD BE BETTER THAN EXCLUDING RUSSIA NOW -- WHY STIFF THE RUSSIAN REFORM LEADERSHIP?

10. GERMANY SAID THAT THE NATO-RUSSIA RELATIONSHIP SHOULD NOT BE FORMALIZED BEFORE EXPANSION DECISIONS, OTHERWISE MOSCOW COULD RAISE THE STAKES ON EXPANSION. FRANCE AGREED, BECAUSE "THE RUSSIANS ARE RUSSIANS" AND WOULD POCKET ANY CONCESSIONS AND ASK FOR MORE.

11. THE THREE PERMREPS AND THE UK CHARGE AGREED THAT NATO NEEDS TO WORK OUT SOON THE PROCEDURAL RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN DEVELOPMENT OF NATO-RUSSIA RELATIONS AND EXPANSION. ALL CITED INCIDENTS TO INDICATE THAT RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR TO BELGIUM CHURKIN IS NOT "IN THE LOOP" IN MOSCOW. THE UK CHARGE CITED AS EVIDENCE OF EMERGING PARALLELISM THE REMARKS BY CHERNOMYRDIN IN BUDAPEST THAT BILATERAL RUSSIAN-HUNGARIAN RELATIONS WOULD NOT BE AFFECTED IF HUNGARY JOINED NATO.

12. GERMANY SUGGESTED THAT THE I.S. NOW SHORTEN THE EXPANSION STUDY, PERHAPS WITH GUIDANCE FROM KEY AMBASSADORS, WITH DETAILS PUT IN ANNEXES. THE U.S. SUGGESTED A RESTRUCTURING BASED ON U.S. PROPOSALS, TO ELIMINATE REPETITION, FILL IN GAPS, AND EASE DRAFTING. THE OTHERS WERE RELUCTANT TO TAMPER WITH THE EXISTING UK-PROPOSED STRUCTURE, BUT AGREED THAT DCM'S COULD REVIEW THE U.S. PROPOSAL

13. GERMANY AND THE UK THOUGHT THERE WAS NO NEED FOR SYG CLAES TO GET A DEBRIEF IN GENEVA ON NEXT WEEK'S CHRISTOPHER-KOZYREV TALKS, PROVIDED THAT THERE IS A FULL NAC READ-OUT ON MARCH 24 BY COLLINS-KORNBLUM.

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE

THROUGH: ALEXANDER VERSHBOW AV

FROM: DON KERRICK (DK)

SUBJECT: March 17 Principals Meeting on Bosnia and Croatia

Agenda at Tab A. Decisions needed on Prepositioning, OPLAN 40104 approval process, and manner in which to respond to Dole request to train Bosnians. One hour for Bosnia is insufficient to have in-depth discussion on policy review and other items on agenda.

I. FORMER YUGOSLAVIA POLICY REVIEW

Steps to Prevent Renewed War in Bosnia Sandy Vershbow's paper at Tab B. State was asked to provide a paper on steps to prevent renewed war in Bosnia (Tab C).

Interagency views: Deputies have not reached firm conclusions on Policy Review. State favors option one (continue to advocate better deal for Bosnians, but lower expectations of early progress and concentrate on shoring up Federation and containment). Leon takes similar view, but emphasizes squeezing Pale and Knin through better sanctions enforcement. DoD favors option two (shift towards neutrality and disengage from Bosnian objectives, with containment as only real option). No one has advocated return to military pressure (air strikes or lift and strike), although events could push us in that direction.

Analysis of views: State and DoD approaches point to roughly same policy options and ignore fact Bosnians would rather fight than accept status quo. CIA believes prospects for preventing renewed war are bleak. For discussion:

- Is there any hope we can prevent renewed fighting in Bosnia?
- How can we leverage our Croatia success in Bosnia?
- How much are we willing to pressure the Bosnians to agree to extend the ceasefire?

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- What are the positive incentives we can offer the Bosnians in return for their restraint?

- What negative incentives can we invoke to force the Bosnians to extend the ceasefire?

II. NEAR-TERM DIPLOMATIC STRATEGY

Next Steps with Tudjman: State was asked to provide a paper (Tab D). With limited time, key item is to follow-up the Croatia deal. Already signs of trouble in NY in translating the Copenhagen announcement into a UNSC resolution. Russians want the new force to enforce the arms embargo and police the interior of the UNPAs. Ask Chris and Madeleine to lead the discussion on next steps.

The key element in Tudjman's agreement is that it buys us valuable time (perhaps as many as six months, since Tudjman won't want to eject UNPROFOR in the middle of the tourist season); but it also puts the onus on us and our partners to get the new mandate agreed, the new force established, and political negotiations started between Zagreb and Knin. For discussion:

- Now that we have a deal with Tudjman on a new UN force in line with what we sought, what are the prospects for implementation?

- Is the 90-day extension for today's UNPROFOR firm no matter what the outcome of efforts at the UN on a new resolution?

- How do we bring Knin along?

- What are our next steps? How do we get political negotiations going between Zagreb and Knin? What is the basis -- the Z-4 plan or its principles?

- Should we press for "closing the back door" in conjunction with our strategy to get UNPROFOR renewal and to squeeze Pale? (OVP NOTE: to close the back door, we need to pursue some or all of the following steps: convince Tudjman to cooperate in controlling the flow of goods into the UNPAs and across the Croatian border into Bosnia; support deployment of additional SAMs to Croatia to help monitor the Belgrade-Zagreb highway and cross-border trade; and give UNFIC at least an "observe and report" mission on the Croatia-Bosnia border).

- Are there decisions we will need from the Principals or the President?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Next Steps with Contact Group and Milosevic: Principals should address where we go with the Contact Group sanctions relief-for-recognition proposal. Ask State for a status report. Milosevic continues to defend his insistence on immediate, unconditional lifting of sanctions on grounds that this would bring peace by vitiating the Muslim's will to fight. He told the UK and France that he would recognize Bosnia as a single union within its existing borders made up of the Federation and the Serb Republic, but not recognize the Sarajevo government. He claims this would encourage both sides to negotiate. We view the Milosevic counteroffer as inadequate, but the French and British are unable to let go. Chris is thinking of sending Bob Frasure to Belgrade next week to ensure Milosevic understands our position and to see if there is any more give. We have no word yet from Bill Richardson. For discussion:

- Where are we in efforts to get Milosevic to agree?
- What is our response to Milosevic's counter-proposal to lift sanctions against the FRY as a prelude to a Paris conference to draft a series of agreements between the parties?
- Where do the Europeans come out on Milosevic's proposal?
- Are we prepared to offer partial sanctions relief if Milosevic recognizes Bosnia but not Croatia?
- Is it time to increase the pressure on Milosevic by threatening to withdraw our support for Plan B? Should we go further (e.g. terminate the present sanctions relief and increase enforcement of existing sanctions)?

III. OPLAN 40104 APPROVAL PROCESS

Step Two Prepositioning: Prepositioning still unresolved at NATO. SACEUR is pressing to proceed just in case withdrawal from Bosnia becomes necessary. Military authorities have developed a scaled-back ("mini") option for 80 C3 personnel (12 American). JCS paper on "mini" option at Tab E. The larger option (1700, including 450 Americans (320 in Croatia) is still an active option. JCS paper on "maxi" option at Tab F.

The NAC authorized SHAPE to issue an ACTWARN requesting forces for prepositioning. The ACTWARN may request support for both the "mini" and "maxi" packages. Decision to deploy may also be requested. Ask the CJCS to brief the Step Two decision timeline. If we must respond by next week's NAC, calls to the Hill will need to be completed in time for another Principals' review on Tuesday, March 21. Walt Slocombe may be briefing the SASC on March 21 and could use that session to brief on prepositioning. If the Principals agree, we will notify NATO of our support for Step Two that same day. Principals should review the DoD-drafted talking points (Tab G) and authorize the calls and consultations with the Hill. For discussion:

- Where does the decision-making process stand in NATO on Step Two?
- Should we proceed with our decision to consult with Congress and notify NATO of our support for Step Two prepositioning? (We recommend calls and briefing by Slocombe, et al.)
- Are there changes to the talking points that were drafted by OSD?
- Who will be making the calls and when should they begin? (We suggest Principals or Deputies begin making the calls on Monday if the Principals are to gauge Congressional reaction on Tuesday.)

OPLAN 40104 Approval Process: OSD and JCS were asked to develop a decision timeline (Tab H) for the complete OPLAN 40104 approval process so we might be better able to synchronize supporting U.S. decisions. Ask Shali to review the NATO decision making process. Our objective is to develop a clearer picture of when key U.S. decisions will be needed on the military issues related to withdrawal operations. The SECDEF was to have been briefed on the OPLAN just prior to the PC. OSD staff reports they are attempting to get smaller options incorporated into the plan. Regardless, if we are serious about obtaining Congressional appropriation for the operation, we need to get on with the consultation process. The new letter from Dole, Helms et al. (Tab I) illustrates the amount of skepticism we will need to overcome. For discussion:

- What is the NATO timeline for decisions on OPLAN 40104?
- What U.S. decisions are needed, and when?
- What does it really mean when we vote to approve OPLAN 40104 at NATO? (We see it as merely NATO approving the plan that will be used to execute withdrawal operations should the NAC subsequently decide to do so.)
- Will the NAC approve the entire OPLAN 40104 or parts? Will it include the Croatia piece? Can we approve a Croatia plan without the President's decision to participate?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Do we have enough information about the plan to support it in the NAC?

- Should we make our support for 40104 conditional? (We suggest that we support 40104 as the plan that NATO will use to execute the operation, but condition that support on agreement on funding before the operation is executed. We will also need undiluted NATO command and control and robust ROE.)

- Shouldn't the Principals, the President, and Congress be briefed before we take action in the NAC? When will DoD be ready to brief Principals and the President on the plan? (An open-date schedule proposal has been sent to you.)

- If we agree that we want Congressional authorization and funding for the operation, do we need to brief them before agreeing in the NAC? (Our preference is to do single presentations on all aspects of the plan rather than a series of phone calls on individual pieces.)

- Step Two Decision Memo to the President said Principals agreed we would seek Congressional approval for funding of the operation. What is our strategy for gaining Congressional and public support?

IV. RESPONDING TO DOLE/BOSNIAN REQUESTS FOR MILITARY TRAINING

Letters (Tab J) from the Bosnians and Senator Dole requesting the President to train pro-government forces are now one month old. Deputies deferred discussion on the training issue until the policy review was completed. We can continue to defer and risk hearing more from both the Bosnians and the Hill, or we can respond now, informing them that we are prepared to move ahead with IMET training for the Federation. OSD and JCS were asked to prepare options (Tab K).

State is seeking approval to proceed with a broad 505 agreement so that IMET to support the Federation can begin (paper at Tab L). DoD opposes broad agreement, citing concerns that it will put us on the slippery slope to greater U.S. involvement. Deputies should discuss whether we should respond now and how, or continue to defer. We would support the broad 505 agreement, but limiting IMET to non-lethal areas (option 2 in OSD paper at Tab K). Ask OSD to lead the discussion. For discussion:

- Should we respond to the Dole letter now, provide a non-substantive response, or defer?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Should we provide the training the Bosnians and Senator Dole have asked the President to support?

- What are the legal implications of providing training? (See Alan Kreczko E-mail Tab M.)

- What is our rationale for saying no or providing limited IMET in view of stalled negotiations and the likelihood of renewed hostilities?

- If we were to provide some training, how would that impact on efforts to prevent renewed war or negotiations on a settlement?

FORMER YUGOSLAVIA POLICY REVIEW: UPDATE FOR PRINCIPALS

The Setting: Tudjman's March 12 announcement has reduced the chances of a renewed war in Croatia and a widening of the Balkan conflict. But an escalation of the war in Bosnia remains likely as the end of the cessation of hostilities approaches with no movement on the diplomatic track. The ceasefire is already showing signs of unraveling and both sides seem confident of success in a new round of fighting. Silajdzic has declared that the Bosnian Government will not extend the ceasefire beyond April 30 and that Western emphasis on containment amounts to an unacceptable attempt to freeze the status quo. Milosevic's response to the offer of sanctions relief for mutual recognition has been utterly inadequate and Serbian enforcement of the border closure with Bosnia has fallen off markedly since the second 100-day period began in January. The Contact Group is on its last legs and advocates of a lifting of the arms embargo are beginning to stir in both houses of the Congress.

The Gap Between Ends and Means: The NSC paper of February 27 noted that the U.S. has pursued a range of important, but not always compatible, objectives in trying to deal with the Bosnian conflict over the past two years. Moreover, the tools we have applied have varied in response to events and as our priorities have shifted. Since Bihac, we have backed away from attempts to bring NATO air power to bear to enforce UNSC resolutions and pressure the Bosnian Serbs to settle on terms more favorable to the Bosnian Government. Yet we did not scale back our political objectives to match our reduced leverage -- contributing to the present diplomatic impasse.

Broad Strategic Choices: The NSC paper set forth four basic strategic options:

1. Stick with present policy: continue to support Bosnians rhetorically, continue diplomatic efforts with reduced expectations of success, focus on containment.
2. Shift to a policy of neutrality regarding terms of settlement and active containment of conflict; end or suspend Contact Group activities; acknowledge we cannot produce a better deal for Bosnians.
3. Containment of conflict and long-term quarantine of Greater Serbia, including reinforced sanctions on Belgrade for the long haul.
4. Renewed push for military measures in support of Bosnians: withdraw UNPROFOR, multilateral lift and strike.

Deputies did not arrive at any firm conclusions in their one discussion of the NSC paper, but agreed with the thrust of the paper that now is the time to review our overall policy.

They agreed we do not presently have the means to attain the political goals we have set. Discussion tended to favor the first two options.

State argued in favor of option 1, a continuation of our current policy, with the highest priority attached to preventing a major upsurge in fighting that could lead to the departure of UNPROFOR, greater human suffering, and increased pressure for U.S. military involvement. An underlying assumption is that we would put larger equities at risk if we tried to win Allied or Russian agreement to increased military pressure on the Serbs; that an accommodation among the parties will only happen after more fighting and/or a gradual recognition of the need for compromise; and that prolonging today's "relative peace" is better than the alternatives. We would not, however, take the politically and morally questionable step of pressing the Bosnians to accept more "unjust" terms, although we would try to lower Bosnian and public perceptions that the international community has the ability to deliver a "fair" settlement. This strategy could encompass the following:

- continued efforts to engage Milosevic in negotiations over cross-recognition and to gain his support for political settlements in Bosnia and Croatia, using sanctions relief as a carrot;
- follow-up on the agreement with Tudjman on new UN force by seeking to launch political negotiations based on Z-4 principles;
- reinforced efforts to isolate Pale and Knin by strengthening Serbian/Bosnian border closure, closing "back door" that permits Serbian goods to reach Bosnian Serbs through Krajina;
- strengthening the outer ring of sanctions by increasing West European support for sanctions enforcement and working with the front-line states;
- continued efforts to enhance UNPROFOR equipment and rules of engagement in Bosnia, but without pressuring UNPROFOR to adopt a belligerent anti-Serb posture;
- maintaining the structure of the Contact Group even if its effectiveness is limited, so as to deter diplomatic breakouts by Russia or others;
- consideration of selected U.S.-only or U.S.-European diplomatic initiatives;
- increased support for the Bosniac-Croat Federation;
- beefing up UNPROFOR in Macedonia.

In addition, we would strongly warn the Bosnian Government of the need to extend the ceasefire and refrain from initiating large-scale hostilities, since this could force the departure of UNPROFOR and jeopardize our readiness to provide assistance to the Federation. We would fight Congressional efforts to lift the embargo unilaterally and seek to persuade the Bosnians that they are better off militarily by making do with a leaky arms embargo rather than forcing the issue of a formal lift.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

OVP advocated a similar approach, focusing on the long-term isolation of the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs and the strengthening of the outer ring of sanctions, while providing economic and other assistance to the Federation. For the isolation strategy to be effective, there would have to be increased resources and political commitment by us and the Europeans -- to field additional sanctions monitors on the Serbian-Bosnian border and in Croatia, and to induce better enforcement of sanctions against Serbia by the front-line states.

DOD favored shifting toward option 2, a more open posture of neutrality. While we would pursue many of the same steps as State proposes to contain the conflict, we would openly acknowledge that a settlement along the lines of the Contact Group plan is not attainable without U.S. actions that it is not in our interest to take. We would thus distance ourselves from the goal of achieving a better deal for the Bosnians and abandon or downgrade the importance of the Contact Group, making clear that it is up to the parties, not the international community, to find a mutually acceptable solution.

The U.S. Contact Group representative suggested an evolutionary approach, shifting gradually from option 1 to option 2. While we would not disavow the Contact Group plan or impose unfair terms on the Bosnians, we would attempt over time to bring them to the realization that they will have to settle for less. We would, however, seek to "maximize the minimum," i.e. try to get the Bosnians the best terms that the Bosnian Serbs will accept.

None of the Deputies advocated options 3 or 4: a long-term quarantine of Serbia would be difficult to sell to the Russians and Europeans; and renewed military pressure on the Serbs through lift and strike would likely lead to an Americanization of the conflict, even if pursued multilaterally.

The Director of Strategic Plans and Policy of the Joint Staff and the NSC staff, however, suggested that a staged multilateral lifting of the arms embargo (beginning with defensive weapons), in tandem with a last-chance effort to secure Bosnian Serb acceptance of the Contact Group plan, should remain under consideration in the event that UNPROFOR withdrawal and/or Congressional pressures push us toward option 4. Our Allies' interest in U.S. participation in UNPROFOR withdrawal gives us leverage to secure their acquiescence in multilateral lift. (The Russians would need to be bought off by means of extending additional sanctions relief to Milosevic.)

Another variant of Option 4 might also be considered: a threat by the U.S. and its Allies to withdraw UNPROFOR and lift the arms embargo multilaterally as a means of shocking the Serbs into negotiating on the basis of the Contact Group plan. In light of the hollowness of past Contact Group threats, however, we would have to demonstrate more convincingly our readiness to make good on the threat.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Can Containment Work? As noted, options 1 and 2 point to roughly the same concrete policy actions. They would make prevention of a new war and containment, rather than achieving a political settlement, our priority goal. They also have the same flaw: they ignore the fact that the Bosnians would rather fight than settle for the status quo, and they will not readily cooperate with a containment strategy. If the war escalates and Bosnian suffering once again dominates the headlines and CNN, Hill pressures to lift the arms embargo could become hard to manage.

If we are to prevent a new round of fighting and avoid a serious break with the Bosnians, we need to find additional positive incentives for the Bosnians to exercise restraint. These could include:

- massive economic assistance and political support to the Federation;
- measures to persuade the Bosnians that UNPROFOR is worth keeping, even if it means deferring a lifting of the arms embargo once again (e.g. deployment of additional troops to forcibly open the Blue Route to Sarajevo; a more aggressive effort to get our allies to toughen up UNPROFOR's rules of engagement throughout Bosnia; a return to NATO enforcement of the exclusion zones, etc.); and
- other steps to encourage a deferral of lift, such as a more robust program of military training (albeit one consistent with the arms embargo), intelligence support, etc.

Financial incentives alone will not likely sway the Bosnians, even if we are able to come up with serious money. The latter steps, however, would mean renewed frictions with our Allies and may be unattainable without, in the end, precipitating UNPROFOR's withdrawal. Threatening the Bosnians with punitive actions, on the other hand, would be politically indefensible.

In the final analysis, therefore, we may not be able to prevent the Bosnians from going on the offensive in the spring. The best case may be that the renewed fighting does not lead to any major Bosnian reverses and the current stalemate remains when winter returns. The worst case is that the Serbs respond by overrunning the eastern enclaves and strangling Sarajevo again. Although UNPROFOR countries may hunker down and not decide to withdraw even in the latter scenario, Congress may force the issue with unilateral lift.

STEPS TO PREVENT RENEWED WAR IN BOSNIA

Despite our considerable diplomatic success in convincing Tudjman to maintain a UN presence in Croatia, which avoids for the moment the threat of widened war in the Balkans, a renewal of full-scale hostilities in Bosnia could begin soon. Cease-fire violations have increased markedly in past weeks. Military commanders on both sides are balanced between a desire to take advantage of good weather and break out of their current positions and their need for a bit more time to regroup and rearm.

Izetbegovic said in Bonn on March 16 that the Bosnians will renew the war this spring if Karadzic does not accept the Contact Group plan and map. We should take this statement very seriously.

In fact, it is likely this summer that we will be faced with either a "big war" or a "small war" in Bosnia. The latter is preferred, notably because UNPROFOR could hunker down and ride out the storm, i.e., no expensive, difficult NATO extraction. Some credible diplomacy would help edge the situation toward a smaller war, e.g. pre-Bihac levels.

With Milosevic's cool reaction to our "big bang" recognition/sanctions suspension gambit, we are perforce back in a "Bosnia only" strategy for the moment. This may be acceptable for the following reasons:

- o our Croatia success hopefully has defused that bomb, which was one of the reasons in the first place for the "big bang" idea,
- o Milosevic seems more willing to recognize Bosnia. Indeed, his proffered constitutional principles are not dissimilar to what we have had in mind, and,
- o finally, it will be easier to reengage the Russians in Contact Group work if our efforts are focused on Bosnia.

We will need to explore the the Contact Group a "Bosnia only" package with three elements:

- o extension of the cessation of hostilities,
- o constitutional principles that can accept including: Milosevic (for recognition purposes) and Karadzic and the Bosnians as the basis for a further negotiation, and,
- o acceptance of the 51/49 map by Pale with some kind of proviso on swaps (Pale is passing around a map that looks like 55/45).

As we firm up the Croatia deal, we will need to explore this package in the Contact Group. We will also have to sort out how much sanctions suspension would go with this half-loaf strategy.

CROATIA STRATEGY

With Tudjman's announcement that he will seek a mandate for continued UN forces in Croatia, the focus of immediate activity shifts to New York. While some difficult issues remain to be worked out, the parameters of an eventual UNSC resolution mandating the new force are now defined. In the near term, we need to keep this process on track, aiming to have a UNSC resolution adopted by April 1 or shortly thereafter and the new force established on the ground by mid-June.

Status Report

Following his meeting with Vice President Gore on Sunday in Copenhagen, President Tudjman announced his agreement to allow UN troops to stay in Croatia. The text was as previously negotiated by A/S Holbrooke in Zagreb. The quid pro quo to keep troops patrolling the buffer zone between Croatian and Serb forces was our agreement to seek a mandate for a new force that "prohibits" Serb military supply into Croatia.

The deal has won praise, e.g. from troop contributors, whom John Kornblum briefed in Washington Monday. Paris is concerned about the implications of a separate Croatia mandate for the French commander of UNPROFOR. The Russians were initially positive, but have since begun to raise numerous questions about the mandate and seem to want to raise Knin to the status of a UN negotiating partner.

Next steps

Activity has shifted to the UN, where we showed draft resolutions to the Contact Group plus Italy on Monday. The approach would be a separate resolution with a separate mandate to create the new UN force in Croatia. In the UNPROFOR rollover resolution, devoted mostly to Bosnia and Macedonia, we include language authorizing UNPROFOR personnel to continue essential functions in Croatia until the new force is established on the ground. Some CG members and troop contributors are uncomfortable with the lack of legal clarity in this approach. But the alternative -- explicit continuation of UNPROFOR in Croatia -- is unacceptable to Zagreb.

UNSC action will determine the eventual disposition of the new UN force. Questions abound regarding the extent of UN monitoring on Croatia's borders, the make-up of the new force (i.e. which contingents get to pack up and go home), and command and control arrangements. The UN Secretariat will have difficulty beginning to sort these out until it has a clear UNSC mandate to work from. So it is important to try to get a resolution quickly. The deadline of March 31, when UNPROFOR's current mandate expires, will help accelerate this work.

In addition, the Secretariat and troop-contributing capitals will need considerable time to reconfigure the existing UNPROFOR/Croatia contingents. So it is important to press ahead on the authorizing resolution if we expect demonstrable changes on the ground before June 30, when Croatia's current consent expires for UNPROFOR to continue existing operations.

Political talks

While pressing ahead on measures to maintain a UN troop presence in Croatia, we will need to work to invigorate the diplomatic track. The Krajina Serbs indicated a willingness to start political talks once it was clear that UNPROFOR would remain. The have recently announced that the "RSK" has no reason to fear negotiations. We will work with the other Z-4 members (EU, Russia, UN) to pursue this opening and attempt to launch talks.

At a minimum, we should insist on resumption of work on the economic confidence-building measures. This track has been important to Belgrade, presumably as part of an effort to accustom the Krajina Serbs accustomed to closer integration with Croatia. Whether political talks can be launched soon remains to be seen. We need to be careful, however, not to allow economic agreements between Zagreb and Knin cause any loosening of the sanctions-related isolation of Pale.

We must be clear on what Tudjman's announcement accomplished. It is a band-aid that buys time -- crucial time to be sure but probably no more than twelve. Without movement toward a political settlement, he may well decide to launch military action before national elections in 1996.

ISSUE: Should the Executive Branch (1) approve designation of forces for minimum Step 2, (2) agree today that we will support the deployment of minimum Step 2 forces when requested, (3) and begin consultations with Congress regarding a minimum Step 2 communications prepositioning architecture in preparation for UNPROFOR withdrawal by briefing key Congressional members and staffers on the preparations for implementing this step? (NOTE: President has made the decision to support Step 2 prepositioning. Approval for deployment is subject to consultations with Congress and subsequent NAC decision to deploy forces.) SACEUR PREPARING TO RELEASE REQUEST FOR STEP 2 FORCES TODAY! Likely request for deploying minimum Step 2 forces will occur next week.

KEY POINTS:

- SHAPE recommends minimum Step 2 communications architecture only if decision to implement full Step 2 is not taken now.

- Minimum Step 2 prepositioning architecture includes:

  - Deployment of a Transportable Ground Satellite Terminal (TSGT) to Pleso (~20 NATO personnel). Provides secure strategic communications.

  - Deployment of Communications Coordination Detachments to Zagreb, Pleso, and Split (~20 NATO personnel at each site).

  - Conduct of equipment interoperability tests for comm units required for full Step 2 (primarily in Germany).

  - Total of 80 personnel. SHAPE estimates that 12 US troops would be among the 80.

- By comparison, full Step 2 implementation calls for deployment of 310 US personnel to Zagreb, Pleso, and along Adriatic coastal ports (Rijeka, Zadar, Split, Ploce). Total NATO full Step 2 package consists of ~1526 NATO personnel of which 960 deploy into Croatia.

- 15 March NAC:

  - Approved sending Activation Warning Messages (ACTWARN) officially notifying nations of the potential operation and requesting specific troop contributions for (1) manning and preparations for the deployment of the TSGT to Pleso, (2) manning and preparations for the deployment of the Communications Coordination Detachments to Zagreb, Pleso, and Split, (3) preparation of remaining step 2 forces.

- Noted that a separate NAC decision approving an Activation Request (ACTREQ) is required to authorize deployment of personnel.

- Approved Step 2 forces to conduct interoperability tests in the Central region (principally Germany).

- Agreed that NATO personnel deployed in theater will operate under UNPROFOR ROE until OPLAN 40104 TOA.

PROS:

- Demonstrates US leadership in the Alliance by supporting actions designed to protect interests of NATO nations with troops in UNPROFOR.

- Increases NATO's readiness to respond - prudent military measure for a possible major military operation.

- Provides NATO with a low-cost, reversible step that improves "on the ground" capability. Funds are available within NATO budget for prepositioning.

- Limited scope of deployment not likely to prejudice on-going diplomatic initiatives in the region.

- Communications architecture would be tested and validated before it may be needed on short notice.

- Congress less likely to oppose an approach that does not involve significant numbers of US troops.

CONS:

- Possibly perceived as the US supporting a step that leads to the withdrawal of UNPROFOR and the wider war we have been trying to avoid.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Postures US and NATO for a military operation with an indeterminate start and end dates.

- Places more US troops on the ground.

Recommendation:

ISSUE: Should the US (1) approve designation of forces for full Step 2 prepositioning, (2) agree today that we will support deployment of full Step 2 forces when requested? By approving the NATO proposal to commence Step Two of prepositioning, we are in a better position to react to either a deliberate or emergency extraction. This deployment includes 440 U.S. troops of which 310 would deploy into Croatia. (NOTE: President has made the decision to support Step 2 prepositioning. Approval for deployment is subject to consultations with Congress and subsequent NAC decision to deploy forces.) SACEUR PREPARING TO RELEASE REQUEST FOR STEP 2 FORCES TODAY!

KEY POINTS:

- The UN has not yet made a formal decision to withdraw UNPROFOR from either Bosnia or Croatia. The intelligence community assesses that fighting will resume in Bosnia this spring and there is no immediate prospect of concluding a negotiated settlement.
- Although Pres. Tudjman has agreed to permit the continuation of an international force in Croatia along the cease-fire line, the issue remains unresolved. GOC and Krajina Serbs have not agreed to the language supporting the changes to proposed Security Council Resolutions and mission of new UN force.
- NATO planning to support UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia is contained in OPLAN 40104, which is continuously being updated.
- Once Step 2 is authorized, it will take ~2-3 weeks to assemble, deploy, and establish the communications system.
- Prepositioning is a necessary, but reversible, step to support a large military operation. The total number of personnel involved is approximately 1526, including 440 US military personnel (310 in Croatia). The total NATO cost for prepositioning is estimated at $11.3M ($5M already authorized for step 1), to be paid out of existing NATO funds. (Countries pay own transport/sustainment costs.)
- The NAC authorized ACTWARNS for prepositioning step 2 on 15 Mar. SACEUR is preparing to issue a ACTWARN officially notifying member states of the potential operation and requesting specific troop contributions.

PROs:

- Prudent preparation for a likely major military operation. Reduces lead-time by ~two weeks from notification to execution.
- Demonstrates US leadership in NATO alliance, reducing potential embarrassment to US and NATO by preparing for a likely call for NATO assistance. An unplanned withdrawal could result in calls for US unilateral support, or participation in a "coalition-of-the-capable" (US, UK, FR), mortally damaging NATO.
- US troops deploying to Croatia will be stationed in Zagreb and various seaports, not the UNPAs.
- This is a low-cost, reversible step. Only actual expense to USG is movement of US personnel within Europe.
- Should the Holbrooke-Tudjman agreement be reversed, NATO will be in a better position to execute withdrawal operations from the former Yugoslavia.

CONs:

- Could be viewed as the US supporting a step that leads to the withdrawal of UNPROFOR in the wider war we have been trying to avoid.
- Postures US and NATO for a military operation with indeterminate start and end dates.
- First installment for an operation that could eventually require 20,000-30,000 US military personnel and cost the USG about $1B. (US incremental plus UN assessed costs)
- Tough sell to a Congress: another UN peacekeeping operation, requires significant funding or reprogramming, eventually puts US troops on the ground in Bosnia.

RECOMMENDATION:

(1) approve designation of forces for full Step 2 prepositioning,
(2) agree today that we will support deployment of full Step 2 forces when requested.

TALKING POINTS FOR CALLS TO MEMBERS OF CONGRESS

Support for Step Two of NATO Prepositioning for UNPROFOR Withdrawal

- As you know, in early December the President informed our Allies that the U.S. would be prepared, in principle, to commit U.S. ground forces to a NATO operation to help UNPROFOR withdraw from Bosnia.

- Assisting UN forces in Bosnia, in particular those of our closest Allies, would be an essential demonstration of Alliance solidarity. Failure to offer such support would risk grave damage to NATO.

- We do not want UNPROFOR to depart; it performs a critical function in Bosnia. Our decision to assist an UNPROFOR withdrawal was a decision in principle.

- The Administration has no intention of keeping U.S. ground forces in Bosnia or Croatia following a withdrawal operation. The sole purpose of deploying troops would be to participate as a NATO-member nation in support of UNPROFOR withdrawal.

- I hasten to note that the UN has not made a formal decision to withdraw UNPROFOR from either Bosnia or Croatia. Fighting, however, could resume in Bosnia later this spring. Heavy fighting could well prompt a UN decision to withdraw.

- It could take as much as 8-12 weeks after a UN request for help and a NATO decision to implement the OP Plan before preparations are complete and forces are in place to commence a withdrawal of UNPROFOR, our senior military commanders recommend that we act now to ensure that the essential first prepositioning steps are taken to ensure the communications network is ready to support a likely major military operation.

- Accordingly, I am asking for your support for a Presidential decision in principle to preposition up to 15 U.S. DOD personnel in Croatia -- to execute the preliminary communications steps associated with NATO's operational plan for extraction of UNPROFOR from Bosnia.

- We will consult with you if further prepositioning steps are required and before any final decision is reached on implementation of the actual withdrawal plan.

- In the interim, NATO's Operational Plan is being updated continuously; and NATO is still working such key issues as final numbers of troops that would be provided from among the various NATO allies, how the overall operation would be funded, and when precisely the actual prepositioning of communications personnel would begin.

IF ASKED

- Funding for the prepositioning steps would come from existing NATO funds (about $11 million).

- In light of Tudjman's agreement, we see no requirement for U.S. or NATO combat units to assist in the change of UN forces in Croatia.

United States Senate

OFFICE OF THE MAJORITY LEADER
WASHINGTON, DC 20510-7010

March 15, 1995

The President
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. President:

We are writing in regard to commitments made by your administration to assist in the withdrawal of U.N. troops from Croatia and Bosnia and Herzegovina. It is our understanding that the recent compromise with the Croatian government may require only a partial withdrawal of U.N. forces from Croatia -- that is if the militant Serbs agree -- and that U.S. involvement is likely to be very limited in such an operation. However, we are aware that you have already committed to providing U.S. military assistance, to include U.S. combat troops, to participate in the withdrawal of U.N. troops from Bosnia and Herzegovina should such a decision be made by either nations participating in UNPROFOR or the Government of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

While we have consistently opposed your policy toward the former Yugoslavia, and have been critical of the inability and unwillingness of the U.N. forces to fulfill their mandate there, we recognize that U.S. participation to assist the withdrawal of U.N. forces may be necessary. However, we believe that such assistance should not be offered without strict conditions.

The first condition is that the entire withdrawal operation be under unified NATO command -- from start to finish. The "dual-key" arrangement under which NATO currently operates and is subordinate to the United Nations has been a military and political fiasco. Should such an arrangement be extended to any component of the withdrawal operation -- even under peaceful circumstances -- we would strongly oppose U.S. participation.

It is critical that the United States establish concretely and in advance that NATO command is a prerequisite to U.S. participation. As such, we would strongly recommend that this decision be explicitly stated in a U.N. Security Council resolution on the matter. A letter from the U.N. Secretary General in our view would be wholly insufficient; a binding commitment from the countries in the Security Council who are the largest troop contributors to UNPROFOR should be a minimum requirement.

Second, the rules of engagement must be robust. There must be no question that self-defense includes the right of retaliation -- at the discretion of the NATO commander. Those forces that may consider interfering with the withdrawal of U.N.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

forces must know in no uncertain terms that if any U.N. or NATO troops are provoked or attacked that they will face massive and disproportionate retaliation, to include all their military assets, not just their immediately-engaged forces.

Third, there must be a common sense rule applied to the withdrawal of heavy equipment belonging to the U.N. protection forces. We understand that those of our allies participating in UNPROFOR would like to remove all of their equipment when they depart. If the environment is calm and peaceful, we would not object to using American forces to facilitate the withdrawal of equipment. Should we be faced with a hostile environment, however, we believe that American lives should not be endangered to rescue equipment.

Finally, U.S. assistance should be premised on an understanding with our allies that UNPROFOR's withdrawal clears the way for lifting the U.N. arms embargo on the Bosnian Government. To date, allied objections to lifting the arms embargo have centered on concerns about the safety of allied troops deployed in Bosnia-Herzegovina. If the United States assists in the withdrawal of U.N. forces, the allies must know that we will not tolerate equivocation on the matter of terminating the arms embargo. For three years the Bosnians have been denied their fundamental and inherent right to self-defense and watched as U.N. forces provided cover to the aggressor Serb forces. In sum, U.S. assistance in the withdrawal of UNPROFOR should be explicitly conditioned on the support of those nations for terminating the arms embargo.

Mr. President, we believe that these military and political conditions -- NATO command, robust rules of engagement, limitations on withdrawal of equipment, and allied agreement on next steps -- are not only essential to securing support from the U.S. Congress, but essential to the success of such a potentially dangerous operation. We look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Strom Thurmond Bob Dole

Congress of the United States

Washington, DC 20515

February 17, 1995

The President
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. President:

We are writing to urge immediate action by you on the war in Bosnia. While diplomats talk in the wake of former President Carter's visit to the region, there is strong reason to believe that the Bosnian Serbs will continue to reject peace. If the war in Bosnia resumes full scale, we do not believe the situation will continue as it has for the last three years. UNPROFOR's already weakened position will become even more untenable, and pressure for its withdrawal will increase.

In the event of either significant Serbian escalation or of UNPROFOR withdrawal, the case for ending the international arms embargo of Bosnia becomes even more compelling. We trust that, in such circumstances, your Administration would move expeditiously to end the United Nations embargo. Should that not be possible, however, we would expect the Congress to vote to unilaterally end participation by the United States in the embargo.

In any event, the United States has an obligation to prepare for the most likely scenarios in Bosnia. If the embargo is to be ended, either multilaterally or unilaterally, we will want to see direct U.S. involvement in the conflict held to a minimum. The surest way to minimize direct U.S. involvement after the embargo is ended is to act now to train the pro-government forces in strategy and tactics and the use of some of the weapons they are likely to obtain.

Such training would reduce the risk to the pro-government forces of any preemptive Serbian offensive, and would be an alternative to sending U.S. forces into Bosnia to provide training after the embargo is ended. Such training should be provided outside of Bosnia in order to avoid any risk to U.S. trainers. We understand that such training can be provided at a small fraction of the cost we currently are paying for the U.N. peacekeeping operation in Bosnia, and that it could be completed in less than six months. We also understand that the government of Bosnia and Hercegovina would welcome such training, and indeed already has submitted a formal request to you in this regard.

There can be no question about your authority to direct the provision of such training. Section 1404 of the 1995 Defense Department Authorization Act (the so-called Nunn-Mitchell provision) required the Administration to present options to the Congress for training the pro-government forces in Bosnia. Other provisions of law, including section 503 of the National Security Act of 1947, give you authority to deliver such training. Further, the provision of such training by the United States would not violate existing Security Council resolutions or relevant principles of international law.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

We believe you should take this step in order to be better prepared for the likely next phase of the war in Bosnia and in order to reduce the likelihood that U.S. forces will become directly involved in that war. It is important to note, however, that a program of training the pro-government forces in Bosnia would give the United States additional leverage in the ongoing negotiations with the Bosnian Serbs. Beginning a training program now would make clear to the Bosnian Serbs our determination to bring about a just and sustainable peace, and would underscore to them the probable cost of prolonging the conflict.

In other words, in the hands of able diplomats, a policy of training the pro-government forces for war could prove to be a powerful instrument for bringing about peace.

For all these reasons, we urge you to initiate promptly a program of military training for the pro-government forces in Bosnia and Hercegovina.

Sincerely,

BOB DOLE

ISSUE PAPER:
TRAINING THE PRO-GOVERNMENT FORCES IN BOSNIA

Background: Senator Dole, Rep. Gilman, and others wrote the President on February 17, 1995, to urge him to "act now to train the pro-government forces in strategy and tactics and the use of some of the weapons they are likely to obtain." The Members argued that the surest way to minimize direct U.S. involvement is to train the pro-government forces now so as to reduce their risk from any preemptive Serbian offensive.

Ambassador Alkalaj of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina (B-H) also wrote President Clinton on January 17, 1995, to request that the U.S. review the means by which training for the B-H Army personnel could begin outside of the borders of B-H. He argued that such training "can be most decisive in preparing B-H for continuing its defense against aggression, or, in the event of a negotiated settlement, for an effective deterrent and source of stability as peace is secured...."

An interagency General Counsels' (OGC) group in February recommended that only a "narrow" IMET be concluded for reasons of neutrality and force protection. OGC posited the negative consequences associated with violating the spirit and intent of UNSCRs and losing the protections afforded by "experts on mission" status. They believe, however, that adequate domestic legal authority exists to provide the training contemplated by Senator Dole.

Issue: The type of training, if any, that the USG should provide to the pro-government forces in B-H; where that training should be provided; and when such training should begin.

Options:

1. Limit training at this time to that outlined in a narrow Section 505 of the Foreign Assistance Act agreement--The U.S. has $70,000 available for IMET should such an agreement be signed. However, moving forward with the narrow agreement would require finessing the issue of the broader draft 505 agreement which was provided to the government of B-H earlier. Such training would not violate the spirit and intent of UNSCRs regarding the arms embargo. It would be limited to IMET training for only a few senior Federation officers at our senior professional military schools and some English language training. The training would not affect USG neutrality regarding this conflict. Providing this limited training would avoid the appearance of totally abandoning B-H but would have negligible affect on the battlefield.
2. Expand IMET training beyond the few senior Federation officers attending war colleges or receiving English language training. Courses would be "non-lethal" technical training courses and could include courses in computer programming, finance, and health care. Training would be at the individual level. This would have little practical effect on the battlefield but might placate some who felt the USG had a moral obligation to do something.

3. Provide some limited individual tactical and operational training for weapons likely to be used. Individual training would be conducted at U.S. facilities and schools. Such training could also include enrollment of junior and mid-level officers in professional development and leadership courses. This would prolong the conflict by encouraging B-H to fight on but would likely have minimal effect on the battlefield. It is unclear how unit commanders could be rotated through this training without a detrimental effect on the battlefield for B-H. It would, however, partially meet the demands of those who posit that the USG has a moral responsibility to assist B-H in its self-defense.
4. Train the pro-government forces in accordance with the plan outlined by Senator Dole. This would be unit level training and would need to be accomplished in a neighboring country, most likely Croatia. Such training would respond fully to the moral arguments that demand the USG assist B-H. It would also relieve some pressure from Congress. However, it directly contradicts the spirit and intent of UNSCRs and would clearly remove our forces from the protections of their current "experts on mission" status and make the U.S. a co-belligerent in the conflict.

Discussion: The effects of training the pro-government forces of B-H are problematic. However, there are other more likely and less favorable results from the training than those outlined by Ambassador Alkalaj and Senator Dole.

- Training is virtually synonymous with arming. Once the U.S. begins a significant training effort, the U.S. becomes an ally of B-H and, by extension, Croatia. The U.S. would become a co-belligerent.
- Once a decision to train is made, but before the training is complete, defines a period of enhanced vulnerability for B-H. Many will interpret such a decision to train as a harbinger of lifting the arms embargo. That, in turn may trigger UNPROFOR's withdrawal.
- UNPROFOR"s imminent withdrawal means that UN related humanitarian assistance programs will terminate. The humanitarian crisis will worsen.
- Training is a signal to all the Federation (including the HVO) that the U.S. is preparing the pro-government forces for a return to war.
- The Bosnian Serbs are likely to react to the above with preemptive action against B-H. Probable targets are the isolated enclaves. Almost all analysts project they would fall quickly.
- Others might feel compelled to take similar action on the side of the Serbs.
- The negative consequences outlined by the OGC are compelling--training as contemplated by Senator Dole puts USG neutrality in question and would destroy the fabric of even-handedness upon which UNPROFOR and NATO operations in support thereof are based.
- The March 4, 1995, Deputies' discussion focused on the reality of accepting a minimalist outcome for B-H and that its longer-term prospect was absorption by Croatia and Serbia.

Recommendation: Approve Option 1--narrow 505 agreement--as the basis of the President's response to Senator Dole.

SUPPORT FOR THE FEDERATION - 505 AGREEMENT

I. PURPOSES FOR DEPUTIES COMMITTEE

- Decide if the Government of Bosnia Herzegovina (GoBH) can sign the broad 505 agreement they now have so that international military and educational training (IMET) to support the Federation may begin.

- Approve the strategy to win support for this decision from our NATO and Contact Group allies.

II. OPTIONS

Option 1 (Recommended): Ask Prime Minister Siladjic to confirm the GoBH notification to our embassy that the Bosnians are ready to sign the broad draft 505 given them so that already-approved IMET training can commence.

PRO: A broad 505 agreement would give the EUR military consultant (replacing General Galvin as Special Representative to the Bosnian Federation armed forces) a tool he can use in negotiations trying to bring two mutually suspicious armed forces closer together. His capacity to get anything done will depend on being able to draw on a full range of DoD programs, consistent with the clear understanding that, after a Presidential determination is signed, we will not transfer anything that violates the embargo.

Signing a broad agreement would signal our support without committing us to furnish excess defense articles (EDA) at this time; a Presidential determination is required to make a country eligible for transfers of defense articles (enforced by policy precedent) and the UN arms embargo limits EDA. (We are awaiting a GoBH short list of items they need in order to obtain an interagency legal opinion on which items could be furnished under the arms embargo.)

Asking the GoBH to limit the 505 agreement to IMET only after they have been given a broad draft could be perceived as a diminuation of USG support for the Federation, our current policy and could anger Congress which sees support for the Federation as vital to Balkan peace efforts.

CON: NATO and Contact Group allies may perceive signing this broad 505 agreement as a USG move toward unilaterally lifting the arms embargo, particularly if the singular nature of the agreement is publicized. We would need to carefully explain our position to counter this perception.

Option 2: Ask Prime Minister Siladjic to sign a revised 505 agreement limited to IMET only, explaining the draft which he was shown was in error and we intended to be consistent with agreements presented to Slovenia, FYROM, and Croatia.

PRO: Broad 505 agreements are, in general, not concluded until such time as we have identified specific defence articles we want to transfer to a given country.

Allies are worried, with Congressional legislation still to prohibit most types of military assistance, arms to the GoBH, and singling out the GoBH to sign an agreement including all military equipment sales, lease or draw-down which was refused to other Eastern European countries could be misinterpreted.

Providing IMET signals support for the Federation; we should be honest and tell the GoBH we mistakenly gave the wrong legal document needed to make this training happen.

CON: We cannot risk signalling any withdrawal of support for the Federation at this crucial time in negotiations. It is both easier and less risky to quietly allow the GoBH to sign the agreement they have already been given, and explain, if Allies ask, that nothing more than IMET can be given without further steps such as a Presidential determination which we do not intend to take at this time.

III. BACKGROUND

Before any military assistance (defense articles or related training or other defense services) may be furnished to a foreign country, Section 505 of the Foreign Assistance Act requires that certain assurances from the recipient country be obtained concerning use, retransfer and security of any articles, training, or services provided. These assurances are contained in an exchange of diplomatic notes which constitute an international agreement between the U.S. and the "potential recipient country." These assurances normally cover the full range of military assistance. However, throughout Central Europe and the FSU, we have initiated IMET programs before progressing to other levels of military assistance. In such cases, we have limited our 505 agreement with a given country to cover only IMET. Broader 505 agreements are, in general, not concluded until such time as we have identified specific defence articles we want to transfer to a given country. It is important to note that a 505 agreement does not commit the U.S. to providing military assistance either in general or in a specific form. Rather, it is only done in order to meet a statutory precondition to providing such assistance.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

For Bosnia, we need a 505 agreement before we can begin the International Military Education and Training (IMET) program approved as one of a number of things that can be done within current U.S. law and policy (in particular compliance with the UN arms embargo) to be supportive of the development of the armed forces of the Bosnian Federation. A Presidential determination that furnishing military assistance to a particular country will strengthen the security of the U.S. and promote worldwide peace is an additional statutory precondition to providing most types of military assistance.

While for legal reasons this 505 agreement would be signed by the Government of Bosnia Herzegovina (GoBH) as well as by the Federation, the cooperation would be intended for the Federation armed forces. (Note: The 505 agreement itself has no means to enforce this intention to provide support to the Federation but agreements to transfer specific equipment can be written to limit the use of the goods or services to the Federation armed forces rather than the GoBH national army.)

Broad 505 Agreement Given to GoBH

Limited 505 agreements for IMET only have been signed with Slovenia and Macedonia, and is pending with Croatia (as well as initially with all other CE states). We have also signed a broad non-binding defense cooperation agreement with Croatia (as well as several other CE states). A broad draft 505 agreement (sufficient for provision of IMET, lethal, and non-lethal EDA) was given to the GoBH; it was made clear that transfers under the agreement would be limited by the UN arms embargo.

IV. CONSULTATIONS WITH ALLIES

We must consult closely with allies to explain that signing a broad 505 agreement, while needed for any EDA transfers or military sales, does not change our opposition to unilateral lift. We will undertake nothing beyond the provision of IMET without obtaining a Presidential determination requiring Congressional notification for Bosnia. We do not plan to ask for this determination at this time.

We should portray the agreement as a necessary but not sufficient bureaucratic hurdle. While it momentarily singles out the Federation from among former Yugoslav countries (and even some Eastern European ones) as being more "worthy" of U.S. support, we would not object should others demand the same agreement with the same limitations.

FORMER YUGOSLAVIA POLICY REVIEW: UPDATE FOR PRINCIPALS

The Setting: Tudjman's March 12 announcement has reduced the chances of a renewed war in Croatia and a widening of the Balkan conflict. But an escalation of the war in Bosnia remains likely as the end of the cessation of hostilities approaches with no movement on the diplomatic track. The ceasefire is already showing signs of unraveling and both sides seem confident of success in a new round of fighting. Silajdzic has declared that the Bosnian Government will not extend the ceasefire beyond April 30 and that Western emphasis on containment amounts to an unacceptable attempt to freeze the status quo. Milosevic's response to the offer of sanctions relief for mutual recognition has been utterly inadequate and Serbian enforcement of the border closure with Bosnia has fallen off markedly since the second 100-day period began in January. The Contact Group is on its last legs and advocates of a lifting of the arms embargo are beginning to stir in both houses of the Congress.

The Gap Between Ends and Means: The NSC paper of February 27 noted that the U.S. has pursued a range of important, but not always compatible, objectives in trying to deal with the Bosnian conflict over the past two years. Moreover, the tools we have applied have varied in response to events and as our priorities have shifted. Since Bihac, we have backed away from attempts to bring NATO air power to bear to enforce UNSC resolutions and pressure the Bosnian Serbs to settle on terms more favorable to the Bosnian Government. Yet we did not scale back our political objectives to match our reduced leverage -- contributing to the present diplomatic impasse.

Broad Strategic Choices: The NSC paper set forth four basic strategic options:

1. Stick with present policy: continue to support Bosnians rhetorically, continue diplomatic efforts with reduced expectations of success, focus on containment.
2. Shift to a policy of neutrality regarding terms of settlement and active containment of conflict; end or suspend Contact Group activities; acknowledge we cannot produce a better deal for Bosnians.
3. Containment of conflict and long-term quarantine of Greater Serbia, including reinforced sanctions on Belgrade for the long haul.
4. Renewed push for military measures in support of Bosnians: withdraw UNPROFOR, multilateral lift and strike.

Deputies did not arrive at any firm conclusions in their one discussion of the NSC paper, but agreed with the thrust of the paper that now is the time to review our overall policy.

They agreed we do not presently have the means to attain the political goals we have set. Discussion tended to favor the first two options.

State argued in favor of option 1, a continuation of our current policy, with the highest priority attached to preventing a major upsurge in fighting that could lead to the departure of UNPROFOR, greater human suffering, and increased pressure for U.S. military involvement. An underlying assumption is that we would put larger equities at risk if we tried to win Allied or Russian agreement to increased military pressure on the Serbs; that an accommodation among the parties will only happen after more fighting and/or a gradual recognition of the need for compromise; and that prolonging today's "relative peace" is better than the alternatives. We would not, however, take the politically and morally questionable step of pressing the Bosnians to accept more "unjust" terms, although we would try to lower Bosnian and public perceptions that the international community has the ability to deliver a "fair" settlement. This strategy could encompass the following:

- continued efforts to engage Milosevic in negotiations over cross-recognition and to gain his support for political settlements in Bosnia and Croatia, using sanctions relief as a carrot;
- follow-up on the agreement with Tudjman on new UN force by seeking to launch political negotiations based on Z-4 principles;
- reinforced efforts to isolate Pale and Knin by strengthening Serbian/Bosnian border closure, closing "back door" that permits Serbian goods to reach Bosnian Serbs through Krajina;
- strengthening the outer ring of sanctions by increasing West European support for sanctions enforcement and working with the front-line states;
- continued efforts to enhance UNPROFOR equipment and rules of engagement in Bosnia, but without pressuring UNPROFOR to adopt a belligerent anti-Serb posture;
- maintaining the structure of the Contact Group even if its effectiveness is limited, so as to deter diplomatic breakouts by Russia or others;
- consideration of selected U.S.-only or U.S.-European diplomatic initiatives;
- increased support for the Bosniac-Croat Federation;
- beefing up UNPROFOR in Macedonia.

In addition, we would strongly warn the Bosnian Government of the need to extend the ceasefire and refrain from initiating large-scale hostilities, since this could force the departure of UNPROFOR and jeopardize our readiness to provide assistance to the Federation. We would fight Congressional efforts to lift the embargo unilaterally and seek to persuade the Bosnians that they are better off militarily by making do with a leaky arms embargo rather than forcing the issue of a formal lift.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

OVP advocated a similar approach, focusing on the long-term isolation of the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs and the strengthening of the outer ring of sanctions, while providing economic and other assistance to the Federation. For the isolation strategy to be effective, there would have to be increased resources and political commitment by us and the Europeans -- to field additional sanctions monitors on the Serbian-Bosnian border and in Croatia, and to induce better enforcement of sanctions against Serbia by the front-line states.

DOD favored shifting toward option 2, a more open posture of neutrality. While we would pursue many of the same steps as State proposes to contain the conflict, we would openly acknowledge that a settlement along the lines of the Contact Group plan is not attainable without U.S. actions that it is not in our interest to take. We would thus distance ourselves from the goal of achieving a better deal for the Bosnians and abandon or downgrade the importance of the Contact Group, making clear that it is up to the parties, not the international community, to find a mutually acceptable solution.

The U.S. Contact Group representative suggested an evolutionary approach, shifting gradually from option 1 to option 2. While we would not disavow the Contact Group plan or impose unfair terms on the Bosnians, we would attempt over time to bring them to the realization that they will have to settle for less. We would, however, seek to "maximize the minimum," i.e. try to get the Bosnians the best terms that the Bosnian Serbs will accept.

None of the Deputies advocated options 3 or 4: a long-term quarantine of Serbia would be difficult to sell to the Russians and Europeans; and renewed military pressure on the Serbs through lift and strike would likely lead to an Americanization of the conflict, even if pursued multilaterally.

The Director of Strategic Plans and Policy of the Joint Staff and the NSC staff, however, suggested that a staged multilateral lifting of the arms embargo (beginning with defensive weapons), in tandem with a last-chance effort to secure Bosnian Serb acceptance of the Contact Group plan, should remain under consideration in the event that UNPROFOR withdrawal and/or Congressional pressures push us toward option 4. Our Allies' interest in U.S. participation in UNPROFOR withdrawal gives us leverage to secure their acquiescence in multilateral lift. (The Russians would need to be bought off by means of extending additional sanctions relief to Milosevic.)

Another variant of Option 4 might also be considered: a threat by the U.S. and its Allies to withdraw UNPROFOR and lift the arms embargo multilaterally as a means of shocking the Serbs into negotiating on the basis of the Contact Group plan. In light of the hollowness of past Contact Group threats, however, we would have to demonstrate more convincingly our readiness to make good on the threat.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Can Containment Work? As noted, options 1 and 2 point to roughly the same concrete policy actions. They would make prevention of a new war and containment, rather than achieving a political settlement, our priority goal. They also have the same flaw: they ignore the fact that the Bosnians would rather fight than settle for the status quo, and they will not readily cooperate with a containment strategy. If the war escalates and Bosnian suffering once again dominates the headlines and CNN, Hill pressures to lift the arms embargo could become hard to manage.

If we are to prevent a new round of fighting and avoid a serious break with the Bosnians, we need to find additional positive incentives for the Bosnians to exercise restraint. These could include:

- massive economic assistance and political support to the Federation;
- measures to persuade the Bosnians that UNPROFOR is worth keeping, even if it means deferring a lifting of the arms embargo once again (e.g. deployment of additional troops to forcibly open the Blue Route to Sarajevo; a more aggressive effort to get our allies to toughen up UNPROFOR's rules of engagement throughout Bosnia; a return to NATO enforcement of the exclusion zones, etc.); and
- other steps to encourage a deferral of lift, such as a more robust program of military training (albeit one consistent with the arms embargo), intelligence support, etc.

Financial incentives alone will not likely sway the Bosnians, even if we are able to come up with serious money. The latter steps, however, would mean renewed frictions with our Allies and may be unattainable without, in the end, precipitating UNPROFOR's withdrawal. Threatening the Bosnians with punitive actions, on the other hand, would be politically indefensible.

In the final analysis, therefore, we may not be able to prevent the Bosnians from going on the offensive in the spring. The best case may be that the renewed fighting does not lead to any major Bosnian reverses and the current stalemate remains when winter returns. The worst case is that the Serbs respond by overrunning the eastern enclaves and strangling Sarajevo again. Although UNPROFOR countries may hunker down and not decide to withdraw even in the latter scenario, Congress may force the issue with unilateral lift.

FORMER YUGOSLAVIA POLICY REVIEW

Introduction

As we approach a potentially critical period in the Balkans over the next three months, now is the time to review the fundamental principles guiding our policy. U.S. policy has, in fact, had some success over the past two years in containing the spread of the war, reducing the level of violence, keeping relief supplies flowing to most areas, and maintaining cohesion with Allies and Russia. What we have been unable to produce is a political settlement in Bosnia or Croatia that rolls back Serb gains sufficiently to be acceptable to the Bosnians and Croats, and to be perceived as "fair" (much less "just") in moral terms.

The fundamental problem has been a lack of leverage: sanctions and political pressure have been insufficient to sway the Serbs, and our efforts to bring NATO air power to bear have come to naught. In Bosnia, after almost a year of effort, the Contact Group is becoming a spent force, with its unity increasingly strained. In Croatia, the Z-4 plan for a political solution is, for all intents and purposes, stillborn, and Tudjman's decision to eject UNPROFOR threatens to destroy even the limited economic confidence-building measures developed over the past year.

As the CIA paper makes clear, there is no "peace faction" among any of the parties, and Milosevic's willingness to pressure his Serb cousins is limited. If we stay on our present course, the prospects are for an escalation of the war in Bosnia and a new war in Croatia, with the potential unraveling of our limited achievements to date, and increased pressures for U.S. involvement. The differences between the optimistic and pessimistic scenarios are largely ones of timing and degree. And as the risk of war increases in Bosnia and Croatia, the dangers of spillover to other areas grow as well.

If the war escalates, the withdrawal of UNPROFOR from Croatia, Bosnia or both will become increasingly likely -- creating the prospect of U.S. troops on the ground in former Yugoslavia in a hostile environment, the outcome we have most sought to avoid. As international efforts founder, the Bosnians will be able to make an increasingly convincing case for lifting the arms embargo; yet the odds of bringing our Allies and, especially, the Russians along will remain low. Moreover, lifting the arms embargo, to be effective, entails the United States taking other actions that increase our involvement and responsibility.

Interests and Objectives

Throughout the conflict, we have sought to protect several core U.S. interests: maintaining our strategic relationship with key Allies and protecting the credibility of NATO; avoiding a conflict with Russia that could undermine our efforts to promote reform and international cooperation; preventing the spread of the Bosnian conflict into a wider Balkan war that could destabilize southeastern Europe and draw in U.S. allies; and ensuring that the use of force to change borders and acts of genocide do not become legitimate forms of behavior in post-Cold War Europe.

Along with these core interests, we have pursued a range of more specific objectives, but have never set clear priorities among them:

- To stop or limit the fighting.
- To maintain relief supplies and reduce human suffering.
- To prevent the establishment by force of a Greater Serbia.
- To achieve a negotiated settlement acceptable to all parties that reverses at least some Serb territorial conquests and preserves the territorial integrity and international identity of Bosnia, Croatia and other ex-Yugoslav states.
- To prevent the spread of conflict to Kosovo, Macedonia, Albania and beyond.
- To keep U.S. ground forces out except in the context of implementing a political settlement.

The tools we have applied have varied over time in response to events, and as our priorities have shifted: Until the end of 1994, we sought to use NATO military power to enforce UNSC resolutions and to put pressure on the Bosnian Serbs to settle on terms that provided a better deal for the Bosnian Government ("air power in the service of diplomacy"). After Bihac, however, we consciously shifted the emphasis to maintaining NATO cohesion, recognizing that this would erode U.S. and Alliance credibility and reduce further our negotiating leverage. Yet we did not scale back our political objectives to match our reduced leverage -- leading to the present diplomatic impasse.

The result has been charges of fecklessness and an erosion of confidence in U.S. leadership on other issues. Therefore, we now need to step back and confront these inherent contradictions:

- On the one hand, our own principles, as well as public and Congressional pressures, make it difficult to disengage and effectively abandon the Bosnians.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- On the other hand, we do not presently have the means to attain the political goal we have set -- negotiated settlements that deprive the Serbs of some of their ill-gotten gains -- and we have not been prepared to commit those means. Moreover, there is limited public support in the U.S. or in Europe for doing so.

Basic Strategic Choices

Many of our decisions over the next 2-3 months will be driven by events on the ground. But some of our choices will depend on where we want to go in the longer term. Therefore, before considering specific options, Principals need to decide our overall strategic direction and whether the course chosen is politically sustainable. This, in turn, requires deciding what are our priority interests and sticking with that decision in terms of committing the resources needed to attain our goals. The following, in broad terms, are basic approaches to be considered:

1. Continue our present policy: muddle through while supporting the Bosnians: Maintain the Contact Group and continue to seek a political solution that provides a better deal for the Bosnians, but not commit to increased military pressure on their behalf; rely for leverage on sanctions and efforts to isolate the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs (recognizing that these will be inadequate to the task). Seek to contain the fighting and humanitarian suffering to the extent possible, while maintaining Alliance cohesion. Keep UNPROFOR in place in essentially its present form (improve its effectiveness, but don't press it to take a more confrontational stance against the Serbs). Seek to postpone any lifting of the arms embargo and don't push for use of NATO air power, since this would precipitate UNPROFOR's withdrawal. Continue to sustain the Federation. Take additional measures in the front-line states to contain spillover of the conflict, such as beefing up UNPROFOR/Macedonia.

   - This would maintain European and Russian support, reduce the risks of deeper U.S. military involvement, and recognize that, absent such involvement, political settlements are not achievable in the foreseeable future.

   - The gap between our goal of a "fair" settlement and our unwillingness to provide the means to that end, however, would leave us vulnerable to charges of diplomatic fecklessness. It would be difficult to persuade the public and pro-Bosnian elements in the Congress that, over time, the maintenance of sanctions, a continued stalemate on the ground, and the solidity of the Federation will bring the Bosnian Serbs to accept a settlement along the lines of the

Contact Group plan, and the Krajina Serbs to accept autonomy within Croatia.

- The main weakness of this approach, however, is that the Bosnians and the Croatians are not prepared to play along: Both are ready to pursue the military option with renewed vigor over the coming months, putting UNPROFOR's presence in doubt. And the Bosnians will campaign for lift when the ceasefire ends. Our continued rhetorical support for their cause would make it difficult for us to oppose.

2. Adopt a policy of neutrality toward the terms of a settlement and focus on active containment of the conflict: Openly acknowledge that achieving a better solution for the Bosnians is not possible without U.S. actions that it is not in our interest to take. Apart from this shift in approach to the diplomatic track, take essentially the same actions as under the previous approach. Make clear we do not believe multilateral lift is politically attainable and strongly oppose Congressional pressures to lift unilaterally. Abandon Contact Group or suspend its activities, making clear that it is up to the parties, not the international community, to find a mutually acceptable solution. Promote periodic ceasefire agreements. Advise the Bosnians of the need to be realistic about the facts on the ground and agree to terms that acknowledge Serb preeminence (accept territorial outcomes short of 51:49, Serb Confederation with Belgrade; seek protection through links to Croatia, etc.).

   - This course would also maintain good relations with the Europeans, avoid a confrontation with Russia, and reduce the potential for U.S. military involvement. We would concentrate our efforts in areas where we have been able to achieve some success: reducing the violence, delivering humanitarian relief, maintaining the Muslim-Croat ceasefire and the Federation, and preventing the spread of the conflict outside of Bosnia and possibly Croatia. By distancing ourselves from the Bosnians' political agenda, we might have greater success in keeping UNPROFOR in place.

   - We would suffer harsh criticism from some quarters in the Congress and the public for abandoning the Bosnians and performing another flip-flop. We would need to make the case that it is not in U.S. interests to intervene unilaterally to ensure Bosnian victory, that we cannot gain European or Russian support for firmer measures to help the Bosnians, and that lift alone would probably make things worse for them in any case. We would want to appeal to the significant number of Congressmen whose support for lift is soft, and who are not keen on the deeper military involvement that a credible lift-and-strike policy would require.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Assuming we can ride out the initial storm, this approach would lower expectations and adjust public opinion to the reality of a continued conflict for which there may be no immediate solution. It would put the onus on the parties to negotiate directly with one another, rather than forcing us to explain repeated failed diplomatic initiatives backed by empty threats. It would force the Bosnians to accept the reality of defeat and the fact that they are destined to live surrounded by Serbs. It might even lead to a de facto indefinite cessation of serious hostilities, reducing both human suffering and public pressures for action.

- The problem with this approach, like the first, is that we may not be able to ride out the storm: the Bosnians may succeed in getting Congress to lift unilaterally, possibly with sufficient votes to override a Presidential veto. Moreover, we would, effectively, be acquiescing in Serb aggression, setting a dangerous precedent for the future.

3. Containment of Conflict and Long-Term Quarantine of Greater Serbia: Abandon efforts to negotiate a political settlement and reimpose full sanctions against Serbia for the long haul. Make clear we will refuse to recognize Serb conquests in Bosnia and Croatia and we will continue to treat Serbia as a pariah state until Serbs accept settlements that restore territorial integrity of Bosnia and Croatia. Refrain from military intervention, take laissez-faire approach to continued fighting among the parties. Concentrate on humanitarian aid, bolstering the Federation politically and economically, and containing spillover to other parts of the region. If UNPROFOR were to withdraw, this could be combined with a lift-and-leave strategy.

   - This approach would be analogous to our approach to Soviet domination of Central and Eastern Europe during the Cold War, in which we were prepared to wait for decades for a just outcome -- isolating one party while promoting free-market development in the other. It would be based, again, on a recognition that there is no available political solution, and avoid perpetuating false expectations that the international community can impose a settlement. But in contrast to the previous approach, it would be based as well on a judgment that Milosevic remains the problem rather than the solution, despite his recent attempts to play the peacemaker -- distinguishing the victim from the victimizer.

   - It is doubtful Russia would agree if we reimposed the sanctions noose around Serbia, however. We might agree with the Russians to disagree about Serbia, perhaps lifting or suspending some or all multilateral sanctions against the FRY -- but maintaining U.S. sanctions -- in exchange for agreement on continued, tightened sanctions against the Pale and Knin Serbs (but recognizing that Milosevic will try to undermine these to the extent he can get away with it).

- The front-line states' enforcement of sanctions would be difficult to sustain absent substantial financial compensation. Without such compensation, long-term continuation of the sanctions could actually have a destabilizing effect on the region overall. Moreover, this long-term approach could result in further Serb territorial expansion and prolong the humanitarian and refugee crisis for years to come.

- As with approaches 1 and 2, it is not clear we could sustain this course in the face of pressure from the Congress and the Bosnians.

4. Increased U.S. commitment in support of Bosnians, apply military pressure to compel Serb acceptance of a settlement: In theory, this could involve either: (a) returning to our 1994 approach: press for a more robust UNPROFOR that is prepared to use force against Serbs and make active use of NATO close air support; resume NATO enforcement of exclusion zones, and possibly establish additional exclusion zones; if these measures prove insufficient, withdraw UNPROFOR and implement a multilateral lift-and-strike strategy; or (b) proceeding directly to lift and strike, after helping UNPROFOR to withdraw. In practice, only (b) is feasible, since Allies will not agree to robust military actions while their vulnerable UNPROFOR forces remain in place.

   - This would align our policy with Congressional rhetoric and provide the means to back up our declared goals of helping the Bosnians and thwarting Serb ambitions. It would lead to increased fighting, at least in the short term, but might in time give the Bosnians the capability to recover territory and, by altering the situation on the battlefield, convince the Serbs to agree to an equitable political settlement.

   - It would, however, create significant strains in our relations with our Allies and the Russians. Our readiness to participate in NATO extraction of UNPROFOR could provide the leverage to win Allied support in the UNSC for multilateral lift. But preventing a Russian veto would be more difficult. It would, at a minimum, require lifting sanctions against Serbia at the same time (although this may be necessary in any event to encourage Milosevic not to resume military support to his Serb cousins).

   - Moreover, withdrawing UNPROFOR and explicitly committing to produce a Bosnian success would hasten the onset of the situation we have sought most to avoid, the deployment of U.S. ground forces, leaving us with the responsibility for organizing relief supplies and protecting the enclaves. And lift - whether unilateral or multilateral -- would commit us to arming and training the Bosnians for an indefinite period, as well as providing air cover, even if we tried to set a time limit on our support. In short, it could Americanize the war, with little likelihood of hastening a political settlement.

Near-Term Decisions

The foregoing choices pertain mainly to the decisions we will need to take in the coming months on Bosnia. In Croatia, the situation may be more urgent, and our goal more straightforward: to prevent a new war over the Krajina. To this end, we need to be clear at the outset that we do not support Croatian military action to reassert control over the Krajina Serbs, and increase pressure on Tudjman to retain at least some portion of UNPROFOR interposed between the warring parties in the separation zone. We cannot go too far in imposing punitive measures on Tudjman, however, given the importance of Tudjman's support for the Federation and our need to use Croatian territory to support any UN/NATO/U.S. operation in Bosnia. We must above all avoid driving Tudjman into an unholy alliance with Milosevic to carve up Bosnia.

Finally, to the extent that we decide to focus more on containment of spillover, beefing up or replacing UNPROFOR in Macedonia would take on greater urgency alongside the decisions that we will need to make with respect to Bosnia and Croatia.

With these considerations in mind, the following is a sketch of the options on which decisions will be needed over the next three months.

Options: Croatia

Near Term:

- Make renewed push (in tandem with Germans and other Allies) within next 10 days to convince Tudjman to extend UNPROFOR with reduced mandate (UNPROFOR Lite).
- Fallback: Press for one-time extension of March 31/June 30 deadlines to allow more time for negotiations.

  Issue: Whether to threaten limited punitive actions at this stage? Or should we offer Tudjman a carrot?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

If these initial efforts fail:

- Begin Step Two prepositioning for UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia no later than March 8 (will require Congressional consultations and decisions on funding).
- Offer new, high-level international negotiator to negotiate Croatian settlement, in tandem with final push for acceptance of UNPROFOR Lite.
- Agree in principle to Croatian proposal for international task force (ITF) to replace UNPROFOR that would monitor Croatian-Bosnian border on condition that Tudjman agrees to extend ceasefire, agrees the force will also police the separation zone, and agrees to negotiate with Krajina Serbs on basis of principles in Z-4 plan.

  Issues: Is ITF feasible? (Border force would be highly vulnerable to attack or hostage-taking by Bosnian and Krajina Serb forces, who have traditionally viewed such a force as threat to their survival, and whose acceptance would be a sine qua non. Allies would look to U.S. to join the force. But some token presence on the border may be the fig leaf Tudjman needs to back down on ejection of UNPROFOR; Krajina Serbs may accept if it is only way to keep international forces in separation zone.)

  Who would comprise the force? (Unarmed civilian monitors? Joint international-Croatian-Krajina Serb police force? NATO? WEU, backed by U.S. air support -- but recognizing that effectiveness would be limited without TACPs?)

Medium Term:

- Withdraw UNPROFOR from Croatia

  Issues: Nature of U.S. participation?

  How to discourage Tudjman from using NATO forces as cover for early offensive (sanctions or other punitive steps? carrots?).

  How to deter Krajina Serbs from seizing vacated UNPROFOR positions or threatening NATO forces (air strike threat?)

- Introduce civilian monitors to replace UNPROFOR (e.g. OSCE)

Long Term (post-UNPROFOR withdrawal):

- Contain fighting: Establish no-fly zone in Croatia? Other measures?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Decide whether to let Tudjman fend for himself (allowing possible Serb victory) or to provide limited support, despite our warnings that he will be on his own.

Options: Bosnia

Near Term:

- Keep Plan B on the table.

  Issues: If so, for how long? Possible modifications/ extensions that aren't sweeteners -- e.g. put forward detailed proposal on constitutional arrangements for future Bosnian Union?)

- Consider staged or scaled-back Plan B -- i.e. ask Milosevic to identify the steps he would take in "partial recognition" of Bosnia and Croatia, determine whether they could be linked to limited sanctions relief.

  Issues: What could Milosevic do beyond tightening border closure to justify sanctions relief? (We could not justify additional relief for tightening a border that should be sealed already. Possibilities: close the "back door" to Croatia; cooperate with the War Crimes Tribunal; recognize Bosnia's border and territorial integrity but not the Sarajevo Government.)

  Should we take parallel steps in support of Bosnians to reduce Bosnian/Congressional criticism -- e.g. IMET, other training for Bosnians?

- Continue efforts to isolate Pale irrespective of Plan B: increase border monitors; close Krajina back door.

- Consider whether to reduce or end the activity of the Contact Group as such, in order to emphasize the need for the parties themselves to undertake territorial and constitutional discussions. (This would permit private or individual mediators to operate.) Or agree to French international conference without prior agreement on mutual recognition?

- Explore efforts to increase international support for the Federation: material assistance and political support (envoys to and from, participation in international conferences, agreements such as our proposed 505 agreement, etc.)

- Approach the UN to reconsider its decision not to expand UNPROFOR with the troops already offered (i.e. urge UN to increase UNPROFOR numerically to enable it to deliver humanitarian assistance more effectively, especially along the Blue Route, as opposed to changing its ROE).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Medium Term:

Decision depends on the choice of overall strategic approach as described above:

- Muddle through, continue to support Bosnians rhetorically, continue diplomatic efforts, but focus on containment.
- Shift to policy of neutrality toward terms of settlement and active containment of conflict; end or suspend Contact Group activities, acknowledge we cannot produce better deal for Bosnians.
- Containment of conflict and long-term quarantine of Greater Serbia.
- Renewed push for military measures in support of Bosnians: withdraw UNPROFOR, multilateral lift and strike

Long Term:

- Maintain support for Federation to forestall Muslim-Croat splits. Intensify isolation of Pale and Knin Serbs.
- Maintain support for War Crimes Tribunal.
- Withdraw UNPROFOR, lift the arms embargo, with lift possibly implemented in stages (beginning with defensive weapons) and tied to "final offer" to accept Contact Group plan.

  Issue: Are we prepared to lift unilaterally if Allies support us in UNSC but Russians veto? Alternatives to lift?

- Abandon support for lift, take tough line with Congress and Bosnians, stick with one of the containment options.

Options: Containing Spillover

- Beef up or replace UNPROFOR/Macedonia

  Issues: When and how? (Enlarge existing force under UN command? Replace with NATO division?)

- Continue efforts to defuse Greece/FYROM dispute.
- Shore up outer wall of sanctions against Serbia.
- Expand bilateral aid/infrastructure programs in south Balkans.
- Expand bilateral military cooperation and economic cooperation with Albania, Bulgaria, Macedonia.
- High-level visits to front-line states.

DCI Interagency Balkan Task Force — 24 February 1995

The Balkans: The Next Three Months 3.5c

Fighting is likely to resume this spring because Croatia and Bosnia do not accept the status quo, believe that they can gain political and territorial concessions from Serbs only through military force, and are highly skeptical of the international community's efforts to forge an equitable peace. Fighting is more likely to break out first in Bosnia in March with the collapse of the cessation of hostilities agreement. The scope and intensity of this could influence President Tudjman's calculations on regaining the Krajina by force, but Tudjman's decision on the renewal of conflict there will be taken independently of fighting in Bosnia. Clashes are likely by April or May in conjunction with the UNPROFOR pullout. In a second, less likely scenario, a combination of factors could postpone the fighting until later this year but not alter the deep clashes of interest. In a third scenario, all the warring factions would have to make fundamental changes to their political positions--even less likely in the near to mid term--in order for there to be real movement toward a stable peace in the region. 3.5c

Current Balkans leaders are pursuing irreconcilable demands that make even the beginning of a meaningful peace process in the next three months unlikely. At most, one or more of the key actors in the two major zones of conflict might be convinced to postpone military action. Postponement, however, is not necessarily a way station on the road to peace. Only a reordering of demands or a significant shift in the military situation on the ground would set the stage for a renewed effort to forge a lasting peace in the region. 3.5c

The Key Actors: What Drives Them?

Croatia: Guided by a vision of his personal historical role, mounting nationalist/political pressures which he has helped generate, and frustration with the international community, President Tudjman is now prepared to initiate large-scale military action to reintegrate the Krajina into Croatia. He is encouraged by claims of military superiority from his generals and his own belief that Serbian President Milosevic will not intervene. We do not have evidence Tudjman is working with a specific time schedule; however, having taken the bit in his teeth, it is unlikely he will stall for long or accept merely paper changes in UNPROFOR's mandate. There is no significant peace faction in the Croatian leadership. 3.5c

Krajina Serbs: Despite fractious personal differences, the Krajina Serb leadership adamantly refuses any form of reintegration, including the limited "autonomy" Zagreb is willing to offer. They will fight fiercely to protect their homeland and could escalate localized Croatian attacks by shelling major Croatian cities. If attacked, they expect help from the Bosnian Serbs and, in extremis, from Belgrade. There is no significant peace faction in Knin. 3.5c

Bosnian Government: Bosnian leaders firmly believe that they can regain territory from the Bosnian Serbs and preserve the concept of a unified Bosnia within its internationally recognized boundaries only by military pressure. They are increasingly confident of their own military capabilities and see the tide swinging in their favor as they look out several years. There is no significant politically organized opposition within the Muslim community to this vision. The Bosnian Croats are largely satisfied with the territory they now control and take their guidance from Zagreb, not Sarajevo. The Herzegovinian hardliners leading the Bosnian Croats ultimately hope to be integrated into a Greater Croatia, a vision that Tudjman does not discourage. 3.5c

Bosnian Serbs: Bosnian Serb leaders will accept nothing less than an independent state as an interim measure toward the creation of an ill-defined "Greater Serbia." They are willing to give up some of the territory they now control to reach an agreement, but until then will fight to keep what they have. They are committed to helping the Krajina Serbs. If pressed by Bosnian Government forces, they might also consider a major military campaign aimed at dealing the Bosnian Government a severe defeat. Although some divisions among leaders are now being publicized, even those advocating acceptance of the Contact Group plan agree with Karadzic on driving a hard bargain on territory and independence for a Bosnian Serb state. Army Commander Mladic despises Karadzic but also shares his goal for an independent Serbian Bosnia with ties to Serbia. 3.5c

Serbia: President Milosevic continues to be a cornerstone to a settlement but at the same time is only a secondary player with limited influence on those he helped into power in Pale and Knin. Milosevic is driven by a strong personal desire to remain in power. He seeks to end sanctions but not at the cost of important political values. He continues to support--for political if not necessarily personal reasons--the concept of a "Greater Serbia," which makes it unlikely he could recognize Croatia and Bosnia or refuse help to the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs if they appeared to be on the verge of serious setbacks. In the short run, he is unable, not just unwilling, to compel either the Krajina Serb or Bosnian Serb leaders to make compromises that they believe are not in their interest. There is no significant peace party in Serbia. 3.5c

Russia: Moscow's overall objectives will be to maintain an influential role in the international decision-making process on the Balkans as the Contact Group process wanes, while trying to keep the conflict contained and minimizing NATO's role. Tactically, Russian leaders will want to increase Russian leverage and head off all domestic criticism by pressing for full sanctions relief for Serbia. Moscow has limited influence with Belgrade--and even less with Pale--but the Russians have the capacity to play a spoiler role. They may pose obstacles to any international actions if they believe that the West is not accounting for Russian interests. 3.5c

EU Contact Group Members: Fearing renewed violence and a broader Balkan conflict, the European Union members of the Contact Group are desperate to keep the negotiating process alive but are increasingly frustrated with the intransigence of the feuding parties. Germany, Britain, and France--which holds the EU presidency and has the largest troop contingent in the former Yugoslavia--will focus on offering incentives for peace, wooing Zagreb with the prospect of EU aid and Belgrade with the promise of lifting sanctions. The EU members so far do not have a unified strategy for dealing with the renewal of full-scale war in Bosnia, according to various sources. Despite differing views, European Contact Group members agree on the need for Contact Group unity and are likely to maintain a coordinated position among themselves under French leadership. 3.5c

Renewed Fighting

It is likely that fighting will resume in Bosnia in the next two months, and clashes could then follow quickly in Croatia.

- The Bosnian Government has clearly focused on resupplying, reequipping and reorganizing its forces during the four-month cessation of hostilities (COH) in preparation for launching additional attacks to retake territory in central Bosnia. The Bosnian Serbs also believe that fighting will resume and are taking steps to increase military pressure on the Bihac enclave.

- The Bihac enclave will be the likely focal point of fighting for most of March as the Government V Corps clashes with Krajina Serb and rebel Muslim forces--which did not sign the COH agreement--supported by the Bosnian Serbs. Major gains by either faction around Bihac would probably cause the fighting to spread elsewhere in Bosnia, as the losing faction would attempt to pressure the other by attacking at other points.

- Fighting will probably increase in the rest of Bosnia by late March or early April as the weather improves--temperatures rise into the mid-50s--and the warring factions begin to jockey for military advantage prior to the end of the COH on 30 April. In 1994, fighting picked up substantially in April as the government launched a series of attacks in central Bosnia and the Serbs responded by assaulting Gorazde.

- The Bosnian Serbs will probably make a push for new talks in late April and call for an extension of the COH agreement in an attempt to preempt a government attack. The Bosnian Government may accept additional talks under international pressure but will probably reject any extension of the COH agreement.

- The return of warmer, drier weather by May will probably lead to general fighting throughout Bosnia. Government forces will probably launch a series of local attacks--following their strategy of last year--especially in central and northern Bosnia. Government forces will probably make some territorial gains, as the Bosnian Serbs are stretched thin and essentially remain cut off from Serbia. Serb strategy has been to respond to any government attack with an overwhelming offensive--preferably against an isolated or poorly defended enclave--to press the government to abandon its offensive. The Bosnian Serbs, however, will be reluctant to commit their forces fully to a Bosnian offensive, because some may be needed to reinforce the Krajina Serbs in Croatia.

- The resumption of fighting will spark renewed discussion of the need to remove UNPROFOR from Bosnia. Heavy fighting in Bosnia at the same time as an UNPROFOR pullout from Croatia in May and June will spark calls in Paris and London to move toward a withdrawal before winter.

- A major resumption of hostilities in Bosnia, which included an all-out Bosnian Serb effort to take the eastern enclaves, could put at risk nearly 120,000 Muslims who would try to flee to the nearest Muslim-controlled territory. 3.5c

The fighting in Bosnia could influence the prospects for renewed clashes in Croatia, but Tudjman's decision on a renewal of the conflict there will be taken independently of the fighting in Bosnia.

- President Tudjman has ordered the UN to begin withdrawing from Croatia after 31 March and complete withdrawal by 30 June. The Croatians expect to come under increasingly heavy international pressure in the coming month to extend the UN mandate. They appear prepared to stand firm and exact a high price: an international monitoring force--possibly including forces from NATO or Contact Group states--on the Croatian border with Bosnia and Serbia, recognition of Croatia's international border by Belgrade, and demonstrable progress on reintegration of Serb-held territory. In late March or early April, Tudjman may make a push for new talks with the Krajina Serbs, in hopes that the UN pullout will pressure the Serbs to make additional concessions.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

3.5c

Postponed Fighting

While the differences between the warring factions in Croatia and Bosnia make another round of fighting likely in the next three months, a combination of factors could postpone the fighting until later this year.

- Introduction of a follow-on peacekeeping force could delay renewed fighting in Croatia. Zagreb will only accept a new force that will take control of Croatia's border with Serbia and Bosnia. The Krajina Serbs are unlikely to accept such a force unless it also is charged with patrolling the current cease-fire line. If both factions compromised on this issue and some minimal international force--probably from the WEU or NATO--were in place in April before UNPROFOR begins withdrawing, fighting could be forestalled while a new round of negotiations took place.

- Zagreb will be reluctant to launch a major attack while substantial UN forces are still in Serb-held territories. If the UN withdrawal in April and May is particularly slow and a large number of peacekeepers remain in the region, Croatia may opt to postpone major military action until the fall, after the tourist season.

- If Croatia is seriously threatened with major economic sanctions in response to military attacks on the Krajina Serbs, Zagreb may delay military action until the international community's focus wanes or until Croatia can point to a serious Serb "provocation" to justify further military operations. 3.5c

Heavy fighting would be postponed in Bosnia if the Bosnian Government decided to delay its likely spring offensives.

- Heavy spring rains could impede resupply and movement of government forces, and they may wait until the drier months of June or July before launching major attacks.

- Government forces may wish to take advantage of the impact on the Serbs of renewed fighting in Croatia. Under such a scenario, they might postpone their attacks until the Bosnian Serbs are heavily engaged in the fighting in the Krajina, probably in June or later.

- The government could rethink its plans for military operations if serious negotiations were about to take place. These would require true concessions from the Bosnian Serbs prior to the start of talks, including removal of forces from key areas such as Sarajevo, and some form of acceptance of the original contact group plan. 3.5c

Movement Towards Peace

Despite five years of effort, the international community has not been able to affect the fundamental clashes of interests in the region. Unless the UN, NATO or some other outside actor is prepared for a massive long-term infusion of economic and military resources into the region, such changes are not likely in the near term. If all the warring factions made fundamental changes to their political positions, we would expect to see some of the following signs of movement towards agreement during the next three months.

- Croatia would have to accept the extension of the UNPROFOR mandate or the deployment of a new force that monitored the current cease-fire line by April in order to prevent renewed clashes--especially in the zone of separation this spring.

- By late spring, a new round of negotiations would have to begin, with both sides making major concessions. Croatia and the Krajina Serbs would have to be prepared to redraw existing international borders allowing the Serbs to live outside Croatian control. Alternatively, the complete Krajina Serb leadership would have to be replaced, and probably a substantial portion of the local Serb population removed to Bosnia or Serbia, leaving the Krajina inside Croatia.

- Negotiations could be based on a slightly less extreme scenario if Zagreb accepted significantly more "autonomy" for the Krajina Serbs than is contained in the Z-4 plan and the Krajina Serbs gave up the idea of any "special links" with Belgrade. 3.5c

Movement towards a solution in Bosnia would almost certainly be tied to developments in Croatia, but any movement towards peace there would also rely on a number of unprecedented developments.

- Initially, the Bosnian Government and Bosnian Serbs would have to accept an extension of the current cessation of hostilities accord after 30 April and begin implementing all of its measures, including the separation of forces and the deployment of peacekeepers between the warring factions.

- To support the talks, the Bosnian Government would have to abandon its goal of maintaining a unified Bosnia. The Serbs would have to back down from their plans for association with Serbia.

- Effective enforcement of the arms embargo, especially the cut-off of Iranian arms deliveries, could make Sarajevo more receptive to a diplomatic settlement.

