MEMORANDUM FOR WILLIAM ITOH
THE WHITE HOUSE

SUBJECT: China: Economic Effects of Conditioning or Ending MFN

The Deputies Committee April 27 requested the attached paper, which considers the possible economic effects of conditioning or ending MFN for China.

ECONOMIC EFFECTS OF CONDITIONING OR ENDING MFN FOR CHINA

In considering the IWG paper on engaging China prior to the President's MFN decision, the Deputies Committee April 27 requested the State Department prepare an analysis of the effects of conditioning or ending MFN for China. This paper reviews this issue.

- A policy of placing conditions on MFN requires the U.S. to convince China that we would be willing to jeopardize a mutually beneficial trading relationship to achieve our core objectives. China is actively working to increase the benefits to the U.S. in this relationship to make it more costly for us to actually revoke its MFN status.

- China publicly has declared that any conditions on MFN are unacceptable. It argues that China's economy will continue to grow and warns the U.S. risks losing its market in China.

- In 1992 China was our seventh largest trading partner with U.S. exports of $7.5 billion and imports from China of $25.7 billion for a $18.3 billion deficit, the second largest next to Japan. Despite a projected 25 percent growth in U.S. exports and a slowdown to 10 percent growth in U.S. imports in 1993, the deficit would likely still increase to around $19.0 billion this year.

EFFECTS ON CHINA

- The primary effect of conditioning MFN on China is the maintenance of political and psychological pressure on the leadership. China needs to gain access to U.S. technology and "know-how" to help achieve its development goals.

- More important, access to the United States market is the primary leverage exerted by our threat to revoke MFN status. Over 30 percent of China's 1992 exports went to the U.S.

  -- The effectiveness of U.S. leverage is diminished by the fact that in eleven of China's top 25 exports to the U.S., China remains the lowest cost supplier even when charged the higher, non-MFN duties and is the second lowest cost supplier in an additional five categories. These products account for one half of China's total exports to the U.S.

- A CIA analysis estimates that loss of MFN would lead to a 7.5 to 15 percent drop in China's global export earnings in the first year and throw 6.5 to 13 million people out of work. The bulk of these losses would affect Guangdong province and its Hong Kong/Taiwan-funded factories.

DECLASSIFIED
E.O. 13526
White House Guidelines, May 16, 2017
By YC NARA, Date 7/15/2019
2015-0221-M (1.01)

- China would lose competitiveness in key categories like textiles and apparel where non-MFN tariffs are high (70 to 90 percent) but would still be a market force in footwear, luggage and consumer electronics where non-MFN tariffs are in the 20 to 35 percent range.

  -- For example, the unit cost of Chinese-made rubber footwear is $1.77. The average unit cost of imports from other LDCs is $6.68. Adding the 35 percent duty raises the cost of the Chinese footwear to $2.39, still far cheaper than the competition.

  -- Additionally, China can counteract the economic effects of higher U.S. tariffs by devaluing its currency to maintain export competitiveness. China currently practices a multiple currency system which overvalues the renminbi for official imports and undervalues it for exports.

- The economic effects of the loss of MFN would slow down China's modernization and development program in the short-run; however, China has the tools to ameliorate or compensate for this loss over time.

EFFECTS ON THE UNITED STATES

- This Administration's fundamental goal for trade policy is economic growth and the creation of high wage jobs for American workers. American industry understands that taking advantage of the opportunities in China is a key to economic growth and job creation.

- Conditioning MFN increases the risk and uncertainty of doing business in China. In the past this has caused importers to front load order, boosting the growth rate for Chinese exports. It has also discouraged the Chinese from dealing with U.S. exporters and investors where longer term relationships must be developed and based upon trust.

- China, whose export-led growth gives it the foreign exchange necessary to modernize its backward infrastructure, will be the world's most important and fastest growing market in the 1990s for computers, telecommunications, oil drilling equipment, machine tools, power generation equipment, aircraft, and construction/mining equipment.

- o -- China has implemented a strategy of enlisting U.S. business to lobby for unconditional MFN renewal by offering contracts to U.S. firms in these key growth sectors. For many U.S. firms, China is a market they "cannot afford not to be in".

- o Withdrawing MFN could force importers to raise prices on low-cost Chinese goods, adversely affecting both consumers and manufacturers.

  -- China now supplies almost five percent of total U.S. imports and 60 to 70 percent of U.S. imports of footwear, luggage, radio/tape players, hair dryers, coffee makers, and stuffed toys.

  -- Approximately $5 billion in Chinese exports are used as components in U.S. manufactures, making U.S. products more competitive. Imports from China also support large numbers of job in retail and service industries. Increased tariffs for these products would force many U.S. firms out of business.

EFFECTS ON HONG KONG

- o Conditioning MFN could have a serious, negative impact on the 900 American companies in Hong Kong, many with investments in China in addition to our $7 billion investment in Hong Kong.

- o Hong Kong could lose as many as 60,000 jobs and up to $16 billion in overall trade if MFN is withdrawn, according to British officials.

SUBJECT: Russia Assistance Package

Please pass to Tony and Sandy today

You may receive a call today or tomorrow from Christopher, Wharton or Atwood on funding options for the $1.8 billion assistance package we announced in Tokyo. They are concerned that we may opt to fund the package through offsets which would have a serious impact on other foreign aid accounts.

OMB has drawn up preliminary tables on possible FY-93 and 94 offsets to pay for the Tokyo package and had wanted to distribute them to agencies this week. At our request, OMB agreed to withhold the tables until we have decided that is the route we want to take. We will hold an interagency meeting (NSC, State, OMB and Treasury) today to discuss our legislative strategy and the best way (whether through offsets or a supplemental request) to fund the package. We will report to both of you after this meeting, and will want your green light before beginning any interagency discussion of offsets.

You can assure Christopher et al. that State has already been involved in our discussions with OMB, and will remain involved in each step of this process.

(BEERS)

SUBJECT: Hill Call on African Aid

Please pass to Tony and Sandy,

I understand that Tony received a phone call from someone on the Hill regarding Aid for Africa. I believe this phone call is a result of the same roomer that caused Nick Burns to alert Tony that Atwood, Wharton, Christopher may call.

OMB has been looking at options to pay for Russian aid without a supplemental. One approach for finding money is to run a printout of all the funds that are appropriated but not obligated and funds that are obligated but not expended. Because AID takes a long time to plan programs and to spend the money after the program is agreed to with a host government, AID money will show up prominantly on such a printout, and Africa is AID's largest geographic assistance account. Hence OMB, internally, has noted that there is money in AID, particularly in Africa, that is hypothetically available to offset the Russian aid package.

Word of this leaked to AID and the Hill. Ernie Wilson has also received a phone call from an HFAC staffer on this subject.

The answer to the phone call is that no decisions have been made, all options are on the table, no final decisions will be made without talking to the Hill.

With the story on the Hill, it will quite possibly appear in the press as well.

MEMORANDUM FOR SANDY BERGER AND BO CUTTER

FROM: BOB FAUVER AND HELEN WALSH

SUBJECT: Aid for Russia

We understand that the effort underway to find the $1.8 billion pledged for Russia is looking at reducing the FY 1994 amounts proposed for the multilateral development banks. We know there are no easy choices, but strongly believe that cutting the MDBs would be unwise, and hope you will consider the following points in your deliberations:

- The MDBs are the most cost effective way to provide foreign assistance, largely because we can leverage our contribution off other donors' contributions. For every $1 we pay in, we get at least $6 in foreign aid.

- U.S. firms have received more than their share of exports that flow from MDB procurement. So, MDB contributions help the U.S. economy.

- The amounts in the budget for the MDBs represent international commitments that have already been made. We're already in arrears on our MDB contributions. If we want to propose any kind of IFI reform -- let alone ask the multilaterals to assume a greater role in the issues we care about (environment, good governance, basic human needs) -- we have to be members in good standing and demonstrate that we live up to our commitments.

- The 18% nominal increase in the budget for the International Development Association is for the poorest of the poor. It is below what the World Bank was seeking. It is needed because (1) there are now a dozen more eligible members, including many FSU countries; and (2) we need to adjust for inflation and the depreciation of the dollar since the last replenishment. If we reduce our IDA budget commitment, you should expect loud complaints from the World Bank and most IDA recipients (especially African countries), who will understandably argue that they are being hurt by our focus on Russia. Also, this could reopen the contentious debate we had with China last year over its share of IDA relative to India's. (We managed to paper it over last year, in part because of our increased commitment.)

CHINA: STATUS REPORT, NON-MFN LEVERAGE

During its April 27 meeting to consider steps for managing relations with China before the June 3 MFN deadline, the Deputies Committee requested that the State Department prepare a paper reviewing in greater detail Chinese responsiveness in core areas of concern to the U.S. The DC also requested that the paper comment on sources of leverage other than MFN at the USG's disposal. This paper responds to the DC's request.

I. CORE CONCERN STATUS REPORT

Secretary Christopher March 3 explained to outgoing PRC Ambassador Zhu Qizhen the need for further Chinese progress on core U.S. concerns before the President's MFN decision. On March 16, Ambassador Roy met with Vice Foreign Minister Tian Zengpei to detail these concerns, which fall into three areas, human rights, nonproliferation, and trade. Chinese responses to date have been modest but not inconsequential. Beijing has been attempting to position itself for the MFN decision since the beginning of the year, but its actions reveal PRC unwillingness fully to address our positions. The following points review Chinese responses, if any, to our core concerns:

Human Rights

- Prisoner Accounting/Amnesty. China since January 20 has freed seven leading political prisoners. The Chinese have also told us (and dissidents have confirmed) that all but a limited number of those arrested for peaceful protests at the time of Tiananmen have been released. Others remain jailed for violent acts committed during that time. China has given no sign it intends a general amnesty or a comprehensive accounting of the hundreds, if not thousands, of political prisoners.

- Release of Religious Prisoners. Since December 1992, China has freed the Bishop of Lanzhou and 19 other Catholic clerics; only one known Catholic priest remains in detention. China also has exercised restraint in responding to the rapid growth in evangelical Protestantism. However, members of non-officially sanctioned churches continue to be subjected to harassment, discrimination and occasional arrest.

Declassified in Part
Per E.O. 13526
VZ 07/15/2019
2015-0221-M (1.09)

- o Access to Prisons, Cessation of Torture. China has not agreed to grant access to Chinese prisoners by a third party, such as the ICRC, and we continue to receive reports of torture. However, Public Security Minister Tao Siju April 8 informed Senator Robb he had recommended approving ICRC access.

- o Tibet. In contrast to the recent past, 1992-93 has been quiet in Tibet, with only some small protests over Tibetan independence and religious freedom. Very tight control continues, although the Chinese authorities have responded to demonstrations with greater restraint. Reports of abuse of prisoners continue. Senator Pell visited Lhasa and tourism is flourishing. However, the unimpeded influx of non-Tibetan Chinese has raised tensions and threatens Tibetan culture. Despite our urging, the Chinese have not re-engaged in direct dialogue with the Dalai Lama or his representatives.

- o Exit Permits/Human Rights Dialogue. The Chinese have reaffirmed the validity of their promise that anyone who was not the subject of a pending criminal charge could receive an exit permit. However, implementation has been slow for the small number of outstanding blocked passport cases. The U.S. has not encountered an instance of outright Chinese refusal to issue a passport, but some cases have dragged on for too long. Premier Li Peng, in recent meetings with U.S. visitors, has reaffirmed China's willingness to engage in a human rights dialogue with the U.S. It is not yet clear, however, what practical steps China is willing to take to restart a formal dialogue.

- o Stop VOA Jamming. Beijing continues its sporadic and somewhat ineffective jamming of VOA.

Nonproliferation

- o MTCR Assurances. In response to our concern about the possible transfer of the M-11 missile to Pakistan, the Chinese have assured us they are honoring their MTCR commitment. In his April 7 meeting with Senator Robb, VFM Liu Huaqiu reaffirmed Foreign Minister Qian's February 1992 commitment, with specific reference to M-9s and M-11s; Premier Li Peng also provided reassurances of China's MTCR commitments. However, Beijing has not responded to our repeated requests for information on the November 1992 shipment to Pakistan. General assurances are clearly unsatisfactory EO 13526 3.3(b)(1)

EO 13526 3.3(b)(1)

- o Revised MTCR Guidelines. The Chinese have not responded to our long-standing request to agree to abide by the revised MTCR Guidelines announced January 7, 1993.

- o NSG, AG. We have long urged China to adhere to the Nuclear Suppliers Group Guidelines and the Australia Group's chemical and biological controls lists. Despite VFM Liu's statement last fall that China was studying the NSG Guidelines, China has given no indication that it will soon adopt them. Similarly, China does not appear ready to adopt Australia Group controls. While Beijing has listened to our concerns about sensitive sales to Iran of CW-related technology by PRC companies, it has not to our knowledge taken steps to terminate those sales.

- o Constrain Nuclear Cooperation. We have no indications that China has violated its commitments since signing the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty. However, China has not responded to our concerns and is pressing forward with the sale -- albeit, under IAEA safeguards -- of reactors and other nuclear equipment to countries such as Pakistan and Iran.

- o CWC ACME, BWC. In January, China was an original signatory to the Chemical Weapons convention, a major step toward meeting our nonproliferation concerns. China continues to cite the U.S. sale of F-16s to Taiwan as an obstacle to its return to the Arms Control for the Middle East (ACME) process. It has not budged from its long-standing position that its activities are already fully consistent with the Biological Weapons Convention (BWC).

Trade

- o Implement MOUs. Having reached agreements with China on protection of intellectual property rights, market access and banning products produced by prison labor, we are now focused on Chinese implementation of those agreements. Progress is being made on implementation of the IPR MOU. The Chinese have recently improved cooperation on the prison labor MOU. However, there are fundamental differences in interpretation on the market access agreement, such as permitting annual import increments on certain products of interest to the U.S. and improving transparency in China's trade regime. Recent talks on these issues have failed to make progress.

- o Textile Fraud. Beijing over the last year has been increasingly sensitive to U.S. textile fraud concerns. China responded to a U.S. request in March 1993 by issuing joint regulations mandating cooperation between the customs and commodity inspection services in enforcing counter-transshipment rules. Beijing's actions lag far behind its assurances, however, and textile fraud remains a serious problem.

- o Open Services Market. China has recently agreed to permit individual foreign banking, accounting, legal, and insurance companies to begin limited operations in China, but structural changes in barriers to China's service market will require the creation of a new legal and regulatory framework.

- o Increasing U.S. Exports. Chinese buying missions to the U.S. this year will sign contracts worth over $2 billion, including major deals with U.S. automobile, aircraft, and oil equipment manufacturers. However, the deficit is likely to increase despite a 25 percent growth rate for U.S. exports this year.

Other Areas

In the following areas, Chinese actions likely reflect Beijing's interest in signalling its desire for improved relations and maintaining MFN:

- o Official U.S. Visitors. The Chinese have gone out of their way to welcome senior U.S. visitors. Besides Senator Robb, former President Nixon recently visited China; Senator Helms' SFRC staffer Bill Triplett, whom Beijing last year denied a visa, also just completed a visit.

- o Call for Improved Relations. In public statements, media coverage of U.S. issues, and senior meetings with Americans since last fall's American elections, China has continuously expressed interest in improving relations with the United States.

- o POW/MIA. A Chinese POW/MIA delegation in March visited DoD POW/MIA facilities in Hawaii and provided new evidence on two U.S. airmen lost over Chinese territory during the Vietnam War. The Chinese are giving "serious consideration" to our proposal to send survey teams to four crash sites.

- o M/V Eastwood and Returned Illegal Immigrants. Beijing was generally very cooperative in facilitating the return to China of 525 illegal immigrants found in the Pacific on the M/V Eastwood, a Panamanian-registered vessel chartered by alien smugglers. We are seeking clarification regarding a small number of the returnees who are in detention in Fujian Province.

- o Peace Corps. Nearly four years after China suspended establishment of the Peace Corps program in the wake of Tiananmen, a country director is in Sichuan planning for the summer arrival of 20 volunteers to teach English. This follows continuous U.S. pressure on Beijing since the end of 1989 to move forward with the program.

- o Satellite Security Agreement. Beijing February 11 concluded an agreement with the U.S. enhancing bilateral cooperation on safeguarding access to U.S. technology in satellites to be launched on PRC rockets.

- o North Korea. Although opposed to UNSC sanctions, Beijing has stated its opposition to North Korea's acquiring nuclear weapons, supported consensus on a UNSC Presidential statement on the issue, and informally conveyed to Pyongyang the U.S. willingness to meet with the North Koreans. China has refrained from linking its cooperation on North Korea to the MFN issue and is actively discussing resolution with other P-5 members.

II. BEYOND MFN: U.S. POLICY RESOURCES

The threatened cancellation of China's MFN status has been the leading U.S. resource for pressing for change in China since Tiananmen. It is by no means the only resource, however, and it suffers from a major shortcoming: while MFN cancellation would hurt Beijing, it could also seriously harm Western oriented and pro-capitalist elements in China as well as Hong Kong and damage a range of U.S. interests. Fortunately, the USG has at its disposal many other options for leverage in dealing with China. In fact, U.S. China policy successes since Tiananmen have often reflected the complementary influence of the MFN threat and use of the other options.

Statutory Resources

By mandating restrictions on U.S.-PRC economic and trade relations and sanctions for certain behavior, U.S. law offers a variety of means to pressure China for progress and to respond in a targeted manner to unacceptable Chinese actions.

- o Trade - Section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 identifies steps to secure adequate market access and intellectual property protection for U.S. exports. This was the USG's key source of leverage in securing Chinese agreement to the market access and IPR MOUs. We could invoke 301, if the Chinese fail to implement these agreements or fail to open their market to U.S. service industries.

- o Proliferation Law - The U.S. has already sanctioned China once for improper transfers to Pakistan of missile-related technology; if it determines that China is engaged in further transfers, the USG will have to take the much broader action required by the Helms Amendment. Other provisions of U.S. law cover other aspects of proliferation (e.g., of nuclear weapons, CBW, destabilizing arms to Iran and Iraq, etc.).

- o Nuclear Cooperation - Legal restrictions based on nuclear nonproliferation and human rights concerns now prevent significant U.S. nuclear commerce with China. (Nuclear power is an area of major interest to U.S. nuclear vendors and service companies.)

- o Exchange Rates - Under section 3004 of the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988, Treasury has determined that China is manipulating its exchange rate to prevent balance of payments adjustment and gain unfair competitive advantage in international trade. Treasury must negotiate with the Chinese to ensure that they take action to address this problem.

- o International Financial Institutions - Section 701(a) of the IFI Act requires the U.S. to oppose proposals for financing projects in countries with a pattern of gross violation of human rights, unless they are directed to basic human needs. Since Tiananmen, the U.S. has opposed by abstention votes on non-basic human needs projects for China.

- o Narcotics Certification - The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, requires the President to certify that major drug producing or transit countries, including China, have cooperated fully with the U.S. or taken adequate drug control steps of their own. Decertification would require the U.S. to withhold most forms of assistance and to oppose any loans from multilateral development banks.

Tiananmen Sanctions

The U.S. is the only country that maintains significant Tiananmen-related sanctions against China. Legally-mandated sanctions include a ban on the export of U.S. Munitions List goods and services to China and nuclear exchanges; an embargo on licenses for civilian exports to military and police end-users; and restrictions on IFI lending. Other sanctions carried out by Executive Order and policy include opposition to China-specific proposals for easing COCOM controls; a suspension in Trade Development Administration (TDA) and Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) activities; and a limitation on high-level exchanges.

The President can lift most of these sanctions on a case-by-case basis in the national interest, or more broadly if he certifies human rights improvements. Therefore, the sanctions can provide both positive and negative leverage.

Nearly four years after Tiananmen, these sanctions remain a statement of U.S. concern over PRC human rights conditions. They also possess significant tactical value: the U.S. can selectively relax them as incentives for improved Chinese behavior. The IWG paper which the Deputies Committee discussed April 27, for instance, proposes limited waivers for EXIMBANK lending, satellite exports, and TDA activities as a means to encourage Chinese progress. Because many of the sanctions undercut U.S. trade and other interests, relaxation can be beneficial to the U.S. As the lifting of most of the sanctions depends on human rights improvements, the Executive Branch for now is restricted to utilizing those sanctions which can be relaxed on an ad hoc basis through Presidential waiver.

- April 9-15. Gao Yan, Governor of Jilin Province, is leading a delegation to Little Rock, New York and Washington. The delegation plans to spend $40 million for fertilizer, steel, and other projects. Jilin recently spent $10 million on telecommunications equipment from AT&T. (Beijing 11711).

- May 2-14. Zhou Mingchen, President of Ceroilfoods, is planning to visit Cargill, Continental, and USDA for grain consultations. Previous visits have led to significant wheat purchases.