- As stated earlier, Belgrade's recognition of Croatia and Bosnia is likely to lead to an increase in fighting in the short term. If the Krajina Serbs and

MR. PRESIDENT

Attached is a decision memo from Tony Lake on U.S. participation in NATO's "Step Two" prepositioning of communications systems for use in possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR troops from Croatia. Step Two would involve agreement to deploy some 450 U.S. military personnel in Europe, 320 of them in Croatia -- though actual deployment would be subject to a further decision of the NAC.

Pros: Our participation would send the right signal about U.S. leadership in NATO. Our allies' forces on the ground are in danger and we must not be seen obstructing NATO military planning needed to protect them. Cons: prepositioning could embolden Tudjman to keep refusing any UNPROFOR successor force, moving us toward commitment of a large-scale ground force to help extract UNPROFOR, and in turn leading to a wider war.

Our allies would prefer to keep UNPROFOR in place and are reluctant to proceed with Step Two deployment at this time, fearing this could hasten UNPROFOR's departure and open the way for air strikes and lifting the arms embargo. But deployment may become unavoidable.

While recognizing the real risks, NSC Principals recommend approval of U.S. participation in Step Two. Leon and George concur, though George is concerned that this might trigger a War Powers debate. We have forwarded a copy of the memo to the Vice President. If you approve, State and Defense will consult with Congress next week before informing NATO of our decision.

MR. PRESIDENT

Attached is a decision memo from Tony Lake on U.S. participation in NATO's "Step Two" prepositioning of communications systems for possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR troops from Croatia. Step Two would involve agreement to deploy some 450 U.S. military personnel in Europe, 320 of them in Croatia -- though actual deployment would be subject to a further decision of the NAC. (Our allies, worried that Step Two could provoke UNPROFOR's withdrawal, are reluctant for now to go ahead with deployment. But deployment may become unavoidable.)

Pros: Our participation would send the right signal about U.S. leadership in NATO. Our allies' forces on the ground are in danger and we must support NATO military planning needed to protect them. Cons: Prepositioning could embolden Tudjman to continue refusing any UNPROFOR successor force, moving us toward commitment of a large-scale ground force to help extract UNPROFOR, which in turn would open the way to a wider war.

While recognizing the serious risks involved, NSC Principals recommend that we agree to U.S. participation in Step Two. Leon concurs, as does George, though George is concerned about whether this move could trigger a War Powers debate in Congress. If you agree, State and Defense will begin consultations with Congress next week, before informing NATO of our decision.

ACTION

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: U.S. Participation in Step Two of NATO Prepositioning for UNPROFOR Withdrawal

Purpose

To obtain your agreement for U.S. forces' participation in Step Two of NATO prepositioning for UNPROFOR withdrawal.

Background

Principals met Friday to discuss U.S. participation in Step Two of NATO's ongoing efforts to prepare to support a possible UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia or Croatia. We are seeking your approval to inform NATO that the United States agrees to support Step Two of NATO's efforts to preposition communications systems and operators in Croatia. Step Two includes deployment of approximately 450 U.S. military personnel within Europe, including 320 to government-controlled areas of Croatia, although the timing of the actual deployment of the prepositioning force will be subject to a subsequent NAC decision.

NATO and UNPROFOR military planning for UNPROFOR's possible withdrawal from Bosnia has been underway for several months. With UNPROFOR withdrawal a possibility this spring, NATO began to take action in February by executing Step One, which initiated the process of establishing an enhanced theater communications system. No U.S. forces were involved. With Step One well underway, NATO is seeking approval to execute Step Two, which will deploy military personnel to set up and operate the communications system.

Prepositioning is a necessary step to support a large operation. Nearly 1800 personnel are involved, including the 450 Americans. The total NATO cost for prepositioning is estimated at $11.3M and comes from existing NATO funds (the U.S. pays 25 percent), although we will pay our own transportation and sustainment costs. An orderly withdrawal of UNPROFOR cannot begin until eight weeks after the prepositioning occurs; thus Shali argues that delaying a decision will put Allied forces at risk.

This decision would carry significant risks, even though it would send the right signal about U.S. leadership in NATO, support our military leaders and maximize military preparedness. In the worst case, it could set in motion a series of events leading to UNPROFOR's withdrawal and renewed fighting, with NATO and U.S. forces left on the ground to deal with the aftermath. Tudjman might welcome the NATO deployment as a stepping stone to a larger NATO and U.S. ground role as UNPROFOR's replacement. Emboldened by NATO and U.S. forces in Croatia, Tudjman could become even more intransigent on accepting an UNPROFOR successor force. This could move us closer to an actual commitment of ground forces for a large-scale operation to extract UNPROFOR, the exact dimensions of which will remain unknown until the plan is completed in about two weeks. With NATO on the ground, or positioned to extract UNPROFOR, the decision to withdraw UNPROFOR will be easier for the UN and troop contributors to make. If they withdraw, renewed fighting is a certainty and the wider war we feared will have been facilitated by NATO's deployment into Croatia. While we anticipate a subsequent NAC decision will be taken to deploy the forces into Croatia, with each incremental step, it becomes more unlikely that our decision will be reversible. In fact, if NATO decides to conduct the operation, large-scale U.S. participation is inevitable.

Not all Allies support prepositioning, so our decision may prove academic for the time being. The French have been the most adamant, calling for a delay on the grounds that putting NATO personnel on the ground in Croatia would undermine efforts to change Tudjman's mind. Other Allies have voiced similar concerns and fear that NATO prepositioning will set in train the steps described above, leading to UNPROFOR's withdrawal and the wider war that diplomatic efforts aim to prevent. They also see UNPROFOR's departure as the opening to lifting the arms embargo and accompanying air strikes. Allies prefer to keep UNPROFOR in place and muddle through.

After balancing the risks against the military requirements, Principals decided that, because of the danger to our Allies who have forces on the ground and to sustain our leadership of the Alliance, we should make the commitment to support Step Two. This will permit the personnel to be organized and trained, with their actual deployment subject to a further decision by the NAC. Principals agreed that we will not press those Allies who are reluctant to execute Step Two but that it is important that the U.S. not be seen as obstructing NATO military planning needed to reduce the risks to Allied forces.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Principals also concluded that, in view of the Congressional interest that the deployment of 320 U.S. military personnel to Croatia will generate, consultations must be completed before informing NATO of our decision. We would seek to cast this as a limited, precautionary move that is being taken without prejudice to a possible future decision to help in a NATO-led withdrawal of UNPROFOR. We would make clear that we intend to consult closely with the Congress on the latter (more formidable) undertaking and seek prior Congressional approval of the necessary funding. If you agree, State and Defense will brief leadership and key committee chairs early next week.

RECOMMENDATION

That you authorize U.S. representatives at NATO to support Step Two prepositioning, subject to consultations with Congress, and with the actual deployment of U.S. personnel to Croatia subject to a subsequent NAC and Principals' decision.

Summary of Conclusions

Croatia: Mandate for a New UN Peacekeeping Force

1. Principals reviewed the progress of efforts underway at the United Nations to enact a UN Security Council resolution containing the mandate for a new UN peacekeeping force in Croatia, as well as companion resolutions on peacekeeping forces in Bosnia-Herzegovina and the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia. Principals agreed that Ambassador Albright should be provided flexibility to secure passage of a framework resolution for the new Croatian force before UNPROFOR's mandate expires on March 31, recognizing that the UN will need to conduct further consultations with the parties during the first weeks of April to iron out the details of implementation. Principals discussed the value of meetings at the UN involving the Krajina Serbs and the

Contact Group, as proposed by Russia, and agreed that such meetings would be counterproductive to ongoing efforts. (Action: USUN/State) (S)

Bosnia: Preventing Renewed Fighting

2. Principals agreed that we should continue our efforts to prevent or contain a reescalation of fighting in Bosnia as the end of the cessation of hostilities approaches. Noting the Bosnian Government's request for a more robust UNPROFOR posture before agreeing to extend its mandate, Principals agreed that we should immediately approach the British and the French on measures to make UNPROFOR more robust. To this end, Principals requested that a strategy be developed to begin immediate consultations with the British and the French, using the menu of options in the OSD paper "Options for Bosnia -- Fighting Escalates in the Spring." (Action: State with DoD input) Principals also directed that the Bosnian Government be informed of our efforts with Allies to encourage a more robust UNPROFOR posture, in order to help secure passage of a new UNPROFOR mandate in Bosnia. (Action USUN/State) (S)

Sanctions

3. Principals discussed options to tighten the "outer ring" of sanctions against Serbia-Montenegro and the "inner ring" of sanctions against the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs. They decided not to press at this time for a general tightening of the "outer ring" of sanctions, given the need to focus allied attention on measures to make UNPROFOR more robust, and taking into account Bosnian President Izetbegovic's request that we extend phase-one sanctions relief for a third 100-day period. They did agree, however, that we should explore steps necessary for NATO and WEU naval forces to assist in enforcing a pre-verification system on Albanian oil imports, in order to reduce the transshipment of oil to Serbia-Montenegro through Albania. (Action: State/OVP) (S)

4. Principals decided that we should tighten the "inner ring" of sanctions by strengthening sanctions enforcement against the Bosnian and Krajina Serbs and by working with Croatia to close the "back door." This effort should be delayed for one week, however, while we attempt to persuade Allies to make UNPROFOR more robust. (Action: State/OVP) (S)

E.0.12356: DECL: OADR
TAGS: PREL, UNSC, BK, HR, SR,
SUBJECT: MARCH 24: CONTACT GROUP PLUS ITALY INFORMALLY
-- CIRCULATES TEXTS OF THREE RESOLUTIONS TO OTHER
-- MEMBERS OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL, SYG'S REPORT
-- CIRCULATED TO COUNCIL MEMBERS, CROATS GIVE US
-- PROPOSALS FOR CHANGES TO THE RESOLUTIONS

1. ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ ENTIRE TEXT.

2. COUNSELORS FROM THE CONTACT GROUP PLUS ITALY MET MORNING OF MARCH 24 TO CONTINUE THEIR DISCUSSION OF THE THREE RESOLUTIONS ON THE UN PEACEKEEPING PRESENCE IN CROATIA, BOSNIA AND FYROM. SOME PROGRESS WAS MADE IN RESOLVING THE REMAINING BRACKETS. THE GERMANS PRESENTED A NEW OPERATIVE PARAGRAPH FOR THE RESOLUTIONS ON CROATIA AND BOSNIA CALLING ON MEMBER STATES TO RESPOND FAVORABLY TO REQUESTS FOR ASSISTANCE FROM THE SECRETARY GENERAL. (OPERATIVE PARAGRAPH 9 IN THE FIRST TEXT BELOW AND OPERATIVE PARAGRAPH 8 IN THE SECOND.) THIS WAS A SIGNIFICANT WEAKENING OF EARLIER GERMAN LANGUAGE WHICH CALLED ON STATES TO RESPOND FAVORABLY FOR REQUESTS FOR ASSISTANCE WITH WITHDRAWAL, AND CONTAINED LANGUAGE USED IN PREVIOUS RESOLUTIONS TO IMPLY ASSISTANCE FROM NATO. THE GERMANS

ADMITTED THAT THEY NEEDED A PARAGRAPH CALLING ON STATES TO PROVIDE ASSISTANCE IN ORDER TO COUNTER DOMESTIC OPPOSITION TO GERMAN MILITARY PARTICIPATION IN ANY NATO FORCE SENT TO HELP THE UN WITHDRAW FROM CROATIA OR BOSNIA.

3. THE FRENCH CONTINUED TO INSIST THAT THE RESOLUTIONS CONTAIN A REFERENCE TO RESOLUTION 958. AFTER THE RUSSIANS OBJECTED TO A DIRECT REFERENCE, THE FRENCH AGREED TO INQUIRE WHETHER PARIS COULD ACCEPT INCLUDING A REFERENCE TO RESOLUTION 958 IN PREAMBULAR PARAGRAPH 1 OF THE SECOND RESOLUTION.

4. LATER THAT AFTERNOON MEMBERS OF THE CONTACT GROUP PLUS ITALY CIRCULATED TEXTS OF THE THREE RESOLUTIONS FOUND BELOW TO ALL OTHER MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL. AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT REVIEWED THE KEY POINTS OF THE TEXTS ON CROATIA AND BOSNIA. SUBSTANTIVE NEGOTIATIONS OVER THE TEXTS WILL LIKELY BEGIN ON MARCH 27 WHEN THE CONTACT GROUP WILL LIKELY MEET WITH THE NON-ALIGNED CAUCUS. THE CZECHS INDICATED THAT THEY WERE ANXIOUS TO CO-SPONSOR ALL THREE DRAFTS.

5. THE SYG'S REPORT WAS GIVEN TO MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL DURING THE AFTERNOON OF MARCH 24. THE REPORT STATES THAT AN AGREEMENT ON THE DETAILS OF A NEW MANDATE AND THE MODALITIES OF THE UN PEACEKEEPING OPERATION REQUIRES ADDITIONAL WORK. THE GAP BETWEEN THE GOC AND KNIN SERBS ON THE ROLE AND FUNCTIONS OF THE NEW FORCE IN CROATIA REMAINS WIDE AND THE SYG WAS THEREFORE NOT IN A POSITION TO ADVISE THE COUNCIL THAT KNIN WOULD OFFER THEIR PRACTICAL COOPERATION WITH THE FORCE. NEVERTHELESS, THE REPORT STATES THAT THE BASIS EXISTS FOR AN AGREEMENT THAT THE MANDATE OF THE NEW FORCE WOULD BE BASED ON THE FOLLOWING FUNCTIONS:

-- SUPPORT FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF THE MARCH 29 CEASEFIRE AGREEMENT AND THE DECEMBER 2 ECONOMIC AGREEMENT, AND;

-- IMPLEMENTATION OF THOSE ELEMENTS OF THE VANCE PLAN WHICH ARE ACCEPTED BY BOTH PARTIES AS HAVING CONTINUING RELEVANCE. THESE WOULD INCLUDE A UN PRESENCE ALONG CROATIA'S INTERNATIONAL BORDERS, ASSISTANCE TO REFUGEES AND DISPLACED PERSONS, PROTECTION OF MINORITIES, MINE CLEARANCE, AND CONVOY ASSISTANCE.

6. THE REPORT EMPHASIZES THAT CRUCIAL DIFFERENCES REMAIN BETWEEN ZAGREB AND KNIN REGARDING DETAILS OF THE MANDATE. IT RECOMMENDS THAT UNPROFOR BE REPLACED BY THREE SEPARATE BUT INTERLINKED PEACEKEEPING OPERATIONS TO BE KNOWN AS UN PEACE FORCE - 1 FOR CROATIA, UN PEACE FORCE -2 FOR BOSNIA, AND UN PEACE FORCE - 3 FOR FYROM. EACH WOULD HAVE THEIR OWN COMMANDER AND CIVILIAN CHIEF OF MISSION WHO WOULD REPORT TO A SINGLE SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE AND THEATER FORCE COMMANDER.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

7. CROATIAN PERMREP NOBILO ASKED FOR A MEETING WITH AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT TO PRESENT A LIST OF PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE RESOLUTION ESTABLISHING A NEW PEACEKEEPING OPERATION IN CROATIA. NOBILO SAID THE GOC WOULD INSIST THAT THE NAME OF THE NEW FORCE CONTAIN THE WORD "CROATIA", AND THAT THE RESOLUTION CONTAIN A REFERENCE TO RESOLUTION 820. FURTHER, CHANGES IN PARAGRAPH 3 (D) WERE "ESSENTIAL". AMBASSADOR ALBRIGHT SAID THAT WE WOULD STUDY THE CROATIAN PROPOSALS. SHE EMPHASIZED THAT WE WANTED TO WORK WITH THE CROATS, BUT THAT OPPOSITION FROM OTHER MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL MADE SOME OF THEM NON-STARTERS.

8. COMMENT: THE COUNCIL WILL DISCUSS THE SYG'S REPORT ON MARCH 27. THE CONTACT GROUP PLUS ITALY WILL LIKELY RECONVENE TO CONTINUE DISCUSSING THE TEXT AND MEET WITH THE NON-ALIGNED CAUCUS FOR AN INITIAL EXCHANGE OF VIEWS. END COMMENT.

9. BEGIN TEXTS OF RESOLUTIONS:

RESOLUTION I: CREATING A NEW UN PEACEKEEPING FORCE IN CROATIA

THE SECURITY COUNCIL,

UNITED NATIONS
New York

Your Excellency,

I have to draw your attention to the latest in a series of grave incidents in the occupied territories of Croatia in Eastern Slavonia. According to the information available, the military forces of the "Army of Yugoslavia (AJ)" have made an incursion deep into the territory of Croatia by crossing the Danube bridge in Batina, close to the Croatian-Hungarian border, from the "Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro)". The troops of BELGBAT of UNPROFOR in the area attempted to "persuade and negotiate" with the Serbian paramilitary forces in order to prevent this movement, but failed and were forced to withdraw and were kept in detention during the transport of military equipment.

Since the end of January 1995 one armoured company of the "AJ" has been deployed in Eastern Slavonia close to the confrontation line. Moreover, on a later date further deployments took place, including - but not limited to - one mechanized company, one platoon of tanks and one platoon of self-propelled artillery, backed with an infantry company (totalling over 900 troops). The most recent incident saw the transportation of 25 tanks, one artillery battery and one "Luna-M" ground-to-ground tactical missile battery, and their deployment east of Beli Manastir and north of Tovarnik. Furthermore, according to available information, part of the 11th and 12th corps of the "AJ" have been mobilized and placed on alert within the territory of the "Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro)", including the 453rd Mechanized Brigade in Sid. These developments pose a serious threat to the security of the Republic of Croatia, and serve as an additional example of the inefficiency of the present United Nations peace-keeping operation and a proof of direct involvement of the "Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro)" in Croatia.

All of this once again confirms that the mechanisms of control of the international borders of Croatia - those presently outside of the effective control of the Croatian Government -are not sufficient. Furthermore, the above-mentioned grave violations of the relevant UNSC resolutions serve to focus our attention on your report to the Security Council on the implementation of a peace-keeping mandate (S/1995/222), which proposes the continuation of the existing insufficient mechanisms.

On behalf of the Government of the Republic of Croatia, I thus have to express deep dissatisfaction and grave concern with the assessments and recommendations contained in your report S/1995/222, and in particular with the following:

1. the report is unbalanced - it overestimates the achievements and underestimates the shortcomings of UNPROFOR's activity in Croatia - and does not realistically reflect the situation of Croatia;

2. the report repeatedly refers to documents that are several years old, but fails to draw the attention and to take into proper consideration more recent developments, such as Security Council resolutions 820 and 871, and General Assembly resolution 49/43;

3. the report draws attention to various elements of the so called Vance Plan, but apparently deliberately fails to address the most important element - the immediate disarming and disbandment of the Serbian paramilitary forces on the occupied territories; further, the report minimizes the validity of the need for the return of refugees and displaced persons, which is of paramount importance not only to a quarter of a million displaced persons but to the entire Croatian society as well;

4. it would appear that in the eyes of the Secretariat the newly proposed mandate would not differ substantially from the expiring one;

5. the Government of the Republic of Croatia and the local insurgent authorities on the occupied territories have implicite been placed on equal footing, since for every step of the deployment of a new mandate and force, their consent is implied;

6. the name of the new operation, as proposed in your latest report, does not include the reference to Croatia, which was one of our clearly stated requests; this is contrary to the established practise in the UN since only three UN operations (UNTSO, UNDOF and UNPROFOR) have hitherto been established without a clear geographic determination; the Government of the Republic of Croatia thus deems this to be highly inappropriate and unacceptable.

7. the report does not provide for, or even suggest, the reliable control of Croatia's internationally recognized borders and therefore does not fulfil the preconditions for Croatia's acceptance of the new mandate as agreed upon in Copenhagen and Washington; furthermore, the provisions in this regard, as set forth in you report, do not reflect adequately the spirit and content of Your Excellency's recent talks with the President of the Republic of Croatia, Dr. Franjo Tudman, and the subsequent statements as well.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Taking into account the above, on behalf of the Republic of Croatia, I have the duty to inform you and the members of the Security Council that the Republic of Croatia shall not accept the new mandate of the new peace-keeping force on its territory after the present mandate of UNPROFOR in Croatia terminates in accordance with our letters S/1995/28 and S/1995/56 unless the following conditions are met:

1. the name of the new operations contains the word Croatia; explicitly confirming the fact that the new operation is to be carried out in its entirety on the sovereign territory of the Republic of Croatia.

2. the mechanisms of the active control of the international borders of the Republic of Croatia in the parts that are not at this moment accessible to the Croatian authorities by the new force are negotiated in detail on the basis of relevant Security Council resolutions and have gained the prior formal approval of the Government of Croatia.; thus the mechanisms for active control of the Croatia's international borders under the new mandate must be clearly established in respect of imports, exports and all transhipments, consistent with paragraph 12 of Resolution 820 (1993).

In this regard, and in order to facilitate the negotiations, I have the honour to draw your attention to the letter dated 23 March 1995 from the President of the Republic of Croatia addressed to your Excellency.

Please accept, your Excellency, the assurances of my highest consideration.

Zagreb, 27 March 1995.

VIENNA FOR BOSNIA

E.O. 12356: DECL: 3/27/2003
TAGS: PREL SR BK HR
SUBJECT: CONTACT GROUP MEETING - A FINAL EFFORT TO HEAD OFF A BOSNIA WAR

1. ~~SECRET~~ ENTIRE TEXT.

2. SUMMARY: THE CONTACT GROUP MET IN LONDON ON MARCH 27 TO REVIEW THE SITUATION IN BOSNIA AND CROATIA. WHILE THERE WAS A GENERAL FEELING THAT THE SITUATION IN CROATIA WAS STABILIZED IN THE WAKE OF THE COPENHAGEN AGREEMENT, ALL REPS EXPRESSED CONCERN ABOUT THE RAPIDLY DETERIORATING SITUATION ON THE GROUND IN BOSNIA.

3. AGREEING THAT MILOSEVIC APPEARS TO BE EVER INCREASINGLY CONFIDENT AND UNWILLING TO COMPROMISE, THE GROUP REACHED CONSENSUS ON A TWO STAGE WORK PLAN OVER THE NEXT MONTH INTO THE SUMMER:

-- A LAST DITCH CG EFFORT ON BOSNIA RECOGNITION VIS-A-VIS MILOSEVIC AND IZETBEGOVIC, AS PROPOSED BY THE FRENCH.

-- PLANNING TO RIDE OUT THE STORM, IF AT ALL POSSIBLE, WHEN THIS EFFORT FALTERS AS IT IS LIKELY TO DO. THIS ASPECT AS SUGGESTED BY U.S. REP FRASURE WOULD BE AIMED AT LIMITING THE SCALE OF THE WAR AND KEEPING UNPROFOR IN PLACE IN BOSNIA.

4. REFLECTING BRITISH CONCERN OVER THE ISSUE, FOREIGN SECRETARY HURD SAT IN ON THE LAST PART OF THE SESSION.

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
NL 2/6/2020 (7.80)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

HURD SAID THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY WOULD INSIST ON AT LEAST ONE FINAL EFFORT BEFORE THE STORM BROKE. THAT MIGHT INCLUDE A MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE ALTHOUGH HE WAS AWARE THAT SECRETARY CHRISTOPHER HAD RESERVATIONS ABOUT THAT APPROACH. BUT FURTHER DETERIORATION IS NOW CLEARLY THE MOST LIKELY SITUATION. END SUMMARY.

FOCUS ON MILOSEVIC - IN THE CATBIRD SEAT

5. AFTER A BRIEF REVIEW OF THE MILITARY SITUATION, UK, US, AND RUSSIAN REPS BRIEFED THE GROUP ON RECENT BILATERAL CONTACTS WITH BELGRADE. THE COMMON THEME WAS THAT MILOSEVIC IS CONFIDENT TO THE POINT OF BEING COCKY AND IS UNWILLING TO NEGOTIATE SERIOUSLY ON RECOGNITION OR MUCH OF ANYTHING ELSE..

6. UK REP NEVILLE-JONES RECOUNTED DISCUSSIONS LAST WEEK BETWEEN THE SERBIAN PRESIDENT AND THE BRITISH CHARGE IN WHICH MILOSEVIC REJECTED ANY FORMULATIONS THAT MEANT ACCEPTANCE OF THE BOSNIAN STATE AS IT NOW EXISTS.

7. U.S. REP REPORTED ON HIS THREE HOURS OF CONVERSATION WITH MILOSEVIC ON MARCH 24. HE NOTED IN PARTICULAR THAT MILOSEVIC SEEMS TO BE IN SEARCH OF A POLITICAL EXIT STRATEGY, A SYSTEM OF LOCAL ACCOMMODATIONS ON CROATIA AND BOSNIA THAT WILL ALLOW HIM TO KEEP MOST OF HIS ILL-GOTTEN GAINS, GET OUT FROM UNDER SANCTIONS, AND EVEN GAIN SOME RESPECTABILITY OVER TIME. BUT THE SERBIAN PRESIDENT SEES HIMSELF OPERATING FROM A POSITION OF CONSIDERABLE STRENGTH AND SEEMS UNWILLING TO MODIFY HIS STRATEGY IN ANY SUBSTANTIAL MANNER THAT WOULD MEET OUR IMMEDIATE NEEDS. MILOSEVIC APPEARS TO BE COOPERATIVE ON IMPLEMENTATION OF THE COPENHAGEN ACCORD, BUT ONLY BECAUSE IT IS IN LINE WITH HIS OWN PHASED, GRADUAL APPROACH ON CROATIA. HE IS FLATLY UNWILLING TO RECOGNIZE THE CURRENT BOSNIAN STATE.

8. IN A REMARKABLY SIMILAR VEIN, RUSSIAN REP ZOTOV REPORTED THAT FORMER CG REP NIKIFOROV HAD RECENTLY VISITED BELGRADE AT THE BEHEST OF KOZYREV. NIKIFOROV CAME AWAY VERY PESSIMISTIC, REPORTING THAT MILOSEVIC EXPECTS TO BE APPROACHED AGAIN AND AGAIN BY THE CG WITH EVER IMPROVING OFFERS. THE REAL OFFER WILL COME LATER ON, AND THIS IS NOT THE TIME TO PUT HIS CARDS ON THE TABLE. MILOSEVIC PREFERS TO TRY TO DEAL DIRECTLY WITH SARAJEVO AND ZAGREB. AND IN MOSCOW'S VIEW, THIS MEANS THAT MILOSEVIC IS SIMPLY NOT PREPARED TO DEAL SERIOUSLY AT THIS TIME. ACCORDINGLY KOZYREV BELIEVES WE CAN TAKE ONLY VERY SMALL STEPS AT BEST.

A LAST DITCH EFFORT NONETHELESS

9. DESPITE THESE ASSESSMENTS, FRENCH REP DEJAMMET IMPLORED THE OTHERS TO MAKE ONE FINAL EFFORT ON

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

RECOGNITION. NEVILLE-JONES WAS FUNDAMENTALLY SYMPATHETIC TO THAT VIEW, DESPITE PERSONAL MISGIVINGS, SAYING THAT BRITAIN AND THE OTHER TROOPS CONTRIBUTORS ARE GOING TO BE FACED WITH A "FIGHT AND STAY" SCENARIO THIS SUMMER AND THAT IS JUST AS UNPALATABLE AS "LIFT AND STAY." WE ARE MOVING EVER CLOSER TO THE NATO EXTRACTION REALITY.

10. U.S. REP ARGUED THAT WE ARE VIRTUALLY CERTAIN TO GET NOTHING FROM MILOSEVIC ON RECOGNITION OF BOSNIA. THE REAL CHALLENGE WILL BE TO CONCERT ON A "RIDE OUT THE STORM" STRATEGY, AS DIFFICULT AS THAT SOUNDS. WE MUST HOPE TO KEEP THE WAR AS SMALL AS POSSIBLE, KEEP UNPROFOR ON THE GROUND, CONTROL THE BOSNIA/SERBIA BORDER MORE RIGOROUSLY, HOLD THE CG TOGETHER, AND AIM TO REENGAGE DIPLOMACY WHEN WE GET THE CHANCE. THIS KIND OF DAMAGE LIMITATION WOULD REQUIRE BILATERAL EFFORTS VIS-A-VIS THE PARTIES AS APPROPRIATE. IF WE CANNOT GET A FORMAL EXTENSION OF THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES, WE SHOULD AIM FOR A FUNCTIONAL, LESS FORMAL EQUIVALENT FROM ALL SIDES.

CONSENSUS ON A LAST EFFORT

11. AFTER EXTENDED DISCUSSION, IT WAS AGREED THAT THE GROUP AS THE FIVE WILL PLAN TO MEET IN LONDON ON APRIL 3 AND TRAVEL TO SARAJEVO AND BELGRADE WITH A MUTUAL RECOGNITION PROPOSAL IN LINE WITH THE CG DECEMBER MINISTERIAL AGREEMENT. THE EXACT TERMS OF THAT PROPOSAL WILL BE WORKED OUT OVER THE REST OF THIS WEEK.

12. IN FINAL COMMENTS, U.S. REP NOTED THAT THERE IS NO DOUBT THIS MUST BE GENUINE RECOGNITION OF THE EXISTING BOSNIAN STATE WITHIN ITS INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNIZED BORDERS. THERE CAN BE NO QUESTION OF A PROMISSARY NOTE ON RECOGNITION OF A "FUTURE" BOSNIAN UNION. ANY SANCTIONS RELIEF WOULD BE OBVIOUSLY LIMITED. GERMAN REP STEINER NOTED KINKEL'S RESERVE ON ANY SANCTIONS RELIEF WHATSOEVER ON ANY PROPOSAL THAT DOES NOT INCLUDE RECOGNITION FOR CROATIA.

PRESS STATEMENT

13. THE GROUP AGREED ON THE FOLLOWING PRESS STATEMENT:

-- THE GROUP MET IN LONDON ON MARCH 27. ALL MEMBERS OF THE GROUP WERE VERY CONCERNED AT THE DETERIORATING SITUATION ON THE GROUND IN BOSNIA. THEY CALL ON ALL PARTIES TO RESPECT THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES AGREEMENT AND TO AGREE TO EXTEND IT. THE CONTACT GROUP WILL CONTINUE ITS EFFORTS TO BRING ABOUT EARLY NEGOTIATIONS CONCERNING BOSNIA, AND CALLS ON THE BOSNIAN SERBS TO ACCEPT THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN AS A STARTING POINT.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- THE GROUP WELCOMES THE AGREEMENT WHEREBY UN FORCES WILL CONTINUE TO BE PRESENT IN CROATIA. AGREEMENT ON THE MANDATE FOR THESE FORCES SHOULD BE IMMEDIATELY FOLLOWED BY THE CONTINUED NORMALIZATION OF ECONOMIC RELATIONS AND THE START OF NEGOTIATIONS ON A FINAL POLITICAL SETTLEMENT BETWEEN ZAGREB AND KNIN.

-- THE CONTACT GROUP EMPHASIZES THE IMPORTANCE IT ATTACHES TO EARLY MUTUAL RECOGNITION BETWEEN THE STATES OF THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA, AND IT WILL CONTINUE TO WORK TOWARDS THIS END.

SUBJECT: MEETING WITH MILOSEVIC -- ASSURANCES ON
- CROATIA, DIFFERENT GAME PLANS ON BOSNIA

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

SUMMARY
---

-- MILOSEVIC WILL MAKE SURE THE KNIN SERBS HONOR THE GORE/TUDJMAN COPENHAGEN AGREEMENT. THIS IS IN LINE WITH HIS OWN PHASED APPROACH ON CROATIA. HOWEVER, AS HE TOLD OWEN AND STOLTENBERG EARLIER IN THE DAY, HE WANTS SEVERAL CHANGES IN THE DRAFT RESOLUTION.

-- ON BOSNIA, HE IS NOT PREPARED TO RECOGNIZE THE PRESENT BOSNIAN STATE -- "A CARTOON STATE" -- IN THE CONTEXT OF A SANCTIONS SUSPENSION DEAL. IN LINE WITH HIS PROFESSED SUPPORT FOR THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN, HE IS PREPARED DOWN THE ROAD TO RECOGNIZE A BOSNIAN "UNION." OF THE CURRENT BOSNIA, MILOSEVIC REMARKED: "I CANNOT RECOGNIZE A NON-EXISTING STATE."

-- MILOSEVIC OBVIOUSLY HAS A LOT OF DIRECT CONTACT WITH ZAGREB AND SARAJEVO -- MOST RECENTLY THE FILIPOVIC VISIT ON BEHALF OF IZETBEGOVIC -- AND ACCORDINGLY BELIEVES THERE MUST BE "BALKAN SOLUTIONS" TO THE PROBLEMS, ALBEIT WITH INTERNATIONAL HELP.

-- AFTER MY EXPLANATION OF AMERICAN POLITICAL REALITY, MILOSEVIC NOW SEEMS TO UNDERSTAND THAT THE LIFTING OF SANCTIONS IS NOT IN THE CARDS. BUT HE WOULD STILL LIKE TO DEAL: "O.K. WHAT ABOUT SUSPENSION?"

-- MILOSEVIC IS NOW WELL AWARE OF OUR CONCERNS ABOUT CHEATING ON THE SERBIA/BOSNIA BORDER AND UNDERSTANDS WE MAY NOT BE PREPARED FOR ANOTHER ONE HUNDRED DAYS OF SANCTIONS SUSPENSION.

-- BELGRADE IS CLEARLY IN THE MIDDLE OF THE SKOPJE/ATHENS MINUET, AND MILOSEVIC SEES IT AS A WAY TO TEAR A HUGE HOLE IN SANCTIONS.

3. MILOSEVIC CONTINUES TO SEEM TO ME TO BE IN SEARCH OF AN EXIT STRATEGY, A SYSTEM OF LOCAL ACCOMMODATIONS ON CROATIA AND BOSNIA THAT WILL ALLOW HIM TO KEEP MOST OF HIS ILL-GOTTEN GAINS, GET OUT FROM UNDER SANCTIONS, AND EVEN GAIN RESPECTABILITY OVER TIME. BUT THE SERBIAN PRESIDENT SEES HIMSELF OPERATING FROM A POSITION OF VERY CONSIDERABLE STRENGTH AND SEEMS UNWILLING TO MODIFY HIS APPROACHES IN ANY SUBSTANTIAL MANNER THAT WOULD MEET OUR IMMEDIATE NEEDS.

4. AFTER THE MILOSEVIC SESSIONS, I HAD DINNER WITH LORD OWEN WHO HAD A SECRET SESSION WITH KARADZIC EARLIER IN THE DAY IN ZVORNIK. OWEN'S COMMENTS ARE INCLUDED BELOW. END SUMMARY.

CROATIA AFTER COPENHAGEN

5. RESPONDING TO MY DESCRIPTION OF OUR RECENT CROATIA INITIATIVE, AND THE GORE/TUDJMAN RESULTS, MILOSEVIC SAID THAT COPENHAGEN WAS "A TURNING POINT ON THE ROAD FROM ESCALATION TOWARDS PEACE." BUT HE HAD ALWAYS THOUGHT -- AS HE TOLD ME IN OUR LAST MEETING -- THAT TUDJMAN WOULD FIND A WAY OUT FROM HIS JANUARY ULTIMATUM. ON HIS OWN ROLE NOW, MILOSEVIC SAID: "I INSISTED THAT THE KNIN LEADERS NOT REJECT IT. I TOLD THEM TUDJMAN NEEDS IT AS A FACE-SAVING DEVICE. 'YOU WANT US TO HELP TUDJMAN?', THEY ASKED. I SAID YES."

6. MILOSEVIC SAID IT WAS GOOD THAT STOLTENBERG HAD REPLACED AKASHI, WHO IS NOT LIKED BY TUDJMAN. HE FELT STOLTENBERG COULD GET A DEAL, EVEN BEFORE MARCH 31, BUT THE KNIN SERBS HAD TO BE CONSULTED AND THERE HAD TO BE SEVERAL CHANGES IN THE DRAFT RESOLUTION. IN PARTICULAR THE TITLE SHOULD BE CHANGED; "PEACEKEEPING" SHOULD BE ADDED AND WE CANNOT CALL IT UNFIC. MORE IMPORTANTLY THE "INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNIZED BORDERS" PHRASE SHOULD BE

DROPPED. REFER TO THE VANCE PLAN OR USE THE VANCE PLAN LANGUAGE, ADVISED MILOSEVIC. "THE RESULT IS THE SAME. THE U.N. TROOPS ARE AUTHORIZED TO BE EVERYWHERE." WILL KNIN ACCEPT MORE ON THE BORDER? MILOSEVIC SAID YES, BUT "IT DEPENDS UPON THE ACTUAL MEASURES AND AGGRESSIVE LANGUAGE MUST BE AVOIDED."

7. MAKING IT CLEAR HE HAD NO INTEREST IN BIG BANG DIPLOMACY ON CROATIA, I.E. RECOGNITION/SANCTIONS RELIEF, MILOSEVIC AGAIN ARGUED THE VIRTUES OF A QUIET, GRADUAL SEQUENCED APPROACH, BEGINNING WITH MORE ECONOMIC MEASURES, LEADING INTO KNIN/ZAGREB POLITICAL TALKS AND CULMINATING IN MUTUAL RECOGNITION BY ZAGREB AND BELGRADE, "100 PERCENT SUCCESS WITHIN THIS YEAR. BUT KRAJINA MUST BE ATTRACTED BY PEACE." (I AM FAIRLY CONFIDENT THAT MILOSEVIC FOR HIS OWN PURPOSES WILL FORCE KNIN AT LEAST SUFFICIENTLY TO ADHERE TO THE COPENHAGEN DEAL. INDEED OWEN REMARKED TO ME THAT MILOSEVIC HAD "STIFFENED UP" STOLTENBERG IN DEALING WITH KNIN. WHETHER HIS OVERALL STRATEGY WILL WORK IS ANOTHER STORY, ALTHOUGH, INTERESTINGLY ENOUGH, MILOSEVIC SPOKE BY PHONE TO MARTIC AND MIKELIC DURING OUR MEETING ABOUT THE NEED TO SIGN THE OIL PIPELINE ACCORD.)

BOSNIA -- DIFFERENT GAME PLANS

8. I TOLD MILOSEVIC THERE IS A LOT OF CONFUSION ABOUT WHAT HE IS PREPARED TO DO ON BOSNIA, NOTABLY ON THE RECOGNITION ISSUE. MILOSEVIC REPLIED THAT THE CENTRAL POINT ON BOSNIA MUST BE THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN INCLUDING THE CONSTITUTION PRINCIPLES AND "THE RIGHTS OF CONFEDERATION." HE IS READY FOR MUTUAL RECOGNITION OF THE "UNION IN THE CONTEXT OF THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN. HE IS NOT PREPARED TO RECOGNIZE THE CURRENT BOSNIAN STATE, "A CARTOON STATE." WE NEED TO DEFINE BOSNIA "AS A UNION OF TWO EQUAL ENTITIES -- THE SERB REPUBLIC AND THE FEDERATION -- THAT WILL FORCE KARADZIC TOWARD A TERRITORIAL DELIMITATION."

9. MILOSEVIC DESCRIBED THE RECENT VISIT TO BELGRADE BY BOSNIAN AMBASSADOR FILIPOVIC AS "VERY HELPFUL." "BUT THEY ARE STILL THINKING ABOUT INCLUDING THE SERBS IN THEIR FEDERATION." MILOSEVIC STRESSED THAT IT IS PEACE THAT WILL BRING ABOUT A NATURAL REINTEGRATION OF BOSNIA. MILOSEVIC SAID HE DISCUSSED WITH FILIPOVIC A POSSIBLE SECRET MEETING WITH IZETBEGOVIC UNDER SWISS AUSPICES. BUT THERE ARE DIVISIONS IN SARAJEVO. FEEDING INTO ONE OF HIS FAVORITE THEMES -- SUSPICION OF BONN -- MILOSEVIC GLOATED: "DID YOU KNOW THE GERMANS PROHIBITED IZETBEGOVIC FROM GOING TO WASHINGTON FOR YOUR FEDERATION MEETING? AND THEN THEY EVEN PROHIBITED SILAJDZIC FROM TAKING IZETBEGOVIC'S PLACE? THE GERMANS WANT SPECIAL

RELATIONS HERE WITH THE CROATS AND THE MUSLIMS."

10. I TOLD MILOSEVIC WE ARE VERY WORRIED ABOUT A WIDER WAR IN BOSNIA THIS SUMMER. "IT COULD BE. IT IS A VERY UNSTABLE SITUATION. ANY CORPS COMMANDER CAN START THE WAR." I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT IF A LARGER WAR DEVELOPED, WE WOULD HAVE TO MOUNT A SUBSTANTIAL NATO OPERATION INCLUDING THE U.S. FIRST ARMORED DIVISION TO TAKE UNPROFOR OUT BEFORE WINTER RETURNS.. THOUSANDS OF NATO TROOPS ON THE GROUND IN BOSNIA WOULD CHANGE THE SITUATION IN UNPREDICTABLE WAYS. I COULD SEE HOW WE GO IN; I'M LESS SURE HOW WE LEAVE. MILOSEVIC RESPONDED THAT "THE U.N. TROOPS MUST STAY IN BOSNIA. IT WILL BE A DISASTER, IF THEY HAVE TO LEAVE, AND HARD TO GET THEM OUT ALTHOUGH THE SERBS WILL NOT IMPEDE THEIR DEPARTURE." (IF MILOSEVIC IS WORRIED ABOUT A NATO OPERATION IN BOSNIA -- AS HE SHOULD BE -- HE SHOWED ME NO CARDS OF DEEP CONCERN ON THE ISSUE.)

11. LATER THAT EVENING, OWEN TOLD ME HE IS VERY WORRIED ABOUT BOSNIA. KARADZIC WAS ON HIS WAY TO TUZLA WHERE A STRONG BOSNIAN SERB ATTACK COULD TAKE PLACE SOON. THE SERBS MAY WANT TO TEACH THE MUSLIMS A LESSON AND TAKE MORE LAND, EVEN THOUGH THEY KNOW THEY WILL HAVE TO GIVE IT BACK IN A SETTLEMENT. A BIHAC SITUATION COULD DEVELOP IN TUZLA. OWEN SAID KARADZIC WANTS TO TALK, BUT ADAMANTLY REFUSES TO "ACCEPT" THE CG PLAN AND IS LOOKING FOR AN ALTERNATIVE FORMULATION. OWEN SAID THEY DISCUSSED SOME OF THE DECEMBER/JANUARY PHRASEOLOGIES, E.G. "ACCEPT THE BASIS FOR NEGOTIATIONS PROPOSED BY THE CG." OWEN CONCLUDED THAT KARADZIC SEEMED MORE WILLING TO CONCEDE THAT GREATER SARAJEVO WILL GO TO THE MUSLIMS AND SEEMS PREPARED TO ACCEPT A ROUGHLY 50/50 LAND DEAL. HE ALSO INSISTS THAT THE CORRIDOR IN THE NORTH BE WIDER. (OWEN HAS HIS OWN IDEAS ON THE MAP INCLUDING PREVLAKA AND A CORRIDOR UP TO BIHAC.)

NOT ON THE SAME TRACK

12. SUMMING UP ON CROATIA AND BOSNIA I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT, WHILE WE MIGHT BE HEADING IN THE SAME GENERAL DIRECTION, I WAS NOT AT ALL CONVINCED THAT WE COULD WORK TOGETHER NOTABLY ON A RECOGNITION/SANCTIONS RELIEF FORMULA, EVEN ON BOSNIA. MILOSEVIC SAID WE HAVE THE WRONG APPROACH. "YOU NEED TO NORMALIZE RELATIONS WITH SERBIA. THEN LIFT THE SANCTIONS. THAT WILL TURN THESE WARS INTO LITTLE LOCAL WARS. PRESS THAT BUTTON! HERE IS THE WATER TO THROW ON THE FIRE. WE CAN ACHIEVE PEACE IN A COUPLE OF MONTHS -- BALKAN SOLUTIONS WITH INTERNATIONAL SUPPORT." MILOSEVIC CONCLUDED: "DON'T GIVE IN TO GERMAN PRESSURES."

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

13. I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT WE CANNOT JUST LIFT SANCTIONS. THERE IS ABSOLUTELY NO SUPPORT IN THE U.S. FOR THAT APPROACH. "IF THE NEW YORK TIMES IS MAKING YOUR POLICY, MAYBE I SHOULD BE TALKING TO THEM AND NOT TO YOU," MILOSEVIC SNEERED. I AGREED ENTHUSIASTICALLY, BUT ADDED THAT ONLY SUSPENSION OF SANCTIONS IS A POSSIBILITY AND ONLY IF WE GET SOMETHING UP FRONT. "YOU PREFER SANCTIONS TO PEACE. IF YOU WANT TO MAKE THINGS IMPOSSIBLE, TRY TO HUMILIATE SERBS." AT THE END, HOWEVER, MILOSEVIC GRUMPED: "O.K. SUSPEND SANCTIONS. IT MEANS ZERO TO ME, BUT DO IT. BUT I WON'T RECOGNIZE ANYONE UNTIL YOU LIFT SANCTIONS."

PROBLEMS ON THE BORDER

14. I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT, IN THE SPIRIT OF OUR FRANK EXCHANGES AND TO AVOID ANY MISUNDERSTANDINGS LATER ON, I WANTED TO TELL HIM THAT WE ARE INCREASINGLY CONCERNED BY INDICATIONS OF GROWING CROSS BORDER MILITARY SUPPORT FOR THE BOSNIA SERBS. THERE WOULD BE A SERIOUS DEBATE IN WASHINGTON OVER WHETHER WE WOULD AGREE TO ANOTHER HUNDRED DAYS OF PHASE ONE SANCTIONS RELIEF IN APRIL. I THEN HANDED OVER A NON-PAPER ILLUSTRATING THE PROBLEM.

15. MILOSEVIC READ IT THROUGH CAREFULLY, EXCLAIMING FROM TIME TO TIME: "BALONEY. THAT'S BULLSHIT! THAT IS NOTHING! NOTHING!" MILOSEVIC DISPUTED A NUMBER OF THE POINTS, NOTABLY ON TROOPS IN CIVILIAN CLOTHES CROSSING THE BORDER. ASKED FOR A SPECIFIC ACCUSATION, I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT WE HAD VISUAL PROOF THAT SEVEN 155 MM HOWITZERS HAD BEEN MOVED FROM BELGRADE INTO SECTOR EAST IN MARCH. SOMEWHAT TAKEN ABACK MILOSEVIC SAID HE WOULD HAVE HIS POLICE LOOK INTO IT. "IF IT HAPPENED, I KNOW WHO DID IT." MILOSEVIC NEVERTHELESS CURIOUSLY REMARKED: "I WILL NOT DE-BLOCK THE RS, WHATEVER YOU DO ON SANCTIONS."

GREECE/FYROM

16. ON ANOTHER SUBJECT, MILOSEVIC SAID THERE MAY BE A SUMMIT IN BELGRADE IN THE NEAR FUTURE TO CONSUMMATE THE SKOPJE/ATHENS DEAL. MILOSEVIC WAS CLEARLY WELL AWARE OF THE LATEST EXCHANGES ON THE EMBARGO, FLAG, ETC. HE FELT STRONGLY THAT THE NAME ISSUE IS EVER INCREASINGLY AN IMPOSSIBILITY FOR MACEDONIANS, AND HAS SAID AS MUCH TO THE GREEKS. MILOSEVIC INDICATED THAT HIS INTEREST IN THE DEAL IS TO PROVIDE A MACEDONIAN CORRIDOR DIRECT TO EUROPE IN EXCHANGE FOR A GREEK CORRIDOR THROUGH MACEDONIA.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

A CONCLUDING THOUGHT
---

17. MILOSEVIC CHEERFULLY SAID THAT HE LOOKED FORWARD TO MY NEXT VISIT TO BELGRADE, WHENEVER THAT IS. BUT I AM YET TO BE CONVINCED THAT WE CAN DEVELOP OVERLAPPING AGENDAS AND TOLD HIM SO. WHATEVER HIS ECONOMIC PROBLEMS, MILOSEVIC BELIEVES HE IS OPERATING FROM A POSITION OF VERY CONSIDERABLE STRENGTH AND THE WORLD MUST RECOGNIZE THAT FACT AND WORK ON THE BASIS OF HIS AGENDA. AS LORD OWEN REMARKED SOMEWHAT SELF-CONSCIOUSLY TO ME AFTER DINNER: "I KNOW I AM SEEN AS SOMETHING OF A MILOSEVIC MAN. BUT I NEED SOMEONE TO DO A DEAL WITH." AND AT THE CONCLUSION OF OUR SOUND AND FURY OVER SANCTIONS, MILOSEVIC SLYLY REMARKED TO ME: "I WILL WAIT. YOU WILL GET BACK TO ME JUST LIKE TUDJMAN AND IZETBEGOVIC."

Conversations with Milosevic
March 17 & 18, 1995

Prepared by the Honorable Bill Richardson
March 24, 1995

As a Member of the Helsinki Commission, I visited Karadjordjivo (Tito's old hunting lodge) and Belgrade at the invitation of President Slobodan Milosevic on March 17 and 18, 1995. My discussions with Slobodan Milosevic at Karadjordjevo totalled close to eighteen hours, including meetings, walks, meals, and corridor conversations. Our sessions included Chris Spirou, his informal American advisor, his Foreign Minister to be Milutinovic (currently Ambassador to Greece) and his Chief of Staff, Goran Milinovic. Milosevic and I spoke about two hours privately during long walks around his estate with his aides trailing behind.

In this report, I will exclude any comments about the Krajina Serb issue as I have reported previously on this matter. I will include the text that Milosevic personally submitted to me upon my departure on the Krajina matter although it has been overtaken by events.

I have not covered some of the topics I cabled back to Washington from Embassy Belgrade on March 18.

A

Main Points Made by Milosevic (please see my observations before reaching conclusions)

1. April 23rd (when the 100 day period of limited sanctions relief approved by UN expires) is a critical date for Milosevic

It is my view that Milosevic will find it difficult to accept another round of partial embargo lifting and might go for broke and expel the observers. He does not want to appear to change his position toward Karadzic and his "extreme entourage and leadership" should he decide to end the "observers" mission on April 23rd. Beyond that, Milosevic hinted that he might be forced to shut down several of the missions. Milosevic feels that he has gone the distance both in terms of "patience" and the ability to "sustain public support" for his position to promote every peace initiative to date. He toned down these claims at the end of my visit.

2. SM told me that in early March he had secret meetings with special representatives of both Alija Izetbegovic of Bosnia and Franjo Tudjman of Croatia. SM received a "written personal communication proposal of "Let's do it ourselves and not the foreigners" from Tudjman through his alter ego and National Security advisor, Mr. Hrvoje Saranic. SM added that Izetbegovic didn't attend the Washington celebration because he was "told by the Germans not to attend," adding that Izetbegovic "would be visiting Germany," just so he and Germany could "rub the nose of the U.S." a bit.

SM said that all the "leaders" are catching on that the U.S. is starting to ease tensions with Serbia to solve the Balkan crisis. So in the great Balkan tradition these leaders are now calling for cooperation with the strongest, claiming that the "foreigners" are not capable of solving the area's problems.

SM sees the Tudjman UN PROFOR move and the recent public threats and aggressiveness by Izetbegovic and Karadijk as clear indications that none of them want the U.S. to team up with Slobodan Milosevic for peace. SM feels that this means that when peace and success come that all of warlords political careers will end.

The keypoint of SM's overtures to us is that the "quickest way to bring peace", is the "normalization of relations between the United States and Yugoslavia," and the lifting of sanctions. SM said that the partial lifting of the embargo like sports and education was more "humiliating than helpful."

Milosevic wants to make one comprehensive Balkan deal with the United States on all outstanding issues with an overall strategy and plan arrived at jointly, bilaterally. He also made it clear that he has both the willingness and ability to get things done. But he said he cannot and will not do it with "his hands tied" and his "legs in chains". SM stressed that time was short, that we had perhaps thirty days to work these things out. Several times he said it was 11:59, with just one minute left before the ball game is over.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

SM believes that lifting the embargo will isolate those who have an interest in continuing the war by "narrowing the field". He said that Karadjic believes that the sanctions will weaken Serbia internally "making it possible for the 2 million Muslims now living in Serbia to rebel and join the Bosnian Muslims in a "victorious campaign". Both are pipe dreams in reality, but "reality is the last measure anyone, including the U.S. policymakers, have used to make decisions in the Balkans." "We both need an exit strategy. I am the key, and you need to start dealing with me instead of dumping on me. Just tell me what you want me to do and I will do it. I want to be treated as a colleague, not as a servant or supplicant."

3. Milosevic said he is working extremely hard on Yeltsin and his Parliament for Russia to lift their embargo on Serbia. Soon Yeltsin will face a law in his Parliament making it "illegal for Russia to have an embargo against Serbia". Yeltsin according to SM, can never oppose that law if it gets to his desk, and it will -. "That will put strains on the relations between the U.S. and Russia," said SM.

4. SM said he is working on putting together a summit with Papandreou and the President of Macedonia (see telegram no. 7) Greece would lift their embargo on Macedonia and Macedonia in turn would recognize Serbia and Montenegro.

5. SM several times criticized the Germans. He said they control Tudjman and believes that "Germany and the United States will clash strongly in the future. Your interests do not coincide with theirs." He says that he called Mitterand a liar to his face when he met him last. "He doublecrossed me on the embargo."

6. Several times he expressed his affection and support for Cyrus Vance. "He was always honest and truthful."

7. He wants "businesslike, commercial, economic relations with the United States, not aid or hand-outs. Even though they cut me off, I know I need the World Bank and the IMF."

8. SM believes that Yeltsin will make it despite his present troubles. "His drinking problem is getting worse. The biggest danger comes from his armed forces and his police."

9. SM, visibly agitated, said "lifting the arms embargo on the Bosnian Serbs would surely cause war."

10. SM told me he would attend a tripartite summit as proposed by the French if "you all gave me proper diplomatic recognition. I am not recognized and the two other invitees are."

11. SM said he would re-open the three OSCE offices closed previously, or "locate them where OSCE wants to put them" as long as he is re-admitted to the OSCE. (see tab C for further details)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

12. SM was extremely upset at Holbrooke statement on Kosovo before the House Foreign Affairs Committee. "Kosovo is our Jerusalem. It is an internal Serb matter."

13. SM kept telling me at several intervals that the European Contact Group Members keep telling him they want a more realistic policy towards Milosevic like "lifting the embargo" but "it's the U.S. that is the problem.:

14. SM expressed irritation at U.S. efforts to enforce the embargo. He particularly referred to instances where the U.S. was trying to shut down one of Serbia's business enterprises in Russia. ("I have 10,000 of them! Why do you think shutting one down makes a difference?") He also told me that Clerides of Cyprus had told him that Christopher in a handwritten note had asked Clerides to shut down a Serbian Bank in Cyprus. "Why does the U.S. treat me this way? I have been a loyal ally! I have supported the Contact Group!" He said that Clerides was sticking with SM on this one and would not close the bank.

15. Milosevic said he believes Karadijk would probably extend the ceasefire beyond the end of April. "If he extends it, he is a big shot again. He is the war option advocate and it makes him important. If there is peace he is meaningless and out of business. His power and Izetbegovic's will fall apart. All Karadijk wants to do is be on television. He even lost weight to look better."

16. When I told him his human rights actions and image were indefensible and awful, he replied, "I don't read history. History has never been kind to me and Serbia. We can only look toward the future. I don't worry about my image. Who cares? I'll still be here. My people support me. I've won the last three elections by 65%."

"I don't know what you Americans want? What is your policy towards the Balkans? I can't answer that! All you want to do is beat up on me as if I'm the only villain. What do you want me to do?"

17. He said he received a box of cigars from Fidel Castro with a note inscribed "welcome to the elite group of embargoed states by the U.S. We all survive!"

18. To those that say that I want to create a Greater Serbia, I say "bullshit."

19. SM treats the press with disdain. "There are maybe twenty editorials per day against me. The Serbian press attacks me relentlessly every day. They are petty and irrelevant people. Vanity Fair did an eight page negative article on me and I only gave that woman two minutes! How can she possibly write so much garbage about me when I only spoke to her for two minutes. My wife got tricked on that article! I don't watch television and I no longer read newspapers."

20. On recognizing Bosnia and Croatia - "It would be committing political suicide for me. Recognize me like you do with Bosnia and Croatia, put an ambassador here and maybe I can be more helpful to you."

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

"I have nothing against your representatives here in Belgrade. I like Butler (whom he had just met) because he is a banker just like me. It is just not appropriate for me as a President to deal with a charge d'affaires. I know it was a mistake for me to refuse to see Zimmerman for a year. He used that to badmouth me fiercely in the United States. I won't make that mistake again."

"You are the first eminent American to come to see me since Cyrus Vance. I appreciate that. I like Frasure. He is a professional, and is honest and trustworthy. Redman, Bartholemew, and Thomas were just doing their jobs and wanting to leave for their next assignment."

21. Milosevic several times said he liked President Clinton and hoped he would be re-elected. He claims that at one point Milan Panic approached him before the '92 election with a Balkan deal that would help George Bush get re-elected. "Go to hell. I want Clinton to get elected!" he told Panic. "I want Bush to lose because he put this embargo on Serbia which has hurt us."

"Clinton is young and optimistic. He is being ill served on the Balkan issue. It appears he is not that personally interested in our problems. I know I am just a small peanut in America's overall interests. But he should know that I am key to peace in the Balkans and I am ready to work with you. Just tell me what you want me to do and we can solve it together."

22. SM several times told me he wanted us to test his resolve by watching him convene the Krajina Serbs to accept the Gore-Tudjman plan, even though he didn't control them like "you think I do".

"This was a stupid plan just to help Tudjman with his domestic difficulties. But I know it's important to Gore, and I will do it for Gore, without asking for anything in return. But I'll do it for Gore because he put his prestige on the line by going to Copenhagen. I will let you know when the deal is done so that Gore can announce it and claim credit. And he doesn't need to give me credit."

23. When he handed me his peace outline (in the handwriting of one of his aides) before I left, he said, "Please show this to Clinton and Gore and Christopher. I am willing to negotiate. I am flexible."

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

B

Main Points Made by Richardson

1. Per my pre-trip briefing with Bob Frasure, I continuously stressed the importance of SM convincing the Krajina Serbs to accept the Gore-Copenhagen plan.

2. U.S. and Serbia are at a crossroads in the region. You need an exit strategy, and you cannot continue to stonewall and sit back without making any moves thinking that you can benefit from divisions within the Contact Group.

3. It is extremely difficult and politically impossible for the U.S. to lift the sanctions. The reaction in Congress would be negative and it might provoke lifting the arms embargo on the Bosnians ~~Serbs~~ which we oppose. Republican victories in Congress have weakened Serbia's standing in the U.S. body politic.

4. Many Serb complaints about their status in the old Yugoslavia are legitimate, as were some of their concerns about the prospective break-up of that country, although they were greatly exaggerated. From the U.S. perspective, the central reason for blaming Serbia for this is that the use of force with the claim of protecting Serb rights is unacceptable, and that is what happened. By resorting to aggression, for whatever reason, international support for Serb concerns evaporated.

5. While Belgrade has succeeded in getting the international community to tolerate what has since happened, the current situation will never be legitimized and cannot be sustained forever as a result. The best that can be accomplished is the Vance plan for Croatia and the Contact Group plan for Bosnia. That is the reality.

6. Few people believe that Belgrade, which supports both plans, cannot get the Bosnian and Croatian Serbs to accept them as well and implement them. There is widespread agreement that Belgrade organized their efforts, and is therefore responsible for getting them to agree. The place to start is to recognize both of Serbia's neighbors within their official borders and with all their territories unified.

7. Serbia must be more convincing if it is to get sanctions lifted.
A greater likelihood, like it or not, is for the U.S. Congress to press for a lifting of the arms embargo on the Bosnians.

8. In addition, the OSCE MIssions must be returned to Kosovo, Sandzak and Vojvodina without condition. There is no chance for the Yugoslav federation to be fully admitted into the OSCE given the situation in Bosnia and Croatia, let alone these three regions.

9. Kicking the missions out only worsened the situation for Serbia. If anything, having the missions there served Serbian interests as much as the interests of the local non-Serb populations, and the downturn in the human rights situation in Kosovo and Sandzak in particular since the missions left has to be condemned.

10. Permitting the missions to return would be an indicator that Serbia is willing to deal seriously with the international community in wishing to restore peace to the Balkan region.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

11. SM can probably stay in power if he continues to stonewall. But the U.S. will make life miserable for him by continuing to isolate him as a pariah and denying him any entree into the international community. "You can become a peacemaker if you plan this right and are sincere about peace." (I tried to say this with a straight face.)

A POTENTIAL COMPREHENSIVE AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND PRESIDENT SLOBODAN MILOSEVIC

Item: Recognition of Bosnia and Herzegovina

The Federal Republic of Yugoslavia supports the peace plan of the contact group on Bosnia and Herzegovina and in accordance with that plan understands;

I. A) That Bosnia and Herzegovina should be a Union of the Bosnian - Croatian Federation and the Republica of Srpska

B) That both entities are equal regarding their status and in every other respect and

C) That the Republica of Srpska has the right to enter into a confederation with the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, while the Bosnian - Croatian Federation has the right to enter into a confederation with the Republic of Croatia.

II. The U.S. with the full support of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia will convene the two parties, the Bosnian - Croatian Federation and the Republica of Srpska, to negotiate the final delineation of borders on the basis of the contact group peace plan as a starting point for negotiations.

III. The U.S. and Yugoslavia will assist the contact group to develop the constitutional framework for the union of the two entities the Bosnian - Croatian Federation and the Republica of Srpska.

Item: Croatia

I. The United States and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia will cooperate fully to define and implement the Copenhagen Agreement regarding the United Nations peacekeeping forces in Croatia in accordance with the Vance Peace Plan, formally known as the United Nations Peacekeeping Plan for the Republic of Croatia.

II. The United States and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia will co-sponsor negotiations between Sagreb [sic] and Knin to facilitate a final political arrangement.

Item: The Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia

I. The United States will convene a "Resolution Conference" between Greece, Yugoslavia and the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia (FYROM) to facilitate an agreement between Greece and FYROM and between Yugoslavia and FYROM.

II. Prior to the U.S. sponsored "Resolution Conference" Yugoslavia will work to finalize an agreement acceptable by all three parties, Greece, FYROM and Yugoslavia which allows for the lifting of the economic embargo imposed by Greece against FYROM and for the recognition of FYROM by the Republic of Yugoslavia and by Greece.

III. The United States and Yugoslavia will serve as facilitators for the resolution of any outstanding issues not resolved prior to the recognition of FYROM by Yugoslavia and Greece.

Item: The Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and the OSCE

The Federal Republic of Yugoslavia will reinstate all of the missions of the OSCE to its sovereign territory upon being reinstated as a full and equal member of the OSCE.

Item: Normalization of Relations and Lifting of Embargo

The United States will normalize relations with the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and lift the embargo against it upon the official signing of this agreement between the United States and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

Suggestions and Recommendations

1. Future policy initiatives towards SM need to take into account his massive ego and self importance. I believe he will make big concessions if he is treated like a major player by the United States. While his word and promises have been worthless in the past, I believe that in his own mind he has decided that the time is ripe to cut a deal, a comprehensive arrangement that could bring him better ties with the U.S. and international respectability. While the odds are that I am wrong given past performance, I do think that we should give working out a comprehensive approach with him more validity. Treating him with some degree of respect (however appalling) might open some doors that have been closed before.

2. Despite my optimism, I do not believe we should lift sanctions and then expect him to deliver on other items. I support a carrot and stick approach that involves the sustained lifting of sanctions in exchange for some concessions on his part (recognition of Bosnia and Croatia). Interestingly, by keeping the sanctions pressure on and by building up Tudjman as we did in Washington, this has pissed him off but I believe has intensified his appetite for a deal.

3. Milosevic would like nothing better than to cut a comprehensive Balkan deal with the United States and Serbia as the guarantors. SM will be only mildly influenced by what the Contact Group wants to do. He only uses Contact Group divisions to his advantage. Therefore, the U.S. needs to take the lead in devising an exit strategy policy.

4. I must say that our policy, whatever it might be under the present circumstances, seems to be working. If I knew what we are considering next, I might be able to be more expansive.

PRESIDENT MILOSEVIC HAS PLEDGED TO CONGRESSMAN RICHARDSON

1) To do everything in his power to insure that the material things in the Copenhagen Agreement are preserved providing the appropriate and "swallable" [sic] language is included in the new United Nations Peacekeeping Resolution for Croatia.

2) To meet and talk Monday morning March 20, 1995 with Krajina Serb President Milan Martic and Krajina Serb Foreign Minister Milan Babic urging them to work closely with the U.N. envoy to the region Mr. Akashi to develop the framework and language necessary for an acceptable new United Nations Peacekeeping Resolution for Croatia.

3) To meet with Mr. Akashi at 1:00 p.m. Monday, March 20, 1995.

4) To arrange a meeting between Mr. Akashi and the leaders Mr. Martic and Mr. Babic of the Krajina Serbs for Monday afternoon March 20, 1995 following his meetings with them and with Mr. Akashi.

It must be noted here that prior to Congressman Richardson's visit President Milosevic was prepared to only meet are [sic] a curtesy with Mr. Akashi and tell him that he had no interest what so ever to be involved in anyway with the "Copenhagen Agreement" since he is fully satisfied and supports the Vance United Nations Peace Plan for Croatia.

THE COPENHAGEN AGREEMENT ANNOUNCED BY VICE PRESIDENT GORE

Last week the Vice President of the United States, Al Gore, announced in Copenhagen an "agreement" with the President of Croatia, Franjco Tudjman, which allows the United Nations peacekeeping forces to remain in Croatia beyond March 31, 1995.

That "agreement" in Copenhagen was reached with only one of the two parties involved in the conflict namely the Croats. Absent from the "agreement" were the Krajina Serbs the second entity to the conflict.

In order to implement the Copenhagen "Agreement" a new United Nations resolution regarding United Nations peacekeeping forces in Croatia must be drafted, agreed upon by both parties tot he conflict namely the Croats of Zagreb and Krajina Serbs of Knin and adopted by the United Nations Security Council.

The draft of the new United Nations Resolution prepared for discussion by the parties involved provides language that if maintained in the final version of the plan will make it impossible for the Krajina Serbs to accept it.

In the discussions with President Milosevic he indicated what he believes to be possible issues of contention and what he views as potential resolutions.

Item: The reduction of the size of the U.N. Peace Keeping forces from 14,000 to 5,000.

President Milosevic believes that this issue can ultimately be accepted even though it substantively changes the original UNited Nations mandate for Croatia.

Item: The name of the peace keeping force.

The Draft resolution proposes to rename the UNPROFOR. The new name will be the "United Nations Forces". The title of the draft resolution however states that it is a resolution "Creating U.N. peacekeeping in Croatia." Therefore the name of the new United Nations Units in Croatia should be called United Nations peacekeeping forces in keeping both with their proposed mission (mandate) and with the title of the new United Nations Resolution.

Item: Article 3 of the Draft Resolution

Article 3 of the draft United Nations resolution regarding the "Copenhagen Agreement" talks about the purpose of the new United Nations mandate and the United Nations force whatever name it is finally given.

It is it says established for "monitoring the international borders between the Republic of Croatia and the Republic of Bosnia and the Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

President Milosevic believes that it will be impossible for the Krajina Serbs to agree to a United Nations resolution which de facto makes them recognize "the international recognized borders" of Croatia and Bosnia.

President Milosevic believes that the Copenhagen Agreement can be fully implemented utilizing language such as "monitoring of the borders in accordance with the Vance Plan for Croatia" which was officially signed by the Republic of Croatia and the Krajina Serbs.

Item: Article 3^2

President Milosevic believes that additional language is needed clarifying the mandate: for instance language can be added to State that the Security Council of the U.N. guarantees the agreement of the secession of hostilities between Zagreb and Knin.

In other words if the United Nations peacekeeping forces are to monitor "the agreement of March 29" they must also commit to enforcing the provision of the cessation of hostilities.

REPUBLIC OF SERB KRAJINA

SERB KRAJINA PRESIDENT: WE ARE NOT OPPOSED TO CHANGING SIZE OF UNPROFOR

B E L G R A D E, MARCH 21 (TANJUG) - SERB KRAJINA PRESIDENT MILAN MARTIC SAID TUESDAY THAT THE REPUBLIC OF SERB KRAJINA IS NOT OPPOSED TO CHANGING THE NUMBER OF U.N. PEACEKEEPERS IN THE SAFE AREAS, BUT HE DEMANDED THAT THEIR MANDATE REMAINS THE SAME. 'THE SECURITY COUNCIL SHOULD DECIDE ABOUT THE OPTIMUM SIZE OF THE U.N. PROTECTION FORCE,' MARTIC SAID FOLLOWING THE SECOND ROUND OF TALKS WITH U.N. MEDIATOR THORWALD STOLTENBERG IN BELGRADE. MARTIC SAID THAT THE 12,000 PEACEKEEPERS CURRENTLY DEPLOYED IN SERB KRAJINA AND CROATIA 'COULD BE REDUCED TO 5,000, 6,000 OR 7,000.'

MARTIC SAID THAT UNPROFOR'S SIZE COULD BE BIGGER OR SMALLER THAN THE CURRENT ONE, BUT SHOULD BE SUCH TO 'ENABLE IT TO SECURE PEACE ALONG THE SEPARATION LINES.'

SERB KRAJINA DEMANDS THAT UNPROFOR REMAINS IN ITS TERRITORY, MARTIC SAID AND ADDED THAT HE HAD INSISTED ON THIS DURING THE FIRST ROUND OF TALKS WITH STOLTENBERG IN BELGRADE ON MONDAY.

'WE HOPE THAT THE SECURITY COUNCIL WILL OBJECTIVELY CONSIDER ALL POSITIVE ASPECTS OF THE VANCE PLAN AND THAT THE PEACEKEEPERS WILL REMAIN IN THE TERRITORY OF SERB KRAJINA WITH THE SAME MANDATE, AS A PROTECTION FORCE,' MARTIC SAID. MARTIC SAID HE HAD DEMANDED FROM STOLTENBERG THAT A SERB KRAJINA REPRESENTATIVE BE PRESENT WHEN THE SECURITY COUNCIL DISCUSSES THIS ISSUE.

MARTIC SAID THAT CURRENTLY THE KNIN-ZAGREB TALKS ON THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE DEC. 2 ECONOMIC AGREEMENT HAD BEEN FROZEN UNTIL UNPROFOR'S MANDATE IS RESOLVED. 'IF THE SERB KRAJINA DEMAND FOR AN UNCHANGED UNPROFOR MANDATE IS MET, I BELIEVE THE TALKS WILL RESUME,' MARTIC SAID.

ASKED TO COMMENT THE POSSIBILITY OF DEPLOYING UNPROFOR ON THE BORDER BETWEEN THE REPUBLIC OF SERB KRAJINA AND THE BOSNIAN SERB REPUBLIC, MARTIC SAID THE VANCE PLAN HAD EMPOWERED THE PEACEKEEPERS TO MONITOR THE BORDER BETWEEN THE BOSNIAN SERB REPUBLIC AND THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA, BUT UNDERSCORED THAT 'REGARDING THE CONTROL (OF BORDERS) - WE CANNOT AGREE.'

STOLTENBERG SAID HE WOULD SUBMIT A REPORT TO THE U.N. SECRETARY GENERAL ABOUT HIS TALKS IN BELGRADE AND ZAGREB. IN ZAGREB STOLTENBERGMET ON MONDAY EVENING WITH THE CROATIAN PRESIDENT'S SPECIAL ADVISOR, HRVOJE SARINIC. 'MY TASK IS IN FACT TO FIND THE COMMON DENOMINATOR FOR A PLAN WHICH COULD BE BEST IMPLEMENTED TO THE GOOD OF ALL THE PEOPLE IN THE REGION. I AM LOOKING FOR ALL THE COMMON POINTS WHICH COULD RESULT IN A NEW MANDATE FOR THE U.N. TROOPS,' STOLTENBERG SAID.

MEMORANDUM FOR MEMBERS OF THE PRINCIPALS COMMITTEE

FROM: LEON FUERTH

SUBJECT: Sanctions Policy

Sanctions enforcement is gradually degenerating. It is possible to combat this trend, but to do so requires commitment of assets. The attached paper provides a rundown of areas of slippage and proposed countermeasures.

More effective enforcement of sanctions within existing authorities can further isolate Pale and Knin and may help convince Milosevic that sanctions will continue to bite unless he can help bring about negotiated settlements in Bosnia and the Krajina. On the other hand, Russia and the EU seem to be more interested in trading sanctions for incremental steps towards peace, and the Front Line States are increasingly unwilling to bear the burden of sanctions.

The key question for the Principals to address, therefore, is whether, in terms of our overall strategy in the region, it makes sense for the U.S. Government to press the Western Europeans, Russia, and the Front Line States to strengthen sanctions enforcement as a way to push Milosevic and the Pale and Knin Serbs towards the sorts of negotiated settlements we seek.

The Principals could also review the specific points in the attached paper if there is time. If not, I recommend that the Principals remand those issues to the Deputies for decision and implementation.

SUBJECT: Sanctions Improvements -- Practical Steps

Sanctions fatigue has set in but in an unexpected way. Fatigue is most evident in the West where political will is flagging and the focus is on trading sanctions for incremental, often reversible, progress in negotiations. Front-line states are maintaining enforcement in proportion to the degree of cohesion they perceive in the West and the West's pressure on them to maintain effective sanctions enforcement. Unfortunately, even the U.S. Government's message has been inconsistent, with too little emphasis on the continued importance of sanctions.

Sanctions can still provide significant leverage by isolating Pale and Knin (the "Inner Ring" of sanctions) and convincing Milosevic (the "Outer Ring") that sanctions will continue to bite unless he can help bring about negotiated settlements in Bosnia and the Krajina. By making effective sanctions a priority and devoting increased resources to enforcement programs, the U.S. and the Western Europeans can increase pressure on Pale, Knin, and Belgrade within existing sanctions authority.

This memorandum lays out the components of a program for enhanced sanctions enforcement. Many of the steps should be matters of routine sanctions maintenance. However, given flagging Western European support for sanctions and extremely lax enforcement in certain key countries, significant progress is impossible unless the USG puts political weight behind its efforts.

I. Main Problem Areas

A. General

1. Flagging Western European support for the sanctions effort is our main obstacle. The EU has not made sanctions a priority in its relations with the front-line states. EU members have sought to weaken sanctions in the UN Yugoslavia Sanctions Committee, leaving the U.S. isolated. Greece and Italy are unwilling to comply with mandatory UN resolutions or even EU directives on sanctions. European governments are also slow to provide necessary resources and support for the sanctions program. (See item II. A.)

B. Outer Ring

1. Fuel, the most critical commodity in both the outer and inner sanctions rings, continues to reach the FRY and the Bosnian Serbs. The main source of leakage is fuel from Italy and Greece entering the FRY from Albania. Significant smuggling also takes place across the Danube from Romania and from Greece and Bulgaria through FYROM. Romania has not fulfilled commitments to limit the amount of jet fuel supplied to empty Yugoslav airline (JAT) aircraft shuttling between Timisoara and Belgrade. Hungary has not controlled the "ant trade" of fuel smuggling in private cars and buses and auxiliary tanks on trucks. (See items II. B, C, and G.)

Declassify on: OADR

2. Cypriot, Russian, and Greek attitudes towards sanctions continue to create problems. Serbian firms in Cyprus, Russia, and Greece conduct business virtually unimpeded by sanctions, earning hard currency and arranging sanctions-busting trade. Cyprus has proven unwilling to take effective enforcement measures. Russia has yet to pass laws necessary to bring sanctions into effect, and existing decrees are not meaningfully enforced. Russian trade and economic cooperation with Serbia continues. Russia has also taken positions in the Sanctions Committee that prevent closing loopholes. (For example, several of the front-line states will not take stronger steps to control cross border traffic without instructions from the Sanctions Committee, but Russia has blocked Committee action.) Serbian activities in Greece, especially Thessaloniki, continue to flourish. (See item II. D.)

3. Serbian exports through Macedonia of manufactured and agricultural products earn hard currency and support barter trade. Imports via FYROM keep key industries moving. The Macedonian government has no meaningful controls in place at the border with Serbia, and Serb-origin shipments regularly receive false documentation as Macedonian products. FYROM's neighbors -- Albania, Bulgaria, and Greece -- shrug off responsibility for FYROM's trade with Serbia, even though the bulk of goods involved transit, and often originate on, their territory. (See item II. C.)

C. Inner Ring

1. FRY implementation of its border closure with Bosnian Serb-held territory has declined significantly since its high point before renewal of limited sanctions relief in January. At the same time, the ICFY monitoring mission is in financial crisis. ICFY has already cut staffing, and Owen and Stoltenberg threaten to shut down the mission altogether if financial problems are not solved. The U.S. and EU must provide the resources necessary to restore ICFY effectiveness. However, these resources will be wasted, and the ICFY mission's hard work will have no meaning, unless the international community is willing to take a hard line in response to clear Serbian testing at the inter-Serb border. On the other hand, revocation of Phase

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

I sanctions relief could cause Milosevic to end his embargo of the Bosnian Serbs altogether. (See item II. E.)

2. The "back door" remains a major source of supply for Pale and Knin Serb forces. Fuel, military supplies and other goods transiting the Dalmatian coast reach Bosnian Serbs through Croat-controlled (and maybe even Muslim-controlled) territory in Bosnia. Diversions to and exports from the Bosnian Serbs through the UNPAS could become a major loophole if economic confidence building measures between Zagreb and the Krajina Serbs are not accompanied by requisite sanctions control. Already there is evidence that goods shipped on the Zagreb-Belgrade highway are diverted to/from Bosnian Serb-held territory. There are only seven Sanctions Assistance Monitors (SAMs) in Croatia -- not enough to cover the Zagreb-Belgrade highway on a 24-hour basis or to monitor commerce through Dalmatia. (See item II. F.)

II. Proposed Actions

A. Establish a united front with Western Europeans on both inner and outer ring sanctions. Take joint and bilateral action to maintain and improve sanctions enforcement. Ensure that front-line state governments understand that sanctions remain an important part of the West's strategy toward the former Yugoslavia and that their performance on sanctions matters to us.

- U.S. officials at every level should stress the importance of sanctions in all appropriate fora. Failure to do so sends the message that sanctions no longer count.

- The USG should press for a U.S.-EU mission to the front-line states to discuss the need for strict implementation and recognize instances of good performance. U.S. Ambassadors to EU and front-line countries should regularly brief host governments on sanctions issues.

B. Control oil smuggling through Albania to the FRY.

- Get the EU to join in pressing Italy and Greece to control oil shipments to Albania through a pre-verification system that allows shipments to legitimate Albanian end users only.

- Jointly press Albania to do a better job.

- Have the NATO-WEU force (SHARP GUARD) cooperate with Albania in stopping oil tankers that have not been pre-verified (may require a change in the current UN mandate).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

C. Persuade FYROM to limit trade with Serbia, and get other countries to control shipments to and from FYROM.

- Press Albania and Bulgaria to cooperate with SAMs to help monitor their trade with FYROM, since much of the FYROM-Serbia trade enters or exists via Albania and Bulgaria.

- Press the EU to do a better job of controlling its trade with FYROM since a substantial portion of FYROM "exports" actually comes from Serbia. (This complements the action above and helps alleviate the burden on Albania and Bulgaria. Serbian exports can be identified, tracked, and caught at the final destination.)

D. We and the EU press Russia, Cyprus, and Greece to control FRY-interest firms operating in their territory and to stop other practices that violate sanctions regulations. We and the EU press Russia and Greece to desist from taking positions in the UN and EU that undermine the effectiveness of the sanctions regime.

E. Decide whether and how specifically to signal that the USG might might oppose continuation of Phase I sanctions relief after the current UN resolution expires on April 22.

- Decide whether the U.S. should seek immediate revocation of Phase I sanctions relief if the ICFY mission ceases operation because of financial problems.

- Decide how strongly to protest specific violations of the border closure.

F. Close the "back door" to Pale, starting small by building on what the SAMs have already accomplished in Croatia and on their good relations with the GOC.

- Re-deploy 10-12 U.S. SAMs to Croatia so that the SAM-Croatia can cover the Zagreb-Belgrade highway 24-hours a day.

- Press other SAM donors to bring SAM-Croatia up to 30-35 monitors to cover loading of humanitarian supplies in Zagreb and to re-institute cooperation with Croatian customs on the Dalmatian coast to help prevent shipments of goods to the Bosnian Serbs via Federation territory.

- Provide training and technical assistance for Croatian and Federation Customs. (By helping the GOC and Federation to create the wherewithal to control trade on their borders, we are also contributing to an important aspect of their national sovereignty.)

G. Tighten enforcement of cross-border trade at the outer ring.

- Press Hungary to control the ant trade and to limit the amount of fuel that trucks can carry into Serbia. Prevent empty trucks from entering Serbia (a major source of smuggled fuel).

- Obtain agreement of EU governments to inspect and seal -- at loading -- UN authorized shipments bound for the FRY. (Almost all authorized shipments for the FRY originating in Western Europe cross at two sites in Hungary. A pre-inspection system would greatly reduce the burden on Hungarian customs and SAMs, thus freeing resources needed to counter smuggling.)

- Press Romania to control the ant trade in fuel, stop the FRY from importing aviation fuel via flights of empty JAT airliners to Timisoara, and stop supplying electricity to the FRY.

H. Resolve outstanding sanctions issues in ways that reinforce the overall sanctions regime.

- Seek front-line state cooperation on implementing a transit route for perishable agricultural products around Serbia as an alternative to pending requests for transit corridors through Serbia. Work with Bulgaria and other front-line States to address overall land transit issues as part of a comprehensive approach that identifies needed enforcement improvements as tradeoffs.

- Identify conditions under which Serb-owned vessels engaged in cabotage (internal trade) can use the Romanian side of the Iron Gates locks while the Serb locks are under repair. Conditions might include ending illegal Danube tolls and other interference with Danube shipping.

I. Decide whether the U.S. should modify its own sanctions regulations to implement Phase I sanctions relief through the sale of repair parts for U.S.-built aircraft being flown by JAT and/or allowing U.S.-FRY sports and cultural contacts.

REPUBLIC OF BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA
OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE PRESIDENCY
SARAJEVO

22 March, 1995

H.E. Dr. Boutros Boutros - Ghali
Secretary - General
United Nations
New York

Excellency:

There is a steadily growing gap between the UNPROFOR mandate as provided for by the Security Council and the actual implementation of that mandate. In view of the fact that it was actually always necessary to strengthen those mechanisms, including the UNPROFOR mandate, that promote the cause of peace and humanitarian efforts, this negative tendency toward the erosion of the mandate is most disconcerting at this time.

Therefore, it is imperative that a thorough review be undertaken of both the current Security Council mandate with respect to UNPROFOR and its actual implementation before it is extended beyond March 31, 1995. There are numerous factors as well as developing events that should be considered in this review, including: the changes for UNPROFOR in Croatia and Macedonia; the expiration of the cease - fire in Bosnia and Herzegovina; the reluctant peace process; Serbia and Montenegro's failure to recognize its neighbors; the deteriorating humanitarian situation; the failure to lift the siege of Sarajevo or even to assure the "Blue Routes"; the harassment of the operations at Sarajevo airport and access routes therefrom; the violation of the exclusion zone around Sarajevo and Gorazde as well as the continuing incursions into the other "safe areas"; the persistent onslaught against Bihac, especially through the violation of our international border with the Republic of Croatia; impeding of humanitarian aid convoys; continuing ethnic cleansing in areas under Serbian occupation; and escalating violations of the "no - fly" zone.

Because the expiration of the current UNPROFOR mandate on March 31, 1995 is a relatively short time away, we would be willing to favorably consider extending the existing mandate for a period of no more than 30 days to accomplish this comprehensive review. We look forward to contributing positively in this review and are prepared to endorse measures designed to promote the peace process, improve effectiveness and the humanitarian situation, and secure the territorial integrity and sovereignty of the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Please accept, Excellency, the renewed assurances of my highest consideration.

Sincerely,

SIGNED

Alija Izetbegovic

Options for Bosnia--Fighting Escalates in the Spring

Purpose: To identify military options that can deter or restrain potential Bosnian Serb military action as fighting intensifies after the expiration of the Cessation of Hostilities Agreement on April 30, 1995. The overall objectives are to contain the conflict, reduce the level of violence, ensure the delivery of humanitarian relief supplies and create an environment that will promote a settlement by all the warring parties

Current Dilemma: The current 70/30 territorial split is satisfactory to the Bosnian Serbs but not satisfactory to the Bosnian Government, whose territorial aspirations will not be satisfied by anything less than the Contact Group division of 51/49. The government has used the winter to improve its military capability. Thus the key to the level of fighting over the summer is Bosnian Government forces who have already begun to initiate military action against the Bosnian Serbs. The BSA has a number of response options beyond direct military confrontation, including attacking or threatening non-combatants in populated areas like Sarajevo, disrupting humanitarian relief operations, or attacking UNPROFOR directly. Increased hostilities have already aggravated the humanitarian problem in Bihac. Renewed/increased hostilities are also likely to threaten Sarajevo and/or the eastern enclaves. UNPROFOR could be caught in the middle.

Assumptions:

- The U.S. will neither provide direct military support to Bosnian Government initiated action to reverse the current territorial situation .
- Bosnia Government military activity will not threaten non-combatants, disrupt humanitarian relief operations, nor target UNPROFOR.
- NATO will agree to U.S. initiatives. The options listed below require the willingness of many actors. Several of the options have been proposed before but have lacked any consensus for action.

Issues: (1) U.S./NATO military options to limit the violence. (2) Actions UNPROFOR can take to convince the warring parties that a negotiated solution is the preferred course of action. (3) NATO and U.S. options to pressure the UN to be more aggressive.

General Response: The willingness of UNPROFOR to modify its current status is the critical element in any response strategy for Bosnia. The US has no direct leverage on the situation in Bosnia without the cooperation and desire for support from UNPROFOR and NATO.

The options below are designed to make UNPROFOR more capable and willing to employ available forces to meet military requirements over the summer. The options are first described generally and then broken down into specific actions under three threat categories. General options are:

- Follow through on the December 1994 CHOD initiative at The Hague. On December 20, 1994, the NATO countries developed a range of options for a more robust approach. The early momentum of pledges to augment UNPROFOR with men and equipment has dissipated.

- Follow through on process to create safe areas/exclusion zones and/or turn existing safe areas into exclusion zones (EZs); The UN Secretary General report in December 1994 was critical of the ineffectual implementation of safe areas and EZs. This could be the first step in a build down approach as advocated by Senator Nunn;

- Assign UNPROFOR units departing Croatia to B-H. Approximately five-ten thousand troops may be leaving as a result of the new UN force structure in Croatia. Many contributing nations may be willing to continue their presence in Bosnia. This would be a ready source of manpower for augmentation.

- Use additional manpower either to force land convoys through, to guard more effectively the weapons control locations, or to strengthen presence in the enclaves. These ideas were proposed by the UK in December 1994 at the CHOD. They are consistent with the UN mandate, but require deterrent airpower to be effective;

- More rigorously enforce the exclusion zones; use air power to eliminate violations. Appropriate authorization already exists with UNSCRs 836, 908, and 958 as well as NAC decisions reached on November 10, 19, & 24, 1994. The difficulty has been with dual key (and at times triple key) implementation procedures. ROE are in place but may not be sufficiently robust;

- Suppress enemy air defenses (SEAD) to facilitate humanitarian airlift/airdrop when reinforced land convoys are not practical. UNSCRs 836 and 958 and NAC decision of November 22, 1994, authorize these operations with the same dual key problems as above.