- Early May. Mofert Vice Minister Tong Zhiguang and Sinochem officials will participate in a buying mission aimed at fertilizer and other commodities from the southern U.S.

CHINA'S BUY AMERICA CAMPAIGN

Chinese leaders have gone out of their way in meetings with Codels and other U.S. visitors to signal an interest in doing more business with U.S. companies. At least eight buying missions have either visited the U.S. since the beginning of the year or are scheduled to arrive this spring. These missions have the potential to generate billions of dollars of exports of aircraft, autos, satellites, oil drilling equipment, aviation electronics, wheat, fertilizer, and other U.S. products.

- February 7-14. AT&T hosted State Planning Commission Vice Chairman Ye Qing on a visit to AT&T's headquarters and various manufacturing sites. The trip led to signing on February 23 of a cooperation agreement opening up China's lucrative market for digital switching equipment to a new AT&T joint venture.

- March 10-24. Liu Jiyuan, Vice Minister of the Ministry of Aerospace Industries, met with Hughes Space Communications on a cooperation agreement that could lead to purchase of five satellites over five years. Value of this purchase could exceed $750 million.

- March 15-29. Li Zhao, Deputy Director General of CAAC, visited Boeing to discuss purchasing or leasing up to 40 aircraft valued at $1 billion.

- April 3-8. Wang Tao, President of the China National Petroleum Corporation, leads a delegation to Louisiana, Texas, and Washington, D.C. to encourage U.S. companies to participate in the opening of the Tarim Basin to oil exploration and development by foreign companies. The delegation also expects to purchase $200 million worth of U.S. oil exploration equipment.

- April 7-17. Wang Shumin, Deputy Director General of the State Council, will lead a joint civilian-military team for talks on airspace management. He will also meet with Boeing, McDonnell Douglas, and other companies on modernization of China's air traffic control system.

- April 7-24. State Planning Commission Vice Chairman Gan Ziyu leads a mission to buy cars from GM, Ford, and Chrysler. Purchases are expected to exceed that of a similar mission last summer which bought 7000 vehicles. Gan will also visit Boeing in Seattle, where a $600 million contract is expected to be signed.

HUMAN RIGHTS IN CHINA

The Chinese are focused intensely on the opportunity to host the 2000 summer Olympics. During a March IOC visit, Beijing pulled out all the stops in making the capital city presentable. It also signaled its willingness to clean up its political act by releasing five high-profile political prisoners in the month preceding the IOC visit. The Chinese know that their human rights record is a major obstacle to getting the Olympic nod. A decision to hold the games in Beijing could do what reformers have failed at through the centuries; it could actually change China.

Despite remarkable economic growth in the last decade, integration into the world economy, and the slow but steady relaxation of many social and cultural controls, China remains a communist state which instinctively responds to domestic political challenges with repression. Hundreds, perhaps thousands remain in detention for the peaceful expression of their political or religious views. There is no figure for political prisoners, but the Chinese have said that 3,560 persons are detained for "counterrevolutionary crimes". This figure includes a number of high profile dissidents and those who committed violent acts during the Tiananmen and earlier protests. However, recent evidence suggests the vast majority of those arrested for nonviolent offenses during Tiananmen and the earlier Democracy Wall movement have been released.

Chinese officials state there are about 1.1 million inmates in prisons and labor reform camps, but the actual figure could be closer to 2 to 3 million. Reports by the Ministry of Public Security indicate that an additional 700,000 persons are detained each year for minor offenses and "anti-social" behavior. Of these, Chinese officials say about 160,000 are in labor reeducation camps with the remainder in detention centers serving shorter sentences. None of these figures can be confirmed. The only thing we know for sure is that the prison and labor camp population is much reduced from the Mao era.

Critics of the Chinese prison system, like former inmate Harry Wu, say that it is a huge forced-labor gulag where physical abuse of prisoners is common and minimum standards of nutrition and medical care are ignored. These critics note that while the practice of requiring released prisoners to remain at the prison site or to continue to work in the prison factory is much less prevalent than before, thousands of persons probably remain in that status. In addition, released prisoners have a difficult time finding work or returning to school. Some take advantage of the new opportunities in the growing free market sector of China's economy. Others have been less fortunate.

The government keeps a close watch on dissidents and potential political activists, such as students at the more elite universities. Freedom of expression, such as exists, is limited to nonpolitical or nonreligious subjects. Some strides have been made in creating a modern legal system to deal with the new situation in the economic sphere. But individuals accused of political and/or common crimes have neither due process nor adequate opportunity to defend themselves. The majority arrested for common criminal offenses are sentenced by administrative procedures to labor camps or reeducation centers. Those tried by courts (for serious offenses) are presumed guilty and trials are more sentencing procedures with the length of sentence often determined by the defendant's demeanor. Execution for capital offenses is common and it is estimated hundreds were carried out last year.

Nevertheless, the rush toward freedom in economic arrangements has spilled over in other areas. One example is the implementation of the nation-wide family planning program. Although physical compulsion is occasionally threatened, the more common practice is to persuade through a mix of economic and social penalties and rewards. But with many workers and farmers able to control their own economic future independent of the government, these pressures are often ineffective. There are reports of massive underreporting of births as local officials try to hide their failures to meet the quotas established by their superiors.

Beijing has become extremely sensitive to foreign critiques of its human rights record. In a break with its past, it has answered with the publication of "white papers" on human rights, the criminal justice system, and Tibet. It has also responded by releasing several high-profile political prisoners and allowing a number of its most vocal opponents to leave the country.

The Chinese have made a systematic effort to clear up major Catholic cases, motivated by a desire to improve relations with the Vatican and by a belief that the Vatican will influence the IOC's selection of a host for the 2000 games. Based upon information by individuals in regular contact with the underground Catholic church, we believe there is only one Catholic cleric still in prison, although a number of those who have been released remain subject to severe restrictions. These restrictions include house arrest and limited or no contact with family or former parishioners. The rapid growth of the Protestant church, especially evangelical "house churches," has led to arrests; but in 1991 we were aware of only 17 specific cases of Protestants in detention. Buddhists have made a strong revival. Religious affiliation of all kinds is growing despite periodic harassment of believers, interception of the religious literature from abroad, and official discouragement of nongovernment approved religious organizations.

In another bellwether of political trends, Beijing has eased restrictions on writers and artists. Trimming of government subsidies has forced cultural and propaganda organs to "face the market" resulting in intensified competition and livelier programming and news coverage. Advertising is beginning to come of age and newspapers increasingly feature articles that cater to popular tastes, while stopping well short of presenting dissenting political views. Beijing now has three highly competitive radio stations offering talk shows, jazz and rock and roll and Beijing television regularly shows American reruns such as "Hunter" and "Falcon Crest." The party still dictates what is permissible with penalties for those who transgress its prescribed bounds, but it is less able in this "information age" to tightly control culture. The continuing march of economic reforms and economic growth in China will increase the popular demand for more openness and political relaxation.

Although Tibet has been quiet in the past year, repression remains harsh for those who openly support the Dalai Lama or protest, peacefully or otherwise, on behalf of Tibetan independence. Because religion and politics cannot be separated in Tibet, this results in various levels of control on the practice of Tibetan religion. An undetermined number of monks and other Tibetans remain in jail for past peaceful demonstrations. A further complication has been the migration of Han and Hui (Muslim) Chinese seeking economic opportunities made possible by the easing of internal travel controls.

This influx of Chinese is not the result of a deliberate government policy, but it is threatening over the long run to damage Tibet's unique cultural identity. Recent visits by U.S. officials to Tibet and neighboring provinces have yielded no evidence of government plans to resettle large numbers of Chinese in areas where Tibetans live. The vast area of the Tibetan plateau, where Tibet's largest population centers are located, is a moon-like landscape with little arable land at an altitude of 12,000 feet or higher. Most Han immigration has taken place in the adjoining provinces around the periphery of the "Tibetan Autonomous Region." These provinces, traditionally part of "Greater Tibet," have had a large Han population for over a century. More recent arrivals, especially in the capital of Lhasa, are small traders and merchants, part of the huge "floating population" phenomena which has been made possible by economic reform and the easing of internal immigration controls throughout China.

It is unclear just how much Beijing will bend on human rights issues to keep its Olympic hopes alive or to obtain unconditional MFN from the United States. Legislation which was vetoed by President Bush last year (but endorsed by candidate Clinton) covered nonproliferation, trade and human rights issues. On the latter, it required significant progress by the Chinese in preventing violations of internationally recognized human rights in China and Tibet including a full accounting of Tiananmen-era detainees, in preventing exports of products made by prisoners and labor camp detainees, in terminating religious persecution and releasing leaders and members of religious groups incarcerated as a result of the expression of their religious beliefs, in removing restrictions on freedom of the press and VOA broadcasts and in terminating intimidation and harassment of Chinese citizens in the U.S.

The U.S. government has publicly urged the Chinese to grant access to prisons to an international organization like the International Committee of the Red Cross, to restrain its security forces in dealing with peaceful demonstrations in Tibet and to establish a serious dialogue the Dalai Lama. In diplomatic channels, we have urged the Chinese to account for and release all individuals detained during the Democracy Wall (1978-79) and Tiananmen (1989) demonstrations as well as the period afterwards and to release all imprisoned for their religious beliefs. We have also requested the Chinese to stop jamming VOA.

agreement was signed.

Human Rights

- o TO REFLECT INTERNATIONAL NORMS, CHINA SHOULD:

- o ACCOUNT FOR AND RELEASE ALL INDIVIDUALS IMPRISONED OR DETAINED FOR THE PEACEFUL EXPRESSION OF THEIR POLITICAL VIEWS, INCLUDING AMNESTY FOR THOSE INVOLVED IN THE DEMOCRACY WALL AND TIANAMEN PROTESTS, AND THOSE arrested since WHO WISH ONLY TO EXPRESS THEIR VIEWS AND ASSOCIATE FREELY.

- o RELEASE ALL THOSE IMPRISONED FOR THEIR RELIGIOUS BELIEFS, INCLUDING CATHOLIC PRIESTS, PROTESTANT MINISTERS, TIBETAN MONKS, AND OTHER RELIGIOUS LEADERS. HARASSMENT OF RELIGIOUS BELIEVERS GENERATES SERIOUS DOUBTS ABOUT CHINA'S AVOWED COMMITMENT TO FREEDOM OF RELIGION.

- o GRANT ACCESS TO A RESPECTED THIRD PARTY, SUCH AS THE INTERNATIONAL COMMITTEE OF THE RED CROSS, TO ARRANGE IMPARTIAL VERIFICATION OF CONDITIONS IN CHINESE PRISONS. CHINA'S REFUSAL TO PERMIT INTERNATIONAL MONITORING OF PRISON CONDITIONS GENERATES DOUBTS REGARDING ASSURANCES THAT SUCH MONITORING IS UNNECESSARY.

- o INVESTIGATE PROMPTLY REPORTS OF TORTURE AND ABUSE OF PRISONERS, AND MAKE PUBLIC THE RESULTS. CHINESE LAW ALREADY PROHIBITS TORTURE AND ABUSE OF PRISONERS, BUT A RANGE OF CREDIBLE SOURCES PROVIDE EVIDENCE THAT TORTURE AND ABUSE OF PRISONERS CONTINUE IN CHINESE PRISONS.

- o TAKE IMMEDIATE STEPS TO INSURE THAT THE SECURITY AUTHORITIES IN TIBET DO NOT RESORT TO VIOLENCE OR SUPPRESS PEACEFUL DISSENT WHEN MAINTAINING PUBLIC ORDER. THERE IS STRONG EVIDENCE THAT CHINESE AUTHORITIES IN TIBET CONTINUE TO USE EXCESSIVE FORCE IN RESPONDING TO PEACEFUL DEMONSTRATIONS.

- o REINVIGORATE THE DIALOGUE WITH THE DALAI LAMA OR HIS REPRESENTATIVES, AS PEACE AND STABILITY IN TIBET DEPEND ON SUBSTANTIVE DIALOGUE BETWEEN BEIJING AND TIBETAN LEADERS.

- o FULFILL COMMITMENTS TO FORMER SECRETARY BAKER TO ISSUE EXIT PERMITS TO CHINESE CITIZENS NOT FACING CRIMINAL CHARGES.

- o CONTINUE GOVERNMENT-LEVEL DISCUSSIONS AND EXCHANGES OF INFORMATION ON HUMAN RIGHTS ISSUES, INCLUDING MEETINGS BETWEEN GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS AT APPROPRIATE LEVELS.

- o PERMIT IMMEDIATELY THE VOICE OF AMERICA TO BROADCAST WITHOUT INTERFERENCE, AS PROVIDED BY INTERNATIONAL LAW. THERE IS NO JUSTIFICATION FOR CHINA'S JAMMING OF VOA BROADCASTS, TO WHICH CHINESE CITIZENS HAD FREE ACCESS BEFORE TIANANMEN.

White House Guidelines, September 11, 2006
By YL NARA, Date 7/16/2014

Nonproliferation

- o REAFFIRM YOUR [FOREIGN MINISTER QIAN'S] UNDERTAKINGS TO FORMER SECRETARY BAKER ON MTCR, INCLUDING THE SPECIFIC COMMITMENT THAT CHINA WILL NOT TRANSFER M-9 AND M-11 MISSILES.

- o RESPOND IMMEDIATELY TO THE U.S. REQUEST FOR CLARIFICATION OF THE NOVEMBER 1992 TRANSFER OF MISSILE-RELATED EQUIPMENT TO PAKISTAN, IF IT HOPES TO AVERT A SERIOUS THREAT TO THE BILATERAL RELATIONSHIP. THE U.S. MAY SOON HAVE TO DECIDE WHETHER THIS TRANSFER REQUIRES THE IMPOSITION OF SANCTIONS, as well as AFFECTING OUR APPROACH TO MFN.

- o UNDERSCORE THE PRC'S SUPPORT FOR RESPONSIBLE INTERNATIONAL BEHAVIOR BY PUBLICLY ANNOUNCING ITS COMMITMENT TO ABIDE BY THE REVISED MTCR GUIDELINES ANNOUNCED JANUARY 7, 1993 WHICH REFLECT U.S. EFFORTS TO EXCLUDE REQUIREMENTS THAT WOULD BE ONEROUS FOR CHINA AND THE OTHER STATES WHICH HAVE VOLUNTARILY AGREED TO ABIDE BY THE MTCR.

- o JOIN OTHER RESPONSIBLE SUPPLIERS OF SENSITIVE GOODS BY ADOPTING THE AUSTRALIA GROUP'S CONTROL LISTS FOR CHEMICAL WEAPONS PRECURSORS AND DUAL-USE CHEMICAL AND BIOLOGICAL EQUIPMENT. CHINA HAS COMMITTED ITSELF TO OPPOSE THE PROLIFERATION OF BIOLOGICAL AND CHEMICAL WEAPONS AS A SIGNATORY TO THE BIOLOGICAL AND CHEMICAL WEAPONS CONVENTIONS.

- o AVOID NUCLEAR COOPERATION WITH IRRESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENTS SUCH AS IRAN AND PAKISTAN. MAJOR POWERS HAVE A RESPONSIBILITY TO TAKE THE LEAD IN PROMOTING INTERNATIONAL SECURITY AND STABILITY.

Trade

- o IMPLEMENT PROMPTLY AND THOROUGHLY CHINA'S MEMORANDA OF UNDERSTANDING COVERING PROTECTION OF INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY RIGHTS, MARKET ACCESS, AND PRISON LABOR. THE USG AND AMERICAN COMPANIES ARE CAREFULLY FOLLOWING CHINA'S COMPLIANCE IN THIS AREA.

- o CONTINUE TO OPEN CHINA'S MARKET, AND TAKE POSITIVE MEASURES TO FACILITATE INCREASED IMPORTS FROM THE U.S., ITS LARGEST MARKET. CHINA CANNOT EXPECT TO RETAIN FULL ACCESS TO THE U.S. MARKET IF IT DOES NOT CONTINUE TO OPEN ITS MARKET. THE STEADILY GROWING TRADE DEFICIT SUFFERED BY THE U.S. SIDE CANNOT BE SUSTAINED. A FURTHER OPENING IN CHINA'S SERVICES MARKET, INCLUDING ACCESS FOR U.S. INSURANCE, TRAVEL, LEGAL AND BANKING SERVICE FIRMS, IN ADDITION TO COMMODITIES AND MANUFACTURED GOODS, IS CRITICAL.

- o TAKE CONCRETE STEPS TO CONTROL TEXTILE FRAUD, INCLUDING THE PRACTICES OF FALSE LABELING, TRANSSHIPMENT, AND QUOTA EVASION. ILLEGAL TRADING ACTIVITIES BY PRC TEXTILE FIRMS UNDERCUT SUPPORT FOR THE RELATIONSHIP AND ENDANGER BILATERAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR MANAGING THIS IMPORTANT AREA OF TRADE.

CORE INITIATIVES (NONPAPER)

Human Rights:

(1) provide a full accounting for and the early release of all those imprisoned or detained for the peaceful expression of their political views, including amnesty for those involved in the democracy wall and tiananmen protests.

(2) release imprisoned religious figures, including catholic priests, protestant ministers, tibetan monks, and other religious leaders.

(3) grant access to chinese prisoners by reputable third parties, such as the international committee of the red cross, promptly investigate reports of torture and abuse of prisoners and make public the results.

(4) insure that security authorities avoid violence in dealing with peaceful demonstrations in tibet; reinvigorate the dialogue with the dalai lama or his representatives.

(5) fulfill all the commitments made to former secretary baker to issue exit permits to chinese citizens not facing criminal charges and continue government-level discussions on human rights issues, including meetings between government officials at appropriate levels.

(6) Permit the voice of america to broadcast without interference.

Nonproliferation:

(1) reaffirm foreign minister qian's undertakings to former secretary baker on mtcr, including the specific commitment that china will not transfer m-11 and m-9 missiles. respond to the u.s. request for clarification of the november 1992 transfer of missile-related equipment to pakistan.

(2) agree to abide by the revised mtcr guidelines announced january 7, 1993.

(3) join with other states in adhering to the nuclear suppliers group guidelines, including full-scope safeguards, and the australia group's control lists for chemical weapons precursors and dual-use chemical and biological equipment.

(4) avoid nuclear cooperation with irresponsible governments.

Trade:

(1) implement commitments made in bilateral agreements covering protection of intellectual property rights, market access and prison labor.

(2) take steps to control textile fraud, including the practices of false labeling, transshipment, and quota evasion.

(3) further open china's services market, including access for U.S. insurance, travel, legal and banking service firms.

(4) Take measures that seek to further increase access for U.S. exports to China.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY OF THE UNITED STATES CHINA ACT OF 1993 AS INTRODUCED BY SENATE MAJORITY LEADER GEORGE J. MITCHELL

This bill follows the framework of H.R. 5318, last year's bill which passed both Houses of Congress and was vetoed by President Bush.

The bill grants renewal of MFN trade status to China from July 3, 1993 until July 3, 1994. In order to renew MFN after July 1994, the President would have to indicate that China had:

(1) taken appropriate actions to adhere to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in China and Tibet.

(2) allowed unrestricted emigration of political and religious prisoners.

(3) provided an acceptable accounting and release of Chinese citizens detained, accused, or sentenced as a result of the nonviolent expression of their political beliefs.

(4) taken effective, verifiable action to prevent export of products to the U.S. manufactured by forced labor and complied with the provisions of last year's bilateral Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) which permits unrestricted access by U.S. Customs officials to places where such goods are produced.

Additionally, the President would need to indicate that the Chinese Government had made overall significant progress in:

* ceasing religious persecution in China and Tibet.

* ceasing financial and other incentives to encourage non-Tibetans to relocate in Tibet.

* ceasing unfair and discriminatory trade practices against American businesses and in providing U.S. exporters fair access to Chinese markets.

* adhering to the guidelines and parameters of the MTCR, NPT, and Australian Group on chemical and biological arms.

* adhering to the Joint declaration on Hong Kong

* cooperating with U.S. efforts to account for POW/MIA's from the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

* ceasing jamming of VOA broadcasts.

* allowing international human rights monitors access to trials and places of detention.

If the President makes a positive indication regarding these conditions in his June 3, 1994 request for extension of MFN trade status for the People's Republic of China, Congress would agree to renewal for another year. If he could not make positive indications of improvement, then favorable MFN tariffs would cease for products exported by state-owned enterprises, but would continue for products exported by private and joint venture enterprises.

* The Secretary of the Treasury determines the identity of state-owned enterprises.

The only caveat on the President's freedom of action in making an indication of positive progress in regard to conditions described in the section on "overall significant progress" is that he may not make a positive indication if the Chinese have transferred ballistic missiles or missile launchers for the M-9 or M-11 missiles to Syria, Iran, or Pakistan; or transferred equipment or technology to another country which could be used to manufacture a nuclear explosive device.