- Rigorously enforce Deny Flight with SEAD operations, airstrikes, and CAS as appropriate. Again, the NAC and UNSCR authorizations are in place. The difficulties are the practical ones of reaching consensus for action in a timely manner under the constraints of dual and triple key arrangements.

SPECIFIC MILITARY OPTIONS:

Attacks on non-combatants:

1. Safe Area/EZ focus--clearly define the safe areas; create small EZs and expand them. Concentrate UNPROFOR more heavily in these areas. Use military force to defend the people within, including the use of airpower to destroy heavy weapons violating the EZs; requires improved C2 and more and better equipped UNPROFOR.

Classified by OASD
Declassify on OADR CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

~~SECRET~~

2. Central Based Rapid Reaction Force--create viable, mechanized reaction force to respond with ground combat power and air support to defend populations under attack or to break a siege; requires improved C3I, combat equipment, and logistical support.
3. Consolidate populations in UNPROFOR protected safe areas; requires support of the people displaced and greater resources to address their humanitarian needs.

Attacks on UNPROFOR:

1. Increase size and capabilities of UNPROFOR units; give them the manpower and equipment to deter or repel attacks; consolidate UNPROFOR to provide economy of force and efficiency; might require pulling back some of the UNMOs and closing isolated weapons storage sites.
2. Strengthen UNPROFOR escorting humanitarian convoys; develop tougher ROE;
3. Strengthen UNPROFOR at any remaining weapons storage sites; develop appropriate ROE to resist any attempts to seize weapons from the sites.

Disruption of humanitarian relief operations:

1. Secure the Sarajevo airport--requires more and better equipped troops; likely requires the use of SEAD operations , airstrikes, and CAS to keep the air routes safe for the airlift missions; probably requires the establishment and enforcement of a DMZ.
2. Strengthen UNPROFOR escorting the land convoys; idea is to force way through if necessary with adequate ground forces and air cover.
3. Secure a land route to Sarajevo (and perhaps other locations); requires more and better equipped UNPROFOR (armed escort plus rapid reaction force); weather may be a concern, particularly in the winter.
4. Secure Tuzla airport--requires redeployment of UNPROFOR.
5. Consolidate UNPROFOR relief operations activities.

Conclusion: The level of violence and humanitarian suffering in Bosnia this spring and summer will be determined by three factors which provide the US three primary points of influence to affect the situation. First, the nature and scope of Bosnian Government military operation and their degree of success likely will set the overall tone in renewed fighting in Bosnia over the next few months. Second, the Serbs have several response options to government military actions, including attacks on population centers and humanitarian relief efforts. The third factor, and the one most significant to US and international response planning, is the willingness of UNPROFOR to take the necessary organizational and procedural measures to enable aggressive action to respond to an increase in violence. These conditions suggest that the first steps in dealing with the summer violence in Bosnia are to determine if the US will seek to limit government military actions and to determine if UNPROFOR can be persuaded to modify its structures and procedures to deter or restrain Serb attacks. ~~If the former cannot be attained, the latter is not possible.~~
One is probably not attainable without the other.

A Possible Strategy to Extend The Cease-fire

Our goal over the next few weeks should be to extend the cessation agreement in Bosnia beyond May 1, thus holding down the fighting ("small war") and avoiding the need for a US-assisted withdrawal of UNPROFOR. Because Sarajevo has consistently refused to extend the cessation in a vacuum, we have sought -- with Sarajevo's concurrence -- to create a political/diplomatic process with Belgrade. But after our own face-to-face meetings with Milosevic, and a series of Allied and Russian meetings, it is clear to all that he is not prepared to recognize Bosnia.

With the cessation agreement beginning to unravel and the Milosevic card all but played out (the Contact Group plans one last attempt next week), we need urgently to consider other ways to convince Sarajevo to extend the agreement -- and to send a message to Pale that their intransigence will not be rewarded. There are two approaches we might consider: strengthening the UNPROFOR mandate and enhancing the ICFY border monitoring effort.

UNPROFOR Mandate

Last week, the GOBH announced that the UNPROFOR mandate in Bosnia would not be renewed past March 31, 1995 unless the UN undertakes a complete review of the "growing gap" between the mandate and its implementation. Taking a page from Tudjman's playbook, Izetbegovic is gambling that Bosnia can win a better deal from the international community through brinksmanship. In a March 25 press conference, Izetbegovic described his conditions for an extended mandate:

-- Protect the protected zones, in line with Resolutions 824 and 836;

-- Implement the mandate on the basis of the NATO ultimatum of February 9, 1994 concerning the Sarajevo heavy weapons exclusion zone;

-- Push Karadzic's forces from the Srebrenica demilitarized zone;

-- Take protective measures against snipers in Sarajevo; and

-- Open the Blue Routes.

We should consider ways to meet Izetbegovic's concerns on renewing UNPROFOR's mandate in return for which we would ask him for an extension of the cessation agreement. Some of what Sarajevo wants could fit in with the OSD paper on strengthening UN actions in Bosnia (Tab 3). Some are also consistent with concepts previously discussed during the CHOD meetings in the Hague in December.

With our allies increasingly concerned about the outbreak of fighting, we can use the UNPROFOR mandate renewal to support UNPROFOR strengthening measures as the best remaining option for preventing a "big war" this Spring. Similarly, we must drive home to Sarajevo the importance we attach to securing an extension to the cessation of hostilities beyond May 1. This approach allows us to work with our allies, not the Serbs, giving us a correspondingly higher chance of success. Moreover, if we are successful, we would not only be able to extend the cease-fire but also have an UNPROFOR configured and equipped in a way that more closely corresponds to the situation on the ground.

ICFY Monitoring

We should also use the issue of mandate renewal to increase the effectiveness of the ICFY Border monitoring mission. In a fit of pique over the question of monitoring recently, Milosevic told Bob Frasure that he is willing to increase monitoring -- as long as we pay for it. We ought to call his bluff and offer to put as many people (and as much equipment) as possible on the border. This, combined with a strengthened UNPROFOR, would further isolate Pale.

Summary of Conclusions

Sanctions

1. Principals discussed whether and under what conditions to support extension of limited sanctions relief for the FRY beyond the second 100-day period that ends on April 22. Principals agreed that while the border closure has proven less effective than desired, other variables, including the situation on the ground and views of Allies and the Government of Bosnia-Herzegovina, must be taken into account. Duration of Sanctions Relief

2. Principals agreed to support a conditioned extension of sanctions relief for less then 100 days, with the exact timeframe to be determined after consultations with the Bosnian Government. Principals agreed that State should seek definitive views from the Bosnian Government (Action: State) and that Ambassador Albright should incorporate those views in negotiations with Allies on the length of additional sanctions relief. (Action: USUN) (S)

Conditions for Sanctions Relief

3. Principals agreed that additional conditions must be included in any new extension of sanctions relief. Those conditions could include, but are not limited to, an end to all cross-border helicopter flights, the termination of telecommunication links between Serbia-Montenegro and Serb-controlled areas of Bosnia, an end to exports from Serbia-Montenegro to Serb-controlled areas of Bosnia under the auspices of the Yugoslav Red Cross and an end to bus transit of Serb soldiers across the border. The U.S. will also pursue measures aimed at closing the "back door," the transshipment of FRY goods through Croatia to Bosnian Serb territory. Principals authorized Ambassador Albright to discuss conditions that should be applied to sanctions relief extension. (Action: USUN) (S)

Tactics

4. Principals discussed the difficulties that will be encountered in crafting an acceptable resolution extending sanctions relief and authorized Ambassador Albright to negotiate with Allies and the Government of Bosnia in the drafting of the resolution. They also agreed that Ambassador Albright should use the threat of a veto in order to ensure the resolution meets U.S. conditions. (S)

Sanctions Tightening Measures

5. Principals deferred discussion of additional sanctions issues and remanded to the Deputies Committee approval of measures to close the "back door" and reduce the transshipment of oil to Serbia-Montenegro through Albania. Principals also asked Deputies to continue efforts to resolve ICFY related funding issues that are hindering ICFY operations. (Action: OVP/State)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Contact Group Status and Prospects

6. Principals reviewed the lack of progress in the Contact Group's latest efforts to gain Milosevic's recognition of Bosnia and the other former Yugoslav Republics in exchange for additional sanctions relief. They agreed that the Contact Group was nearing its useful end as a negotiating body but that we would continue to support the Contact Group plan as the basis for a negotiated settlement, noting that Bosnian Serb continued rejection of the plan remains the primary obstacle to peace. Principals authorized Ambassador Frasure to discuss with the Bosnians the importance of reducing the level of violence in any renewed fighting in order to keep UNPROFOR in Bosnia. (Action: State) (S)

OPLAN 40104

7. Principals reviewed the status of OPLAN 40104 that covers NATO participation in UNPROFOR's withdrawal from Bosnia. Noting that unanswered policy questions remain, they directed the IWG to develop a list of unanswered policy questions and answers relating to the plan for Deputies' review before briefing the plan to the President and Congress. (Action: NSC with input from State/OSD/JCS) Principals agreed that Congressional consultations should be completed before voting to approve the plan in the NAC or identifying specific U.S. units that will participate in the operation. (S)

Command and Control

8. Principals reaffirmed that U.S. participation in UNPROFOR withdrawal is possible only if the operation is under full NATO command and control. They agreed that Ambassador Albright should remind the UNSYG of the requirement for NATO command and control. (Action: USUN) Principals further directed that clear guidance be provided to our representatives at NATO concerning the approval process within the USG. (Action: State/JCS) (S)

NATO Prepositioning

9. Principals reviewed the progress of NATO prepositioning efforts, noting that the SACEUR had been given the authority by the North Atlantic Council to deploy the Step Two mini-propositioning force (80 personnel, including 20 U.S.). Deployment is expected in late April or early May. Principals agreed that because the NATO operation has not begun, the deploying mini-prepositioning forces will be under national command, NATO operational control and UN tactical control. These command arrangements are similar to those in place for the other U.S. military personnel already serving in Croatia. Principals agreed that concerned Congressional Staff and members should be briefed on these arrangements before the deployment begins. (Action: JCS) Subsequent decisions will be required before deploying the maxi-prepositioning force to Croatia and regarding the appropriate command and control arrangements at that stage. (S)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Options for Strengthening UNPROFOR

10. Principals briefly reviewed the progress of ongoing efforts with the British and the French to strengthen UNPROFOR. Noting that Allies remain very reluctant to undertake meaningful strengthening measures, Principals agreed that the CJCS would report on further progress following his meetings with his counterparts during the week of April 24 in Brussels. (Action: JCS) (S)

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE

THROUGH: ALEXANDER VERSHBOW

FROM: DON KERRICK

SUBJECT: Issue Sheet: Extending Sanctions Relief for FRY.

ISSUE FOR DECISION: Whether and under what conditions to support extension of sanctions relief for the FRY beyond second 100-day period (April 22).

BACKGROUND: UNSCR 943 gave limited sanctions relief to FRY for initial 100-day period (ended January 13) for verified effective closure of "inter-Serb border" to all goods except foodstuffs, medicine and clothing. UNSCR 970 extended sanctions relief for second 100-day period ending April 22.

EVALUATING BELGRADE'S PERFORMANCE: CIA assessment at Tab A. Draft options paper at Tab B. Overall, performance remained constant or marginally better with numerous reports of violations. In terms of trends, however, performance deteriorated somewhat over second 100-day period. ICFY co-chairmen certified FRY met commitment to close border on the ground, but acknowledges that numerous helicopter flights occurred and that airspace is not closed. (Our view: will be difficult to explain reports of helicopter border violations coupled with other reported violations equal real border closure). Performance standard is verified effective border closure, not Contact Group map acceptance.

LACK OF MONEY HAMPERS ICFY: ICFY limping along — nearly broke. U.S. $300K delivered April 11. No new funds on horizon. ICFY needs quick cash infusion to operate beyond June 1.

OVERALL ASSESSMENT: Border closure and cease-fire have not brought acceptance of Contact Group plan as hoped. Border closure affects Pale, but has not completely severed Serbian lifeline nor dampened political will. Contact Group partners and Russia favor extension. Izetbegovic believed to support conditional extension rather than risking complete border reopening if sanctions reimposed.

OPTIONS:

A. Extend sanctions relief on current basis.

ASSESSMENT: Perpetuates regime where violations will continue to grow in number. Hard to justify to Congress.

B. Extend sanctions relief for another 100 days, but with additional conditions and, possibly, a hair-trigger termination mechanism if specific violations occur.

ASSESSMENT: Maintains existing limited leverage vis-à-vis Pale but increases pressure on Milosevic to improve performance. Bosnian Government reportedly favors this approach in order to maintain Pale isolation. Somewhat easier to justify to Hill.

Additional conditions could include declaration that this will be last extension unless all helicopter flights are ended, telecommunications links cut, exports ended to Bosnian Serb-controlled areas using cover of Yugoslav Red Cross, and steps taken to end circumvention of border closure through back door. Hair-trigger would terminate sanctions relief in the event of a single helicopter flight or flagrant violations on the ground.

C. Determine Milosevic fails test – terminate sanctions relief, press for sanctions tightening.

ASSESSMENT: U.S. would be isolated. Dramatic admission of Contact Group failure. Undermine whatever positive influence Milosevic brings to process. Strengthen Karadzic without progress in peace process. On other hand, would be easiest option to justify to Congress.

D. Terminate sanctions relief, but delay tightening to give Milosevic chance to improve performance and regain relief.

ASSESSMENT: Same as above and not likely to bring about improved performance.

RECOMMENDATION: Option B. Conditioned extension for another 100 days with new vote needed to extend again. Suggest Principals authorize Ambassador Albright to negotiate best conditioned extension possible. Hair-trigger may be hardest to sell, but could be bargained away in exchange for measures to close back door, increase ICFY monitors, and tighten other loopholes in enforcement against FRY. Direct calls could be made next week to inform Hill of decision. Principals should also direct State to press Allies for new ICFY funding.

Intelligence Report

Inter-Serbian Sanctions: Assessment #6 3.5c

Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic continues to support sanctions against the Bosnian Serbs in hopes of isolating Bosnian Serb President Radovan Karadzic and of getting sanctions on Serbia and Montenegro (FRY) lifted. Milosevic apparently is allowing limited resupply to the Bosnian Serb Army (BSA) so the BSA is not prevented from holding its own against the Bosnian Army. 3.5c

Activity since mid-January at internationally monitored border crossings suggests that the embargo and winter weather have held shipments across the Serbia-Bosnia border to below pre-August levels, when the embargo was imposed. Since mid-February enforcement overall has deteriorated from the levels noted in late December, which suggests that the Bosnian Serbs are increasingly obtaining embargoed goods and that the VJ is supplying the BSA. In addition to those crossing the Serbia-Bosnia border, other goods are reaching the Bosnian Serbs through Croatia, a large potential loophole that probably is the largest conduit for fuel to the Bosnian Serbs. 3.5c

Because the embargo has reduced the amount of goods crossing the Serbia-Bosnia border, it has imposed some pain on Pale's civilian economy, particularly its financial and industrial sectors. There are no indications that the embargo has had a serious impact on the BSA's capabilities, even with some spot shortages reported. The BSA seems largely self-sufficient in logistics capability, except for fuel and some munitions. 1.4c the Bosnian Serb network to acquire critical munitions is still in operation, and Pale probably has used the current cease-fire to resupply its forces. 3.5c

Milosevic Keeping Pressure on Karadzic With Sanctions

Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic continues to support sanctions against the Bosnian Serbs. He probably has determined that he has few other means for pressuring and isolating Bosnian Serb President Radovan Karadzic. Milosevic also hopes that the West will respond by dropping sanctions on Serbia and Montenegro (FRY). Another former source of political pressure, the dissident group of Bosnian Serb assembly members who are aligned with Milosevic, apparently has lost its impetus to pressure Karadzic. 1.4c So far, Milosevic has not forced Karadzic to accept a peace plan Belgrade likes, nor has he significantly weakened him with sanctions. Nevertheless, Karadzic may now be feeling some pressure after eight months of sanctions. Milosevic's pressure will continue to grow, as will internal pressure from the constant shortage of essentials. 3.5c

Milosevic probably does not intend for the embargo to prevent the Bosnian Serb Army (BSA) from holding its own against the Bosnian Army. Moreover, his allowing some assistance to the BSA appeases the leadership of the Yugoslav Army, which generally opposes Milosevic's blockade of the Bosnian Serbs. As a consequence, he is apparently allowing limited resupply to the BSA so long as it serves Serbian political aims and the activity can be plausibly denied.

This memorandum was prepared by analysts of the DCI Interagency Balkan Task Force. The report was requested by Leon Fuerth, Assistant to the Vice President for National Security Affairs, to provide information on Serbia's sanctions against the Bosnian Serbs. Shipments Across FRY-Bosnia Border Remain Restricted suggests that Belgrade's embargo and winter weather have held shipments across the Serbia-Bosnia border to levels below those observed before the embargo was imposed in August. The presence of the monitors from the International Conference on the Former Yugoslavia (ICFY) at most of the border crossings capable of handling large quantities of goods has inhibited major violations of the embargo. In particular, only one large-scale fuel shipment attempted since 30 December, suggesting that Belgrade has largely shut off such shipments across the Bosnian border. 3.5c

In response to ICFY requests since January, FRY officials implemented measures that have helped restrict shipments. As it did in late December 1994, Belgrade recently addressed major problems with an eye toward the United Nations review on lifting sanctions on the FRY scheduled for April.

- Customs officers increased the number and thoroughness of bus inspections at many of the major border crossings, but implementation has been inconsistent, 1.4c As a result of their auto and bus inspections, Yugoslav officials at the border have regularly confiscated or turned back unauthorized shipments of fuel, construction materials, agricultural supplies, clothing, and livestock. During February, for example, officials confiscated 26 tons of fuel and 19 tons of fertilizer, but suggests that similar amounts of fuel were turned back from the border but not confiscated. In March, a patrol reportedly confiscated about 80 tons of fuel from four trucks using hidden tanks.

- Yugoslav officials have taken steps to reduce the use of some minor crossings and bypasses discovered by ICFY monitors. 1.4c

- On 13 March, ICFY protested to FRY officials about buses loaded with soldiers transiting the border. 1.4c Belgrade promised to take immediate action, and there have been no subsequent confirmed transits of troops.

- ICFY 1.4c stopped 24-hour monitoring at the Jamena ferry crossing after the FRY had erected barricades in response to ICFY's request.

Clinton Library Photocopy

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Serbia also has cooperated with ICFY at Priboj and Uzice in inspecting and sealing Yugoslav trains that transit Bosnia, including freight cars on passenger trains.

- In March, Serbian postal officials were checking packages for prohibited goods, 1.4c

- On 27 March, Customs Director Kertes agreed to improve controls on loading Yugoslav Red Cross (YRC) trucks to ensure that only approved goods were included in the shipments. 1.4c unidentified FRY officials were pressuring them to allow YRC vehicles to be used to move unauthorized goods into Bosnia. 3.5c

Belgrade also has imposed more penalties on smugglers. Yugoslav customs initiated action in 215 cases of sanctions violations in February and imposed fines of 127,000 dinars. 1.4c this was a marked improvement over the August 1994 to January 1995 period when 138 cases were initiated and 341,450 dinars in fines were meted out. 3.5c

Widespread Problems at the Border Indicate Enforcement Deteriorating

Although Belgrade has addressed some ICFY concerns and no large shipments have been observed, the nature and frequency of enforcement shortcomings since mid-February indicate enforcement overall has deteriorated from the levels noted in late December. The deteriorating enforcement suggests that the Bosnian Serbs are increasingly obtaining embargoed goods and that the VJ is supplying the BSA across the Bosnia border. 1.4c we cannot determine if the enforcement deficiencies have allowed enough shipments to compensate for quantities lost from the cutoff in August 1994 of large trucks.

Clinton Library Photocopy
CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

3.5c

1.4c

Moreover, 1.4c Belgrade is shipping large quantities of fuel and other goods to the Bosnian Serbs through Croatia via the Belgrade-Zagreb highway. Large-scale use of this route could have permitted Belgrade to shift cargo trucks away from the inter-Serb border, accounting for the apparent cessation of transits at those crossings. In addition, the information on the detected cross-border helicopter flights is insufficient to confirm that any have been used to resupply the BSA. 3.5c

Deteriorating Enforcement Against "Ant Trade"

ICFY has had few indications of transits by large cargo trucks or tankers across the border, but the flow of truck, bus, automobile, farm tractor, and pedestrian traffic, which composes the "ant trade," appears to have been relatively steady through March at ICFY-manned crossings. Monitors have noted significant enforcement deficiencies by FRY officials against this traffic since mid-February. In particular, ICFY patrols in March detected an increasing number unauthorized truck transits. 3.5c

Yugoslav officials have not responded to monitors' requests to improve enforcement procedures, have not halted repeated violations, and have attempted to circumvent ICFY controls. 1.4c, 3.5c

3.5c

Gaps in ICFY Coverage Leave Loopholes

Smuggling activity 1.4c suggests that goods are crossing the border where international monitoring is irregular or nonexistent. As of 31 March, ICFY is monitoring 19 border crossings--down from 21 around the clock--and is deploying fewer patrols. The remainder of the approximately 130 Serbia-Bosnia border crossings are monitored solely by the VJ, FRY customs, or police. 1.4c, 3.5c

[redacted] funding constraints have forced personnel reductions, which in turn has reduced the number of crossings monitored full time and the number of patrols. [redacted] detailed several incidents in March touching on monitor security, which could lead the monitors to be more cautious in patrolling away from the manned posts and less inclined to press Serbian officials to improve enforcement. 3.5c

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

1.4c inadequate coverage by FRY patrols, inadequate personnel and facilities to support inspections, and insufficient guidance on enforcement regulations also have hampered enforcement. 1.4c, 3.5c

Pressure on FRY officials from Serbs living and trading along the border also may contribute to lax enforcement. 1.4c

A confrontation on 14 March between police and Bosnian Serb civilians at Krstac escalated into an exchange of gunfire and grenades. At the Nudo Valley checkpoint, on 10 March that a customs officer was reluctant to inspect most of the vehicles because he claimed that the local people knew him. 3.5c

Unauthorized Helicopter Activity Continuing

Since January, there have been several incidents reported of helicopters apparently crossing between Serbia and Bosnia. Since January, 1.4c 50 cross-border violations of the No-Fly Zone. Most flights detected originate in Bosnia and cross into Serbia because the flights entering Bosnia probably fit the profile of clandestine arms supply flights flown singly and primarily at night. 3.5c

The largest suspected cross-border violation occurred on 3 February when 1.4c around the eastern enclave of Srebrenica reported 15 helicopters flying approximately 10 kilometers north of the enclave traveling in a westerly direction. Because of the flight direction and proximity to the border, reported that the aircraft were crossing the border into Bosnia. At the same time, UN observers stationed at the Surcin radar facility, which is used to monitor the border for illegal cross-border flight activity, were denied access to the facility. In response to UN inquiries, Belgrade claimed that no helicopters crossed the border. The United Nations subsequently dropped its investigation for lack of evidence. The UN observers have been allowed to reenter the Surcin radar facility and have continued to monitor the radar for cross-border flight activity. 3.5c

Military-Related Activity Increasing Along the Border

Since late January, reports of military vehicles, aircraft, and troops crossing the border have increased. The reports reinforce 1.4c that Belgrade is providing some support to the BSA despite the embargo.

Belgrade Using Croatian "Back Door" to Get Around Embargo

In addition to goods transiting the Serbia-Bosnia border because of deteriorating enforcement, fuel and other products from the FRY are reaching the Bosnian Serbs through Croatia. Insufficient information is available to determine how long this route has been used to evade the blockade, the volume of the shipments, and Belgrade's involvement, but the traffic appears to be increasing. This represents a large potential loophole in the embargo and probably already is the largest conduit for fuel shipments to the Bosnian Serbs. 1.4c [redacted] in early March that tanker trucks were supplying fuel to Serb-controlled areas of Bosnia via the Zagreb-Belgrade Highway. [redacted] the flow of goods from Serbia to Bosnia through Croatia has steadily increased since the highway was reopened in December 1994. [redacted] lumber, consumer goods, and food destined for Bosnia also have crossed into Croatia at Lipovac, with 50-60 trucks believed transiting the border in each direction during each eight-hour period when monitors are present. From 7 February to 23 March, [redacted] 1,109 trucks may have transited west while monitors were at Lipovac. [redacted] Russian battalion soldiers and Croatian police do not stop vehicles from entering Croatia when they are not present. [redacted] the shipments travel the highway west to Okucani and turn south to deliver to Banja Luka and elsewhere in Bosnia. 3.5c

More Impact on Civilian Than Military Sector

Because the embargo apparently has reduced goods transiting the Serbia-Bosnia border, it has imposed some pain on Pale's civilian economy. There is insufficient data available to distinguish the extent of the embargo's impact from that caused by the fighting and the spillover from UN sanctions against the FRY. The limited data suggests, however, that the greatest damage from all the external factors, including Belgrade's embargo, has been to Pale's financial and industrial sectors.

Clinton Library Photocopy

- Bosnian Serb banks have been cut off from the Serbian financial system, with no electronic funds transfers operating. Trade transactions take place on a cash basis, either in German marks or with the few Serbian dinars Pale acquired while part of the Serbian monetary union in 1994. Due to its lack of hard currency, Pale has tried with little success to provide liquidity by using various types of fiat money, including commodity coupons and checks, but the German mark remains the principal medium of exchange.

- The non-military industrial sector reportedly is operating at 10 to 15 percent of capacity, with the timber industry the only significant export sector, 1.4c for example, reported that 457 trucks containing Bosnian lumber were detected bound for Serbia during a 45-day period, and lumber trucks have crossed the Serbia-Bosnia border. 3.5c

The blockade also appears to have caused additional shortages of fuel, electricity, and basic foodstuffs, such as meat and cooking oil. 1.4c all goods are rationed in Bosnian Serb areas, with fuel two to five times more expensive than in Serbia. As a consequence, farming has shifted from mechanized to labor intensive methods, possibly employing locally conscripted labor. Even the BSA faces constant spot shortages of food, clothing, and fuel, which could result from internal distribution delays. 3.5c

Despite the spot shortages for the BSA, there are no indications the embargo has had a serious impact on its capabilities. Reporting on recent fighting indicates Bosnian Serb forces have been able to counter Bosnian Government attacks in the Majevica Mountains and Travnik area. Similarly, Bosnian Serb forces conducted a successful counteroffensive last November to regain territory in northwest Bosnia, south of Bihac. 3.5c

The BSA remains largely self-sufficient in logistic capability, except for fuel and certain munitions. Available reporting indicates the Bosnian Serb network to acquire critical munitions inside Serbia is still in operation:

- 1.4c A press report on 24 March identified four of these supply links and revealed two additional FRY firms, the

Clinton Library Photocopy

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Sloboda and Milan Blagovevic Factories, that are associated with Bosnian Serb ammunition suppliers.

- 1.4c the BSA had no problems receiving military supplies from factories inside Serbia, suggesting Pale is confident it can continue receiving supplies from Serbia.

In addition, Bosnian Serb officials continue to attempt to acquire military supplies and other goods through Cyprus. Bosnian Serbs probably have used the current cease-fire to resupply their forces. 3.5c

STATE DRAFT

The End of the Second Hundred Days: Strategy and Options

Suspension of certain sanctions on Serbia-Montenegro (FRY), based on verified closure of the FRY/Bosnia border, ends on 22 April unless the UN Security Council (UNSC) acts before that date. This can provide a useful point of leverage.

Decision Factors

Deciding our position on renewal of sanctions suspension should take into account several factors:

BORDER CLOSURE: The standard for sanctions relief in UNSC resolutions 943 and 970 is whether the FRY is effectively implementing its commitment to effectively close the border to all but food, medicine and clothing for humanitarian needs. Smuggling persists but the border is more closed than we might have expected because an open "back door" allows supply by other routes. Fuel reaches Pale from Croatia - traded by Bosnian Croats, supplied to Krajina Serbs by the GOC under CBMs, and smuggled from Sector East along the Zagreb-Belgrade highway (opened by CBMs). FRY enforcement has declined somewhat since the January extension. Milosevic thinks pressure is off and is increasingly arrogant. The Yugoslav Army (VJ) continues to support and supply the Bosnian Serb Army (BSA), including by helicopter. Despite indications of fuel shortages and financial difficulties, border closure continues to have limited impact on the increasingly-integrated BSA and Krajina Serb Army.

POLITICAL GOALS: We must consider whether terminating limited sanctions suspension, a slap in Milosevic's face, would support or undermine efforts toward negotiated settlements in Bosnia and Croatia. After eight months, Milosevic's isolation of Pale, motivated mainly by rivalry with Karadzic, has not achieved Pale acceptance of the Contact Group's map. Milosevic rejected Plan B (sanctions relief for mutual recognition). He just gave a clear no to a last ditch Contact Group "Bosnia-only" proposal.

ALLIES/CONTACT GROUP UNITY: Our partners may insist border closure is the sole criterion for sanctions suspension and seek extension. Russia may again argue for expanded sanctions relief and lifting rather than suspension. However, with Milosevic's "no" to the "Bosnia-only" proposal the Contact Group is at a dead end limiting the impact that termination of sanctions suspension will have on group "unity".

Impact of Termination

Milosevic sees no political will in the West, thinks that he can get better and better deals by holding out and is not expecting sanctions suspension to be terminated. Termination would be a cold shower for him. He would likely expel the ICFY Mission (if it did not leave on its own). Milosevic could pursue his own interests by maintaining border closure to keep pressure on Karadzic. Without ICFY monitoring, the VJ would likely increase supplies to the BSA despite any political orders. But even continued monitoring would have little practical impact on Pale and Knin if Croatian CBMs and Bosnian Croat smuggling keep them supplied with fuel and other needs. Some military equipment can always be smuggled through.

GOBH Position

We will need to factor the GOBH position -- as yet unknown -- into our decision.

Strategy

Our response to ICFY's March 31 report on border closure continued our strategy of emphasizing areas of concern and raising doubts of our willingness to extend sanctions suspension beyond April 22. Having kept our options open, we must now choose one of three options: A) extend sanctions suspension on the current basis, B) extend sanctions suspension with conditions, C) terminate sanctions suspension.

Option A: Extension on the Current Basis

Extension on the current basis would perpetuate a regime in which violations, such as supply by helicopter, could continue. Supplementing this with "closing the back door" would increase pressure on Karadzic but even this combination might not bring the Bosnian Serbs to the table. Milosevic, who expects better, would complain but it would be only a mild disappointment which would serve to strengthen his belief that time is on his side.

Option B: Conditional Extension

This would be predicated on a judgement that the effects of border closure can be enhanced to the point that they are significant pressure on Pale. This would be a resolution including a zero-tolerance policy on helicopters (one helo sighting or track would trigger the five day termination period). Other requirements would be closure of the border with Sector East, full inspection of buses, closer inspections of "humanitarian" goods at loading, larger and immovable barriers at crossings not covered 24-hours, and an end to the ant trade, etc.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Milosevic could be put on the spot by if we incorporated a hair trigger. (While it would be difficult to get Owen and Stoltenberg ever to submit a negative report, we could press the UN to report separately on the basis of any helicopter flights detected by military observers.) Milosevic would then be responsible for termination rather than we if he chose to not stop supply to the Bosnian Serbs. This would have to be accompanied by "closing the back door" to make the extension meaningful.

Option C: Terminate Sanctions Suspension

Milosevic is not expecting sanctions suspension to be terminated. This would be a cold shower to show him that he has misjudged and is not in the driver's seat. This option (or the others) would be most effective if accompanied by a thrust to improve enforcement of sanctions against the FRY and the Bosnian Serbs.

Whatever decision we ultimately reach, our position should be explained to allies as much as possible in terms of border closure standards, not broader political factors. We will also need to explain our position to Congress and the press, both of which have questioned closure of the FRY/Bosnia border.

Recommendations

- If we are willing to continue sanctions suspension, we should insist the resolution include language clarifying the extent of sanctions suspension. We are in a strong position - non-action by UNSC results in termination. Negotiating tactics require an entry position with bells and whistles in the resolution.

- In particular, non-negotiable resolution provisions should:

  -- Extend sanctions relief at most for another (100) days, with a positive vote needed to extend again;

  - A strengthened termination mechanism which incorporates a zero-tolerance on violations by aircraft and any military movement, including of personnel;

  -- confirm that aviation fuel, spare parts and other equipment intended for Belgrade flights cannot be shipped to the FRY (by air or otherwise) without case-by-case sanctions committee authorization; we should insist on Sanctions Committee confirmation that any fuel in excess of the immediate needs of a conveyance is a violation (for aircraft, this means enough for the flight plus the recognized safety margin);

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- require each state which allows flights to and from Belgrade to receive sanctions committee approval for its controls on goods and funds on these flights as a condition of continuing these flights;

-- impose a similar condition on Italy with respect to Bari-Bar ferries.

o We should seriously push for other added requirements, such as the following:

-- Demand verified closure of the FRY/Croatia border at Sector East in the North (the major diversion route) and at the Prevlaka peninsula in the South.

-- Demand that the FRY reimpose the telecommunications cut-off of the Bosnian Serbs which Milosevic imposed last September and ended in December.

-- Demand that Serbia cease collecting any tolls on international shipping on the Danube.

o A third level of negotiating positions could be:

-- Reducing the level of sanctions relief for the FRY, for example by reimposing the ban on FRY participation in sporting events.

-- Sanctions suspension for less than 100 day period.

-- Call for tighter sanctions to automatically go into force if sanctions suspension is terminated.

HE EXPLAINED THAT TO RECOGNIZE THE CURRENT STATE OF BOSNIA (AS OPPOSED TO THE FUTURE UNION OF BOSNIA) WOULD BE TANTAMOUNT TO RECOGNITION OF THE IZETBEGOVIC GOVERNMENT, A MOVE WHICH WOULD BE "COUNTERPRODUCTIVE" AS IT WOULD DRIVE THE BOSNIAN SERBS INTO A WAR FEVER FED BY A SENSE OF ABANDONMENT AND BETRAYAL.

3. MILOSEVIC INSISTED THAT THE ONLY WAY TO CONVINCE THE BOSNIAN SERBS THAT THEY ARE ON THE WRONG TRACK IS TO OFFER BELGRADE "FULL SANCTIONS RELIEF IMMEDIATELY." MILOSEVIC DID NOT SHARE THE SENSE OF URGENCY ABOUT THE SITUATION ON THE GROUND IN BOSNIA. ALL SIDES HE BELIEVES -- INCLUDING IZETBEGOVIC -- ARE INTERESTED IN EXTENDING THE CEASE-FIRE. MILOSEVIC LOOKED DOWN AT THE TWO PAGE PROPOSAL LYING FACE DOWN ON THE TABLE IN FRONT OF HIM, AND SAID: "OKAY, I'LL READ IT." FOLLOWING THE MILOSEVIC MEETING, THE CG MET BRIEFLY AT THE FRENCH EMBASSY TO COMPARE NOTES AND TO CHASTISE RUSSIAN REP ZOTOV FOR HIS REFUSAL TO ENDORSE THE PROPOSAL IN FRONT OF MILOSEVIC AND FOR HIS COMMENTS TO THE PRESS CALLING FOR FULL SANCTIONS RELIEF. END SUMMARY.

4. BRITISH UK REP EHRMAN OPENED THE MARATHON MEETING WITH A 15 MINUTE POINT BY POINT DESCRIPTION OF THE CONTACT GROUP PROPOSAL EXPLAINING ALONG THE WAY THAT THE CONTACT GROUP WAS INCREASINGLY CONCERNED BY THE DETERIORATION OF THE CEASEFIRE AND THE POTENTIAL FOR ALL OUT WAR. MILOSEVIC STARED AT EHRMAN WITH A LOOK OF RAPT FASCINATION AND AT THE CONCLUSION ASKED: "IS THAT IT? THAT'S ALL?"

5. VISIBLY ANNOYED, MILOSEVIC SAID THAT HE HAD HEARD MOST OF THE ELEMENTS BEFORE, THAT THERE WAS NOTHING NEW. HE THEN SAID: "ON THE BASIS OF MY COUNTRY'S EARNEST EFFORTS ON BEHALF OF PEACE I EXPECT THAT YOU, THE CONTACT GROUP MEMBERS, WILL RECOMMEND UNANIMOUSLY THAT THE SANCTIONS AGAINST THE FRY BE LIFTED. WE HAVE, I BELIEVE, SERVED OUR PROBATIONARY PERIOD WITH FULL COOPERATION. NOW IS THE TIME FOR YOU TO RESPOND ACCORDINGLY." HE LOOKED OVER TO HIS SECRETARY, ASKED IF HE HAD GOTTEN IT ALL DOWN AND TOLD HIM TO TYPE IT UP AND DISTRIBUTE IT TO THE CONTACT GROUP. "THAT'S MY REPLY," HE EXPLAINED.

6. ASKED TO ELABORATE, MILOSEVIC SAID THAT HE HAS DISCUSSED THESE ISSUES "ENDLESSLY" WITH ALL THE MEMBERS OF THE CONTACT GROUP IN THE PAST. THE BOSNIAN SERBS ARE BECOMING MORE DIFFICULT TO REASON WITH. THIS IS DUE TO THE FAILURE OF THE CONTACT GROUP TO LIFT SANCTIONS AND HELP HIS POSITION AGAINST THE BOSNIAN SERBS WHO STUBBORNLY BELIEVE THAT THE CONTACT GROUP MUST BE ANTI-SERB. HE ADMONISHED HIS INTERLOCUTORS FOR "NOT SEEING THE SITUATION CLEARLY" AND FOR PAYING EXCESSIVE ATTENTION TO "MARGINAL GUYS" SUCH AS IZETBEGOVIC AND KARADZIC.

7. MILOSEVIC GLANCED AT THE PROPOSAL, ALLOWED THAT IT MIGHT BE AN EXPRESSION OF GOOD WILL BUT THAT IT MISSED THE POINT. "YOU KNOW WE HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH THAT WAR" HE DECLARED. "IF YOU WANT TO SUPPORT PEACE IT IS LOGICAL TO SUPPORT THE ONLY RELIABLE FACTOR FIGHTING FOR PEACE, SERBIA." MILOSEVIC ADMITTED THAT HIS EFFORTS WITH THE PALE ASSEMBLY HAD GONE VERY SLOWLY, BUT EXPLAINED THAT THEY WOULD HAVE BORNE FRUIT HAD SERBIA BEEN GRANTED MORE SANCTIONS RELIEF WHEN HE MADE THE IMPORTANT DECISION TO SUPPORT THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

8. MILOSEVIC PROFESSED DISBELIEF AT THE FAILURE OF THE CONTACT GROUP TO SEE HIS SIDE OF THINGS. "MAYBE YOU WANT TO KEEP THE WAR ON" HE THEORIZED. MILOSEVIC RACED THROUGH SOME RECENT HISTORY OF THE PEACE PROCESS, STARTING WITH THE VANCE-OWEN PLAN AND INSISTED THAT NOTHING SHORT OF FULL SANCTIONS RELIEF IS APPROPRIATE. "PARTIAL SUSPENSION MEANS NOTHING FOR US." GERMAN REP STEINER TRIED TO EXPLAIN THE ORIGINS OF PLAN "A" AND PLAN "B" BUT MILOSEVIC WAVED HIM OFF DECLARING: "WE HAVE PASSED

THE PROBATIONARY PERIOD: FIRST TWO MONTHS THEN 100 DAYS THEN ANOTHER 100 DAYS." SUSPENSION, HE EXPLAINED, IS A HUMILIATION, AND HE CITED THE CONTACT GROUP'S PROMISE TO GET NATURAL GAS INTO SERBIA, A DELIVERY WHICH NEVER CAME AND WHICH IN MILOSEVIC'S VIEW SHOWED " AN ABSENCE OF STYLE." HE ALSO MENTIONED THE HELICOPTER FLIGHTS AS A FIGMENT OF SOMEONE'S IMAGINATION. "THEY ARE PROBABLY MUSLIM OR TURKISH. BESIDES, THEY WERE HEARD GOING FROM BOSNIA INTO SERBIA. WHAT WOULD THEY BE CARRYING? WOOD AND POTATOES?"

9. MILOSEVIC INSISTED THAT HIS WILLINGNESS TO RECOGNIZE THE "BOSNIAN UNION" WAS A FAIR OFFER, BASED ENTIRELY ON THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN. US REP TOLD HIM WE WERE NOT INTERESTED IN A PROMISSORY NOTE. TO BE MEANINGFUL, RECOGNITION MUST BE OF THE EXISTING STATE OF BOSNIA. MILOSEVIC INSISTED THAT HIS 7ILLINGNESS TO RECOGNIZE THE FUTURE UNION WAS FIRM, AND SHOULD BE SEEN AS "RECOGNITION NOW" OF A FUTURE UNION. MILOSEVIC INSISTED THAT RECOGNITION OF THE UNION WOULD "BYPASS" KARADZIC AND PUT ALL THE PRESSURE NEEDED ON HIM, WITHOUT BEING COUNTERPRODUCTIVE. MILOSEVIC INSISTED THAT BOSNIA TODAY IS NOT A STATE, "IT'S A BATTLEFIELD." NONE OF THE CONTACT GROUP MEMBERS SHOWED ANY INTEREST IN PURSUING OTHER RECOGNITION CONCEPTS. THE FRENCH REP ALONE TRIED TO BE HELPFUL BY ADDING: "YOU CAN SAY YOU ONLY RECOGNIZE BOSNIA, NOT THE IZETBEGOVIC GOVERNMENT."

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

10. NOR DID ANY OF THE CONTACT GROUP ENGAGE MILOSEVIC WHEN HE TURNED TO THE SUBJECT OF THE FRY AS A SUCCESSOR STATE. NONE OF THE OTHER REPUBLICS OF THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA DISPUTE THE FRY'S STATUS AS SUCH, HE ARGUED. STEINER AND HILL TOLD HIM THEY WERE NOT INTERESTED IN PURSUING THIS ISSUE AT THIS TIME AND MILOSEVIC DROPPED IT.

11. MILOSEVIC SAID THAT THE WEST WILL EVENTUALLY HAVE NO CHOICE BUT TO DROP SANCTIONS. "YOU CANNOT KEEP SOMETHING IN PLACE WHICH IS HARMING 150 MILLION PEOPLE." IF RUSSIA WANTS TO LIFT THE SANCTIONS THAT WILL BE ENOUGH FOR SERBIA, HE ARGUED.

12. MILOSEVIC IS CONVINCED THAT CARTER WILL COME AND THAT KARADZIC WILL WELCOME HIM, AS THE FORMER PRESIDENT IS HIS TICKET TO RESPECTABILITY. "KARADZIC WILL LIE AGAIN TO CARTER. HE WILL NOT FOLLOW THROUGH ON ANY COMMITMENTS." HE WAS DERISIVE ABOUT THE BOSNIAN SERB LEADERSHIP, CALLING THEM ALL "LIARS". "KOLJEVIC IS DRUNK EVERY DAY BY 10:00 AM." AS FOR KARADZIC, "HE'S NOT A PSYCHIATRIST, HE'S A PATIENT!" MILOSEVIC SEES SOME POSSIBILITY THAT MLADIC WILL BREAK WITH HIS CIVILIAN LEADERSHIP. THE BOSNIAN SERB LEADERS, MILOSEVIC BELIEVES, ARE OBSESSED BY THE IDEA THAT IF THEY ACCEPT THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN WITH ITS MAP, THEY MAY BE STUCK WITH IT IF THEY ARE UNABLE TO WORK OUT THE SWAPS THAT THEY FEEL HAVE TO BE MADE, SUCH AS A 16 KM BRCZKO CORRIDOR. MILOSEVIC BELIEVES THE CONTACT GROUP MAY WANT TO HAVE CONTACTS WITH THE BANJA LUKA LEADERSHIP WHICH HE CLAIMS IS MUCH MORE ENLIGHTENED THAN THE CROWD FROM PALE. "BUT FIRST I'LL HAVE TO CHECK THIS OUT."

13. AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE EVENING, MILOSEVIC LOOKED DOWN AT THE CONTACT GROUP PROPOSAL AND SAID HE WOULD READ IT AND GET BACK TO THE GROUP WITH HIS COMMENTS. HE ACKNOWLEDGED, HOWEVER, THAT HIS DIFFERENCES ARE FUNDAMENTAL: HE WILL NOT RECOGNIZE THE EXISTING STATE OF BOSNIA, AND HE WILL ACCEPT NO LESS THAN FULL SANCTIONS RELIEF.

14. COMMENT: THE CONTACT GROUP MET BRIEFLY AT MIDNIGHT AT THE FRENCH EMBASSY TO COMPARE NOTES. EVERYONE AGREED THAT DESPITE HIS WILLINGNESS TO STUDY THE PROPOSAL, MILOSEVIC HAD GIVEN THE GROUP A FIRM NO. THE MEMBERS AGREED THAT HE ACTED AS THOUGH HE WAS UNDER LITTLE PRESSURE, AND DID NOT EVEN SHARE THE VIEW THAT THE SITUATION ON THE GROUND IN BOSNIA WAS GETTING OUT OF HAND.

SUBJECT: CONTACT GROUP MEETING WITH PRESIDENT TUDJMAN

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. ON APRIL 12, THE CONTACT GROUP STOPPED IN ZAGREB TO BRIEF PRESIDENT TUDJMAN ON THE DISCUSSIONS THE PREVIOUS EVENING IN BELGRADE WITH MILOSEVIC. U.S. REP TOOK THE LEAD IN PRESENTING TO TUDJMAN THE CONTACT GROUP IDEAS FOR SEEKING MUTUAL RECOGNITION AMONG ALL THE FORMER REPUBLICS OF YUGOSLAVIA IN RETURN FOR SANCTIONS SUSPENSION FOR SERBIA. HE EXPLAINED THAT THE PACKAGE INCLUDED A BOSNIA-ONLY VERSION IN WHICH MILOSEVIC WAS OFFERED PARTIAL BUT MEANINGFUL SUSPENSION. MILOSEVIC, THE U.S. REP EXPLAINED, WAS NOT READY TO RECOGNIZE THE CURRENT BOSNIAN STATE PRIOR TO THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN IN WHICH BOSNIA WOULD BECOME A UNION. MILOSEVIC HAD ALSO MADE CLEAR THAT HE WOULD REQUIRE SANCTIONS LIFTING RATHER THAN SUSPENSION IN CONSIDERING ANY SUCH RECOGNITION.
3. TUDJMAN LISTENED INTENTLY AND AFTER HEARING THE RUSSIAN REPRESENTATIVE'S EXPLANATION THAT THE CONTACT GROUP PROPOSAL WAS REALLY NOT A CONTACT GROUP PROPOSAL, BUT RATHER "A PROPOSAL WORKED OUT WITHIN THE CONTACT GROUP," SHOOK HIS HEAD AND COMMENTED "ALL THESE NEGOTIATIONS ARE RUNNING IN CIRCLES. THE SERBS ARE TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THE LACK OF UNITY IN THE CONTACT GROUP." REFERRING TO THE BOSNIAN SERB REFUSAL TO GRANT TIMELY CLEARANCE FOR THE CG AIRCRAFT TO VISIT SARAJEVO IN THE MORNING, TUDJMAN EXPRESSED DISBELIEF THAT THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY ALLOWS ITSELF TO BE PUSHED AROUND IN THAT WAY BY THE SERBS.

4. ONCE SATISFIED THAT THERE WAS NOTHING NEW IN MILOSEVIC'S APPROACH TO RECOGNIZING CROATIA, TUDJMAN COMMENTED ON THE SUCCESSOR STATE ISSUE NOTING THAT IF THIS WERE THE ONLY PROBLEM PREVENTING RECOGNITION THAT HE WOULD BE IN FAVOR OF GRANTING THAT STATUS TO THE SERBS. FOREIGN MINISTER GRANIC QUICKLY INTERVENED TO DRAW A DISTINCTION BETWEEN HIS PRESIDENT'S VIEW AND MILOSEVIC'S CONCEPT THAT CROATIA AND THE OTHERS HAD BEEN SECESSIONIST STATES WHILE SERBIA REMAINED A PART OF YUGOSLAVIA. GRANIC FELT THAT IT WAS IMPORTANT TO NOTE THAT YUGOSLAVIA HAD BEEN DISSOLVED.

5. TURNING BACK TO THE DISCUSSION IN BELGRADE, TUDJMAN SAID THAT HE BELIEVES THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY NEEDS TO DO MORE TO FOSTER RECOGNITION BETWEEN BOSNIA AND SERBIA. HE BELIEVES THAT SOME WAY SHOULD BE FOUND TO GAIN MILOSEVIC'S IMMEDIATE RECOGNITION OF BOSNIA IN A WAY THAT WOULD MAKE CLEAR THAT BOSNIA WOULD IN THE PROCESS BECOME A UNION ACCORDING TO THE CONTACT GROUP CONSTITUTIONAL ARRANGEMENTS.

6. DESPITE THE IMPORTANCE OF RECOGNITION, TUDJMAN SAID THAT MILOSEVIC IS ONLY PART OF THE PROBLEM, AND THAT THE REAL ISSUES IN BOSNIA ARE AMONG THE WARRING PARTIES. EVEN IF HE WERE TO RECOGNIZE BOSNIA, IT WOULD DO LITTLE TO REDUCE THE FIGHTING THERE. TUDJMAN BELIEVES THE CONTACT GROUP NEEDS TO BE MORE ACTIVE IN PRESSING THE PARTIES IN BOSNIA TO COME TO AN AGREEMENT ON THE CONTACT GROUP MAP AND PLAN. TUDJMAN DREW A SHARP DISTINCTION OF WHAT HE FELT TO BE MILOSEVIC'S MARGINAL ROLE IN BOSNIA, AND HIS POSITION AS "THE SOLE FACTOR IN KRAJINA."

7. AT THE END OF THE BRIEF MEETING, TUDJMAN TOLD THE CONTACT GROUP MEMBERS THAT THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY ALSO NEEDS TO BE VERY ACTIVE IN FINDING A SOLUTION TO THE PROBLEMS IN CROATIA. TUDJMAN NOTED THAT THE NEW UN MANDATE EXPIRES IN EIGHT MONTHS AT WHICH TIME THE CROATIANS WILL HAVE TO ASSESS WHETHER THEY ARE MAKING PROGRESS IN REGAINING SOVEREIGNTY OVER THE UNPAS AND WHETHER THEY WILL NEED TO EMPLOY NEW MEANS TO RESOLVE THE PROBLEM.

DECL:OADR

CROATIA

UN efforts to develop operational plans for UNCRO are lagging, and the situation on the ground in Croatia remains uncertain and tense. This presents two dangers for limiting the Balkan conflict to a small war in Bosnia. First, hostilities could result as both sides flex their muscle with clashes, cease-fire violations, exercises, and other provocations. The most serious of these has been the Croatian advance west from Bosnia toward Croatian Serb headquarters in Knin.

The second danger is that international energy will be consumed by getting UNCRO deployed, instead of using the limited time UNCRO buys us to push for settlement talks. Without progress toward reintegration and reconciliation in Croatia, we will have a much harder time keeping Zagreb on the path of peaceful means in dealing with the Serbs.

The parties remain far apart on what they will agree to publicly regarding UNCRO's presence and operations. The UN Secretariat therefore plans to propose a general, "implementable" plan for UNCRO next week and ask the UNSC to approve it irrespective of whether the parties embrace it entirely. This approach reflects the reality that important details of UNCRO's operations will only be defined in day-to-day operations on the ground. Ambassador Albright emphasized to UN representatives Akashi and Stoltenberg Wednesday that time is limited and the plan they present to the UNSC must be in line with the Gore-Tudjman Copenhagen announcement.

We must try to meet minimum Croatian expectations that Zagreb gets something out of all the recent fuss besides a name change. GOC anxiety that Tudjman will be seen at home as having sold out is real. This is reflected in Croatia's latest letter to Boutros Ghali, which is tough in putting demands on UNCRO that are not entirely reasonable. From our viewpoint, UN redeployment out of the UNPA's and onto their periphery, i.e. the separation zone and the international border, is important. What the border force actually does is less important, provided it at least puts more soldiers at checkpoints that UNPROFOR did.

At the same time, we should try to launch direct talks between Knin and Zagreb. We would start by approaching the other Z-4 members (EU, Russia, UN) and encouraging them to support such an effort. While pushing for political talks in order to start people on both sides thinking about the prospect of serious negotiations, we could at first focus on the economic confidence-building measures, implementation of which has bogged down in some cases.

1. (U) Purpose. To provide the interagency information on the status of the OPLAN 40104 NATO/US decision timeline approval process.

2. ~~(C)~~ Key Points

- While the NATO alliance fully supports a diplomatic solution to the crisis, the fact remains a withdrawal from Bosnia is still a real possibility.

- On 29 March SACEUR updated the NAC on the status of OPLAN 40104 and the flexibility of the OPLAN to respond to an emergency withdrawal. In response to SACEUR request, the Military Committee forwarded a memorandum recommending directing/authorizing SACEUR the following:

  - be prepared to execute on order from NAC, OPLAN 40104 in full for a withdrawal of UNPROFOR from either B-H or Croatia or both.
  - be prepared to execute on order from NAC, limited operations either in B-H or Croatia or both based on OPLAN 40104
  - * to request the assembly and training, and the deployment of forces in respect of Step 2 Minimum Measures.
  - * to request national identification of remaining Step 2 forces
  - * to request national identification of Military-Civilian Relations, Maritime and Air Forces
  - * to request identification of Main forces

* French broke silence; but finally agreed to deployment of Minimum Step 2.

- France's decision will delay the next step of 40104 by approximately three weeks. An informal MC will meet weekly, to consider national comments to 40104.

- Once NAC approves OPLAN, for emergency withdrawal SACEUR will need:
  - authority to request assembly and training of remaining Step 2 forces
  - authority to request identification, assembly and training for MCR, Maritime and Air Forces
  - authority to request identification, assembly and training for Main forces

INFORMATION PAPER

1. (U) Purpose. To provide information on the status of decisions concerning the OPLAN 40104 (withdrawal from Former Yugoslavia) approval process. Specifically, the next steps on NATO prepositioning -- Step 2.

2. ~~(C)~~ Key Points

- While NATO supports a diplomatic solution to the crisis in the Former Yugoslavia, withdrawal from Bosnia and/or Croatia remains a real possibility. NATO must take the necessary military measures to prepare for the worst case.

- On 29 March SACEUR updated the NAC on the status of OPLAN 40104 and the flexibility to respond to an emergency withdrawal. In response, the NAC directed/authorized SACEUR the following:
  - authorized deployment of Minimum Step 2, including:
    a) Manning and preparations for the deployment of the Tactical Ground Satellite Terminal to Camp Pleso
    b) Manning and preparations for the deployment of Communications Coordination Detachments to Zagreb, Pleso and Split

- Deployment of Mini Step 2 prepositioning involves approximately 80 communicators into the Former Yugoslavia (approx. 12-15 US in Croatia). Deployment of Full Step 2 involves the deployment of approximately 1526 communicators (approx. 450 US/310 US in Croatia)

- We presently have a Principals Committee and a Presidential decision to:
  - support the deployment of Minimum Step 2 prepositioning
  - agreed to the assembly and training for Full Step 2 prepositioning
  - consult with Congress on Step 2 prepositioning (consultations completed for both Mini and Full Step 2)
  - require a PC/NAC decision to deploy the Full Step 2 prepositioning forces into the Former Yugoslavia theater of operations.

- Deployment of an advance party of Mini Step 2 could occur as early as the week of 17 April with the main element of Step 2 deploying NET 30 April.

- SACEUR currently requires further NAC approval for assembly, training and deployment of Full Step 2 forces.

INFORMATION PAPER

1. (U) Purpose. To provide the CJCS information on the status of decisions concerning OPLAN 40104 -- the withdrawal of UNPROFOR from the Former Yugoslavia.

2. ~~(C)~~ Key Points

- A new mandate for the UN Confidence Restoration Operation in Croatia (UNCRO) appears to take some of the pressure off plans for a UN withdrawal from the Former Yugoslavia. The NATO alliance fully supports a diplomatic solution to the crisis, but the fact remains a withdrawal from Bosnia is still a real possibility and we (NATO) must take the necessary measures to prepare for the worst case.

- On 29 March SACEUR updated the NAC on the status of OPLAN 40104 and the flexibility of the OPLAN to respond to an emergency withdrawal. To conduct a contingency operation SACEUR requested timely political guidance from the NAC. In response, a Military Committee forwarded a memorandum to the 5 April NAC, directing/authorizing SACEUR the following:
  - be prepared to execute on order from NAC, OPLAN 40104 in full for a withdrawal of UNPROFOR from either B-H or Croatia or both.
  - be prepared to execute on order from NAC, limited operations either in B-H or Croatia or both based on OPLAN 40104

    - a) Manning and preparations for the deployment of the TGST to Camp Pleso
    - b) Manning and preparations for the deployment of Communications Coordination Detachments to Zagreb, Pleso and Split
  - authorize ACTREQ to complete preparation of remaining Step 2 forces
  - authorize ACTWARN for Theater-Enabling, MCR, Maritime and Air Forces
  - authorize ACTWARN for Main forces

  Note: The French broke silence on the above items in bold. France subsequently agreed to the ACTREQ/ACTORD for Minimum Step 2. France will not agree to any further movement on the implementation of the withdrawal operation until OPLAN 40104 is fully approved by the NAC.

- support the ACTWARN/ACTREQ/ACTORD for the minimum necessary measures of Step 2 prepositioning
- agreed to the ACTWARN/ACTREQ for the Full Step 2 prepositioning
- consult with Congress on Step 2 prepositioning (subsequently completed)
- require a PC/NAC decision to deploy the Full Step 2 prepositioning forces into the Former Yugoslavia theater of operations.

• An ACTORD for the Full Step 2 prepositioning of theater communications architecture involves the deployment of approximately 1526 communicators into the former Yugoslavia (approx. 450 US/310 US in Croatia)

• ACTWARN for Enabling forces and Main Forces involves the identification of forces and requires a national response in the FORCEPREP. The total force to support OPLAN 40104 involves the approximately 16,614 US personnel in place for Provide Promise, Able Sentry, Deny Flight, and Sharp Guard, and an additional 24,355 US personnel, with 42,126 Non-US NATO personnel involved. Of the additional 24,355 US personnel, 14,900 will be ground combat forces.

• SACEUR still requires NAC approval of the following phases to implement OPLAN 40104 in full:

- ACTREQ/ACTORD for the deployment of remaining Step 2 forces.
- ACTWARN/ACTREQ/ACTORD for Enabling Forces
- ACTWARN/ACTREQ/ACTORD for Main Forces

• France's decision not to support any further movement on OPLAN 40104 until its approval by the NAC will delay the next step in implementing 40104, unless an emergency withdrawal is warranted, for at least three weeks. An informal Military Committee will meet two or three times weekly to consider national comments to the OPLAN. At the end of the process, the resultant documents will be forwarded to the NAC for approval. This means by the end of April we will need a Presidential decision to support the ACTORD authorizing deployment of the Full Step 2 and possibly ACTWARNs/ACTREQs/ACTORDs for both Enabling and Main Forces. Congressional consultations/briefings will be required subsequent to the President's decision.

INFORMATION PAPER

1. (U) Purpose. To provide options, and a strategy, to strengthen UNPROFOR.

2. (U) Background. The Principals Committee met 28 March 1995 and agreed the US should immediately approach the British and French to explore measures to strengthen UNPROFOR in Bosnia.

3. ~~(C)~~ Assessment. At the 11 April Troop Contributors Meeting (TCM), Mr. Akashi and GEN Janvier recounted UNPROFOR's successes, most of which they feel are not recognized. Additionally, they indicated the equipment and manpower previously offered by nations, and subsequently accepted by the UN, is all that is needed. This is a clear indication of UNPROFOR priorities and the likelihood that they would not accept any new initiatives.

CJCS's lengthy discussion with the British CHOD indicated great reluctance on the part of the British. However, the CJCS and his British and French counterparts have agreed to discuss these options at a flag officer/staff level meeting next week. The British, French, and the UN will likely resist all efforts to move UNPROFOR beyond a current Chapter VI impartial posture. Our major leverage is their concern in preventing US Congressional action on unilateral lift. We should use this leverage to encourage UNPROFOR to act with a stronger hand to enforce the current mandate.

4. ~~(C)~~ Options. There are specific options that may strengthen UNPROFOR ability to perform within its mandate. These include:

- Securing Sarajevo and Tuzla Airports. The focal points of international interest in the conflict. Measures would include securing the perimeter, approaches, high terrain, and buildings. Establish a safe zone with increased armored patrols, and airborne immediate response capability.

- Establishing a ground corridor between Konjic and Sarajevo. Would ensure the free flow of aid into Sarajevo. This would require forces trained in crowd control, armored self-protection of convoys, combat engineers, TACPs moving with convoys, and a "quick reaction force."

- Establish ground corridors between Sarajevo and eastern enclaves. Same as above, would ensure free flow of aid to enclaves.

- Create cease fire lines. UNPROFOR, without use of force, can not physically separate the warring factions. This initiative must be one fought on the political front, and decided among the warring parties. A cessation of hostilities or peace agreement is required to define cease fire lines.

- Increase the number of, and consolidate UNPROFOR into, safe areas and exclusion zones. Protects the civilian population and ensures access for aid. Not compatible with the use of the safe areas for military activities. Enforcing demilitarization requires increases in UNPROFOR's capability. Need to provide ground and air mobility assets, and a "quick reaction force" securing the safe areas. Will require secure lines of communication to safe areas to ensure delivery of aid.

- Enhance capabilities within UNPROFOR. Provide heavy lift helicopters, engineer battalions, UNMOs, civilian police, TACPs, counter battery radars, and mobility assets.

5. ~~(C)~~ Execution Strategy. To execute this initiative the following steps are necessary:

- CJCS contact British and French CHODs proposing new initiative. (Complete)
- Expand US proposals (shown above), study options for effectiveness and risk. Provide to British and French on 18 April.
- Convene a tri-lateral flag/staff working group 19-20 April in Washington. (Scheduled)
- Brief tri-lateral proposal to CHODs (possibly off line at the MC/CS) and refer to capitals by end of April.
- Brief to President 1 May. Consult with Congress, if necessary, on 2-5 May.
- Introduce initiative to UNSYG, SRSG, UNPROFOR Commanders by 8 May.

6. ~~(C)~~ Summary. Proactive actions to deliver humanitarian aid and permit freedom of movement for UNPROFOR must be carefully weighed against the associated risks and benefits. Strict enforcement of these measures may place UNPROFOR at odds with both the GOBH and the SRBH. Impartiality and the delivery of humanitarian assistance are UNPROFOR's first priorities.

DECL:OADR

BOSNIA: GOING FOR A SMALL WAR

Milosevic's firm and final "no" to the Contact Group on April 11 leaves international diplomatic efforts on Bosnia at a dead-end. Meanwhile, the Bosnian Government is understandably distrustful of a Carter mission and we expect nothing to come from the initiative. Senior Carter Center officials say the former President is unlikely to re-enter the fray without both sides' concurrence. These developments have ended any realistic chance that Izetbegovic's conditions for extending the cease-fire -- Milosevic's recognition of Bosnia or Karadzic's acceptance of the Contact Group plan -- will be met.

For purposes of Allied solidarity and in the hope that it can be revived at a later date, we should keep the Contact Group in mothballs, ready to be used should events on the ground merit. Representatives can and should continue to meet, as they will next Wednesday in Vienna. At the same time, we should not portray the Group as alive and well -- and working on ideas to bring the conflict to an end. This would only damage our credibility, both in the region and with our public and press.

With the diplomatic track exhausted, we must now focus on keeping the fighting to the lowest possible levels. This means convincing an extremely reluctant Bosnian Government that this is in its interest. Bob Frasure will travel to Sarajevo next week to sound out Bosnian leaders. He will press for private assurances that the stakes will not be raised in the fighting to come, particularly in and around Sarajevo. The Bosnians, however, feeling they have no choice, may decide that a dramatic gesture -- either an attempt to open a corridor to Sarajevo or asking for UNPROFOR withdrawal -- is their only hope for creating movement towards a settlement. We should therefore be prepared to offer incentives for keeping the fighting to a minimum.

With diplomacy at a dead-end, there are two possible incentives for use in approaching the Bosnians: 1) working for a robust UNPROFOR and 2) introducing a UN resolution that blesses the Contact Group map.

General Joulwan believes that UNPROFOR Commander Rupert Smith views the latest Serb outrages in Sarajevo and Gorazde as tests of his mettle. While we do not necessarily share General Joulwan's optimism, a more robust UNPROFOR (as opposed to a beefed up UNPROFOR) is one of the few remaining carrots to offer the Bosnians in return for moderation on the battlefront. In addition, a robust UNPROFOR, which in essence means an UNPROFOR ready to enforce the exclusion zones, would help deflate pressure on the Hill for lifting the arms embargo. If the political will exists on our side, we should continue pressuring the British and French to accept this point. If not, the option holds little prospect for success.

Another point of leverage worth exploring is a UN resolution that blesses the Contact Group plan and map, something Silajdzic has sought for several months. The idea is to tie a UNSC resolution to continuation of the cease-fire or a private commitment to limit fighting. Bosnian doubts about Allied and Russian resolve in sticking to the map might lead them to pursue such a trade-off. However, whether this is enough to convince the Bosnians to delay action on a matter of supreme national interest is highly questionable.

Any other options we may have -- e.g., further isolating Karadzic, reimposing sanctions on Milosevic -- are long-term strategies with little chance for putting off new fighting. In fact, in the short-term more pressure on the Serbs is likely to exacerbate fighting.

~~CONFIDENTIAL - RELEASABLE TO UK/FR~~ DRAFT

H

10 April 1995 9:10 PM [003M]

INFORMATION PAPER

1. (U) Purpose. To provide to the interagency options, and a strategy, to strengthen UNPROFOR.

2. (U) Background. The Principals Committee met 28 March 1995 and agreed the US should immediately approach the British and French to explore measures to strengthen UNPROFOR in Bosnia. These initiatives must stay within the current mandate -- to bolster UNPROFOR's ability to protect the delivery of humanitarian aid, and to enhance/improve UNPROFOR's ability to protect itself.

3. ~~(C-REL UK/FR)~~ Options. There are specific options that may strengthen UNPROFOR in the performance of its mandate. These include:

- Securing Sarajevo and Tuzla Airports. The focal points of international interest in the conflict. [redacted]

  EO 13526 1.4a

- Establishing a ground corridor between Konjic and Sarajevo. Would ensure the free flow of aid into Sarajevo. [redacted]

  EO 13526 1.4a

- Establish ground corridors between Sarajevo and eastern enclaves. Would ensure free flow of aid to enclaves.

- Create cease fire lines. UNPROFOR, without the use of force, can not physically separate the warring factions, without their consent. This initiative must be one fought on the political front, decided among the warring parties, in conjunction with a cessation of hostilities or peace agreement which define demilitarized areas.

- Increase the number of, and consolidate UNPROFOR into, safe areas and exclusion zones. The safe area concept is to protect the civilian population and to ensure access for aid. This is not compatible with the use of the safe areas for military activities. Enforcing demilitarization requires increases in UNPROFOR's capability. [redacted]

EO 13526 1.4a

- Enhance capabilities within UNPROFOR. Provide additional capabilities in order to enhance UNPROFOR's effectiveness. Provide heavy lift

EO 13526 1.4a

4. ~~(C-REL UK/FR)~~ Execution Strategy. The Principals Committee decision and the President Clinton/Prime Minister Major meetings provided a rejuvenated effort to strengthen UNPROFOR. To execute this initiative the following steps are necessary:

- CJCS contact British and French CHODs proposing new initiative. Agree to staff level planning, culminating in exchange of proposals by 14 April.
- Expand US proposals (shown above), study options for effectiveness and risk. Provide to British and French on 14 April.
- Convene a tri-lateral staff working group 21-24 April. Refer tri-lateral proposal to capitals on 25 April. Briefing to tri-lateral CHOD meeting on 28 April.
- Brief to President 1 May. Consult Congress 2-5 May.
- Introduce initiative at the UN on 8 May to UNSYG, SRSG, UNPROFOR Commanders.

5. ~~(C-REL UK/FR)~~ Summary. Each proposal must be carefully weighed. Staff working groups should study factors which include, but are not limited to, the risk to UNPROFOR, the cost (financial, personnel, equipment, and readiness), the will of UNPROFOR and contributing nations to achieve the objective, and visibility within the international community to achieve support. Strict enforcement of these measures would lift the pretense of the neutrality of UN and NATO forces. These actions, while neutral to one warring party, are seen as belligerent to the other. Without the complete cooperation of all warring parties, these measures essentially change the character of UNPROFOR operations from peacekeeping to peace enforcement. UNPROFOR is not currently tasked with peace enforcement. Impartiality and the delivery of humanitarian assistance is their first priority. It is not equipped, nor intended to be, to impose a solution. Peacekeeping forces can operate effectively only with the consent and full cooperation of the parties. Proactive actions to force through aid must be carefully weighed against the associated risks and benefits. UNPROFOR must be careful to balance all these divergent factors. Enforcement of these measures can not be seen as a disincentive, but a step towards peace implementation.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals reviewed the Deputies recommendations on next steps in the Contact Group's efforts to gain recognition of Bosnia by Milosevic. They agreed that we should offer to suspend some additional sanctions if Milosevic unambiguously recognizes Bosnia within its internationally-recognized borders. They agreed, however, that this offer should be contingent on a commitment by our Contact Group partners to tighten the closure of the Serbian-Bosnian border and to take similar measures to seal Croatia's border with Bosnian Serb areas, the "back door" through which significant circumvention has occurred. (S)

2. Principals discussed the deteriorating situation in Sarajevo and agreed on the unacceptability of recent Serb actions to assert control over Sarajevo airport and to prohibit the use of UN flights by our Ambassador and Contact Group representative. They were concerned at signs that the UN is prepared to accede to Serb dictates, which would further erode UN credibility. Principals agreed that, while there is no immediate humanitarian crisis in the Bosnian capital, the Serbs' actions amount to an attempt at the "strangulation" of Sarajevo, which NATO and the UN have pledged to prevent. Therefore, Principals asked the Interagency Working Group to develop options for NATO action to reopen Sarajevo airport, together with a diplomatic strategy for gaining Allied and UN support. (Action: IWG. Taskings provided by separate memorandum) (S)

3. Principals discussed the status of NATO OPLAN 40104 for supporting UNPROFOR withdrawal and agreed that, in purely military terms, the plan should continue to receive U.S. support at NATO as the plan that NATO will use should the Alliance agree to participate in an UNPROFOR withdrawal operation. Accordingly, they authorized our representatives at NATO to support the plan as long as support did not entail actual commitment of U.S. forces to the operation. They further authorized the CJCS to identify U.S. forces that would be involved in the operation. Principals emphasized that actual commitment of U.S. forces to the operation would require another Principals and Presidential decision and consultations with Congress. (Action: State/JCS) (S)

4. Principals agreed that the sensitive political questions relating to OPLAN 40104 must be answered before the plan can be presented to the President for approval. Principals directed that a post-UNPROFOR withdrawal strategy be developed to facilitate answering the unanswered policy questions relating to the actual operation. (Action: State) In the meantime, Principals asked that a senior interagency team brief key members and committees of Congress on the concept of OPLAN 40104, seeking their views on the unanswered policy questions, as part of our efforts to encourage opposition to a unilateral lifting of the arms embargo. (Action: State, OSD, JCS, CIA) (S)

5. Principals briefly discussed the situation of Jonathan Knapp, the American relief worker captured March 4, 1995, along with four French colleagues by the Bosnian Serbs. They reaffirmed the use of quiet diplomacy as the preferred strategy, working through the French and the UN, to secure his release. However, with the Serbs threatening to put Knapp on trial, Principals asked State to consider the possibility of a direct message to one of the Bosnian Serb leaders from a middle-level USG official, based on indications that this may be the face-saver the Serbs are looking for to release Knapp. (Action: State) (S)

Bosnia Diplomatic Strategy: Sarajevo Airport

The Problem

After their successful challenge to the French at the illegal Sierra-4 checkpoint and their even more humiliating treatment of Contact Group representatives at Sarajevo airport, the Bosnian Serbs know they can keep bullying the United Nations and get whatever they want. The UN has no fall-back position for its talks with Karadzic; it long-ago ruled out the option of enforcing its control of the airport and the environs of Sarajevo. In his initial report on the situation, the Secretary General made it clear that the airport could be kept open only with the parties' agreement.

Referring to nonexistent precedents and claiming that the airport is Serb territory merely managed by the UN, Karadzic and his minions have threatened to fire on UN aircraft carrying anything but UNPROFOR military personnel. On April 27, the Serb commander overseeing the airport turned back a plane with civilians aboard and Karadzic announced that he will never allow foreign diplomats to land at Sarajevo, "especially diplomats from hostile nations, like Iran and the United States."

Prognosis: Humiliation and Strangulation

In the end, the UN may be able to maintain the airport as a logistical base for its own severely limited activities, but unless the UN can persuade the Bosnian Serbs otherwise, Sarajevo will lose its air link to the outside world. The GOBH will be isolated and the city will be strangled by closure of land routes.

And the Serbs may go further. In recent weeks, the Bosnian Serb Army has made obvious preparations for a massive attack on Sarajevo -- digging tank emplacements, replacing wooden and sandbag revetments encircling the city with reinforced concrete, etc. General Smith has said he expects the Serbs to "pick off the enclaves one-by-one" and then go for "the real prize enclave -- Sarajevo itself."

In response to these moves, the GOBH is certain to take into its own hands the future of its capital city. The B-H Army has already engaged in probing actions north and south of the city -- possibly setting the stage for an all-out offensive to punch one or two corridors into Sarajevo from nearby government-controlled territory. As Bosnian Vice President Ganic has stated, "We want UNPROFOR to stay in Bosnia and do its job while the Serbs want UNPROFOR to stay in Bosnia and not do its job." In the case of Sarajevo, the Bosnians will not long accept an UNPROFOR that is powerless to counter the Serbs.

Our Limited Options

The key to keeping UNPROFOR on the ground and to avoiding the deployment of U.S. ground troops in Bosnia is to take aggressive and decisive measures to keep Sarajevo Airport open for all traffic. The legal authority exists to do so and military options are being prepared.* But if we are truly serious, we must begin immediately to build a consensus among our allies and at the UN, threatening realistic consequences for inaction.

Among our options are the following:

-- Using existing authority to permit NATO air activity of the following sorts:

1) Close air support in defense of UNPROFOR troops at the airport, who have in recent days been shelled by the Bosnian Serbs;

2) Air strikes based on the fact that Sarajevo is being strangled;

3) Air strikes based on the fact that the exclusion zone is being violated.

Diplomatically, we could begin with the following steps:

-- Consulting immediately with allies bilaterally, at NATO and at the UN on Serb non-compliance with relevant UNSC resolutions, which call for unhindered delivery of humanitarian assistance including "safe and secure access" to Sarajevo Airport, and provide for the use of force to protect the Sarajevo safe area. The UN Security Council is to act Wednesday to issue a Presidential Statement on the airport that will call for its re-opening in accordance with the 1992 Airport Agreement.

-- Convening a meeting of the NAC to discuss military measures to ensure compliance with relevant UNSC resolutions.

-- Arranging calls by the Secretary to Hurd, Juppe and Kozyrev, letting them know that a failure to open the airport on acceptable terms will make a Ministerial impossible.

-- Raising the issue at the May 5 Contact Group meeting in Paris.

EXISTING AUTHORITY FOR NATO AIR ACTIVITY AROUND SARAJEVO AIRPORT

Within limitations, the UN and NATO have the authority to use air power in response to restrictions placed on the use of Sarajevo Airport, based on the following:

CLOSE AIR SUPPORT (CAS)

NATO Authority: Based on paragraph 1.1 of the Athens Ministerial Decision Sheet (June 10, 1993), which reads in part:

> "Ministers decided ... to offer NATO's protective air power in case of attack against UNPROFOR"

NATO may respond to a UN request for NATO air power, without further action, to support UNPROFOR.

UN Authority: UNSC 836 Res. (June 4, 1993), reaffirmed by UNSC Res. 844 (June 18, 1993) provides that:

> "... member states, acting ... through regional organizations, ... may take all necessary measures, through the use of air power, ... in and around safe areas, ... to support UNPROFOR in the performance of [certain aspects of] its mandate ..."

That mandate includes deterring attacks on the safe areas, and replying to obstruction of movement of UNPROFOR or humanitarian convoys throughout Bosnia. In addition, under UNSC Res. 770, the UN may request NATO to use force to facilitate delivery of humanitarian assistance to Sarajevo. These resolutions require that actions by member states and regional organizations be taken in "close cooperation" or in "coordination" with the UN, respectively.

AIR STRIKES IN RESPONSE TO STRANGULATION

NATO Authority: Based on NAC decisions of August 2 and 9, 1993, which read in part:

> "...that the Alliance will make immediate preparations for undertaking, in the event of strangulation of Sarajevo and other areas ..., measures including air strikes ..."

NATO may conduct air strikes in response to the "strangulation" of safe areas.

The NAC decision also makes clear that "the first use of air power shall be authorized by the UN Secretary General." This has been termed the "dual key" arrangement.

UN Authority: As with CAS, implementing UN resolutions are 770, 836 and 844.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

AIR STRIKES IN RESPONSE TO VIOLATIONS OF THE SARAJEVO EXCLUSION ZONE

NATO Authority: Based on the NAC decision of February 9, 1994, which reads in part that NATO:

"... accepts ... the request of the UN Secretary General to launch air strikes, ... at the request of the United Nations, against artillery or mortar positions in or around Sarajevo ... which are determined by UNPROFOR to be responsible for attacks against civilians, ... and ... in response to artillery or mortar attacks on Sarajevo, ... and ... in response to the identification of any heavy weapons [inside] the exclusion zone [and not under UNPROFOR control] ..."

NATO may conduct air strikes, at the UN's request, if the Sarajevo exclusion zone is violated.

UN Authority: As with CAS, implementing UN resolutions are 770, 836 and 844.

NOTE: UN and NATO authority to use air power, as noted above, does NOT apply to restrictions on the use of Sarajevo Airport by diplomats or official delegations.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Principals' Review of Bosnia, April 28, 1995

Principals met on Friday to review three aspects of our Bosnia policy: (1) ongoing Contact Group efforts to gain Milosevic's recognition of Bosnia, isolate the Bosnian Serbs and extend the cessation of hostilities; (2) measures to deal with Serb attempts to control access to Sarajevo airport; and (3) NATO contingency planning for a possible UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia.

Contact Group: Principals agreed that we should offer to suspend some additional sanctions if Milosevic unambiguously recognizes Bosnia within its internationally-recognized borders. They agreed, however, that this offer should be contingent on a commitment by our Contact Group partners to tighten the closure of the Serbian-Bosnian border and to take similar measures to seal Croatia's border with Bosnian Serb areas -- the "back door" through which significant circumvention has occurred. This approach is strongly backed by the Bosnians; indeed, they have said they will extend the cessation of hostilities if there is progress on recognition and sealing of the border. At Friday's Contact Group meeting, our partners reacted positively on closure of the border but, as usual, argued for a more generous package of sanctions relief than we and the Bosnians consider prudent.

In any event, the chances of securing genuine Serbian recognition of Bosnia are low, since Milosevic continues to demand a lifting of all the sanctions (which the Contact Group has conditioned on recognition of all the former Yugoslav states). Nevertheless, if allies make good on sealing the border, it can -- over time -- increase the economic squeeze on the Bosnian Serbs and pressure them to accept the Contact Group plan. The Croatians, for their part, seem prepared to cooperate in closing the "back door."

Sarajevo Airport: Principals agreed on the unacceptability of recent Serb actions to assert control over Sarajevo airport and to prohibit the use of UN flights by our Ambassador and Contact Group representative. They were deeply concerned at signs that the UN is prepared to accede to Serb dictates, which would destroy what little UN credibility remains. Principals agreed that, while there is no immediate humanitarian crisis in the Bosnian capital, the Serbs' actions amount to an attempt at the "strangulation" of Sarajevo, which NATO and the UN have pledged to prevent. Therefore, Principals asked the Interagency Working Group to develop options for NATO action to reopen Sarajevo airport, together with a diplomatic strategy for gaining Allied and UN support. Chris stressed that, if we decide to pursue NATO action, we will need to ask you to go to John Major and the new French President to overcome their objections. Bill Perry noted the need to consider how to respond if the Serbs retaliate in other areas, such as by attacking the eastern enclaves. We will, of course, seek your approval before going down this road.

UNPROFOR Withdrawal Planning: Shali briefed Principals on the NATO OPLAN for UNPROFOR withdrawal. The plan involves roughly 70,000 NATO troops, including 25,000 from the U.S. and will cost between $1.5 and $2 billion dollars (for the U.S., an additional $600 million beyond the cost of ongoing operations). Under the plan, in the first two weeks UK- and French-led units would secure the routes from the Adriatic to Sarajevo, opening the way for U.S. troops to push through to Tuzla and on to the eastern enclaves. The withdrawal of UNPROFOR troops would then unfold over the subsequent 2-3 months. Because of the length of the operation and the eight-week lead-time involved, the OPLAN also includes rapid response capabilities to extract individual UNPROFOR units in emergency situations.

Principals agreed that, in purely military terms, the OPLAN was sound and should receive continued U.S. support at NATO. They agreed that Shali should identify the U.S. forces that would be involved, while making clear that the actual commitment of those forces will require a further decision by you and consultations with the Congress. At the same time, Principals felt that there were many sensitive political questions to be answered before seeking your approval of the plan, including: Is our post-withdrawal policy still to lift the arms embargo and, if so, how will that affect NATO's posture during withdrawal? How to deal with Serb attacks on the eastern enclaves during and after the operation? Will NATO enforce the exclusion zones? How to deal with civilians seeking NATO protection or evacuation and with refugees? What is NATO's role in delivering humanitarian aid?

Principals agreed that, as we grapple with these questions within the Administration, we should pose them to members of Congress in consultations on Bosnia in the coming weeks. The scale of the withdrawal operation and the policy dilemmas involved should help dampen support for unilateral lift and build support for our efforts to contain the fighting and keep UNPROFOR in place.

If you have any problems with the OPLAN's approach we can discuss it further with you or provide you an early briefing on it.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

U.S. Hostage: Principals briefly discussed the situation of Jonathan Knapp, the American relief worker captured two months ago along with four French colleagues by the Bosnian Serbs. At Knapp's request, we have been working through the French and the UN to secure his release. His family is becoming more anxious as the Serbs threaten to put Knapp on trial, and they may soon abandon quiet diplomacy in favor of a media campaign. Chris will consider the possibility of a direct message to Bosnian Serb leader Karadzic from a middle-level USG official based on indications that this may be the face-saver the Serbs are looking for to release Knapp.

SUBJECT: Additional Principals Tasking on Unanswered Policy Questions Relating to OPLAN 40104 ~~(S)~~

Following a preliminary review at the Principals Meeting on April 28 of the list of unanswered policy questions relating to OPLAN 40104, Principals have provided additional guidance to further focus IWG efforts. ~~(S)~~

Principals have requested that a post-UNPROFOR withdrawal strategy be developed to guide the IWG's drafting of answers to the policy questions. Accordingly, State Department is requested to draft a post-UNPROFOR withdrawal political and diplomatic strategy and circulate it to the Interagency by COB, Monday, May 8. State is further requested to provide options for answers to the policy questions by Tuesday, May 9. Principals will review the strategy and answers after the Moscow Summit. ~~(S)~~

SUBJECT: Principals Tasking on Sarajevo Situation ~~(S)~~

Principals met Friday, April 28, 1995 and directed the Bosnia Interagency Working Group to immediately conduct a review of the current situation in Sarajevo -- where violations of the exclusion zone have increased and where the Bosnian Serbs have closed the Sarajevo airport to diplomatic and humanitarian relief flights in violation of the 1992 agreement. Accordingly, the following taskings are assigned:

Intelligence Assessment of Situation: Assessment should include, but need not be limited to, the current situation within the Sarajevo Exclusion Zone, Bosnian Serb intentions and goals; humanitarian relief situation; threats and anticipated reaction to efforts to fly into Sarajevo without Serb authorization; Serb response to a NATO ultimatum threatening airstrikes if Sarajevo airport is not reopened under the terms of the 1992 agreement; and Bosnian Government and other views and reactions. (Action: CIA, Suspense: COB May 1) ~~(S)~~

Review of Existing UN and NATO Mandates: Assessment of existing UN and NATO mandates that would permit the use of military force to reopen Sarajevo Airport, end the strangulation of Sarajevo, or escort flights into Sarajevo. (Action: State, with OSD/JCS input, Suspense: COB May 2) ~~(S)~~

Military Options: Options to reopen Sarajevo airport; options to escort flights into Sarajevo; options to deter interference with airfield operations; options to deter or counter horizontal escalation in response to forced flights into Sarajevo or to punitive air strikes under NATO's August 1993 decision. (Action: JCS with OSD input, Suspense: COB May 2) ~~(S)~~

Diplomatic Strategy: Political and diplomatic strategy to reopen Sarajevo airport under provisions of 1992 agreement; steps to gain Allied and UN support for tougher measures including forced entry should it become necessary or issuance of a NATO ultimatum under the August 1993 air strikes decision. (Action: State with OSD/JCS input, Suspense: COB May 2) ~~(S)~~

SUBJECT: MILOSEVIC'S APRIL 26 MEETING WITH UK CHARGE

REF: BELGRADE 1868 → follows this cable →

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. UK CHARGE ROBERTS HAS GIVEN US A BRIEF READ-OUT OF HIS APRIL 26 MEETING WITH MILOSEVIC, AT WHICH ROBERTS WAS INSTRUCTED BY LONDON TO SEEK CONFIRMATION OF MILOSEVIC'S INTERPRETATION OF THE PAPER RECEIVED ON APRIL 17 (REFTEL).

3. ROBERTS SAID THAT HE WROTE OUT HIS SPEAKING NOTES (AND PASSED THE PAPER TO MILOSEVIC) SO THAT THERE WOULD BE NO MISUNDERSTANDING BY MILOSEVIC OF WHAT THE UK WAS ASKING. THE FULL TEXT OF THESE SPEAKING NOTES IS TRANSMITTED IN PARA 7 BELOW.

4. ACCORDING TO ROBERTS, MILOSEVIC READ THE PAPER CAREFULLY AND THEN RESPONDED THAT HE WAS PUZZLED BY THIS NEED FOR CLARIFICATION, SINCE THE PAPER WAS FULLY CONSISTENT WITH HIS OWN PROPOSAL OF APRIL 17. IN THE DISCUSSION OF MODALITIES, MILOSEVIC SAID HE DID NOT UNDERSTAND WHY EVERYTHING COULD NOT BE HANDLED BY ONE PAPER, BUT DID NOT SEE THIS ISSUE AS A LARGE PROBLEM.