103D CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

S. _____

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

Mr. MITCHELL introduced the following bill; which was read twice and referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To extend to the People's Republic of China renewal of nondiscriminatory (most-favored-nation) treatment provided certain conditions are met.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "United States-China Act of 1993".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) On June 4, 1989, thousands of Chinese citizens courageously demonstrated that they were prepared to risk their lives and futures in pursuit of democratic freedom and respect for human rights.

(2) The People's Republic of China, as a member of the United Nations Security Council, is obligated to respect and uphold the United Nations Charter and Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

(3) Despite the massive demonstration for self-determination and fundamental principles of human rights and despite the People's Republic of China's membership in the United Nations, the Government of the People's Republic of China continues to flagrantly violate internationally recognized standards of human rights, and engages in—

(A) torture and cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment;

(B) arbitrary arrest, unacknowledged detention without charges and trial, and jailing of persons solely for the nonviolent expression of their political views; and

(C) use of prison labor to produce cheap products for export to countries, including the United States, in violation of international labor treaties and United States law.

(4) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to deny Chinese citizens and others, who have supported the prodemocracy movement, the right of free emigration despite having pledged to do so in 1991.

(5) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to use military and police forces to intimidate and repress the Tibetan people seeking political and religious freedom, and continues to violate the provisions of the Fourth Geneva Convention by encouraging the resettlement of large numbers of Chinese in occupied Tibet.

(6) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to engage in unfair trade practices against the United States by raising tariffs, employing taxes as a surcharge on tariffs, using discriminatory customs rates, imposing import quotas and other quantitative restrictions, barring the importation of certain items, using licensing and testing requirements to limit imports, and falsifying country of origin documentation to transship textiles and other items to the United States through Hong Kong and third countries.

(7) Although the Government of the People's Republic of China has pledged to adhere to the guidelines and parameters of the Missile Technology Control Regime, there are continuing reports of Chinese transfers of military technology covered by such Regime to the Middle East, Africa, and Asia.

(8) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to unjustly restrict and imprison religious leaders and members of religious groups who do not adhere to the dogma and control of state-sponsored religious organizations.

(9) It is the policy and practice of the Government of the People's Republic of China's Communist Party to control all trade unions and suppress and harass members of the independent labor union movement.

(10) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to harass and restrict the activities of accredited journalists and to restrict broadcasts by the Voice of America.

(b) POLICY.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) with respect to the actions of the People's Republic of China in the areas of human rights, weapons proliferation, and unfair trade practices, the President should take such action as is necessary to achieve the purposes of this Act, including

(A) urging the Communist Chinese leaders to release all political and religious prisoners in China and Tibet, and to cease forcing the large-scale influx of Chinese settlers into Tibet which is threatening the survival of the Tibetan culture;

(B) conducting diplomatic negotiations with the Government of the People's Republic of China to encourage them to allow international human rights and humanitarian organizations access to prisoners in China and Tibet;

(C) directing the United States Trade Representative to take necessary and appropriate action pursuant to section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 and the Memorandum of Understanding between the Governments of the United States and People's Republic of China concerning market access, signed October 10, 1992, with respect to the continuing unfair trade practices of the People's Republic of China that are discriminatory and unreasonably restrict United States commerce; and

(D) encouraging members of the Missile Technology Control Regime and other countries to develop a common policy concerning the People's Republic of China's transfer of missile technology to other countries;

(2) sanctions being applied against the People's Republic of China on the date of the enactment of this Act should be continued and strictly enforced; and

(3) the President should direct the Secretary of Commerce to consult with American business leaders, having significant trade with or investments in the People's Republic of China, to encourage them to adopt a voluntary code of conduct that--

(A) follows internationally recognized human rights principles;

(B) ensures that the employment of Chinese citizens is not discriminatory in terms of sex, ethnic origin, or political belief;

(C) refrains from knowingly using prison labor;

(D) recognizes workers right to organize and bargain collectively; and

(E) discourages mandatory political indoctrination on business sites.

SEC. 3. MINIMUM STANDARDS WHICH THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA MUST MEET TO CONTINUE TO RECEIVE NON-DISCRIMINATORY MOST-FAVORED-NATION TREATMENT.

Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the President may not recommend continuation of a waiver for the 12-month period beginning July 3, 1994, under section 402(d) of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2432(d)) for the People's Republic of China, unless the President reports in the document required to be submitted by such section that the government of that country—

(1) has taken appropriate actions to begin adhering to the provisions of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in China and Tibet;

(2) is allowing unrestricted emigration of the citizens who desire to leave China for reasons of political or religious persecution to join family members abroad, or for other valid reasons;

(3) has provided an acceptable accounting and release of—

(A) Chinese citizens detained, accused, or sentenced as a result of the nonviolent expression of their political beliefs in relation to events which occurred during and after the violent repression of demonstrations in Tiananmen Square on June 4, 1989; and

(B) other citizens detained, accused, or sentenced for the nonviolent expression of their political beliefs or for peacefully exercising their internationally guaranteed rights of freedom of speech, association, and assembly;

(4) has taken effective, verifiable action to prevent export of products to the United States manufactured wholly or in part by convict, forced, or indentured labor and has complied with the terms of the Memorandum of Understanding signed on August 7, 1992, by allowing, without limitation or restriction, United States Customs officials to visit places suspected of producing such goods for export; and

(5) has made overall significant progress in—

(A) ceasing religious persecution and lifting restrictions on freedom of religious belief in the People's Republic of China and Tibet;

(B) releasing leaders and members of religious groups detained, imprisoned, or under house arrest for expression of their religious beliefs;

(C) ceasing financial and other incentives to encourage non-Tibetans to relocate in Tibet, including development and other projects which bring in substantial numbers of non-Tibetan workers;

(D) ceasing unfair and discriminatory trade practices which restrict and unreasonably burden American business;

(E) providing United States exporters fair access to Chinese markets, including lowering tariffs, removing nontariff barriers, and increasing the purchase of United States goods and services;

(F) adhering to the guidelines and parameters of the Missile Technology Control Regime and the controls adopted by the Nuclear Suppliers Group and the Australian Group on Chemical and Biological Arms;

(G) adhering to the Joint Declaration on Hong Kong that was entered into between the United Kingdom and the People's Republic of China;

(H) cooperating with United States efforts to obtain an acceptable accounting of United States military personnel who are listed as prisoners of war or missing in action as a result of their service in—

(i) the Korean conflict; or

(ii) the Vietnam conflict;

(I) ceasing the jamming of Voice of America broadcasts; and

(J) providing international human rights and humanitarian groups access to prisoners, trials, and places of detention.

SEC. 4. REPORT BY THE PRESIDENT.

If the President recommends in 1994 that the waiver referred to in section 3 be continued for the People's Republic of China, the President shall state in the document required to be submitted to the Congress by section 402(d) of the Trade Act of 1974, the extent to which the Government of the People's Republic of China has complied with the provisions of section 3, during the period covered by the document.

SEC. 5. NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT FOR PRODUCTS FROM NONSTATE-OWNED ENTERPRISES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, if nondiscriminatory treatment is not granted to the People's Republic of China by reason of the occurrence of an event described in subsection (b), nondiscriminatory treatment shall—

(1) continue to apply to any good that is produced or manufactured by a person that is not a state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China, but

(2) not apply to any such good that is marketed or otherwise exported by a state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China.

Nondiscriminatory treatment under this section shall be in effect for the same period of time the waiver referred to in section 3 would have been effective had it taken effect.

(b) EVENTS.—An event described in this subsection means—

(1) the President fails to request the waiver referred to in section 3 and reports to the Congress that such failure was a result of the President's inability to report that the People's Republic of China has met the standards described in such section; or

(2) the President requests the waiver referred to in section 3, but a disapproval resolution described in subsection (c)(1) is enacted into law.

(c) DISAPPROVAL RESOLUTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term "resolution" means only a joint resolution of the two Houses of Congress, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That the Congress does not approve the extension of the authority contained in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 recommended by the President to the Congress on _____ with respect to the People's Republic of China because the Congress does not agree that the People's Republic of China has met the standards described in section 3 of the United States-China Act of 1993", with the blank space being filled with the appropriate date.

(2) APPLICABLE RULES.—The provisions of sections 153 (other than paragraphs (3) and (4) of subsection (b) of such section) and 402(d)(2) (as modified by this subsection) of the Trade Act of 1974 shall apply to a resolution described in paragraph (1).

(d) DETERMINATION OF DUTY STATUS OF ENTERPRISES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), the Secretary of the Treasury shall determine which persons are state-owned enterprises of the People's Republic of China for purposes of this Act and compile and maintain a list of such persons.

(2) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of making the determination required by paragraph (1), the following definitions apply

(A)(i) The term "state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China" means a person affiliated with or wholly owned, controlled, or subsidized by the Government of the People's Republic of China and whose means of production, products, and revenues are owned or controlled by a central or provincial government authority. A person shall be considered to be state-owned if—

(I) the person's assets are primarily owned by a central or provincial government authority;

(II) a substantial proportion of the person's profits are required to be submitted to a central or provincial government authority;

(III) the person's production, purchases of inputs, and sales of output, in whole or in part, are subject to state, sectoral, or regional plans; or

(IV) a license issued by a government authority classifies the person as state-owned.

(ii) Any person that—

(I) is a qualified foreign joint venture or is licensed by a governmental authority as a collective, cooperative, or private enterprise; or

(II) is wholly owned by a foreign person,

shall not be considered to be state-owned.

(B) The term "qualified foreign joint venture" means any person—

(i) which is registered and licensed in the agency or department of the Government of the People's Republic of China concerned with foreign economic relations and trade as an equity, cooperative, contractual joint venture, or joint stock company with foreign investment;

(ii) in which the foreign investor partner and a person of the People's Republic of China share profits and losses and jointly manage the venture;

(iii) in which the foreign investor partner holds or controls at least 25 percent of the investment and the foreign investor partner is not substantially owned or controlled by a state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China;

(iv) in which the foreign investor partner is not a person of a country the government of which the Secretary of State has determined under section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 to have repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism; and

(v) which does not use state-owned enterprises of the People's Republic of China to export its good or services.

(C) The term "person" means a natural person, corporation, partnership, enterprise, instrumentality, agency, or other entity.

(D) The term "foreign investor partner" means—

(i) a natural person who is not a citizen of the People's Republic of China; and

(ii) a corporation, partnership, enterprise, instrumentality, agency, or other entity that is organized under the laws of a country other than the People's Republic of China and 50 percent or more of the outstanding capital stock or beneficial interest of such entity is owned (directly or indirectly) by natural persons who are not citizens of the People's Republic of China.

(e) PETITION FOR CHANGE IN DUTY STATUS.—Any person who believes that a person should be included on or excluded from the list compiled by the Secretary under subsection (d)(1) may request that the Secretary review the status of such person.

SEC. 6. AFFECT OF GATT ENTRY ON MFN STATUS.

Notwithstanding the entry of the People's Republic of China into the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, most-favored-nation treatment with respect to the products of the People's Republic of China shall continue to be governed by title IV of the Trade Act of 1974 and the provisions of this Act.

SEC. 7. SANCTIONS BY OTHER COUNTRIES.

If the President decides not to seek a continuation of a waiver in 1994 under section 402(d) of the Trade Act of 1974 for the People's Republic of China, the President shall, during the 30-day period beginning on the date that the President would have recommended to the Congress that such a waiver be continued, undertake efforts to ensure that members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade take similar action with respect to the People's Republic of China.

SEC. 8. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this Act:

(1) DETAINED AND IMPRISONED.—The terms "detained" and "imprisoned" include, but are not limited to, incarceration in prisons, jails, labor reform camps, labor reeducation camps, and local police detention centers.

(2) ACCEPTABLE ACCOUNTING.—The term "acceptable accounting" includes—

(A) providing information regarding the location of any person being held,

(B) the legal status of such person,

(C) if convicted, the sentence of such person, and

(D) if released, when and with what restrictions.

(3) CONVICT, FORCED, OR INDENTURED LABOR.—The term "convict, forced, or indentured labor" has the meaning given such term by section 307 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1307).

(4) VIOLATIONS OF INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNIZED STANDARDS OF HUMAN RIGHTS.—The term "violations of internationally recognized standards of human rights" includes, but is not limited to, torture, cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment, prolonged detention without charges and trial, causing the disappearance of persons by the abduction and clandestine detention of those persons, secret judicial proceedings, and other flagrant denial of the right to life, liberty, or the security of any person.

(5) MISSILE TECHNOLOGY CONTROL REGIME.—The term "Missile Technology Control Regime" means the agreement, as amended, between the United States, the United Kingdom, the Federal Republic of Germany, France, Italy, Canada, and Japan, announced on April 16, 1987, to restrict sensitive missile-relevant transfers based on an annex of missile equipment and technology.

(6) SIGNIFICANT PROGRESS.—(A) The term "significant progress" in section 3, means the implementation of measures that will meaningfully reduce, or lead to the end of, the practices identified in such section.

(B) With regard to section 3(5)(E), progress may not be determined to be "significant progress" if, after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President determines that the People's Republic of China has transferred—

(i) ballistic missiles or missile launchers for the M–9 or M–11 weapons systems to Syria, Pakistan, or Iran; or

(ii) material, equipment, or technology that would contribute significantly to the manufacture of a nuclear explosive device to another country and that the material, equipment, or technology is to be used by such country in the manufacture of such device.

(F) adhering to the Joint Declaration on Hong Kong that was entered into between the United Kingdom and the People's Republic of China;

(G) cooperating with United States efforts to obtain an acceptable accounting of United States military personnel who are listed as prisoners of war or missing in action as a result of their service in—

(i) the Korean conflict; or

(ii) the Vietnam conflict;

(H) ceasing the jamming of Voice of America broadcasts; and

(I) providing international human rights and humanitarian groups access to prisoners, trials, and places of detention.

SEC. 4. REPORT BY THE PRESIDENT.

If the President recommends in 1994 that the waiver referred to in section 3 be continued for the People's Republic of China, the President shall state in the document required to be submitted to the Congress by section 402(d) of the Trade Act of 1974, the extent to which the Government of the People's Republic of China has complied with the provisions of section 3, during the period covered by the document.

(1) continue to apply to any good that is produced or manufactured by a person that is not a state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China, but

(2) not apply to any such good that is marketed or otherwise exported by a state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China.

Nondiscriminatory treatment under this section shall be in effect for the same period of time the waiver referred to in section 3 would have been effective had it taken effect.

(b) EVENTS.—An event described in this subsection means—

(1) the President fails to request the waiver referred to in section 3 and reports to the Congress that such failure was a result of the President's inability to report that the People's Republic of China has met the standards described in such section; or

(2) the President requests the waiver referred to in section 3, but a disapproval resolution described in subsection (c)(1) is enacted into law.

(c) DISAPPROVAL RESOLUTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term "resolution" means only a joint resolution of the two Houses of Congress, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That the Congress does not approve the extension of the authority contained in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 recommended by the President to the Congress on _____ with respect to the People's Republic of China because the Congress does not agree that the People's Republic of China has met the standards described in section 3 of the United States-China Act of 1993", with the blank space being filled with the appropriate date.

(2) APPLICABLE RULES.—The provisions of sections 153 (other than paragraphs (3) and (4) of subsection (b) of such section) and 402(d)(2) (as modified by this subsection) of the Trade Act of 1974 shall apply to a resolution described in paragraph (1).

(d) DETERMINATION OF DUTY STATUS OF ENTERPRISES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), the Secretary of the Treasury shall determine which persons are state-owned enterprises of the People's Republic of China for purposes of this Act and compile and maintain a list of such persons.

(2) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of making the determination required by paragraph (1), the following definitions apply:

(A)(i) The term "state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China" means a person affiliated with or wholly owned, controlled, or subsidized by the Government of the People's Republic of China and whose means of production, products, and revenues are owned or controlled by a central or provincial government authority. A person shall be considered to be state-owned if—

(I) the person's assets are primarily owned by a central or provincial government authority;

(II) a substantial proportion of the person's profits are required to be submitted to a central or provincial government authority;

(III) the person's production, purchases of inputs, and sales of output, in whole or in part, are subject to state, sectoral, or regional plans; or

(IV) a license issued by a government authority classifies the person as state-owned.

(ii) Any person that—

(I) is a qualified foreign joint venture or is licensed by a governmental authority as a collective, cooperative, or private enterprise; or

(II) is wholly owned by a foreign person,

shall not be considered to be state-owned.

(B) The term "qualified foreign joint venture" means any person—

(i) which is registered and licensed in the agency or department of the Government of the People's Republic of China concerned with foreign economic relations and trade as an equity, cooperative, contractual joint venture, or joint stock company with foreign investment;

(ii) in which the foreign investor partner and a person of the People's Republic of China share profits and losses and jointly manage the venture;

(iii) in which the foreign investor partner holds or controls at least 25 percent of the investment and the foreign investor partner is not substantially owned or controlled by a state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China;

(iv) in which the foreign investor partner is not a person of a country the government of which the Secretary of State has determined under section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 to have repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism; and

(v) which does not use state-owned enterprises of the People's Republic of China to export its good or services.

(C) The term "person" means a natural person, corporation, partnership, enterprise, instrumentality, agency, or other entity.

(D) The term "foreign investor partner" means—

(i) a natural person who is not a citizen of the People's Republic of China; and

(ii) a corporation, partnership, instrumentality, enterprise, agency, or other entity that is organized under the laws of a country other than the People's Republic of China and 50 percent or more of the outstanding capital stock or beneficial interest of such entity is owned (directly or indirectly) by natural persons who are not citizens of the People's Republic of China.

(e) PETITION FOR CHANGE IN DUTY STATUS.—Any person who believes that a person should be included on or excluded from the list compiled by the Secretary under subsection (d)(1) may request that the Secretary review the status of such person.

SEC. 6. EFFECT OF GATT ENTRY ON MFN STATUS.

Notwithstanding the entry of the People's Republic of China into the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, most-favored-nation treatment shall not be automatically conferred on the products of the People's Republic of China unless the People's Republic of China satisfies the standards described in section 3 and complies with section 402 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2432).

SEC. 7. SANCTIONS BY OTHER COUNTRIES.

If the President decides not to seek a continuation of a waiver in 1994 under section 402(d) of the Trade Act of 1974 for the People's Republic of China, the President shall, during the 30-day period beginning on the date that the President would have recommended to the Congress that such a waiver be continued, undertake efforts to ensure that members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade take similar action with respect to the People's Republic of China.

SEC. 8. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this Act:

(1) DETAINED AND IMPRISONED.—The terms "detained" and "imprisoned" include, but are not limited to, incarceration in prisons, jails, labor reform camps, labor reeducation camps, and local police detention centers.

(2) ACCEPTABLE ACCOUNTING.—The term "acceptable accounting" includes—

(A) providing information regarding the location of any person being held,

(B) the legal status of such person,

(C) if convicted, the sentence of such person, and

(D) if released, when and with what restrictions.

(3) CONVICT, FORCED, OR INDENTURED LABOR.—The term "convict, forced, or indentured labor" has the meaning given such term by section 307 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1307).

(4) VIOLATIONS OF INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNIZED STANDARDS OF HUMAN RIGHTS.—The term "violations of internationally recognized standards of human rights" includes, but is not limited to, torture, cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment, prolonged detention without charges and trial, causing the disappearance of persons by the abduction and clandestine detention of those persons, secret judicial proceedings, and other flagrant denial of the right to life, liberty, or the security of any person.

(5) MISSILE TECHNOLOGY CONTROL REGIME.—The term "Missile Technology Control Regime" means the agreement, as amended, between the United States, the United Kingdom, the Federal Republic of Germany, France, Italy, Canada, and Japan, announced on April 16, 1987, to restrict sensitive missile-relevant transfers based on an annex of missile equipment and technology.

(6) SIGNIFICANT PROGRESS.—(A) The term "significant progress" in section 3, means the implementation of measures that will meaningfully reduce, or lead to the end of, the practices identified in such section.

(B) With regard to section 3(5)(E), progress may not be determined to be "significant progress" if, after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President determines that the People's Republic of China has transferred—

(i) ballistic missiles or missile launchers for the M–9 or M–11 weapons systems to Syria, Pakistan, or Iran; or

(ii) material, equipment, or technology that would contribute significantly to the manufacture of a nuclear explosive device to another country and that the material, equipment, or technology is to be used by such country in the manufacture of such device.

- April 9-15. Gao Yan, Governor of Jilin Province, is leading a delegation to Little Rock, New York and Washington. The delegation plans to spend $40 million for fertilizer, steel, and other projects. Jilin recently spent $10 million on telecommunications equipment from AT&T. (Beijing 11711).

- May 2-14. Zhou Mingchen, President of Ceroilfoods, is planning to visit Cargill, Continental, and USDA for grain consultations. Previous visits have led to significant wheat purchases.

- Early May. Mofert Vice Minister Tong Zhiguang and Sinochem officials will participate in a buying mission aimed at fertilizer and other commodities from the southern U.S.