5. THE CONTENTIOUS DISCUSSION CENTERED AROUND HOW MUCH SANCTIONS RELIEF WOULD BE PROVIDED BY THE CONTACT GROUP, WITH MILOSEVIC CONTINUING TO INSIST ON "LIFTING" OF ALL SANCTIONS. ROBERTS REPORTEDLY ARGUED THAT THIS WAS NOT POSSIBLE, AS HE HAD ALREADY EXPLAINED LAST TIME, BUT THAT SANCTIONS RELIEF COULD BE "SUBSTANTIAL." HE EO 13526 1.4b EO 13526 1.4d (b)(1) EO 13526 1.4b EO 13526 1.4d (b)(1) MILOSEVIC DID NOT RESPOND POSITIVELY BUT INSTEAD ARGUED THAT OIL AND FUEL WERE IN HIS VIEW NON-STRATEGIC, AND THAT SUSPENSION RATHER THAN LIFT WAS IN ANY CASE HUMILIATING AND SUBJECT TO REVERSAL THROUGH FABRICATIONS SUCH AS THE HELICOPTER CHARGES. HE STRONGLY COMPLAINED IN THIS CONTEXT ABOUT UNSCR 988 AND HOW IT AGAIN SHOWED THE UNWILLINGNESS OF THE CONTACT GROUP COUNTRIES TO WORK WITH HIM CONSTRUCTIVELY.

6. IN SUMMING UP THE DISCUSSION, ROBERTS SAID THAT MILOSEVIC CONFIRMED ALL ASPECTS OF THE PROPOSAL AS OUTLINED ON APRIL 17 BUT MADE CLEAR THAT THE DEGREE OF SANCTIONS RELIEF REMAINED AN UNRESOLVED ISSUE, WITH TOUGH NEGOTIATIONS AHEAD TO FIND COMMON GROUND.

SUBJECT: MILOSEVIC'S RESPONSE TO CONTACT GROUP PAPER ON RECOGNITION

REFS: A) BELGRADE 1773, B) STATE 86669

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. AS HE HAD PROMISED THE CONTACT GROUP ON APRIL 11 (REF A), MILOSEVIC ON APRIL 17 PASSED TO THE UK CHARGE IN BELGRADE A FORMAL RESPONSE TO THE CONTACT GROUP'S PAPER ON RECOGNITION (REF B). THE FULL TEXT OF THE MILOSEVIC PAPER IS TRANSMITTED IN PARA 6 BELOW.

3. MILOSEVIC'S PAPER INCORPORATES MUCH OF THE LANGUAGE FROM THE CG PAPER BUT CHANGES THE ORDERING OF SOME PARAGRAPHS AND HAS SOME SIGNIFICANT DIFFERENCES OF TEXT, CHIEF AMONG WHICH ARE THE FOLLOWING:

-- THE SECOND PARAGRAPH DROPS ALL REFERENCES TO CROATIA SINCE, ACCORDING TO UK CHARGE ROBERTS, MILOSEVIC INSISTED THAT CROATIA IS NOT RELEVANT TO UN RESOLUTIONS IMPOSING SANCTIONS;

-- THE SAME PARAGRAPH SPEAKS OF "LIFTING OF ALL UN SANCTIONS" (RATHER THAN MEANINGFUL SUSPENSION OF SANCTIONS) AND SPECIFIES THAT THIS SHOULD OCCUR "SIMULTANEOUSLY" WITH RECOGNITION; ROBERTS SAID HE TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT "MEANINGFUL SUSPENSION" WAS THE MOST HE COULD GET HERE, AND MILOSEVIC REPORTEDLY REMAINED SILENT;

-- THE THIRD PARAGRAPH HAS A FOOTNOTE ACKNOWLEDGING THE STATE CONTINUITY OF YUGOSLAVIA AND STATES THAT BOSNIA/HERCEGOVINA WOULD BE RECOGNIZED "AS A UNION" RATHER THAN "AS A STATE." ACCORDING TO ROBERTS,

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
2/6/2020 (8.11)
2013-0682-M

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

MILOSEVIC SAID HE COULD ACCEPT BOTH OF THESE PHRASES BEING DROPPED AND THE PARAGRAPH ENDING WITH THE WORD "BORDERS";

-- THE CG PARAGRAPH REGARDING THE FRY/BOSNIAN BORDER CLOSURE IS MOVED TO THE END OF MILOSEVIC'S PAPER, A POINT WHICH MILOSEVIC SAID WAS A CONCESSION BECAUSE HE FELT THE ENTIRE PARAGRAPH WAS INAPPROPRIATE IN A PAPER TO WHICH HE WOULD BE A PARTY;

-- PARA 5 OF THE CG PAPER IS OMITTED ENTIRELY IN MILOSEVIC'S TEXT BECAUSE (AS MILOSEVIC ARGUED) HE WOULD NOT BE A PARTY TO THE BOSNIAN NEGOTIATIONS AND THUS SAW NO REASON TO REFER TO THEM. THE RESULT, HOWEVER, IS THAT THE MILOSEVIC PAPER CARRIES NO REFERENCE TO THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN AND MAKES THE SUBSEQUENT CONSTITUTIONAL PRINCIPLES APPEAR MUCH MORE TO BE A FAIT ACCOMPLI OF THE CONTACT GROUP RATHER THAN A RESULT OF NEGOTIATIONS AMONG BOSNIAN PARTIES;

-- THE CONSTITUTIONAL PRINCIPLES AGAIN SPEAK OF A "UNION" OF BOSNIA-HERCEGOVINA RATHER THAN A "STATE."

4) ACCORDING TO ROBERTS, MILOSEVIC WHILE HANDING OVER THE PAPER GAVE EVERY INDICATION OF BEING READY TO MEET IZETBEGOVIC AT A SUMMIT MEETING ON THE BASIS OF THE TEXT. HE CAUTIONED ONLY THAT THERE WOULD HAVE TO BE FURTHER DISCUSSION OF "MODALITIES" SINCE HE (MILOSEVIC) WAS NOT AUTHORIZED AS PRESIDENT OF SERBIA TO RECOGNIZE ANOTHER STATE. THIS COULD BE DONE, HOWEVER, "WITHIN TEN MINUTES" BY FEDERAL PRIME MINISTER KONTIC ISSUING A DECLARATION OF THE FRY'S INTENTION TO RECOGNIZE BOSNIA.

5) IN OTHER DISCUSSIONS, MILOSEVIC REPORTEDLY COMPLAINED STRONGLY TO ROBERTS ABOUT THE INABILITY OF THE CONTACT GROUP TO DECIDE ON WHETHER IT WISHED TO ENGAGE IN "COOPERATION" OR "CONFRONTATION" WITH HIM. HE PARTICULARLY THREATENED THAT IF PHASE I SANCTIONS WERE NOT RENEWED BECAUSE OF THE "FALSE" HELICOPTER CHARGES HE WOULD EXPEL THE ICFY MISSION FROM THE FRY AND NOT ENGAGE IN ANY FURTHER DISCUSSIONS WITH THE CONTACT GROUP.

6) BEGIN TEXT OF MILOSEVIC PAPER:

(1) CONTACT GROUP MINISTERS CALLED IN DECEMBER 1994 FOR EARLY MUTUAL RECOGNITION BETWEEN THE STATES OF THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA WITHIN THEIR INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNISED BORDERS. THEY SAW THIS AS KEY TO THE FUTURE STABILITY OF THE REGION.

(2) IN THE CONTEXT OF MUTUAL RECOGNITION BETWEEN THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA AND BOSNIA AND HERCEGOVINA, AND PROVIDED THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA RESPECTIVELY SUPPORTS OR IMPLEMENTS THE OTHER

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

PROVISIONS BELOW, THE CONTACT GROUP GOVERNMENTS ARE PREPARED TO RECOMMEND TO THE UN SECURITY COUNCIL THE LIFTING OF ALL UN SANCTIONS ON THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA, TO TAKE EFFECT SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE RECOGNITION.

(3) THE CONTACT GROUP PROPOSES THAT IN AN ACT OF MUTUAL RECOGNITION (ASTERISK) BETWEEN THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA AND BOSNIA AND HERCEGOVINA, THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA SHOULD RECOGNIZE BOSNIA AND HERCEGOVINA WITHIN ITS INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNIZED BORDERS [AS A UNION.]

Milosevic will delete this

A) BOSNIA AND HERCEGOVINA WOULD BE A UNION OF TWO ENTITIES, THE FEDERATION OF BOSNIA AND HERCEGOVINA AND THE REPUBLIKA SRPSKA.

B) THERE WOULD BE BALANCED AND EQUAL TREATMENT OF THE FEDERATION OF BOSNIA AND HERCEGOVINA AND THE REPUBLIKA SRPSKA.

C) BOTH ENTITIES WOULD HAVE THE RIGHT TO ESTABLISH PARALLEL SPECIAL RELATIONSHIPS WITH NEIGHBOURING COUNTRIES, CONSISTENT WITH THE INTEGRITY OF THE UNION OF BOSNIA AND HERCEGOVINA.

D) THE 51:49 PARAMETER OF THE TERRITORIAL PROPOSAL OF THE CONTACT GROUP WOULD REMAIN THE BASIS FOR A SETTLEMENT. THIS TERRITORIAL PROPOSAL WOULD BE OPEN FOR ADJUSTMENT BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT.
E) THERE WOULD BE PROVISION IN THE SETTLEMENT FOR REFUGEES AND DISPLACED PERSONS TO BE ABLE TO RETURN TO THEIR HOMES OF ORIGIN.

F. REDEPLOYMENT TO THE LINES AGREED WOULD TAKE PLACE AS SOON AS THERE WAS AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE TWO SIDES ON ANY TERRITORIAL ADJUSTMENTS AND ON CONSTITUTIONAL ARRANGEMENTS.

G. THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES AGREEMENT SHOULD BE EXTENDED BY FOUR MONTHS FROM 30 APRIL TO ENABLE COMPLETION OF THE NEGOTIATIONS.

H. AS REGARDS CROATIA. FOLLOWING THE PASSAGE OF UN SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION 981, THERE SHOULD NOW IMMEDIATELY BE FURTHER NORMALIZATION OF ECONOMIC RELATIONS AND THE START OF NEGOTIATIONS ON A FINAL POLITICAL SETTLEMENT BETWEEN ZAGREB AND KNIN.

I. THE CONTACT GROUP UNDERLINES THE NEED FOR MAINTENANCE BY THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA OF THE BORDER CLOSURE EXCEPT FOR HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE. THE ICFY MONITORING MISSION WILL BE REINFORCED AS NECESSARY.

ASTERISK: MUTUAL RECOGNITION IMPLIES THE STATE CONTINUITY OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA.

Summary of Conclusions

Negotiations with Milosevic

1. Principals discussed progress made to date in ongoing negotiations between Ambassador Frasure and Milosevic regarding the recognition/sanctions relief package. They agreed on the contents of an instruction cable to Frasure outlining key problem areas in Milosevic's counterproposal and authorizing further negotiations to close the gap (Action: State). The cable will provide goals but retain flexibility for Frasure in the negotiations. (S)

2. Principals agreed on the following guidance on the most sensitive issues:

- Successor State Status: Principals agreed to maintain our existing position that Serbia/Montenegro could be treated as "a" successor state but not "the" successor state to Yugoslavia. (S)

- Timing of Serbian Admission to OSCE: Principals agreed that Serbia's admission to OSCE should be simultaneous with restoration of the long-duration missions to Kosovo, Sandjak and Vojvodina. (S)

- Sanctions Relief: Principals agreed on the need to avoid "front-end loading" of sanctions relief or lifting. Milosevic's proposed automatic mechanism for continuing extension of sanctions suspension without a UNSC vote was unacceptable. Principals agreed to counter his oil relief proposal of 500,000 MT per month with an offer of 125,000 MT, and to try to limit imports through a single point of entry. OVP provided an outline chart linking specific sanctions relief actions to specific progress toward a political settlement involving Pale (attached); Principals agreed that this should be provided to Frasure as a guide rather than as detailed negotiating instructions. They agreed that some lifting of sanctions should be tied to recognition of Croatia. They reaffirmed that any lifting of the "outer wall" of sanctions (access to IFIs, full participation in international organizations) should be tied to cooperation with the War Crimes Tribunal and progress toward a broader regional settlement, including restoration of autonomy to Kosovo. (S)

Future Options for UNPROFOR

3. Principals reaffirmed that retention of UNPROFOR in Bosnia was critical to U.S. interests and agreed to support the conclusions of the CHODs meeting with UNPROFOR Commanders calling for enhancement of UNPROFOR's ability to fulfill its existing mandate. The CHODs' proposal included agreement that the UNPROFOR Ground Commanders would develop an enhanced air supply plan for the eastern enclaves on an urgent basis and that unhindered use of Sarajevo airport was imperative. (Other options considered but rejected by the CHODs included continuation of the existing situation, retrenchment and reduced UN presence, UNPROFOR withdrawal and military intervention.) CJCS will be instructed to take this window of opportunity to press allies for as robust an enhancement of UNPROFOR as possible (Action: JCS) and USUN will work to ensure that options presented for agreement in New York reflect the CHODs' decisions (Action: USUN). 4. Principals agreed that there was little likelihood that the CHODs' proposals would lead to more robust use of force by UNPROFOR in pursuit of fulfilling its mandate or increased willingness to employ NATO airpower under the dual key approach. If an opportunity arose to support rotation of the UNSYG Special Representative to someone more likely to support UN requests for the use of NATO airstrikes, the U.S. would be supportive but not initiate such an effort. (Action: USUN). (S)

5. At the same time, Principals agreed that if the French found enhancing UNPROFOR in its existing areas and mandates acceptable, and the UK was willing to let this go forward, the U.S. should not press for UNPROFOR retrenchment at this time. Principals also noted that success in the Frasure-Milosevic negotiations could help satisfy French requirements for progress toward a political settlement. (S)

6. Principals noted that briefings to the SFRC earlier in the day had flagged serious concerns regarding preparing the Congress and the public for U.S. participation in a possible withdrawal operation, lack of clarity about a post-withdrawal strategy and funding. Principals agreed that a strong effort would be needed to secure Congressional approval. (C)

7. Principals agreed to meet again on Tuesday, May 23, to address (1) post-withdrawal strategy (Action: State); (2) remaining unanswered questions associated with EO 13526 1.4a implementation (Action: State, OSD); (3) the remaining steps associated with EO 13526 1.4a (Action: JCS, OSD); and (4) a legislative strategy (Action: All). May 12 Contact Group Agreement
(The plan offered to Milosevic on May 18)

If the FRY:

- Recognizes Bosnia
- Tightens closure of the inter-Serb border, allows transfer of border mission to OSCE and OSCE monitors to Kosovo

FRY gets in return:

- Suspension of sanctions on non-strategic trade (notes 1 and 2)
- Suspension of financial sanctions (notes 1 and 3)
- OSCE membership

If Pale then:

- Accepts the CG package.

FRY gets in return:

- Lift of all Phase 1 sanctions

And if Pale then:

- Fully implements Contact Group plan

FRY and Pale get in return:

- "Lift of remaining sanctions (plus release of frozen assets) calibrated to implementation in a way to be developed later."

NOTES:

1. All "suspensions" are for a six-month period and can be renewed only by positive vote by the Security Council.

2. The agreed definition of "strategic goods" includes oil, petroleum products, coal, iron, steel, and other metals plus energy-related equipment and petro-chemicals.

3. All financial sanctions are suspended, including credits. Frozen assets are not released. The resolution relaxing sanctions is to contain prohibitions against using frozen assets to secure or otherwise support loans and credits.

Milosevic's May 18 Counter Offer

If the FRY:

- Recognizes Bosnia
- Allows reinforcement of the inter-Serb border-monitoring mission

FRY gets in return:

- Suspension of sanctions on non-strategic trade (UN definition)
- Import of 500,000 MT of oil a month
- Suspension of all financial sanctions
- Lift of sports sanctions
- Entry into OSCE

If Pale then:

- Accepts the CG plan as a starting point for negotiations

FRY gets in return:

- Lift of phase 1 sanctions (air and ferry service.

Then:

- When a cessation of hostilities is in place, and
- The Bosnian parties have begun negotiations on implementation of the CG plan

FRY gets in return:

- Lift of non-strategic trade and financial sanctions
- Suspension of strategic trade sanctions (oil import quota remains in place)

When

- The CG plan is fully implemented on the ground
- Respective forces have withdrawn to the agreed territorial limits

FRY gets in return:

- Lift of remaining sanctions (presumably including release of frozen assets)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

NOTES:

1. All "suspensions" are for an indefinite time period. The Security Council would "review" the situation in the former Yugoslavia, to include the sanctions suspension arrangements.

2. UNSC Resolutions define strategic goods as including crude oil, petroleum products, coal, energy-related equipment, iron, steel, other metals, chemicals, rubber, tires, vehicles, aircraft, and motors of all types.

DRAFT

Countering Milosevic's Counter Offer

If the FRY:

- Recognizes Bosnia
- Allows reinforcement of the inter-Serb border-monitoring mission
- Ends support for Pale and Knin

FRY gets in return:

- Suspension of sanctions on non-strategic trade (UN definition)
- Import of up to 100,000 MT of oil a month
- Suspension of all financial sanctions
- Entry into OSCE

If Pale then:

- Accepts the CG plan as a starting point for negotiations and begins negotiations

FRY gets in return:

- Partial lift of phase 1 sanctions
- CG agreement to change terms of sanctions relief extension (eg: longer than six month periods, revise extension conditionality, etc.)

Then when:

- The Bosnian parties have reached agreement, and
- They have begun implementation of the CG plan (to include starting withdrawals)

FRY gets in return:

- Lift of non-strategic trade and financial sanctions
- Suspension of strategic trade sanctions (oil import quota remains in place)

And when

- The CG plan is fully implemented on the ground, and
- Respective forces have withdrawn to the agreed territorial limits
- (And if the FRY has recognized Croatia, Slovenia, and Macedonia)

FRY gets in return:

- Lift of remaining sanctions (presumably including release of frozen assets)
- End of oil quota system

TO: Anthony Lake

FROM: Ambassador Madeleine K. Albright MKA

SUBJECT: The FRY and the Outer Wall of Sanctions

I wanted to follow up on our discussion at May 18's Principals' Meeting concerning conditions for the FRY to join the international community.

I remain concerned that any change from our announced policy will expose the President to considerable criticism and erode our credibility in negotiations for peace settlement. On March 13, the President told Representative Hoyer that the Serbs should not expect to join the international community -- exemplified by membership in international organizations, attendance at international conferences, and access to financing from the international financial institutions -- until they affirmatively comply with requests of the International Tribunal. (I have attached his letter.) Chris and I are also on record with strong statements of support for the Tribunal.

I continue to believe that keeping the Tribunal as a condition for the "outer wall" of sanctions is the right thing to do. The victims of atrocities deserve justice. Removing persons who would foment violence will reduce causes of future conflict. Finally, the Tribunal is one aspect of our Balkans policy that has received consistent public and congressional praise.

Interestingly, the Tribunal has become important to domestic politics in the former Yugoslavia. Over the last eighteen months, Milosevic has used accusations of atrocities to undermine his political rivals. The Government of Croatia has made clear that its cooperation with the Tribunal will demonstrate its commitment to western ideals. The Constitution of the Bosniac-Croat Federation forbids war crimes suspects from holding political office; this provision was included with the intention of marginalizing revanchist Bosnian Croats who are now impeding the Federation's development. And Haris Silajdzic has strongly urged sustained U.S. support for the Tribunal, with the possible intention of using it to support his domestic aspirations. After working to place the Tribunal and the law it supports on the combatants' agenda, we should not back away now.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

March 13, 1995

Dear Representative Hoyer:

Thank you for your letter on the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia. As you know, the United States is the War Crimes Tribunal's strongest advocate. I remain personally committed to it and firmly believe that successful completion of its mission is critical to long-term peace prospects in the former Yugoslavia. That is why, in the latest proposal put forward by the Contact Group, we emphasized that nothing should be done to affect our commitment to the Tribunal and that all parties should cooperate in its efforts. In particular, the Serbs should not interfere with its operations and should not expect to fully rejoin the international community until they affirmatively comply with the Tribunal's requests.

I agree that the United States must play a leading role with regard to the Tribunal's funding. We will continue to be active in urging the United Nations to provide adequate budgets for the Tribunal. U.S. experts have closely reviewed the proposed budget and have provided their assessment and advice to the UN. The results so far have been encouraging. In December 1994, the Tribunal received the full amount it had requested through March 1995 and reports on the ongoing UN budget review are promising. At the same time, we are continuing to press other states to support the Tribunal's budget.

To further demonstrate our commitment, the United States also contributed over twenty prosecutors, investigators and other experts at U.S. expense. As you note, the United States made a $3 million cash contribution to the Tribunal last year and we are currently considering whether to make additional voluntary contributions in light of the UN budget.

Let me also assure you of our support for implementing legislation to enable us to comply with orders of the Tribunal. As you are aware, such legislation was transmitted at the end of the last congressional session, but there was insufficient time for the Congress to act upon it. Since then, we have had to make adjustments to encompass the Rwanda Tribunal. Legislation will be presented to the Congress shortly, and I look forward to your help in moving it along.

BOSNIA: STRATEGIC CHOICES

NSC DISCUSSION PAPER

Introduction:

We are in a critical period for U.S. policy toward Bosnia that could see the withdrawal of UNPROFOR and the introduction of NATO/U.S. ground forces for a mission whose outcome is uncertain. Now is the time to review the fundamental principles guiding our policy and to determine the steps necessary to shape events before strategic choices are completely dictated by the situation on the ground.

Fundamental U.S. policy objectives for Bosnia:

- Obtain a political settlement that satisfies basic Bosnian government requirements and rolls back some Serb aggression
- End or reduce the fighting
- Prevent spread of conflict to other parts of region
- Maintain relief supplies
- Maintain cohesion with Allies
- Avoid American entanglement in fighting on the ground in the Balkans

Key Strategic Choices:

I. Whither UNPROFOR: U.S. support for continued UNPROFOR presence has been based upon an assessment that this course remains the avenue best suited to the majority of our fundamental objectives -- and that, for all of its problems, the alternatives are worse.

- In the current environment, the viability of UNPROFOR is increasingly being called into question.
  - ♦ UNPROFOR is unable to ensure that humanitarian assistance is delivered to UN-protected areas/safe areas.
  - ♦ Fighting among the warring parties is no longer deterred by UNPROFOR presence.
  - ♦ UNPROFOR itself is frequently the subject of attack, and UNPROFOR forces are neither in a position to defend themselves effectively nor to withstand the possible consequences of calling in NATO airpower.
  - ♦ UNPROFOR credibility is thereby undermined with all parties, and NATO credibility in turn eroded as well.

PER E.O. 13526
CIA Historical Collections Div.
AR 70-14 10/1/2013
(2013-0682-M, 8.16)

- Under these circumstances, we must ask whether linking U.S. objectives to continued UNPROFOR presence remains valid in the current environment.
  - There still do not appear to be any alternatives to UNPROFOR that provide better support for U.S. objectives.
  - Withdrawal followed by unilateral or predominantly U.S. lift (and strike) risks "Americanizing" the Balkan conflict; even multilateral lift risks widening the scope of the conflict as more external parties move to support regional clients.
  - Replacement of UNPROFOR with another international presence (NATO? WEU? Coalition of the willing?) would either require U.S. participation on the ground or prove equally ineffective -- and require additional political and financial capital to initiate.
  - U.S. interests are thus best served by finding a way to restore credibility to the UNPROFOR mission in a manner that permits existing troop contributors to sustain their continued presence and the Bosnian government to agree to retain that presence.
- Options other than withdrawal available for UNPROFOR under the present circumstances:
  - Muddle through with the status quo: French have already indicated likely pullout if current conditions remain unchanged -- may be the thread that unravels the whole fabric of UNPROFOR.
  - "Restabilization" of existing UNPROFOR mission with more robust enforcement of existing mandate: UK avoidance of a confrontational approach in B-H must be overcome if this option is to become viable; additional resources needed to enhance military capabilities of existing UNPROFOR forces not likely to be forthcoming.
  - "Retrench and reinvigorate" UNPROFOR mission by withdrawing from untenable positions/missions while pursuing more robust enforcement of remaining mandates: could be seen as a trade of the eastern enclaves for more effective mission performance around Sarajevo -- implications for eastern enclaves could be very serious; however, this option could satisfy both the French and UK; by retrenching, could also alleviate some to the problems associated with resources to enhance capabilities.
  - "Retrench and retreat" by withdrawing and pursuing an even less vigorous approach to mandate enforcement: the least costly approach, this might be used as a bargaining chip to get the Bosnian Serbs to accede to the conditions for French forces remaining in UNPROFOR; UK likely to support; however, potentially as damaging to UNPROFOR credibility as the status quo, with the additional public image/moral costs of not only "abandoning" the eastern enclaves, but also "capitulating" in cases where UNPROFOR remains; least likely to be acceptable to Bosnians, who could then refuse to allow continued UNPROFOR presence.

Comment: Only realistic choice may be to seek Allied support to "retrench and reinvigorate". Trade U.S. support for retrenchment for allied and UN pledge to pursue more robust enforcement of remaining mandate, including NATO airstrikes. Fall back to "retrench and retreat" only if no other way to prevent withdrawal.

II. Whither OPLAN 40104, given U.S. objective of sustaining UNPROFOR and commitment to assist withdrawal if required?

- There are no guarantees that a viable solution to retaining UNPROFOR in theater can be agreed.
- Withdrawal remains a real, and increasingly likely, option if there is no agreement on a more viable UNPROFOR role.
- Nevertheless, several key issues remain to be resolved before a decision to proceed with withdrawal implementation could be taken with confidence:
  - What is the end state we want to leave behind following UNPROFOR withdrawal? What to avoid may be clearer than what to achieve: avoid merely replacing UN with NATO forces and being unable to leave; avoid debacle of U.S./NATO-led withdrawal being depicted as precursor to brutal ethnic cleansing; avoid loss of NATO credibility to the same extent there has been a loss of UN credibility.
  - How does NATO deal with unintended consequences of withdrawal operations? Massive refugee flow; use of NATO forces as shields by civilians or by warring factions; hostage-taking by warring factions; withdrawal of humanitarian aid providers as a result of UNPROFOR withdrawal.
  - Under what conditions could withdrawal or partial withdrawal take place without requiring implementation of OPLAN 40104? If nations determine that they will accomplish de facto withdrawal by merely failing to replace units during normal rotation, no NATO assistance may be necessary. If this resulted in enclaves being left unprotected, would the last forces out require NATO assistance, or could the UN accomplish this on its own?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- The way ahead for OPLAN 40104 is also complicated by a dilemma: we must ensure that our actions in preparation for possible UNPROFOR withdrawal do not precipitate the withdrawal itself.

  - Key is not allowing the existence of a "NATO withdrawal force" to prompt either UN troop contributors to seek early withdrawal or Bosnians to act to cause UNPROFOR withdrawal in the hopes that NATO will replace the UN. A clear "firebreak" is required between completion of NATO preparation for OPLAN 40104 and initiation of OPLAN implementation. We must be confident that we understand exactly what steps will be required to get from the present state of NATO planning to this firebreak, and what steps take us beyond it.

  - NATO credibility requires that forces must be trained sufficiently to ensure mission success. ACTREQ requested by SACEUR this week will facilitate identification of forces and training shortfalls, and allow SACEUR to initiate action to rectify those shortfalls. Training in place to NATO standards should be an acceptable alternative to assembling in Europe for training, and send a more restrained signal.

  - Training in place would also permit completion of Congressional consultations prior to movement of any US forces. We may need to lay down marker in NATO that assembly of forces in Europe will require a further political decision.

FUTURE OF UNPROFOR'S MANDATE OPTIONS REVIEW

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
2013-0682-M
8/3/15 KBH
(8.17)

BACKGROUND

UNSYG Proposed Options. The UNSYG reported to the UNSC on proposals regarding a needed fundamental review of UNPROFOR's mandate. In light of the deteriorating conditions in Bosnia, UNSYG presented four options:

(1) Maintenance of the status quo;

(2) A more aggressive military posture, including sustained use of air power, with the resulting possibility of a more direct UNPROFOR-BSA confrontation;

(3) Withdrawal from Bosnia

(4) Redeployment and reduction in the number of troops, with necessary modifications to the UNPROFOR mandate.

Boutros Ghali has said publicly that he wants UNPROFOR reduced and redeployed (option 4 above), but advanced these four options. They are assessed below from the perspective of USG policy for AMB Albright in New York.

OPTIONS

(1) Maintenance of Status Quo. Boutros Ghali's call for a redeployment and reduction shows the UN's frustration with the status quo, both politically and militarily. But changing the mandates is not the answer. The French and British are tired of being involved in a failed mission. But both know triggering a withdrawal could lead to an UNPROFOR exodus. There is no good "end state" after UNPROFOR leaves. This would be the worst case for the US.

The best case would be a political settlement. Making UNPROFOR more effective is an achievable intermediate step that could eventually create conditions more conducive for the warring parties to reach a settlement.

We don't want the situation to unravel in Bosnia. Supporting changes to the UN mandates would only increase the possibility of an UNPROFOR withdrawal. We need to work with the present mandates and regain the initiative.

Indicators of progress from all warring parties will be needed over the next few months: e. g., progress toward cease-fire, discussion on the CG map, freedom of movement, improvement of resupply, reduction of hostilities, improved communication with the UN, BiH self-restraint in using safe areas, pressure on Bosnia, and Pale more involved in discussions. On the ground we need a more effective UNPROFOR, more liberal ROE, and air attacks.

The French want increased efforts to reach a ceasefire, obtain mutual recognition, and make progress on agreement to the Contact Group plan. The USG may have to begin reconsidering somewhat tilting its position in helping to stop the fighting and to promote conditions conducive to a negotiated settlement. The UK has said they are not going to propose withdrawal, nor political maneuvers that would lead us to slip into withdrawal. There are no good "end states" after withdrawal. The French realize this.

US troops should not become involved in Bosnia. That is why UNPROFOR must remain. We must support maintaining the political status quo to avoid triggering withdrawal. An even-handed approach may likely be required. If the choice is between UNPROFOR withdrawing and satisfying Bosnian government desires, the US must support UNPROFOR.

(2) More Aggressive Military Posture. Sustained use of air power against the Bosnian Serbs would rapidly expand the conflict, with UNPROFOR viewed as a belligerent. This goes far beyond the CHOD initiative and no UNPROFOR contributor would accept. Not a prudent option.

(3) Withdrawal from Bosnia. The US opposes. There is no good answer to an "end state" if UNPROFOR withdraws. UNPROFOR must remain in Bosnia.

(4) Redeployment and Troop Reduction. This is the UNSYG's real recommendation. The scope of this option is wide. While this option may appear attractive to changing a disintegrating situation in Bosnia, the greatest danger comes from signalling the start of the UNPROFOR withdrawal. Worse case for the US is a Bosnia without UNPROFOR.

The Bosnian government's reaction is likely to be negative to any troop drawdown, especially from the eastern enclaves. When the Dutch replaced the Canadians in Srebrenica, the local population held the Canadians hostage to ensure a one-for-one swap. A related concern for any drawdown is the logistics, movement, and perception problems created during any partial withdrawal. The threat to UN personnel redeploying out of isolated areas could result in the UN requesting a multilateral assisted withdrawal. NATO OPLAN 40104 could come into question.

The risks are too high and the gains too uncertain. The US should support the status quo supporting UNPROFOR under existing mandates. The 19 May CHOD's meeting in The Netherlands willaddress several options for enhancing UNPROFOR's situation under the existing mandates. The USG should support the outcome of this meeting.

CONCLUSION

The USG should support UNPROFOR under the existing mandates. Maintain the status quo while regaining the intitiative. UNPROFOR must pressure both sides in the conflict. This will require US support. We don't want to present the opportunity that could trigger UNPROFOR withdrawal. There is no good "end state" in a post-withdrawal Bosnia. UNPROFOR must remain in Bosnia.

UNANSWERED POLICY QUESTIONS RELATING TO OPLAN 40104

U.S. INTERESTS/OBJECTIVES:

- Improve regional peace and stability; contain the conflict.

[• Help ensure Bosnia's survival as a state.]--JCS/OSD
Continue to support a negotiated settlement recognizing B-H within its internationally-accepted boundaries.

- Honor U.S. bilateral and NATO commitments to assist in a NATO-led withdrawal should one become necessary.

ASSUMPTIONS:

- A continued UN presence in the region would attenuate the fighting and alleviate human suffering.

- The United Nations has decided to withdraw UNPROFOR from Bosnia and/or Croatia, and has requested NATO's assistance.

- The situation will permit UN forces to remain in Macedonia.

- NATO has decided to assist an emergency, partial, or total withdrawal from Bosnia and/or Croatia, and to execute OPLAN 40104. NATO's mission and priority for commitment of forces, including airpower, is to conduct the withdrawal of UN forces. Its mission is not to defend the Bosnian population, nor to support Bosnian Government forces.

- NATO's intent is not to assume UN missions and responsibilities; the UN would continue to direct and be responsible for any remaining UN operations.

- NATO (and the U.S.) will conduct a limited-duration withdrawal operation, then depart.

- To the extent it can without adversely impacting the withdrawal effort, NATO forces will continue to conduct other NATO-authorized operations as applicable, including SHARP GUARD, DENY FLIGHT, CAS, TEZ, and protection of safe areas, in support of the UN humanitarian mission.

- Local governments, NGOs, PVOs, and possibly UN organizations if they stay, will have responsibility for humanitarian assistance after UN forces have been withdrawn.

- NATO (and the U.S.) will oppose any effort to lift the arms embargo before the withdrawal operation has been completed.

[• Post UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia, the U.S. policy is "lift and strike," which does not include the employment of U.S. ground troops.]--JCS/OSD

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

PROPOSED U.S. POLICY AND PRINCIPLES (DURING WITHDRAWAL)

- The United States is willing to commit its forces, including U.S. ground troops, as part of a NATO-led operation to withdraw UN forces and American citizens from the former Yugoslavia.

- Apart from the withdrawal operation, the United States will continue to meet its NATO and national obligations in support of any remaining relevant UN mandates for humanitarian assistance to the extent the situation permits.

- During the withdrawal operation the forces of the United States, its Allies, and the UN will be expected to conduct themselves with impartiality and neutrality to the maximum extent practical.

- Any force, regardless of warring-party faction, detected attacking civilians in any area where withdrawal operations are being conducted, is subject to a NATO response.

- Any force, regardless of warring-party faction and of location within the theater of operations, that is determined to be a threat to the withdrawal operation, is subject to a NATO response.

- NATO forces are authorized to take the necessary self-defense measures against any attacker, regardless of location, to protect themselves and those being withdrawn.

  - Lethal force would only be used against civilians as a last resort for self-defense purposes.

- The withdrawal priority will be for NATO forces to remove designated personnel first, then UN weapons, and finally, UN equipment.

  - NATO forces will, to the best of their ability, withdraw all personnel who are supposed to be withdrawn.

  - If, in the judgment of the on-scene commander, removing UN weapons or equipment poses unacceptable risks, NATO forces will leave such weapons/equipment behind, possibly destroying or disabling it, as the situation dictates.

  - If civilians request relocation assistance, and in the judgment of the on-scene commander this assistance would not jeopardize the withdrawal effort, then such assistance should be provided.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Dealing with Civilians. NATO will assist civilians not designated for evacuation to the extent doing so will not adversely impact on the withdrawal operation. NATO will withdraw only those personnel designated for withdrawal under OPLAN 40104, including NATO nations' citizens. Lethal force would only be used against civilians as a last resort for self-defense purposes. NATO forces will be authorized to respond to attacks against civilians in any area where withdrawal operations are being conducted.

- Humanitarian Aid. NATO will provide support for humanitarian assistance to the extent doing so will not place the withdrawal operation at further risk.

- Dealing with Warring Parties. NATO is authorized to use lethal force, as necessary, to protect its forces and UN evacuees, and to secure the return of NATO/UN hostages, if any. Every effort will be made to ensure that all NATO forces and designated evacuees are safely withdrawn from the region. NATO will take action to attenuate/halt fighting between the warring parties only as necessary to facilitate the withdrawal. NATO will respond impartially against any outside lethal support effort that could adversely impact the withdrawal operation.

- Safe Areas, Exclusion Zones, and Other Areas. NATO would be expected to respond to safe area and exclusion zone violations only to the extent practical without adversely impacting on withdrawal operations. In those areas where UN forces are being withdrawn, NATO's response to safe area and exclusion zone violations would be as required to facilitate the withdrawal operation.

  If a concentration or movement of heavy weapons in any area, even an area not designated as a safe area or exclusion zone, were determined to be capable of threatening the withdrawal operation, such weapons would be subject to a NATO response. NATO forces would have authority to destroy/neutralize weapons in collection sites that could be reasonably expected to fall into the hands of those who would attempt to use them against the withdrawal effort. Dual-key procedures would not apply in these situations.

  Apart from the withdrawal operation, NATO would continue to meet its obligations in support of UN elements as the situation might permit and according to existing arrangements. In areas (safe areas, exclusion zones, or otherwise) where no withdrawal operations are being conducted, NATO could respond to heavy weapons violations if doing so, in the NATO Commander's judgment, would not adversely impact the withdrawal operation. In these areas, which would be outside the NATO Commander's area of control, the dual-key arrangement would remain in effect. Responses in areas not previously addressed (i.e., those outside the safe areas and exclusion zones) would require further NAC approval.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Warring-faction Weapons/Equipment/Territorial Disputes. NATO on-scene commanders will deal with warring-faction territorial and weapons/equipment issues in the way that, in their judgment, best supports and minimizes risk to the withdrawal operation. As general rules, warring-faction weapons/equipment will be destroyed, and territory will be withdrawn from expeditiously and its hand-over to warring factions avoided. Engaging in territorial issues could delay the withdrawal and compromise NATO's neutrality, both of which would make the operation riskier.

- Command and Control.

##STATE COMMENT: It is our understanding that the formulation that follows does not call for transfer of theater command to NATO under every UNPROFOR withdrawal scenario. For example, under a permissive environment or under a limited extraction scenario, if UNPROFOR did not ask for NATO assistance other than that already agreed in support of existing UN mandates (e.g., DENY FLIGHT, SHARP GUARD, CAS, TEZ, and protection of safe areas), then UNPROFOR could attempt to make its own way out. If, however, the Alliance were asked to provide any withdrawal assistance beyond present agreements (e.g., provide NATO ground troops), then NATO would assume command of the operation as laid out below.##

The Alliance will have the flexibility to fully support a partial or complete withdrawal if must, but also to remain in a supporting role if not asked and not needed. NATO will continue to support UNPROFOR operations under existing UN mandates. Once the UN asks for NATO help in withdrawal anywhere in the theater and, prior to the withdrawal actually commencing, NATO will assume command and control of all current UNPROFOR units throughout the former Yugoslavia to conduct emergency, partial, or total withdrawal operations. NATO will delegate local authority to UN commanders in areas not being withdrawn.

Dual Key. After TOA, NATO theater command is in effect and dual-key arrangements will not apply to NATO forces in theater, nor to countries in which NATO-led withdrawal operations are authorized, nor to areas within the theater from which attacks on NATO-led withdrawal operations are launched or threatened. Except as noted above, dual-key arrangements will remain in place for areas from which UN forces are not being withdrawn as delimited by the NATO theater commander. (Note: Dual-key should not be considered as the final USG policy position until agreed upon at the NAC.)

- NATO's Mission. NATO's mission is to withdraw UNPROFOR and depart. However, to the extent it can without adversely impacting the withdrawal effort, NATO will continue to conduct other NATO-authorized operations, as applicable, in the region in support of the UN humanitarian mission.

BOSNIA: STRATEGIC CHOICES

NSC DISCUSSION PAPER

Introduction:

We are in a critical period for U.S. policy toward Bosnia that could see the withdrawal of UNPROFOR and the introduction of NATO/U.S. ground forces for a mission whose outcome is uncertain. Now is the time to review the fundamental principles guiding our policy and to determine the steps necessary to shape events before strategic choices are completely dictated by the situation on the ground.

Fundamental U.S. policy objectives for Bosnia:

- Obtain a political settlement that satisfies basic Bosnian government requirements and rolls back some Serb aggression
- End or reduce the fighting
- Prevent spread of conflict to other parts of region
- Maintain relief supplies
- Maintain cohesion with Allies
- Avoid American entanglement in fighting on the ground in the Balkans

Key Strategic Choices:

I. Whither UNPROFOR: U.S. support for continued UNPROFOR presence has been based upon an assessment that this course remains the avenue best suited to the majority of our fundamental objectives -- and that, for all of its problems, the alternatives are worse.

- In the current environment, the viability of UNPROFOR is increasingly being called into question.
  - ♦ UNPROFOR is unable to ensure that humanitarian assistance is delivered to UN-protected areas/safe areas.
  - ♦ Fighting among the warring parties is no longer deterred by UNPROFOR presence.
  - ♦ UNPROFOR itself is frequently the subject of attack, and UNPROFOR forces are neither in a position to defend themselves effectively nor to withstand the possible consequences of calling in NATO airpower.
  - ♦ UNPROFOR credibility is thereby undermined with all parties, and NATO credibility in turn eroded as well.

- Under these circumstances, we must ask whether linking U.S. objectives to continued UNPROFOR presence remains valid in the current environment.
  - There still do not appear to be any alternatives to UNPROFOR that provide better support for U.S. objectives.
  - Withdrawal followed by unilateral or predominantly U.S. lift (and strike) risks "Americanizing" the Balkan conflict; even multilateral lift risks widening the scope of the conflict as more external parties move to support regional clients.
  - Replacement of UNPROFOR with another international presence (NATO? WEU? Coalition of the willing?) would either require U.S. participation on the ground or prove equally ineffective -- and require additional political and financial capital to initiate.
  - U.S. interests are thus best served by finding a way to restore credibility to the UNPROFOR mission in a manner that permits existing troop contributors to sustain their continued presence and the Bosnian government to agree to retain that presence.
- Options other than withdrawal available for UNPROFOR under the present circumstances:
  - Muddle through with the status quo: French have already indicated likely pullout if current conditions remain unchanged -- may be the thread that unravels the whole fabric of UNPROFOR.
  - "Restabilization" of existing UNPROFOR mission with more robust enforcement of existing mandate: UK avoidance of a confrontational approach in B-H must be overcome if this option is to become viable; additional resources needed to enhance military capabilities of existing UNPROFOR forces not likely to be forthcoming.
  - "Retrench and reinvigorate" UNPROFOR mission by withdrawing from untenable positions/missions while pursuing more robust enforcement of remaining mandates: could be seen as a trade of the eastern enclaves for more effective mission performance around Sarajevo -- implications for eastern enclaves could be very serious; however, this option could satisfy both the French and UK; by retrenching, could also alleviate some to the problems associated with resources to enhance capabilities.
  - "Retrench and retreat" by withdrawing and pursuing an even less vigorous approach to mandate enforcement: the least costly approach, this might be used as a bargaining chip to get the Bosnian Serbs to accede to the conditions for French forces remaining in UNPROFOR; UK likely to support; however, potentially as damaging to UNPROFOR credibility as the status quo, with the additional public image/moral costs of not only "abandoning" the eastern enclaves, but also "capitulating" in cases where UNPROFOR remains; least likely to be acceptable to Bosnians, who could then refuse to allow continued UNPROFOR presence.

Comment: Only realistic choice may be to seek Allied support to "retrench and reinvigorate." Trade U.S. support for retrenchment for allied and UN pledge to pursue more robust enforcement of remaining mandate, including NATO airstrikes. Fall back to "retrench and retreat" only if no other way to prevent withdrawal.

II. Whither OPLAN 40104, given U.S. objective of sustaining UNPROFOR and commitment to assist withdrawal if required?

- There are no guarantees that a viable solution to retaining UNPROFOR in theater can be agreed.
- Withdrawal remains a real, and increasingly likely, option if there is no agreement on a more viable UNPROFOR role.
- Nevertheless, several key issues remain to be resolved before a decision to proceed with withdrawal implementation could be taken with confidence:
  - What is the end state we want to leave behind following UNPROFOR withdrawal? What to avoid may be clearer than what to achieve: avoid merely replacing UN with NATO forces and being unable to leave; avoid debacle of U.S./NATO-led withdrawal being depicted as precursor to brutal ethnic cleansing; avoid loss of NATO credibility to the same extent there has been a loss of UN credibility.
  - How does NATO deal with unintended consequences of withdrawal operations? Massive refugee flow; use of NATO forces as shields by civilians or by warring factions; hostage-taking by warring factions; withdrawal of humanitarian aid providers as a result of UNPROFOR withdrawal.
  - Under what conditions could withdrawal or partial withdrawal take place without requiring implementation of OPLAN 40104? If nations determine that they will accomplish de facto withdrawal by merely failing to replace units during normal rotation, no NATO assistance may be necessary. If this resulted in enclaves being left unprotected, would the last forces out require NATO assistance, or could the UN accomplish this on its own?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- The way ahead for OPLAN 40104 is also complicated by a dilemma: we must ensure that our actions in preparation for possible UNPROFOR withdrawal do not precipitate the withdrawal itself.

  - Key is not allowing the existence of a "NATO withdrawal force" to prompt either UN troop contributors to seek early withdrawal or Bosnians to act to cause UNPROFOR withdrawal in the hopes that NATO will replace the UN. A clear "firebreak" is required between completion of NATO preparation for OPLAN 40104 and initiation of OPLAN implementation. We must be confident that we understand exactly what steps will be required to get from the present state of NATO planning to this firebreak, and what steps take us beyond it.

  - NATO credibility requires that forces must be trained sufficiently to ensure mission success. ACTREQ requested by SACEUR this week will facilitate identification of forces and training shortfalls, and allow SACEUR to initiate action to rectify those shortfalls. Training in place to NATO standards should be an acceptable alternative to assembling in Europe for training, and send a more restrained signal.

  - Training in place would also permit completion of Congressional consultations prior to movement of any US forces. We may need to lay down marker in NATO that assembly of forces in Europe will require a further political decision.

- Under these circumstances, we must ask whether linking U.S. objectives to continued UNPROFOR presence remains valid in the current environment.
  - There still do not appear to be any alternatives to UNPROFOR that provide better support for U.S. objectives.
  - Withdrawal followed by unilateral or predominantly U.S. lift (and strike) risks "Americanizing" the Balkan conflict; even multilateral lift risks widening the scope of the conflict as more external parties move to support regional clients.
  - Replacement of UNPROFOR with another international presence (NATO? WEU? Coalition of the willing?) would either require U.S. participation on the ground or prove equally ineffective -- and require additional political and financial capital to initiate.
  - U.S. interests are thus best served by finding a way to restore credibility to the UNPROFOR mission in a manner that permits existing troop contributors to sustain their continued presence and the Bosnian government to agree to retain that presence.
- Options other than withdrawal available for UNPROFOR under the present circumstances:
  - Muddle through with the status quo: French have already indicated likely pullout if current conditions remain unchanged -- may be the thread that unravels the whole fabric of UNPROFOR.
  - "Restabilization" of existing UNPROFOR mission with more robust enforcement of existing mandate: UK avoidance of a confrontational approach in B-H must be overcome if this option is to become viable; additional resources needed to enhance military capabilities of existing UNPROFOR forces not likely to be forthcoming.
  - "Retrench and reinvigorate" UNPROFOR mission by withdrawing from untenable positions/missions while pursuing more robust enforcement of remaining mandates: could be seen as a trade of the eastern enclaves for more effective mission performance around Sarajevo -- implications for eastern enclaves could be very serious; however, this option could satisfy both the French and UK; by retrenching, could also alleviate some to the problems associated with resources to enhance capabilities.
  - "Retrench and retreat" by withdrawing and pursuing an even less vigorous approach to mandate enforcement: the least costly approach, this might be used as a bargaining chip to get the Bosnian Serbs to accede to the conditions for French forces remaining in UNPROFOR; UK likely to support; however, potentially as damaging to UNPROFOR credibility as the status quo, with the additional public image/moral costs of not only "abandoning" the eastern enclaves, but also "capitulating" in cases where UNPROFOR remains; least likely to be acceptable to Bosnians, who could then refuse to allow continued UNPROFOR presence.

Comment: Only realistic choice may be to seek Allied support to "retrench and reinvigorate." Trade U.S. support for retrenchment for allied and UN pledge to pursue more robust enforcement of remaining mandate, including NATO airstrikes. Fall back to "retrench and retreat" only if no other way to prevent withdrawal.

II. Whither OPLAN 40104, given U.S. objective of sustaining UNPROFOR and commitment to assist withdrawal if required?

- There are no guarantees that a viable solution to retaining UNPROFOR in theater can be agreed.
- Withdrawal remains a real, and increasingly likely, option if there is no agreement on a more viable UNPROFOR role.
- Nevertheless, several key issues remain to be resolved before a decision to proceed with withdrawal implementation could be taken with confidence:
  - What is the end state we want to leave behind following UNPROFOR withdrawal? What to avoid may be clearer than what to achieve: avoid merely replacing UN with NATO forces and being unable to leave; avoid debacle of U.S./NATO-led withdrawal being depicted as precursor to brutal ethnic cleansing; avoid loss of NATO credibility to the same extent there has been a loss of UN credibility.
  - How does NATO deal with unintended consequences of withdrawal operations? Massive refugee flow; use of NATO forces as shields by civilians or by warring factions; hostage-taking by warring factions; withdrawal of humanitarian aid providers as a result of UNPROFOR withdrawal.
  - Under what conditions could withdrawal or partial withdrawal take place without requiring implementation of OPLAN 40104? If nations determine that they will accomplish de facto withdrawal by merely failing to replace units during normal rotation, no NATO assistance may be necessary. If this resulted in enclaves being left unprotected, would the last forces out require NATO assistance, or could the UN accomplish this on its own?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- The way ahead for OPLAN 40104 is also complicated by a dilemma: we must ensure that our actions in preparation for possible UNPROFOR withdrawal do not precipitate the withdrawal itself.

  - Key is not allowing the existence of a "NATO withdrawal force" to prompt either UN troop contributors to seek early withdrawal or Bosnians to act to cause UNPROFOR withdrawal in the hopes that NATO will replace the UN. A clear "firebreak" is required between completion of NATO preparation for OPLAN 40104 and initiation of OPLAN implementation. We must be confident that we understand exactly what steps will be required to get from the present state of NATO planning to this firebreak, and what steps take us beyond it.

  - NATO credibility requires that forces must be trained sufficiently to ensure mission success. ACTREQ requested by SACEUR this week will facilitate identification of forces and training shortfalls, and allow SACEUR to initiate action to rectify those shortfalls. Training in place to NATO standards should be an acceptable alternative to assembling in Europe for training, and send a more restrained signal.

  - Training in place would also permit completion of Congressional consultations prior to movement of any US forces. We may need to lay down marker in NATO that assembly of forces in Europe will require a further political decision.

Summary of Conclusions

Frasure-Milosevic Negotiations:

1. Principals noted that several areas remain unresolved following Ambassador Frasure's talks in Belgrade. While the sanction reimposition mechanism is the key, others include: securing a clear recognition formula and commitment to cut off support for the Bosnian Serbs; demands for 500,000 MT oil/month; maintaining some linkage of sanctions-lifting to normalization of relations with Croatia; and deflecting the successor state issue. Principals noted the French and British pressure to "cut a deal," and conflicting reports as to whether the French were bluffing or serious about withdrawing their UNPROFOR troops if no agreement was forthcoming. They also noted the problem of uncoordinated

Russian diplomatic approaches to Milosevic. Principals agreed to let process simmer for now with Milosevic, and to approach the French, British and Russians to stiffen resolve and restore Contact Group solidarity. (Action: State.) (S)

Post-Withdrawal Strategy:

2. Principals agreed that U.S. policy following UNPROFOR withdrawal would be to seek multilateral lift of the arms embargo, limited support for arming and training the Bosnian forces, but no commitment to air strikes. Principals agreed that U.S. security assistance should largely be limited to the provision of financing for Bosnian arms purchases from other suppliers, and that training should be by a third party if possible; they ruled out training by the U.S. on Bosnian territory. Principals agreed that this option also imposed a need to strengthen efforts to contain the fighting within current bounds, and that we would maintain peacekeepers in Macedonia, reinforced if necessary. They further agreed that this approach should be put forward in a decision memorandum for the President. (Action: NSC.) (S)

3. Principals agreed on the need for an intelligence reappraisal of the relative capabilities of the warring factions -- current, and projected against the likely situation after withdrawal if the agreed U.S. policy option is carried out. (Action: CIA.) They tasked OSD/JCS to review Bosnian training requirements in light of the forthcoming CIA reappraisal. (Action: OSD/JCS.) They also tasked the Bosnia IWG to study several unanswered questions associated with the agreed option:

- If Russia (or others) won't support full multilateral lift in the UNSC, will the U.S. pursue limited multilateral lift and/or unilateral lift?
- What if the Russians make good on their threat to arm the Serbs if lift occurs?
- What current efforts would remain in place: the No-Fly-Zone? NATO air strike decisions? Any relief efforts? If so, how and why?
- What military posture should a NATO or an allied coalition of the willing adopt to contain the fighting if withdrawal occurs? (S)

Unanswered Questions for OPLAN 40104:

4. The Principals noted that several questions still remain unanswered regarding implementation of OPLAN 40104. They tasked the Bosnia IWG to continue efforts to answer questions associated with:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Possible civilian use of NATO forces for protection;
- Assisting movement of refugees from the enclaves;
- Possible breakdown of humanitarian efforts while NATO is in place;
- How NATO would react if Serbia enters the war while NATO is in place;
- What to do about prisoners or released POWs that fall into NATO hands; and
- How to determine to whom NATO would return disputed areas. (S)

5. Principals agreed that the magnitude of the problems associated with both OPLAN 40104 implementation and post-withdrawal strategy made it imperative to keep UNPROFOR in place, and agreed to urgently approach the French to get them to reconsider their possible withdrawal from UNPROFOR. (S)

Alternatives to NATO-led UNPROFOR Withdrawal:

6. Principals noted the OSD and JCS assessments that even a limited attempt at withdrawal from the enclaves ran the risk of provoking a level of opposition from the warring parties that could rapidly escalate beyond the ability of individual national units or UNPROFOR to handle. They expressed concerns about the ability of OPLAN 40104 to deal with very limited withdrawal or repositioning efforts without provoking an all-out withdrawal operation. They agreed that, politically, it would be extremely difficult to reject a call from a troop contributing state for NATO assistance in withdrawal. They agreed that SecDef would raise these concerns in discussions this week with SACEUR. (Action: OSD.) (S)

Remaining Decisions and "Firebreak Point" for OPLAN 40104:

7. Principals noted that the U.S. Execution Order (EXORD) responding to the force Activation Request (ACTREQ) issued by NATO would be released sometime during the second week in June, and agreed that it would not commit U.S. troops to deploy outside of the U.S. (Action: JCS.) They noted that the NAC would conduct a review of the OPLAN on May 31, and that it would be asked to approve the OPLAN on June 14. They agreed that the U.S. could join consensus to approve the OPLAN without crossing a firebreak making execution of the plan inevitable. They agreed that the firebreak that we were not prepared to cross would come when the NAC considered a decision authorizing deployment of forces to Europe for assembly and training, probably no earlier than the third week in June. In this light, they agreed that the U.S. would not support a decision to deploy forces into Europe in support of the OPLAN until UNPROFOR withdrawal was clearly inevitable. (Note: JCS understands that SACEUR will not request any deployment of the force in Europe unless and until there is a UN decision authorizing UNPROFOR withdrawal.) (S)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

8. They agreed that SecDef would convey this position to SACEUR in discussions this week, and would ask SACEUR to clarify where and how he envisions training of the withdrawal force taking place. (Action: OSD.) (S)

Legislative Strategy:

9. Principals noted that the next briefing on the OPLAN was scheduled to go to the SASC on Thursday, May 25, and tasked JCS and OSD to revise the briefing in light of the critique from Senator Dole's staff following the May 19 briefing to the SFRC. (Action: OSD/JCS.) They agreed that, lacking a time in which full committees could be briefed before the Memorial Day break, the OSD/JCS/State briefing team should continue efforts to provide the briefing to key Congressional leaders (e.g. Dellums, Smith) before week's end. (Action: OSD/JCS/State.) (C)

For Tony, Sandy, Nancy (cc: Bill Danvers, Mike Andricos)

Mira Baratta phoned to say that, in the opinion of the Senators and staffers present for last Friday's SFRC briefing on OPLAN 40104, the briefing was a"joke" and an "insult to their intelligence." The JCS briefers gave no details on the actual operation, but just told the committee there will be a preparation phase, an implementation phase and a conclusion. The only information of any value, according to Mira, was elicited during the Q and A. She felt it was a tendentious effort to explain why UNPROFOR withdrawal would be a disaster, rather than an effort to build understanding and support for the withdrawal operation should it become necessary.

I'll talk to Wes Clark, but Tony should raise this at the PC

Post-UN Peace Forces Withdrawal Strategy

While U.S. strategy continues to be based on the premise that UN Peace Forces should remain in Bosnia, Croatia, and Macedonia, pressure is mounting for withdrawal before the next winter should attempts to strengthen UN Peace Forces militarily and to reach a political settlement with Milosevic fail. That potential withdrawal could occur in an environment ranging from completely hostile to totally benign. While post-withdrawal strategy would certainly be affected by the environment in which withdrawal were to be conducted, five broad alternatives appear to cover the range of strategic options:

1. U.S. unilateral support for Bosnia;
2. Multilateral support for Bosnia;
3. Support for a follow-on multilateral peacekeeping force;
4. Continued/Enhanced Peace Forces Mission in Macedonia; and
5. Benign neglect.

U.S. Unilateral Support for Bosnia: This is a variation of lift, train, arm, and/or strike. The objective would be to protect and preserve the territorial integrity of Bosnia through direct military and political assistance. Interest in lifting the arms embargo would certainly grow following a withdrawal of UN Peace Forces. Training and arming the Bosnian Government forces would constitute a major commitment on the part of the U.S. to level the battlefield and would likely be based on the premise that such a step was a prerequisite to reaching a negotiated settlement. The conflict's fighting would likely intensify in the near-term. Taking the next step--strike--unequivocally Americanizes the war and could easily lead to a significant U.S. combat ground force commitment.

Multilateral Support for Bosnia: Includes efforts on the part of the U.S. to achieve a multilateral lifting of the arms embargo. This course of action would be far less divisive among our NATO allies than the go-it-alone approach above but would be difficult to cobble. Part of that difficulty stems from different evaluations of the warring parties and the strategic and moral interests at stake.. Part is also due to a certain war weariness stemming not only from the current four years of war but also from the Balkans long history of hatred and conflict and the cost in lives and material of continued international involvement in an apparently never-ending struggle.

Support for a Multilateral Peacekeeping Force: This follow-on force to UN Peace Forces could either be a NATO-based force that remained in place after UN Peace Forces withdrawal or it could be an Islamic-dominated force. In either case what is implied is that some of the existing force structures do not depart. In the former, NATO elects to remain after effecting or during withdrawal. Such a force would be under NATO command and control and and ROE. Thus, the problems of dual-key would be eliminated. The opportunity for more robust use of international force would increase, provided that NATO could reach consensus for action-a proviso of considerable importance. The latter would imply that some UN Peace Force contributing countries (most likely Islamic countries) elected to remain in place. A force composed principally of Islamic nations would likely not be even-handed in its approach to the conflict.

DRAFT

Continued/Enhanced Peace Forces Mission in Macedonia: Objective is to contain the conflict and prevent its spillover to areas outside Bosnia and Croatia. While it would be difficult to ignore the humanitarian tragedies associated with war in Croatia and/or Bosnia, this course of action would focus attention on the principal strategic interest in the region--containment of the conflict. Mission in Macedonia may or may not suffice to contain the conflict at all its possible flashpoints. Finding the right force mix and sustaining it over time to the benefit of the region's and Macedonia's stability is problematic.

Benign Neglect: This option implies total withdrawal of the international peacekeeping community from the region. Such a walk-away would be difficult given the current level of international involvement. To argue that what was going on did not matter anymore--that it was not worth the cost--would be a tough sell to many domestic markets. Ethnic cleansing, genocide, and cross-border aggression have all been labels used to describe events in the Balkans. To walk-away strategy implies appeasement.

UNANSWERED POLICY QUESTIONS RELATING TO OPLAN 40104

U.S. INTERESTS/OBJECTIVES:

- Improve regional peace and stability; contain the conflict.

[• Help ensure Bosnia's survival as a state.]--JCS/OSD Continue to support a negotiated settlement recognizing B-H within its internationally-accepted boundaries.

- Honor U.S. bilateral and NATO commitments to assist in a NATO-led withdrawal should one become necessary.

ASSUMPTIONS:

- A continued UN presence in the region would attenuate the fighting and alleviate human suffering.

- The United Nations has decided to withdraw UNPROFOR from Bosnia and/or Croatia, and has requested NATO's assistance.

- The situation will permit UN forces to remain in Macedonia.

- NATO has decided to assist an emergency, partial, or total withdrawal from Bosnia and/or Croatia, and to execute OPLAN 40104. NATO's mission and priority for commitment of forces, including airpower, is to conduct the withdrawal of UN forces. Its mission is not to defend the Bosnian population, nor to support Bosnian Government forces.

- NATO's intent is not to assume UN missions and responsibilities; the UN would continue to direct and be responsible for any remaining UN operations.

- NATO (and the U.S.) will conduct a limited-duration withdrawal operation, then depart.

- To the extent it can without adversely impacting the withdrawal effort, NATO forces will continue to conduct other NATO-authorized operations as applicable, including SHARP GUARD, DENY FLIGHT, CAS, TEZ, and protection of safe areas, in support of the UN humanitarian mission.

- Local governments, NGOs, PVOs, and possibly UN organizations if they stay, will have responsibility for humanitarian assistance after UN forces have been withdrawn.

- NATO (and the U.S.) will oppose any effort to lift the arms embargo before the withdrawal operation has been completed.

[• Post UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia, the U.S. policy is "lift and strike," which does not include the employment of U.S. ground troops.]--JCS/OSD

PROPOSED U.S. POLICY AND PRINCIPLES (DURING WITHDRAWAL)

- The United States is willing to commit its forces, including U.S. ground troops, as part of a NATO-led operation to withdraw UN forces and American citizens from the former Yugoslavia.

- Apart from the withdrawal operation, the United States will continue to meet its NATO and national obligations in support of any remaining relevant UN mandates for humanitarian assistance to the extent the situation permits.

- During the withdrawal operation the forces of the United States, its Allies, and the UN will be expected to conduct themselves with impartiality and neutrality to the maximum extent practical.

- Any force, regardless of warring-party faction, detected attacking civilians in any area where withdrawal operations are being conducted, is subject to a NATO response.

- Any force, regardless of warring-party faction and of location within the theater of operations, that is determined to be a threat to the withdrawal operation, is subject to a NATO response.

- NATO forces are authorized to take the necessary self-defense measures against any attacker, regardless of location, to protect themselves and those being withdrawn.

  - Lethal force would only be used against civilians as a last resort for self-defense purposes.

- The withdrawal priority will be for NATO forces to remove designated personnel first, then UN weapons, and finally, UN equipment.

  - NATO forces will, to the best of their ability, withdraw all personnel who are supposed to be withdrawn.

  - If, in the judgment of the on-scene commander, removing UN weapons or equipment poses unacceptable risks, NATO forces will leave such weapons/equipment behind, possibly destroying or disabling it, as the situation dictates.

  - If civilians request relocation assistance, and in the judgment of the on-scene commander this assistance would not jeopardize the withdrawal effort, then such assistance should be provided.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Dealing with Civilians. NATO will assist civilians not designated for evacuation to the extent doing so will not adversely impact on the withdrawal operation. NATO will withdraw only those personnel designated for withdrawal under OPLAN 40104, including NATO nations' citizens. Lethal force would only be used against civilians as a last resort for self-defense purposes. NATO forces will be authorized to respond to attacks against civilians in any area where withdrawal operations are being conducted.

- Humanitarian Aid. NATO will provide support for humanitarian assistance to the extent doing so will not place the withdrawal operation at further risk.

- Dealing with Warring Parties. NATO is authorized to use lethal force, as necessary, to protect its forces and UN evacuees, and to secure the return of NATO/UN hostages, if any. Every effort will be made to ensure that all NATO forces and designated evacuees are safely withdrawn from the region. NATO will take action to attenuate/halt fighting between the warring parties only as necessary to facilitate the withdrawal. NATO will respond impartially against any outside lethal support effort that could adversely impact the withdrawal operation.

- Safe Areas, Exclusion Zones, and Other Areas. NATO would be expected to respond to safe area and exclusion zone violations only to the extent practical without adversely impacting on withdrawal operations. In those areas where UN forces are being withdrawn, NATO's response to safe area and exclusion zone violations would be as required to facilitate the withdrawal operation.

  If a concentration or movement of heavy weapons in any area, even an area not designated as a safe area or exclusion zone, were determined to be capable of threatening the withdrawal operation, such weapons would be subject to a NATO response. NATO forces would have authority to destroy/neutralize weapons in collection sites that could be reasonably expected to fall into the hands of those who would attempt to use them against the withdrawal effort. Dual-key procedures would not apply in these situations.

  Apart from the withdrawal operation, NATO would continue to meet its obligations in support of UN elements as the situation might permit and according to existing arrangements. In areas (safe areas, exclusion zones, or otherwise) where no withdrawal operations are being conducted, NATO could respond to heavy weapons violations if doing so, in the NATO Commander's judgment, would not adversely impact the withdrawal operation. In these areas, which would be outside the NATO Commander's area of control, the dual-key arrangement would remain in effect. Responses in areas not previously addressed (i.e., those outside the safe areas and exclusion zones) would require further NAC approval.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Warring-faction Weapons/Equipment/Territorial Disputes. NATO on-scene commanders will deal with warring-faction territorial and weapons/equipment issues in the way that, in their judgment, best supports and minimizes risk to the withdrawal operation. As general rules, warring-faction weapons/equipment will be destroyed, and territory will be withdrawn from expeditiously and its hand-over to warring factions avoided. Engaging in territorial issues could delay the withdrawal and compromise NATO's neutrality, both of which would make the operation riskier.

- Command and Control.

##STATE COMMENT: It is our understanding that the formulation that follows does not call for transfer of theater command to NATO under every UNPROFOR withdrawal scenario. For example, under a permissive environment or under a limited extraction scenario, if UNPROFOR did not ask for NATO assistance other than that already agreed in support of existing UN mandates (e.g., DENY FLIGHT, SHARP GUARD, CAS, TEZ, and protection of safe areas), then UNPROFOR could attempt to make its own way out. If, however, the Alliance were asked to provide any withdrawal assistance beyond present agreements (e.g., provide NATO ground troops), then NATO would assume command of the operation as laid out below.##

The Alliance will have the flexibility to fully support a partial or complete withdrawal if must, but also to remain in a supporting role if not asked and not needed. NATO will continue to support UNPROFOR operations under existing UN mandates. Once the UN asks for NATO help in withdrawal anywhere in the theater and, prior to the withdrawal actually commencing, NATO will assume command and control of all current UNPROFOR units throughout the former Yugoslavia to conduct emergency, partial, or total withdrawal operations. NATO will delegate local authority to UN commanders in areas not being withdrawn.

Dual Key. After TOA, NATO theater command is in effect and dual-key arrangements will not apply to NATO forces in theater, nor to countries in which NATO-led withdrawal operations are authorized, nor to areas within the theater from which attacks on NATO-led withdrawal operations are launched or threatened. Except as noted above, dual-key arrangements will remain in place for areas from which UN forces are not being withdrawn as delimited by the NATO theater commander. (Note: Dual-key should not be considered as the final USG policy position until agreed upon at the NAC.)

- NATO's Mission. NATO's mission is to withdraw UNPROFOR and depart. However, to the extent it can without adversely impacting the withdrawal effort, NATO will continue to conduct other NATO-authorized operations, as applicable, in the region in support of the UN humanitarian mission.

UN FORCES IN THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA: ALTERNATIVES TO NATO-LED WITHDRAWAL (C)

ISSUE (C): Given that the preferred option is to have UNPROFOR/UNCRO remain in place and succeed in their mission, what alternatives to a NATO-led withdrawal exist if the forces must be withdrawn?

OPTIONS (S):

- "40104": NATO-led withdrawal, as envisioned in OPLAN 40104
- "Coalition": Non-NATO, coalition-led withdrawal (WEU, UN troop contributors, or other ad hoc coalition)
- "Unilateral": Capable single nation (UK, FR?) withdraws own forces without coordination with allies or UN
- "Backup": UN-led, NATO (or other coalition)-supported, withdrawal
- "Unassisted": Withdrawal en masse, directed and conducted by UN
- "Attrition": Gradual drawdown of UN forces, managed by UN and tied to rotation dates of contributing nations tempered by tactical situation

KEY FACTORS (S):

- Practicality: Are the resources available to do it?
- Safety/security of UN forces during and after withdrawal
- Impact on military/political situation among the warring factions
- Humanitarian concerns
- NATO solidarity, US leadership of the alliance

DISCUSSION (S):

- Risk of Casualties: Withdrawal of UN forces without the ability to militarily dominate the warring factions during the withdrawal risks aggression against the forces and potential heavy casualties, especially in the most hotly contested areas (enclaves, pockets, corridors and lines of confrontation). Avoiding UN casualties will require a force perceived by the combatants as willing and capable of protecting the withdrawing forces.
- UN Limitations: UN military command structure, rules of engagement, mission, and force capabilities do not admit the robust self-defense needed to withdraw safely. Strengthening the force is likely to remain politically elusive.
- Lighter Options: Both SACEUR and CJCS have considered lighter, quicker, on-call options to provide backup support for an unassisted withdrawal. Both have rejected the approach as lacking unity of command, providing insufficient force to deter aggression and lacking responsiveness to protect the withdrawing forces.
- Longer View: While we have few US troops at risk, the future of NATO as the alliance of record in Europe and, especially, the US position as the leader of NATO and a central player in European security will be badly damaged if we decline to lead in this instance. If this operation happens without the US or NATO, we lose.

CONCLUSION (S): If UN withdraws, NATO-led "40104" is the least bad approach.

TALKING PAPER

Subject: Roadmap of remaining OPLAN 40104 requirements (U)

1. (U) Purpose To provide VCJCS with information and talking points concerning the "firebreak" required between completion of NATO preparation for OPLAN 40104 and initiation of OPLAN implementation.

2. ~~(S)~~ Background. At the 23 May PC, NSC may ask for a recommendation on defining the "firebreak" between OPLAN 40104 planning and preparation and a UN request necessitating implementation of OPLAN 40104.

3. ~~(C)~~ Discussion. OPLAN 40104 assumes a new UNSCR requesting NATO support, followed by NAC approval, changing UNPROFOR's mission from peacekeeping to withdrawal. The roadmap of remaining steps to implement 40104 may help define the "firebreak":

- ACTREQ and for all remaining forces (approved 19 May). This step requests the administrative preparation and training of all remaining forces under national control.

- National responses to ACTREQs (in the US an Execution Order (EXORD)) formally commits and identifies specific units, and administratively prepare and train those forces. Transfer and deployment of forces are not authorized until the NAC approves/SACEUR releases an ACTORD.

- ACTORD Full Step 2 communications element -- UN request could precipitate this step, however there are situations where Full Step 2 would be prepositioned in the operational theater. This would most likely be in preparation for an emergency withdrawal in anticipation of a UN request.

- Activation Order (ACTORD) Enabling and Main Body Forces -- UN request would most likely precipitate this step.

- Implementation of OPLAN 40104

The existence of a NATO withdrawal force in or near the theater may be a signal to either UN troop contributors to seek early withdrawal or for the Bosnians to act to cause a UNPROFOR withdrawal in hopes that NATO will replace the UN. However, NATO's need to be ready, on order, to implement an emergency, partial or full withdrawal of UNPROFOR requires forces to be trained to the highest state possible

4. ~~(C)~~ Conclusion. Actual force deployment of forces to the operational theater could create the conditions that may precipitate a UN request for a withdrawal of UNPROFOR. The US response to the ACTREQ for all remaining forces will allow SACEUR to prepare and train the forces (within the conditions and timeframe offered by the nations for such preparation) necessary to implement OPLAN 40104, without sending the signal prompting a UN withdrawal. Depending on the situation, any deployment or troop positioning that might risk the UN requesting UNPROFOR withdrawal must be considered on a case by case basis.

5. ~~(C)~~ Recommendation. The PC should decide:

- To approve OPLAN 40104 in the NAC. All scenarios, including an emergency, partial, or full NATO-led withdrawals of UNPF, are based on OPLAN 40104.

- Complete the Congressional consultations necessary for the US to join consensus in approving the OPLAN in the NAC (calls and presentations to staff began 18 May).

- Any actual deployment of forces should require further NAC authorization, and should be on a case by case basis based on the situation on the ground in the Former Yugoslavia.

SUBJECT: MILOSEVIC DISCUSSIONS -- NO DEAL

1. ~~SECRET~~ - ENTIRE TEXT.

2. IN A DIFFICULT FIVE HOUR SESSION WITH MILOSEVIC TODAY (MAY 22), WE WERE UNABLE TO CLOSE THE GAP BETWEEN US ON THE BOSNIA RECOGNITON/BORDER/SANCTIONS RELIEF PACKAGE. A NUMBER OF ISSUES REMAIN UNRESOLVED BUT THE MOST INTRACTABLE POINT IS WHETHER THE USG WOULD BE IN A POSITION IN THE UNSC IN THE SANCTIONS SUSPENSION PHASE OF THE PROCESS TO PULL THE PLUG IF BELGRADE VIOLATES THE ASSORTED ACCORDS. IN OTHER WORDS, MILOSEVIC INSISTS ON A SITUATION IN WHICH A RUSSIAN VETO IS POTENTIALLY INTERPOSED BETWEEN HIMSELF AND SANCTIONS REVOCATION IN THE EVENT OF NONPERFORMANCE. I SAID THAT WAS UNACCEPTABLE AND NON-NEGOTIABLE IN SUBSTANCE.

3. THERE ARE A NUMBER OF OTHER DIFFICULT AND UNRESOLVED POINTS, E.G., THE CROATIA FACTOR IN ACTUAL SANCTIONS LIFT. BUT THEY ALL PALE IN COMPARISON TO THE FUNDAMENTAL ISSUE OF AN ASSURED USG POSITION TO ACT TO REIMPOSE SANCTIONS IF BELGRADE DOES NOT LIVE UP TO ITS COMMITMENTS.

4. I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT I WOULD BE LEAVING BELGRADE AT NOON TOMORROW TO RETURN TO WASHINGTON. I DO NOT EXPECT TO HEAR FROM HIM BEFORE I DEPART. I THINK HE REALLY DOES WANT A DEAL -- HIS KIND OF DEAL -- AND HE MAY HOPE NOW THAT THE BRITISH AND FRENCH WILL PUT PRESSURE ON US. END SUMMARY.

5. TODAY I TABLED SEVERAL NEW DRAFT PAPERS (ALL FAXED

TO EUR/SCE) WITH MILOSEVIC THAT REFLECT WASHINGTON'S CONCERNS, NOTABLY ON OUR ABILITY TO ACT IN THE UN IN THE EVENT BELGRADE DOES NOT LIVE UP TO ITS COMMITMENTS IN REGARD TO THE PACKAGE. IN PARTICULAR, I PUT DOWN THE FOLLOWING REPLACEMENT TEXT FOR PARA FOUR IN THE SANCTIONS RELIEF ANNEX:

> SANCTIONS THAT HAVE BEEN SUSPENDED CAN BE REIMPOSED BY THE UNSC IF THE SECRETARY GENERAL FORMALLY REPORTS TO THE UNSC THAT THE FRY IS NO LONGER IMPLEMENTING THE DECISION TO CLOSE THE BORDER WITH BOSNIA EXCEPT FOR HUMANITARIAN ASSISTANCE, OR IT NO LONGER SUPPORTS THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN FOR BOSNIA, OR IT IS IN VIOLATION OF THE RELEVANT RESOLUTION ON THE SUSPENSION OF SANCTIONS. SIMILARLY A PERMANENT MEMBER OF THE UNSC CAN CALL FOR AN AFFIRMATIVE VOTE TO CONTINUE THE SUSPENSION.

6. MILOSEVIC FULMINATED AT GREAT LENGTH ABOUT THE ABSOLUTE UNACCEPTABILITY OF THE LAST SENTENCE WHICH WAS THE NEW ELEMENT IN THE TEXT. I EXPLAINED THAT IT WAS ESSENTIAL FOR US. HE SAID IT WILL PUT "POWER INTO THE HANDS OF THE MUSLIM AND GERMAN LOBBIES IN WASHINGTON." I SAID NONSENSE, BUT WE NEED AN ASSURED PROCESS WHERE WE CAN ACT IF THE ACCORDS ARE NOT FULFILLED, AND WITHOUT REFERENCE TO A POSSIBLE RUSSIAN VETO.

7. MILOSEVIC COMPLAINED BITTERLY THAT HE WAS NOT TRUSTED BY WASHINGTON AFTER HAVING MADE ENDLESS CONCESSIONS INCLUDING NO LIFT UNTIL PALE ACCEPTS, NOTHING ON STATE CONTINUITY, ETC., ETC. HE IS THE LAST HOSTAGE OF THE COLD WAR. "THIS SHOWS A VERY NEGATIVE ATTITUDE ON YOUR PART." MILOSEVIC PROOSED DROPPING THE LAST SENTENCE AND ADDING THE PHRASE "OR A PERMANENT MEMBER OF THE UNSC" AFTER SECRETARY GENERAL. I SAID WE WOULD CONSIDER IT IF THE OPERATIVE VERB IS CHANGED FROM "CAN BE REIMPOSED" TO "WILL BE REIMPOSED." HE REPLIED"IMPOSSIBLE." WE AGREED WE FACE A FUNDAMENTAL SUBSTANTIVE PROBLEM THAT CANNOT -- AND SHOULD NOT -- BE BRIDGED BY ARTFUL SEMANTICAL FORMULATIONS. WE AGREED THAT WE ARE NOT JUST ONE VERB AWAY FROM AGREEMENT.

REVISITING STRATEGIC SANCTIONS

8. AT THAT POINT MILOSEVIC TURNED HIS ATTENTION TO THE ENUMERATION OF UN MANDATED STRATEGIC SANCTIONS THAT I HAD INCLUDED--AT HIS SUGGESTION--AS A FOOTNOTE TO THE SANCTIONS RELIEF ANNEX PARA ONE. HE SAID HE WAS NOT AWARE THAT IT WAS SO EXTENSIVE

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

AND REMARKED THAT HE FELT WE WERE TALKING ABOUT A SHORTER LIST. I REVIEWED FOR HIM THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE UN AND THE EU LISTS. IN MAKING OUR MAJOR CONCESSION ON THE OIL REGIME, WE HAD DONE SO WITH THE ASSUMPTION THAT THE UN LIST WAS OPERATIVE FOR THIS AGREEMENT. TO REOPEN ALL OF THIS AT THIS TIME WAS SIMPLY NOT POSSIBLE. MILOSEVIC EVEN SUGGESTED THAT THE EU LIST COULD "BE A LITTLE BIT IMPROVED." IF THIS NEGOTIATION EVER CONTINUES, WE WILL HEAR MORE OF THIS.

OIL REGIME

---

9. I SAID WE FELT THAT IN ORDER TO GET AN AGREEMENT WE WOULD BE PREPARED TO DEFER FOR EXPERT CONSIDERATION THE DEFINING OF AN ACTUAL MTS OIL AMOUNT. WE FELT HIS PROPOSED 500,000 MTS WAS TOO LARGE. WE STILL THOUGHT IN TERMS OF SOMETHING MORE THAN 100,000 MTS. PERHAPS WE COULD AGREE ON THAT APPROACH AND HOPE TO AGREE ON A PRECISE FIGURE VERY SOON. MILOSEVIC FELT THE 500,000 MTS FIGURE WAS VALID AND WE SHOULD DEAL WITH THE PROBLEM NOW. BUT FURTHER DISCUSSION OF THIS POINT WAS SUBMERGED INTO THE INCREASINGLY NEGATIVE ATMOSPHERE.

CROATIA/REGIONAL ISSUES/ACTUAL LIFT

11. I REVIEWED OUR CONTINUING CONCERN ON THESE ISSUES, CROATIA IN PARTICULAR, AND SUGGESTED TWO POINTS THAT COULD PERHAPS DEAL WITH THE ISSUE:

-- AFTER IMPLEMENTATION OF THE CONTACT GROUP PLAN IN BOSNIA, FROZEN ASSETS ASSOCIATED WITH STATE SUCCESSION ISSUES WOULD REMAIN FROZEN.

-- THERE WOULD BE A USG/FRY SIDE AGREEMENT THAT THE OIL REGIME WILL REMAIN IN EFFECT UNTIL SECTOR EAST STATUS IS RESOLVED, I.E., UNTIL RELATIONS BETWEEN BELGRADE AND ZAGREB ARE NORMALIZED.

12. MILOSEVIC FORCEFULLY REJECTED THE CROATIA ASPECT, INSISTING THAT SANCTIONS HAD BEEN IMPOSED BECAUSE OF EVENTS IN BOSNIA. "IF YOU HAVE A CROATIA PROBLEM, IT IS YOUR PROBLEM." HE WOULD BE PREPARED TO ACCEPT, HOWEVER, MENTION OF CENTRAL BANK ASSETS REMAINING FROZEN IN THIS REGARD AT THE END OF THE ANNEX. BUT HE COULD GO NO FURTHER. HE COULD NEVER ACCEPT MENTION OF CROATIA OR SECTOR EAST IN THE SANCTIONS RELIEF CONTEXT AND WAS NOT COMFORTABLE WITH HAVING CROATIA MENTIONED EVEN IN

THE FRAMEWORK PAPER.

STATE CONTINUITY/SPORTS SANCTIONS
---

13. I TOLD MILOSEVIC THAT WASHINGTON IS NOT REALLY INTERESTED IN HAVING SIDE UNDERSTANDINGS ON THESE POINTS. HE INSISTED ON THEIR IMPORTANCE AND MUTTERED ABOUT PUTTING THEM BACK IN THE MAIN PAPERS.

OTHER ISSUES
---

14. THERE ARE SEVERAL OTHER MINOR POINTS OF CONTENTION IN THESE LATEST DRAFTS. I AGAIN ASSERTED OUR DESIRE TO HAVE A NEGOTIATIONS CHAPEAU AT THE START OF PARAGRAPH FOUR OF THE FRAMEWORK PAPER, I.E., CONSTITUTIONAL PRINCIPLES. MILOSEVIC AGAIN STRONGLY OPPOSED THAT INTRODUCTORY PHRASEOLOGY.

SILENCE OF THE LAMBS

15. OVER YET ANOTHER LUNCH OF ROAST SPRING LAMB AND RED WINE -- THE LAMBS OF SERBIA AT LEAST WILL BE GLAD TO SEE ME LEAVE TOWN -- WE AGREED THAT VERY SUBSTANTIAL GAPS REMAIN NOTABLY ON THE UN SUSPENSION FRAMEWORK. I SAID I WOULD LEAVE FOR WASHINGTON ON TUESDAY. WE AGREED TO STAY IN TOUCH. BUT I DID NOT SENSE HE WOULD BE GETTING BACK TO ME BEFORE I DEPARTED.

16. I STILL THINK MILOSEVIC WANTS A DEAL--HE CANNOT BE LOOKING FORWARD TO SEEING TUDJMAN IN SLOVAKIA NEXT SATURDAY IN THE AFTERMATH OF A FLOPPED NEGOTIATION WITH THE AMERICANS. BUT MY GUESS IS THAT MILOSEVIC MAY BE MISCALCULATING OR JUST OVERPLAYING HIS CARDS -- HE IS PRONE TO THAT KIND OF THING. HE MAY BE EXPECTING THAT THE EUROPEANS WHO ARE DESPERATE FOR A DEAL WILL NOW ROLL US ON THESE ASSORTED ISSUES. I WOULD HOPE THAT WE WILL IMMEDIATELY MAKE KNOWN OUR STRONG VIEWS TO LONDON, PARIS, AND BONN ON THESE POINTS.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals met on May 28 to consider a range of policy options in light of the recent developments in Bosnia. They agreed on the following basic points for U.S. policy. (U)

2. Prospects of additional airstrikes. The U.S. will not press allies with troops on the ground for further strikes now, but: (a) the possibility of further strikes will not be ruled out; (b) should strikes again become necessary, a more robust approach permitting the UN and NATO to respond at the time and place of their own choosing should be followed rather than continuing to limit options on the basis of "strict proportionality" (Action: JCS); (c) privately we will accept a pause, but make no public statement to that effect; and (d) the Secretary of State will seek allied reactions to planning a substantial contingency strike option if Serb behavior, such as killing hostages, warranted a major attack (Action: State). 3. Diplomatic efforts at the UN and Contact Group. We will: (a) seek a formula with the French and UK on a sanctions reimposition mechanism based on an independent investigative panel and re-engage Milosevic on that basis to seek to conclude a Bosnian-Serb recognition package (Action: State); (b) press Milosevic in the context of such an agreement to push the Bosnian Serbs to release the hostages (Action: State); (c) explore the prospects for Russian assistance in control of Bosnian Serb heavy weapons (Action: State); and (d) renew efforts to gain UN condemnation of Bosnian Serb leadership as the principal obstacle to peace in the region based on recent events (Action: State). (S)

4. Options and prospects for emergency withdrawal. Principals noted: (a) no one is calling for withdrawal now, but that the situation could arise quickly; (b) NATO OPLAN 40104 would cover emergency withdrawal; (c) U.S. participation requires an immediate effort to complete consultations with Congress, starting with calls to key members and staff the following day (Action: NSC); and (d) non-NATO withdrawal using UK, French and U.S. assets was a possibility, but raised serious problems for NATO and for command and control of the operation (putting stress on the need to complete Congressional consultations on 40104). (S)

5. The future of UNPROFOR. It was agreed that UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia under the present circumstances would be seen as capitulation to Bosnian-Serb blackmail and should be avoided. Instead, Principals agreed the U.S. strongly should support French efforts to enhance UNPROFOR's ability to perform its mandate by: (a) bolstering its capabilities (short of providing U.S. ground forces, but including provision of U.S. equipment if necessary -- including an offer of both U.S. airlift and equipment, if requested, to the British and French) (Action: OSD); (b) application of more robust ROE; and (c) "regrouping" UNPROFOR to reduce the risk. (Principals also agreed to a re-evaluation of the roles and missions of UNPROFOR to support future decisions on regrouping.) (Action: JCS, OSD). (S)

6. Assistance in UNPROFOR redeployment: Principals agreed that, while the U.S. was not in favor of an UNPROFOR redeployment that pulled out from the eastern enclaves, U.S. credibility among NATO Allies would be seriously damaged if we were to turn down a request to NATO for assistance in relocating them from positions that had become untenable. It was agreed that the existing U.S. agreement in principle to provide ground troops as part of NATO led operations to assist UNPROFOR withdrawal should apply equally to an UNPROFOR request for assistance to NATO to relocate from positions that have become untenable to a safer area. They agreed that this decision required the approval of the President and consultations with Congress on this option. (Action: NSC) (S)

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Policy for Bosnia -- Use of U.S. Ground Forces to Support NATO Assistance for Redeployment of UNPROFOR Within Bosnia

Purpose

To provide a summary of policy conclusions reached by Principals at their meeting on Bosnia on May 28, and obtain your decision on whether agreement in principle to provide U.S. forces to assist in UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia also extends to assistance in redeployment of UNPROFOR units from the eastern enclaves to more defensible positions elsewhere within Bosnia.

Background

Principals met on May 28 to consider a range of policy options in light of the recent developments in Bosnia. They agreed on the following basic points for U.S. policy:

- Prospects of additional airstrikes: The U.S. will not press allies with troops on the ground for further strikes now, but (1) the possibility of further strikes will not be ruled out, (2) should strikes again become necessary, a more robust approach permitting the UN and NATO to respond at the time and place of their own choosing should be followed rather than continuing to limit options on the basis of "strict proportionality," (3) privately we will accept a pause, but make no public statement to that effect, and (4) the Secretary of State will seek allied reactions to planning a substantial contingency strike option if Serb behavior, such as killing hostages, warranted a major attack.