CHINA'S BUY AMERICA CAMPAIGN

Chinese leaders have gone out of their way in meetings with Codels and other U.S. visitors to signal an interest in doing more business with U.S. companies. At least eight buying missions have either visited the U.S. since the beginning of the year or are scheduled to arrive this spring. These missions have the potential to generate billions of dollars of exports of aircraft, autos, satellites, oil drilling equipment, aviation electronics, wheat, fertilizer, and other U.S. products.

- February 7-14. AT&T hosted State Planning Commission Vice Chairman Ye Qing on a visit to AT&T's headquarters and various manufacturing sites. The trip led to signing on February 23 of a cooperation agreement opening up China's lucrative market for digital switching equipment to a new AT&T joint venture.

- March 10-24. Liu Jiyuan, Vice Minister of the Ministry of Aerospace Industries, met with Hughes Space Communications on a cooperation agreement that could lead to purchase of five satellites over five years. Value of this purchase could exceed $750 million.

- March 15-29. Li Zhao, Deputy Director General of CAAC, visited Boeing to discuss purchasing or leasing up to 40 aircraft valued at $1 billion.

- April 3-8. Wang Tao, President of the China National Petroleum Corporation, leads a delegation to Louisiana, Texas, and Washington, D.C. to encourage U.S. companies to participate in the opening of the Tarim Basin to oil exploration and development by foreign companies. The delegation also expects to purchase $200 million worth of U.S. oil exploration equipment.

- April 7-17. Wang Shumin, Deputy Director General of the State Council, will lead a joint civilian-military team for talks on airspace management. He will also meet with Boeing, McDonnell Douglas, and other companies on modernization of China's air traffic control system.

- April 7-24. State Planning Commission Vice Chairman Gan Ziyu leads a mission to buy cars from GM, Ford, and Chrysler. Purchases are expected to exceed that of a similar mission last summer which bought 7000 vehicles. Gan will also visit Boeing in Seattle, where a $600 million contract is expected to be signed.

103D CONGRESS
1ST SESSION

H. R. ____

To extend to the People's Republic of China renewal of nondiscriminatory (most-favored-nation) treatment provided certain conditions are met.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Ms. PELOSI introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on _____

A BILL

To extend to the People's Republic of China renewal of nondiscriminatory (most-favored-nation) treatment provided certain conditions are met.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "United States-China Act of 1993".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND POLICY.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress makes the following findings:

(1) On June 4, 1989, thousands of Chinese citizens courageously demonstrated that they were prepared to risk their lives and futures in pursuit of democratic freedom and respect for human rights.

(2) The People's Republic of China, as a member of the United Nations Security Council, is obligated to respect and uphold the United Nations Charter and Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

(3) Despite the massive demonstration for self-determination and fundamental principles of human rights and despite the People's Republic of China's membership in the United Nations, the Government of the People's Republic of China continues to flagrantly violate internationally recognized standards of human rights, and engages in—

(A) torture and cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment;

(B) arbitrary arrest, unacknowledged detention without charges and trial, and jailing of persons solely for the nonviolent expression of their political views; and

(C) use of prison labor to produce cheap products for export to countries, including the United States, in violation of international labor treaties and United States law.

(4) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to deny Chinese citizens and others, who have supported the prodemocracy movement, the right of free emigration despite having pledged to do so in 1991.

(5) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to use military and police forces to intimidate and repress the Tibetan people seeking political and religious freedom, and continues to violate the provisions of the Fourth Geneva Convention by encouraging the resettlement of large numbers of Chinese in Tibet.

(6) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to engage in unfair trade practices against the United States by raising tariffs, employing taxes as a surcharge on tariffs, using discriminatory customs rates, imposing import quotas and other quantitative restrictions, barring the importation of certain items, using licensing and testing requirements to limit imports, and falsifying country of origin documentation to transship textiles and other items to the United States through Hong Kong and third countries.

(7) Although the Government of the People's Republic of China has pledged to adhere to the guidelines and parameters of the Missile Technology Control Regime, there are continuing reports of Chinese transfers of military technology covered by such Regime to the Middle East, Africa, and Asia.

(8) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to unjustly restrict and imprison religious leaders and members of religious groups who do not adhere to the dogma and control of state-sponsored religious organizations.

(9) It is the policy and practice of the Government of the People's Republic of China's Communist Party to control all trade unions and suppress and harass members of the independent labor union movement.

(10) The Government of the People's Republic of China continues to harass and restrict the activities of accredited journalists and to restrict broadcasts by the Voice of America.

(b) POLICY.—It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) with respect to the actions of the People's Republic of China in the areas of human rights, weapons proliferation, and unfair trade practices, the President should take such action as is necessary to achieve the purposes of this Act, including—

(A) urging the Communist Chinese leaders to release all political and religious prisoners in China and Tibet, and to cease forcing the large-scale influx of Chinese settlers into Tibet which is threatening the survival of the Tibetan culture;

(B) conducting diplomatic negotiations with the Government of the People's Republic of China to encourage them to allow international human rights and humanitarian organizations access to prisoners in China and Tibet;

(C) directing the United States Trade Representative to take necessary and appropriate action pursuant to section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 and the Memorandum of Understanding between the Governments of the United States and People's Republic of China concerning market access, signed October 10, 1992, with respect to the continuing unfair trade practices of the People's Republic of China that are discriminatory and unreasonably restrict United States commerce; and

(D) encouraging members of the Missile Technology Control Regime and other countries to develop a common policy concerning the People's Republic of China's transfer of missile technology to other countries;

(2) sanctions being applied against the People's Republic of China on the date of the enactment of this Act should be continued and strictly enforced; and

(3) the President should direct the Secretary of Commerce to consult with American business leaders, having significant trade with or investments in the People's Republic of China, to encourage them to adopt a voluntary code of conduct that—

(A) follows internationally recognized human rights principles;

(B) ensures that the employment of Chinese citizens is not discriminatory in terms of sex, ethnic origin, or political belief;

(C) refrains from knowingly using prison labor;

(D) recognizes workers right to organize and bargain collectively; and

(E) discourages mandatory political indoctrination on business sites.

SEC. 3. MINIMUM STANDARDS WHICH THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA MUST MEET TO CONTINUE TO RECEIVE NON-DISCRIMINATORY MOST-FAVORED-NATION TREATMENT.

Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the President may not recommend continuation of a waiver for the 12-month period beginning July 3, 1994, under section 402(d) of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2432(d)) for the People's Republic of China, unless the President reports in the document required to be submitted by such section that the government of that country—

(1) has taken appropriate actions to begin adhering to the provisions of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in China and Tibet;

(2) is allowing unrestricted emigration of the citizens who desire to leave China for reasons of political or religious persecution to join family members abroad, or for other valid reasons;

(3) has provided an acceptable accounting for and release of Chinese citizens detained, accused, or sentenced as a result of the nonviolent expression of their political beliefs in relation to events which occurred during and after the violent repression of demonstrations in Tiananmen Square on June 4, 1989, and has provided an acceptable accounting for and release of other citizens detained, accused, or sentenced for the nonviolent expression of their political beliefs or for peacefully exercising their internationally guaranteed rights of freedom of speech, association, and assembly;

(4) has taken effective, verifiable action to prevent export of products to the United States manufactured wholly or in part by convict, forced, or indentured labor and has complied with the terms of the Memorandum of Understanding signed on August 7, 1992, by allowing, without limitation or restriction, United States Customs officials to visit places suspected of producing such goods for export; and

(5) has made overall significant progress in—

(A) ceasing religious persecution and lifting restrictions on freedom of religious belief in the People's Republic of China and Tibet and ceasing to threaten the survival of the Tibetan culture;

(B) releasing leaders and members of religious groups detained, imprisoned, or under house arrest for expression of their religious beliefs;

(C) ceasing unfair and discriminatory trade practices which restrict and unreasonably burden American business;

(D) providing United States exporters fair access to Chinese markets, including lowering tariffs, removing nontariff barriers, and increasing the purchase of United States goods and services;

(E) adhering to the guidelines and parameters of the Missile Technology Control Regime and the controls adopted by the Nuclear Suppliers Group and the Australian Group on Chemical and Biological Arms;

(F) adhering to the Joint Declaration on Hong Kong that was entered into between the United Kingdom and the People's Republic of China;

(G) cooperating with United States efforts to obtain an acceptable accounting of United States military personnel who are listed as prisoners of war or missing in action as a result of their service in—

(i) the Korean conflict; or

(ii) the Vietnam conflict;

(H) ceasing the jamming of Voice of America broadcasts; and

(I) providing international human rights and humanitarian groups access to prisoners, trials, and places of detention.

SEC. 4. REPORT BY THE PRESIDENT.

If the President recommends in 1994 that the waiver referred to in section 3 be continued for the People's Republic of China, the President shall state in the document required to be submitted to the Congress by section 402(d) of the Trade Act of 1974, the extent to which the Government of the People's Republic of China has complied with the provisions of section 3, during the period covered by the document.

SEC. 5. NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT FOR PRODUCTS FROM NONSTATE-OWNED ENTERPRISES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, if nondiscriminatory treatment is not granted to the People's Republic of China by reason of the occurrence of an event described in subsection (b), nondiscriminatory treatment shall—

(1) continue to apply to any good that is produced or manufactured by a person that is not a state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China, but

(2) not apply to any such good that is marketed or otherwise exported by a state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China.

Nondiscriminatory treatment under this section shall be in effect for the same period of time the waiver referred to in section 3 would have been effective had it taken effect.

(b) EVENTS.—An event described in this subsection means—

(1) the President fails to request the waiver referred to in section 3 and reports to the Congress that such failure was a result of the President's inability to report that the People's Republic of China has met the standards described in such section; or

(2) the President requests the waiver referred to in section 3, but a disapproval resolution described in subsection (c)(1) is enacted into law.

(c) DISAPPROVAL RESOLUTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this section, the term "resolution" means only a joint resolution of the two Houses of Congress, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That the Congress does not approve the extension of the authority contained in section 402(c) of the Trade Act of 1974 recommended by the President to the Congress on _____ with respect to the People's Republic of China because the Congress does not agree that the People's Republic of China has met the standards described in section 3 of the United States-China Act of 1993", with the blank space being filled with the appropriate date.

(2) APPLICABLE RULES.—The provisions of sections 153 (other than paragraphs (3) and (4) of subsection (b) of such section) and 402(d)(2) (as modified by this subsection) of the Trade Act of 1974 shall apply to a resolution described in paragraph (1).