- Diplomatic efforts at the UN and Contact Group: We will (1) seek a formula with the French and UK on a sanctions suspension termination mechanism and re-engage Milosevic on that basis to seek to conclude a Bosnian-Serb recognition package, (2) press Milosevic in the context of such an agreement to push the Bosnian Serbs to release the hostages (in order to create the conditions making such an agreement workable), (3) explore the prospects for Russian assistance in control of Bosnian Serb heavy weapons, and (4) renew efforts to gain UN condemnation of Bosnian Serb leadership as the principal obstacle to peace in the region based on recent events. (Per our conversation last night, Chris will be working with Hurd and others today to support the stronger U.K. position, including a private U.K./French/U.S. message to Karadzic. Shali and I just spoke with Chris and suggested he offer both U.S. airlift and equipment, if requested, to the Brits and French.)

- Options and prospects for emergency withdrawal: Principals noted that (1) no one is calling for that now, but that the situation could arise quickly, (2) NATO OPLAN 40104 would cover emergency withdrawal, (3) U.S. participation requires that a serious effort to complete consultations with Congress must begin at once, starting with calls to key members and staff today, and (4) non-NATO withdrawal using UK, French and U.S. assets was a possibility, but raises serious problems for NATO and for command and control of the operation (putting greater stress on the need for Congressional consultations on 40104).

- The future of UNPROFOR: It was agreed that UNPROFOR withdrawal from Bosnia under the present circumstances would be seen as capitulation to Bosnian-Serb blackmail and should be avoided. Instead, Principals agreed the U.S. strongly should support French efforts to enhance UNPROFOR's ability to perform its mandate by (1) bolstering its capabilities (short of providing U.S. ground forces, but including provision of U.S. equipment if necessary), (2) application of more robust ROE and (3) "regrouping" UNPROFOR to reduce the risk. (Principals also agreed to a re-evaluation of the roles and missions of UNPROFOR to support future decisions on regrouping.)

Although the French are not at this time calling for UNPROFOR withdrawal from the eastern enclaves as part of their regrouping proposal, it is conceivable that, should the situation on the ground continue to worsen, some of our NATO allies with forces on the ground in the enclaves might make such a request.

OSD and JCS propose that such a request should be treated as a subset of NATO OPLAN 40104 withdrawal efforts, and that the U.S. commitment in principle to provide troops for a withdrawal of UNPROFOR should be extended to apply to assistance in relocation if required to safely extract allied UNPROFOR units. They note that, since redeployment of UNPROFOR to more defensible positions within Bosnia could be seen as more threatening to the Bosnian Serbs than withdrawal in toto, there is an increased likelihood that units attempting to redeploy would feel the need for NATO assistance. Should NATO be asked to assist, the United States could find itself facing the choice of temporarily deploying ground forces into Bosnia as part of such a NATO effort or telling our allies that, while we are prepared to assist them leave Bosnia altogether, we are unwilling to assist them in moving to safer positions from which UNPROFOR would be more capable of performing its missions. Allies may press the U.S. on this at the Contact Group and NAC Ministerial meetings this week.

We would prefer not to see a withdrawal from the eastern enclaves, with the associated potential for a humanitarian nightmare for the civilians in the safe areas currently under the promise of UN protection. Moreover, Congressional support and approval for U.S. participation in a redeployment operation may be more difficult to obtain than for an UNPROFOR rescue and extraction. As noted above, a redeployment may meet more Serbian resistance. Moreover, many in Congress (e.g. Dole) have linked U.S. participation in UNPROFOR extraction to subsequent lift of the arms embargo; in the context of assisted redeployment we would be compelled to resist lift, which will make Congressional approval harder. A hard sell would be required based on agreement that the redeployment was a precursor to far more aggressive action against the Bosnian Serbs.

Such difficulties notwithstanding, U.S. credibility among NATO Allies would be seriously damaged if we were to turn down a request for assistance in extracting themselves from positions that had become untenable in the eastern enclaves and redeploying to central Bosnia. This would be especially so since such a redeployment would be presented as supporting of two U.S. goals: maintaining an UNPROFOR presence in Bosnia, and making that presence more robust in its ability and willingness to confront Bosnian Serb violations.

RECOMMENDATION

That since it is not in our interests to see the eastern enclaves abandoned, and since we would be hard pressed to turn down a request for assistance if it came to NATO, we should work bilaterally with the French and other troop contributing nations to ensure that adequate forces remain available to sustain a UNPROFOR presence in the enclaves, and discourage them from seeking NATO assistance for redeployment;

But since I agree with Bill and Shali that we should provide such assistance if we can bring Congress along, that briefings to Congress on OPLAN 40104 include the option of using the withdrawal plan to redeploy UNPROFOR to more defensible positions, should such redeployment become inevitable.

Summary of Conclusions

Negotiations with Milosevic

1. Principals decided to recall Ambassador Frasure from Belgrade meetings with Milosevic for consultations, given the lack of progress on the mutual recognition plan and Milosevic's attempt to up the ante. They agreed that, prior to departing, Frasure should meet with Milosevic to stress (a) the need for Belgrade to be more forthcoming on a workable sanctions reimposition mechanism in return for sanctions relief; (b) the need for Milosevic to intercede to secure UNPROFOR access in order to resupply its units in the eastern enclaves; and (c) the need for Milosevic to pledge to take action to increase security of U.S. monitors operating along the Serbian-Bosnian border in light of Bosnian-Serb threats to take U.S. personnel hostage (Action: State). (S)

Future of U.S. ICFY Monitors

2. Principals agreed to return U.S. border monitors to duty under the following conditions: (a) they must be informed of the serious nature of the threat directed toward them, based on our intelligence information, and allowed to resign and leave if they do not want to return voluntarily; (b) Frasure should obtain the security commitment from Milosevic cited above; (c) upcoming congressional testimony about the U.S. role and policy for Bosnia should ensure that Congress is aware of the participation of U.S. civilian contractors in the ICFY border monitoring mission. A message would be sent at once to inform the head of the ICFY of our decision (Action: State). (S)

Visit of Bosnian Prime Minister Silajdzic

3. Principals recommended scheduling a meeting of Bosnian Prime Minister Silajdzic with the Vice President during Silajdzic's visit to Washington June 8-14, with the option of a drop-by by the President (Action: NSC/OVP). (S)

4. Principals also agreed that a meeting should be arranged in the near future between the Secretary of State and Muhamed Sacirbey, in his new capacity as Bosnian Foreign Minister (Action: State). (C)

Measures to Enhance Protection for Deny Flight Missions

5. Based on a CIA assessment that the current ROE for Deny Flight might not provide adequate protection for NATO/US aircraft in light of recently demonstrated Bosnian-Serb tactics, Principals agreed that CIA will review the nature of the SAM threat in Bosnia, and OSD and JCS will then determine, subject to Principals' review, whether a new definition of "hostile intent" or new ROE are required for further operations (Action: CIA/JCS/OSD). (C)

6. In the interim, Principals agreed that Deny Flight operations will continue under existing ROE (considering all of Bosnia to be a high threat area, permitting attack on SAMs demonstrating hostile intent through radar illumination of aircraft), but will seek to avoid provocative action (Action: JCS/OSD). (S)

Response to Croat Offensive near Knin

7. Principals agreed that a strong message should be sent to Zagreb and the Croatian Ambassador to the UN urging the Croatians to exercise restraint in their ongoing offensive operations near Knin lest they provoke another major clash with the Krajina Serbs (Action: USUN/State). (C)

U.S. Support to UNPROFOR

8. Principals reviewed the results of the Paris meeting of Defense Ministers. In this regard, they agreed to await clarification from those providing forces to the UN Rapid Reaction Force to determine the exact nature of lift, air support and equipment that the U.S. might be asked to provide (Action: USUN/OSD). They agreed in principle that the U.S. would support a UNSC resolution to be drafted by France and the UK that would use the Paris decisions as the basis for UNPROFOR reconfiguration rather than any of the four options put forward by the UN SYG (Action: USUN). (C)

9. Principals agreed that airdrops to resupply UNPROFOR units isolated in the eastern enclaves would be a high risk option that would be unlikely to provide any long-term resolution to the problem. They agreed on the need to reassess the stocks/supplies available to the Safe Areas (Action: OVP/CIA) to provide a baseline for evaluating the requirements for resupply (Action: JCS). (S)

10. Principals agreed on the need to resolve on an urgent basis the issue of how UNPROFOR strengthening and NATO withdrawal planning will be funded. Deputies will be asked to approve a funding strategy at their next meeting, based on proposals vetted through the Peacekeeping Core Group (Action: OMB/NSC). (C)

Policy Coordination

11. Principals expressed concern that recent announcements of military deployments to Italy had not been adequately coordinated in advance through the interagency process or with the Government of Italy. They agreed to elevate the level of participation in the daily video teleconference (VTC) on Bosnia to the level of Deputy Assistant Secretary or equivalent and to ensure that all agencies used the VTC to inform the others of any upcoming activity relating to the former Yugoslavia (Action: NSC/State/ CIA/OSD/JCS). (S)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Congressional Consultations

12. Principals reviewed requirements for upcoming Congressional testimony on U.S. policy for Bosnia, and agreed that NSC should serve as a clearinghouse to coordinate all formal testimony and Q&A responses -- which should build on the comprehensive list developed by NSC for the President (Action: NSC/All). They agreed that a concerted effort was required to explain strong administration opposition to unilateral lift measures being introduced in both houses (Action: NSC/All). (C)

13. They also agreed that it would be prudent to provide formal 15-day advance contingency 407 notification to Congress of our intent to assist UNPROFOR in Bosnia, in the context of ongoing briefings to Congress on NATO OPLAN 40104 and USG Bosnia policy. This notification should be broad enough to cover NATO withdrawal efforts and support for the UN Rapid Reaction Force, without using potentially provocative funding estimates unless specifically required by law (Action: State/OMB/NSC). SUBJECT: Partial 407 Notification Package

Per Tuesday's PC decision, State has redrafted the 407 notification to Congress to satisfy the 15-day advance notification requirement regarding possible U.S. assistance to UNPROFOR operations in Bosnia.

It is now split into 2 parts

- The first covers the OPLAN 40104 prepositioning Step 2 full communications package of 1500 personnel (460 U.S.). This has already been approved at NATO through issuance of an ACTREQ (Force Activation Request), but could not actually deploy until after SACEUR gets NAC approval to issue an ACTORD (Activation Order).

- The second covers full implementation of OPLAN 40104 and the prospect of U.S. support, short of ground forces, to the UNPROFOR Quick Reaction Force.

Concurrences by: Bill Danvers and Alan Kreczko

REPORT TO CONGRESS OF POSSIBLE PROVISION OF ASSISTANCE TO THE UNITED NATIONS IN SUPPORT OF A PEACEKEEPING OPERATION

Pursuant to section 407(a)(5) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 1994-1995, P.L. 103-236, this report provides notification of the possibility that the United States may provide assistance to the United Nations in support of its peacekeeping operations in the former Yugoslavia.

As was briefed to certain members and staff on March 20 and April 21, the Administration has authorized the prepositioning in Croatia of 20 U.S. military communicators as part of a NATO group of 80 persons. Our senior military commanders recommended this action as an essential step to ensure that a communications network is in place to support NATO should a decision be made to assist in the withdrawal of the United Nations Protection Force (UNPROFOR) from Bosnia. The Department of Defense has informed us that the cost of sustaining these 20 communicators and associated equipment in Croatia for a period of six months will not exceed one million dollars. The cost of this prepositioning did not, therefore, pass the formal notification threshold. The U.S. expense for this deployment will be borne by the Department of Defense.

NATO planning also calls for a follow-on precautionary prepositioning in Croatia of about 1,500 communicators and support staff, of which it is anticipated the U.S. would provide approximately 460 persons. The purpose of this step is to complete the preparations for the communications network begun by the earlier group of 80 persons, to be ready to be used should the decision be made for NATO assistance in the withdrawal of UNPROFOR. We are discussing with our NATO allies how the full cost of the predeployment is to be shared. We are not seeking U.N. reimbursement. We anticipate that the costs to the U.S. government will exceed the notification threshold of $3 million.

The decision to deploy the 1500-person group has not yet been taken.

These precautionary steps do not represent any change in the U.S. position that UNPROFOR should remain in Bosnia. Prudent planning to ensure the efficient and safe withdrawal of UNPROFOR, if necessary, can help convince troop contributors to maintain their commitment to UNPROFOR. NATO's military authorities advise that this repositioning is essential to maintain NATO command and control over a withdrawal operation.

I shall provide notification in a subsequent message of other possible U.S. steps to provide assistance to UN peacekeeping operations in the former Yugoslavia, in light of recent developments.

REPORT TO CONGRESS OF POSSIBLE PROVISION OF ASSISTANCE TO THE UNITED NATIONS IN SUPPORT OF A PEACEKEEPING OPERATION

Pursuant to section 407 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 1994-1995, P.L. 103-236, this report provides notification of the possibility that the United States may provide assistance to the United Nations to support peacekeeping operations in the former Yugoslavia. This could include assistance in connection with either a withdrawal of UN related personnel from Bosnia, or an emergency extraction of UNPROFOR units from positions which have become untenable to positions elsewhere in the former Yugoslavia which are safe, or the establishment of a rapid reaction force.

The Administration has previously discussed possible assistance to UNPROFOR with certain members and staff of the designated Congressional committees in phone calls on March 20, April 21, and May 29. Staff were also briefed on March 31 and Members on May 19 and May 26. On June 9, we submitted a notification with respect to prepositioning of communicators and support staff in Croatia as a precautionary step in case withdrawal became necessary.

NATO planning for a possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR calls in addition for early action involving training and exercises, preparations for a possible deployment of NATO forces, and acquisition of communications equipment that would be NATO owned, but which could be used in a possible evacuation of UN forces. We are discussing with our NATO allies how the full cost of the predeployment is to be shared. We are not seeking reimbursement. We anticipate that the costs to the U.S. government will exceed the notification threshold of $3 million.

As was made clear in the briefings on May 19 and 26, and in the statement released after the May 29 meeting of the Contact Group, the Administration strongly supports UNPROFOR's continued operation in Bosnia. No final decision has been made on U.S. participation in a withdrawal, beyond the initial deployment of 20 personnel. The President informed our Allies last December, however, that the U.S. is prepared, in principle, to commit U.S. ground forces to a NATO operation to assist UN Peace Forces to withdraw from the former Yugoslavia if the UN decides that it can no longer perform its mission and requests NATO's help in withdrawing, and if the North Atlantic Council approves acting on the UN request. This action would also extend to helping in an emergency extraction of UN Peace Forces from positions which have become untenable to positions of safety within the former Yugoslavia.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Should an UNPROFOR withdrawal or partial withdrawal be necessary, a deployment in which the U.S. would provide a substantial number of troops and other assistance could be authorized. We are discussing with our NATO allies how this cost would be shared. We are also discussing within the Administration how the U.S. will fund its share of the operation.

We have also joined the Contact Group call for a reinforced UNPROFOR. While we do not contemplate any new U.S. role in UNPROFOR, we might join and assist in a NATO effort, if requested, to make UNPROFOR more robust and more defensible.

Our allies in NATO, and in particular France and Britain, which already have troops on the ground in Bosnia and some of whose peacekeeping forces have been taken hostage by the Bosnian Serbs, have proposed the creation of a rapid reaction force that would protect and support the peacekeepers. At this time, it is contemplated that the force would be authorized as part of UNPROFOR by the Security Council in a resolution. The U.S. is prepared to provide appropriate assistance and support, short of ground forces, for such a force. This could logically include, for example, close air support to assist in the defense of the force; transfer or loan of equipment, including attack helicopters, radars, communications gear and night vision equipment; airlift support to move forces and equipment to the theater of operation; and provision of intelligence to local commanders. The modalities for creating and deploying such a force are at a formative stage, and we are now discussing this matter within NATO and bilaterally. At this time, until we have determined the precise elements of the support and the terms on which it would be provided, a reliable estimate of its cost is not available.

The Administration intends to continue to consult with the Congress on assistance to UN peacekeeping efforts in the former Yugoslavia. As the situation develops, we will provide the Congress with more detailed information about U.S. assistance and support through consultations and the monthly reports submitted under section 407.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Principals' Review of Bosnia Policy

Principals met Tuesday afternoon to review a range of policy issues associated with the situation in Bosnia. Key decisions included:

1. Recall Bob Frasure from Belgrade for consultations, given the lack of progress on the mutual recognition plan and Milosevic's attempts to up the ante. Prior to departing, Frasure will meet with Milosevic to stress: (a) the need for Belgrade to be more forthcoming on a workable sanctions reimposition mechanism in return for sanctions relief; (b) the need for Milosevic to intercede with the Bosnian Serbs to permit UNPROFOR to resupply its units in the eastern enclaves; and (c) the need for Milosevic to pledge to take action to increase security of U.S. monitors operating along the Serbian-Bosnian border in light of Bosnian Serb threats to take U.S. personnel hostage.

2. Agree to return U.S. border monitors to duty under the following conditions: (a) inform them of the serious nature of the threat directed toward them, based on our intelligence information, and allow them to resign and leave if they do not want to return voluntarily; (b) obtain the security commitment from Milosevic; (c) inform the head of the international mission of our decision; and (d) ensure that Congress is aware of the participation of U.S. civilian contractors in the border monitoring mission.

3. Schedule a meeting of Bosnian Prime Minister Silajdzic with the Vice President during Silajdzic's visit to Washington beginning on Thursday. Principals thought it would be desirable for you to drop by.

4. Based on a CIA assessment that the current ROE for Deny Flight might not provide adequate protection for NATO/US aircraft in light of recent Bosnian Serb tactics, CIA, OSD and JCS will review the nature of the SAM threat in Bosnia and determine whether a new definition of "hostile intent" or new ROE are required for further operations. In the interim, Deny Flight operations will continue under existing ROE (permitting attacks on SAMs demonstrating hostile intent through radar illumination of aircraft), but we will seek to avoid provocative action. Any proposed changes will be subject to review by Principals. We will ensure that UNPROFOR and Bosnian Serbs are aware that NATO aircraft are authorized to respond to demonstrations of hostile intent.

5. Urge the Croatians to exercise restraint in their ongoing offensive operations near Knin lest they provoke another major clash with the Krajina Serbs.

Principals also reviewed the results of the Paris meeting of Defense Ministers and the kinds of support we will provide to the Quick Reaction Force, depending on the requests of the force contributors. They also agreed that it would be prudent to provide formal notification to Congress of our intent to assist UNPROFOR in Bosnia in the context of ongoing briefings on NATO OPLAN 40104 and USG Bosnia policy.

REPORT TO CONGRESS OF POSSIBLE PROVISION OF ASSISTANCE TO THE UNITED NATIONS IN SUPPORT OF A PEACEKEEPING OPERATION

Pursuant to Section 407 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Year 1994-1995, P.L. 103-236, this report provides notification of the possibility that the United States will provide assistance to the United Nations in support of its peacekeeping operations in the former Yugoslavia.

The Administration has previously discussed possible assistance to UNPROFOR with certain members and staff of the designated Congressional committees in phone calls on March 20, April 21, and May 29. Staff were also briefed on March 31 and Members on May 19 and May 26. Because of the fluidity of the situation on the ground it is not possible at this time to provide detailed information on the type or value of assistance that might be provided.

Assistance might be provided through NATO to assist in the withdrawal of UN-related personnel from Bosnia, should that be necessary. As was discussed in the phone calls to certain members and staff on March 20 and April 21 the Administration did authorize the deployment of 20 U.S. military communicators to Croatia as part of an eighty-person NATO precautionary deployment. Our senior military commanders recommended this action as an essential prepositioning step to ensure a communications network is ready to support NATO should a decision to withdraw UNPROFOR be necessary. The Department of Defense has informed us that the cost of sustaining these 20 communicators and associated equipment in Croatia for a period of six months will not exceed one million dollars. The U.S. expense for this deployment will be borne by the Department of Defense.

NATO planning for a possible withdrawal of UNPROFOR also calls for early action involving training and exercises, preparations for a possible deployment of NATO forces, and acquisition of communications equipment that would be NATO owned, but which could be used in a possible evacuation of UN forces. NATO has budgeted $11.86 million for this, not all of which has been expended. If the full amount is expended the U.S. share would be about 24%, or approximately $2.97 million. These expenses would be paid out of the NATO military budget and the NATO Security Investment Program.

NATO planning calls for a follow-on precautionary deployment of about 1,500 communicators and support staff. It is anticipated that the U.S. would provide about 456 of these troops. Part of the equipment and preparation costs in support of this deployment is covered by the $11.86 million already budgeted by NATO.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

As was made clear in the briefings for Congress on this subject held on May 19 and 26, and in the statement released after the May 29 meeting of the Contact Group, the Administration strongly supports UNPROFOR's continued operation in Bosnia/Herzegovina. No final decision has been made on U.S. participation in a withdrawal, beyond the initial deployment of 20 personnel. However, the President informed our Allies last December that the U.S. is prepared, in principle, to commit U.S. ground forces to a NATO operation to assist UN Peace Forces withdraw from the former Yugoslavia. We have also joined the Contact Group call for a reinforced UNPROFOR. While we do not contemplate any new U.S. role in UNPROFOR, we might join in a NATO effort, if it is requested, to make UNPROFOR more robust and more defensible. This might involve assisting UNPROFOR to redeploy to more defensible positions or providing it some of the tools it needs to defend itself better.

Should UNPROFOR withdrawal be necessary, a NATO deployment in which the U.S. would provide a substantial number of troops and other assistance could be authorized. Depending on the situation on the ground at the time of the operation, the cost of NATO support for a full withdrawal of UN forces from Bosnia could be as much as $2 billion. We are discussing with our NATO allies how this cost would be shared. We are also discussing within the Administration how the U.S. will fund its share of the operation.

The Administration intends to continue to consult with the Congress on this issue. As the situation in Bosnia/Herzegovina develops, information in this report may change. We will provide the Congress with more detailed information about U.S. participation, cost and how the Administration would fund this operation as it becomes available.

SUBJECT: Disposition of U.S. ICFY Monitors

U.S. personnel serving with the ICFY monitoring mission on the inter-Serb border have been withdrawn to their sector headquarters in response to intelligence reports that Bosnian Serbs (or FRY sympathizers) may attempt to take American hostages. The FRY government has ordered increased police presence at sector headquarters and at crossings, assigned police to accompany ICFY monitors at the busiest crossings, and added police and army patrols on the border. The extent to which these orders will be carried out and the effect on the monitors' actual security remains to be seen.

ICFY Head of Mission Nieminen correctly asserts that ICFY cannot carry out its mission without American personnel. Further, he worries that other countries will pull out if the U.S. monitors do not return to duty. Nieminen proposes changes in his operating procedures that would better protect Americans while still allowing him to use them in the field.

Nieminen says that he will re-deploy U.S. monitors under these conditions unless we object by June 6. (Embassy Belgrade has been instructed to ask him to wait for the outcome of the June 6 PC.) Principals should decide whether the USG should acquiesce in Nieminen's proposal to re-deploy U.S. monitors or continue to keep them away from border crossing points.

This decision requires balancing the risk to U.S. personnel, and the consequences if one or more are taken hostage, against the possibility that keeping U.S. personnel off the border may cause the ICFY mission to collapse and take with it a major component of our diplomatic strategy.

AFTER NIEMINEN (WHO HAD BEEN OUT OF THE COUNTRY) WAS BRIEFED ON THE THREAT, HE EXPRESSED HIS STRONG CONCERN ABOUT BEING ABLE TO CONTINUE THE MISSION WITHOUT DEPLOYING U.S. PERSONNEL, GIVEN ALREADY DIMINISHED RESOURCES. FURTHER, HE ADVISED US OF ANOTHER CONTRIBUTING NATION WHO WISHED TO WITHDRAW ITS PERSONNEL BASED ON A SIMILAR BUT UNDEFINED THREAT; INDICATED THAT THE WITHDRAWAL OF U.S. PERSONNEL TO REAR AREAS UNDERMINED HIS AUTHORITY; AND PROPOSED THAT MEASURES COULD BE CONSIDERED TO BETTER PROTECT THE AMERICANS WHILE STILL ALLOWING HIM TO UTILIZE THEM. VIEWS TO WASHINGTON. NIEMINEN REQUESTED THAT WE HAVE AN ANSWER AS TO OUR INTENTIONS BY TUESDAY, JUNE 6. HE INDICATED THAT HE WOULD RE-DEPLOY U.S. MONITORS AT THAT TIME UNLESS WE SPECIFICALLY OBJECT. END SUMMARY

4. DAS FRASURE, COM PERINA, ACTING DCM AND RSO BRIEFED ICFY HEAD OF MISSION TAUNO NIEMINEN AND DEPUTY HEAD OF MISSION SCARLETT ON JUNE 3 ABOUT THE THREAT REPORTED IN REF A (SCARLETT HAD PREVIOUSLY BEEN INFORMED IN NIEMINEN'S ABSENCE). NIEMINEN EXPRESSED HIS STRONG CONCERN ABOUT BEING ABLE TO CONTINUE THE MISSION WITHOUT U.S. PERSONNEL, GIVEN ALREADY DIMINISHED RESOURCES. NIEMINEN STATED THAT IN THE PAST WEEK ICFY HAS LOST 31 U.S. MEMBERS AND 11 CANADIAN MEMBERS (NOT RELATED TO THE THREAT). ON JUNE 2 ICFY RECEIVED NOTIFICATION FROM THE FRENCH THAT THEY INSISTED THEIR 14 MEMBERS ALSO BE PULLED FROM DUTY, DUE TO A SIMILAR THREAT (WE HAVE NO FURTHER INFORMATION ON THIS THREAT) WHICH THEY HAD RECEIVED EARLIER. ADDITIONALLY, THE FRENCH CHARGE TOLD ACTING HOM SCARLETT THAT PARIS WAS UNHAPPY THAT U.S. MISSION MEMBERS APPEARED TO BE GETTING PREFERENTIAL SECURITY PROTECTION. NIEMINEN STATED THAT IF THE FRENCH MEMBERS WERE SUBTRACTED, THIS WOULD REDUCE THE ICFY MISSION TO 105, WELL BELOW THE MINIMUM NECESSARY TO CONDUCT THE MISSION. NIEMINEN EXPRESSED HIS VIEW THAT DECISIONS ON THE DEPLOYMENT OF ICFY PERSONNEL SHOULD BE MADE BY ICFY ITSELF, AND THAT IF A NATION DID NOT WISH ITS MEMBERS FULLY TO PARTICIPATE, THEY SHOULD BE REMOVED FROM THE MISSION ALTOGETHER. COM EXPRESSED HIS UNDERSTANDING OF ICFY'S PREDICAMENT BUT EMPHASIZED THE CREDIBILITY OF THIS THREAT AND ITS SPECIFIC TARGETING OF AMERICANS ONLY.

5. NIEMINEN REPLIED THAT HE BELIEVED THAT THE SERBIAN PROTECTION IN RESPONSE TO THE THREAT HAD BEEN GOOD, AND THAT ICFY PROTECTION HAS BEEN INCREASED SUBSTANTIALLY. COM INQUIRED, ASSUMING WASHINGTON CONCURRENCE, AS TO WHETHER U.S. MEMBERS COULD BE REDEPLOYED TO LESS ISOLATED AREAS WHERE THERE IS GREATER VISIBILITY AND POLICE PROTECTION, AS OPPOSED TO DUTY IN ISOLATED AREAS. NIEMINEN REPLIED THAT THIS COULD BE CONSIDERED BUT THAT SUCH ACCOMMODATION COULD ONLY BE ON A TEMPORARY BASIS AND COULD NOT CONTINUE FOR A LONG PERIOD OF TIME. SCARLETT ADDED THAT REPORTS FROM THE FIELD INDICATED A DETERIORATION IN MORALE AMONG NON-U.S. MEMBERS OF THE MISSION, WHO ARE CURRENTLY WORKING DOUBLE THEIR NORMAL HOURS TO COVER THE U.S. PULLBACK.

6. TO CONCLUDE THE MEETING, NIEMINEN GAVE US A DEADLINE OF TUESDAY, JUNE 6, TO AUTHORIZE THE RE-DEPLOYMENT OF U.S. PERSONNEL. IN FIRM TONES, HE INDICATED THAT IF U.S. PERSONNEL WERE NOT UNDER HIS DIRECTION, THEY SHOULD BE WITHDRAWN COMPLETELY FROM THE MISSION. HE REQUESTED THAT WE CONTACT HIM BY OPENING OF BUSINESS (LOCAL TIME)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

ON TUESDAY SO THAT HE COULD BEGIN TO RE-DEPLOY. COM ADVISED NIEMINEN THAT HE WOULD PASS ON HIS CONCERNS TO WASHINGTON AND REQUEST AN EXPEDITIOUS REPLY.

7. COMMENT: IT IS CLEAR THAT NIEMINEN IS CONCERNED ABOUT LOSS OF OPERATIONAL CONTROL OF THE MEMBERS OF HIS MISSION. WHILE NOT DISMISSING THE SPECIFIC THREAT AGAINST AMERICANS, AND THE NEED TO TAKE SPECIAL PRECAUTIONS, HE IS WORRIED THAT OTHER CAPITALS WILL FOLLOW THE U.S. AND FRENCH LEAD, DIMINISHING HIS AUTHORITY AND LEAVING HIS MISSION IN TATTERS. AS LONG AS THE HOSTAGE CRISIS CONTINUES IN BOSNIA, THE THREAT TO AMERICANS WILL REMAIN. BUT, EVEN AFTER THE HOSTAGE CRISIS IS RESOLVED, THERE IS NO GUARANTEE THAT THE THREAT WILL VANISH. HAVING U.S. MONITORS ON THE DRINA WILL ALWAYS CARRY A DEGREE OF RISK AS STATED IN REF B. POST SUGGESTS THAT ICFY SHOULD ASSIGN U.S. MEMBERS TO THE MOST POPULATED LOCATIONS, WHERE POLICE PRESENCE IS STRONG, AVOIDING ASSIGNMENTS TO ISOLATED POSTS OR ROVING PATROLS AS A FIRST STEP IN REINTEGRATING THE U.S. COMPONENT IN ICFY ACTIVITIES. WE WOULD EXPECT ICFY HQ TO ENSURE THAT THE SERBS PROVIDE VISIBLE AND CONSTANT SECURITY AND THAT ICFY WATCHES CLOSELY OVER THIS SITUATION, MONITORING THE THREAT TO AMERICANS.

8. ACTION REQUEST: PLEASE ADVISE US HOW WE SHOULD INFORM NIEMINEN AS TO THE AVAILABILITY OF U.S. MISSION MEMBERS BY OOB JUNE 6. ABSENT OUR OBJECTION, WE HAVE BEEN TOLD THAT NIEMINEN WILL BEGIN UTILIZING U.S. MONITORS IN LOW THREAT AREAS. PERINA

Response to French Proposal to Reinforce Gorazde:

2. Principals agreed that we should not say "no" to the French on efforts to make UNPROFOR more robust or their specific proposal to reinforce Gorazde. But we must find ways to turn the discussion to options that are militarily feasible. The immediate decision is to send General Shalikashvili to London to meet on Sunday, July 16, with his French and British counterparts for the purpose of reviewing the military options being considered in the aftermath of Srebrenica. He will raise a series of issues about the French Gorazde option (including U.S. helicopter lift for French reinforcements) designed to focus the discussion on what is realistic from a military standpoint. He will return with answers before a decision is made on whether or not to provide U.S. helicopter lift. (Action: JCS) (S)

3. Principals agreed that if there was to be a decision to make a stand at Gorazde, it would be a decision for Sarajevo, London, Paris and Kiev to make, with our support. We will not seek to drive such a choice if they are not willing to implement it. We will, however, signal to allies at the meeting in London that we believe such a decision would require robust use of air power and that we stand ready to provide it in conjunction with a NATO effort to restore air supremacy over Bosnia. (Action: JCS/OSD) (S)

4. It was agreed that Sarajevo is important to a successful UNPROFOR strategy as is Gorazde. Principals agreed that we should not only support using the RRF to open a secure land route but measures to enable UNPROFOR to counter Serb artillery attacks on the city. The JCS will develop a list of equipment deemed essential to the protection of Sarajevo, such as advanced counter-battery artillery systems that could be provided as part of our planned $50 million in drawdown contributions to the RRF. (Action: JCS) (S)

5. Principals determined that the risk of Serbian attempts to take hostages would increase as UNPROFOR adopted a more robust policy of actively defending the remaining enclaves and that therefore we should urge that the UNMO missions be withdrawn from Serb-controlled territory. (Action: State/USUN) (S)

Dole Resolution on Lift:

6. Principals agreed that as a strategy for opposing the unilateral lift bill being put forward by Senator Dole, the administration should encourage efforts to amend the language in order to remove the most onerous provisions of the legislation but serve notice that even with amendments, a requirement that the U.S. unilaterally violate binding UNSC resolutions would be subject to Presidential veto. Secretary Perry will take the lead in approaching Senator Nunn to seek his assistance in getting amendments to:

- extend the time allowed before lift would take effect from 12 weeks to the 22 weeks necessary to implement OPLAN 40104;
- link any requirement for lifting the arms embargo to its likely consequences by including Congressional authorization for U.S. participation in a NATO-led withdrawal operation;
- ensure that the trigger for implementation of lift is not just a request from the Bosnian government but rather a decision by the UN Security Council; and
- change unilateral lift to multilateral lift.

Secretary Perry will make clear to Nunn that even if he succeeds on the first three points, the bill will be subject to veto as long as it still requires unilateral lift. (Action: NSC/OSD) ~~(C)~~

Negotiations with Milosevic:

7. Principals received word of a new agreement that EU mediator Carl Bildt was close to concluding with Milosevic to obtain a mutual recognition package between Bosnia and Serbia. They agreed that the deal would go too far in restricting U.S. ability to reimpose sanctions if Milosevic did not live up to his commitment to seal the border. (It would require a majority among either the five Contact Group members or the five UNSC Permanent members to reimpose sanctions after 9 months.) Ambassador Frasure will meet with Bildt next week to explain our reservations. (Action: State) ~~(S)~~

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals met on July 14 to consider appropriate responses to the Bosnian Serb assault and occupation of the UN Safe Area at Srebrenica. (U)

Response to French Proposal to Reinforce Gorazde:

2. Principals agreed that we should not ~~be~~ say "no" to the French on efforts to make UNPROFOR more robust or their specific proposal to reinforce Gorazde. But we must find ways to turn the discussion to options that are militarily feasible. The immediate decision is to send General Shalikashvili to London to meet on Sunday, July 16, with his French and British counterparts for the purpose of reviewing the military options being considered in the aftermath of Srebrenica. He will raise a series of issues about the French Gorazde option (including U.S. helicopter lift for French reinforcements) designed to focus the discussion on what is realistic from a military standpoint. He will return with answers before a decision is made on whether or not to provide U.S. helicopter lift. (Action: JCS) ~~(S)~~

3. Principals agreed that if there was to be a decision ~~for UNPROFOR~~ to make a stand at Gorazde, it would be a decision for Sarajevo, London, Paris and Kiev to make. We will not seek to drive such a choice if they are not willing to implement it. We will, however, signal to allies at the meeting in London that we believe such a decision would require robust use of air power and that we stand ready to provide it in conjunction with a NATO effort to restore air supremacy over Bosnia. (Action: JCS/OSD) ~~(S)~~

4. It was agreed that ~~in the end,~~ Sarajevo is ~~more~~ important to a successful UNPROFOR strategy ~~than~~ Gorazde. Principals agreed that we should not only support using the RRF to open a secure land route but measures to enable UNPROFOR to counter Serb artillery attacks on the city. The JCS will develop a list of equipment deemed essential to the protection of Sarajevo, such as advanced counter-battery artillery systems that could be provided as part of our planned $50 million in drawdown contributions to the RRF. (Action: JCS) ~~(S)~~

5. Principals determined that the risk of Serbian attempts to take hostages would ~~dramatically~~ increase ~~if~~ as UNPROFOR adopted a more robust policy of actively defending the remaining enclaves and that therefore ~~it would be necessary for~~ the UNMO missions ~~to~~ be withdrawn from Serb-controlled territory. (Action: State/USUN) ~~(S)~~

Dole Resolution on Lift:

6. Principals agreed that as a strategy for opposing the unilateral lift bill being put forward by Senator Dole, the administration should encourage efforts to amend the language in order to remove the most onerous provisions of the legislation but serve notice that even with amendments, a requirement that the U.S. unilaterally violate binding UNSC resolutions would be subject to Presidential veto. Secretary Perry will take the lead in approaching Senator Nunn to seek his assistance in getting amendments to:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- extend the time allowed before lift would take effect from 12 weeks to the 22 weeks necessary to implement OPLAN 40104;
- link any requirement for lifting the arms embargo to its likely consequences by including Congressional authorization for U.S. participation in a NATO-led withdrawal operation;
- ensure that the trigger for implementation of lift is not just a request from the Bosnian government but rather a decision by the UN Security Council; and
- change unilateral lift to multilateral lift.

Secretary Perry will make clear to Nunn that even if he succeeds on the first three points, the bill will be subject to veto as long as it still requires unilateral lift. (Action: NSC/OSD) ~~(C)~~

Negotiations with Milosevic:

7. Principals received word of a new agreement that EU mediator Carl Bildt was close to concluding with Milosevic to obtain a mutual recognition package between Bosnia and Serbia. They agreed that the deal would go too far in restricting U.S. ability to reimpose sanctions if Milosevic did not live up to his commitment to seal the border. (It would require a majority among either the five Contact Group members or the five UNSC Permanent members to reimpose sanctions after 9 months.) Discussion Paper

Elements of a Post-UNPROFOR Strategy:
Support the Federation; Contain the Conflict

Overview

At the May 23 Principals Committee meeting there was a general consensus that U.S. policy following UNPROFOR withdrawal would be to seek multilateral lift of the arms embargo, limited support for arming and training the Bosnian Army, but no commitment to air strikes. Principals also agreed that U.S. security assistance should be largely limited to the provision of financing for Bosnian arms purchases from other suppliers and that training should be conducted by a third party, if possible. There was also agreement that such policies would have to be accompanied by enhanced efforts to contain the fighting within current bounds, including maintaining, and possibly reinforcing, peacekeepers in Macedonia.

Principals agreed that all these elements of a possible post-UNPROFOR strategy need further analysis, as do several other questions including: What relief and other military operations could or should remain in place? How would we work with Allies and friends to contain the fighting? What are Russia's likely responses to our efforts to lift the arms embargo and bolster the security of Bosnia-Herzegovina?

Political/Military Goals

Our principal goals following UNPROFOR's partial or complete withdrawal would be to:

- Preserve the sovereignty of the GOBH over as much of its territory as possible;

  -- We could continue to recognize the borders of the Republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina as of 1992 and not accept the territorial status quo created by Serb military operations and ethnic cleansing, just as we did with Soviet conquest of the Baltics in the 1940s.

- Maintain the Bosniac-Croat Federation and good relations between Zagreb and Sarajevo;

  -- Whether these alliances of convenience can endure remains to be seen. The Federation offers the best prospect for developing a counterweight to extreme nationalism and Serbian regional hegemony. Maintaining some common sense of purpose between Zagreb and Sarajevo is the best way to safeguard the GOBH from a Serb-Croat grand bargain that could leave Bosnia a Balkan Palestine in the middle of Greater Serbia and Greater Croatia.

-- Croatian support would be essential to success of efforts to arm and train the Bosnian Army, if only to ensure transit of equipment. But Zagreb would surely want some similar security assistance and closer ties to NATO (through PFP) and the EU.

- Prevent a widening of the conflict and bolster regional stability;

  -- This remains our abiding strategic interest. We must prevent the conflict from widening into a general Balkan War that could engage two NATO allies (with very different agenda), threaten the stability of fragile new democracies in the region, and increase the risks of deeper U.S. engagement.

- Deter further aggression by Belgrade, while keeping a line open to Milosevic and his successors.

  -- Threats to Kosovo, Macedonia, and other neighbors would have to be deterred, but moderation of Serb policies is the long-term goal.

General Elements of the Strategy

Security Assistance

We would seek support of all NATO allies, PFP Partners, and moderate Islamic states for a security assistance package for the GOBH. But we should be prepared to proceed with a coalition of the willing.

Allies would balk at supporting lift for fear that it would prolong the war and exacerbate the risks of its widening. We would need to convince them that we only want to give the GOBH a chance to survive and be able to negotiate a viable settlement. A convincing containment strategy would also be essential to enlisting their support.

Security assistance to Bosnian government would be designed to give it sufficient military capacity to defend the territory still under its control and enhance its ability to regain, by force or at the negotiating table, territory now controlled by the BSA. The magnitude of assistance could range from what would be required to defend the status quo, to a more robust package that would allow it to make strategic gains, to an extensive reequipping that would allow it to reestablish its control over territory allotted it under the Contact Group Plan. Clearly cost will be a major factor here, and past estimates of the robust package have exceeded $1 billion.

We and the GOBH would have to balance various goals with the risks of triggering engagement of superior Yugoslav Army (VJ) and Krajina Serb Army (KSA) forces in the fighting in ways that could only be countered by direct U.S. and/or Allied military support. All but the first option risk bringing other Serb forces to Pale's defense.

Bosnian/Croat Harmony

Sarajevo has few alternatives other than alliance with Zagreb. Zagreb, on the other hand, may need additional incentives stay with the program. We and other Allies might offer Zagreb certain rewards for cooperation with Sarajevo such as additional technical and military assistance, deeper bilateral economic and political ties, and membership in PFP.

Dealing With Serbia

Deterring further Serb aggression would likely require reinforcing the "Christmas warning" to Milosevic about responding to Serb-triggered violence in Kosovo, and adding threats to take unspecified military actions against Serbia if it escalates its support to the Bosnian Serbs or intimidates Macedonia or other neighbors.

Forging anti-Milosevic coalition could cause divisions within the Alliance and the EU and reinforce Serb nationalism unless we make it clear our efforts are not directed against Serbia proper but at the aggressive nationalism sponsored by the current government. At the same time, we could take steps to support opposition political groups in Serbia who favor more moderate regional policies. We could continue to hold out to Milosevic the promise of further integration if he really breaks with Pale and respects international norms.

Regional Containment

Our regional containment efforts might include:

- Retain some residual UNPROFOR or other peacekeeping presence in the Federation territory to maintain Bosniac-Croat harmony.

- Retain a robust UNCRO to prevent a reeruption of the Serb-Croat war and limit KSA support the BSA.

    -- KSA support was instrumental in the BSA's ability to beat back the Bosnian V Corps offensive in Bihac during the fall of 1994.

    -- There is intelligence suggesting that if the KSA were driven out of UN Sectors North and South by the Croatian Army, they would move into the Posavina corridor and support BSA operations against the Gorazde pocket.

- Maintain and possibly augment UNPREDEP in Macedonia to help stabilize that country and deter a Serb crackdown in Kosovo. In the context of arming the Bosnians, we would have to be careful not to give Kosovar Albanians the sense that U.S. or Allied forces would come to the aid of an armed uprising against Serb authorities.

- Deploy some other border monitoring forces like UNPREDEP in Hungary and Albania. This and other actions to prevent spillover could be organized by NATO through PFP.

- Reinforce stability along the periphery by redirecting resources currently used for peacekeeping and humanitarian assistance to promote economic development and cooperation among the front-line Balkan states.

Efforts Prior to Withdrawal

To be effective, elements of this strategy would need to be in place well before extraction of UNPROFOR actually begins. The military imbalance is such that the BSA could readily put pressure on the enclaves and Sarajevo before and during UNPROFOR withdrawal. Also, as the SNIE 95-7 notes, the Bosnian government would be likely to strongly resist a partial or complete withdrawal of UNPROFOR unless the U.S. or NATO commits to military support. This commitment would just as surely trigger BSA actions to preclude complete withdrawal.

- We would need to build consensus among the Allies and other potential partners and secure at least Russian acquiescence for the main goals of this approach.

- To give the GOBH forces a chance, we would need to explore ways to help the Bosnians "creep out" of the restrictions of the arms embargo. This might include:

  -- Providing some intelligence support to GOBH to enhance their ability to organize defenses against BSA actions. For example, we might start providing the GOBH with data from the Predator UAV flights and other sources.

  -- Programs that Gen. Sewell has broached with the Federation for rear area operations, NCO training, etc.

  -- Developing military-to-military contacts between the GOBH and third countries (Croatia, Turkey, or non-front-line CE states such as Poland or the Czech Republic), that would enable rapid launching of the envisioned training programs.

  -- Reconsider the option of allowing UNPROFOR units, on a national basis, to turn their equipment over the GOBH upon withdrawal. In this way the Bosnian Army could also provide some protection to the evacuation force. Our assumption has been that this would trigger hostile Serb action against these forces, but if the extraction environment is hostile in any event this may not be so decisive in the Serb calculus.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Lifting Options

Multilateral

We would call for an end of the arms embargo because its continuation in the absence of a peacekeeping force or other UNSC action to preserve the peace would deny Bosnia-Herzegovina its right to self-defense under Article 51 of the UN Charter. It would seem difficult for Russia or other states to justify continuation of the arms embargo in this context. Indeed, Russian Rep Churkin proposed lifting the arms embargo last year as part of the Contact Group's package of incentives and disincentives if Bosnia accepted the CG plan and the Serbs did not. Still, one could expect Russia and even some NATO allies to argue that lifting the embargo would only escalate the violence without altering the outcome fundamentally and run the risk of widening of the conflict. Allies would also be wary of lift because of the inevitable pressures to provide military assistance to the Bosnian government.

NATO/Coalition

If Russia or some another UNSC member (China) appeared to be the principal obstacle to multilateral lift, we might press for a NATO/coalition action to achieve the desired goal. Our argument would hinge on rights to self-defense under Article 51 of the UN Charter. However, absent a UNSC action to remove the embargo, we would still be vulnerable to the criticisms we have leveled at proponents of unilateral lift and risk loosing support for compliance with other UN-mandated sanctions regimes.

Lift Only

"Lift and pray" would seem to be a completely indefensible strategy both at home and abroad. Even the most isolationist Republicans are not advocating this approach. While this would end the stigma of supporting UNPROFOR, it would create the impression that we had decided to leave the Bosnian government to fend for itself on the black market or rely on Islamic states.

The GOBH might well resist withdrawal in this context. Indeed, the only advantage of this approach would seem to be that it would decrease the BSA's incentive to complicate or resist withdrawal. However, the BSA would know that the GOBH would receive arms from Islamic and other countries, even if the U.S. and Europe had made no commitments. This outcome would put pressure on the Federation and would risk the ensuing conflict from becoming a clash between Muslims and Christians.

Arming and Training

On the face of it, arming and training by "third countries" has a number of benefits. It would limit the extent of U.S. engagement, making it easier to avoid the "Americanization" of the post-withdrawal conflict. In turn, this could help prevent the struggle from becoming a surrogate conflict between Russian-backed Serbs and the U.S.-backed GOBH.

Identifying likely "third countries" is more problematic. As for arming, many West European governments might be reluctant to fuel the conflict due to fears of widening. Some front line Central European governments might have similar fears, and enlisting them in such an enterprise would run contrary to our efforts to continue the demilitarization of these societies. This leaves Turkey, Iran, and/or other Islamic countries, all of whom have lots of capacity and high motivation. But if these states get involved, modulating the flow will become more complicated, not to mention the polarizing impact of making this a clash between Islam and Christianity.

As for training, if the Bosniac/Croat Federation holds, Croatia would offers proximity, high motivation, and an eagerness to cooperate with NATO. The downside risks are that enlisting Croatia so frontally in the conflict against the Bosnian Serbs would risk reopening the Serb-Croat conflict in a bigger way. Clearly, Croatia's cooperation would be essential to any arming and training package for Bosnia. However, its use as a transit and staging area are different than its use as the training ground and launch pad for offensive operations against Serbs.

Robust Lift and Strike

Here the assessment is in many ways unchanged from the early days of the war in 1992. Lifting the arms embargo and beginning some arming and training of the GOBH forces will take time. During that time they would be very vulnerable to BSA military actions. The most effective way to mitigate this would be to conduct supporting air strikes against BSA heavy weapons, military facilities, and operations. If liaison with the Bosnian Army was established, it might be possible to use Bosnian forces as forward air controllers and target designators. At a minimum, we could argue that NATO's August 1993 decisions to undertake airstrikes to prevent the strangulation of Sarajevo and other safe areas remain valid.

An even more robust option, would be designed to limit VJ involvement by threatening to target VJ military installations in the FRY and the Drina River Bridges and other transit points between the FRY and Bosnia if military support continues.

This would give the GOBH the best chance for survival, but it has several significant risks. Such strong action against the Serbs might trigger more direct Russian support. It could also spark an uprising in Kosovo or Vodjvodina provinces that could trigger the wider war we seek to avoid.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Strike, No Lift

This option, also considered in late 1992, is gaining supporters outside government once again for different reasons. This approach would seek to "level the playing field" by targeting BSA heavy weapons and other military targets. Once UNPROFOR was out, it could be accomplished without fear of hostage taking. Forward air controllers would be required, but it might be possible to train Bosnian government forces to perform that function for NATO forces. Most military assessments have concluded that air strikes alone would be insufficient to save the enclaves and break a siege of Sarajevo. However, air strikes might be successful in achieving other, less demanding goals at the negotiating table.

Humanitarian Relief: Over to the Bosnians

PRM's paper explains in great detail how the withdrawal of UNPROFOR would disrupt relief efforts by international organizations. However, we need to explore the feasibility of turning over management and delivery of relief efforts to the Bosnian government. Our provision of security assistance might free resources and personnel for such efforts and the Bosnians could operate without current restrictions on UN and international agencies. Also, if we can hold the Federation together, these regions and Croatia could remain secure supply bases.

Assessing/Managing the Russian Reaction

In Moscow's fractious political environment, an expanded U.S.-NATO role in Bosnia would appear at first glance to be a tempting target either for Yeltsin's opponents or for Yeltsin himself and others eager to posture in defense of Russian national interests in the run up to parliamentary and presidential elections. While some support to the Serbs and pointed criticism of U.S. moves would be inevitable, the overall impact on elite and popular sentiment may be more manageable and less explosive than generally predicted.

How Strong is Pan-Slavism?

U.S. and Russian polling data routinely highlight the absence of any significant popular Russian support for Serbia or its agenda in the Balkans. Despite constant Russian (and Western) assertions to the contrary, the Russian view of Serbia corresponds roughly with attitudes toward Poland or Turkey (i.e., these states are seen as mildly friendly to Russia at best). Like most foreign policy issues, events in a post-UNPROFOR Bosnia would resonate faintly with a Russian electorate preoccupied with day-to-day socioeconomic concerns. Politicians from across the political spectrum would find it difficult to rouse average Russians out of their indifference or to stir up serious opposition to the Yeltsin government for its reactions to U.S.-NATO policy.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Moscow has been actively working to retain and expand its political influence in the Balkans (including with Greece) and clearly does not want to be marginalized by Western decisions on Bosnia. But a confrontation with the West over efforts to save the rump Bosnia would not necessarily advance those interests. Moreover, such an stance would also be perceived as anti-Muslim and therefore do damage to Moscow's warming relations with Iran and other Islamic states.

Russia's strategic interests in the Balkans, despite Zhirinovsky's rhetoric, are far from evident to the average Russian. Given the lingering outrage over the war in Chechnya -- much closer to home -- Moscow would have a hard time justifying direct military involvement in Serbia, even advisors/trainers, to the Russian public.

The Duma has gone on record as favoring military support to the Serbs if the arms embargo on Bosnia is lifted. But Russian arms sales now generally operate on a cash basis. It is not clear that Russia has either the resources or the political motivation to provide significant amounts of military assistance on credit to a bankrupt Serbia. The possibility of non-official Russian support to the Serbs, in the form of volunteers and arms, is a real possibility, but the magnitude of such support seems unlikely to be decisive.

Managing Russian Elite Perceptions

To be sure, the Moscow-based elite is likely to bristle at a more muscular U.S.-NATO posture in Bosnia. Although most foreign policy circles have embraced great power rhetoric and bluster on many high-profile issues, there is little fire in the belly left for the Balkans. The elite's Bosnia anxieties reached their high-water mark more than a year ago and were sparked largely by the April 1994 airstrikes around Sarajevo. This growing Bosnia fatigue has also been fed by the actions of the Bosnian Serbs on the ground and by Moscow's high-profile diplomatic forays -- and failures -- in the region, the Contact Group, and the UNSC. Churkin's unproductive visit and gloomy assessment are another example of this frustration.

The steady downgrading of Russian efforts in the Balkans also is linked implicitly to the Russian elite's growing preoccupation with NATO expansion. While Yeltsin and Kozyrev would still be the key players in how the Russian internal debate on post-UNPROFOR Bosnia develops, they will need a clear understanding of the potential costs of opposing international consensus on this issue. Given the Russian leadership's overriding stake in trying to hold the line on NATO expansion and repairing the damage caused by Chechnya, we can expect that Moscow will be far less inclined to fan a new round of crisis in relations with the U.S. and its Allies over Bosnia.

Still, it will be particularly important for the U.S. to engage directly with Russian officials early and try to influence elite opinion as our overall direction becomes clearer. In addition to giving Russian officials a sense of engagement in the development of policy, we should also look at face-savers that would make it easier for Moscow to abstain from a UNSC vote on lifting the arms embargo. For example, we could advance a UNSC resolution that would lift the arms embargo on all the Yugoslav successor states. This would have little practical impact on Serbia's military potential.

Shifting Alignments

In the post-UNPROFOR environment, we would likely have to deal with shifting alignments among Contact Group members. While Germany and the UK would probably be supportive of efforts to isolate Serbia, one can imagine Russo-French resistance to this tack and even collusion to cut deals with Belgrade and Pale. The EU's Common Foreign and Security Policy would offer countervaling pressures that might limit the depth of such fissures. But maintaining even the limited degree of Western unity we have today would be difficult as old biases and differing geopolitical interests became more pronounced.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Principals' July 14 Conclusions on Bosnia

Response to Fall of Srebrenica: Principals agreed we should not be seen as saying "no" to the French on efforts to make UNPROFOR more robust or their specific proposal to reinforce Gorazde. But we must find ways to turn the discussion to options that are militarily feasible without falling into the trap of either having to put forces in on the ground or be blamed for the failure of UNPROFOR. The immediate decision is to send General Shali to London to meet on Sunday with his French and British counterparts for the purpose of reviewing the military options being considered in the aftermath of Srebrenica. Shali will raise a series of issues about the French Gorazde option (including U.S. helicopter lift to Gorazde), designed to focus the discussion on what is realistic from a military standpoint:

- the need to ensure the mission makes sense and that the Bosnian government will mount an active defense where UNPROFOR makes its stand;
- the need for preemptive suppression of enemy air defenses (SEAD) to support an UNPROFOR stand either at Gorazde or Sarajevo;
- the need to eliminate the dual key in enforcing the heavy weapons exclusion zone around Gorazde (and Sarajevo) to bolster the more robust posture on the ground;
- the need for UNPROFOR to act as though under Chapter VII provisions throughout Bosnia to reduce the likelihood of additional hostages being taken in response to tough UNPROFOR action in Gorazde;
- the fact that it will take 10-14 days for a U.S. helicopter lift package to be in place and ready to assist with French redeployments;
- the need for UNPROFOR troops assisting in the defense of Gorazde to be effectively integrated with and supported by Bosnian government forces who would bear the primary responsibility for active defense of the enclave;

- ensuring a clear line of NATO command and control exists for any U.S. lift and/or logistical support;
- a commitment from the French that if we assist in redeployment of their forces to provide a more robust UNPROFOR posture, they will not turn around and withdraw from UNPROFOR anyway; and
- a clear signal any U.S. assistance is a one-time deal that implies neither any commitment of U.S. ground forces nor willingness to engage in a similar operation again.

Shali will return with the answers to these questions before a decision on providing helicopter lift to Gorazde is made.

Principals agreed that if UNPROFOR is to make a stand at Gorazde, it would be a decision for Sarajevo, London, Paris and Kiev to make. We would not seek to drive such a choice if they are not willing to implement it. We will, however, signal to allies at the meeting in London this weekend that we believe such a decision would require robust use of air power and that we stand ready to provide it in conjunction with a NATO effort to restore air supremacy over Bosnia.

It was agreed that, in the end, Sarajevo is more important to a successful UNPROFOR strategy than Gorazde. Principals agreed that we should not only support using the RRF to open a secure land route, but measures to enable UNPROFOR to counter Serb artillery attacks on the city. The JCS will develop a list of equipment deemed essential to the protection of Sarajevo, such as advanced counter-battery artillery systems, that could be provided as part of our planned $50 million in drawdown contributions to the RRF.

Principals determined that the risk of the Serbs taking more hostages would dramatically increase if UNPROFOR adopted a more robust policy of actively defending the remaining enclaves, and therefore, it would be necessary for the UNMO missions to be withdrawn from Serb-controlled territory.

Dole Resolution on Lift: All of us agreed that, as a strategy for opposing the unilateral lift bill being put forward by Bob Dole, we should encourage efforts to amend the language in order to remove the most onerous provisions of the legislation but serve notice that even with amendments, a requirement that the U.S. would unilaterally violate binding UNSC resolutions would be subject to your veto. Secretary Perry will take the lead in approaching Senator Nunn to seek his assistance in getting amendments to:

- extend the time allowed before lift would take effect from 12 weeks to the 22 weeks necessary to implement OPLAN 40104;

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- link any requirement for lifting the arms embargo to its likely consequences by including Congressional authorization for U.S. participation in a NATO-led withdrawal operation;
- ensure the trigger for implementation of lift is not just a request from the Bosnian government but rather a decision by the UN Security Council; and
- change unilateral lift to multilateral lift.

Secretary Perry will make clear to Senator Nunn that, even if he succeeds on the first three points, the bill will be subject to your veto as long as it still mandated unilateral lift. However, in the event that a veto is overridden, his assistance in gaining the amendments we seek could be instrumental in saving the lives of UNPROFOR troops and the NATO soldiers, including U.S., helping to extract UNPROFOR should the lift bill trigger withdrawal -- as the French have assured us it will.

Negotiations with Milosevic: Finally, we received word of a new agreement EU mediator Carl Bildt is close to concluding with Milosevic to obtain a mutual recognition package between Bosnia and Serbia. The deal would go too far in restricting our ability to reimpose sanctions if Milosevic did not live up to his commitment to seal the border. (It would require a majority among either the five Contact Group members or the five UNSC Permanent members to reimpose sanctions after 9 months, thus giving the Russians, British and French the ability to block.) Ambassador Frasure will meet with Bildt next week to explain our reservations.

Summary of Conclusions

NATO Air Strikes Decision: Principals were informed by the CJCS that while the NAC had just approved extension of the Gorazde decision to the other safe areas (Sarajevo, Bihac, Tuzla), many problems were still unresolved regarding implementation of this and the earlier Gorazde decision. In particular, the UN commander had not yet agreed to a large Zone of Action around Gorazde nor to the definition of the Zone of Action for the other safe areas. Principals recommended Presidential letters to Major and Chirac on this issue (Action: JCS/State) as well as follow up at the UN by USUN. (S)

Bildt-Milosevic Package: Principals agreed we needed to improve the terms of the package negotiated by EU mediator Bildt with Serbian President Milosevic on sanctions relief and mutual recognition. In particular, they agreed we should tie implementation of any new sanctions relief to positive Bosnian Serb actions (de-escalation around the safe areas and agreement to begin new peace negotiations on the basis of the Contact Group plan). Principals acknowledged that we were unlikely to come to closure with Milosevic any time soon and that we should seek to minimize frictions with our Allies in the August 2 meetings with Bildt and Contact Group representatives. They tasked the Deputies to finalize agreement on the U.S. position on the basis of the NSC paper "Bildt Plus" (Action: NSC). (S)

Croatia: Principals noted the likelihood of a large-scale Croatian assault on the Krajina (Sectors North and South) in the coming days, barring Krajina Serb capitulation to President Tudjman's ultimatum on acceptance of the Croatian constitution. They agreed we should continue to warn Tudjman of the dangers of precipitating FRY intervention and stressed the urgency of developing a strategy for containing the spread of the conflict. (S)

Longer-Term Strategy: Principals agreed we needed to look beyond the immediate crises and decide where we want to be in the longer term. Each agency will complete its recommendations by Thursday on the "end state" we should seek to establish if a political settlement cannot be achieved in the near term and if UNPROFOR withdrawal becomes unavoidable. Recommendations to the President should be completed by August 4, as a basis for decisions on a possible U.S. diplomatic initiative. (S)

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE

FROM: ALEXANDER VERSHBOW

SUBJECT: Principals Committee Meeting on Bosnia and Croatia, August 1, 2:30-4:00 p.m.

I. NAC decision to extend Gorazde air campaign to Bihac and other safe areas: Status and Strategy

The NAC is meeting today. The four key allies met yesterday and this morning with Willy Claes to hammer out a draft decision sheet which would clearly extend the Gorazde decision to Bihac and the other safe areas (Tab B). The paper states the obvious fact that the specific application would have to be tailored to the circumstances in each safe area.

At JCS insistence, we have instructed Hunter to amend the decision sheet to make clear that, in the case of Bihac, limited use of air power (options 1 and 2 targets) may be of limited effectiveness, and that it could be necessary to move quickly to country-wide bombing (option 3). This is true in military terms, but will be hard to sell to the British, Germans and other allies. You should ask for a status report on the NAC, and then ask Shali to explain the JCS position on Option 3. Politically, we should not let this issue of implementation -- important as it is -- to delay the taking of a political decision to extend the authority for massive air strikes to Bihac.

UNSC ?

II. Response to Bildt-Milosevic package

Ask State to introduce the subject. All agencies now support Option 1, "Bildt Plus," in the NSC paper (Tab C). State will likely argue for the fallback listed at the bottom of page 1 -- i.e. not demand that Milosevic deliver the Bosnian Serbs to the table at the outset, but give him a deadline to do so (the end of the 100-120 day grace period), after which sanctions would automatically be reimposed. We can go along with this - although it could run counter to your desire to achieve even faster progress toward a settlement.

Peter Tarnoff yesterday suggested a Presidential letter to Contact Group allies foreshadowing our position on the eve of Bildt's talks in Washington tomorrow. State's draft (Tab D) is very good, but we don't think this is necessary. The President's letter to Major and phone call to Yeltsin already served this purpose, and a similar message to Kohl was sent this morning. Only Chirac hasn't heard from us. (FYI: Kohl received Bildt yesterday and apparently did not agree to endorse Bildt's package in full.)

A key issue is to develop the set of verifiable criteria of Serbian performance that would be the basis of the side understanding with the UK and France by which we could accept the five-nation review mechanism. State and OVP should be tasked with developing the criteria before tomorrow's meetings with Bildt and the UK/French/German representatives. JCS may press to raise the bar even further with Milosevic by including require-ments that he accept observers at military bases and supply depots, end all communications between the VJ and BSA, etc. While worthy, these ideas may overload the circuits with the Allies.

Finally, we have to decide how to deal with the Bosnian Government. Sacirbey has now written a letter making official their rejection of the Bildt package as it now stands. The Bosnians have, in fact, lost interest in mutual recognition, but are still interested in border closure. We believe our Bildt Plus approach would be supported by the Bosnians, but Sacirbey's letter makes it doubly important that Bildt work with Sarajevo before re-engaging with Milosevic.

III. Croatia -- Situation and Strategy

Ask CIA and State to provide the latest on the situation on the ground and diplomatically. Galbraith met Tudjman this morning and made clear the big offensive is likely within a few days; intelligence corroborates this. The Croats plan to lay down an ultimatum to the Krajina Serbs in the Geneva talks today -- open the pipeline and rail links through the Krajina and agree to the application of the Croatian constitution -- or else. Galbraith is going to Belgrade to meet with Krajina Serb FM Babic to urge that they open the pipeline and rail line immediately if they want to avoid a full-scale war.

The key issue for the meeting is to straighten out our policy line vis-à-vis the Croatians and to develop a containment strategy (on the assumption that prevention is neither feasible nor desirable). Yesterday's "go get 'em" message by State to Zuzul may have some merit in strategic terms, but was so un-nuanced as to incite reckless behavior by the Croatians. Moreover, we need to be able to tell Allies and Russians that we have counseled restraint.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

You might task State with a strategy for containing the spread of the fighting and deterring FRY intervention if Tudjman proceeds with his offensive.

IV. Longer-Term Strategy

State and OSD are drafting their options. JCS has sent us some input on lift, train and strike (Tab E) that they hope will be factored into our paper, but it is not clear they will do their own option.

You should lay out where you want to go in terms of another PC on the substance and a memo to the President with recommendations.

V. Unilateral Lift Legislation

If time permits, you may want to review strategy following today's House vote on unilateral lift, including the timing of a veto.

Options for Responding to the Bildt-Milosevic package

In an informal meeting July 31, Deputies agreed that we should respond to European pressure to endorse the Bildt-Milosevic package in a way that keeps the diplomatic process moving forward while protecting our key interests. Two options were considered:

Option 1: Bildt Plus: Broaden the package to obtain positive steps by the Bosnian Serbs toward de-escalation and initiation of peace negotiations as the precondition for implementing new sanctions relief for the FRY, along with improvements to the terms of the package.

Concept: In light of Yeltsin's claim that Kozyrev secured commitments by Mladic on the safe areas and an offer for a ceasefire leading to new peace talks on the basis of the Contact Group plan, we might have the makings of a "package deal" for renewed peace talks that could be presented to Contact Group partners as a broadening of the Bildt-Milosevic package. (This would, of course, need to be discussed first with the Bosnians.) The elements would be:

A. Mutual recognition between the FRY and Bosnia and measures to close the border along the lines of the Bildt package, but modified to remedy the most serious flaws:

-- Serious commitment to seal the border and cut off all military support to the Bosnian Serbs, backed up by the deployment of 400-500 monitors.

-- A sanctions reimposition mechanism based on the idea of a five-nation review panel, but modified as follows:

- participants would be the five Contact Group members rather than the UNSC Perm Five;
- if the suspension period is to be of indefinite duration, then we would have to have a shorter grace period (e.g. 100 or 120 days) as opposed to 9 months; and
- we would need to have a private side-understanding with the UK and France guaranteeing that they would vote to reimpose sanctions if we presented evidence that Milosevic had failed to meet any of a set of criteria that would be specifically agreed in advance by London and Paris;[1]

B. Implementation of the sanctions suspension would be delayed until:

- The Bosnian Serbs have halted offensive action against all the safe areas and opened supply routes (as agreed at the July 26 Contact Group meeting); and
- The Bosnian Serbs have agreed to a country-wide 6-month ceasefire in tandem with agreement to begin talks on territorial and constitutional issues using the Contact Group plan as the starting point, but with both sides free to propose changes.
- As a fallback to the latter condition: That the Bosnian Serbs agree to the ceasefire and initiation of negotiations by the end of the grace period cited above.

[1] We would need to develop a list of verifiable criteria to minimize the risk of disagreements over the significance of intelligence data --e.g. no tampering with physical barriers to seal off all but a handful of permitted border crossings; shut down all telecommunications and air-traffic-control links; etc.

In selling this approach to our Allies, we would point out that, if successful, it would reduce the likelihood that NATO would have to implement the decisive air strikes we have already threatened for the defense of Gorazde as well as similar action to protect Bihac and the other safe areas. (We would make clear, however, that there should be no perception of backing away from the commitment to implement the Gorazde decision, and that we believe our negotiating leverage would be enhanced by immediate extension of that decision to Bihac, Tuzla and Sarajevo.)

Analysis: This option would deny Milosevic the rewards of the Bildt package until he has obtained a down payment of positive performance from the Bosnian Serbs. We would thereby have a more defensible basis on which to justify new sanctions relief to Milosevic in the wake of Srebrenica and Zepa, and gain a 6-month window of opportunity for obtaining a final peace settlement. Given the additional "deliverables" required of Milosevic, we could, perhaps, sweeten the pot by suspending more sanctions, as long as we obtained satisfaction on the sanctions reimposition formula. We would be following Kohl's recommendation to the President to "put Milosevic to the test," and testing Yeltsin's claim that Mladic is ready to exercise restraint and negotiate on the basis of the Contact Group plan even if Karadzic is not. We would be building on our Contact Group partners' proposal at the July 26 meeting in London to tie implementation of the Bildt package to Bosnian Serb de-escalation measures on the ground.

The fallback position mentioned under "B" may prove necessary to overcome Contact Group resistance. It may, in fact, be required to gain Milosevic's agreement if he argues that he needs the political cover of substantial sanctions suspension before he can exert real pressure on the Pale leadership to agree to negotiations that use the Contact Group plan as the starting point.

Option 2: Improved Bildt: Seek improvements to the package without tying it to Bosnian Serb actions.

Concept: This option would seek the improvements to the Bildt-Milosevic package listed under "A" above, but without linking implementation of sanctions relief to Bosnian Serb de-escalation or agreement to new peace talks. It would be based on the assumption that our Contact Group partners would reject the linkage and use any such proposal as grounds for charging the U.S. with seeking to torpedo the negotiating track , which they could use as a pretext to withdraw UNPROFOR this year. It reflects the further assumption that, with or without the modifications proposed above, Milosevic is unlikely to come to closure with Bildt, and that therefore there is no need to worry about the defensibility of providing additional sanctions relief.

Analysis: If the above assumptions are correct, then this is the lowest-risk course, ensuring that we maintain Contact Group unity and deny the Allies the ability to charge us with bad faith. If the assumptions are not correct, however, it would put us in a position of having to suspend additional sanctions without any Bosnian Serb down payment, and it would forfeit the opportunity to use the latest developments on the ground to restart negotiations between the parties that could lead to a political settlement over the next six months.

As you are aware, Carl Bildt arrives in Washington Wednesday to discuss his efforts to negotiate a package which would give sanctions relief to Milosevic in return for recognition of Bosnia and agreement to tighten the closing of the border. His visit will be an important opportunity to advance the peace process, and I wanted to take this occasion to preview some of our thinking on the issues.

I am hopeful that the work Carl Bildt has done could prove to be the catalytic agent that brings the war to a negotiated conclusion. It is therefore vital that we approach his package with the utmost care, understanding that it may be our last best chance to move toward a settlement.

Much has happened in Bosnia since Ambassador Frasure first began to discuss with Milosevic partial sanctions suspension in return for recognition and closing of the border. The brutal Bosnian Serb assaults on Srebrenica and Zepa, the continued problems of humanitarian supply for Sarajevo and other safe areas, and the dangerous fighting around Bihac have dramatically increased the risks of much wider war. In my opinion, we can no longer afford to simply grant Milosevic sanctions relief hoping that, over time, he will bring what influence he has to bear on the Bosnian Serbs. Instead, it is important that any sanctions suspension package have a near-term impact on the situation on the ground.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Recent statements by various Serb leaders, including statements reported by Foreign Minister Kozyrev, suggest an appropriate way to continue on the path developed by Carl Bildt. According to Kozyrev, Milosevic and Mladic indicated a willingness to halt all offensive action against safe areas, open supply routes, and agree to a country-wide cease-fire. In turn, the cease-fire would be linked to agreement to begin talks on territorial and constitutional issues accepting the Contact Group plan as the starting point, but with both sides free to propose changes, taken together. This would insur that any agreement on these elements would substantially enhance the value of the package negotiated by Mr. Bildt.

At present, the package itself still has some problems, not the least of which is the fact that in its current form it is unacceptable to the Bosnian government (whose country it is desined to stabilize), and also to Croatia. In this regard, I was pleased to learn that Bildt had visited Sarajevo the day after the July 26 Contact Group to discuss the package with President Izetbegovic, especially the issue of sealing the border, which is essential to gain Bosnian government support for the proposals. In my view, Bildt and others should continue to engage with the Bosnian government in order to increase the chances for achieving a negotiations package that is acceptable to President Izetbegovic.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

I still have some specific concerns about other aspects of the plan which Bildt and Milosevic had agreed on. The current package proposes that a five-nation review panel is named to consider sanctions reimposition. I believe that the five nations should be the Contact Group rather than the Perm Five. The package also proposes a nine month grace period during which sanctions could not be reimposed. While I understand the need for an initial grace period, I would prefer that it be in the range of 100-120 days as opposed to nine months. Finally, it is important that we reach a prior understanding with you (as a potential member of the five nation panel) that should we develop credible evidence implicating Milosevic in border violations, or other violations of his commitments under the proposal, that you would agree with us on the need to reimpose sanctions.

Obviously, there is a great deal of further discussion which our resepctive teams will need to pursue this week.

I want you to know, however, that I am determined to have the U.S. work cooperatively with Carl Bildt and with all of the Contact Group governments in an effort to advance the cause of peace through negotiations.

Lift of Bosnian Arms Embargo

The objective of lifting the embargo on the Bosnian Government forces would be to enable them to defend their core areas and regain some territory lost in the conflict. Initially, improved small arms, anti-tank , counter-battery and additional heavy weapons, and trucks are high priority items for the Bosnians.

We believe the Bosnian Government will have resources available to bring in substantial weaponry over a six month period without our active involvement. We estimate any substantial change in capabilities will require at least six months due to Bosnian organizational problems and inadequacies in Bosnian logistics and the requirements to distribute weapons and support throughout the Bosnian army.

Implications of this lift policy include:

-- Defensive capability would progressively strengthen, but offensive capability will fall short of that required to offset Serbian advantages in heavy weapons, intelligence, airpower, electronic warfare, and command and control.

-- Croatians would exact a heavy price on the Bosnians for permitting the armament and would inevitably prevent, absent active US support, heavy weaponry from augmenting the Bosnian force.

-- During the six month build up, BSA would receive rapid reinforcement from Serbia which would largely offset improvements shown by the Bosnians.

-- The net effect: would be a higher level of intensity of fighting with a virtually unchanged military balance.

-- US Allies would keep pressure to bear to restrain our activities in DENY FLIGHT, SHARP GUARD, and to provide any overt assistance.

-- Russia would provide overt assistance to Serbia, some of which will flow into Bosnia.

-- The radical Muslim presence would be considerably strengthened inside Bosnia.

Overall, lifting the arms embargo is more likely to precipitate a Bosnian defeat than a successful effort to restore legitimate territorial boundaries.

Training the Bosnians

US forces would conduct training to enhance Bosnian military capabilities to counter Serbian strengths in armor and artillery.

Training would be conducted outside of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Training in advanced infantry/"Ranger Type" skills are envisioned. Arms that require little to no training can be employed upon delivery; training in command and control and for specific arms to offset deficiencies in armor and artillery will require specialized skill training to counter Serbian strengths.

Initial assessment and preparation phase would take one month. To stabilize the situation, increasing weapons density and increasing individual and small unit capabilities, along with specialized skill training in heavy weapons will take at least two months. To improve the military posture, including collective training, battalion staff training, and continued special skill training will take at least four additional months.

US training contingent would consist of a Special Forces Group, which includes specialized Mobile Training Teams and associated Combat Support and Combat Service Support personnel. Approximately 2000 personnel at an approximate cost of $19 million would be required.

Command and control, leadership, communications, and other battlefield systems would require extensive training time. It would be particularly difficult to make personnel available for training at a time when fighting is likely to be increasing.

To counter USG and other support to the Bosnian military the Serbs would likely garner additional support from Serbia and Russia.

Training would be a stop gap measure that would provide the Bosnian Army with some enhanced capabilities. Those capabilities would not seriously begin to approach the capability of the Bosnian Serb Army, especially in the vital battlefield systems of command and control, logistics, intelligence, and integrated air defense. It would take an enormous amount of time to build a Bosnian military force that could significantly affect the tactical or strategic military balance.

Air Support to Bosnia

This paper assumes that air support will be provided following a UNPF withdrawal to assist Bosnian defense of their core areas without the benefit of Forward Air Controllers (FACs) on the ground.

The air power required to implement this policy is available in theater now and is sustainable provided effective Suppression of Enemy Defenses (SEAD) is conducted and sustained throughout the air operation.

If so directed, air forces can attack to degrade Serb command and control and artillery and impede movement of Serb units, reinforcements, and supplies. However, without ground FACs, air power is likely unable to decisively affect close engagements, offensive or defensive, fought by Bosnian Army.

Wide spread use of airpower for a prolonged period of time will likely invite Serbian and possibly Russian assistance, overt or covert, to strengthen protection against air activity. This assistance could include provision of more capable Surface-to-Air Missile systems, sophisticated electronic equipment to offset US jamming/electronic warfare systems, and increased efforts at camouflage/concealment. Of course this would be accompanied by diplomatic, moral, and public pressure against our use of air power to include exploiting collateral damage.

While this use of air power may raise the costs to the Serbs it is unlikely to be decisive in defeating their force absent strong military action by the Bosnian Government.

It would unmistakably mark the US as a combatant in the operation, and if done unilaterally, would impose additional severe strains on NATO. It would also require us to forego basing in Italy, and require us to develop bases elsewhere in the Balkans or use only Carrier-based assets.

Overall use of air power is a stop gap, temporary measure which could raise Bosnian morale and set back Serb planning and logistics. However, the use of air power is unlikely to decisively effect the outcome on the ground and would most likely provoke a more determined aggression by Serbia.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals met August 15 to review the diplomatic state of play and discuss next steps on Kosovo.

2. Tony Lake provided a read-out of his trip to European capitals, noting that all governments were broadly supportive of our initiatives and in agreement that a diplomatic solution needed to be reached in the next several weeks. After the completion of the Holbrooke mission, we would consider next steps, which might include a more inclusive Contact Group meeting in Geneva at the end of the week. Proposals for informal working groups on military implementation and economic reconstruction needed to be fleshed out, with the EU taking the lead on the latter

3. Secretary Perry and General Shalikashvili noted that DoD was working on a paper on NATO implementation, which would be discussed by Deputies August 18. Once ideas on the mission and mandate for the post-settlement implementation force were fleshed out, details of troop numbers could be worked out more easily.

4. On the issue of Kosovo, Principals agreed that refugee flows should not in and of themselves be treated as a casus belli, but Dick Holbrooke should be instructed to remind Milosevic that we had previously warned him of the consequences of Serb-sparked conflict in the province. State agreed to revise language in a demarche to be used by Holbrooke.

5. On the subject of a Congressional and public strategy, Principals agreed to hold off until after the Holbrooke mission was complete. Lake would, however, brief Allied ambassadors in the next day or so to the broad outlines of his trip, and State could brief non-NATO troop contributors at an appropriate level.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals met August 22 to receive a debrief from Amb. Holbrooke on the recent diplomatic mission to ex-Yugoslav states. Regarding the seven key goals defined in the course of NSA Lake's earlier mission, Principals reached the following conclusions:

a) Comprehensive nature of settlement: We will continue to make this our overarching goal.

b) Three-way mutual recognition: While Milosevic remains opposed to recognizing Croatia, we will continue to pursue this goal. It should not, however, be a prerequisite for a Bosnia settlement.

c) Territorial adjustments: We will retain as an eventual goal a contiguous landmass for the Bosnian Federation and press the case for defensibility with the GoBH. For the time being, however, we will not insist that the GoBH agree to give up Gorazde, so as to avoid intensifying fears we are unconcerned about the possibility of excessive, Croatian territory in Bosnia proper.

d) Constitutional Provisions: Discussions have only begun with the parties.

e) Sanctions Suspension/Relief: We will continue to try to avoid being drawn into discussions of intermediate steps. OVP will finalize its paper on when sanctions suspension (to be granted to Belgrade upon signature of a peace accord) could be turned into sanctions lift. OVP's paper should describe the stage in the settlement implementation process at which full lift would come into being.

f) Sector East: Although Milosevic told Amb. Holbrooke he privately accepted that Eastern Slavonia was part of Croatia, a negotiated solution will be difficult in the near term. At a minimum, we need to initiate a process based on Z-4 principles. We also need to convince Tudjman that UNCRO must remain in place in Sector East. We will continue to refine our strategy on negotiations with the aim of preventing a military confrontation that would draw in the FRY.

g) Economic Reconstruction: Deputies will consider the subject on a priority basis in the course of the meeting on post-settlement implementation scheduled for August 23. At issue are the nature and scope of the assistance program, the size of the U.S. contribution, how to convince Congress the plan deserves support, where the USG contribution will come from, and how much we can expect to see from the Europeans, the Japanese, and moderate Arab states. (S)

2. On the issue of the UK decision to withdraw from Gorazde, Principals decided to avoid attempting to change UK minds at this time. (S)

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals met to review the status of the NATO airstrikes in response to the August 27 Bosnian Serb attack on the Sarajevo marketplace, progress of the U.S. diplomatic initiative, and the recommendations of the Deputies Committee on implementation of a Bosnia peace settlement. They agreed to meet again on Monday, September 11 with the Holbrooke delegation in order to review next steps on the diplomatic front. (S)

NATO Air Strikes

2. Principals agreed that we will support the continuation of NATO airstrikes, as agreed by the UN and NATO Commanders, as long as the Bosnian Serbs have failed to comply with the UN/NATO conditions. This does not rule out tactical pauses in the operation. Principals noted that a decision to move from option 2 to option 3 targeting will require a new NAC decision and further coordination with the United Nations; we will await a recommendation to this effect on the part of the UN and NATO commanders. Principals also agreed that if the Bosnian Serbs retaliate, we will support further escalation by NATO. ~~(S)~~

3. In order to encourage Bosnian Serb compliance with the UN/NATO conditions, Principals agreed that we will continue to stress the need for restraint on the part of Bosnian government forces. We will convey to the Bosnian Serbs through Milosevic and General Janvier that we are making clear to the Bosnian government that we expect that they will not take advantage of the situation. (b)(1)

(b)(1)

U.S. Diplomatic Initiative

4. Principals discussed the progress of the Holbrooke mission and its negotiations with the Bosnians, Croatians, and Serbian President Milosevic. The Friday meeting of the three Balkan Foreign Ministers in Geneva with the Contact Group will likely produce agreement on general principles for a political settlement and FRY recognition of Bosnia. Representation will be at the political director level on the Contact Group side, along with EU negotiator Bildt. It was agreed that State would consult with Ambassador Holbrooke regarding the possible inclusion as observers of Italy, Canada, Spain and Turkey. (It was subsequently agreed that these countries would not be included in the Geneva meeting, but that they would be invited to an expanded Contact Group meeting the following week.) ~~(S)~~

5. Principals agreed that we would not provide any further sanctions relief for the FRY in return for interim steps such as mutual recognition. Principals agreed, however, that we might provide humanitarian assistance to Serbia to support refugees from the Krajina in response to FRY recognition of Bosnia, but that we would not hold out this possibility in advance of the Geneva meeting, and that we would also insist on Bosnian Serb compliance with the UN/NATO conditions in addition to FRY recognition of Bosnia. ~~(S)~~

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

6. Principals approved the approach to sanctions relief outlined in the Deputies Committee's Memorandum for Principals of September 1. OVP noted that we still needed to define what would constitute full implementation of a settlement, which would be the stage at which a full lifting of sanctions would occur, and undertook to product a paper looking at the options for when to lift sanctions (Action: OVP). Principals also noted the importance of maintaining the outer wall of sanctions contingent upon Serbian cooperation with the international War Crimes Tribunal. (S)

Implementation of a Peace Settlement

7. Principals approved the concept for military implementation of peace plan as set forth in the OSD paper. They agreed that the interagency working group would coordinate on a proposed draft NAC decision sheet that could form the basis for tasking to the NATO military authorities. They noted that initial consultations would begin the following day with key allies, to be followed by discussions with all allies in Brussels. (S)

8. Principals agreed that the exit strategy summarized in the Deputies Committee Memorandum should be clarified to state that the peace implementation force (IFOR) will withdraw when the Bosnian Federation is capable of defending itself, but in any case no later than 12 months from its initial deployment. Principals agreed on the urgency of developing a U.S. position on the political framework for implementation of a settlement and requested that Deputies discuss this on a priority basis. (Action: State to circulate paper for Deputies discussion). (S)

9. Principals agreed on the importance of early engagement with the Russians on peace plan implementation, noting reports that in Chancellor Kohl's meetings with Yeltsin, the Russians had objected to NATO being in charge of the operation. They agreed that the Deputies should urgently review the modalities of a NATO-plus operation as a basis for engaging with the Russians. (Action: OSD to circulate paper for Deputies discussion.) (S)

Equipping and Training for Federation Forces

10. Principals reviewed the concept for equipping and training Federation armed forces in the context of a peace settlement, as set forth in the JCS paper. While they concurred in the recommendation that the U.S. take the lead in coordinating a multinational effort to equip and train Federation forces, they agreed that it may be preferable for the U.S. to play a more modest role in the actual equip/train effort, providing a small level of military assistance and training while leaving other states to provide the bulk of Bosnian needs. Principals agreed we should continue to seek to exclude radical states like Iran from equipping and training the Bosnians by making our own support conditional on such exclusion. (S)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

11. Principals recognized that the equip and train concept will be especially controversial with allies and the Russians, and agreed that further work on arms control options should be accelerated with a view to avoiding a regional arms race, recognizing that such measures may be difficult to negotiate among the parties (Action: State to circulate paper for Deputies discussion). (S)

12. Principals agreed that there were many other issues that could affect our approach to the equip/train issue, and agreed that an interagency task force chaired by the Department of State should be established to address such issues as procurement, recruitment of donors, and modalities of lifting the arms embargo. They also agreed that consultations with key allies should begin through Defense Ministry channels, in coordination with the State-led task force. Principals agreed in principle that an assessment team could make a low-key informal visit to Sarajevo to consult on Federation requirements. They noted that there were potential legal problems involved in an equip/train effort, giving that our assistance would likely go to the Federation rather than to the central government of the future Bosnian union. (Actions: To be determined after follow-up discussion by Deputies). (S)

Economic Recommendation

13. Principals briefly reviewed the progress of ongoing consultations with the European Union on post-war economic reconstruction. They agreed on the need for an expanded State concept paper following the return of the U.S. delegation from Europe (Action: State). (S)

Congressional Consultations/Funding

14. Principals agreed on immediate Congressional consultations on Bosnia, encompassing NATO airstrikes, the U.S. diplomatic initiative and U.S. planning for implementation of a peace settlement. They endorsed a briefing of the full Senate the following day by a senior interagency team, to be followed by similar briefings for House committees on September 7. They also agreed that, in light of expected Congressional questions about funding for various peace implementation efforts, options should be developed for financing peace plan implementation, equipping and training Federation forces, and U.S. contribution to post-war economic reconstruction for the Balkans (Action: OMB). (S)

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals, joined by the President for a portion of the meeting, received a briefing by the U.S. negotiating team on the progress of the U.S. diplomatic initiative, including the results of the September 8 meeting of the Foreign Ministers of Bosnia, Croatia and Serbia. They welcomed the significant progress made to date. They agreed that the NATO air strikes in response to the Bosnian Serb bombing of the Sarajevo marketplace had thus far given added impetus to the negotiations. While we would not rule out tactical pauses in the bombing, Principals reaffirmed the importance of continuing to demand full Bosnian Serb compliance with the UN/NATO conditions. (C)

2. Principals agreed that, in light of Serbian President Milosevic's support for the peace process to date, the U.S. should support a 180-day extension of phase-one sanctions relief for the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia prior to the expiration of the current suspension on September 18. At the same time, they reaffirmed their previous decision that no other sanctions would be suspended until a Bosnia peace settlement had been signed. (Action: USUN) (C)

3. Principals noted that, if further diplomatic progress were made toward a Bosnia settlement, a decision would be needed soon on the timing and venue of an international conference, with the participation of the three Balkan Presidents, to resolve the most contentious issues. (S)

4. Principals agreed that, given Italy's importance to the conduct of military operations in Bosnia both now and following a settlement, the U.S. should make a renewed effort to involve the Italians more closely in consultations on our diplomatic efforts. While we would not reopen the agreement among Contact Group members that the next two Contact Group meetings (in Geneva and Moscow) be restricted to the original five members plus EU negotiator Bildt, we would urge that the subsequent expanded meeting in Rome become the model for all further consultative meetings. We should favor the most inclusive participation possible, including other Allies (especially Canada and Spain) as well as representatives of the OIC. (Action: State) (C)

INFORMATION

September 11, 1995

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Drop-by at the September 11 Principals Meeting on Bosnia

You have agreed to stop by the Principals Meeting, thank Dick Holbrooke and his team for their efforts, hear a report on where we stand and what we need to accomplish next, and perhaps discuss the NATO air campaign. You could stay in the meeting for as little as ten minutes or as long as your schedule allows.

Diplomatic Initiative

Geneva Results: Friday's gathering in Geneva of the foreign ministers of Bosnia, Croatia and Serbia with Contact Group representatives produced agreement on "Basic Principles" of a settlement in Bosnia, including: preservation of Bosnia-Herzegovina as a single state within its present borders; the 51:49 parameter as the basis for the territorial division between the Federation and the Serb Republic, but with adjustments possible by mutual agreement; rights for both entities to establish "parallel special relationships" with Croatia and Serbia consistent with the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Bosnia-Herzegovina; and agreement in principle on mechanisms for dealing with displaced persons, human rights abuses and dispute resolution.

DECLASSIFIED PER E.O. 13526 NSC 9/30/14

The preservation of Bosnia as a single state represents an important concession on the part of the Bosnian Serbs, who were present at the meeting but operating under Belgrade's proxy. Bosnian Government agreement to the term "Republika Srpska," on the other hand, confers a degree of legitimacy on the Bosnian Serbs that Sarajevo has been reluctant to grant. Additionally significant is the fact that ranking Serbian leaders met for the first time with Bosnian government officials and agreed to statements that come close to recognition of Bosnia.

DECLASSIFIED PER E.O. 13526 (c,g,8) 2022/9/2 NW-2690-319

Next Steps in Negotiations: Still, the Geneva meeting was important largely for political and symbolic reasons. Many questions remain to be resolved before we have a full-fledged peace agreement. Territorial bargaining has just begun, and negotiations promise to be contentious. Members of Holbrooke's

~~SECRET~~ cc: Vice President
Declassify on: OADR Chief of Staff

team will be meeting with DOD's mapping experts today to help firm up our own ideas, especially regarding Sarajevo, the Posavina corridor, the Livno Valley corridor to Bihac and the corridor to Gorazde.

In addition to territorial questions, we still have to determine how the constitutional framework, which will link the Federation with the Bosnian Serb republic and specify arrangements with Serbia and Croatia proper, should be handled by our negotiators. Holbrooke may also raise sanctions and the possibility of some early reward for Milosevic prior to signature of a peace agreement. Our new initiative has been premised on no further sanctions relief for interim steps such as mutual recognition.

End-game Conference Possibilities: The Holbrooke team will travel to Geneva mid-week for a Contact Group meeting, followed by another intensive round with the parties. Holbrooke may express views on the need to move fairly soon from shuttle diplomacy to an "endgame" conference, perhaps involving the presidents of the three sides and Contact Group foreign ministers. This could occur in the U.S. at a nearby site such as Williamsburg, which would allow for pep-talks from the Vice President or from you, if necessary. The conference could move to Washington for a final Summit and signing ceremony if all went well.

Next Steps on Air strikes:

As the diplomatic process moves forward, we need to review the bidding on the NATO/UN retaliatory campaign, which as you know continued over the weekend to include Tomahawk missile strikes. Per our discussion last Thursday, we have continued to support the strikes until the Bosnian Serbs comply with the UN/NATO conditions. We (along with the French and British) have sought to convince them to comply by pressing Izetbegovic for clear assurances that Bosnian Government forces will not take advantage of the air campaign to gain ground around Sarajevo. With Mladic still obdurate, we may want to approach the Bosnian government again and call for concrete measures of restraint, such as a "no offensive action commitment" in and around Sarajevo.

POINTS TO BE MADE FOR DROP-BY AT PRINCIPALS COMMITTEE MEETING ON BOSNIA

Diplomatic Initiative

-- Thanks for your fine efforts over past two weeks.

-- Getting sides to sit down face to face, accept the Geneva principles a real achievement.

-- Know you acutely aware much work remains to be done. Like to hear your views on how to achieve final settlement.

-- What do you expect from sides on territory?

-- What will be critical aspects of negotiations on constitutional framework?

-- (If early sanctions relief for Milosevic is raised) Like to have Principals consider that question before we move.

Next Steps on Air Strikes

-- Are we still satisfied with UN/NATO conditions for ending current air strikes?

-- What effect if we continue campaign; what impact of use of Tomahawks over weekend?

-- How can we encourage restraint by Bosnian government?

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals received a briefing by the U.S. negotiating team on the progress of the U.S. diplomatic initiative since their last meeting on September 11. They welcomed plans to hold a second meeting of the Foreign Ministers of Bosnia, Croatia and Serbia with the Contact Group on September 26 in New York, at which the three parties would likely endorse further agreed principles for a Bosnia settlement. Principals agreed that the New York Foreign Ministers' meeting should be announced by the White House later that day as part of a statement on behalf of the President following his telephone briefing by Secretary Christopher, National Security Advisor Lake and Ambassador Holbrooke. (Action: NSC) (C)

2. Principals noted concerns by the U.S. negotiating team about growing tensions within the Federation and between the Governments of Bosnia and Croatia in the wake of their recent territorial gains in western Bosnia. They agreed that a high-level demarche should be made to Croatian President Tudjman warning of the consequences of his failure to support the Federation. It was subsequently agreed that the President would phone German Chancellor Kohl to urge that he make a similar demarche to Tudjman. (Action: State and NSC) (S)

3. Principals agreed that the recent territorial shifts in western Bosnia may have improved the chances for a settlement. But they agreed that further offensives could jeopardize this progress, especially if they led to large Serb refugee flows, and that we should place renewed emphasis on the need for all parties to show restraint. Principals agreed that we should encourage the Bosnians to consider a limited-duration country-wide cessation of hostilities that would preserve their recent gains while negotiations on a final settlement proceeded. (S)

4. Principals noted that NATO air strikes had had a positive impact on Serb attitudes toward a peace settlement. They agreed that we should make clear that the bombing would resume if the Serbs did not comply with the UN/NATO conditions and that we should press the UN to allow access for Bosnian civilian traffic into Sarajevo in order to test Milosevic's commitment to ensure complete freedom of movement. (Action: State/USUN) (S)

5. Principals agreed it was still premature to take any decision regarding the timing and venue of an international conference. This should be revisited based on the results of the September 26 meeting of the Balkan Foreign Ministers and the next round of shuttle diplomacy by the U.S. negotiating team. (C)

6. Principals reviewed continuing difficulties in persuading our key allies to include the Italians in consultations on the peace process. They agreed we should urge the Italians to organize the expanded Contact Group meeting in Rome that had been discussed previously and that we should also press to include Italy in five-power consultations on military planning for peace plan implementation. (Action: State) (C)

7. Principals received an update from General Shalikashvili on NATO planning for the implementation force (IFOR). They agreed that we would likely want to follow the Haiti model -- i.e., insert a large and heavily-equipped force at the very outset in order to deter non-compliance by the parties but then phase down the force quickly once stable conditions have been established. They agreed in principle that we should be flexible on modalities for linking Russian forces to the IFOR, so long as the single NATO chain of command was preserved, with no UN dual key. (S)

8. Principals agreed that, in light of increased media speculation about peace plan implementation, we needed to step up consultations with the Congress on our overall Bosnia strategy, while seeking to lower expectations of an immediate breakthrough in the negotiations. Calls to key Members should take place at the beginning of the week of September 25, followed by a Presidential meeting with Senate and House leadership. (Action: NSC/State) (S)

FURTHER AGREED PRINCIPLES

4. It is the goal that free democratic elections be held in both entities as soon as social conditions permit. In order to maximize the democratic effectiveness of such elections, the following steps will be taken by both entities.

4.1 Both governments will immediately pledge their full support, starting immediately, for (a) freedom of movement, (b) the right of displaced persons to repossess their property (or receive just compensation), (c) freedom of speech and of the press, and (d) protection of all other internationally recognized human rights that enhance and empower the democratic election process.

4.2 As soon as possible the OSCE (or other international organization) will station representatives in all principal towns throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina and publish monthly reports as to the degree to which (a) displaced persons are being enabled to regain possession of their homes and other property, and (b) social conditions are being restored to a level at which the election process may be effective.

4.3 As soon as the OSCE delegations have concluded that elections can be properly held in both entities, the governments of the two entities will conduct simultaneous elections and will fully cooperate with an international monitoring program.

5. Following the simultaneous elections, Bosnia and Herzegovina will be headed by a three-person Presidency representing the three principal constituent peoples, with each of the three members being elected by the appropriate newly-elected parliamentary body. The office of Chairman and Head of State will be rotated annually among the three members.

5.1 Among the responsibilities of the Presidency will be foreign relations, foreign trade, customs administration, monetary system administration, and such other activities as the parliamentary bodies of the two entities may agree upon as being mutually beneficial (such as, for example, immigration regulation, international criminal enforcement, establishment and operation of common transportation and communications facilities, utilization of energy resources, air traffic control, and cooperative economic projects). The Presidency may appoint a cabinet of appropriate ministers to assist the Presidency in executing its duties.

5.2 All Presidency decisions will be taken by majority vote, provided, however, that if one member disagrees with a decision taken by the other two and declares that decision to be destructive of a vital interest of the entity from which the dissenting member was elected, the matter will be referred immediately to that entity's parliament, which may determine by a two-thirds vote that the challenged decision will not be applicable to that entity.

6. As a result of the elections there will be created a new Parliament of Bosnia and Herzegovina consisting of 36 members, 24 elected by the newly-elected legislature of the Federation and 12 elected by the newly-elected legislature of Republica Srpska. All parliamentary actions will be by majority vote provided that the majority vote includes at least four votes from each entity.

6.1 The legislature will make such laws as it deems appropriate on subjects within the authority of the Presidency, as indicated in Paragraph 5.1.

7. The government of Bosnia and Herzegovina will be financed by the Federation and the Republica Srpska.

IMPLEMENTATION STRUCTURE IN A BOSNIAN SETTLEMENT

The Task

Implementing a settlement in all its political, economic, humanitarian, military and other aspects will require a coordinating superstructure with a clear mandate to make the settlement work, as well as mobilization of a variety of organizations, most already active in the Balkans. The task would be to integrate, coordinate and, to a lesser degree, oversee progress on the various political undertakings of a settlement package and the activities of international organizations and activities involved in different aspects of implementation.

"Peace implementation" will require not only a military component -- through the IFOR to ensure a secure environment within which implementation can go forward -- but also a means of ensuring continued facilitation of political negotiations among the parties, promotion of local conflict resolution and monitoring of human rights, coordination of economic reconstruction, delivery of humanitarian assistance, and monitoring of various confidence-building/arms control measures of increasing scope.

An important aspect, yet to be determined, is the extent of direct involvement of the implementation structure in the internal affairs of the Bosnian state. The Bosnian parties may wish to have the least direct involvement by the implementation structure in some fields (e.g., human rights), and the opposite in others (e.g., reconstruction). The international community will expect the structure, nonetheless, to bring about full implementation. The tension between these various parties will have a bearing on the final settlement.

Mandate

The implementation structure should derive its authority from the settlement documents -- including the approval of all parties of the settlement, rather than from UNSC resolutions. The structure would, thus, have a certain autonomous authority. We should seek UNSC blessing (but not creation of) the structure through appropriate language in a Security Council Resolution acknowledging the actual settlement.

DECLASSIFIED
PER E.O. 13526
VL 2/6/2020 (8.72)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Mission

The mission of the structure will be to coordinate among, rather than to control, the organizations that will play a role in the region after settlement: the NATO-led implementation force (IFOR), EU, ICFY, OSCE, IFIs, UN, UNHCR, ICRC and possibly other NGOs, bilateral players, etc. Some elements might report directly to the Senior Implementation Coordinator (SIC) depending on the terms of the settlement. The implementation structure will serve as a bridge between the international actors and local officials, as appropriate.

Termination

The structure should specifically be maintained as long as required in the view of the Senior Coordination Committee (see below), but in no case less than one year beyond the date of final withdrawal of the IFOR and for a period not to exceed three years.

Funding

The administrative costs (including salaries) of the structure could be funded according to a formula yet to be determined among interested parties. The entity would establish an annual budget for presentation to contributors. Or, less formally, each government or organization contributing resources to the structure could simply pay its own way. The salary of the Senior Implementation Coordinator should be established at the time of the settlement.

Generating International Support

How the United States seeks to define the role, mandate, structure and senior leadership of such an international on-the-ground political component of settlement implementation will directly affect:

-- the credibility of the package that our current negotiating efforts are promoting with the parties in the region;

-- our ability to generate sufficient diplomatic support for a NATO-led military implementation force along the lines we desire;

-- our ability to encourage and ensure continued progress in the various political undertakings of a settlement once launched; and,

-- the credibility of our exit strategy for the IFOR and the withdrawal of its major U.S. elements no later than 12 months from its initial deployment.

This latter point will be especially critical. While the NATO-led IFOR is intended to be of specific and limited duration, a broader implementation structure will have the opportunity (indeed requirement) to run longer. (Just as an ongoing international presence to support and oversee democratic development within Haiti provided the context within which timely withdrawal of initial intervention forces was politically possible, so too will our announcement of an exit date and strategy for the IFOR need to be accompanied by the sense that an implementation structure for dealing with longer-term problems is in place in Bosnia.)

Senior Implementation Coordinator

The implementation structure would be headed by a respected senior statesman, a strong personality, and possibly an American.

Pros: An American would symbolize U.S. commitment and leadership in brokering the settlement, and underscore the U.S. commitment to successful conclusion of the effort. He would likely enjoy greater effectiveness, and command access to a broader array of resources. He would be more amenable to working toward U.S. goals (e.g., avoiding getting the U.S. trapped into unwanted commitments). Since the peace agreement will be American-negotiated and American-inspired, the parties will want to deal with an American.

Cons: An American might not enjoy the support of a wider group of countries, and might complicate obtaining the active support of France and/or Russia. If the implementation breaks down, the U.S. might be held responsible by Europeans for it and ensuing turmoil on the continent, e.g. "America's war." An American would have to achieve more stature than the likely European candidate, Carl Bildt. An American might prompt a certain Europe versus America competition, and resentment that the EU gets the lead on paying for reconstruction and providing many IFOR units, but the U.S. runs both.

The Senior Implementation Coordinator might be nominated by any settlement group participant and agreed to by consensus. He might have three or four deputies from different countries, such as Russia. He would have no formal line authority over the implementation agencies, but would determine the arrangements for coordination in the various functional fields, including designation of the lead coordinating person and/or agency in the implementation structure. He would derive his authority from his mandate, his ability to work with all parties, his selection of committee chairs, his potential to assist with dispute resolution, and his international standing. His commitment would be to the settlement terms, but he would respect the independent authority of each agency working in the country. Specifically, he would work to:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- ensure that various players do not duplicate tasks, undermine the "sub-contract" work of other agencies, or contravene the general principles of the settlement.

-- establish general parameters for the overall mission by acting as interpreter of the terms of the settlement, and encouraging (but not necessarily dictating) international agencies to adhere to those parameters.

Senior Coordination Committee

This would be the central coordinating authority. The Senior Implementation Coordinator would chair consultative meetings of the senior resident representatives of the main organizations active on the ground in Bosnia. Those agencies would likely include but not be restricted to IFOR, UN, UNHCR, EU/ECMM, OSCE, and IBRD. Additional possibilities include ICFY, remaining elements of UNPF, an international reconstruction mission, UN human rights monitors, Office of the UNSYG, Office of the NATO SYG, and possibly a stabilization-arms control effort. The SIC would have no line authority over any of these agencies, unless a group delegated specific decision-making authority to him.

Major aid donors and/or other governments playing a key bilateral role in the settlement may be included in the Senior Coordination Committee (or other committees, see below) in an appropriate way, if they provide a liaison staff to the SIC headquarters and are accepted by the SIC in that role.

NGOs would not be represented in the Senior Committee. However, an NGO advisory board could be established of representatives of organizations willing to provide liaison officials and attend relevant meetings as determined by the SIC.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Functions

The SIC would exercise direction by virtue of his free-standing authority and through his staff. As the senior international figure in Bosnia, he would be the locus for contact with the Federation and Serb Republic Governments and would maintain liaison offices in Belgrade, Zagreb, and possibly Skopje and elsewhere.

Functions under specific committees might be the following (and might be expanded or reduced to other fields as needed) under the overall coordination of the Senior Coordination Committee:

-- Military Security

The SIC would have no line authority, but may be able to assist the IFOR commander, who has the lead on military security, with liaison with local political authorities. He would work to ensure that non-IFOR activities do not inadvertently find themselves in conflict zones, and try to coordinate the early transfer of IFOR tasks (e.g., boundary monitoring) to other authorities as necessary.

-- Human Rights

SIC authority would rest with his ability to select a committee chairman (probably OSCE) and coordinate overall efforts in a direction consonant with the settlement. He would work to provide international groups assistance obtaining access to areas requiring monitoring.

-- Humanitarian Operations

UNHCR is the most readily-apparent entity with a claim to leading this effort, including repatriation and return. The SIC would be able to provide liaison support to UNHCR, if needed, and deal with the UNSYG via the UNSYG liaison office. ICRC, however, would have the lead dealing with detainees, missiong persons, etc.

-- Reconstruction

If the EU leads the reconstruction effort, the SIC might be able to promote coordination between EU efforts and local and other international (and bilateral) reconstruction efforts.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- Security Stabilization

A comprehensive package of arms control and CBM measures should be included in the settlement agreement, and possibly provide for implementation by an OSCE or other entity. A background paper on this is attached. The Germans have put ideas forward on this, and we may wish to encourage them to work with OSCE to develop their ideas for a package here. The SIC might become operationally involved in coordination of any subsequent negotiation-verification efforts on arms control, though he would have no line authority over this function beyond encouraging efforts within the parameters of the settlement.

-- War Crimes

The efforts of the UN war crimes tribunal will be an important aspect of implementation. Though there may be no need for a specific in-country war crimes structure, it will remain a significant political issue.

-- Democratic Elections and Institutions

Perhaps best situated to chair this effort would be the chief of an OSCE democracy-building entity (or alternatively the UN) that would have to be created at OSCE just prior to settlement. OSCE is best situated to integrate NGO concerns and recruit monitors for elections. The SIC would again achieve his greatest influence in supporting efforts with local officials.

-- Border Control

These responsibilities should be handled by a combination of local authorities and international monitors at an appropriate time. EUMM may be the best candidate to develop a mandate in this area and chair a committee. The SIC would again serve a partial liaison role with local officials, and work to ensure good cooperation with IFOR and the EUMMs. A dispute resolution mechanism, possibly based in the SIC's Legal Office, may address disputes.

-- Legal/Dispute Settlement

The SIC would have under his direct authority a Legal Office for whatever legal issues he determined needed attention. He could employ that expertise as appropriate (both binding and non-binding) to promote the resolution of any disputes. The legal office could provide non-binding advice on legal interpretations of the settlement terms, and provide advice as requested by various committees.

The SIC would designate a chairman for each of the above functions requiring (at the discretion of the Senior Coordination Committee) committee attention who could be either the local head of a relevant international agency or a deputy of the SIC. The guiding principle in organizing this structure should be pragmatism. A significant portion of the SIC's authority will derive from his ability to select and replace committee chairmen. To the extent possible, however, the structure should pave the way for Bosnian governmental institutions called for in the settlement, e.g. reconstruction commission, arbitration panel, and might provide a few important jobs to offer to nationals of various governments to help secure their support.

Secretariat

The Senior Implementation Coordinator would have a small secretariat located in or near Sarajevo. The various international agencies should be located in close proximity to the Office of the Senior Implementation Coordinator, with small, full-time liaison staffs (paid by parent agencies) in the same building. The staff should enjoy immunity from the jurisdication of the host countries (established in conjunction with settlement).

Political Liaison Group

This group would be appended to the SIC's office. It would include representatives of the settlement group, as well as the representatives of the UNSYG's office, the NATO SYG's office, and the EU President's office -- all located in the SIC's headquarters. The group would be formally headed by the SIC, but serve as a general advisory/liaison group for the SIC. It would have no direct authority over the SIC, but be available to provide insights on possible differences among the parties. The Russians would be included if they are part of the final settlement group.

Russia

The question of bringing Russia on board is discussed separately. It is worth noting that in addition to the Political Liaison Group, Russian participation in the implementation structure (not necessarily including the IFOR), and especially the arms control entity, might be possible.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Transition

The announcement of the SIC should be made on the day of actual settlement. Most agencies will already be present in Bosnia with senior representatives on the scene. The SIC will simply need to travel to Sarajevo, take occupancy of a larger (ideally only one) building provided by the Bosnians, begin building his secretariat, and inviting the various international agencies to establish liaison offices under his roof. The transition should not be exceedingly disruptive given that only a small staff is required and most of the contributors to SIC activities will already be physically present in Sarajevo.

Confidence-Building/Arms Control Measures
To Accompany Political Settlement

Assumption: At the onset, it will be important that the United States include elements of weapons control in connection with any settlement package in order to support the cease-fire and to build political support among allies and partners for the overall U.S. initiative. The second step would be to establish a regime to create something approaching a Federation-Bosnian Serb military balance. Such a military balance can only be created by taking into account Serb and Croation forces in the longer term. Any set of proposals to that effect, however, would have to be phased and flexible, readily adapting to changing circumstances on the ground and open to expansion over time in both scope and application.

Step 1: Conditions Imposed at Settlement: In the first instance, we should concentrate on political/military confidence-building measures geared to specific areas and tactical situations along lines of confrontation within Bosnia itself. Their immediate objective would be to supplement and help stabilize the cease-fire contained in the settlement; accordingly, they would focus on disengagement of the parties, preliminary forms of weapons control, and transparency.

More specifically, this might include (perhaps within the text of any cease-fire component of a settlement):

-- Compliance by all parties with the zones of separation along the frontier. (e.g., 2 km for infantry, 10 km for mortars, 20 km for heavy weapons).

-- Ban on certain (possibly all) military activities in selected areas or region-wide. Ban on military aircraft.

-- If arms embargo is not lifted, or is lifted in phases, maintain Sharp Guard and/or other measures to prevent weapons flows into the region until specifically delineated implementation goals have been met.

-- Establishment of joint liaison/communication links at multiple levels between the IFOR and the Federation and Bosnian Serb Armies.

-- Establishment of procedures for extensive monitoring all of the above measures by designated elements of OSCE or the Implementation Force, as appropriate.

Step 2: The Military Balance: As progress is made with each of these measures, we would seek to expand them in scope and effect. As some would presumably be intended for a long duration, we would wish to build in the possibility that, as the NATO-led military implementation force draws down with the accomplishment of its basic mission, those monitoring/verification duties assigned to the IFOR will be passed to another body -- perhaps some configuration of UN/OSCE observers. It would be necessary at this point to bring in Serbia and Croatia.

Step 3: Long-Term Perspective: Even as our immediate focus should be on local stabilizing measures within Bosnia proper to support the cease-fire and settlement, the United States should be prepared to offer -- at an appropriate political moment -- a long-term perspective for the region as whole. This would be consistent with an emphasis on a comprehensive approach to the problems of the former Yugoslavia.

The stated objective of such a U.S. initiative for confidence-building/arms control measures would be strengthening stability and security throughout the region, with the specific aim of eliminating disparities and capabilities for launching surprise attack and for initiating, at a regional level, large-scale offensive action. Reductions, limitations and the realization of a more defensive set of force postures might be examined as contributions to a more stable military balance.

Any initial deliberations among parties as to participation and modalities could take place in an informal setting, although the intention should always be to transfer any such negotiations back into a more formal OSCE framework at an appropriate time. Recognizing the many inherent difficulties involved in any move towards a more ambitious arms control regime for the region, the U.S. objective would, in the first instance, be as much to set in place an ongoing process as the expectation of any early progress towards a CFE-like regime.

2. New York Foreign Ministers Meeting: Secretary Christopher and Ambassador Holbrooke briefed Principals on the preparations for the next day's meeting in New York of the Foreign Ministers of Bosnia, Croatia and the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. They agreed that, following agreement by the three on "further agreed principles" for a settlement, building on the September 8 Geneva principles, the next priority would be to negotiate a country-wide cessation of hostilities. (C)

3. International Conference: Principals agreed that, following the New York Foreign Ministers' meeting and attainment of a cessation of hostilities, we would need to move beyond shuttle diplomacy to the convening of an international conference in "proximity talks" format. They agreed that Ambassador Holbrooke should seek the parties' agreement to a date for such a conference in mid-to-late October, subject to their acceptance of the following conditions: a) each of the three parties will send representatives with the authority to make decisions; b) the parties will not threaten to walk out of the talks once they have convened; and c) the parties will agree not to talk to the press for the duration of the talks. Principals agreed that the international conference should be held in a location isolated from the media (i.e. not Geneva or New York), but they deferred a decision on a specific venue. They agreed in principle that the international conference would be co-chaired by the U.S. and EU, unless this posed serious difficulties for our relations with the Russians. (S)

4. Military Implementation Planning: The Acting Chairman of the JCS briefed Principals on the status of NATO planning for implementation of a peace agreement. Principals agreed that, in response to the anticipated request from SACEUR for an estimated U.S. force contribution, we should continue to indicate a readiness to provide 20-25,000 ground troops. (C)

5. Civilian Implementation Structure: Principals approved the civilian implementation structure proposed by State, but deferred a decision on whether to seek the appointment of an American national as Senior Coordinator. They agreed that we should seek to reduce the UN's role to the extent possible, with the authority for the civilian coordinator flowing from the peace agreement itself rather than a UNSC resolution. (C)

6. Allied and Congressional Consultations: Principals reviewed plans for upcoming consultations with key Allies, noting the importance of engaging the Italians as well as our Contact Group partners in discussions of implementation planning. The President stressed the importance of early consultations with the Congress on NATO planning in order to defuse potential opposition to U.S. participation in the NATO Implementation Force. (C)

FURTHER AGREED PRINCIPLES

4. Each of the two entities will honor the international obligations of Bosnia and Herzegovina, so long as the obligation is not a financial obligation incurred by one entity without the consent of the other.

5. It is the goal that free democratic elections be held in both entities as soon as social conditions permit. In order to maximize the democratic effectiveness of such elections, the following steps will be taken by both entities.

5.1 Both governments will immediately pledge their full support, starting immediately, for (a) freedom of movement, (b) the right of refugees and displaced persons to repossess their homes and other property (or receive just compensation), (c) freedom of speech and of the press, and (d) protection of all other internationally recognized human rights in order to enhance and empower the democratic election process.

5.2 As soon as possible the OSCE (or other international organization) will station representatives in all principal towns throughout the Federation and Republika Srpska and publish monthly reports as to the degree which (a) the obligations listed in these Agreed Principles have been fulfilled, and (b) social conditions are being restored to a level at which the election process may be effective.

5.3 Within 30 days after the OSCE delegations have concluded that elections can be properly held in both entities, the governments of the two entities will conduct elections and will fully cooperate with an international monitoring program.

6. Following the elections, Bosnia and Herzegovina will be headed by a three-person Presidency consisting of two members from the Federation and one from the Republika Srpska, with each member being elected by the appropriate newly-elected parliamentary body. The office of Chairman and Head of Bosnia and Herzegovina will be rotated in a manner to be determined by subsequent agreement.

6.1 The Presidency will have responsibility exclusively for (a) foreign policy, the main guidelines of which must be approved by the parliaments of both entities; (b) such international financial matters as are beyond the legal capacity of either entity; and (c) such other activities as the parliamentary bodies of the two entities may agree upon as being mutually beneficial. The Presidency may appoint a cabinet of appropriate ministers to assist the Presidency in executing its duties.

6.2 All Presidency decisions will be taken by a majority vote, provided, however, that if any member disagrees with a decision taken by the other two and declares that decision to be destructive of a vital interest of the entity from which the dissenting member was elected, the matter will immediately be referred to that entity's parliament, which may determine by a two-thirds vote that the challenged decision will not take effect.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

6.3 Either entity may have international relations subject both to the guidelines referred to in Paragraph 6.1 and to the foreign policy prerogatives of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

6.4 Either entity may engage in any international economic activity so long as participation of the Presidency (on behalf of Bosnia and Herzegovina) is not required by other participants in such activity.

7. Following the elections there will be created a new Assembly of Bosnia and Herzegovina consisting of 27 members, 18 selected by the newly-elected legislature of the Federation and 9 by the newly-elected legislature of the Republika Srpska. Assembly actions will be by majority vote provided that the majority vote includes at least three votes from each entity.

7.1 The Assembly will make such laws as may be necessary in order to carry out decisions of the Presidency on matters falling within its authority.

8. The Presidency will promptly appoint a five-member Constitutional Court of Bosnia and Herzegovina, to be composed of two persons from the Federation, two from Republika Srpska, and one named by the President of the International Court of Justice, with jurisdiction to decide all questions arising under the Constitution of Bosnia and Herzegovina as it will be revised in accordance with these Agreed Principles.

9. The activities and obligations of Bosnia and Herzegovina must be financed by the Federation and the Republika Srpska.

6. Following the elections, the affairs and prerogatives of Bosnia and Herzegovina will be vested in the following institutions, in accordance with the Constitution thereof, as amended in accordance with these Agreed Principles.

6.1 A parliament or assembly, two-thirds of which will be elected by popular vote from the territory of the Federation, and one-third by popular vote from territory of the Republika Srpska. All parliamentary actions will be by majority vote provided that the majority includes at least one-third of the votes from each entity

6.2 A Presidency, two-thirds of which will be elected by popular vote from the territory of Federation, and one-third by popular vote from the territory of Republika Srpska. All Presidency decisions will be taken by majority vote, provided, however, that if one-third or more of the members disagree with a decision taken by the other members and declare that decision to be destructive of a vital interest of the entity or entities from which the dissenting members were elected, the matter will be referred immediately to the appropriate entity's/entities' parliament. If any such parliament confirms the dissenting position by a two-thirds vote, then the challenged decision will not take effect.

6.3 A cabinet of such ministers as may be appropriate.

6.4 A Constitutional Court with jurisdiction to decide all questions arising under the Constitution of Bosnia and Herzegovina as it will be revised in accordance with these Agreed Principles.

6.5 The parties will negotiate in the immediate future as to further aspects of the management and operation of these institutions.

6.6 Thus far it is agreed that the foregoing institutions will have responsibility for the foreign relations and foreign policy of Bosnia and Herzegovina. The parties will negotiate further to determine the extent to which these institutions will also have responsibility for foreign trade, customs administration, international financial affairs, currency administration, central bank and budget, international traffic and communications, immigration regulation, international criminal enforcement, utilization of energy and natural resources, citizenship and passports, protection of borders, and other activities as to which the parties may agree that mutual benefits shall be derived through such central administration.

7 The activities and obligations of Bosnia and Herzegovina must be financed by the Federation and the Republika Srpska.

4.3 As soon as the OSCE delegations have concluded that elections can be properly held in both entities, the governments of the two entities will conduct simultaneous elections and will fully cooperate with an international monitoring program.

5. Following the simultaneous elections, Bosnia and Herzegovina will be headed by a three-person Presidency representing the three principal constituent peoples, with each of the three members being elected by the appropriate newly-elected parliamentary body. The office of Chairman and Head of State will be rotated annually among the three members.

5.1 Among the responsibilities of the Presidency will be foreign relations, foreign trade, customs administration, monetary system administration, and such other activities as the parliamentary bodies of the two entities may agree upon as being mutually beneficial (such as, for example, immigration regulation, international criminal enforcement, establishment and operation of common transportation and communications facilities, utilization of energy resources, air traffic control, and cooperative economic projects). The Presidency may appoint a cabinet of appropriate ministers to assist the Presidency in executing its duties.

5.2 All Presidency decisions will be taken by majority vote, provided, however, that if one member disagrees with a decision taken by the other two and declares that decision to be destructive of a vital interest of the entity from which the dissenting member was elected, the matter will be referred immediately to that entity's parliament, which may determine by a

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Your Participation in Principals' Committee Meeting on Bosnia
September 25, 1995, 2:45-3:15 p.m.

Principals are meeting to review the latest developments in the negotiations on the eve of Tuesday's meeting of the three Balkan Foreign Ministers with the Contact Group, and to discuss planning for implementation of a peace settlement. Chris and Dick Holbrooke will participate in the meeting from New York via video link.

Negotiations: While the Bosnians are still haggling over final details, prospects are good for agreement on Tuesday on a set of "further agreed principles" for a settlement (draft at Tab A). These will round out the text agreed in Geneva on September 8. They set forth the institutions of the central government (rotating three-person presidency, parliament), identify their areas of responsibility, and establish rules for free elections under international supervision. While some points will be controversial, the new principles will help strengthen the case that the peace plan will not partition Bosnia.

Assuming agreement on the principles, the focus of our negotiating team's next round of shuttle diplomacy will be to draft a comprehensive peace agreement based on the principles and to press for agreement on the map. The most sensitive territorial issue will be the status of Sarajevo, which the Bosnians insist must be an undivided city under Federation control.

After another round of shuttling, it will likely be necessary to convene an international conference -- possibly as soon as mid-October -- with the three Balkan Presidents to resolve the most contentious issues and pave the way to a summit where the agreement would be signed. We have not decided whether to hold such a conference in the U.S. or in Europe.

Issues for discussion:

- Will the "further agreed principles" create an effective central government and prevent a formal partition?

- What are the weak points in the new paper?
- How soon will it be necessary or desirable to move to an international conference?
- Now that the battle lines have stabilized in western Bosnia, is this the time to press for a 1- or 2-month cessation of hostilities?

Implementation Planning: Shali will brief Principals on the status of U.S. and NATO planning for peace plan implementation. The NATO Military Authorities have been tasked to complete a draft OPLAN by the end of the month. This will give a clearer sense of the overall troop requirements -- although, even then, we will need to know the final terms of the settlement before hard figures can be established. Shali told Principals last week that he favors following the Haiti model, i.e. inserting a large and heavily-equipped force at the very outset in order to deter non-compliance by the parties, but then phasing down the force quickly once stable conditions have been established. The NATO-led force would withdraw completely at the end of one year. Still to be worked out are arrangements for associating the Russians and other non-NATO forces with the implementation force (IFOR) while preserving a single chain of command.

Following your departure, Principals will also review planning for implementation of the non-military aspects of a settlement (return of refugees, humanitarian aid, supervising elections, setting up governmental institutions, protecting human rights, etc.). We envisage appointing a senior statesman who would coordinate among the various international agencies involved. He would maintain liaison with the NATO military commander but have no dual key.

Issues for discussion:

- Are we and our Allies in basic agreement on the concept for military implementation of the peace plan? Rules of engagement and command and control?
- When will we need to decide the level of U.S. participation?
- How soon after signature of a peace settlement will we be able to deploy U.S. forces to Bosnia?

4.3 As soon as the OSCE delegations have concluded that elections can be properly held in both entities, the governments of the two entities will conduct simultaneous elections and will fully cooperate with an international monitoring program.

5. Following the simultaneous elections, Bosnia and Herzegovina will be headed by a three-person Presidency representing the three principal constituent peoples, with each of the three members being elected by the appropriate newly-elected parliamentary body. The office of Chairman and Head of State will be rotated annually among the three members.

5.1 Among the responsibilities of the Presidency will be foreign relations, foreign trade, customs administration, monetary system administration, and such other activities as the parliamentary bodies of the two entities may agree upon as being mutually beneficial (such as, for example, immigration regulation, international criminal enforcement, establishment and operation of common transportation and communications facilities, utilization of energy resources, air traffic control, and cooperative economic projects). The Presidency may appoint a cabinet of appropriate ministers to assist the Presidency in executing its duties.

5.2 All Presidency decisions will be taken by majority vote, provided, however, that if one member disagrees with a decision taken by the other two and declares that decision to be destructive of a vital interest of the entity from which the dissenting member was elected, the matter will be referred immediately to that entity's parliament, which may determine by a two-thirds vote that the challenged decision will not be applicable to that entity.

6. As a result of the elections there will be created a new Parliament of Bosnia and Herzegovina consisting of 36 members, 24 elected by the newly-elected legislature of the Federation and 12 elected by the newly-elected legislature of Republica Srpska. All parliamentary actions will be by majority vote provided that the majority vote includes at least four votes from each entity.

6.1 The legislature will make such laws as it deems appropriate on subjects within the authority of the Presidency, as indicated in Paragraph 5.1.

7. The government of Bosnia and Herzegovina will be financed by the Federation and the Republica Srpska.

IMPLEMENTATION STRUCTURE IN A BOSNIAN SETTLEMENT

The Task

Implementing a settlement in all its political, economic, humanitarian, military and other aspects will require a coordinating superstructure with a clear mandate to make the settlement work, as well as mobilization of a variety of organizations, most already active in the Balkans. The task would be to integrate, coordinate and, to a lesser degree, oversee progress on the various political undertakings of a settlement package and the activities of international organizations and activities involved in different aspects of implementation.

"Peace implementation" will require not only a military component -- through the IFOR to ensure a secure environment within which implementation can go forward -- but also a means of ensuring continued facilitation of political negotiations among the parties, promotion of local conflict resolution and monitoring of human rights, coordination of economic reconstruction, delivery of humanitarian assistance, and monitoring of various confidence-building/arms control measures of increasing scope.

An important aspect, yet to be determined, is the extent of direct involvement of the implementation structure in the internal affairs of the Bosnian state. The Bosnian parties may wish to have the least direct involvement by the implementation structure in some fields (e.g., human rights), and the opposite in others (e.g., reconstruction). The international community will expect the structure, nonetheless, to bring about full implementation. The tension between these various parties will have a bearing on the final settlement.

Mandate

The implementation structure should derive its authority from the settlement documents -- including the approval of all parties of the settlement, rather than from UNSC resolutions. The structure would, thus, have a certain autonomous authority. We should seek UNSC blessing (but not creation of) the structure through appropriate language in a Security Council Resolution acknowledging the actual settlement.

PER E.O. 13526
NL 2/6/2020 (8.79)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Mission

The mission of the structure will be to coordinate among, rather than to control, the organizations that will play a role in the region after settlement: the NATO-led implementation force (IFOR), EU, ICFY, OSCE, IFIs, UN, UNHCR, ICRC and possibly other NGOs, bilateral players, etc. Some elements might report directly to the Senior Implementation Coordinator (SIC) depending on the terms of the settlement. The implementation structure will serve as a bridge between the international actors and local officials, as appropriate.

Termination

The structure should specifically be maintained as long as required in the view of the Senior Coordination Committee (see below), but in no case less than one year beyond the date of final withdrawal of the IFOR and for a period not to exceed three years.

Funding

The administrative costs (including salaries) of the structure could be funded according to a formula yet to be determined among interested parties. The entity would establish an annual budget for presentation to contributors. Or, less formally, each government or organization contributing resources to the structure could simply pay its own way. The salary of the Senior Implementation Coordinator should be established at the time of the settlement.

Generating International Support

How the United States seeks to define the role, mandate, structure and senior leadership of such an international on-the-ground political component of settlement implementation will directly affect:

-- the credibility of the package that our current negotiating efforts are promoting with the parties in the region;

-- our ability to generate sufficient diplomatic support for a NATO-led military implementation force along the lines we desire;

-- our ability to encourage and ensure continued progress in the various political undertakings of a settlement once launched; and,

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- the credibility of our exit strategy for the IFOR and the withdrawal of its major U.S. elements no later than 12 months from its initial deployment.

This latter point will be especially critical. While the NATO-led IFOR is intended to be of specific and limited duration, a broader implementation structure will have the opportunity (indeed requirement) to run longer. (Just as an ongoing international presence to support and oversee democratic development within Haiti provided the context within which timely withdrawal of initial intervention forces was politically possible, so too will our announcement of an exit date and strategy for the IFOR need to be accompanied by the sense that an implementation structure for dealing with longer-term problems is in place in Bosnia.)

Senior Implementation Coordinator

The implementation structure would be headed by a respected senior statesman, a strong personality, and possibly an American.

Pros: An American would symbolize U.S. commitment and leadership in brokering the settlement, and underscore the U.S. commitment to successful conclusion of the effort. He would likely enjoy greater effectiveness, and command access to a broader array of resources. He would be more amenable to working toward U.S. goals (e.g., avoiding getting the U.S. trapped into unwanted commitments). Since the peace agreement will be American-negotiated and American-inspired, the parties will want to deal with an American.

Cons: An American might not enjoy the support of a wider group of countries, and might complicate obtaining the active support of France and/or Russia. If the implementation breaks down, the U.S. might be held responsible by Europeans for it and ensuing turmoil on the continent, e.g. "America's war." An American would have to achieve more stature than the likely European candidate, Carl Bildt. An American might prompt a certain Europe versus America competition, and resentment that the EU gets the lead on paying for reconstruction and providing many IFOR units, but the U.S. runs both.

The Senior Implementation Coordinator might be nominated by any settlement group participant and agreed to by consensus. He might have three or four deputies from different countries, such as Russia. He would have no formal line authority over the implementation agencies, but would determine the arrangements for coordination in the various functional fields, including designation of the lead coordinating person and/or agency in the implementation structure. He would derive his authority from his mandate, his ability to work with all parties, his selection of committee chairs, his potential to assist with dispute resolution, and his international standing. His commitment would be to the settlement terms, but he would respect the independent authority of each agency working in the country. Specifically, he would work to:

-- ensure that various players do not duplicate tasks, undermine the "sub-contract" work of other agencies, or contravene the general principles of the settlement.

-- establish general parameters for the overall mission by acting as interpreter of the terms of the settlement, and encouraging (but not necessarily dictating) international agencies to adhere to those parameters.

Senior Coordination Committee

This would be the central coordinating authority. The Senior Implementation Coordinator would chair consultative meetings of the senior resident representatives of the main organizations active on the ground in Bosnia. Those agencies would likely include but not be restricted to IFOR, UN, UNHCR, EU/ECMM, OSCE, and IBRD. Additional possibilities include ICFY, remaining elements of UNPF, an international reconstruction mission, UN human rights monitors, Office of the UNSYG, Office of the NATO SYG, and possibly a stabilization-arms control effort. The SIC would have no line authority over any of these agencies, unless a group delegated specific decision-making authority to him.

Major aid donors and/or other governments playing a key bilateral role in the settlement may be included in the Senior Coordination Committee (or other committees, see below) in an appropriate way, if they provide a liaison staff to the SIC headquarters and are accepted by the SIC in that role.

NGOs would not be represented in the Senior Committee. However, an NGO advisory board could be established of representatives of organizations willing to provide liaison officials and attend relevant meetings as determined by the SIC.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Functions

The SIC would exercise direction by virtue of his free-standing authority and through his staff. As the senior international figure in Bosnia, he would be the locus for contact with the Federation and Serb Republic Governments and would maintain liaison offices in Belgrade, Zagreb, and possibly Skopje and elsewhere.

Functions under specific committees might be the following (and might be expanded or reduced to other fields as needed) under the overall coordination of the Senior Coordination Committee:

-- Military Security

The SIC would have no line authority, but may be able to assist the IFOR commander, who has the lead on military security, with liaison with local political authorities. He would work to ensure that non-IFOR activities do not inadvertently find themselves in conflict zones, and try to coordinate the early transfer of IFOR tasks (e.g., boundary monitoring) to other authorities as necessary.

-- Human Rights

SIC authority would rest with his ability to select a committee chairman (probably OSCE) and coordinate overall efforts in a direction consonant with the settlement. He would work to provide international groups assistance obtaining access to areas requiring monitoring.

-- Humanitarian Operations

UNHCR is the most readily-apparent entity with a claim to leading this effort, including repatriation and return. The SIC would be able to provide liaison support to UNHCR, if needed, and deal with the UNSYG via the UNSYG liaison office. ICRC, however, would have the lead dealing with detainees, missiong persons, etc.

-- Reconstruction

If the EU leads the reconstruction effort, the SIC might be able to promote coordination between EU efforts and local and other international (and bilateral) reconstruction efforts.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- Security Stabilization

A comprehensive package of arms control and CBM measures should be included in the settlement agreement, and possibly provide for implementation by an OSCE or other entity. A background paper on this is attached. The Germans have put ideas forward on this, and we may wish to encourage them to work with OSCE to develop their ideas for a package here. The SIC might become operationally involved in coordination of any subsequent negotiation-verification efforts on arms control, though he would have no line authority over this function beyond encouraging efforts within the parameters of the settlement.

-- War Crimes

The efforts of the UN war crimes tribunal will be an important aspect of implementation. Though there may be no need for a specific in-country war crimes structure, it will remain a significant political issue.

-- Democratic Elections and Institutions

Perhaps best situated to chair this effort would be the chief of an OSCE democracy-building entity (or alternatively the UN) that would have to be created at OSCE just prior to settlement. OSCE is best situated to integrate NGO concerns and recruit monitors for elections. The SIC would again achieve his greatest influence in supporting efforts with local officials.

-- Border Control

These responsibilities should be handled by a combination of local authorities and international monitors at an appropriate time. EUMM may be the best candidate to develop a mandate in this area and chair a committee. The SIC would again serve a partial liaison role with local officials, and work to ensure good cooperation with IFOR and the EUMMs. A dispute resolution mechanism, possibly based in the SIC's Legal Office, may address disputes.

-- Legal/Dispute Settlement

The SIC would have under his direct authority a Legal Office for whatever legal issues he determined needed attention. He could employ that expertise as appropriate (both binding and non-binding) to promote the resolution of any disputes. The legal office could provide non-binding advice on legal interpretations of the settlement terms, and provide advice as requested by various committees.

The SIC would designate a chairman for each of the above functions requiring (at the discretion of the Senior Coordination Committee) committee attention who could be either the local head of a relevant international agency or a deputy of the SIC. The guiding principle in organizing this structure should be pragmatism. A significant portion of the SIC's authority will derive from his ability to select and replace committee chairmen. To the extent possible, however, the structure should pave the way for Bosnian governmental institutions called for in the settlement, e.g. reconstruction commission, arbitration panel, and might provide a few important jobs to offer to nationals of various governments to help secure their support.

Secretariat

The Senior Implementation Coordinator would have a small secretariat located in or near Sarajevo. The various international agencies should be located in close proximity to the Office of the Senior Implementation Coordinator, with small, full-time liaison staffs (paid by parent agencies) in the same building. The staff should enjoy immunity from the jurisdication of the host countries (established in conjunction with settlement).

Political Liaison Group

This group would be appended to the SIC's office. It would include representatives of the settlement group, as well as the representatives of the UNSYG's office, the NATO SYG's office, and the EU President's office -- all located in the SIC's headquarters. The group would be formally headed by the SIC, but serve as a general advisory/liaison group for the SIC. It would have no direct authority over the SIC, but be available to provide insights on possible differences among the parties. The Russians would be included if they are part of the final settlement group.

Russia

The question of bringing Russia on board is discussed separately. It is worth noting that in addition to the Political Liaison Group, Russian participation in the implementation structure (not necessarily including the IFOR), and especially the arms control entity, might be possible.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Transition

The announcement of the SIC should be made on the day of actual settlement. Most agencies will already be present in Bosnia with senior representatives on the scene. The SIC will simply need to travel to Sarajevo, take occupancy of a larger (ideally only one) building provided by the Bosnians, begin building his secretariat, and inviting the various international agencies to establish liaison offices under his roof. The transition should not be exceedingly disruptive given that only a small staff is required and most of the contributors to SIC activities will already be physically present in Sarajevo.

Confidence-Building/Arms Control Measures
To Accompany Political Settlement

Assumption: At the onset, it will be important that the United States include elements of weapons control in connection with any settlement package in order to support the cease-fire and to build political support among allies and partners for the overall U.S. initiative. The second step would be to establish a regime to create something approaching a Federation-Bosnian Serb military balance. Such a military balance can only be created by taking into account Serb and Croation forces in the longer term. Any set of proposals to that effect, however, would have to be phased and flexible, readily adapting to changing circumstances on the ground and open to expansion over time in both scope and application.

Step 1: Conditions Imposed at Settlement: In the first instance, we should concentrate on political/military confidence-building measures geared to specific areas and tactical situations along lines of confrontation within Bosnia itself. Their immediate objective would be to supplement and help stabilize the cease-fire contained in the settlement; accordingly, they would focus on disengagement of the parties, preliminary forms of weapons control, and transparency.

More specifically, this might include (perhaps within the text of any cease-fire component of a settlement):

-- Compliance by all parties with the zones of separation along the frontier. (e.g., 2 km for infantry, 10 km for mortars, 20 km for heavy weapons).

-- Ban on certain (possibly all) military activities in selected areas or region-wide. Ban on military aircraft.

-- If arms embargo is not lifted, or is lifted in phases, maintain Sharp Guard and/or other measures to prevent weapons flows into the region until specifically delineated implementation goals have been met.

-- Establishment of joint liaison/communication links at multiple levels between the IFOR and the Federation and Bosnian Serb Armies.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- Establishment of procedures for extensive monitoring all of the above measures by designated elements of OSCE or the Implementation Force, as appropriate.

Step 2: The Military Balance: As progress is made with each of these measures, we would seek to expand them in scope and effect. As some would presumably be intended for a long duration, we would wish to build in the possibility that, as the NATO-led military implementation force draws down with the accomplishment of its basic mission, those monitoring/verification duties assigned to the IFOR will be passed to another body -- perhaps some configuration of UN/OSCE observers. It would be necessary at this point to bring in Serbia and Croatia.

Step 3: Long-Term Perspective: Even as our immediate focus should be on local stabilizing measures within Bosnia proper to support the cease-fire and settlement, the United States should be prepared to offer -- at an appropriate political moment -- a long-term perspective for the region as whole. This would be consistent with an emphasis on a comprehensive approach to the problems of the former Yugoslavia.

The stated objective of such a U.S. initiative for confidence-building/arms control measures would be strengthening stability and security throughout the region, with the specific aim of eliminating disparities and capabilities for launching surprise attack and for initiating, at a regional level, large-scale offensive action. Reductions, limitations and the realization of a more defensive set of force postures might be examined as contributions to a more stable military balance.

Any initial deliberations among parties as to participation and modalities could take place in an informal setting, although the intention should always be to transfer any such negotiations back into a more formal OSCE framework at an appropriate time. Recognizing the many inherent difficulties involved in any move towards a more ambitious arms control regime for the region, the U.S. objective would, in the first instance, be as much to set in place an ongoing process as the expectation of any early progress towards a CFE-like regime.

DRAFT

INFORMATION

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Your Participation in Principals' Committee Meeting on Bosnia
September 25, 1995, 2:45-3:15 p.m.

Principals are meeting to review the latest developments in the negotiations on the eve of Tuesday's meeting of the three Balkan Foreign Ministers with the Contact Group, and to discuss planning for implementation of a peace settlement. Chris and Dick Holbrooke will participate in the meeting from New York via video link.

Negotiations: While the Bosnians are still haggling over final details, prospects are good for agreement on Tuesday on a set of "further agreed principles" for a settlement (draft at Tab A). These will round out the text agreed in Geneva on September 8. They set forth the institutions of the central government (rotating three-person presidency, parliament), identify their areas of responsibility, and establish rules for free elections under international supervision. While some points will be controversial, the new principles will help strengthen the case that the peace plan will not partition Bosnia.

Assuming agreement on the principles, the focus of our negotiating team's next round of shuttle diplomacy will be to draft a comprehensive peace agreement based on the principles and to press for agreement on the map. The most sensitive territorial issue will be the status of Sarajevo, which the Bosnians insist must be an undivided city under Federation control.

After another round of shuttling, it will likely be necessary to convene an international conference -- possibly as soon as mid-October -- with the three Balkan Presidents to resolve the most contentious issues and pave the way to a summit where the agreement would be signed. We have not decided whether to hold such a conference in the U.S. or in Europe.

Issues for discussion:

- Will the "further agreed principles" create an effective central government and prevent a formal partition?

- What are the weak points in the new paper?
- How soon will it be necessary or desirable to move to an international conference?
- Now that the battle lines have stabilized in western Bosnia, is this the time to press for a 1- or 2-month cessation of hostilities?

Implementation Planning: Shali will brief Principals on the status of U.S. and NATO planning for peace plan implementation. The NATO Military Authorities have been tasked to complete a draft OPLAN by the end of the month. This will give a clearer sense of the overall troop requirements -- although, even then, we will need to know the final terms of the settlement before hard figures can be established. Shali told Principals last week that he favors following the Haiti model, i.e. inserting a large and heavily-equipped force at the very outset in order to deter non-compliance by the parties, but then phasing down the force quickly once stable conditions have been established. The NATO-led force would withdraw completely at the end of one year. Still to be worked out are arrangements for associating the Russians and other non-NATO forces with the implementation force (IFOR) while preserving a single chain of command.

Following your departure, Principals will also review planning for implementation of the non-military aspects of a settlement (return of refugees, humanitarian aid, supervising elections, setting up governmental institutions, protecting human rights, etc.). We envisage appointing a senior statesman who would coordinate among the various international agencies involved. He would maintain liaison with the NATO military commander but have no dual key.

Issues for discussion:

- Are we and our Allies in basic agreement on the concept for military implementation of the peace plan? Rules of engagement and command and control?
- When will we need to decide the level of U.S. participation?
- How soon after signature of a peace settlement will we be able to deploy U.S. forces to Bosnia?

4. It is the goal that free democratic elections be held in both entities as soon as social conditions permit. In order to maximize the democratic effectiveness of such elections, the following steps will be taken by both entities.

4.1 Both governments will immediately pledge their full support, starting immediately, for (a) freedom of movement, (b) the right of displaced persons to repossess their property (or receive just compensation), (c) freedom of speech and of the press, and (d) protection of all other internationally recognized human rights that enhance and empower the democratic election process.

4.2 As soon as possible the OSCE (or other international organization) will station representatives in all principal towns throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina and publish monthly reports as to the degree to which (a) displaced persons are being enabled to regain possession of their homes and other property, and (b) social conditions are being restored to a level at which the election process may be effective.

4.3 As soon as the OSCE delegations have concluded that elections can be properly held in both entities, the governments of the two entities will conduct simultaneous elections and will fully cooperate with an international monitoring program.

5. Following the simultaneous elections, Bosnia and Herzegovina will be headed by a three-person Presidency representing the three principal constituent peoples, with each of the three members being elected by the appropriate newly-elected parliamentary body. The office of Chairman and Head of State will be rotated annually among the three members.

5.1 Among the responsibilities of the Presidency will be foreign relations, foreign trade, customs administration, monetary system administration, and such other activities as the parliamentary bodies of the two entities may agree upon as being mutually beneficial (such as, for example, immigration regulation, international criminal enforcement, establishment and operation of common transportation and communications facilities, utilization of energy resources, air traffic control, and cooperative economic projects). The Presidency may appoint a cabinet of appropriate ministers to assist the Presidency in executing its duties.

5.2 All Presidency decisions will be taken by majority vote, provided, however, that if one member disagrees with a decision taken by the other two and declares that decision to be destructive of a vital interest of the entity from which the dissenting member was elected, the matter will be referred immediately to that entity's parliament, which may determine by a two-thirds vote that the challenged decision will not be applicable to that entity.

6. As a result of the elections there will be created a new Parliament of Bosnia and Herzegovina consisting of 36 members, 24 elected by the newly-elected legislature of the Federation and 12 elected by the newly-elected legislature of Republica Srpska. All parliamentary actions will be by majority vote provided that the majority vote includes at least four votes from each entity.

6.1 The legislature will make such laws as it deems appropriate on subjects within the authority of the Presidency, as indicated in Paragraph 5.1.

7. The government of Bosnia and Herzegovina will be financed by the Federation and the Republica Srpska.

IMPLEMENTATION STRUCTURE IN A BOSNIAN SETTLEMENT

The Task

Implementing a settlement in all its political, economic, humanitarian, military and other aspects will require a coordinating superstructure with a clear mandate to make the settlement work, as well as mobilization of a variety of organizations, most already active in the Balkans. The task would be to integrate, coordinate and, to a lesser degree, oversee progress on the various political undertakings of a settlement package and the activities of international organizations and activities involved in different aspects of implementation.

"Peace implementation" will require not only a military component -- through the IFOR to ensure a secure environment within which implementation can go forward -- but also a means of ensuring continued facilitation of political negotiations among the parties, promotion of local conflict resolution and monitoring of human rights, coordination of economic reconstruction, delivery of humanitarian assistance, and monitoring of various confidence-building/arms control measures of increasing scope.

An important aspect, yet to be determined, is the extent of direct involvement of the implementation structure in the internal affairs of the Bosnian state. The Bosnian parties may wish to have the least direct involvement by the implementation structure in some fields (e.g., human rights), and the opposite in others (e.g., reconstruction). The international community will expect the structure, nonetheless, to bring about full implementation. The tension between these various parties will have a bearing on the final settlement.

Mandate

The implementation structure should derive its authority from the settlement documents -- including the approval of all parties of the settlement, rather than from UNSC resolutions. The structure would, thus, have a certain autonomous authority. We should seek UNSC blessing (but not creation of) the structure through appropriate language in a Security Council Resolution acknowledging the actual settlement.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Mission

The mission of the structure will be to coordinate among, rather than to control, the organizations that will play a role in the region after settlement: the NATO-led implementation force (IFOR), EU, ICFY, OSCE, IFIs, UN, UNHCR, ICRC and possibly other NGOs, bilateral players, etc. Some elements might report directly to the Senior Implementation Coordinator (SIC) depending on the terms of the settlement. The implementation structure will serve as a bridge between the international actors and local officials, as appropriate.

Termination

The structure should specifically be maintained as long as required in the view of the Senior Coordination Committee (see below), but in no case less than one year beyond the date of final withdrawal of the IFOR and for a period not to exceed three years.

Funding

The administrative costs (including salaries) of the structure could be funded according to a formula yet to be determined among interested parties. The entity would establish an annual budget for presentation to contributors. Or, less formally, each government or organization contributing resources to the structure could simply pay its own way. The salary of the Senior Implementation Coordinator should be established at the time of the settlement.

Generating International Support

How the United States seeks to define the role, mandate, structure and senior leadership of such an international on-the-ground political component of settlement implementation will directly affect:

-- the credibility of the package that our current negotiating efforts are promoting with the parties in the region;

-- our ability to generate sufficient diplomatic support for a NATO-led military implementation force along the lines we desire;

-- our ability to encourage and ensure continued progress in the various political undertakings of a settlement once launched; and,

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- the credibility of our exit strategy for the IFOR and the withdrawal of its major U.S. elements no later than 12 months from its initial deployment.

This latter point will be especially critical. While the NATO-led IFOR is intended to be of specific and limited duration, a broader implementation structure will have the opportunity (indeed requirement) to run longer. (Just as an ongoing international presence to support and oversee democratic development within Haiti provided the context within which timely withdrawal of initial intervention forces was politically possible, so too will our announcement of an exit date and strategy for the IFOR need to be accompanied by the sense that an implementation structure for dealing with longer-term problems is in place in Bosnia.)

Senior Implementation Coordinator

The implementation structure would be headed by a respected senior statesman, a strong personality, and possibly an American.

Pros: An American would symbolize U.S. commitment and leadership in brokering the settlement, and underscore the U.S. commitment to successful conclusion of the effort. He would likely enjoy greater effectiveness, and command access to a broader array of resources. He would be more amenable to working toward U.S. goals (e.g., avoiding getting the U.S. trapped into unwanted commitments). Since the peace agreement will be American-negotiated and American-inspired, the parties will want to deal with an American.

Cons: An American might not enjoy the support of a wider group of countries, and might complicate obtaining the active support of France and/or Russia. If the implementation breaks down, the U.S. might be held responsible by Europeans for it and ensuing turmoil on the continent, e.g. "America's war." An American would have to achieve more stature than the likely European candidate, Carl Bildt. An American might prompt a certain Europe versus America competition, and resentment that the EU gets the lead on paying for reconstruction and providing many IFOR units, but the U.S. runs both.

The Senior Implementation Coordinator might be nominated by any settlement group participant and agreed to by consensus. He might have three or four deputies from different countries, such as Russia. He would have no formal line authority over the implementation agencies, but would determine the arrangements for coordination in the various functional fields, including designation of the lead coordinating person and/or agency in the implementation structure. He would derive his authority from his mandate, his ability to work with all parties, his selection of committee chairs, his potential to assist with dispute resolution, and his international standing. His commitment would be to the settlement terms, but he would respect the independent authority of each agency working in the country. Specifically, he would work to:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- ensure that various players do not duplicate tasks, undermine the "sub-contract" work of other agencies, or contravene the general principles of the settlement.

-- establish general parameters for the overall mission by acting as interpreter of the terms of the settlement, and encouraging (but not necessarily dictating) international agencies to adhere to those parameters.

Senior Coordination Committee

This would be the central coordinating authority. The Senior Implementation Coordinator would chair consultative meetings of the senior resident representatives of the main organizations active on the ground in Bosnia. Those agencies would likely include but not be restricted to IFOR, UN, UNHCR, EU/ECMM, OSCE, and IBRD. Additional possibilities include ICFY, remaining elements of UNPF, an international reconstruction mission, UN human rights monitors, Office of the UNSYG, Office of the NATO SYG, and possibly a stabilization-arms control effort. The SIC would have no line authority over any of these agencies, unless a group delegated specific decision-making authority to him.

Major aid donors and/or other governments playing a key bilateral role in the settlement may be included in the Senior Coordination Committee (or other committees, see below) in an appropriate way, if they provide a liaison staff to the SIC headquarters and are accepted by the SIC in that role.

NGOs would not be represented in the Senior Committee. However, an NGO advisory board could be established of representatives of organizations willing to provide liaison officials and attend relevant meetings as determined by the SIC.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Functions

The SIC would exercise direction by virtue of his free-standing authority and through his staff. As the senior international figure in Bosnia, he would be the locus for contact with the Federation and Serb Republic Governments and would maintain liaison offices in Belgrade, Zagreb, and possibly Skopje and elsewhere.

Functions under specific committees might be the following (and might be expanded or reduced to other fields as needed) under the overall coordination of the Senior Coordination Committee:

-- Military Security

The SIC would have no line authority, but may be able to assist the IFOR commander, who has the lead on military security, with liaison with local political authorities. He would work to ensure that non-IFOR activities do not inadvertently find themselves in conflict zones, and try to coordinate the early transfer of IFOR tasks (e.g., boundary monitoring) to other authorities as necessary.

-- Human Rights

SIC authority would rest with his ability to select a committee chairman (probably OSCE) and coordinate overall efforts in a direction consonant with the settlement. He would work to provide international groups assistance obtaining access to areas requiring monitoring.

-- Humanitarian Operations

UNHCR is the most readily-apparent entity with a claim to leading this effort, including repatriation and return. The SIC would be able to provide liaison support to UNHCR, if needed, and deal with the UNSYG via the UNSYG liaison office. ICRC, however, would have the lead dealing with detainees, missiong persons, etc.

-- Reconstruction

If the EU leads the reconstruction effort, the SIC might be able to promote coordination between EU efforts and local and other international (and bilateral) reconstruction efforts.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- Security Stabilization

A comprehensive package of arms control and CBM measures should be included in the settlement agreement, and possibly provide for implementation by an OSCE or other entity. A background paper on this is attached. The Germans have put ideas forward on this, and we may wish to encourage them to work with OSCE to develop their ideas for a package here. The SIC might become operationally involved in coordination of any subsequent negotiation-verification efforts on arms control, though he would have no line authority over this function beyond encouraging efforts within the parameters of the settlement.

-- War Crimes

The efforts of the UN war crimes tribunal will be an important aspect of implementation. Though there may be no need for a specific in-country war crimes structure, it will remain a significant political issue.

-- Democratic Elections and Institutions

Perhaps best situated to chair this effort would be the chief of an OSCE democracy-building entity (or alternatively the UN) that would have to be created at OSCE just prior to settlement. OSCE is best situated to integrate NGO concerns and recruit monitors for elections. The SIC would again achieve his greatest influence in supporting efforts with local officials.

-- Border Control

These responsibilities should be handled by a combination of local authorities and international monitors at an appropriate time. EUMM may be the best candidate to develop a mandate in this area and chair a committee. The SIC would again serve a partial liaison role with local officials, and work to ensure good cooperation with IFOR and the EUMMs. A dispute resolution mechanism, possibly based in the SIC's Legal Office, may address disputes.

-- Legal/Dispute Settlement

The SIC would have under his direct authority a Legal Office for whatever legal issues he determined needed attention. He could employ that expertise as appropriate (both binding and non-binding) to promote the resolution of any disputes. The legal office could provide non-binding advice on legal interpretations of the settlement terms, and provide advice as requested by various committees.

The SIC would designate a chairman for each of the above functions requiring (at the discretion of the Senior Coordination Committee) committee attention who could be either the local head of a relevant international agency or a deputy of the SIC. The guiding principle in organizing this structure should be pragmatism. A significant portion of the SIC's authority will derive from his ability to select and replace committee chairmen. To the extent possible, however, the structure should pave the way for Bosnian governmental institutions called for in the settlement, e.g. reconstruction commission, arbitration panel, and might provide a few important jobs to offer to nationals of various governments to help secure their support.

Secretariat

The Senior Implementation Coordinator would have a small secretariat located in or near Sarajevo. The various international agencies should be located in close proximity to the Office of the Senior Implementation Coordinator, with small, full-time liaison staffs (paid by parent agencies) in the same building. The staff should enjoy immunity from the jurisdication of the host countries (established in conjunction with settlement).

Political Liaison Group

This group would be appended to the SIC's office. It would include representatives of the settlement group, as well as the representatives of the UNSYG's office, the NATO SYG's office, and the EU President's office -- all located in the SIC's headquarters. The group would be formally headed by the SIC, but serve as a general advisory/liaison group for the SIC. It would have no direct authority over the SIC, but be available to provide insights on possible differences among the parties. The Russians would be included if they are part of the final settlement group.

Russia

The question of bringing Russia on board is discussed separately. It is worth noting that in addition to the Political Liaison Group, Russian participation in the implementation structure (not necessarily including the IFOR), and especially the arms control entity, might be possible.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Transition

The announcement of the SIC should be made on the day of actual settlement. Most agencies will already be present in Bosnia with senior representatives on the scene. The SIC will simply need to travel to Sarajevo, take occupancy of a larger (ideally only one) building provided by the Bosnians, begin building his secretariat, and inviting the various international agencies to establish liaison offices under his roof. The transition should not be exceedingly disruptive given that only a small staff is required and most of the contributors to SIC activities will already be physically present in Sarajevo.

Confidence-Building/Arms Control Measures
To Accompany Political Settlement

Assumption: At the onset, it will be important that the United States include elements of weapons control in connection with any settlement package in order to support the cease-fire and to build political support among allies and partners for the overall U.S. initiative. The second step would be to establish a regime to create something approaching a Federation-Bosnian Serb military balance. Such a military balance can only be created by taking into account Serb and Croation forces in the longer term. Any set of proposals to that effect, however, would have to be phased and flexible, readily adapting to changing circumstances on the ground and open to expansion over time in both scope and application.

Step 1: Conditions Imposed at Settlement: In the first instance, we should concentrate on political/military confidence-building measures geared to specific areas and tactical situations along lines of confrontation within Bosnia itself. Their immediate objective would be to supplement and help stabilize the cease-fire contained in the settlement; accordingly, they would focus on disengagement of the parties, preliminary forms of weapons control, and transparency.

More specifically, this might include (perhaps within the text of any cease-fire component of a settlement):

-- Compliance by all parties with the zones of separation along the frontier. (e.g., 2 km for infantry, 10 km for mortars, 20 km for heavy weapons).

-- Ban on certain (possibly all) military activities in selected areas or region-wide. Ban on military aircraft.

-- If arms embargo is not lifted, or is lifted in phases, maintain Sharp Guard and/or other measures to prevent weapons flows into the region until specifically delineated implementation goals have been met.

-- Establishment of joint liaison/communication links at multiple levels between the IFOR and the Federation and Bosnian Serb Armies.

~~SECRET~~

PER E.O. 13526

2013-0682-NL

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- Establishment of procedures for extensive monitoring all of the above measures by designated elements of OSCE or the Implementation Force, as appropriate.

Step 2: The Military Balance: As progress is made with each of these measures, we would seek to expand them in scope and effect. As some would presumably be intended for a long duration, we would wish to build in the possibility that, as the NATO-led military implementation force draws down with the accomplishment of its basic mission, those monitoring/verification duties assigned to the IFOR will be passed to another body -- perhaps some configuration of UN/OSCE observers. It would be necessary at this point to bring in Serbia and Croatia.

Step 3: Long-Term Perspective: Even as our immediate focus should be on local stabilizing measures within Bosnia proper to support the cease-fire and settlement, the United States should be prepared to offer -- at an appropriate political moment -- a long-term perspective for the region as whole. This would be consistent with an emphasis on a comprehensive approach to the problems of the former Yugoslavia.

The stated objective of such a U.S. initiative for confidence-building/arms control measures would be strengthening stability and security throughout the region, with the specific aim of eliminating disparities and capabilities for launching surprise attack and for initiating, at a regional level, large-scale offensive action. Reductions, limitations and the realization of a more defensive set of force postures might be examined as contributions to a more stable military balance.

Any initial deliberations among parties as to participation and modalities could take place in an informal setting, although the intention should always be to transfer any such negotiations back into a more formal OSCE framework at an appropriate time. Recognizing the many inherent difficulties involved in any move towards a more ambitious arms control regime for the region, the U.S. objective would, in the first instance, be as much to set in place an ongoing process as the expectation of any early progress towards a CFE-like regime.

INFORMATION

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Your Participation in Principals' Committee Meeting on Bosnia, September 25, 1995, 2:45-3:15 p.m.

Principals are meeting to review the latest developments in the negotiations on the eve of Tuesday's meeting of the three Balkan Foreign Ministers with the Contact Group, and to discuss planning for implementation of a peace settlement. Chris and Dick Holbrooke will participate in the meeting from New York via video link.

Negotiations: While the Bosnians are still haggling over final details, prospects are good for agreement on Tuesday on a set of "further agreed principles" for a settlement (draft at Tab A). These will round out the text agreed in Geneva on September 8. They set forth the institutions of the central government (rotating three-person presidency, parliament), identify their areas of responsibility and establish rules for free elections under international supervision. While some points will be controversial, the new principles will help strengthen the case that the peace plan will not partition Bosnia.

Assuming agreement on the principles, the focus of our negotiating team's next round of shuttle diplomacy will be to draft a comprehensive peace agreement based on the principles and to press for agreement on the map. The most sensitive territorial issue will be the status of Sarajevo, which the Bosnians insist must be an undivided city under Federation control.

After another round of shuttling, it will likely be necessary to convene an international conference -- possibly as soon as mid-October -- with the three Balkan Presidents to resolve the most contentious issues and pave the way to a summit where the agreement would be signed. We have not decided whether to hold such a conference in the U.S. or in Europe.

Issues for discussion:

- Will the "further agreed principles" create an effective central government and prevent a formal partition?

- What are the weak points in the new paper?
- How soon will it be necessary or desirable to move to an international conference?
- Now that the battle lines have stabilized in western Bosnia, is this the time to press for a 1- or 2-month cessation of hostilities?

Implementation Planning: Shali will brief Principals on the status of U.S. and NATO planning for peace plan implementation. The NATO Military Authorities have been tasked to complete a draft OPLAN by the end of the month. This will give a clearer sense of the overall troop requirements -- although, even then, we will need to know the final terms of the settlement before hard figures can be established. Shali told Principals last week that he favors following the Haiti model, i.e. inserting a large and heavily-equipped force at the very outset in order to deter non-compliance by the parties, but then phasing down the force quickly once stable conditions have been established. The NATO-led force would withdraw completely at the end of one year. Still to be worked out are arrangements for associating the Russians and other non-NATO forces with the implementation force (IFOR) while preserving a single chain of command.

Following your departure, Principals will also review planning for implementation of the non-military aspects of a settlement (return of refugees, humanitarian aid, supervising elections, setting up governmental institutions, protecting human rights, etc.). We envisage appointing a senior statesman who would coordinate among the various international agencies involved. He would maintain liaison with the NATO military commander but have no dual key.

Issues for discussion:

- Are we and our Allies in basic agreement on the concept for military implementation of the peace plan? Rules of engagement and command and control?
- When will we need to decide the level of U.S. participation?
- How soon after signature of a peace settlement will we be able to deploy U.S. forces to Bosnia?

DRAFT 9/20

FURTHER AGREED PRINCIPLES

4. It is the goal that free democratic elections be held in both entities as soon as social conditions permit. In order to maximize the democratic effectiveness of such elections, the following steps will be taken by both entities.

4.1 Both governments will immediately pledge their full support, starting immediately, for (a) freedom of movement, (b) the right of displaced persons to repossess their property (or receive just compensation), (c) freedom of speech and of the press, and (d) protection of all other internationally recognized human rights that enhance and empower the democratic election process.

4.2 As soon as possible the OSCE (or other international organization) will station representatives in all principal towns throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina and publish monthly reports as to the degree to which (a) displaced persons are being enabled to regain possession of their homes and other property, and (b) social conditions are being restored to a level at which the election process may be effective.

4.3 As soon as the OSCE delegations have concluded that elections can be properly held in both entities, the governments of the two entities will conduct simultaneous elections and will fully cooperate with an international monitoring program.

5. Following the simultaneous elections, Bosnia and Herzegovina will be headed by a three-person Presidency representing the three principal constituent peoples, with each of the three members being elected by the appropriate newly-elected parliamentary body. The office of Chairman and Head of State will be rotated annually among the three members.

5.1 Among the responsibilities of the Presidency will be foreign relations, foreign trade, customs administration, monetary system administration, and such other activities as the parliamentary bodies of the two entities may agree upon as being mutually beneficial (such as, for example, immigration regulation, international criminal enforcement, establishment and operation of common transportation and communications facilities, utilization of energy resources, air traffic control, and cooperative economic projects). The Presidency may appoint a cabinet of appropriate ministers to assist the Presidency in executing its duties.

5.2 All Presidency decisions will be taken by majority vote, provided, however, that if one member disagrees with a decision taken by the other two and declares that decision to be destructive of a vital interest of the entity from which the dissenting member was elected, the matter will be referred immediately to that entity's parliament, which may determine by a two-thirds vote that the challenged decision will not be applicable to that entity.

6. As a result of the elections there will be created a new Parliament of Bosnia and Herzegovina consisting of 36 members, 24 elected by the newly-elected legislature of the Federation and 12 elected by the newly-elected legislature of Republica Srpska. All parliamentary actions will be by majority vote provided that the majority vote includes at least four votes from each entity.

6.1 The legislature will make such laws as it deems appropriate on subjects within the authority of the Presidency, as indicated in Paragraph 5.1.

7. The government of Bosnia and Herzegovina will be financed by the Federation and the Republica Srpska.

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE

FROM: ALEXANDER VERSHBOW

SUBJECT: Memorandum to the President for his Participation in September 25 Principals Committee on Bosnia Attached at Tab I is your memorandum to the President for his drop-by at Monday's PC on Bosnia.

I suggest that you encourage him to attend the first half of the meeting, when the focus will be on the status of the negotiations and military implementation planning. We understand that Dick Holbrooke will only participate in the first half-hour, since he will be chairing a Contact Group political directors meeting at 3:00.

RECOMMENDATION

That you sign the memorandum to the President at Tab I.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals discussed the pros and cons of a U.S. venue for the planned proximity talks that would be convened approximately two weeks following the conclusion of a country-wide ceasefire in Bosnia. They deferred a final decision until their October 4 meeting. In the interim, they requested that State and the U.S. negotiating team develop options for venues other than the Washington and New York areas, as well as ideas for alternative events in European capitals and Moscow that could offset concerns of Contact Group partners about a U.S. venue. (C)

2. Principals discussed whether there should be any monitoring of the impending ceasefire and agreed to review this issue and the status of NATO implementation planning at their next meeting. (C)

Summary of Conclusions

No-Fly Zone Violations

1. Principals discussed the U.S. negotiating team's recommendation that action be taken by NATO against Banja Luka airport in view of the recent increase in Bosnian Serb violations of the no-fly zone. Principals decided to defer a decision pending further developments and consultations with the delegation. (S)

Cease-fire/Proximity Talks

2. Principals reviewed the status of negotiations on a cease-fire. They agreed that while we would make an all-out effort to achieve a cease-fire, we would not make a cease-fire a precondition for the convening of proximity talks or an international conference. (C)

3. Principals agreed that the venue for proximity talks should be in the United States at a secluded location somewhat removed from Washington or New York, but close enough to permit "drop-ins" by senior USG officials as necessary to give impetus to the negotiations. They requested that a list of possible sites be developed on an urgent basis (Action: OSD/NSC). Principals agreed that, to manage the sensitivities of our Contact Group partners, we should work with the U.S. negotiating team to develop options for possible follow-on events in European capitals and Moscow (Action: State/NSC). They agreed, however, that we should preserve the option of hosting a final signing ceremony at a Summit hosted by the President in the United States. (S)

Russian Participation in IFOR

4. Principals reviewed strategy for incorporating Russian forces in the NATO-led peace implementation force (IFOR), in preparation for the meeting between Secretary of Defense Perry and Russian Defense Minister Grachev. They reaffirmed the importance of ensuring that the IFOR command structure remained militarily sound, with no dual key. They agreed that Secretary Perry should put forward two options:

-- If the Russians are prepared to accept NATO operational control for their forces, a Russian brigade could be integrated into one of the three Allied divisions likely to comprise the IFOR. The Russian brigade commander would report to the division commander. At the political level, Russia (and other non-NATO troop contributing nations) would participate in a planning/coordination group that would advise and consult with the NAC, but not make decisions; decision-making would remain with the NAC. Russian liaison officers could be established at various levels in the NATO chain of command.

-- If the Russians are not prepared to participate on the above basis, then we would suggest that they not engage in the military operation, but instead provide military forces to perform specific civilian tasks that would be under the purview of the Senior Implementation Coordinator. (S)

Military Stabilization

5. Principals reaffirmed that our goal should be to ensure that there is a rough balance of power between the Federation and the Bosnian Serbs by the end of the one-year peace implementation period. They endorsed a military stabilization plan that would involve both arms control/confidence-building measures and a program to equip and train Federation armed forces (S)

6. With respect to arms control measures, Principals agreed that we should seek to include in the peace agreement not only limited constraints such as separation zones, military flight bans and transparency measures but, if possible, a commitment by the parties to ceilings on CFE categories of equipment that would provide for a build-down of force. Principals agreed that an arms control package should be developed for the U.S. negotiating team on an urgent basis (Action: State). (S)

7. Recognizing that some arms control measures may not be attainable in the short term, Principals agreed that we need to develop a military assistance package that would provide the Federation with the minimum capability necessary to create a balance of power without stimulating a regional arms race (Action: OSD). This package would be subject to modification following a visit by an assessment team. Principals agreed, however, that the assessment team visit should be deferred until there is a cease-fire, although this decision could be revisited in the event efforts to reach a cease-fire bog down. (S)

8. Principals agreed that the United States should take the lead in organizing the equip-and-train effort so that we can exercise control over the types of weapons provided to the Federation and limit the involvement of Iran and other radical states. Given Allied skepticism about the equip-and-train aspect, however, our coordination should be conducted in a low-profile manner -- e.g., quiet bilateral approaches to potential contributors rather than hosting a multilateral donors' conference. As soon as we have decided on the necessary scope of the equip-and-train program, we should engage in early consultations with key allies (Action: State/OSD) (S)

DRAFT

STABILIZATION PACKAGE IN A BOSNIAN SETTLEMENT

Goals

At the onset, it will be important that the United States include elements of confidence building and possibly later-on arms control in connection with any settlement package in order to support the cease-fire and to build political support among allies and partners for the overall U.S. initiative. We need to -- establish the settlement agreement as a codification of the peaceful intent of the parties. The agreement should embody clear commitments on confidence-building and arms control. We need to emphasize the importance of a managed internal union and regional balance of power as a key to regional military stability.

-- build international acceptance of the rights of states in the region to have capabilities to defend themselves. Political acceptance of this is fundamental to acceptance of a possible equip and train mission, and might also be built into constitutional or settlement provisions.

-- establish the stabilization package as a controlled response to lift in order to avoid any possibility of an intra-Bosnia or regional arms race.

-- build appropriate linkages to and constraints on the Bosnian military to minimize possible outside destabilizing fundamentalist influence.

These issues will be of interest to allies and the parties as we proceed with consideration of the various aspects of implementation. Given the significant role of OSCE in any CBM/arms control efforts and the earlier OSCE planning for Balkan confidence-building/arms control, we will need to engage primarily OSCE at an early stage of the implementation planning process. German thinking on these issues is already advanced, and they may wish to take the lead on some issues.

Initial Confidence-Building/Stabilization Efforts

Political-military confidence-building measures geared to specific areas and tactical situations along lines of confrontation within Bosnia itself will be required at the outset and should be included in the appropriate settlement agreement annexes. The immediate objective after settlement

DECLASSIFIED PER E.O. 13526 2/6/2020 (8.93)
CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

DRAFT

and deployment of IFOR will be to supplement and help stabilize the cease-fire contained in the settlement. Accordingly, early measures would focus on disengagement of the parties and transparency. In practice, many of these will be included in the initial IFOR taskings as specified in the final terms of a cease-fire/cessation of hostilities. They might include:

-- Compliance by all parties with the zones of separation and boundary lines between the opposing Parties (i.e., 1 km).

-- Establishment of a Joint Military Commission and joint liaison/communication links at multiple levels between the IFOR and the Federation and Bosnian Serb Armies.

-- Ban on Bosnian Serb and Federation military-related lethal aircraft (i.e., combat aircraft) activities for at least one year.

-- Declarations of all kinds of military equipment and arms within 20 km of the zones of separation.

-- Exchange of prisoners provisions.

In the first instance, the IFOR will come face to face with the realities of the parties' degree of adherence to these measures. However, at a certain point (depending on safety constraints and at its discretion), IFOR might wish to transfer some of the basic interpositional and monitoring responsibilities to the EUMM or OSCE missions.

Follow-on Confidence-Building Measures

Separate from this first tier of CBM/separation efforts, we should begin to engage the OSCE to re-start planning on specific CBM measures for a more fully-developed and formalized CBM regime for the longer term, emphasizing transparency and communications. Though OSCE is only a vehicle for facilitation, and will require prompting by members, it might be used effectively as a negotiation toolbox for this effort. Language should be included in a stabilization annex to the settlement that commits parties to cooperate with the OSCE to develop and initiate a CBM's regime, including provisions for verification and data exchange. Specific elements of that regime might be drawn from the following:

-- Permanent restrictions on deployments and exercises in certain sensitive areas, particularly within defined border regions;

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

DRAFT

-- Annual limits on the number of exercises above a fairly low threshold;

-- Numerical limits on active and reserve personnel and on maneuver units (battalions);

-- Annual limits on call-ups of reservists;

-- Limits on the number, size, and equipment of special operations and/or paramilitary units.

-- Reduction of arms stockpiles.

-- Regional verification inspections.

-- Ban on certain military activities-exercises in selected areas or region-wide, or, a notification regime of such planned activities exceeding a certain threshold.

-- Information exchange categorizing force capabilities, command structures and units down to the company level, providing overall weapons holdings and identifying numbers, locations and types of all major weapons systems.

-- Agreement among the parties to place all armed units operating in their territories under effective, civilian, central control by, among other steps, abolishing all paramilitary units, declaring their deployment illegal, and taking steps to enforce prohibition. (Militia units serving under central control would be allowed.)

EUMM/OSCE missions, upon assumption of any of the above-mentioned CBM tasks in the field, should report findings and progress to the Senior Implementation Coordinator and the IFOR Commander on a regular basis.

Bosnia Weapons Caps

An imbalance in weaponry between Federation and Bosnian Serb forces is apparent in several categories, including personnel. A stable security environment might be assisted later on by establishment of simple CFE-type caps on certain categories of equipment, but only after a certain stabilization and equalization on both sides has been approached. The OSCE again would be the mechanism to move over the longer term toward any kind of negotiation on a caps regime. In this context, consideration might be given to working toward the establishment of the following caps (numbers for illustrative purposes only) for each side in Bosnia alone on the following categories of equipment as defined in the CFE agreement:

DRAFT

(1)	Battle Tanks	500
(2)	Armored Combat Vehicles	240
(3)	Artillery	1,800
(4)	Combat Aircraft	32
(5)	Combat Helicopters	17

The settlement stabilization annex might include certain language in which the sides commit themselves to work with OSCE within the context of broader confidence-building efforts, to establish caps on the above categories of equipment.

Theater Balance

The establishment of a theater-wide balance of forces would be much more difficult, given the absence of two clearly-delineated sides. However, once caps are established for the sides applicable to the territory of Bosnia, OSCE might also be pursue caps for such primary equipment pieces for other countries in the region.

Incentives

Despite best efforts to develop CBM's and arms control weapons caps in the region, any possible future attacks by the "FRY" or Croatia on Bosnia or each other, for example, would be treated as "traditional" attacks by one country upon another as a violation of UN international law with all possible repercussions. However, agreement by parties (including inside Bosnia) to specific measures might at some point be linked to financial assistance by OSCE members or others.

Arms Embargo

Lifting of the arms embargo on all parties is likely to ensue shortly after settlement as an action of the UN.

Improving Federation Self-Defense

CBM's and arms control alone will not establish the balance of forces (or enhanced Federation defensive capabilities) necessary to contribute to longer-term stability and peace. Therefore, parallel to these efforts, we should move expeditiously towards a field analysis or assessment of the kinds of needs that might be filled through an equip and train effort for the Federation. The U.S. might dispatch a Balance

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

DRAFT

Assessment Team to Bosnia establish a snapshot analysis of the overall balance of forces inside the country. A preliminary assessment might be initiated before settlement. Consideration should be given, however, to whether this can be safely done prior to a cease fire. U.S. definition of equip and train needs should be based on that assessment.

We must continue to distinguish clearly between equip and train packages and the IFOR. Equip and train is a U.S.-led contribution to the goals of the stabilization annex by creating a stable military balance.

U.S. Contribution

The extent of our own contribution may be critical to our asserting the lead role. In addition, we will face some tough decisions on solicitation of contributions. We will have to distinguish between acceptable and unacceptable (to the U.S.) contributions. Matching offers of training and equipment to specific requirements may help limit the involvement of radical states, but probably not preclude it entirely. Training inside the U.S. might be the most critical contribution to building bridges to the Federation forces, to the Federation itself, and limiting Federation military reliance on radical states. However, our goal should not be simply to "build-up" in offensive systems to fill any perceived "caps gap," but rather to provide support more of a defensive nature, if possible, to offset imbalances.

High Option

JCS has been working to develop a range of option packages for selection depending on the results of the needs assessment. If Federation needs were deemed significant and the U.S. decided to lead the effort, we might consider organizing a donors' conference at a U.S. location to fill the needs identified by the assessment team. We would invite participants on the basis of their ability and inclination to assist.

For example:

-- Specific NATO (or even PFP) countries might be solicited by the U.S. to contribute expert trainers to programs.

-- Other NATO (or PFP) countries might be approached to provide sites and support facilities for the out-of-Bosnia training. These countries might include France and Poland, or others.

DRAFT

-- Finally, a select set of other countries from the OIC arena might be able to provide financial or equipment assistance in the effort. Specifically, Egypt might be well-positioned to provide Warsaw Pact equipment, or the OIC might be in a position to organize from members a financial/equipment contribution.

The bottom line should be that participating countries will be invited to assist based on their specific abilities to contribute in a controlled manner to the effort. This would all be done at U.S. suggestion/invitation, through close coordination at NATO, or at least with key allies and possibly Russia, will remain important for maintaining political acceptance.

USCINCEUR might be tasked with the effort. Based on current estimates of force deficits, the high option effort might entail training up to ten mobile brigades, and provision of some 200 tanks and 100 APCs. Given sufficient funding (approximately $440 million), training might entail programs for up to some 20,000 military personnel. This data is notional only.

Low Option

If Federation needs were more modest and the U.S. did not lead, there would be little U.S. ability to shape the actual effort. The U.S. might encourage other countries to assist with building up Federation defensive capabilities. We might provide IMET training to Federation personnel, and include some provision of small arms, antitank weapons, and man-portable air defenses. We might bilaterally encourage donations of equipment from specific countries to address imbalances. Under these conditions, it is unlikely that another NATO country, for example, would assume a lead on this. However, there is a possibility that Iran or some other country would engage in providing arms and training to Muslim Forces, an effort that would not shore up cooperation within the Federation.

Between this low option and the high option are a range of other packages that can be defined. To some degree those packages have to do with the eventual desired outcome of the equip and train effort. Balance of forces can be achieved by providing similar capabilities to those in the hands of the Bosnian Serbs, or by building an enhanced defense capability for the Federation. Neither is mutually exclusive. The goal here is not a precise balance or an absolute deterrent, but rather stability. That stability has its best odds through a relative sense of balance/deterrence, a package of active CBM's and arms control efforts, and a training program that minimizes radical influences.

DRAFT

Build-Down

Potential suppliers (i.e., participants in a donors conference) might consider whether to agree to a suppliers consortium (like the Australia Group) to restrict arms sales of offensive-use only kinds of weaponry to the Bosnian sides. It might also insist that recipients of their equipment destroy old/current equipment in amounts equal or greater to new equipment received; this might go in the direction of some build down proposals.

Legal Framework

The legal framework for a possible U.S. contribution is appended to this paper.

Funding

Some preliminary indications of funding possibilities are provided in the appended legal framework paper and OMB paper.

Equip & Train Packages

More specific equip and train package options covering a certain range of assistance are provided in a JCS appendix to this paper.

Re-introduction to Bosnia

The introduction of equipment back into the Federation would be timed to coincide with the development of a secure and relatively stable environment and the 1996 envisioned withdrawal of the IFOR and with the development and success of CBM development within the region.

Steps Needed Before U.S. Could Provide Defense Articles and Services.

- Before furnishing defense articles or defense services to the Government of Bosnia-Hercegovina under the Foreign Assistance Act or the Arms Export Control Act, the President would need to sign a Presidential determination that the furnishing of such assistance "will strengthen the security of the United States and promote world peace."

- For at least certain forms of assistance, we would need also to conclude a bilateral agreement under which the GOBH provides end-use, retransfer and related assurances (described §505 of the Foreign Assistance Act).

-- The agreement would be similar to the one we have already concluded with the Bosnian Government to cover the IMET program.

-- Our "standard agreement" could be modified to have the Bosnians provide additional assurances tailored to address specific concerns that we might have.

Authorities Under U.S. Law for Making Sales and Providing Assistance

- We have legal authority to supply defense articles and services to foreign countries, either as assistance or through sales.

- To make sales, either Bosnia (or someone else on Bosnia's behalf) would need to furnish funds to cover the costs of the defense articles and services.

- To provide assistance, we could draw on a variety of foreign assistance accounts -- e.g., the Foreign Military Financing and IMET accounts -- though foreign assistance funding is of course tight. We could also provide assistance in the form of nonlethal excess defense articles if we are able to identify appropriate articles

- DOD authorities under Title 10 of the U.S. Code could also be available for at least some forms of support. For example, up to $2 million could be made available for military education and training under the "CINC Initiative Fund".

- It may also be possible to utilize drawdown authorities -- in particular, the special $50 million drawdown authority for Bosnia contained in §546 of the FY-95 Foreign Operations Appropriations Act. (Similar provisions are included in the House-passed version of this bill for FY-96, and the version of this bill being marked up today by the Senate Appropriations Committee).

Sales and Assistance Programs Are Conducted on a Bilateral Basis

- U.S. security assistance is provided on a bilateral basis (rather than, for example, via USG contributions of funds to a multilateral fund). The U.S. effort to provide security assistance can of course be coordinated with efforts by other countries.

Sales and Assistance Programs Are Conducted On a Government-to-Government Basis

- Under the Foreign Assistance Act and the Arms Export Control Act, U.S. defense articles and services must be provided to a "country or international organization." Although this would permit us to proceed with a program for "Bosnia", we could not conduct a program for the "Federation" as such, since the Federation is not a "country or international organization."

- Nevertheless, defense articles and services could be provided to Bosnia for use by the Federation.

- Federation personnel would need to be considered as "officers, employees or agents" of Bosnia in order to proceed in this fashion. (We should be mindful of this requirement as we mold the peace plan.)

Status of US personnel

- There should be some kind of agreement providing status protection for US personnel who may be present in Bosnia (or perhaps neighboring countries) in connection with US sales or assistance.

- Such an agreement could be concluded in the form of a short exchange of diplomatic notes with the host government.

RESOURCES FOR THE PROVISION OF EQUIPMENT AND TRAINING TO BOSNIAN FEDERATION FORCES

October 2, 1995

Potential Sources of Funding:

Annual Appropriations

- Foreign Military Financing (FMF) provides grant and loan financing for the procurement of U.S. defense articles, defense services (such as transportation and training), and design and construction services by friendly countries and international organizations. (Authorized by Section 23 of the Arms Export Control Act)

  Status of FMF Availability in FY 1996:

  - o The Administration requested $3.352 billion in function 150.
  - o No FMF funds were requested for Bosnia.
  - o Congress proposes to cut the request by up to $81 million.
  - o As a result of these cuts, virtually no FMF would be available for other programs after: presidential commitments to the Middle East and Partnership for Peace; the costs of administering the military assistance program; and the subsidy required for $544 million of loans to Greece and Turkey were funded.
  - o The draft Senate Foreign Operations appropriation bill authorizes the transfer of up to $20 million from SEED/NIS economic assistance to FMF.

- International Military Education and Training (IMET) provides grant military education and training to military and related civilian personnel of foreign countries. (Authorized under Section 541 of the Foreign Assistance Act)

  Status of IMET Availability in FY 1996:

  - o The Administration requested $39 million in function 150.
  - o $200,000 was for Bosnia.
  - o The House approved $39 million, but the Senate Foreign Operations Subcommittee cut IMET to $19 million in anticipation that the $20 million military training program authorized in Defense legislation would be funded (neither Defense Appropriations committee provided any funds for training).
  - o While some funds may be added back in conference, only part of the $20 million is likely to be restored. If so, limited IMET funds could available to meet training requirements not included in the request.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

DRAFT

- Partnership for Peace (PFP) (Title 10 Portion) provides funds to further stability and security in European states by building strong, practical ties with NATO countries and developing strong candidates for NATO partnership through training and joint exercises.

  Status of Availability in FY 1996:

  - o The Administration requested $40 million in function 050.
  - o Congress approved $40 million in the Joint Staff O&M budget.
  - o Bosnia has not joined the PFP and is not likely to do so in the near future.

- CINC Initiative Fund (CIF) provides funds to help the CINCs meet emergency and emergent military needs (established in FY 1990). This fund can be used to identify equipment and training requirements.

  Status of Availability in FY 1996:

  - o The Administration requested $25 million in function 050.
  - o Congress has approved $25 million.

Supplemental Appropriations

If clear requirements to equip and train Federation forces were identified in FY 1996 and these could not be covered with FY 1996 FMF or IMET appropriations, supplemental appropriations could be requested. There is a high probability that Congress would require offsetting cuts in other programs to avoid increasing outlays. These could be in budget functions 050 or 150.

Special Authorizing Legislative Initiative (Not scheduled for congressional action)

- Bosnia-Hercogovina Self Defense Fund. This legislation would (1) create an international fund to receive funds and military equipment to assist in the self defense of Bosnia, (2) authorize the United States to contribute up to $50 million to that fund to finance the procurement of military equipment, and (3) authorize the drawdown of $50 million of U.S. defense articles and services .

  Status:

  - o Creates legal authority for a new fund and permits U.S. military contributions to it.
  - o Authorizes the transfer of FMF appropriations (discussed above) or duplicates other drawdown authorities (see below).
  - o Does not have a high probability of passage.
  - o Even if passed, would not create any additional budgetary resources.

DRAFT

Potential Sources of Services and Equipment:

Services and Equipment

- Special Drawdown Authority is contained in Section 540 of the FY 1996 Foreign Operations Appropriations Bill. When enacted, it will authorize the President to draw down up to $50 million of defense articles and services (principally transportation and training) to enhance the defensive capabilities of Bosnian forces. Use of this authority is contingent on lifting the UN arms embargo.

- Annual Drawdown Authority (Section 506(A)(1) of the Foreign Assistance Act) authorizes the President to draw down up to $75 million of defense articles and services (principally transportation and training) in FY 1996. The use of this authority is contingent on the President determining that there is (1) an unforseen emergency that requires immediate military assistance (2) which cannot be met from another funding authority.

  Note: Although both drawdown provisions authorize the reimbursement of Defense for articles and services provided, supplemental appropriations would be required for such reimbursement. Recently, Congress has required program cuts to offset supplemental appropriations.

Equipment (only)

- Excess Defense Articles (EDA): The kind and limited amount of equipment projected to be available in this program is not likely to match Federation equipment requirements. Given the location and condition of much of this equipment, funds would have to be found to refurbish and transport any equipment provided.

- U.S.-Held Warsaw Pact Equipment Stocks. The United States currently holds a limited inventory.

POSITION PAPER

JF

Subject: Russian Participation in IFOR -- Additional Points

1. ~~(S)~~ Purpose. In response to NSC tasking, this paper expands on the Joint Staff paper, "Russian Participation in IFOR," considered by the Deputies Committee on 29 Sep 95.

2. ~~(S)~~ Major Points.

- On 29 Sep, Deputies agreed that:
  - ◊ IFOR unity of command is to be preserved.
  - ◊ Russian participation in IFOR is desirable.
  - ◊ US preference is for Russian troops to be integrated in IFOR within major allies' AOR.
  - ◊ Next steps are a President Clinton letter to President Yeltsin, followed by a meeting between SecDef and Grachev to determine Russian position regarding IFOR participation.

- Joint Staff was tasked to consider two additional points:
  - ◊ "Functional cut-out" option: Is it feasible to define a role for the Russians that would limit their participation to particular functions?
  - ◊ "UN parallel chain" option: Would it be acceptable to the US for Janvier to be dual-hatted as the Deputy Theater Commander and the UNPF Commander and to command Russian forces in his UN role?

3. ~~(S)~~ Functional Cut-out Option.

Discussion. This alternative would integrate Russian forces in IFOR but constrain them to particular functions. Combat functions place a premium on interoperability, therefore Russian (and other non-NATO) contributions to IFOR would have least adverse impact on IFOR effectiveness if they performed other than combat functions; i.e., other than armor, infantry, artillery, combat aviation. Sample combat support and combat service support functions most appropriate for Russian (non-NATO) elements include:

- military police: traffic control, humanitarian assistance convoy escort.
- engineering: road repair, limited infrastructure repair to support IFOR movement, obstacle clearing, surveying demarcation line.
- theater transportation, including trucks and helicopter lift.
- explosive ordnance disposal (EOD); mine-clearing.

Such non-combat functions may not be attractive to the Russians, however, because they might be perceived as second-class roles.

A variant of this alternative would be to offer Russians non-military functions within Bosnia under the control of the civilian political implementation structure. If Russian participation were limited to non-military functions separate from IFOR, NATO's unity of command would not be jeopardized.

Recommendation. US position to integrate Russian forces (OPCON) could be modified to include specifying non-combat functions.

4. ~~(S)~~ UN Parallel Chain Option.

Discussion. This alternative has Russian forces within Bosnia working for Janvier in a UN capacity, rather than being integrated in the IFOR. This clearly violates the principle of unity of command within IFOR's theater; the NATO commander would be unable to count on Russian elements in his theater. In effect, this would constitute a dual-key for the regions or functions assigned to Russia elements. This is unacceptable.

It has been suggested that this arrangement might be tolerable if Janvier's link to the UN could be constrained. Even if constraints acceptable to both the UN and NATO could be agreed, Janvier would still have some degree of independence from the NATO commander. If the political implementation structure is linked to the UN through a UN-approved high representative -- as appears to be increasingly likely, then the UN chain in theater will be even more prominent and more difficult to constrain.

Further, in talks with DoD on 2 Oct, Annan (UN, DPKO) indicated that the UN sees no role for a UN officer within the IFOR chain of command since no UN forces would be in IFOR. The UN, therefore, might resist the proposed Janvier dual-hat arrangement. This is consistent with the UN's intent to begin down-sizing UNPROFOR and decrease overall costs of peacekeeping operations.

In summary, while the Russians would likely favor working for a separate UN chain of command, this alternative:

- violates NATO unity of command.
- would complicate Congressional consultations.
- does not set a favorable precedent for future NATO CJTF operations.
- does not enhance Russian-PFP and NATO-Russian relations beyond PFP.

Recommendation. The US should not accept a UN chain parallel to the IFOR command chain.

5. ~~(S)~~ Summary. Recommendations from the Joint Staff paper, "Russian Participation in IFOR," considered by the Deputies Committee on 29 Sep 95 are still valid and should form the initial offer to the Russians in consultations regarding their participation in IFOR. Once Russia's position is established, alternatives to the US position that preserve IFOR's unity of command can be considered.

3. During subsequent discussion about the possibility of establishing cantonment areas for the parties' military forces, the Principals decided to reexamine the issue of a 20-km heavy-weapons-free zone, while reaffirming their approval of a 4-km all-weapons-free zone along the inter-entity boundary (see summary of conclusions for October 27 Principals Committee meeting).

MEMORANDUM FOR PRINCIPALS

SUBJECT: IFOR Issues

This memorandum summarizes the conclusions of the Deputies Committee on a range of issues pertaining to the mission of the Bosnia peace implementation force (IFOR). It includes issues on which Deputies reached agreement (Section A) and issues for which a Principals' decision is needed (Section B). The numbers in parentheses refer to the questions in the JCS paper "IFOR Issues" of October 23, 1995.

A. AGREED ISSUES

What is the IFOR's mission?

The primary tasks of the IFOR, as set forth in SACEUR's concept of operations, are:

- Assume command of the theater and immediately establish robust C2 capability;
- Establish the IFOR rapidly, building on in-place forces and limited early deployments followed by rapid introduction of substantial follow-on force;
- Control withdrawal of non-transferred UNPROFOR forces in coordination with IFOR deployment;
- Protect the force and ensure self defense and freedom of movement for the IFOR;
- Establish, monitor and enforce compliance with the military terms of the peace agreement in B-H. For now they specifically include:
  - -- establish an immediate reaction force;
  - -- mark the internal lines and areas of separation between the parties, monitor, and if necessary enforce, the withdrawal of forces to their respective territories within an agreed upon period;
  - -- establish and monitor a zone of separation;

-- if necessary, assume responsibility for the emergency withdrawal of UNCRO forces;

-- employ NATO air forces as part of the IFOR;

-- employ NATO maritime forces as part of the IFOR.

- These missions are subject to review, revision and/or expansion based on the terms of the peace settlement.

What is our strategy for avoiding mission creep? (Q1)

- Language in the Framework Agreement should clearly state that IFOR's mission is to implement the military aspects of the peace agreement, as defined in the military annex. The IFOR will carry out its mission in coordination with civilian organizations (such as OSCE, EU, and the UN) which will implement the non-military aspects of the agreement.

How does SICOR interact with IFOR if there is a violation? (Q5)

- The Senior Implementation Coordinator (SICOR) has no authority over IFOR. However, to the extent practical, the IFOR commander will maintain liaison with the SICOR. SACEUR, or his designee, can deal directly with civilians heads of each entity concerning military matters and not just with the Chiefs of Defense.

What is the relationship of the IFOR to the civilian police? What violations do the police handle and what violations does IFOR handle? (Q6,8)

- IFOR will not have responsibility for police functions (e.g. crimes, property issues, civil order).

- The Framework Agreement should include authorities to organize a civilian police component of the peace implementation plan to assist governments and populations in developing local police forces.

- See unresolved issues (Section B) with respect to the U.S. role in organizing civilian police efforts

Will IFOR stop attacks on UN or other international civilian agencies and their workers? (Q7)

- IFOR will not be responsible for investigating past incidents of attacks on international civilian personnel or atrocities and human rights violations.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- The IFOR commander is authorized to stop deliberate violence against international civilian agencies where NATO forces are present and have the means and the opportunity, and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission.

- IFOR will not provide routine protection for relief convoys and civilian movement, but, if such convoys are attacked, the commander is authorized to stop deliberate violence where NATO forces are present or have a means and opportunity, and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission.

- See unresolved issues (Section B) on whether IFOR should respond to attacks in areas that are "over the horizon."

What will IFOR do about attacks on indigenous civilians, atrocities and human rights violations? (Q3A, 7A, 9, 9A)

- IFOR will not be responsible for investigating past incidents of attacks, atrocities, or human rights violations.

- The IFOR commander is authorized to stop deliberate violence against indigenous civilians, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian rights violations and where NATO forces are present and have the means and the opportunity, and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission.

- See unresolved issues (Section B) on whether IFOR should respond to gross violations of human rights in areas that are "over the horizon."

What, if anything, will IFOR do about election security? (Q12)

- The IFOR will create secure conditions for elections by completing its primary tasks of deploying forces to establish presence and separation between warring factions, and enforcing compliance with military aspects of the peace agreement.

- The OSCE should be enlisted as the lead organization in the electoral component of the overall implementation effort, including the responsibility for an election security plan.

- IFOR will not have specific election security tasks.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Under what circumstances will IFOR use force against violations of the peace agreement? Who decides whether IFOR is responsible for handling a violation? (Q3, 3A, 4, 27)

- The IFOR commander is to implement and ensure compliance with the military aspects of the peace agreement -- in particular, withdrawal of forces to their respective territories within an agreed period and establishment of agreed zones of separation.

- Forces which fire from one territory to another, into or across the zone of separation, or which probe, patrol, snipe, or violate the separation of forces agreement by moving regular or paramilitary forces into or through the zone, will be deemed in violation of the peace agreement. The IFOR commander will judge when and what force will be used to stop the violation.

- Based upon the advice of the military commanders, the NAC will decide whether there has been a major breakdown in compliance with the agreement. A major breakdown would warrant IFOR withdrawal.

- The U.S. will seek NAC approval of Rules of Engagement that provide the IFOR commander with broad authority for use of force in most contingencies without requiring additional NAC decisions.

- The IFOR commander can seek NAC guidance through SACEUR at key stages not covered by the initial ROE, such as major changes in the pattern of military activity, requests for NATO to assume additional tasks, major breakdowns in compliance, and/or disagreements with non-NATO troop contributors or with other organizations that cannot be resolved in theater.

Who will provide security for inhabitants in the areas where territory changes control under the peace agreement from one warring faction to the other?

- The IFOR will not have responsibility for movement of refugees and displaced persons.

- Where territory is transferred by the peace agreement, IFOR will assure non-interference with population movements by military forces during the transfer, for a finite period of time.

- The UNHCR and other organizations will retain responsibility for: humanitarian assistance for the civilian population; permanent settlement of refugees and assistance for civilian population; permanent resettlement of refugees and displaced persons; dissemination of information to the public; and movement of populations across borders.

What is IFOR's responsibility to those indigenous civilians displaced in the past (i.e. before the peace agreement)?

- Although the peace agreement would confirm the right of displaced civilians to return to their homes, IFOR will not have responsibility for movement of these refugee populations.

Should we demand, as a precondition for IFOR deployment, that parties make tangible gestures of good faith ("indicators of seriousness") between initialing and signature of the peace agreement? (Q23)

- We should seek confidence-building measures in the framework agreement that parties should commit to fulfill between initialing and signature of the peace agreement and deployment, but their fulfillment would not be a precondition for rapid deployment of IFOR. These could include:
  - -- continued cessation of hostilities and observance of the cease-fire;
  - -- no patrols forward of friendly force positions;
  - -- no firing of large-caliber weapons;
  - -- shut down of all air-early-warning and air-defense radars within 72 hours of initialing;
  - -- commencement of withdrawal by each party of its forces, military institutions, facilities and weapons from the zone of separation.
- If, however, conditions on the ground have deteriorated significantly by the time of signature, this could represent a withdrawal of strategic consent by the parties.

Does the IFOR remain in Bosnia for only 12 months? (Q28)

- The IFOR mission should have a finite duration. But until we have a final peace agreement and final implementation plan, we will preserve our flexibility on the exact duration of the mission while continuing to use 12 months as the planning figure.

Will the IFOR enforce implementation of the peace agreement evenhandedly (i.e. including the use of force against Federation as well as Bosnian Serb forces in the event of violations of the agreement? (Q10)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- IFOR will enforce the military aspects of the peace agreement evenhandedly with regard to all parties.

Do we want a 20-km heavy-weapons-free zone of separation and/or a 4-km all-weapons-free zone within the zone of separation? (Q14, 15)

- The framework agreement should include a 20-km heavy-weapons-free zone adjusted to fit the demarcation of territory, and a 4-km all-weapons-free zone of separation.

Should the IFOR Headquarters be in Naples, Sarajevo or Zagreb? (Q20)

- The IFOR HQ will be in Sarajevo. The IFOR commander will determine when it is logistically feasible to locate the HQ in Sarajevo, and he is authorized to establish rear headquarters in Naples and Zagreb.

How will IFOR handle war criminals?

- It is not IFOR's mission to search and find war criminals.
- However, in the course of performing its mission, and where the opportunity presents itself, IFOR may apprehend war criminals.

What is the nature of IFOR presence in Serb territory besides free access? (Q16)

- IFOR will have free access into and within the Bosnian Serb entity, and will conduct regular patrols on the Serb side of the zone of separation.
- See unresolved issues (Section B) on nature of IFOR presence in Serb territory beyond free access and regular patrols.

B. UNRESOLVED ISSUES

What does IFOR do about reported "over the horizon" (out of IFOR's immediate presence) violations of the peace agreement or "over the horizon" reports of gross violations of human rights? (Q3A, 4, 7A)

The issue is whether the IFOR commander should have the authority to respond to reported deliberate attacks or gross violations of human rights when they occur "over the horizon," i.e. in areas removed from IFOR areas of deployment.

- One view is that to ignore such a report could adversely affect the stability of the peace agreement and undermine IFOR's credibility and public support. This view would authorize the commander to act on the basis of his own judgment, and would include this potential task in the IFOR mission.

- The other view is that the authority to respond to "over the horizon" situations will lead to mission creep and increase force requirements. This view would argue that we should adhere to the line set forth in Section A (NATO Commanders are authorized to act, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian need and where NATO forces are present and have the means and the opportunity to stop deliberate violence to life and persons taking no active part in the hostilities).

What does IFOR do about reported "over the horizon" reports of attacks on international civilian agencies?

The issue is whether the IFOR commander should have the authority to respond to reported deliberate attacks against international civilian agencies when they occur "over the horizon."

- One view is that to fail to act to protect international civilian personnel could undermine IFOR's credibility and public support. This view would argue that an attack on an international agency that is implementing the civilian aspects of the settlement or supporting reconstruction efforts should command an immediate response from IFOR. This view would authorize the commander to act on the basis of his own judgment and would include this potential task in the IFOR mission.

- The other view is that the authority to respond to "over the horizon" situations will lead to mission creep and increase force requirements. This view would argue that we should adhere to the line set forth in Section A (NATO Commanders are authorized to act in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian need and where NATO forces are present and have the means and opportunity to stop deliberate violence to life and persons taking no active part in the hostilities).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Should there be an IFOR symbolic presence on the external borders of Bosnia, particularly the inter-Serb border? (Q11, 11A)

- One view is that the Bosnian Government will demand such a presence, and that a minimal IFOR presence will counter the perception of a partition.

- The other view is that the mission of such forces on the border is unclear, that their presence would increase the size of the force and increase the risk of hostage-taking, and that any border monitoring functions can be handled by civilian agencies.

What is the nature of IFOR presence in Serb territory besides free access and patrols within the zone of separation? (Q16)

The issue is whether the IFOR mission should include being deployed regularly or, to some degree, stationed in Bosnian Serb territory.

- One view is that such deployment or stationing of IFOR troops in Bosnian Serb territory will promote evenhandedness and credibility, deter violations of the agreement within the Serb entity, and create some presence in the Serb entity during elections.

- The other view is that a regular presence will jeopardize the safety of these troops, provide an attractive target for retaliation or hostage-taking, and increase the force requirements for IFOR.

What is the clear and defensible end-state that IFOR seeks to achieve before departing? (Q10, 29)

The issue is what are the expectations for an end-state after one year of IFOR operations in Bosnia-Herzegovina. We cannot guarantee enduring peace, but we can give the parties a reasonable opportunity to consolidate peace within a finite period as a result of the military and civilian aspects of the implementation plan.

This issue requires further definition and refinement as the peace agreement takes shape and NATO planning proceeds.

The following is an initial list of possible milestones that we would hope to have reached by the end of the 12-month implementation period -- although their accomplishment would not be a precondition for IFOR's withdrawal at that time:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- UNPROFOR elements have completed withdrawal from the former Yugoslavia or transferred to NATO command and control;

-- the entity boundary lines have been established, areas of separation and any cantonment areas have been marked and agreed to by the relevant parties;

-- the parties' forces have withdrawn to their respective territories, to include adherence to restrictions on the location, movement, use and reporting of military forces within zones of separation and cantonment areas;

-- the National Independent Electoral Commission, Arbitration Tribunal, Commission on Human Rights, Commission for Refugees and Displaced Persons, Commission to Preserve National Monuments, Joint Pubic Transportation corporation, and all civilian components of the peace implementation effort have been established and allowed freedom of movement to accomplish their mandates;

-- elections for the National Assembly, National Presidency, Local Parliaments have been completed and the Constitutional Structures are seated, to include the appointment of the Constitutional Court.

Should we seek in the Framework Agreement a commitment that, after several months, the parties will be required to withdraw all their military forces (weapons and personnel) to specified cantonment areas?

The issue is whether the peace agreement should require all military forces to pull back further than the zones of separation to enter cantonment areas as a confidence-building measure.

- One view is that, if the parties cooperate, the peace agreement will be more easily enforceable, stability will be enhanced and fewer IFOR troops will be needed to implement the peace agreement.

- The other view is that, if the parties do not cooperate, more troops will be needed to enforce and monitor the cantonment areas, and evenhandedness may be jeopardized.

When do we have to give the order to preposition? What is the timing and sequence for ACTWARNs, ACTREQs, and ACTORDs? How much time between signing and deployment? What kind of decisions need to go to the President? When? (Q21, 22, 24, 26)

The attached notional timeline raises at least three issues:

1) How do we sequence the various international conferences?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

2) Will prepositioning of troops be undertaken before Congressional approval of the U.S. commitment of troops?

3) When is the appropriate time to go to Congress for approval of troop commitments?

What role should the U.S. play in seeking to establish civilian police and/or international police monitors? (Q6, 8)

As noted above, Deputies agree that IFOR will not have responsibility for police functions. The issue is whether the U.S. should take an active role in creating and/or strengthening a civilian police component (indigenous police and/or international police monitors).

- One view is that the U.S. should take an active role in developing a police force and monitors, with IFOR available as back-up in the case of major civil unrest. The supporting argument is that a viable civilian police component will relieve the pressures on IFOR and facilitate exit at the end of the 12-month period. It is further argued that without active U.S. leadership, the implementation effort (in particular, holding of elections and return of refugees) is unlikely to succeed.

- The other view is that it is sufficient for IFOR generally to provide a secure environment through the accomplishment of its primary tasks. For the U.S. to back up the developing police force will lead to assumption by IFOR of police functions throughout the country.

- The Framework Agreement should include authorities to organize a civilian police component of the peace implementation plan to assist governments and populations in developing local police forces.
- IFOR will not be responsible for investigating past incidents of attacks on international civilian personnel or atrocities and human rights violations.
- The IFOR commander is authorized to stop deliberate violence against international civilian agencies where NATO forces are present and have the means and the opportunity and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission.
- IFOR will not provide routine protection for relief convoys and civilian movement but if such convoys are attacked, the commander is authorized to stop deliberate violence where NATO forces are present or have a means and opportunity and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission.
- IFOR will not be responsible for investigating past incidents of attacks, atrocities or human rights violations.
- The IFOR commander is authorized to stop deliberate violence against indigenous civilians, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian rights violations and where NATO forces are present and have the means and the opportunity and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission.
- The IFOR will create secure conditions for elections by completing its primary tasks of deploying forces to establish presence and separation between warring factions and enforcing compliance with military aspects of the peace agreement.
- The OSCE should be enlisted as the lead organization in the electoral component of the overall implementation effort, including the responsibility for an election security plan.
- IFOR will not have specific election security tasks.
- The IFOR commander is to implement and ensure compliance with the military aspects of the peace agreement -- in particular, withdrawal of forces to their respective territories within an agreed period and establishment of agreed zones of separation.
- Forces that fire from one territory to another, into or across the zone of separation, or which probe, patrol, snipe or violate the separation of forces agreement by moving regular or paramilitary forces into or through the zone, constitute a violation of the peace agreement. The IFOR commander will judge when and what force will be used to stop the violation.
- Based upon the advice of the military commanders, the NAC will decide whether there has been a major breakdown in compliance with the agreement. A major breakdown would warrant IFOR withdrawal.

- The U.S. will seek NAC approval of Rules of Engagement that provide the IFOR commander with broad authority for use of force in most contingencies without requiring additional NAC decisions.
- The IFOR commander can seek NAC guidance through SACEUR at key stages not covered by the initial ROE, such as major changes in the pattern of military activity, requests for NATO to assume additional tasks, major breakdowns in compliance and/or disagreements with non-NATO troop contributors or with other organizations that cannot be resolved in theater.
- The IFOR will not have responsibility for movement of refugees and displaced persons.
- Where territory is transferred by the peace agreement, IFOR will assure non-interference with population movements by military forces during the transfer for a finite period of time.
- The UNHCR and other organizations will retain responsibility for: humanitarian assistance for the civilian population; permanent settlement of refugees and assistance for civilian population; permanent resettlement of refugees and displaced persons; dissemination of information to the public; and movement of populations across borders.
- Although the peace agreement would confirm the right of displaced civilians to return to their homes, IFOR will not have responsibility for movement of these refugee populations.
- We should seek confidence-building measures in the framework agreement that parties should commit to fulfill between initialing and signature of the peace agreement and deployment, but their fulfillment would not be a precondition for rapid deployment of IFOR. These could include:
  - -- continued cessation of hostilities and observance of the cease-fire;
  - -- no patrols forward of friendly force positions;
  - -- no firing of large-caliber weapons;
  - -- shut down of all air-early-warning and air-defense radars within 72 hours of initialing;
  - -- commencement of withdrawal by each party of its forces, military institutions, facilities and weapons from the zone of separation.

Under what circumstances will IFOR use force against violations of the peace agreement? Who decides whether IFOR is responsible for handling a violation? (Q3, 3A, 4, 27)

human rights when they occur "over the horizon," i.e. in areas removed from IFOR areas of deployment.

- One view is that to ignore such a report could adversely affect the stability of the peace agreement and undermine IFOR's credibility and public support. This view would authorize the commander to act on the basis of his own judgment, and would include this potential task in the IFOR mission.

- The other view is that the authority to respond to "over the horizon" situations will lead to mission creep and increase force requirements. This view would argue that we should adhere to the line set forth in Section A (NATO Commanders are authorized to act, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian need and where NATO forces are present and have the means and the opportunity to stop deliberate violence to life and persons taking no active part in the hostilities).

What does IFOR do about reported "over the horizon" reports of attacks on international civilian agencies?

MEMORANDUM FOR PRINCIPALS

FROM: DEPUTIES COMMITTEE

SUBJECT: IFOR Issues

This memorandum summarizes the conclusions of the Deputies Committee on a range of issues pertaining to the mission of the Bosnia peace implementation force (IFOR). It includes issues on which Deputies reached agreement (Section A) and issues for which a Principals' decision is needed (Section B). The numbers in parentheses refer to the questions in the JCS paper "IFOR Issues" of October 23, 1995.

A. AGREED ISSUES

What is the IFOR's mission?

The primary tasks of the IFOR, as set forth in SACEUR's concept of operations, are:

- Assume command of the theater and immediately establish robust C2 capability;
- Establish the IFOR rapidly, building on in-place forces and limited early deployments followed by rapid introduction of substantial follow-on force;
- Control withdrawal of non-transferred UNPROFOR forces in coordination with IFOR deployment;
- Protect the force and ensure self defense and freedom of movement for the IFOR;
- Establish, monitor and enforce compliance with the military terms of the peace agreement in B-H. For now they specifically include:
  - -- establish an immediate reaction force
  - -- mark the internal lines and areas of separation between the parties, monitor, and if necessary enforce, the withdrawal of forces to their respective territories within an agreed upon period;
  - -- establish and monitor a zone of separation;

[1] Does not say establish 'secure environment' through B-H, e.g. response to military-military fighting not along separation zone is

-- if necessary, assume responsibility for the emergency withdrawal of UNCRO forces;

-- employ NATO air forces as part of the IFOR;

-- employ NATO maritime forces as part of the IFOR.

- These missions are subject to review, revision and/or expansion based on the terms of the peace settlement.

[e.g. cantonment of military forces / heavy weapons. See p?

What is our strategy for avoiding mission creep? (Q1)

- Language in the Framework Agreement should clearly state that IFOR's mission is to implement the military aspects of the peace agreement, as defined in the military annex. The IFOR will carry out its mission in coordination with civilian organizations (such as OSCE, EU, and the UN) which will implement the non-military aspects of the agreement.

How does SICOR interact with IFOR if there is a violation? (Q5)

- The Senior Implementation Coordinator (SICOR) has no authority over IFOR. However, to the extent practical, the IFOR commander will maintain liaison with the SICOR. SACEUR, or his designee, can deal directly with civilians heads of each entity concerning military matters and not just with the Chiefs of Defense.

What is the relationship of the IFOR to the civilian police? What violations do the police handle and what violations does IFOR handle? (Q6,8)

- IFOR will not have responsibility for police functions (e.g. crimes, property issues, civil order).

- The Framework Agreement should include authorities to organize a civilian police component of the peace implementation plan to assist governments and populations in developing local police forces.

- See unresolved issues (Section B) with respect to the U.S. role in organizing civilian police efforts

Will IFOR stop attacks on UN or other international civilian agencies and their workers? (Q7)

- IFOR will not be responsible for investigating past incidents of attacks on international civilian personnel or atrocities and human rights violations.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- The IFOR commander is authorized to stop deliberate violence against international civilian agencies where NATO forces are present and have the means and the opportunity, and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission.
- IFOR will not provide routine protection for relief convoys and civilian movement, but, if such convoys are attacked, the commander is authorized to stop deliberate violence where NATO forces are present ~~or~~ have a means and opportunity, and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission.
- See unresolved issues (Section B) on whether IFOR should respond to attacks in areas that are "over the horizon."

What will IFOR do about attacks on indigenous civilians, atrocities and human rights violations? (Q3A, 7A, 9, 9A)

- IFOR will not be responsible for investigating past incidents of attacks, atrocities, or human rights violations.
- The IFOR commander is authorized to stop deliberate violence against indigenous civilians, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian rights violations, ~~and~~ where NATO forces are present and have the means and the opportunity, and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission.
- See unresolved issues (Section B) on whether IFOR should respond to gross violations of human rights in areas that are "over the horizon."

What, if anything, will IFOR do about election security? (Q12)

- The IFOR will create secure conditions for elections by completing its primary tasks of deploying forces to establish presence and separation between warring factions, and enforcing compliance with military aspects of the peace agreement.
- The OSCE should be enlisted as the lead organization in the electoral component of the overall implementation effort, including the responsibility for an election security plan.
- IFOR will not have specific election security tasks.

~~SECRET~~ CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Under what circumstances will IFOR use force against violations of the peace agreement? Who decides whether IFOR is responsible for handling a violation? (Q3, 3A, 4, 27)

- The IFOR commander is to implement and ensure compliance with the military aspects of the peace agreement -- in particular, withdrawal of forces to their respective territories within an agreed period and establishment of agreed zones of separation.
- Forces which fire from one territory to another, into or across the zone of separation, or which probe, patrol, snipe, or violate the separation of forces agreement by moving regular or paramilitary forces into or through the zone, constitute a violation of the peace agreement. The IFOR commander will judge when and what force will be used to stop the violation.
- Based upon the advice of the military commanders, the NAC will decide whether there has been a major breakdown in compliance with the agreement. A major breakdown would warrant IFOR withdrawal.
- The U.S. will seek NAC approval of Rules of Engagement that provide the IFOR commander with broad authority for use of force in most contingencies without requiring additional NAC decisions.
- The IFOR commander can seek NAC guidance through SACEUR at key stages not covered by the initial ROE, such as major changes in the pattern of military activity, requests for NATO to assume additional tasks, major breakdowns in compliance, and/or disagreements with non-NATO troop contributors or with other organizations that cannot be resolved in theater.

Who will provide security for inhabitants in the areas where territory changes control under the peace agreement from one warring faction to the other?

- The IFOR will not have responsibility for movement of refugees and displaced persons.
- Where territory is transferred by the peace agreement, IFOR will assure non-interference with population movements by military forces during the transfer, for a finite period of time.
- The UNHCR and other organizations will retain responsibility for: humanitarian assistance for the civilian population; permanent settlement of refugees and assistance for civilian population; permanent resettlement of refugees and displaced persons; dissemination of information to the public; and movement of populations across borders.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

What is IFOR's responsibility to those indigenous civilians displaced in the past (i.e. before the peace agreement)?

- Although the peace agreement would confirm the right of displaced civilians to return to their homes, IFOR will not have responsibility for movement of these refugee populations.

[and deployment ?

Should we demand, as a precondition for IFOR deployment, that parties make tangible gestures of good faith ("indicators of seriousness") between initialing and signature of the peace agreement? (Q23)

- We should seek confidence-building measures in the framework agreement that parties should commit to fulfill between initialing and signature of the peace agreement and deployment, but their fulfillment would not be a precondition for rapid deployment of IFOR. These could include:
  - -- continued cessation of hostilities and observance of the cease-fire;
  - -- no patrols forward of friendly force positions;
  - -- no firing of large-caliber weapons;
  - -- shut down of all air-early-warning and air-defense radars within 72 hours of initialing;
  - -- commencement of withdrawal by each party of its forces, military institutions, facilities and weapons from the zone of separation.
- If, however, conditions on the ground have deteriorated significantly by the time of signature, this could represent a withdrawal of strategic consent by the parties.

[JCS/DOD addon: doesn't say they are pre-conditions which would be mistake, but recognizes reality we need for Hill, e.g. what if total breakdown of cease-fire before deploy

Does the IFOR remain in Bosnia for only 12 months? (Q28)

- The IFOR mission should have a finite duration. But until we have a final peace agreement and final implementation plan, we will preserve our flexibility on the exact duration of the mission while continuing to use 12 months as the planning figure.

[might focus a second on this]

Will the IFOR enforce implementation of the peace agreement evenhandedly (i.e. including the use of force against Federation as well as Bosnian Serb forces in the event of violations of the agreement? (Q10)

- IFOR will enforce the military aspects of the peace agreement evenhandedly with regard to all parties.

[this is consensus now, but with some uneasiness by Vershbow / Pewitt: Sandy would like an informal "sort of". Don't think we can do that]

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Do we want a 20-km heavy-weapons-free zone of separation and/or a 4-km all-weapons-free zone within the zone of separation? (Q14, 15)

- The framework agreement should include a 20-km heavy-weapons-free zone adjusted to fit the demarcation of territory, and a 4-km all-weapons-free zone of separation.

Should the IFOR Headquarters be in Naples, Sarajevo or Zagreb? (Q20) [George has question on this]

- The IFOR HQ will be in Sarajevo. The IFOR commander will determine when it is logistically feasible to locate the HQ in Sarajevo, and he is authorized to establish rear headquarters in Naples and Zagreb.

How will IFOR handle war criminals? [JCS agrees but very nervous. Worth a second]

- It is not IFOR's mission to search and find war criminals.
- However, in the course of performing its mission, and where the opportunity presents itself, IFOR may apprehend war criminals.

What is the nature of IFOR presence in Serb territory besides free access? (Q16)

- IFOR will have free access into and within the Bosnian Serb entity, and will conduct regular patrols on the Serb side of the zone of separation.
- See unresolved issues (Section B) on nature of IFOR presence in Serb territory beyond free access and regular patrols.

B. UNRESOLVED ISSUES

What does IFOR do about reported "over the horizon" (out of IFOR's immediate presence) violations of the peace agreement or "over the horizon" reports of gross violations of human rights? (Q3A, 4, 7A)

The issue is whether the IFOR commander should have the authority to respond to reported deliberate attacks or gross violations of human rights when they occur "over the horizon," i.e. in areas removed from IFOR areas of deployment.

- One view is that to ignore such a report could adversely affect the stability of the peace agreement and undermine IFOR's credibility and public support. This view would authorize the commander to act on the basis of his own judgment, and would include this potential task in the IFOR mission.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- The other view is that the authority to respond to "over the horizon" situations will lead to mission creep and increase force requirements. This view would argue that we should adhere to the line set forth in Section A (NATO Commanders are authorized to act, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian need and where NATO forces are present and have the means and the opportunity to stop deliberate violence to life and persons taking no active part in the hostilities).

What does IFOR do about reported "over the horizon" reports of attacks on international civilian agencies?

[little more complicated than prior Q and I think more compelling argument for greater authority

The issue is whether the IFOR commander should have the authority to respond to reported deliberate attacks against international civilian agencies when they occur "over the horizon."

- One view is that to fail to act to protect international civilian personnel could undermine IFOR's credibility and public support. This view argue that an attack on an international agency that is implementing the civilian aspects of the settlement or supporting reconstruction efforts should command an immediate response from IFOR. This view would authorize the commander to act on the basis of his own judgment and would include this potential task in the IFOR mission.
- The other view is that the authority to respond to "over the horizon" situations will lead to mission creep and increase force requirements. This view would argue that we should adhere to the line set forth in Section A (NATO Commanders are authorized to act in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian need and where NATO forces are present and have the means and opportunity to stop deliberate violence to life and persons taking no active part in the hostilities).

Should there be an IFOR symbolic presence on the external borders of Bosnia, particularly the inter-Serb border? (Q11, 11A)

Holbrooke and negotiating team

- One view is that the Bosnian Government will demand such a presence, and that a minimal IFOR presence will counter the perception of a partition.
- The other view is that the mission of such forces on the border is unclear, that their presence would increase the size of the force and increase the risk of hostage-taking, and that any border monitoring functions can be handled by civilian agencies.

JCS/OSD

What is the nature of IFOR presence in Serb territory besides free access and patrols within the zone of separation? (Q16)

The issue is whether the IFOR mission should include being deployed regularly or, to some degree, stationed in Bosnian Serb territory.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- One view is that such deployment or stationing of IFOR troops in Bosnian Serb territory will promote evenhandedness and credibility, deter violations of the agreement within the Serb entity, and create some presence in the Serb entity during elections.

- The other view is that a regular presence will jeopardize the safety of these troops, provide an attractive target for retaliation or hostage-taking, and increase the force requirements for IFOR.

What is the clear and defensible end-state that IFOR seeks to achieve before departing? (Q10, 29)

The issue is what are the expectations for an end-state after one year of IFOR operations in Bosnia-Herzegovina. We cannot guarantee enduring peace, but we can give the parties a reasonable opportunity to consolidate peace within a finite period as a result of the military and civilian aspects of the implementation plan.

This issue requires further definition and refinement as the peace agreement takes shape and NATO planning proceeds.

The following is an initial list of possible milestones that we would hope to have reached by the end of the 12-month implementation period -- although their accomplishment would not be a precondition for IFOR's withdrawal at that time:

-- UNPROFOR elements have completed withdrawal from the former Yugoslavia or transferred to NATO command and control;

-- the entity boundary lines have been established, areas of separation and any cantonment areas have been marked and agreed to by the relevant parties;

-- the parties' forces have withdrawn to their respective territories, to include adherence to restrictions on the location, movement, use and reporting of military forces within zones of separation and cantonment areas;

-- the National Independent Electoral Commission, Arbitration Tribunal, Commission on Human Rights, Commission for Refugees and Displaced Persons, Commission to Preserve National Monuments, Joint Pubic Transportation corporation, and all civilian components of the peace implementation effort have been established and allowed freedom of movement to accomplish their mandates;

-- elections for the National Assembly, National Presidency, Local Parliaments have been completed and the Constitutional Structures are seated, to include the appointment of the Constitutional Court.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Should we seek in the Framework Agreement a commitment that, after several months, the parties will be required to withdraw all their military forces (weapons and personnel) to specified cantonment areas?

The issue is whether the peace agreement should require all military forces to pull back further than the zones of separation to enter cantonment areas as a confidence-building measure.

[new issue raised this week; needs more work]

- One view is that, if the parties cooperate, the peace agreement will be more easily enforceable, stability will be enhanced and fewer IFOR troops will be needed to implement the peace agreement.
- The other view is that, if the parties do not cooperate, more troops will be needed to enforce and monitor the cantonment areas, and evenhandedness may be jeopardized.

When do we have to give the order to preposition? What is the timing and sequence for ACTWARNs, ACTREQs, and ACTORDs? How much time between signing and deployment? What kind of decisions need to go to the President? When? (Q21, 22, 24, 26)

The attached notional timeline raises at least three issues:

1) How do we sequence the various international conferences?
2) Will prepositioning of troops be undertaken before Congressional approval of the U.S. commitment of troops?
3) When is the appropriate time to go to Congress for approval of troop commitments?

[can be deferred]

What role should the U.S. play in seeking to establish civilian police and/or international police monitors? (Q6, 8)

As noted above, Deputies agree that IFOR will not have responsibility for police functions. The issue is whether the U.S. should take an active role in creating and/or strengthening a civilian police component (indigenous police and/or international police monitors).

- One view is that the U.S. should take an active role in developing a police force and monitors, with IFOR available as back-up in the case of major civil unrest. The supporting argument is that a viable civilian police component will relieve the pressures on IFOR and facilitate exit at the end of the 12-month period. It is further argued that without active U.S. leadership, the implementation effort (in particular, holding of elections and return of refugees) is unlikely to succeed.

[State doing assessment of existing police]

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- The other view is that it is sufficient for IFOR generally to provide a secure environment through the accomplishment of its primary tasks. For the U.S. to back up the developing police force will lead to assumption by IFOR of police functions throughout the country.

INFORMATION PAPER

1. Purpose. To identify unresolved issues concerning the overall peace implementation effort in Bosnia, to determine the USG position[1] and to delineate the North Atlantic Council (NAC) decisions and provisions of the draft framework agreement for peace (referred to below as the "framework agreement"). This will assist decision makers in identifying inconsistencies between USG positions, NATO positions, and tentative provisions of the framework agreement for peace. Areas in which further NAC guidance initiated by the US would be required, or changes to the framework agreement are required, are identified below in the recommendation sections.

2. Key Points. There were nine main areas of concern discussed during the 20 October 1995 NSC Deputies Committee (DC) meeting (JCS paper dated 20 October attached). They are: mission, non-compliance, election security, deployment, area of operations, timing, exit, Congressional strategy, and public outreach. Issues in which there was consensus at the 20 October DC are listed below as Resolved Issues. Those issues which remain unresolved, or those additional issues that were identified (additional issues are underlined), are listed under the remaining areas of concern.

Resolved Issues

1. What is our strategy for avoiding mission creep?

- USG position is consistent with the NAC decision on 29 September that IFOR would conduct an operation to implement the military aspects of the agreement to ensure compliance, to create safe conditions for the withdrawal of UN forces, and to create secure conditions (within the limits of key military tasks) for the conduct by others of other tasks associated with the peace agreement. To avoid mission creep, the USG must establish tasks and responsible parties for non-military tasks; ensure coordination mechanisms exist between civil and military aspects, and over-watch to prevent migration of tasks. Additionally, language in the framework agreement should clearly state IFOR's mission is to implement the military aspects of the peace agreement. Further, it is clear, a fully developed strategy to implement the civil aspects of the peace agreement is essential to ensure success for the entire peace implementation effort, to achieve the desired end state, and to allow IFOR to be withdrawn within 12 months from its initial deployment. On an urgent basis, the USG must define non-military tasks and assign USG responsibilities with timelines for execution. The implementation of the peace agreement would have many aspects including political, military, civil police, elections, humanitarian assistance,

[1] Unless otherwise noted, IFOR missions, tasks, assumptions or situations are based on the DoD paper "Implementing a Balkan Peace Settlement -- Revision 30" human rights, monitoring, and nation building. The USG should assure international organizations such as the UN, EU, OSCE, and the World Bank promptly begin work on the non-military tasks that will complement the work of the IFOR.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

2. What is our strategy for coordinating the refinement of the NATO plan and the negotiated settlement?

- To ensure consistency between the USG positions, NATO military planning, and the framework agreement, the draft framework agreement needs to be finalized, and coordinated within the Interagency. State will develop a draft framework agreement based on the 23 October drafting sessions. This draft should be cleared within the interagency on 24 October, and once the details of the military aspects of the peace agreement are finalized they should be shared with the NATO Military Authorities, via the proper channels within NATO. This will allow military planners to conduct the troop-to-task analysis necessary to refine IFOR planning, to include identification of potential changes in required force structure.

3. What constitutes a violation of the peace agreement? What is the response of IFOR to violations?

- The NAC decided on 29 September that the Implementation Force (IFOR) will ensure compliance with the military aspects of the peace agreement, in particular, withdrawal of forces to their respective territories and the establishment of agreed zones of separation. The USG position, and the framework agreement are consistent with the NAC decision. ROE and the good judgment of the IFOR Commander will be the basis of when and what force will be used.

5. How could SICOR interact with IFOR if there was a violation?

- NAC decisions and the framework agreement are clear; the SICOR has no authority over the IFOR. The IFOR Commander has the responsibility for military aspects of the implementation agreement, and within that authority, will coordinate his actions with the SICOR. Routinely, civil-military interaction will be coordinated in a Civil-Military Operations Center (CMOC). The DC on 20 October also agreed that the IFOR Commander will deal directly with the head of state of each entity and not just with the Chiefs of Defense.

6. What is the relation of the IFOR to the civilian police?

- The NAC decisions, USG position, and framework agreement are consistent. The NAC on 11 October approved SACEUR's concept of operations dated 6 October 1995 in which the establishment of civil-military structures would occur during Phase I of the operation. SACEUR's briefing to the President on 18 October identifies a coordination relationship between IFOR and the civilian police representative (through a Civil-Military Operations Center (CMOC) established to coordinate the military and civilian aspects of the implementation of the peace agreement).

7. Will IFOR be used to deter attacks on UN civilian agencies and their workers, or civilians? What will IFOR do about atrocities and human rights violations? Who will decide?

- On 20 October the DC determined IFOR will not be responsible for investigating past incidents of attacks on international civilian personnel or atrocities and human rights violations (additional issues identified are addressed below).

8. What violations do the police handle and what violations does IFOR handle?

- On 20 October, the DC agreed IFOR will not provide for civil order. IFOR's responsibility concerning attacks on international civilians and the indigenous population is discussed below.
- On 20 October, the DC determined that the USG should develop a plan (State lead) for a civilian police component and a lead organization should be solicited. The framework agreement should include authorities to organize a civilian police component of the peace implementation plan to assist local governments and populations in developing local police forces. This should include, at a minimum, authority to assess the present police force, vet the personnel presently assigned, train police, monitor police functions, supplement the police force as necessary, and establish a border patrol.

10. Do we have a "threshold" for use of force against the Federation? Who will decide when the force will be used? How do we define even-handedness? How does the IFOR mission relate to efforts by countries to provide military assistance to the Bosnian Government?

- On 20 October the DC determined this issue relates to sporadic violations of the peace agreement. Since in peace operations, the impartiality (even-handedness) of peace forces and the international organizations is critical to the legitimacy and success of the operation, evenhandedness must be demonstrated at all times, in all dealings, and under all circumstances. Additionally, to sustain IFOR's impartiality, the concurrent "equip and train" program must be completely separate from IFOR. To maintain the legitimacy of the operation, the DC determined that IFOR will enforce implementation of the peace agreement evenhandedly and assume the IFOR will be withdrawn in the event of a total breakdown in strategic consent (the issue of total breakdown is discussed below).

12. What, if anything, will we do about election security?

- At the 6 October Deputies Committee meeting there was general agreement with the conclusion in the JCS paper "Election Security -- Implications to the Implementation Force (IFOR)" which was: the IFOR would create secure conditions for elections by completing its primary tasks of deploying forces to establish presence and separation between warring factions, and enforcing compliance with military aspects of the peace agreement. As a part of the peace agreement there should be a civil administrative, police, and electoral component of the overall implementation effort to assist local governments and populations in providing local security for elections. These components would be part of those organizations specifically tasked to monitor the election process, provide assistance to the civilian population and allow governments to draft electoral law, educate voters, register voters, and conduct the election. The DC on 6 October deferred a formal decision, however, pending discussions with the US negotiating team. The DC on 20 October agreed to follow through with the recommendations in the JCS paper and the provisions of the framework agreement, and that OSCE should be solicited as the lead organization in the electoral component of the overall implementation effort, including the responsibility for an election security plan.

13. Can we confirm that IFOR will actually be under NATO command and control during the UNPROFOR-IFOR transition?

- Yes, IFOR will conduct the operation under NATO command and control and ROE, with no UN involvement in military decision making.

17. Where will the Russians be located?

- On 20 October, the DC decided this issue will be treated separately. The US is opposed to a separate AOR or chain of command for the Russian troops.

18. Will IFOR patrols in the Zone of Separation be armed?

- IFOR patrols will be armed and backed up by reserve forces.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

19. What will IFOR's role be in Eastern Slavonia? What will the US role be? What will happen to the Russian battalion there under the UNCRO mandate? What are the IFOR responsibilities for forces in theater but not in Bosnia? What will happen to UNCRO and UNPREDEP responsibilities? Who will be responsible for their mission?

- On 20 October, the DC decided this issue will be treated separately.
- The USG and UN position is that UNCRO and UNPREDEP operations continue under UN control. IFOR Commander is responsible for coordinating with these UN missions.
- Presently there is no role, assigned by NATO, for IFOR in Eastern Slavonia. However, the NAC gave SACEUR the mission to control and secure the withdrawal of UNPROFOR forces not transferred to IFOR, to include if necessary, the emergency withdrawal of UNCRO forces. The NAC on 29 September agreed that SACEUR should submit a concept of operations based on the planning assumption that UNCRO and UNPREDEP operations continue under UN control. If the UNCRO mandate is renewed, we anticipate the Russian battalion would remain in Eastern Slavonia. If required and requested, NATO is still committed to withdrawing UNPF from Bosnia and/or Croatia (Sector East) using OPLAN 40104.
- The framework agreement, as presently written, does not address Eastern Slavonia or FYROM.

23. While we are prepared to enforce the settlement and will not wait for "indicators of seriousness" after signature, should we demand that parties make tangible gestures of good faith in week or so between initialing and signature?

- On 20 October the DC agreed there should be "indicators of seriousness" in the framework agreement to be required between initialing and signature of the peace agreement, but that these would not be preconditions for IFOR deployment. At a minimum, immediately upon initialing the agreement, the parties will continue the cessation of hostilities and observance of the cease-fire in accordance with the Agreement of 5 October, will not patrol forward of friendly force positions, will not fire large caliber weapons, all air early warning or air defense radars will be shutdown within 72 hours and will remain inactive, and each party will begin withdrawing its forces/military institutions/facilities/weapons from the zone of separation immediately (completed within 30 days).

25. How will winter affect the timing of deployment, transition, and operations?

- Winter weather will affect the speed of deployment of forces into the theater. Roughly 60 percent of UNPROFOR's casualties have resulted from vehicular accidents. Deployment in winter conditions will be difficult. In addition to treacherous road conditions, location and removal of mines will be extremely difficult during the winter months.

27. What constitutes a total breakdown? Who decides?

- On 20 October, the DC agreed in the event of a major breakdown in compliance, and because this is a NATO-led operation, it is the North Atlantic Council which will ultimately define "total breakdown" based on the situation and advice of military commanders.

28. Does the IFOR remain only 12 months?

- The NAC decision of 29 September directed SACEUR to develop a concept of operations planning on the assumption that the mission of the IFOR would be completed when the military aspects of the peace agreement have been implemented, but no later than 12 months from its initial deployment.
- The President, based on the final peace agreement and the final plan, will determine whether the US position will remain that IFOR withdraws 12 months from its initial deployment.

Unresolved Issues

Mission

3A. Are there restrictions on the deployment and use of military forces in the parties' own entities? What would IFOR's response be to breaches of the cease fire or the use of military force to coerce/intimidate within the two entities?

- Neither the USG position, nor the NAC decisions delineate restrictions on military forces in their own entity. The NAC determined that planning should assume the IFOR will "ensure compliance with the military aspects of an agreement (in particular, withdrawal of forces to their respective territories within an agreed period and the establishment of agreed zones of separation of forces".
- The framework agreement[2] states, within 90 days of the signing of the agreement, all forces will begin to withdraw to Cantonment and barracks areas to be completed no later than 120 days. Subsequent to movement to cantonment areas, no training, military exercises, maneuvers, patrolling, or other such activities outside of the cantonment areas are permitted without approval of the IFOR Commander. Unauthorized activities will constitute

[2] Draft "Framework Agreement for Peace", Annex 1, Revision 2, dated 10/21/95

hostile intent subjecting those forces to immediate attack from the IFOR. This measure should be seen as an additional demonstration of good faith on the part of the parties, which in principle should reduce the potential for violence and enhance the force protection of the IFOR.

- Recommendation. It is clear from the above language in the draft framework agreement that any unauthorized activities will constitute hostile intent subjecting those forces to immediate attack from the IFOR. Because this is a NATO-led operation, it is the North Atlantic Council which will ultimately determine the overall objectives and rules of engagement for the IFOR. USG should propose a NAC decision based on the above language from the framework agreement and that the two provisions on restrictions to deployment and use of military forces which constitute hostile intent should also be included in the definition of "hostile intent" in the Rules of Engagement Annex of the OPLAN.

4. Who decides if there is a violation? Who decides whether IFOR is responsible for handling the violation?

- The USG position states that on order, CINCSOUTH (the IFOR Commander) will conduct operations to enforce the terms of the peace agreement in B-H.
- On 29 September, the NAC stated CINCSOUTH (the IFOR commander) is to implement the military aspects, and ensure compliance, of the peace agreement. This includes arrangements for NAC guidance and political advice and information to SACEUR, including stages at which additional guidance could be requested. Those stages include, but are not limited to, major changes in the pattern of military activity, requests for NATO to assume additional tasks, major breakdowns in compliance, disagreements with non-NATO troop contributors or other organizations that can not be resolved in theater, and other circumstances prompting requests from the IFOR Commander.
- "Recognizing the need to provide for the effective enforcement of the provisions of this agreement," the framework agreement[3] states the parties will request the deployment of IFOR for that purpose. The framework agreement also establishes a Joint Military Commission, run by the IFOR Commander. In this role, the IFOR Commander would make decisions consistent with IFOR's mandate as necessary to enhance compliance. This commission would also receive reports on compliance with the provisions of the agreement from the parties or from the monitors. In Article XI, the IFOR Commander is noted as the final authority concerning all questions associated with the implementation of the military aspects of the peace agreement.
- Recommendation. None, the USG position, the NAC decisions, and the framework agreement are consistent, the IFOR Commander is noted as the final authority. It is clear the IFOR Commander is assigned the responsibility of completing the military tasks in theater associated with the peace agreement, and as such, in this role and in his role as the Chairman of the Joint Military Commission, would make decisions consistent with the IFOR's mandate as necessary to ensure compliance. If circumstances occur which prompt a request for additional political guidance or advice, he is authorized to request that guidance as per the NAC decision (i.e., total breakdown in strategic consent).

[3] Draft "Framework Agreement for Peace", Annex 1, Revision 2, dated 10/21/95

7A. What will IFOR do to stop deliberate violence to life and person against international civilian personnel (i.e., UNHCR personnel)? What will IFOR do to stop deliberate violence to life and person against the indigenous population? When violence is conducted in the presence of IFOR personnel? When reported as it is happening but not observed directly by IFOR personnel? When reported in retrospect?

- On 29 September the NAC decided that within the limits of IFOR's key military tasks, IFOR will deter attacks on UN civilian agencies by creating secure conditions for others organizations conducting tasks associated with the peace agreement. While specific ROE is not yet drafted, the NAC determined guidance under OPLAN 40104 would apply in principle to this operation for handling civilian obstruction and deliberate violence to life and person ("the NATO Commanders are authorized to act, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian need and where NATO forces are present and have the local means and opportunity, to stop deliberate violence to life and persons taking no active part in the hostilities.").
- The framework agreement does not address IFOR's responsibility in this area.
- Recommendation: On 20 October the DC determined NATO forces should be authorized to stop deliberate violence to life and person against international civilian personnel and indigenous population where NATO forces are present or have the means and opportunity, but IFOR will not be responsible for investigating past incidents of attacks on international civilian personnel or atrocities and human rights violations. Because this is a NATO-led operation, it is the North Atlantic Council which will ultimately determine the overall objectives and rules of engagement for the IFOR. The USG should propose the following NAC decision: "In accordance with the provisions of international law, the NATO Commanders are authorized to act, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian need and where NATO forces are present ~~and~~ or have the ~~local~~ means and opportunity, to stop deliberate violence to life and persons taking no active part in the hostilities.".

9. Will the IFOR do anything to help refugees exercise the right to regain their property and return to their homes?

9A. Who will provide security for inhabitants in the areas where the territory changes control from one warring faction to the other? (Note: This may include the impartial establishment and supervision of protected zones, humanitarian assistance for the civilian population, permanent settlement of refugees and displaced persons, guarantee of the security of civilians, dissemination of information to the public, and movement of populations across borders.)

- The USG position is for the IFOR to be prepared to facilitate other organizations (UNHCR) in the accomplishment of its mission.
- NAC agreed on 29 September that the UNHCR and other organizations would retain responsibility for refugees and displaced persons, although the NATO Theater Commander, within capabilities, should be prepared to consider requests for assistance. Additionally the NAC agreed with the key tasks which included the supporting task of observing, securing, and preventing interference with the movement of civilian populations, refugees, displaced persons and their property.
- The framework agreement[4] states that parties to the framework agreement shall facilitate the ability of all refugees and displaced persons to freely decide whether to return to their homes of origin or to make a claim. Additionally, in Article XII, that within 30 days military forces occupying the territory to be transferred from one entity to another will completely vacate and clear the territory to be transferred. In order to provide the civilians in those areas being transferred to a different entity with a period of adjustment, however, opposing military forces of an entity receiving new territory will not occupy this new territory for 90 days or until approval is received by the IFOR Commander. The IFOR Commander is authorized all necessary force to ensure compliance with the article.
- Recommendation: On 20 October the DC determined IFOR forces have no role in such areas as the Krajina, Zepa, Gorazde, etc. where it is clear the UNHCR and other organizations would retain responsibility for refugees and displaced persons. Because this is a NATO-led operation, it is the North Atlantic Council which will ultimately determine the overall objectives and rules of engagement for the IFOR. The USG should propose the following NAC decision: Assign the IFOR the key military task of enforcing the provision that armed forces are precluded from entering the territory to be transferred (as defined in the framework agreement) and that the UNHCR and other organizations would retain responsibility for humanitarian assistance for the civilian population, permanent settlement of refugees and displaced persons, dissemination of information to the public, and movement of populations across borders. The local governments, supported by the civilian police component of the implementation plan, would be responsible for the security of civilians.

[4] Draft "Framework Agreement for Peace", Annex 1, Revision 2, dated 10/21/95

Non-Compliance

11. What will IFOR do about protecting or monitoring external borders?

11A. Should there be a symbolic presence on the external borders (particularly the inner-Serb border)?

- The USG position, the NAC decisions, and the framework agreement do not address protection or monitoring of external borders.
- The Constitutional Structures annex of the framework agreement delineates the responsibilities of the Central Government and its exclusive and additional responsibilities. Protection or monitoring of external borders is not expressly assigned. According to the framework agreement, all governmental functions and powers not expressly assigned to the Government of B-H shall be those of the Entities (Federation of B-H and Republic Srpska).
- Recommendation. This question strikes at the heart of the "partitioning" issue. Because the addition of a task for IFOR to protect or monitor the external borders of B-H will significantly increase the force structure requirement the IFOR, the protection and monitoring of the external borders should be left to the two Bosnian entities. If it is determined in the negotiations that a "symbolic presence" is required on the external border, the USG should develop a plan (State lead) for an external border monitoring component and a lead organization (possibly ICFY) should be solicited. The framework agreement should include authorities to organize an external border monitoring component and delineate its mandate.

Deployment

14. What forces of the various parties are to be permitted within the Weapons Free Zone (20 Km wide)?

- The US military planners envision a 10 Km monitored zone (20 Km total) on either side of the boundary line where only IFOR and the respective side's forces will be allowed, and where national representatives (BSA, ABiH, and HVO) co-located in IFOR command posts have control of forces. IFOR would patrol both sides, investigate and respond to violations, monitor ground/air sensors, patrol by helo and block/monitor roads to control high density areas. Heavy weapons would be excluded.
- The NAC directed the IFOR to ensure compliance with the military aspects of an agreement, and in particular, the establishment of agreed zones of separation. Current NATO planning has not addressed a 20 Km weapons free zone.

- In the framework agreement there is a provision for a Military Exclusion Buffer Zone of approximately 16 Km on either side of the Military Exclusion Zone (4 Km wide) for a total of a 20 Km zone. No direct fire, armored or mechanized vehicles are permitted.
- Recommendation: The US military planning and the draft framework agreement are consistent. The planned force structure is sufficient to monitor and enforce this provision. Recommend the framework agreement includes a Military Exclusion Buffer Zone. The proposed Military Exclusion Buffer Zone will reduce risk for IFOR. Because current NATO planning has not addressed a 20 Km Military Exclusion Buffer Zone, this provision should be shared with the NATO Military Authorities, via the proper channels within NATO. This will allow military planners to conduct the troop-to-task analysis necessary to refine IFOR planning.

15. Will there be a 2 Km buffer zone?

- US military planners envision a 4 Km wide separation zone (2 Km on either side of the boundary line) established, then monitored and enforced by the IFOR. This will be a weapons-free area. IFOR command post will be established in the zone of separation with IFOR, BSA, ABiH, and HVO components. US envisions IFOR units will direct combined patrols which will investigate violations and resolve disputes at the lowest level. IFOR-only patrols will also be conducted. Combined checkpoints will be established along lines of communication. The decisions on force placement should be made at the operational level by the force commander.
- Neither the NAC decisions, nor the SACEUR concept of operations, specifically address this issue.
- In the framework agreement there is a proposal for a 4 Km Military Exclusion Zone (2 Km on either side of the Entity Boundary Line). No weapons other than those of the IFOR are permitted. This zone is established to prevent any incidents which might lead to a resumption of hostilities.
- Recommendation: The US military planning and the framework agreement are consistent. Recommend the framework agreement include a provision for a 4 Km Military Exclusion Zone (2 Km on either side of the Entity Boundary Line) to be established as a buffer zone to prevent any incidents which might lead to a resumption of hostilities. Because current NATO planning has not addressed a 4 Km zone of separation, this provision should be shared with the NATO Military Authorities, via the proper channels within NATO. This will allow military planners to conduct the troop-to-task analysis necessary to refine IFOR planning.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

16. Will IFOR deploy into Serb areas? Will IFOR zones cover the entire country?

- The USG position is IFOR would operate principally from Federation territory. US military planners envision IFOR will patrol or monitor (both ground and helo) both sides of the boundary line, investigate and respond to violations, monitor ground/air sensors, and monitor/control roads to control high density areas.
- The NAC decisions do not address this issue in detail.
- The framework agreement entitles IFOR to utilize such space within B-H for training, accommodations, and other purposes incident to its presence, and calls upon the parties to ensure that the IFOR has complete freedom of movement. The redeployment of all Serb forces into cantonment areas, monitored by IFOR, will facilitate IFOR's mission accomplishment. The cantonment concept will increase control of military forces, promoting the effectiveness of local police. Particularly during the election process, effective police will complement any IFOR presence in the Serb entity, contributing to a secure environment. On the other hand, if uncontrolled military forces, and ineffective police, complicate the security situation, IFOR's task will be more difficult, perhaps leading to IFOR conducting police functions.
- Recommendation: The NAC decision, USG position and framework agreement are consistent. To complete the military tasks assigned to IFOR in accordance with the latest revision of the framework agreement IFOR can, and is expected to, operate predominately on Federation territory.
- However, if the framework agreement is adjusted to include military tasks in which IFOR must deploy into Bosnian Serb entity to accomplish its mission or further political guidance is provided requiring IFOR to deploy into the Bosnian Serb entity, additional troops will be required for the task assigned. If additional troops are required, the US will face the decision to authorize additional forces or delete such a provision from the framework agreement. Once again, to ensure consistency between the USG positions, NATO military planning, and the framework agreement, the draft framework agreement needs to be finalized, and coordinated within the Interagency. When politically feasible, these details should be shared with the NATO Military Authorities, via the proper political channels within NATO, to allow military planning to conduct the troop-to-task analysis necessary to refine IFOR planning.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Area of Operations

20. Should IFOR HQ be in Naples, Sarajevo, or Zagreb? Should IFOR HQ be in Sarajevo, and if so, how soon?

- While the NAC decisions do not specifically address this issue, the selection of IFOR HQ is best made by the military commander responsible for the operation.
- SACEUR concept of operations has the IFOR Theater HQ in Zagreb and ARRC HQ (Ground Commander) in Sarajevo. US Division HQ likely to be in Tuzla.
- The framework agreement entitles IFOR to utilize such space within B-H for training, accommodations, and other purposes incident to its presence, and calls upon the parties to ensure that the IFOR has complete freedom of movement.
- Recommendation: If it is decided IFOR must establish a HQ in Sarajevo for political reasons, recommend the IFOR Commander be allowed to determine how soon it is logistically feasible, and that he be authorized to establish rear headquarters in Zagreb and Naples as appropriate.

Timing

21. Some equipment and forces must be prepositioned before signature of the peace agreement. When do we have to give the order to preposition?

- Will be address in Notional Timeline below.

22. What is the sequencing of approvals required for ACTWARNs, ACTREQs, and ACTORDs?

- Will be addressed in Notional Timeline below.

24. How much time between signing and deployment?

- Will be addressed in Notional Timeline below.

26. What kind of decisions need to go to the President? When?

- Will be addressed in Notional Timeline below.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Exit

29. What is an acceptable end state to the US when IFOR leaves?

- USG -- when the Federation has a reasonable self defense capability.
- The NAC determined end state is when the military aspects of the peace agreement have been implemented.
- The framework agreement defines the military aspects of the peace agreement in the Cessation of Hostilities and Disengagement Annex.
- Recommendation: The framework agreement, as discussed in many of the questions and answers above, will define the military aspects of the peace agreement. IFOR should withdraw when the military aspects of the peace agreement are accomplished. There is, however, an inescapable linkage between the IFOR exit strategy and the parallel civil effort. The true indicators of success of the operation may in fact be the progress made in the civilian aspects of the peace agreement. There must be strong civilian agency support in the overall effort. Of course, the other key to exit strategy is simultaneously completing an equip and train program for the Bosnian Federation to ensure a stable military situation, or rough balance of power, between the two entities. However, it should be noted the key military tasks approved by the NAC and the below success criteria should not be a precondition, or checklist, necessary for IFOR departure:. Possible criteria for success in the overall peace implementation effort include:
    - UNPROFOR elements have completed withdrawal from the former Yugoslavia or transferred to NATO command and control;
    - the establishment of the Entity Boundary Line, areas of separation, and any cantonment areas which have been marked and agreed to by the involved parties;
    - withdrawal of forces to their respective territories, to include adherence to restrictions on the location, movement, use, and reporting of military forces within zones of separation and cantonment areas;
    - the establishment of the National Independent Electoral Commission, Arbitration Tribunal, Commission on Human Rights, Commission for Refugees and Displaced Persons, Commission to Preserve National Monuments, Joint Public Transportation Corporation, and all civilian components of the peace implementation effort are established and allowed freedom of movement to accomplish their mandates;
    - Elections for the National Assembly, National Presidency, Local Parliaments are completed and the Constitutional Structures are seated to include the appointment of the Constitutional Court.

- Essentially, IFOR will give the civilian aspects of the peace implementation and the military stabilization efforts a reasonable opportunity to establish peace. We should continue to assume that the mission of the IFOR would be completed when the military aspects of the peace agreement have been implemented, but no later than 12 months from its initial deployment.

Congressional Strategy

30. What is our strategy for addressing congressional concerns? Is it coordinated?

- NSC must either specify the strategy or designate an agency to do so.
- Recommendation: State is probably the appropriate lead agency, OSD will have a large role.

Public Outreach

31. What is our strategy for addressing the public's concern? Is it coordinated?

- Recommendation: OSD recommends a proactive public affairs policy, coordinated by the White House staff with full support from DoD and State. USG should explain the IFOR deployment to the public, actively advocating the USG decision using a common set of talking points.

SUBJECT: Sanctions Relief

This paper presents three broad proposals[1] for using sanctions relief as part of an "end game:"

1. Stick to the current plan of suspending sanctions only when a peace treaty is signed.

2. Accept Ambassador Holbrooke's proposal of suspending all sanctions at the start of the proximity talks.

3. Pursue a middle course by giving limited sanctions relief at the start of the proximity talks.

In addition, the paper addresses two issues not answered in previous Principals' meetings: when to lift sanctions against the FRY and when to suspend sanctions against the Pale Serbs. Note that the Russians have circulated a draft resolution in New York that would suspend all sanctions against Belgrade and Pale at the start of the proximity talks and lift all sanctions against both when an agreement is signed.

The Three Proposals

Alternative 1: Stick with the current sanctions relief plan

When Principals last discussed sanctions relief in August, they decided that all UN sanctions against the FRY, except for frozen assets, will be suspended upon signature of a peace agreement and that sanctions will be reimposed on the FRY during the suspension period if the FRY or the Bosnian Serbs impede implementation. They further determined that sanctions will be lifted and frozen assets will be released (subject to resolution of claims) upon full implementation of the peace agreement.

PRO:

- The current sanctions relief plan concentrates virtually all sanctions leverage against the critical goal of getting the parties to sign a peace settlement.

- Milosevic has a strong incentive to bring the proximity talks to a successful conclusion, since he would get no sanctions relief if he or the Bosnian Serbs cause the talks to collapse.

[1] All three proposals would lift sanctions and release frozen assets at full implementation of the peace plan.

PER E.O. 13526
CIA Historical Collections D.v.

(2013-0682-m, 9.03)

- This approach to sanctions relief supports the strategy established in July and August of focusing on relatively rapid movement to an overall settlement in Bosnia by trading major sanctions relief only for a true breakthrough in Bosnia.

- The plan is consistent with the President's assertion to Senator Dole that there will be no easing of existing sanctions until there is a peace settlement.

CON:

- The current plan gives Milosevic nothing in return for intermediate steps on the way to a settlement.

- It offers no relief to Milosevic if he and the Bosnian Serbs negotiate in good faith but agreement is blocked by the other parties (this shortcoming could be rectified by returning in such circumstances to concepts outlined in earlier sanctions relief plans that would give Milosevic limited sanctions relief in the absence of a settlement, provided he continues to support the peace process).

- It does nothing to meet continuing Russian pressure for sanctions relief.

A variation: The UNSC could pass a resolution at the start of the proximity talks which would suspend sanctions against the FRY upon signature of a peace agreement. This would give Milosevic no concrete sanctions relief now -- but would provide him relative certainty on how and when he will get sanctions relief, which has symbolic and political value.

Alternative 2: Suspend all sanctions, except frozen assets, at the start of the proximity talks

Ambassador Holbrooke proposes that all sanctions against the FRY be suspended at the start of the proximity talks and that the suspension last for the duration of the talks. Full sanctions would be reimposed if the FRY or the Bosnian Serbs were responsible for the collapse of the talks. The Security Council would have the option of continuing some or all of the sanctions relief if the Serbs were not the cause of the talks' failure.

PRO:

According to analysis from the negotiating team, granting sanctions relief to the FRY at the start of talks would

- Strengthen Milosevic against Serbian domestic critics and the Bosnian Serbs who oppose any deal.

- Induce Milosevic not to leave Dayton without a deal or sanctions will resume.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Signal other parties that sanctions relief could continue if they obstruct a deal.
- Give Milosevic substantial reward for steps he has already taken to support peace.
- Satisfy Russian demands for sanctions relief.
- Place the parties on more equal footing at the start of the negotiations.

CON:

- Sanctions relief at this point may be useful, but not necessary.
  - -- The Intelligence Community believes Milosevic faces remarkably little internal political pressure to achieve immediate sanctions relief. Serbs blame others for sanctions, not Milosevic, thus relieving him from immediate personal pressure to get sanctions relief.
  - -- Milosevic's leverage over the Bosnian Serbs stems from his ability to manipulate their access to fuel and military supplies and from the Bosnian Serb leadership's realization that their long-term survival depends on Milosevic. Milosevic probably modulates his leverage over Pale more in response to his perception of what is in his own best interest than to gain compensatory sanctions relief.
- Sanctions relief may be irrevocable, even if talks collapse.
  - -- A Security Council resolution is necessary to suspend sanctions and establish reimposition mechanisms. It will be extremely difficult to craft definitive reimposition mechanisms and to rally Security Council support for reimposition should it become necessary.
  - -- Even if the sanctions are reimposed, enforcement will lag substantially. The front-line states would undoubtedly be slow to re-activate their enforcement mechanisms, possibly greatly extending the time in which the sanctions ring was effectively down.
  - -- Serbia could blunt the effect of reimposed sanctions by stockpiling fuel and other key materials during the suspension period. In as little as 2-3 weeks, Serbia could import enough fuel to meet most, if not all, of its winter energy requirements. Serbia could also export grain, stockpiled industrial materials, and arms to earn much-needed hard currency.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Granting sanctions relief before an agreement is signed may have serious side effects.

  -- This sanctions relief proposal contradicts the President's assurances to Senator Dole in his August 28 letter that there would be no further sanctions relief until there is a peace settlement. Thus, it risks complicating efforts to get Congressional support for IFOR and may lead to passage of amendments to prevent further sanctions relief.

  -- President Tudjman stated that Croatia would be impelled to attack Sector East if a decision were made to ease sanctions on Belgrade before reaching an agreement on Eastern Slavonia. (USUN New York, 004140, 232156z OCT 95, NODIS)

Alternative 3: Offer more limited sanctions relief by allowing trade in certain commodities for a set time period (or until the talks collapse).

Previous Contact Group and USG sanctions relief models envisioned "peeling off" sanctions in several incremental steps. For example, the plan offered by Bildt in July envisioned easing sanctions in four discrete steps:

1. Suspend non-strategic trade and financial sanctions (except frozen assets), establish an oil import quota system

2. Lift "Phase I" sanctions[2]

3. Lift non-strategic trade and financial sanctions, suspend strategic trade sanctions

4. Lift strategic trade sanctions, release frozen assets, end the oil import quota system

As the sanctions community examined this and other incremental sanctions relief plans, it became clear that there are problems in trying to finely sub-divide sanctions:

- Trade and financial sanctions are very difficult to separate.

  -- Legitimate trade cannot start unless restrictions on financial transactions are also loosened.

  -- While it may be theoretically possible to allow only those financial transactions necessary to finance specific trade deals, practical

[2] Phase I sanctions included air service to Belgrade, ferry service to Bar, and sports and cultural contacts -- all of which were suspended in August 1994 in return for the border closure.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

enforcement problems -- especially in non-U.S. banks -- make it all but impossible to separate illegal from legal transactions.

- Discriminating between strategic and non-strategic trade has little impact in the short run -- except for oil.

  -- Fuel is the only strategic commodity that really matters to the FRY in the short run. Serbia cannot meet winter heating requirements without imported heading oil -- too little now gets through the embargo at too high a price.

  -- Allowing non-strategic trade would help ease consumer dissatisfaction marginally, but would do nothing to re-start the industrial base or to keep the population warm this winter.

  -- Allowing trade in other strategic goods, such as ores and metals, will only help industrial recovery in the long term, because of the seriously run-down state of Serbia's heavy industry.

  -- The more different types of goods and commodities allowed in trade, the more difficult the enforcement problem becomes.

A variation: The conclusion the sanctions community has reached is that sanctions cannot be peeled as thinly as earlier proposals assumed. However, the importance of fuel oil in and of itself offers a possible peel-off option: We could offer to allow the FRY to import 50,000 MT of heating oil[3] (worth $7.5 million) a month for the next two months to be financed by export of $7.5 million worth of wheat or corn (about 50,000 MT). The UNSC would retain the option of renewing the grain for oil arrangement at the end of two months if there is substantial progress towards a peace settlement. The arrangement would be canceled immediately if the proximity talks collapse due to Serb intransigence.

PRO:

- Allowing Serbia to swap surplus grain for fuel oil would be of economic and political benefit for Milosevic since it will help him to meet a critical popular demand at home.

- The overall sanctions enforcement system would stay in place to maintain the effectiveness of remaining sanctions, and to monitor oil shipments and cut them off if necessary.

[3]According to CIA estimates, 50K MT of heating oil is about the FRY's monthly winter demand for heating oil over and above domestic production.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- This approach gives Milosevic something now, while retaining relatively more sanctions leverage for later in the peace process.

CON:

- This plan may not be attractive to Milosevic, who has indicated to negotiators that he wants near-total sanctions relief.

- The plan contradicts the President's letter to Senator Dole.

- It requires a UN resolution.

Other Issues

The following two issues need decision, whether or not interim sanctions relief is offered.

When will UN sanctions against the FRY be lifted?

At issue is how long to preserve the threat of reimposing sanctions as a hedge against Serb backsliding on the peace settlement. Each of the three alternatives proposes lifting UN sanctions against the FRY at full implementation of the peace agreement, but full implementation has never been defined in this context. Possible points after which sanctions could be lifted include

- Successful implementation of the military aspects of the peace agreement and withdrawal of IFOR,

- Achievement of a rough balance of power between the entities to ensure a stable military situation after IFOR withdraws, and/or

- National elections.

Lifting sanctions before IFOR's departure surrenders sanctions leverage while NATO troops are still on the ground, thus reducing options for deterring Serb threats against IFOR's safety or interference with its ability to accomplish its mission. Similarly, sanctions leverage could be used to induce Serb parties to abide by arms control measures in the peace agreement. It may also be desirable to retain the threat of reimposing sanctions in response to Serb misbehavior until after elections, a major political goal. On the other hand, Belgrade and Russia press for early lift of sanctions, arguing that the FRY has met its obligations once the settlement is signed.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

When will sanctions against the Bosnian Serbs be suspended?

Suspension of sanctions against the Bosnian Serbs and opening of the Serbian-Bosnian border could take place at one of three possible times:

1. At signature of the agreement

PRO: Gives the Bosnian Serbs immediate reward for signing the agreement

CON: Uses up sanctions leverage that may be needed in later stages of the implementation process; Belgrade can freely resupply Bosnian Serb military.

2. After Bosnian Serb forces have withdrawn to agreed territories

PRO: Rewards Bosnian Serbs for implementing a critical element of the agreement.

CON: Uses up sanctions leverage that may be needed in later stages of the implementation process.

3. After full implementation

PRO: Retains sanctions leverage for entire implementation period.

CON: The post-settlement economic recovery package and the re-emergence of commerce in the region will make economic sanctions against Pale and the border closure increasingly hard to enforce as the implementation process goes forward.

A sub-issue: What about ICFY? It may be desirable to retain ICFY's monitoring presence on the border between the FRY and Bosnia after economic sanctions and the border closure have been suspended in order to have an international presence on the border and to monitor compliance with any limitations on arms shipments included in the peace agreement.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Jackson, Wyoming
August 28, 1995

Dear Mr. Leader:

I have received your letter expressing your deep concerns about our recent diplomatic initiatives to bring an end to the Balkan conflict. We share a common desire to see a durable peace achieved throughout the Balkans. I launched our new diplomatic initiative out of a conviction that developments on the ground have created real opportunities for us to break the diplomatic stalemate and avoid yet another round of bloodshed.

The team I sent to Europe earlier this month, led by Anthony Lake, found the Europeans firmly supportive of our proposal and our leadership. The Lake team carried a bold new initiative for peace. Building on the results of the Lake mission, I then asked Assistant Secretary Richard Holbrooke to travel to the former Yugoslav states, where he has had encouraging preliminary consultations.

We all are deeply saddened by the death last Saturday of three members of that team, Ambassador Robert Frasure, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense Joseph Kruzel and Colonel Nelson Drew. Nonetheless, we intend to persevere in our efforts to achieve a just and lasting peace in the Balkans and are exploring with the parties ideas that include carrots and sticks designed to encourage an early settlement consistent with the principles of the Contact Group plan.

As we have briefed your staff, sanctions remain a critical source of leverage with Serbia in achieving a comprehensive settlement. Thus, we are proposing suspension of a broad range of sanctions -- not full lifting as your letter states -- only if there is agreement on a political settlement in Bosnia.

With regard to your concern over Kosovo, we have already expressed to Milosevic our concern that large-scale resettlement of Krajina Serbs in Kosovo would be a provocative act. Moreover, Belgrade is well aware of the U.S. commitment, which I have reaffirmed, to take action against Serbia in response to Serb-inspired violence in Kosovo. While some Krajina Serbs have moved into Kosovo, others are resisting efforts to resettle them in the province. We are watching the situation closely. Our position on Kosovo has not changed. We continue to support restoration of autonomy and full respect for the human and civil rights of the people of Kosovo. Furthermore, we will not support full reintegration of Serbia into the international community until a solution for Kosovo is achieved. Our ultimate goal is to achieve a comprehensive settlement that enhances regional stability and provides for economic reconstruction, which is the prerequisite for long-term harmony among states in the region.

I hope this elaboration of our policy makes clear that we have no intention of easing the existing sanctions against Serbia until there is a peace settlement in Bosnia. Our objective here is the achievement of a just peace agreement. While I disagree with your approach of unilateral lift of the arms embargo, I understand that its ultimate purpose is to restore a balance of power that also will lead to negotiations and a peace settlement. I believe we must seize this moment to see if we can achieve a fair and durable settlement now, without another year or more of escalating fighting. I would hope that you will give that effort a full and unencumbered opportunity to be tested and your strong support if it is successful.

Sincerely,

Bill Clinton

MULTILATERAL FRAMEWORK FOR IFOR

In the wake of Hyde Park, the SecDef-Grachev meeting in Geneva, and the Talbott-Slocombe visit to Moscow, it appears that the most realistic possibility for integrating NATO, non-NATO and Russian forces into a NATO-led IFOR operation would be under the rubric of an international coalition -- led by NATO authorities, based on traditional NATO command and control, and without any new institutions. The groundwork has now been laid for Russian participation. A Russian liaison team is in place at SACEUR headquarters.

I. Building the Military Coalition

The IFOR structure would be established as follows:

- The Bosnian Peace Agreement, in the Cessation of Hostilities Annex, calls on NATO to provide a multinational military implementation force (IFOR) to establish boundaries, separate forces, enforce cessation of hostilities, and remove ordnance hazards.

- The UNSC then issues a short resolution which approves the peace agreement and grants authority to "interested member states, acting with appropriate regional organizations or arrangements," to support all aspects of implementation. NATO is not mentioned in the resolution, but is identified in the peace agreement as the organizer/leader of the multinational force.

- NATO organizes the IFOR coalition by contacting all potential troop contributing nations to determine interest (currently underway in Brussels) in participation, and then evaluating individual country contributions on the basis of interoperability and IFOR needs.

- SACEUR then concludes individual MOU's with interested states which would discuss mission, command and control and consultations. Currently being drafted by NATO military authorities, these MOU's would provide a process for determining each individual state's contributions and terms of participation (see Russian Terms of Participation below). Details would be worked out with SACEUR.

- The individual MOU's would include provisions for political and military coordination. These MOU's would establish that coordination would be on an individual basis, but within the framework of a collective body. No new institutions would be established.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

II. Establishing Russian Terms of Participation

The specific Russian MOU would spell out its individual terms of participation. These would be defined jointly by SACEUR and Col.-General Shevtsov at SHAPE. They would include, inter alia, the following elements:

- The Russians would have two battalions in the theater.
- The Russians would engage in non-combat activity referred to as "special operations," such as:
  - -- Construction projects;
  - -- Mine clearing operations;
  - -- Airlift activity.
- The Russian batallion commanders would come under the control of a Russian force commander located in Sarajevo.
- The Russian force commander would have a "coordinated working relationship" with ARRC Commander General Walker.
- The Russian commander would assign elements of the batallions around the four zones to conduct "general support" operations.
  - -- This means that the Russian commander would obtain from Walker a prioritized list of tasks that needed attention.
  - -- The Russian commander would then assign the Russian battalion commanders the tasks; those commanders would determine how best to accomplish them.
- Though the NAC would provide overall political guidance for IFOR, the Russians would be called on to fulfill only the specialized tasks above as needed.

III. Shaping A Multilateral Guidance Framework

NATO is working on modalities for integrating non-NATO contributors in an organized, multilateral framework for participants. The provisions establishing IFOR may include the following:

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- Agreement that each participant would accept the operation plan as a condition for contributions of forces to IFOR. NATO would promise to take account of views, but final judgment would be reserved to the NAC. If a nation did not accept the plan, its only recourse would be to refuse to participate in the force.

- Coalition Council: Discussions on general policy issues with troop contributing countries will be organized in an informal coalition council. A senior NATO official will chair. This body would discuss overall policy issues arising from IFOR's operations. Final political guidance for IFOR would continue to be established exclusively by the NAC.

- A Senior Military Council: This would be composed of senior military representatives from NATO and contributing countries. It would be chaired by SACEUR, or alternatively, by IFOR theater commander Admiral Smith. It's primary purpose would be to maintain a steady flow of information to non-NATO contributing countries. It would assume the duties of the current Ad Hoc Group.

- Command Liaison Arrangements: NATO would provide liaison arrangements with contributing countries at various staff levels. Details could be tailored to individual countries in the MOU's.

"Red Lines" for NATO

There are clear limits to the extent of participation by coalition countries in command and control of IFOR. In order to maintain the integrity of NATO and the IFOR operation, it remains important to establish the following as the foundation of the structure:

-- There will be no interference with the integrity of traditional NATO command and control arrangements.

-- No new institutions will be created.

-- Neither Russia nor any other non-NATO country can establish any semblance of an actual veto over IFOR operations.

-- There will be no "dual keys" by other countries or organizations over NATO activity.

-- Political guidance to SACEUR will come exclusively from the NAC.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

-- The Coalition Council can not impose its will on the NAC or NATO operations.

Meeting Russian Needs

Such an arrangement will help meet the needs of Russian participation as follows:

-- It will include express Russian approval via the UNSC resolution.

-- It will set up an intermediary structure -- the coalition council -- between Russia and NATO which Russia can claim is the "real" IFOR authorizing body.

-- It provides for an individualized Russian agreement, relating Russian participation to NATO, and preserving Russia's desire to be an "equal" partner in IFOR.

-- It provides a non-NATO (though NATO-led) civilian consultative body to give Russia a chance to express its opinions on policy issues.

-- It provides liaison opportunities in the NATO command structure beginning with SACEUR.

-- As a final point for Russia, we could agree informally that major policy issues would continue to be consulted with Contact Group partners in an informal CG forum established either in Brussels or meeting regularly in capitals.

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals reaffirmed their October 25 agreement with the conclusions of the Deputies Committee on IFOR-resolved issues except the issue of a 20-km heavy-weapons-free zone. (C)

Sanctions Relief

2. Principals agreed that sanctions against Serbia should not be suspended prior to the proximity talks, but agreed they would be prepared to revisit the issue of sanctions relief later, if requested by the negotiator. (S)

IFOR: Unresolved Issues

3. Principals agreed that, as a minimum, IFOR would enforce a 4-km all-weapons-free zone along the zone of separation. They requested that agencies study further whether IFOR could effectively establish and enforce a 20-km heavy-weapons-free zone, an all-weapons-free zone that would be broader than 4-km in selected areas, and/or cantonment areas for the parties' forces in support of the implementation of a peace settlement. They agreed to have State, JCS, and OSD develop options for Principals' consideration prior to the proximity talks. (Action: JCS/OSD/State) (C)

4. Principals agreed that the IFOR commander at the Corps level should have the authority to act, on the basis of his own judgment, against reported "over the horizon" gross violations of human rights and/or attacks on international civilian agencies, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian needs or attacks, and where NATO forces have the means and opportunity to stop violence to life and persons and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission. (S)

5. Principals agreed that the IFOR should provide a presence on the external borders of Bosnia at crossings where heavy traffic in support of the IFOR mission occurs (6 or 7 sites). Principals also agreed that JCS should prepare options for principals' decision about how IFOR can provide a more significant presence early in the operation in Serb territory, such as through regular IFOR patrols that traverse Serb areas. (Action: JCS) (S)

5. With regard to developing a clear and defensible end-state that could be reached at the end of the 12-month implementation period, Principals agreed further to define and refine possible milestones as the peace agreement takes shape and NATO planning proceeds. Finally, Principals agreed to remain flexible on the timeline for international conferences, Congressional approval, and Presidential decisions regarding IFOR's mission, pending developments in the negotiations. Summary of Conclusions

Humanitarian Sanctions Relief for the FRY

1. Principals considered a recommendation from Ambassador Holbrooke that the U.S. respond favorably to a Milosevic request for humanitarian exceptions to the sanctions regime that would allow exports of grain to finance limited imports of natural gas and heating oil for the winter months. They agreed to seek the President's approval of a positive but scaled-back response to the Milosevic proposal (see chart below). They also agreed that, while this plan was aimed at moving the talks forward, any exceptions to the sanctions regime should be defensible as humanitarian in purpose and analogous to exceptions granted last winter. At the same time, they agreed that a level of natural gas higher than our estimate of FRY humanitarian needs could be accepted in view of the support expressed by the Bosnian Government for unrestricted natural gas flows. (S)

2. Principals recommended the following specific levels, which would apply for six months:

	U.S. proposal	FRY request	Est. Requirement
Natural Gas (million cubic meters per month)	36 to 100*	218	15
Heating Oil (tons per month)	28,500	73,000	28,500
Liquefied Natural Gas (tons per month)	588	588	588+

* 36 mcm would give the FRY a monthly allocation of natural gas equivalent to the Bosnians' natural gas requirements; 100 mcm is a figure previously approved by the Bosnian Government as a trade-off for securing Russian gas for Sarajevo through the Serbian pipeline. (S)

3. In addition, Principals agreed that the exceptions should be conditional upon: (a) daily monitoring of gas flows to Sarajevo and the FRY, and of all oil shipments to the FRY, which we would seek to restrict to Danube ports; and (b) FRY provision of data on its heating oil inventories (to discourage stockpiling). Most importantly, they agreed that the whole deal would be terminated if the FRY were responsible for cutting off gas to Sarajevo. (C)

4. With respect to financing of the oil/gas imports, Principals agreed not to permit the FRY to sell grain on the open market. But Principals could agree that the FRY could provide grain to Russian oil/gas suppliers on a barter basis. The value of the grain, however, must be limited to the value of the fuel imports. Finally, Principals agreed that we would review any arrangement and also submit to the Security Council any necessary technical resolution. (C)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

5. Note: Following the President's approval of the above proposal and its presentation in Dayton, Principals, with the President's concurrence, agreed to modify the U.S. position to permit unrestricted flows of natural gas to the FRY for a two-month period in light of strong representations from the Bosnian and Serbian delegations in Dayton. (S)

Implementation Funding

6. Principals agreed that the figures of 20 percent of the total economic reconstruction package and a U.S. share of approximately $600 million could be used as notional figures for planning purposes in developing a U.S. economic reconstruction strategy. (C)

7. Principals agreed in principle that the forthcoming budget "endgame" negotiations with the Congress represented the best option for securing funding for Bosnia peace implementation programs but that further study and review was needed on strategy (Action: OMB). They agreed that during budget negotiations, funding for peace implementation in Bosnia should, to the extent possible, not come at the expense of military readiness or other international affairs programs. (C)

Military Stabilization Program

8. Principals agreed that the equip and train program should be conducted by contractors. They agreed that the terms of reference for the assessment team's meetings in Dayton should be made more clear and that the team should meet only with Federation officials and not the Serbs (Action: OSD/JCS). They agreed to send the assessment team to Bosnia after reviewing the results of the team's discussions in Dayton with the U.S. delegation and with Federation officials. (C)

Eastern Slavonia

9. Principals agreed to defer discussion of a possible U.S. role in implementation of an Eastern Slavonia settlement pending developments in the ongoing negotiations. (C)

OMB PAPER FOR PRINCIPALS ON BOSNIA FUNDING

November 6, 1995

Introduction

This paper presents funding requirements and analyzes options for the Principals to discuss for financing U.S. participation in a Bosnia peace implementation program. It provides preliminary cost estimates and potential funding sources in some detail for two of the three major components of U.S. activity in Bosnia - the Implementation Force (IFOR) and the Humanitarian and Economic Assistance programs. These initial estimates are subject to change as program details become known, but they establish a reasonable expectation for the ultimate costs of U.S. Bosnia activity and a basis upon which financing options can be discussed. The paper reviews the third component - Equip and Train (E&T) - only in summary fashion, since basic program information regarding scope and content has not yet been developed.

Providing financial support for each component of the Bosnia peace program must be done in the context of Administration and Congressional budget priorities - in particular, the imperative to reach a balanced budget in the foreseeable future. Thus, each of the financing options described later in this paper confronts the same fundamental dilemma:

> Funding Bosnia peace programs will come at the expense of other programs in which the Administration, the Congress, or both have a keen interest. Therefore, the Administration must balance the relative priority of providing funding for specific Bosnia peace programs against the price we are likely to pay.

The paper provides three financing options for funding the Bosnia peace implementation programs: (1) an FY 1996 emergency supplemental, (2) a "budget end game" negotiations option and: (3) an FY 1996 supplemental offset from within existing resources. The budgetary tradeoffs alluded to above are most clear in the case of a fully offset supplemental request (Option 3). However, even if Bosnia funding is sought as part of a broad end game budget negotiation, tradeoffs are inevitable:

- The end game negotiations must result in a balanced budget.
- If the total funding level for discretionary programs is not increased, funding for Bosnia programs must come from either other defense and international affairs programs, or domestic programs.
- If funding for discretionary programs is increased to pay for Bosnia programs and other Administration priorities, additional savings from other parts of the budget, such as mandatory programs (e.g., Medicare and Medicaid), must be achieved.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

An "emergency" designation for a supplemental would, in theory, allow the Administration to avoid having to make painful tradeoffs with other programs to fund our participation in the Bosnia peace plan. However, if past is prologue, Congress will insist on offsets. If the Administration is unprepared to identify such offsets, the Congress will likely provide their own by rescinding funds from other, perhaps higher, Administration priorities.

In addition to funding constraints, the Administration must consider the possibility of Congressional opposition to certain aspects of the Bosnia program. To the extent that the individual components of the package are likely to garner Congressional support, other Administration priorities are less likely to be at risk. Moreover, in shaping a funding strategy, the Administration will need to ensure that the costs of the Bosnia peace program will be equitably shared among all participating countries. The greater the burdensharing, especially for components the Congress finds less attractive, the more likely Congress will be to support the Administration's funding proposal.

Estimated Requirements and Potential Offsets

BOSNIA PEACE IMPLEMENTATION FORCE (IFOR)

Potential Funding Requirement

The Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) has developed preliminary costs estimates for U.S. participation in a representative IFOR plan. These costs estimates are detailed in the table below, and are based on the following assumptions:

- U.S. ground forces would be deployed for 12 months.
- The U.S. would deploy a "heavy" armored Army division (with typical selected Corps-level support units) from units currently stationed in Europe.
- There would be a small activation of Guard and Reserve support units (between 2,000 and 3,000 troops.)
- Deployment would peak at about 25,000 troops, taking approximately two months to fully deploy and the same to return home.
- U.S. air forces would continue to support Operation Deny Flight [1] at operating rates similar to those experienced in the past year.
- U.S. naval forces in the region would remain with some incremental costs.

[1] Deny Flight is the ongoing air operation to enforce the no-fly zone over the former Yugoslavia.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

	Estimated Costs ($ in Millions)
	Ground Forces	DENY FLIGHT	Total
Military Personnel	145	10	155
Personnel Support	175	80	255
Operations Support	740	165	905
Transportation	110	65	175
Total.....	1,170	320	1,490

Potential Offsets

In the FY 1996 Defense Appropriations Conference Report, the conferees added about $7 billion above the President's request, of which roughly $4.4 billion was included for programs that are not in DOD's Future Years Defense Plan. This increase might provide some funding offsets in the FY 1996 budget. It should be noted, however, that the Congress may find many specific offsets unacceptable, particularly if the overall funding level provided to Defense is reduced as part of an end game negotiation. Were such offsets available, they might include:

Representative Offsets

Program	$ Billions
B-2 Bomber	.5
BMDO/Missile Defense	.3
Low Priority O&M activities	.2
Low Priority Procurement Activities	.3
Low Priority R&D projects	.2
TOTAL	$1.5

HUMANITARIAN & ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE

Potential Funding Requirement

Overall funding in FY 1996 for International Affairs is being sharply reduced by the Congress. However, full funding is being provided for most of the Administration's request for major humanitarian assistance accounts that would fund ongoing programs in Bosnia. Thus, funds for humanitarian assistance should be sufficient now and for the future to meet current estimates for the U.S. contribution to disaster, food, and refugee aid to the former Yugoslavia (approximately $160 million in FY 1996 and $250 million over three years).

The Deputies Committee has suggested an initial notional target of $600 million over three years for U.S. bilateral economic assistance, with the caveat that any final level will depend on a viable funding strategy. Economic assistance accounts, however, are bearing the brunt of Congressional reductions from the FY 1996 requested level. At the anticipated appropriation level for assistance for Central and Eastern Europe (CEE), State and USAID currently plan to allocate only about $38 million in FY 1996 (including carryover funds) for Bosnia, in addition to $8 million from USAID's Office of Transition Initiatives. No other economic assistance resources have been identified for Bosnia in FY 1996, but it is reasonable to expect at least another $30 million per year in CEE funds in FY 1997-98.

Potential Offsets

Offsetting the remaining economic reconstruction requirement would be difficult. The Secretary of State opposes seeking such offsets within function 150 accounts (International Affairs). Given the enormous pain of possible offsets (and the difficulties described below with alternative funding options), Principals may want to consider lowering the target level for U.S. bilateral economic assistance. Below are two illustrative options for offsets tailored to a $600 m. three year program and a $300 m. program over the same period.

Economic Assistance Offset Option A ($600 million)

Sources ($ in millions)	FY 96	FY 97	FY 98	Total
Central & East. Europe	70*	74	74	218
New Independent States	25	66	66	157
Development Assistance	50	55	55	160
Other international	25	20	20	65
TOTAL	170	215	215	600

* Only $54 million would come from FY 1996 CEE resources; the remainder comprises $8 million in carryover funds and $8 million from USAID's Office of Transition Initiatives.

This option would:

- Leave resources in the CEE account for other (albeit phased down) country programs: $270 million in FY 1996 and $250 million per year in FY 1997-98. The CEE assistance program has been defined as transitional since its inception in 1989, and resources have been gradually shifting toward countries at earlier stages in the transition to free markets and democratic politics.

- Continue the gradual phase-down of the NIS program from the $641 million conference mark in FY 1996 down to $616 million and then to $575 million in FY 1997 and FY 1998.

- Require $225 million in additional offsets over three years from other function 150 accounts (e.g., cuts in Development Assistance and other international accounts).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Economic Assistance Offset Option B ($300 million)

Sources ($ in millions)	FY 96	FY 97	FY 98	Total
Central & East. Europe	70*	64	64	198
New Independent States	0	51	51	102
TOTAL	70	115	115	300

* Only $54 million would come from FY 96 CEE resources; the remainder comprises $8 million in carryover funds and $8 million from USAID's Office of Transition Initiatives.

This option would:

- Leave resources in the CEE account for other (albeit phased down) country programs: $270 million in FY 1996 and $260 million per year in FY 1997-98.

- Continue the gradual phase-down of the NIS program from $641 million in FY 1996 (likely enacted) to $590 million in FY 1997 and FY 1998.

- Rely exclusively on offsets from within programmatically similar accounts - CEE and NIS.

  [Note: At the $600 million level, USAID and Treasury would have to reduce and better integrate currently distinct proposals for project-based technical assistance and balance of payments reconstruction assistance, which total at least $700 million. The $300 m level would be significantly below Treasury's desired target for balance of payments support. It should be noted that Congress has generally been more receptive to direct assistance programs and has opposed balance of payments support in the past. These considerations will need to be weighed in composing an assistance package and in shaping international burdensharing strategies.]

EQUIP AND TRAIN

Potential Funding Requirement

While arms reductions and arms control are an important goal for the peace process in the former Yugoslavia, the United States is committed to redressing the military imbalance between Bosnian Federation Forces and the Bosnian Serbs through the provision of military equipment and training. However, there remain significant uncertainties about the nature of such a program, about the sources for and kinds of equipment that would be provided and about who should provide the training. It is not currently possible to identify alternative program levels for these programs or to determine the U.S. share of any multilateral effort.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Potential Offsets

The only significant, currently available source for Equip and Train programs would be Defense Department drawdowns of goods and services, notably $75 million in general drawdown authority under Section 506 of the Foreign Assistance Act and potentially $100 million in drawdown authority for military goods for Bosnia, under the pending FY 1996 foreign aid appropriations bill. In addition, some funds for training may be available from the International Military Education and Training (IMET) account. It should be noted, however, that these authorities draw on existing defense stocks and resources, with some impact on readiness. In addition, to the extent the general drawdown authority is used for Bosnia, it is no longer available for other crises and emergencies. Moreover, IMET funds are roughly allocated globally at the start of the year; reprogramming would be required to allocate a larger proportion to activities in the former Yugoslavia.

Options for Bosnia Funding Strategy

There are three basic options for securing additional funds for Bosnia programs: (1) an FY 1996 emergency supplemental; (2) a "budget end game" negotiations option; and (3) an FY 1996 offset supplemental from within existing resources.

Option #1: FY 1996 Emergency Supplemental. The Administration could request an emergency supplemental from Congress for the costs not covered by existing FY 1996 funding sources. As an "emergency," the supplemental would not require the Administration to identify offsets; it would also increase the deficit.

The "emergency" designation would theoretically avoid the painful reductions in other programs indicated above. However, the Congress would almost certainly reject an emergency designation and insist on offsetting the supplemental, as it has for supplementals the Administration requested this year for defense contingency operations, the California earthquake and the Oklahoma City bombing. Without Administration input, the Congress would likely offset the supplemental by rescinding funds from other, perhaps higher, Administration priorities. Furthermore, requesting a supplemental without offsets could undermine public perception of the Administration's willingness to seek a balanced budget.

[Note: As an alternative, the Administration might seek to provide offsets that cover the budget authority requirements for Bosnia programs, but not the outlay requirement. The Administration could request an emergency designation to accommodate the potential shortfall in outlays. For example, investment accounts (Procurement and R&D) would probably be the source of offsets in the defense budget for O&M and personnel costs associated with IFOR. Since investment programs outlay at a significantly slower rate than O&M or military personnel, there would be a shortfall in outlay offsets relative to actual outlays. An emergency designation would accommodate this shortfall. By the end of the fifth year the outlay differential would be virtually eliminated.]

Option #2: Budget End Game Negotiations. The Administration could seek funding for all or some of the Bosnia peace programs as part of the end game budget negotiations this fall, using offsets from other programs in the end game negotiations. This option depends on the timing, nature, and context of those negotiations. Many in Congress have indicated an unwillingness to provide any funding for Bosnia programs prior to a comprehensive debate and vote authorizing troop deployments. This suggests that a full Congressional debate may be required prior to an agreement on funding, thus raising a possible disconnect in timing between the end game negotiations and any Bosnia funding discussion.

There are several potential benefits to this option. It would probably be more acceptable to Congress than an emergency supplemental since funding for Bosnia would not increase the deficit. Also, it could provide full FY 1996 financial support for Bosnia programs early, in contrast to a supplemental request later in the fiscal year, thus minimizing turbulence to other defense and international programs.

Introducing the Bosnia funding issue into the end game negotiations, however, would further complicate an already complex situation. In addition to the usual set of players one would expect to engage in such negotiations (Appropriators, Budget & Finance Committee members, Congressional and Administration leadership), the Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committee leaders would probably request a presence at the table.

Moreover, Congressional leaders would almost certainly use the Bosnia funding issue as leverage in the negotiations, forcing the Administration to choose between funding the Bosnia programs and other defense, international affairs, or domestic funding priorities. This is a particularly important consideration; if the end game negotiations include Bosnia within current appropriations ceilings, Congress might reduce appropriations allocations (602b's) to key committees at the same time as the Administration is attempting to increase allocations to those committees to restore funding for Presidential priorities such as education, the environment and technology. Alternatively, if the end game results in higher overall discretionary spending levels (602a's), in order to continue deficit reduction, Bosnia funding could come at the expense of such Presidential priorities on the mandatory side as Medicare and low income entitlement programs.

Option #3: FY 1996 Offset Supplemental. The Administration could request supplemental funding, with offsets, at a later point, once the budget end game negotiations were concluded. The timing of the submission would depend on a variety of factors, including the Bosnia peace agreement implementation schedule and the Congressional schedule. In any case, a detailed supplemental funding plan could be developed for submission with the President's FY 1997 Budget submission.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

A supplemental request submitted later this fiscal year would afford the Administration more time to develop a comprehensive, accurate set of financial requirements, as well as realistic offsets. Finally, proposing tradeoffs and offsets would underscore the Administration's commitment to deficit reduction. As noted, however, an offset supplemental would require cuts to programs that will have been enacted at levels below the Administration's request. Such offsets are opposed by the agencies and could draw Congressional opposition as well.

Conclusion

The Principals need to consider the funding requirements for Bosnia as a whole and in the context of the Administration's overall budget priorities and the constrained fiscal environment. While offsets are likely to be required, finding sources is difficult. While tradeoffs are not impossible, they require a prioritization of competing demands consistent with the President's agenda. Therefore, it is imperative that choices are presented to the President that allow him to decide if the value of each additional increment of spending on specific Bosnia programs is worth the cost to other priority programs. Conflicting claims for resources should lead to a reconsideration both of the overall size of the package and of the Administration's strategy for seeking significant international sharing of the fiscal burden.

Bosnia Assistance - Mix of Program Elements

At the November 1 Deputies' Committee meeting it was agreed (a) in taking decisions on economic aid for Bosnia, the U.S. should endorse the comprehensive financial approach outlined by the IMF and World Bank, and (b) Deputies recommend to Principals endorsement of a notional $600 million budget for the package over three years. (The IMF/Bank approach and the $600 million package are exclusive of humanitarian assistance.)

U.S. Objective

The U.S. assistance objective is to move quickly to reinforce a peace settlement by strengthening key Federation institutions, and to create a stable, prosperous, multi-ethnic democracy in which human rights are respected and displaced people are allowed to return.

What Is Meant By A Comprehensive Approach?

In early October, G-7 Finance Ministers tasked the Fund and Bank with developing a comprehensive medium-term financing scenario for Bosnia. The scenario pulls together the pieces of Bosnia's external financing requirements, including debt reduction, reconstruction needs, political and economic transformation, reserve build-up, and arrears clearance. The scenario is based on a highly preliminary evaluation:

- After deep debt reduction of $1-1/2 billion, Bosnia faces residual needs of $4-1/2 billion over the three years after peace.
- IMF, World Bank, EBRD and others may provide $1-1/2 billion.
- The remaining $3 billion should be covered by bilateral donors, largely on concessional terms.

USAID is developing a series of projects that will accomplish U.S. assistance objectives, but the precise mix of program elements will depend on several factors currently unknown, such as requirements arising from the peace settlement, contributions from other donors, possible Congressional earmarks, etc.

Why a $600 Million U.S. Contribution?

We are assuming the U.S. might provide on the order of 20 percent of the $3 billion, or $600 million.

- Traditionally, the U.S. provides on the order of 25 percent.
- In Bosnia a lower share is warranted. We will assume the major share of IFOR, we want Europe as the main donor, and a wider array of possible donors exists.

DRAFT

PROPOSED TASK ORDER FOR: THE INSTITUTE FOR DEFENSE ANALYSIS

SUBJECT: Sustaining Bosnia Peace Agreement

BACKGROUND: Assuming a peace agreement will be achieved in the very near future, a "Deep Look/Full Assessment" of Croat/Muslim Federation force structure is required to determine what is required so they can achieve the mission of defending the Federation. The Context of the assessment must be in terms of Military Stabilization in the region. The Assessment must recognize that arms control efforts are a first priority, but that if arms control methods fail, the potential requirement for some level of equipping and training the Federation forces remains. The assessment will focus on this potential requirement to improve the Federation forces. The assessment must address what is needed and methods to achieve the needed improvements in the Federation forces.

TASKING: The assessment will define the needs of the Federation forces to achieve a level of capability sufficient to defend the Federation in the context of military stability in the region. "Needs" includes the full range of force structure and readiness considerations including, but not limited to, forces, basing, equipment, logistics, training, and doctrine at all echelons. The assessment must also recommend a near term ("quick fix = minimal requirements") and a long term strategy to achieve the required capabilities in the Federation forces. These Strategies will recognize international participation as a modality for support. The assessment will establish a framework for continued assessment of all aspects of military stabilization in the region. The assessment team will be accompanied by representatives of Ambassador Holbrooke's delegation and/or country team for all initial meeting or contacts.

The Contractor will:

(1) Provide a team of 6 to 8 analysts with appropriate background and expertise to conduct the assessment.

(2) Develop a detailed analysis plan and have it approved by the Joint Staff/J5 within one week of initiation of this Task Order.

(3) The Team will travel as required to the region and to other areas including but not limited to the USEUCOM AOR, as necessary to collect information and data and conduct the assessment. The contractor will conduct the assessment and provide the results in the form of a briefing within one month of initiating this Task Order. The contractor will provide progress reports weekly and will prepare and provide a written report within 60 days of initiation of this Task Order.

(4) Specific areas to be addressed include, but are not limited to:

-Consideration of all echelons of Federation forces.

-Appropriate Missions (i.e. Defense of Federation Territory) and Functions for Federation forces.

-Based on Missions and Functions, determination of size and composition of Federation forces (active, reserve, draftee, volunteers, etc.).

-Force sustainment.

-Appropriate levels of equipment and training required.

DELIVERABLES

(1) A briefing presenting the methods; findings, conclusions; and recommendations will be delivered within 30 days of Task Order Initiation to Joint Staff/J-5.

(2) A written report to be delivered within 60 days of Task Order initiation Joint Staff/J-5.

(3) Weekly Progress reports to Joint Staff/J-5.

Summary of Conclusions

Eastern Slavonia

1. Principals noted that Croatian officials in Dayton, in discussions on implementation of the Eastern Slavonia agreement, had urged the United States to help draft the UNSCR authorizing a new peacekeeping force, assume the civilian leadership role in the transitional administration, and help develop a "Friends of Eastern Slavonia" initiative similar to the "Friends of the Federation." Principals agreed that work should be accelerated to determine the requirements for an effective military implementation force, given the agreement's provisions on demilitarization, and to draft a UNSCR that describes the mandate for the force and outlines the guidelines for transition. (Action: State/USUN/OSD) (S)

Military Stabilization

2. Principals welcomed the reports from Dayton of progress regarding inclusion of arms control measures in the peace agreement. They recognized the requirement to provide the Federation some degree of equip & train and reaffirmed their decision of early October to have the United States coordinate a modest multilateral program. They agreed, however, that in view of the potential risks to U.S. personnel in IFOR of a high-profile U.S. role in equip & train, our role should be largely behind the scenes, with actual weapons provided by other countries. While the United States would not sign a formal memorandum of understanding with the Bosnian government, Principals agreed that the United States would assure the Bosnian government that the United States would ensure that coalition of willing states would provide weapons sufficient to develop a self-defense capability. (S)

3. Principals agreed that in this low-profile equip & train effort, the United States would use contractors. They agreed that U.S. negotiators would seek the agreement of all parties to an understanding on the need for military stabilization as a way to ensure transparency, but that this agreement would not be a precondition for an equip & train effort. (S)

Sanctions/Phasing of Lift and Equip & Train

4. Principals reaffirmed that economic sanctions would be suspended upon a full peace agreement and lifted upon implementation. Principals agreed that the suspension could take place upon initialing rather than signature of the peace agreement. (S)

5. Principals agreed to the following regarding phasing of lift/equip & train:

- The arms embargo would be juridically terminated at the time the peace agreement entered into force.
- No arms shipments would be permitted for the first 90 days (the period during which IFOR would be deploying and the parties would be carrying out their withdrawals to the agreed lines on the map).

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

- After 90 days, shipments of small arms and non-lethal equipment (e.g. communications) would be permitted, but larger equipment would remain excluded for another three months.
- After six months, there would be no further restrictions on arms shipments except for any ceilings agreed upon in the arms control negotiations. (There would be no conditionality: if arms control talks failed, full lift would take effect in any case.) (S)

International Police Task Force

6. Principals endorsed the establishment of an International Police Task Force to support the civilian aspects of implementation. They reaffirmed their October 25 decision that IFOR's mission will not include police functions, but IFOR would be authorized to intervene in the event of gross violations of human rights or attacks on international civilian agencies in proximity to the force's areas of operation. (S)

7. Principals also reaffirmed their October 27 decision that the IFOR commander at the Corps level should have the authority to act, on the basis of his own judgment, against reported "over the horizon" gross violations of human rights and/or attacks on international civilian agencies, in situations of urgent and serious humanitarian needs or attacks, and where NATO forces have the means and opportunity to stop violence to life and persons and where it will not adversely affect the IFOR mission. REPUBLIKA BOSNA I HERCEGOVINA
Ministarstvo Vanjskih Poslova
Ministry of Foreign Affairs

13 November 1995

Mr. Anthony Lake
National Security Advisor
The White House
Washington

Dear Mr. Lake:

I am forwarding to you a proposal for a "Memorandum of Understanding" delivered to Secretary of State Christopher on Friday, 10 November 1995, during his meeting with President Izetbegovic and myself at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio.

We firmly believe that the arms embargo issue should be viewed as an integral part of the Dayton peace process. Peace can only be assured by allowing for Bosnia and Herzegovina's self defense. And I hope that we will be able to finalize this Memorandum of Understanding during the next several days in Dayton.

We must reiterate that this is a vital and integral part of the peace process in Dayton as it directly affects the prospects for peace in our country. This Memorandum of Understanding can only further the cause for peace and expedite the return to normalcy for the people of Bosnia and Herzegovina and for the region. We await the Administration's thoughts on this important matter.

Sincerely,

Muhamed Sacirbey
Minister

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING

Whereas it is the desire of the Government of the United States and the government of Bosnia and Herzegovina that Bosnia and Herzegovina be capable of providing for its own defense without depending on U.S. or other outside forces;

And whereas an embargo imposed by United Nations resolutions 724 and 727 has prevented Bosnia and Herzegovina from achieving a defense force adequate for its security;

And whereas United States assistance in training and equipping the defense forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina is essential for the peace and stability of the Balkan region,

Therefore, the United States and Bosnia and Herzegovina have agreed as follows:

1. The U.S. will move at once to relieve Bosnia and Herzegovina from the continued application of the U.N. arms embargo by arranging for an immediate resolution of the U.N. Security Council that will end the embargo as it applies to Bosnia and Herzegovina or, failing that, by acting, in concert with one or more of its allies, to declare the embargo null and void.

2. The U.S. will assist the defense forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina by providing, on an urgent basis, significant material, training and logistic support sufficient in quality and quantity to enable Bosnia and Herzegovina to achieve a military balance with respect to the forces that threaten it.

3. It is understood that the forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which are now inadequate to allow a credible defense of its sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence, are particularly deficient with respect to armor, artillery, air mobility, communications, logistics and air defense.

4. The U.S. will take immediate steps to facilitate the urgent delivery of defense articles and services immediately upon removal of the embargo.

For the United States:

For Bosnia and Herzegovina

Rev. 1

INTERNATIONAL POLICE TASK FORCE

The Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and the Republica Srpska (the "Parties") have agreed as follows:

Article I

Civilian Law Enforcement

1. As provided in Article IV(5)(e) of the Constitution agreed as Annex 4 to the General Framework Agreement, the Parties shall provide a safe and secure environment for all persons in their respective jurisdictions, by maintaining civilian law enforcement agencies operating in accordance with internationally recognized standards and with respect for internationally recognized human rights and fundamental freedoms, and by taking such other measures as appropriate.

2. To assist them in meeting their obligations, the Parties request that the United Nations establish by a decision of the Security Council, as a UNCIVPOL operation, ~~an~~ U.N. International Police Task Force (IPTF) to carry out, throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina, the program of assistance the elements of which are described in Article III below.

Article II

Establishment of the IPTF

1. The IPTF shall be autonomous with regard to the execution of its functions under this Agreement. ~~It will coordinate~~ Its activities ~~with~~ will be coordinated through the High Representative~~/Senior Implementation Coordinator (SICOR)~~ described in Annex 10 to the General Framework Agreement.

2. The IPTF will be headed by a Commissioner, who will be appointed by the Secretary General of the United Nations in consultation with the Security Council. It shall consist of persons of high moral standing who have experience in law enforcement. The IPTF Commissioner may request and accept

Article III

IPTF Assistance Program

1. IPTF assistance includes the following elements, to be provided in a program designed and implemented by the IPTF Commissioner in accordance with the U.N. Security Council decision described in Article I(2):

(a) monitoring, observing, and inspecting law enforcement activities and facilities, including associated judicial organizations, structures, and proceedings;

(b) advising law enforcement personnel and forces;

(c) training law enforcement personnel;

(d) facilitating, within the IPTF's mission of assistance, the Parties' law enforcement activities;

(e) assessing threats to public order and the capability of law enforcement agencies, including their size, composition, and expertise;

(f) advising governmental authorities in Bosnia and Herzegovina on the organization of effective civilian law enforcement agencies; and

(g) accompanying the Parties' law enforcement personnel in carrying out their responsibilities, as the IPTF deems appropriate.

2. In addition to the elements of the assistance program set forth in paragraph 1, the IPTF will consider, consistent with its responsibilities and resources, requests from the Parties or law enforcement agencies in Bosnia and Herzegovina for assistance described in paragraph 1.

3. The Parties confirm their particular responsibility to ensure the existence of social conditions for free and fair elections, including the protection of international personnel in Bosnia and Herzegovina in connection with the elections provided for in Annex 3 to the General Framework Agreement. They request the IPTF to give priority to assisting the Parties in carrying out this responsibility.

Article IV

Specific Responsibilities of the Parties

1. The Parties shall cooperate fully with the IPTF and shall so instruct all their law enforcement agencies.

2. Within 30 days after this Agreement enters into force, the Parties shall provide the IPTF Commissioner or his designee with information on their law enforcement agencies, including their size, location, and force structure. Upon request of the IPTF Commissioner, they shall provide additional information, including any training, operational, or employment and service records of law enforcement agencies and personnel.

3. The Parties shall not impede the movement of IPTF personnel or in any way hinder, obstruct, or delay them in the performance of their ~~duties~~ responsibilities. They shall allow IPTF personnel complete access to any site, person, activity, proceeding, record, or other item or event in Bosnia and Herzegovina as requested by the IPTF in carrying out its ~~functions~~ responsibilities under ~~this Agreement~~ Article III(1), including access to any law enforcement action, facility, or activity such as patrols, investigations, arrests, training, headquarters or support actions, detention facilities, or judicial proceedings. The IPTF shall have the right to monitor, observe, and inspect any site or facility at which it believes that police, law enforcement, detention, or judicial activities are taking place.

4. Upon request by the IPTF, the Parties shall make available for training qualified personnel, who are expected to take up law enforcement duties immediately following such training.

5. The Parties shall facilitate the operations of the IPTF in Bosnia and Herzegovina, including by the provision of appropriate assistance as requested with regard to transportation, subsistence, accommodations, communications, and other facilities at rates equivalent to those provided for the IFOR under applicable agreements.

Article V

Failure to Cooperate

1. Any obstruction of or interference with IPTF activities, failure or refusal to comply with an IPTF request, or other failure to meet the Parties' responsibilities or other obligations in this Annex, shall constitute a failure to cooperate with the IPTF.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

2. The IPTF Commissioner will notify the High Representative~~/SICOR~~ and inform the IFOR Commander ~~the Joint Military Commission~~ of failures to cooperate with the IPTF. The IPTF Commissioner may request that the High Representative~~/SICOR~~ take appropriate steps upon receiving such notifications, including calling such failures to the attention of the Parties, convening the Joint Civilian Commission, and consulting with the United Nations, relevant states, and international organizations on further responses.

Article VI

Human Rights

1. When IPTF personnel learn of credible ~~allegations of~~ information concerning violations of internationally recognized human rights or fundamental freedoms or of the role of law enforcement officials or forces in such violations, they shall provide such information to the Human Rights Commission established in Annex 6 to the General Framework Agreement, the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia, or to other appropriate organizations.

2. The Parties shall cooperate with investigations of law enforcement forces and officials by the organizations described in paragraph 1.

Article VII

Application

This Agreement applies throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina to law enforcement agencies and personnel of Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Entities, and any agency, subdivision, or instrumentality thereof. Law enforcement agencies are those with a mandate including law enforcement, criminal investigations, public and state security, or detention or judicial activities. ~~The IPTF will regard components of Forces as defined in Annex 1 to the General Framework Agreement to be law enforcement agencies only with the concurrence of the IFOR Commander.~~

REPUBLIKA BOSNA I HERCEGOVINA
Ministarstvo Vanjskih Poslova
Ministry of Foreign Affairs

13 November 1995

Mr. Anthony Lake
National Security Advisor
The White House
Washington

Dear Mr. Lake:

I am forwarding to you a proposal for a "Memorandum of Understanding" delivered to Secretary of State Christopher on Friday, 10 November 1995, during his meeting with President Izetbegovic and myself at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio.

We firmly believe that the arms embargo issue should be viewed as an integral part of the Dayton peace process. Peace can only be assured by allowing for Bosnia and Herzegovina's self defense. And I hope that we will be able to finalize this Memorandum of Understanding during the next several days in Dayton.

We must reiterate that this is a vital and integral part of the peace process in Dayton as it directly affects the prospects for peace in our country. This Memorandum of Understanding can only further the cause for peace and expedite the return to normalcy for the people of Bosnia and Herzegovina and for the region. We await the Administration's thoughts on this important matter.

Sincerely,

Muhamed Sacirbey
Minister

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING

Whereas it is the desire of the Government of the United States and the government of Bosnia and Herzegovina that Bosnia and Herzegovina be capable of providing for its own defense without depending on U.S. or other outside forces;

And whereas an embargo imposed by United Nations resolutions 724 and 727 has prevented Bosnia and Herzegovina from achieving a defense force adequate for its security;

And whereas United States assistance in training and equipping the defense forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina is essential for the peace and stability of the Balkan region,

Therefore, the United States and Bosnia and Herzegovina have agreed as follows:

1. The U.S. will move at once to relieve Bosnia and Herzegovina from the continued application of the U.N. arms embargo by arranging for an immediate resolution of the U.N. Security Council that will end the embargo as it applies to Bosnia and Herzegovina or, failing that, by acting, in concert with one or more of its allies, to declare the embargo null and void.

2. The U.S. will assist the defense forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina by providing, on an urgent basis, significant material, training and logistic support sufficient in quality and quantity to enable Bosnia and Herzegovina to achieve a military balance with respect to the forces that threaten it.

3. It is understood that the forces of Bosnia and Herzegovina, which are now inadequate to allow a credible defense of its sovereignty, territorial integrity and political independence, are particularly deficient with respect to armor, artillery, air mobility, communications, logistics and air defense.

4. The U.S. will take immediate steps to facilitate the urgent delivery of defense articles and services immediately upon removal of the embargo.

For the United States:

For Bosnia and Herzegovina

Summary of Conclusions

1. Principals, joined by the President and Vice President for most of the meeting, were briefed by the U.S. delegation on the Dayton peace agreement signed the previous day and discussed follow-up. (U)

2. UNSC Resolutions: Principals agreed that the U.S. should insist on enactment of the UN Security Council resolution lifting the arms embargo before enactment of the resolution on suspension of economic sanctions in order to ensure that the arms embargo lift was not blocked by Russia (Action USUN/State). (C)

3. Bosnian Serb Compliance: Principals agreed that we need to press Serbian President Milosevic not only to secure Bosnian Serb initialing of the Dayton documents (pursuant to Milosevic's commitment to Secretary Christopher at Dayton), but to bring about early concrete manifestations of the Bosnian Serbs' compliance with the terms of the Dayton agreement; in this regard, we should warn Milosevic of our determination to reimpose economic sanctions if we do not see prompt indications that the Bosnian Serbs intend to implement the agreement (Action: State). The President stressed that we should not seek a Congressional vote of support for U.S. participation in IFOR until we are more convinced of Bosnian Serb strategic consent. (C)

4. Equip and Train: Principals affirmed the U.S. commitment to the Bosnian Government at Dayton to ensure that Federation armed forces received the necessary equipping and training to establish an effective self-defense capability by the time IFOR leaves. They agreed that, to respond to the concerns within the USG and the Congress about the risk to U.S. forces, we will seek to ensure that the equip-and-train program is carried out by third countries, and we will seek to reduce the Federation's arms requirements to the maximum degree possible through a negotiated arms build-down. We should also make clear that U.S. support for an equip-and-train effort is dependent on Bosnia severing its military links to Iran (Action: State). (S)

5. Congressional Strategy: Principals reviewed the gameplan for Congressional consultations in the period between the initialing of the peace agreement and the deployment of IFOR. The President and Vice President underscored in particular the need for DOD and JCS briefers to convey a clear message that IFOR's mission is limited and achievable, and that we will avoid mission creep (Action: All). Principals asked that a detailed IFOR mission statement be prepared as a common basis for Congressional briefings, together with a description of the end-state that we expect to be achieved at the end of IFOR's one-year deployment period (Action: JCS). (C)

6. IFOR Enabling Force: Principals agreed that the U.S. should support a decision at NATO to proceed with the deployment of the IFOR enabling force, with the participation of U.S. forces, prior to the signature of the peace agreement in Paris in order to preserve the option of rapidly deploying the main force immediately after signature (Action: State/JCS). The President stressed the importance of full and thorough consultations with Congress on the enabling force (Action: NSC). (C)

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

7. Russian Participation in IFOR: Principals reviewed plans for the November 28 Perry-Grachev meeting and reaffirmed U.S. readiness to agree to a 16+1 NATO-Russia consultative framework in the context of Russian agreement to place their forces under NATO operational or tactical control (Action: OSD/State). (C)

8. Civilian Implementation: Principals agreed that the U.S. could support the appointment of Carl Bildt as High Representative for civilian implementation of the peace agreement if Bildt accepted an American as one of his senior deputies (Action: State). (C).

9. Funding: Principals discussed the implications for Bosnia funding of a possible Presidential veto of the Defense Appropriations bill. They agreed to explore with the Congress the possibility of using a portion of the $7 billion not requested by the Administration as the means of funding U.S. forces in IFOR and the U.S. contribution to international economic reconstruction efforts (Action: OMB/OSD). (C)

10. Sanctions: Principals agreed that it was essential to maintain the ICFY and SAM monitors in at least a stand-by capacity until the Bosnian elections in order to preserve the capability of reimposing sanctions if necessary (Action: OVP). (C)

11. Decision Timeline: Principals asked the Deputies Committee to prepare a detailed timeline for political and military decisions over the coming weeks in order to permit Principals to decide the best date for the Congressional vote and the signing of the peace agreement in Paris (Action: NSC). (C)

PROPOSED COUNTER-DRAFT ON EQUIP AND TRAIN

His Excellency
Alija Izetbegovic
President of Bosnia and Herzegovina

Dear Mr. President:

The United States has strongly supported the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Bosnia and Herzegovina. We are pleased that an agreement is at hand that will preserve Bosnia and Herzegovina as a single state and create conditions for its peaceful democratic development and economic recovery.

As part of our mutual efforts to implement an agreed peace settlement, the United States attaches great importance to the achievement of military stability among the parties to the settlement. We hope that negotiated arms reductions will contribute significantly toward this end. It is our strong preference that military stabilization, to the extent possible, be achieved by limitations and reductions, not by the introduction of large quanitites of new arms into the region. We expect that Bosnian and Federation representatives will negotiate in good faith, along with the other parties, toward the arms reduction and limitation goals set forth in the peace agreement.

We believe that it will also be important, in pursuing military stabilization, that Federation armed forces be capable of providing for their own defense. We agree that the arms embargo imposed by UN Security Council resolution 713 has unfairly impeded your government's ability to obtain an adequate self-defense capability.

Accordingly, the United States, upon the initialing of a peace agreement at Dayton, intends to seek the passage of a UN Security Council resolution that will terminate the arms embargo upon signature and entry into force of the peace agreement. That resolution, in order to minimize risks to the safety of military personnel participating in the NATO-led Implementation Force, as agreed in the Military Annex to the peace agreement, will impose certain restrictions on the importation of weapons systems during the initial six months after signature of the peace agreement; but it will guarantee that there are no restrictions after that point apart from any limitations that may have been voluntarily accepted by your government as part of a regional arms control regime. We are confident of passage of this resolution by the Security Council.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Furthermore, I can assure you that the United States will coordinate with other interested states to ensure that Federation armed forces receive the necessary equipment and training needed to establish an effective self-defense capability against the possibility of renewed conflict with the Bosnian Serbs. U.S. support of such an effort would, as you know, be contingent on Bosnia-Herzegovina terminating any military support and cooperative arrangements with Iran and other radical states, and complying fully with the peace settlement, including the terms related to military stabilization, arms control negotiation, and expulsion of Mujahideen and other foreign forces. The U.S. role in the actual provision of military equipment can only be determined based on the assessment of the deficiencies of Federation armed forces that is now being carried out, and following consultations with the U.S. Congress and with other potential contributing states.

Warren Christopher

INFORMATION

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Your Participation in Principals' Committee Meeting on Bosnia, November 22, 1995, 10:45-11:45 a.m.

Principals are meeting with the U.S. negotiating team to receive a report on the peace agreement and to discuss the immediate steps needed to follow up. We suggest you attend the first part of the meeting to thank the negotiators personally for their efforts and hear their read-out and assessment of the tasks ahead. Principals then will tackle a long list of issues (attached) relating to the IFOR, Congressional consultations, and civilian implementation. You may want to participate in a portion of this discussion, which will include options for your personal involvement.

Dayton Follow-up: In the coming days, we will see whether the parties remain committed to the peace agreement and are able to deal with domestic critics of its terms. The biggest question mark is the Bosnian Serbs. They refused to initial the documents in Dayton because they had no say in the negotiation of the map, but they agreed Milosevic could be "guarantor" of their compliance. The Bosnian Serbs must sign the final agreement in Paris, and we have put the onus on Milosevic to deliver Pale in the next few weeks.

IFOR Planning and Congress: We are working with Shali and George Joulwan to speed up NATO planning so that you can be briefed on the final OPLAN early next week. That would permit you to make your final decision on U.S. participation and request Congressional support, after which roughly two weeks of intensive Hill consultations would begin leading to a vote in the Senate and House. We will work to ensure that the Paris conference is scheduled at a point that allows Congress to give the agreement and military plan a thorough examination, and permits us to make our case for U.S. involvement. At the same time, the Paris conference will set a time limit on Congressional deliberations. In the run-up to Paris, we expect the UN will pass a resolution endorsing the IFOR mission.

Civilian Implementation: In addition to IFOR, we have been planning for the range of civilian tasks that will be essential to the success of the peace agreement: economic reconstruction; organizing elections and protecting human rights; monitoring of civilian police; assisting in return of refugees; and implementing an arms reduction regime. The OSCE, UN, EU and IFIs will be responsible for different aspects of this program. At the planned London Conference, to be held sometime in December, a structure will be established to coordinate these civilian efforts, with the G-7 plus Russia and the OIC Presidency likely to serve as the steering group. A "High Representative" (possibly Carl Bildt) will be named as senior coordinator on the scene; we are seeking to have an American as his principal deputy.

Your Involvement: There are a number of issues regarding your involvement, including: key calls over the weekend (e.g. Bush, Thatcher, Powell); Oval Office address before next week's European trip; Congressional "Big 40" meeting before the trip; timing of key military decisions; how to convey the request for Congressional support and whether you should address a joint session of Congress; whether you should attend the final signing of the peace agreement in Paris; whether you should visit U.S. troops who will take part in IFOR during next week's trip.

Issues for discussion:

- What are the potential fault lines in the agreement?
- How committed are the parties to making the central government institutions work?
- What are we expecting Milosevic to do to deliver the Bosnian Serbs between now and the Paris conference? How do we respond to their belligerent statements in the meantime?
- What is required from the Bosnian Serbs between now and Paris for us to go forward with IFOR deployment?
- Can we finalize the NATO OPLAN early next week? Are there any serious differences to resolve with key Allies (e.g. robust ROE)?
- Do we need to preposition significant U.S. forces before signature? How will this affect Congressional support for the IFOR mission?
- How will we come to closure on Russian participation in IFOR?
- Which civilian implementation tasks are most critical to the success of the settlement?
- Status of UN resolutions (lift of arms embargo and sanctions suspension as early as Wednesday; endorsement of implementation mission later).

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANTHONY LAKE

SUBJECT: Conclusions of December 5 Principals Committee Meeting on Bosnia

Principals met Tuesday to address a number of the remaining bumps in the road from Dayton to Paris, including: handling of the Dole resolution on IFOR; eliminating threats from the mujahedin and the Iranians; addressing the security concerns of the Serb population of Sarajevo; and ensuring that the Bosnian Serbs will comply with the terms of the Dayton agreement.

Congressional Resolutions: Principals reviewed the draft text of Dole's resolution. They agreed we should try to get rid of the offensive language in the preamble, which characterizes the Dayton agreement as "ratification of ethnic cleansing," but we should focus our efforts on modifying the operative paragraphs. In particular, we will want to scale back Dole's efforts to commit us to "lead" rather than "coordinate" international efforts to equip and train Bosnian forces. Principals agreed that we could live with a requirement to report to the Congress within 30 days on efforts to equip and train the Bosnians, but not in impractical detail. They also agreed that we could accept a requirement to report regularly on IFOR's mission, rules of engagement, costs and exit strategy.

Eliminating Mujahedin and Iranian Threats: Principals agreed we must press the Bosnians more firmly on the need not only to remove foreign military and paramilitary forces as required by the Dayton agreement but also to break their military links and operational intelligence cooperation with Iran. Dick Holbrooke will travel to Sarajevo on Friday to deliver a strong message along these lines, stressing the risks that Tehran-backed terrorist groups pose to our troops and to our larger interests. John Deutch has agreed that we can present some of our intelligence about Iranian activities inside Bosnia so that Izetbegovic will have no doubt about the depth of our concern. Dick will make clear that our readiness to help the Bosnians -- both militarily and economically -- will be jeopardized if the Bosnians do not break the Iranian connection.

Security for Serbs in Sarajevo: A second aspect of Holbrooke's mission to Sarajevo will be to encourage the Bosnians to take immediate, concrete steps to reassure the Serb population of Sarajevo that their security will be protected when they come under Federation control. We want to avoid a mass exodus of Serbs from the capital as the first fruit of the Dayton agreement. Among the steps that Dick will recommend include: delaying the deployment of Federation military forces to former Serb areas (which would be permitted after 90 days), with IFOR maintaining a presence; phasing in gradually the introduction of Muslim police and establishing a multiethnic police force under international supervision; forming a transitional city government with multiethnic representation; and establishing a local human rights commission. For our part, we will try to accelerate the deployment to Sarajevo of international police advisors and human rights monitors even before they are deployed country-wide. While these steps will not in themselves be enough to discourage all Serbs from leaving the capital, we believe that this is an important opportunity for Izetbegovic to demonstrate his commitment to preserving a unified, multiethnic Bosnia.

Ensuring Bosnian Serb Acceptance of the Agreement: The most critical subject on the Principals' agenda was how we can be sure that the Bosnian Serbs have accepted the terms of the agreement and are committed to implementing its provisions. The recent demonstrations and statements by Mladic and Karadzic have cast doubt on Milosevic's ability to deliver the Bosnian Serbs by the time of Paris. We had always stressed that we will only deploy U.S. troops to Bosnia if there is a genuine peace agreement that all the parties have accepted and are committed to implementing. Principals agreed that we needed to press Milosevic to do more between now and Paris to rein in recalcitrant elements among the Bosnian Serbs, although we should not make any one action a deal-breaker. Holbrooke will go to Belgrade from Sarajevo to warn Milosevic that, if we are not convinced that the Bosnian Serbs are committed to complying with the agreement, we will have no choice but to reimpose sanctions.

Other Issues: Principals also reviewed the state of play in New York on the UN resolution that will grant authority to IFOR. Our aim is to have the resolution enacted no later than the day after Paris, so that there will be no delay in deployment of the main force. They also discussed implementation of the Eastern Slavonia agreement: we intend to appoint a retired U.S. military officer as head of the civilian administration, as Tudjman has requested; we are trying to find additional NATO countries to reinforce the existing Belgian and Russian battalions as the core of a UN peacekeeping force.

Summary of Conclusions

Congressional Strategy

1. Principals reviewed the draft text of the Dole-McCain resolution for support of U.S. armed forces participating in IFOR. They agreed that while we should try to eliminate language in the preamble that characterizes the Dayton agreement as "ratification" of ethnic cleansing, our priority should be to improve the operative paragraphs. They agreed we should seek to scale back efforts to commit the United States to "lead" rather than "coordinate" international efforts to equip and train Bosnian forces. (S)

2. Principals agreed that the Administration could accept requirements to report to the Congress within 30 days on U.S. and international efforts to equip and train the Bosnians and to report regularly on IFOR's mission, rules of engagement, costs and exit strategy. (S)

Eliminating Mujahedin and Iranian Threats

3. Principals agreed we must press the Bosnians more firmly on the need not only to remove foreign military and paramilitary forces as required by the Dayton agreement but also to break their military links and operational intelligence cooperation with Iran. Principals agreed to send a strong message through Ambassador Holbrooke to President Izetbegovic along these lines, stressing the risks that Iran and Tehran-backed terrorist groups pose to our troops and to our larger interests. Specific intelligence information would be prepared to reinforce the U.S. demarche. They also agreed to tell the Bosnian government that U.S. readiness to help the Bosnians -- both militarily and economically -- will be jeopardized if the Bosnians do not break the Iranian connection (Action: State/NSC/CIA). (S)

Security for Serbs in Sarajevo

4. Principals agreed to encourage the Bosnians to take immediate, concrete steps to reassure the Serb population of Sarajevo that their security will be protected when they come under Federation control. They agreed to recommend to the Bosnian government to delay the deployment of Federation military forces to former Serb areas; to phase in gradually the introduction of Muslim police and establish a multiethnic police force under international supervision; to form a transitional city government with multiethnic representation; and to establish a local human rights commission. Principals also agreed that the United States will try to accelerate the deployment to Sarajevo of international police advisors and human rights monitors before their deployment country-wide (Action: State). (S)

Ensuring Bosnian Serb Acceptance of the Agreement

5. Principals agreed to press Milosevic to do more between now and Paris to rein in recalcitrant elements among the Bosnian Serbs, although we should not make any one action a deal-breaker. They agreed that Ambassador Holbrooke should warn Milosevic that if we were not convinced that the Bosnian Serbs were committed to complying with the agreement, we would have no choice but to reimpose sanctions. Principals also agreed that Ambassador Holbrooke should stress that the best solution would be to remove

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Mladic and Karadzic from their positions before the Paris signing of the agreement, since they are, in any case, barred from holding elective or appointive office under the new constitution (Action: State/NSC). (S)

UN

6. Principals agreed that the UNSCR authorizing IFOR must be enacted no later than the day after Paris, so that there will be no delay in deployment of the main force. If necessary, we should insist that the IFOR and civilian elements of the UK draft UNSCR be separated into two resolutions to avoid such a delay (Action: USUN). (C)

Eastern Slavonia

7. Regarding Eastern Slavonia, Principals agreed that since we will not contribute U.S. forces to the peacekeeping force, a retired U.S. military officer should be nominated for appointment as head of the civilian administration (Action: JCS). They agreed that we would prefer that the operation be under Chapter VII but that we should defer to the UN and troop contributors on this point. Principals agreed that the U.S. military would be prepared to provide some logistics support on a reimbursable basis. Given the need for additional NATO countries to reinforce the existing Belgian and Russian battalions, which would form the core of a UN peacekeeping force, Principals agreed to continue diplomatic efforts with Canada, Denmark and the Netherlands (Action: State/NSC/JCS). (S)

Dealing with the Terrorist Threat to U.S. Forces

Background

Article III of Annex 1A of the Dayton agreement stipulates that "all foreign forces, including individual advisors, freedom fighters, trainers, volunteers, and personnel from neighboring and other states, shall be withdrawn from the territory of Bosnia-Herzegovina." Withdrawal must take place within 30 days after the agreement comes into force.

The greatest threat to U.S. forces in Bosnia is posed by three main groups:

- The Mujahedin. These are a ragtag, but highly motivated assortment of Islamic volunteers from outside Bosnia, who view the conflict as a jihad. The mujahedin, whose presence is estimated at 300-1,500, were used by the Bosnian army as shock troops. Approximately 400 have already been absorbed in the Bosnia army. The Bosnian government apparently intends to absorb as many as possible, distributing them throughout the army's force structure. Mujahedin motivation, lack of discipline, and scattered connections to terrorist groups make them the most immediate threat.

- Iran's Presence. There are 350-400 Iranian Revolutionary Guard Corps personnel in Bosnia to train the Bosnian army. The IRGC is one of the Iranian services responsible for carrying out assassinations and other terrorist mission outside of Iran. Iran's intelligence service, MOIS, has a pervasive presence in Bosnia and enjoys easy access to senior officials in the Bosnian government. MOIS has carried out preparations for kidnapping or murdering Americans and may have been responsible for the murder of an American UNPROFOR employee, William Jefferson. 1.4(c)

[redacted] EO 13526 1.4c

The Intelligence Community believes that the most serious threat to U.S. forces will be the presence of Iranian MOIS and IRGC operatives in and around Zenica.

- Islamic Groups. Both Shia and Sunni groups in Bosnia pose a threat to U.S. forces. Hizbollah has an established presence in Bosnia. Anwar Shaban, a key Islamic Group terrorist, now operates in Bosnia as well. Shaban is a disciple of Sheikh Umar Abd el Rahman and is judged highly likely to attack U.S. citizens when the Sheikh receives the lengthy prison sentence the court is expected to hand down next month. Shaban's group is regarded as extremely dangerous. There is evidence that Shaban is in effect under Bosnian protection.

What We Have Said

The Bosnian Government has declared its intention to meet its obligations under the Dayton Agreement. We have since made it clear to Izetbegovic and Sacirbey that foreign forces must be expelled within 30 days after the agreement is signed. Izetbegovic gave us his assurances that this would be done. Izetbegovic, however, seemed to refer only to a small group of 200 mujahedin, as against our much larger estimate the Mujahedin presence. He did not allude to the full array of threats facing U.S. forces. Indeed, we have had no reassurance from Izetbegovic that he intends to eliminate the official Iranian presence, or the Sunni extremist groups in Bosnia. Moreover, the dispersion of foreign mujahedin units into Bosnian army formations suggests that he does not intend to expel the bulk of the mujahedin presence.

We should be under no illusion that our demand for the withdrawal of Iran's official presence will be easy for Izetbegovic to carry out. Iran will resist pressure for its withdrawal and will mobilize Islamic diplomatic support on the basis of their extensive prior support for Bosnia and the supposed ambiguity of the Accord as it relates to the nature of Iran's presence in Bosnia.

Bosnia has an ongoing reason for preserving Iran's presence; in October, Tehran pledged $47 million for Bosnian arms procurement. This commitment to Bosnia coming after three years of support when no other country was meeting Bosnia's defense needs has engendered a strong sympathy for Iran among officials close to Izetbegovic, including Army chief of staff Delic.

What We Want

Within 30 days we would want the following groups removed from Bosnia, whether or not they are covered by the Dayton Agreement:

- Pakistani, Malaysian, Egyptian, Afghan and other foreign mujahedin;
- Iranian personnel associated with the MOIS and IRGC; and
- Members of other extremist groups including the IG and Hizbollah, including branches of Hizbollah or other groups that are ostensibly providing humanitarian assistance or schooling.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

In addition, we would want Bosnia to formally end its arms procurement relationship with Iran and close down training camps operated by proscribed groups.

30-Day Gameplan

First, we would share with Izetbegovic, within the limits of imposed by concern for sources and methods, what we know about the presence of Iranian and other terrorist threats to the U.S. presence in Bosnia. We would make it clear that:

- We expect the Bosnian Government to comply with the Dayton agreement ban on foreign forces.

- U.S. policy requires that the Bosnian Government go beyond the terms of the Dayton agreement to expel Iranian officials and representatives of other extremist groups. This will also require a halt to Bosnian-Iranian arms procurement and training.

- Our ability to block military and economic assistance gives us leverage we are prepared to use.

- We will hold Bosnia responsible for any attacks carried out against U.S. forces by groups we had identified as threats.

We would ask the allies to demarche the Bosnian government along the same lines.

Second, our initial approach to Izetbegovic would be followed up by a strong and explicit Presidential letter and/or phone call emphasizing Bosnia's responsibility for the security of U.S. forces against terrorist attack by any foreign personnel within Bosnia.

Third, we would seek support for this position from Allies and moderate Islamic states. To the extent we can multilateralize this leverage, the better able we will be to bear down on Izetbegovic.

Fourth, we need to get Croatia to cooperate by urging Zagreb to deny refuge to Iranians leaving Bosnia and block the transshipment of Iranians arms. Croatia's large outstanding economic debt to Iran, however, may impede its cooperation in this area.

Fifth, we will need to assure Izetbegovic that we are holding the Serbs equally responsible for expelling unauthorized forces on their side. Arkan's Tigers, in particular, are a threat to U.S. forces and civilian populations. We intend to see them out of Bosnia.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Sixth, we will need to reassure Izetbegovic that we will ensure that Bosnian forces are equipped and trained and that economic reconstruction is carried out, when we have verified that the Bosnia Government has: (a) met the terms of the Dayton agreement with regard to withdrawal of foreign and unauthorized forces; and (b) expelled Iranian officials and other proscribed groups.

Post-30-Day Gameplan

Augmented intelligence collection and a large initial troop presence in Bosnia should enable us to know whether the Bosnians are complying. We will need to make a systematic effort, however, to track and monitor the status of groups and individuals we have identified. This effort should be continuous, with the list of violators updated and transmitted to the Bosnian government on a regular basis.

In deciding how to respond to noncompliance, we will have to determine whether we are dealing with Bosnian unwillingness or incapacity.

If the Bosnian Government is unwilling, we would put equip and train on hold and withhold disbursement of economic assistance.

If the Bosnian Government is willing but unable to expel proscribed groups, and any of these groups actively threatens or attacks U.S. personnel, we would use force against the threatening elements.

PER E.O. 13526
2013-0652-M
VR 2/6/2020 (9.38)

-- we are heartened by the initial steps your government has proposed to reassure the serb community in sarajevo.

-- as vice president gore stressed in his recent meeting with prime minister siladzic, however, additional steps are needed. we want to work with you on developing and implementing a series of confidence-building measures.

-- as we have discussed with you before, the process of reassuring sarajevo's serb community will be a continuing one. your efforts will be critical to ensuring that the re-unification of the city is accomplished without undue dislocation or instability.

-- i would appreciate hearing your ideas on what more should be done. i also would like to share with you some of my government's ideas in this matter.

-- the starting point, of course, is that there can be no renegotiation of the Dayton accords.

-- we believe that federation police should deploy into former serb areas of sarajevo gradually and should develop a multi-ethnic composition which will allay serb concerns while leaving no doubt as to the final disposition of the city.

-- we would also suggest the formation of a transitional city government containing representatives of all sarajevo's ethnic communities. proportional representation within this transitional government would reflect sarajevo's status as a part of the federation.

-- existing non-military police structures in serb areas of sarajevo should be left intact. individual members of these authorities would, of course, be subject to vetting. as a complementary effort, there could be a committee for police affairs, chaired by a representative of the International Police Task Force established by annex 11 of the dayton agreement. This committee would have a mandate to monitor, mentor and assist in the integration of federation and serb police authorities in sarajevo.

-- with regard to international assistance, we would support the establishment of a committee on reconstruction that would ensure that an equitable distribution of international funds would go to all areas of sarajevo. this committee would be chaired by a delegate of the high representative.

-- we would also support the formation of a local human rights commission operating under the auspices of the national human rights commission provided for in annex six of the dayton agreement.

4. begin paris and london talking points.

-- we appreciate the ideas you have provided on possible confidence-building measures for sarajevo. we agree that reassuring the serb community in sarajevo will be an important element for successful implementation of the dayton settlement.

-- like you, we do not intend to reopen the agreements.

-- we concur with the french and british governments in most of the ideas raised, which fall well within the context what it already agreed.

-- we agree that federation police should deploy into former serb areas of sarajevo gradually and should develop a multi-ethnic composition which will allay serb concerns while leaving no doubt as to the final disposition of the city.

-- we believe that the creation of a transitional city government might also be a useful step. proportional representation in such a body would necessarily reflect sarajevo's status as part of the federation.

-- we would not object to existing serb police authorities remaining in place under the authority of the committee for police affairs outlined in the french paper. individual members of these authorities would be subject to vetting.

-- we concur in the proposal for a committee led by a delegate of the high representative to ensure that international assistance is equitably distributed. likewise, we would support a local human rights commission operating under the auspices of the national commission provided for in annex 6 of the dayton agreement.

-- we believe that the high representatives should make confidence-building measures in sarajevo one of his early priorities, and we concur with the british proposal to underscore the importance of his work in this area, at the earliest appropriate opportunity.

-- at all upcoming conferences, the international community should make clear the priority we attach to this effort.

-- we can elaborate specific ideas in the coming weeks, but we must all emphasize immediately our determination to promote confidence-building as we consult with the parties.

Bosnia Implementation Plan
Quick Impact Package

Mission

It will be necessary as soon as possible after signature of the Dayton peace settlement (December 13 in Paris) to demonstrate U.S. commitment to the peace process. The Administration should announce a "Quick Impact Package" that comprises a number of assistance activities planned to have a rapid and visible impact on the economic recovery in Bosnia. Quick impact activities will meet the following criteria:

- highly visible in order to provide the Bosnia people a sense of improvement in their lives and a return to normalcy as a result of the peace settlement;
- tied closely to the political objectives we have set for the peace (inter-ethnic cooperation, respect for human rights, a strengthened federation, etc.);
- tangible results rather than primarily mid- to long-term announcements (although we should be able to announce some mid-term activities which have to await funding);
- where possible, an enhanced sense of security (e.g., police training/funding).

Assessment of the Current Situation

In the immediate post-war period, both the people and government officials are skeptical that a peace settlement will actually work. Inclined to wait for the "end game," Bosnian citizens will be reluctant to cooperate with new Federation officials at any level until they see potential benefits. Canton and municipal structures will be created that did not exist before, so people will not easily understand how to relate to these structures. There will be a lack of political will to cooperate.

Equally skeptical will be government officials who have honed the skills of war, but not of the peaceful administration of a new country. It is clear that many of these officials would be more comfortable reestablishing the old socialist industries and do not see the need to make the transition to a market-based economy.

A quick impact package and its associated PR, is designed to provide maximum political impact to begin to overcome some of these misgivings.

Objectives and the Desired Endstate

The objectives of the quick impact package are: high visibility, tangible results, and strengthened support for the peace settlement.

These activities will act as a bridge, providing early benefits before the main U.S. assistance package will have cleared the bureaucratic, funding and administrative obstacles necessary to its implementation.

The quick impact package will demonstrate U.S. commitment to the peace process. A companion public affairs campaign will be conducted in Bosnia designed to convince the people and government of Bosnia that they have more to gain by investing in peace than in war.

Concept of Operations

In order to achieve maximum political impact, USIA will develop and implement a public affairs strategy covering the USG's assistance to Bosnia. The strategy will include the correct and effective information flow to the Bosnian public about what is being done, and an ability to access and monitor public opinion throughout Bosnia regarding the role of western, in particular USG, assistance to the region. A vigorous public affairs campaign will be necessary to convince the Bosnians that the U.S. is committed to the rehabilitation of the country, within the limits of what the Congress judges to be our "fair share."

A number of key political settlements could, if widely publicized, also go far in lifting peoples' spirits. We should be prepared to capitalize on such political milestones via our public affairs strategy. Key political settlements include re-opening the Sarajevo airport to civilian air traffic; lifting the curfew, currently set a 10 p.m.; and eliminating checkpoints within the country.

A notional list of activities, broken down into four categories (winterization and humanitarian assistance; repair and reconstruction; community and federation building; and self-sustainability and return to normalcy), have been selected for the Quick Impact package. A sampling follows:

Winterization and Humanitarian Assistance

- Emergency Food Assistance for World Food Program.
  Total funding: $50 million

- All Weather Coat Production.
  Total funding: $ 1 million

- Winterization program (emergency repair of buildings, food).
  Total funding: $840,000

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Repair and Reconstruction

- Glassification. Replacement of glass in homes, office buildings and workplaces in Sarajevo.
  Total funding: $ 1.5 million

- Apartment rehabilitation. Repair and replacement of Sarajevo apartment building water pumps and elevators.
  Total funding: $ 2.5 million

- Gas/heating repair being carried out by the International Rescue Committee.
  Total funding: $ 2.5 million

Community and Federation Building

- Public administration and local governance program in Tuzla and Zenica.
  Total funding: $2.5 million

- Z-Tel, 15 part TV series on the Federation. A three-month television call-in show with prominent Federation personalities focussing concerns of residents of Zenica.
  Total funding: $140,000

- Kiseljak housing. Brestavo village. Rehabilitation of former front-line village with 150 Croat and Bosniac residents.
  Total funding: $140,000

Self-Sustainability and Return to Normalcy

- Rehabilitation of twelve school buildings in five municipalities in the Una Sana (Bihac) canton.
  Total funding: $ 1.6 million

- Emergency material assistance in Zenica and Tuzla.
  Total funding: $500,000

Roles and Responsibilities

USAID will be the main implementing agency of the U.S. assistance program, including the Quick Impact package. Some of the activities to be folded into the Quick Impact package, especially in the category of humanitarian assistance, will commence shortly (with or without an announcement) or are continuation of programs already underway (through the World Food Program, Catholic Relief Services, American Red Cross, the International Rescue Committee). Other types of assistance, such as municipal rehabilitation and public administration, or repair of the gas system in Sarajevo, are also underway, but can only now begin to be implemented due to previous battlefield conditions.

DRAFT

USIA will be responsible for the public affairs strategy, for providing information to the Bosnian public about these operations, and for the assessment and monitoring of public opinion throughout Bosnia regarding the role of USG assistance to the region.

USAID and USIS will work closely in the field to maximize the "splash" of the Quick Impact package. The Ambassador will keep both agencies informed as to which assistance events should be targeted for maximum public affairs benefit.

Major Issues

Activities under the Quick Impact package are destined to begin to overcome the skepticism of the government and the people of Bosnia about the USG commitment to make the peace settlement work. It will be necessary to work with officials of both the Federation and Republic governments to assess what they perceive to be the needs and levels of assistance that could be supplied by the USG. There will also be a wide gap in public perception between what the Bosnia people believe they need in economic reconstruction and rehabilitation and what type and how much assistance the USG can provide.

A carefully coordinated effort will be necessary to overcome the following obstacles:

- The perception by the public and the government of Bosnia that the USG is not doing its share in supporting economic reconstruction.
- Bureaucratic delays in getting the Quick Impact package off the ground.
- Biased reporting by Bosnians and focus on sensational incidents by the international media on the ground that undermine the credibility of the USG effort.
- Miscues that cause "traffic jams" on the ground between the military and civilian assistance efforts.

Summary of Conclusions

Congressional Strategy

1. Principals reviewed the status of Congressional resolutions on U.S. participation in IFOR. They agreed that the United States will take a "leadership role" in coordinating an international effort to ensure that the Bosnian Federation receives the assistance necessary to achieve an adequate military balance when IFOR leaves. In order to assure the impartiality of IFOR, Principals reaffirmed that this requires minimizing the involvement of U.S. military personnel, but they agreed that this did not exclude participation of individual military personnel, e.g., at OSD, DSAA or other agencies, in the planning of the effort and that we would offer the Bosnians participation in IMET programs. They approved a draft Presidential letter consistent with these decisions to respond to the just-received letter from Senators Dole and McCain. (C)

2. Principals agreed to continue their calls to the Hill before the upcoming votes and agreed on the importance of continuing engagement with Congress and the American people during the implementation of the peace settlement over the next 12 months. (U)

Decision Timeline for IFOR

3. Principals agreed that the omnibus UNSCR authorizing the establishment of IFOR, High Representative, CivPol and the withdrawal of UNPROFOR must be separated into two resolutions in order to enact the UNPROFOR and IFOR elements of the UNSCR no later than the day after Paris so that there will be no delay in deployment of the NATO main force. They recognized that high-level intervention with Allies and the Russians could be necessary in this effort (Action: USUN/State/NSC). (C)

Eastern Slavonia

4. Regarding the search for nations to join the implementation force for Eastern Slavonia, Principals agreed to increase efforts to recruit the Nordic states, Ireland and Spain before making another push with Canada (Action: State/USUN). (C)

IFOR/Non-NATO Muslim Troop Contributors

5. Principals agreed to accelerate efforts to generate voluntary contributions to support the participation in IFOR of Pakistani and possibly Jordanian and Egyptian forces (Action: OSD/State). (C)

Equip and Train

5. Principals agreed to encourage Turkey to play a leading role in the multinational effort to equip and train the Federation and to suggest that they might oversee day-to-day coordination among contributors and between contributors and the Bosnians (Action: OSD). (C)

INFORMATION

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE

THROUGH: ALEXANDER VERSHBOW/W

FROM: JOHN F. FEELEY, JR/MICHAEL SHEEHAN MS

SUBJECT: December 12 PC on Bosnia

Agenda is at Tab A. No major decisions are required. The meeting should focus on reviewing the sequencing of events and decisions regarding implementation (Congressional approval, Paris signing, Presidential authorization for U.S. main force deployment, NAC decision to deploy). Updates needed on: Holbrooke mission, London Conference, and status of Eastern Slavonia.

I. Congressional Strategy

Ask State or Bill Danvers for a status report. The Senate will begin debate on Tuesday. They will likely take up three resolutions: the Hefley resolution which requires a prior appropriation before troops can be deployed; a concurrent resolution that would state Congressional opposition to Administration policy but support for the troops; and the Dole/McCain resolution which expresses support for the troops and asks the Administration to report on equip and train and other matters related to the Dayton agreement. We anticipate that the Hefley resolution will not pass; that the concurrent resolution will pass largely along party lines; and that the Dole/McCain resolution will receive bipartisan support.

It is unclear what will happen in the House. At the moment, House Republicans are considering two resolutions: one that would reference the Hefley and Buyer-McHale resolutions and would also support the troops; and the other resolution would, to the best of our understanding, cut off funds. There are two schools of thought on the House: they will vote on both resolutions on Wednesday; and they will not vote at all prior to Paris. We should know more after the Republicans meet on Tuesday to discuss how best to proceed.

We will continue to discuss the resolutions and state of play generally with House and Senate staff. We have given comments to House and Senate leadership offices on their resolutions.

II. Decision Timeline for IFOR

Recommend that you lead the discussion. The following five events involving major decisions affecting IFOR's implementation of the peace agreement occur in the next five days:

- Congress will vote on resolutions to support the deployment of U.S. troops or troops themselves, we hope before the President departs (at least in the case of the Senate).

- The parties sign the agreement formally on December 14. The French have threatened to move the signing from Paris if their pilots are not returned. If the issue is still unresolved, recommend you ask CIA to report on the status of the pilots and ask State about the possibility of moving the signing.

- The UN Security Council will vote on a resolution to authorize IFOR deployment. USUN should update Principals on the present state of play in New York. The issue is whether the resolution will be passed no later than the day after the Paris signing, when the NAC is planning to approve the ACTORD for main body deployment. With a six-hour time difference between New York and Europe, passage of the UNSCR Thursday night, the same day as Paris, is the best option. As previously discussed, USUN will need to break the IFOR and civilian aspects of the UK draft into two resolutions if the civilian elements appear likely to cause a delay.

- The President must authorize the deployment of U.S. troops participating in the IFOR main force. The President has approved the OPLAN and deployment of the enabling forces, and consulted with Congress. We need to determine the process and timing for his approval of the deployment of the U.S. forces participating in the IFOR main force, so that Bob Hunter has the necessary instructions for the NAC.

- The NAC must authorize the ROE and the deployment of the IFOR main force. The NAC is scheduled to do this on Friday. You should ask JCS to review the sequence of events and dates for the full deployment of U.S. forces into theater.

Our View: By the end of the discussion Principals should identify any problems involved in sequencing during the next five days and have a clear picture of the timing and goals for deploying IFOR.

III. Follow-Up to Holbrooke Mission

Recommend State lead the discussion. According to Holbrooke, Izetbegovic and Silajdzic committed to initiating an intensive public affairs effort to allay concerns of Sarajevo Serbs about their safety under Federation authority. It is not clear whether Holbrooke pursue many of the specific CBMs that Principals approved last week. The Bosnians wants Admiral Smith to arrive in Sarajevo before December 19. Milosevic asked that Smith extend IFOR's presence in Serb areas beyond the 90-day mark and thereby convince the Bosnians to delay the introduction of Federation forces. Dick has called for a meeting in Paris on December 13 between the Dayton negotiating team, Milosevic, Izetbegovic, General Joulwan, and Admiral Smith to pursue this idea.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

Regarding the elimination of foreign forces and terrorist threats, Izetbegovic told Holbrooke and Don Kerrick that all mujahedin will leave unless they become Bosnian citizens, and he undertook to meet our demands on the Iranians.

Holbrooke did not get very far in Belgrade on the Karadzic/Mladic problem (Milosevic insisted he cannot remove them before Paris, nor was he able to turn off tomorrow's referendum in Serb areas of Sarajevo. "Vice President" Koljevic and "Foreign Minister" Buha will be the "authoritative" representatives who will sign for the Bosnian Serbs in Paris. Milosevic convincingly said he did not know where the French pilots were, but undertook to keep pressing (as other sources confirm). Dick believes that the pilot issue has complicated the problem of Serbs in Sarajevo: in squeezing Mladic on the pilots, Milosevic may be exacerbating frictions with the fiercely pro-Mladic and pro-Karadzic Sarajevo Serbs.

Our view: We should support an early decision to extend IFOR's presence beyond 90 days to defuse the situation, but this would have to be at the Bosnians' request. On the Iranians, we may need to hold our fire for awhile, given the CIA's concerns that Izetbegovic has repeatedly taken our warnings directly to the Iranians to encourage them to cover their tracks more effectively.

DOD may raise eleventh-hour questions about whether Koljevic's and Buha's signatures in Paris are sufficient indication that the Bosnian Serbs will comply with the agreement. In our view, we're not likely to get much more clarity on the issue of "strategic consent" before Thursday. We will have to rely on the fact that the parties are maintaining the ceasefire and that the Serbs, despite their bluster, will in practice not challenge NATO when the main force arrives.

IV. London Conference Follow-up:

You should ask State to lead the discussion. Strobe and Bob Gallucci report that, as expected, the London Conference (and the Budapest OSCE Ministerial) primarily addressed organizational issues. We now need to move quickly to activate the High Representative and his primary staff, coordinate the disparate plans of the civilian and international organizations involved in implementation, and organize the final U.S. plan for implementation through the ExComm, where State/EUR's work has been lagging.

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

V. Eastern Slavonia:

Planning for implementation of the November 12 agreement on Eastern Slavonia has bogged down. The Secretary General's report to the Security Council, due on Thursday, probably will reflect the UN bureaucracy's misgivings about the proposed mission. You should ask State and USUN to review the state of play and preview the SYG's report. If time permits, your should run through the following issues:

- Implementation Force Mandate/Relationship to IFOR:

  We have had no luck recruiting a lead nation, in part because we need clarity on the force's mandate. Belgium wants at a minimum a Chapter VI operation with strong ROE. The UN wants a Chapter VII mission; some allies (e.g., Dutch) also see Chapter VII as preferable. They worry that the implementation force would not have the authority to defend itself if the Serbs do not disarm/ withdraw voluntarily and/or if Croatia attacks. The UN also believes Chapter VII is needed for the civilian Administrator to have executive authorities. A Chapter VII mandate would not confer an obligation to compel demilitarization; that would remain voluntary, per the November 12 agreement.

  IFOR's relationship to the new mission in Eastern Slavonia is still undefined, although the U.S. has agreed to provide logistics support on a reimbursable basis. IFOR's mission under OPLAN 10405 includes the evacuation of UNCRO if necessary.

  Issues:

  ⇒ Can we accept a limited, specific Chapter VII mandate if that makes recruitment easier?

  ⇒ Should IFOR's mission to evacuate UNCRO in an emergency also apply to the new force? If so, should we announce this as part of our troop recruitment effort?

- Recruiting Core Contributors:

  Our efforts to recruit a Western lead nation for the implementation force have been unsuccessful to date. The Belgians will stay in Eastern Slavonia only if there is another "credible" -- read NATO -- military partner. Our best bet is Canada, which might consider transferring its 1,000 IFOR-bound forces to Eastern Slavonia, but only if we push at the highest level. Also, Ottawa has indicated that it may contribute forces to a post-UNMIH force, but not to Eastern Slavonia as well. Canada is the preferred unit for a post-UNMIH presence in Haiti.

Issues:

⇒ Do we prefer that Canada contribute forces to Eastern Slavonia or to Haiti? If Slavonia, who will back up Canada for Haiti?

⇒ How hard and at what level do we approach Ottawa?

⇒ How would we secure London's support for our request? (Canadian IFOR troops are slated for the UK AOR)

We need to find a credible lead nation to head off Croatian military action, which intelligence reporting suggests may be more likely given the Croatian's mistrust of any international force that lacks a U.S. or strong NATO military component.

- Civilian Administrator:

Since we will not contribute troops, we have promised Tudjman that before Paris we will offer a retired American military officer to head the civilian Administration. JCS's top candidate, Lt. Gen. Otjen, has withdrawn his name from consideration--JCS is looking for other candidates. At the same time, Bhoutros-Ghali reportedly is unhappy with the prospect of a U.S. flag officer in this position, in part because of his negative experiences with previous Americans in similar circumstances.

Issues:

⇒ Do we still want/need a retired American flag officer as Administrator? If so, will the UN agree?

⇒ Should we nominate a civilian instead? If so, whom?

- Funding:

A large UN peacekeeping operation in Eastern Slavonia could cost as much as $400-500 million per year. The start-up costs would be in the tens of millions of dollars. The UN says it does not have the cash on hand to support a new start-up now. The USG has not budgeted for a new large operation of this size next year. With low numbers expected for FY 96 peacekeeping the impact on accumulating bigger UN arrears is significant.

We will have to notify the Congress of the mission. Our current understanding with the Congress is that we would consult at a high level on a new operation -- and presumably seriously consider their concerns. We've also indicated that we would not support large new Chapter VII UN mandates with the understanding that they are better suited for MNFs.

Issues:

⇒ How do we fund a new UN operation given the UN's apparently serious cash-flow problem?

⇒ How do we envision our consultations with the Congress on this issue? At what level? What will we tell the Congress about funding the operation?

CLINTON LIBRARY PHOTOCOPY

BOSNIA: POINTS FOR MEETING WITH SENATORS

Why We Should Participate

- At stake: American values (stop suffering), interests (prevent wider war, preserve NATO, strong Europe), leadership (if we don't make good in Bosnia, credibility elsewhere in doubt).
- Risks if we don't act far greater -- wider war that destabilizes Europe.

The Mission

- Not fighting a war, securing a peace -- peace Bosnians chose and asked us to help take hold.
- Clear, limited, achievable military mission. Troops will monitor cease-fire, oversee separation and withdrawal of forces, help create secure environment so Bosnians can begin to rebuild their lives.
- Won't mislead you--difficult mission. Will probably be casualties. Take responsibility. But risks to troops minimized. Take orders from American general. Well-trained, heavily armed. If attacked, will respond strongly; deter others.

Exit Strategy

- Military commanders believe military mission can and will be accomplished in about one year.
- Within one year also expect: economic reconstruction firmly launched; free elections held; stable military balance established within Bosnia and region.
- Goal: Create conditions to build a lasting peace, not have NATO stay indefinitely.

Equip and Train

- Stable military balance in Bosnia important to preventing resumption of war and facilitating IFOR departure.
- Intend to pursue strong arms control provisions which provide for "build-down" of forces.
- Commitment to Bosnians that we will coordinate international effort to ensure they have what is needed for self-defense when IFOR leaves.
- Want to assure impartiality of IFOR, so providing arms and training to Federation forces will not be done by either IFOR or U.S. military. U.S. will coordinate efforts of third countries.
- Best practical approach to getting job done while minimizing risks.
- Efforts already underway. Assessment team evaluating needs of the Federation just returned from Bosnia.

Request for Support

- Mission is clear and so are stakes -- for Bosnian people, Europe's stability, U.S. leadership.
- Must let our men and women in the service know that Congress and American people stand behind them. Need your support and help.