(d) DETERMINATION OF DUTY STATUS OF ENTERPRISES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), the Secretary of the Treasury shall determine which persons are state-owned enterprises of the People's Republic of China for purposes of this Act and compile and maintain a list of such persons.

(2) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of making the determination required by paragraph (1), the following definitions apply:

(A)(i) The term "state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China" means a person affiliated with or wholly owned, controlled, or subsidized by the Government of the People's Republic of China and whose means of production, products, and revenues are owned or controlled by a central or provincial government authority. A person shall be considered to be state-owned if—

(I) the person's assets are primarily owned by a central or provincial government authority;

(II) a substantial proportion of the person's profits are required to be submitted to a central or provincial government authority;

(III) the person's production, purchases of inputs, and sales of output, in whole or in part, are subject to state, sectoral, or regional plans; or

(IV) a license issued by a government authority classifies the person as state-owned.

(ii) Any person that—

(I) is a qualified foreign joint venture or is licensed by a governmental authority as a collective, cooperative, or private enterprise; or

(II) is wholly owned by a foreign person,

shall not be considered to be state-owned.

(B) The term "qualified foreign joint venture" means any person—

(i) which is registered and licensed in the agency or department of the Government of the People's Republic of China concerned with foreign economic relations and trade as an equity, cooperative, contractual joint venture, or joint stock company with foreign investment;

(ii) in which the foreign investor partner and a person of the People's Republic of China share profits and losses and jointly manage the venture;

(iii) in which the foreign investor partner holds or controls at least 25 percent of the investment and the foreign investor partner is not substantially owned or controlled by a state-owned enterprise of the People's Republic of China;

(iv) in which the foreign investor partner is not a person of a country the government of which the Secretary of State

has determined under section 6(j) of the Export Administration Act of 1979 to have repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism; and

(v) which does not use state-owned enterprises of the People's Republic of China to export its good or services.

(C) The term "person" means a natural person, corporation, partnership, enterprise, instrumentality, agency, or other entity.

(D) The term "foreign investor partner" means—

(i) a natural person who is not a citizen of the People's Republic of China; and

(ii) a corporation, partnership, instrumentality, enterprise, agency, or other entity that is organized under the laws of a country other than the People's Republic of China and 50 percent or more of the outstanding capital stock or beneficial interest of such entity is owned (directly or indirectly) by natural persons who are not citizens of the People's Republic of China.

(e) PETITION FOR CHANGE IN DUTY STATUS.—Any person who believes that a person should be included on or excluded from the list compiled by the Secretary under subsection (d)(1) may request that the Secretary review the status of such person.

SEC. 6. EFFECT OF GATT ENTRY ON MFN STATUS.

Notwithstanding the entry of the People's Republic of China into the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, most-favored-nation treatment shall not be automatically conferred on the products of the People's Republic of China unless the People's Republic of China satisfies the standards described in section 3 and complies with section 402 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2432).

SEC. 7. SANCTIONS BY OTHER COUNTRIES.

If the President decides not to seek a continuation of a waiver in 1994 under section 402(d) of the Trade Act of 1974 for the People's Republic of China, the President shall, during the 30-day period beginning on the date that the President would have recommended to the Congress that such a waiver be continued, undertake efforts to ensure that members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade take similar action with respect to the People's Republic of China.

SEC. 8. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this Act:

(1) DETAINED AND IMPRISONED.—The terms "detained" and "imprisoned" include, but are not limited to, incarceration in prisons, jails, labor reform camps, labor reeducation camps, and local police detention centers.

(2) ACCEPTABLE ACCOUNTING.—The term "acceptable accounting" includes—

(A) providing information regarding the location of any person being held,

(B) the legal status of such person,

(C) if convicted, the sentence of such person, and

(D) if released, when and with what restrictions.

(3) CONVICT, FORCED, OR INDENTURED LABOR.—The term "convict, forced, or indentured labor" has the meaning given such term by section 307 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1307).

(4) VIOLATIONS OF INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNIZED STANDARDS OF HUMAN RIGHTS.—The term "violations of internationally recognized standards of human rights" includes, but is not limited to, torture, cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment, prolonged detention without charges and trial, causing the disappearance of persons by the abduction and clandestine detention of those persons, secret judicial proceedings, and other flagrant denial of the right to life, liberty, or the security of any person.

(5) MISSILE TECHNOLOGY CONTROL REGIME.—The term "Missile Technology Control Regime" means the agreement, as amended, between the United States, the United Kingdom, the Federal Republic of Germany, France, Italy, Canada, and Japan, announced on April 16, 1987, to restrict sensitive missile-relevant transfers based on an annex of missile equipment and technology.

(6) SIGNIFICANT PROGRESS.—(A) The term "significant progress" in section 3, means the implementation of measures that will meaningfully reduce, or lead to the end of, the practices identified in such section.

(B) With regard to section 3(5)(E), progress may not be determined to be "significant progress" if, after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President determines that the People's Republic of China has transferred—

(i) ballistic missiles or missile launchers for the M–9 or M–11 weapons systems to Syria, Pakistan, or Iran; or

(ii) material, equipment, or technology that would contribute significantly to the manufacture of a nuclear explosive device to another country and that the material, equipment, or technology is to be used by such country in the manufacture of such device.

THE WHITE HOUSE

SUBJECT: China: MFN Conditions and Congressional Strategy

The attached paper discusses renewal of China's MFN status in 1994. It reviews three options for MFN conditionality. USTR supports a fourth option: non-conditionality. The following paper also recommends a legislative strategy aimed at keeping Congress and the Executive branch in unison in handling the MFN issue.

Mr. Speaker/Mr. President:

Pursuant to subsection 402(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, as amended, 19 U.S.C. 2432(d)(1) ("the Act"), I hereby submit the attached report concerning the continuation of a waiver of application of subsections (a) and (b) of section 402 of the Act to the People's Republic of China. The report explains my reasons for having determined that continuation of the waiver currently in effect for the People's Republic of China will substantially promote the objectives of section 402. In addition, I am also transmitting herewith for your further information a copy of an Executive Order which enumerates the specific conditions which I have established with respect to a further extension of the waiver next year for the period beginning June 3, 1994.

William J. Clinton

REPORT TO CONGRESS CONCERNING EXTENSION OF WAIVER AUTHORITY FOR THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA

Pursuant to subsection 402(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974 (hereinafter "the Act"), having determined that further extension of the waiver authority granted by subsection 402(c) of the Act for the twelve month period beginning June 3, 1994 will substantially promote the objectives of section 402, I have today determined that continuation of the waiver currently applicable to China will also substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act.

Freedom of Emigration Determination

In FY 1992, 26,711 U.S. immigrant visas were issued in China. The U.S. numerical limitation for immigrants from China was fully met. The principal restraint on increased emigration continues to be the capacity and willingness of other nations to absorb Chinese immigrants, not Chinese policy. After considering all the relevant information, I have concluded that continuing the MFN waiver will preserve the gains already achieved on freedom of emigration and encourage further progress. There, thus, continues to be progress in freedom of emigration from China; we will continue to urge more progress.

Chinese Foreign Travel Policies

In FY 1992, 75,758 U.S. visas were issued worldwide to tourists and business visitors from China, a 35 percent increase over FY 1991 and a 76 percent increase over FY 1988. Foreign travel by Chinese-government sponsored businessmen alone increased by 48 percent in FY 1992, reflecting Deng Xiaoping's policies of accelerating China's opening to the outside world.

In FY 1992, 18,908 student visas (including exchange students) were issued, a decline from FY 1991 of 14 percent but still 8 percent greater than FY 1988. The decline was probably the result in part of a recent new directive requiring Chinese college graduates educated at state expense to work for five years before applying for privately-funded overseas study. A drop in funding from recession-strapped U.S. schools and relatives may also have played a role.

Chinese students continue to return from overseas for visits without any apparent problem. With the exception of student activist Shen Tong, we are not aware of any case in which Chinese living in the U.S. who returned to China for visits after June 1989 were prevented from leaving again. Shen was detained in September 1991 and then expelled from China two months later for trying to establish a Beijing chapter of his Fund for Chinese Democracy.

Human Rights Issues

As detailed in the Department's annual human rights report, China's human rights practices remain repressive and fall far short of internationally-accepted norms. Freedoms of speech, assembly, association, and religion are sharply restricted.

China understands that the Clinton Administration has made human rights a cornerstone of our foreign policy. We have already repeatedly raised our concerns with the Chinese authorities and we intend to press at every opportunity for observance of internationally accepted standards of human rights practice.

We have made numerous requests for information on specific human rights cases. China has provided information on some of these cases but further and more complete responses are necessary. The Chinese recently released, prior to completion of their sentences, several prominent dissidents whom we had identified on lists provided to them. These included not only Tiananmen-era demonstrators but also Democracy Wall (circa 1979) activists. We hope this is the first step toward a broad and general amnesty for all prisoners of conscience.

The Chinese promised then Secretary Baker in 1991 that all Chinese citizens, regardless of their political views, have the right to travel abroad. The only exceptions are citizens who are imprisoned, have criminal proceedings pending against them, or have received court notices concerning civil cases. A number of prominent dissidents, despite long delays, have been able to leave China. Some others have not. Those who have been able to obtain exit permits in the past year include labor leader Han Dongfang, writers Wang Ruowang and Bai Hua, scientist Wen Yuankai, journalists Wang Ruoshui, Zhang Weiguo, and Zhu Xingqing, and scholar Liu Qing. Others, like Hou Xiaotian, Yu Haocheng, and Li Honglin, continue to face difficulties in obtaining exit permission. We continue to press the Chinese on these and other cases. (Should Executive Order option 2 with general conditionality be accepted, detailed and specific benchmarks would be placed at the end of this document, per pages 6-8.)

Our goal is the release of all those held solely for the peaceful expression of their political and religious views. In November 1991, the Chinese confirmed to Secretary Baker the release of 133 prisoners on a list presented them earlier in June of that year. Since then, the Chinese have released additional political prisoners, including Han Dongfang, Wang Youcai, Luo Haixing, Xiong Yan, Yang Wei, Wang Zhixin, Zhang Weiguo, Wang Dan, Wang Xizhe, Gao Shan, Bao Zunxin, and a number of Catholic clergy and lesser known activists. We continue to press for a general amnesty and for permission for international humanitarian organizations to have access to Chinese prisons. We have also pressed for improvement in the conditions of those in Chinese prisons.

China has recently and for the first time admitted publicly that domestic human rights policies are a legitimate topic of international discussion. China has hosted human rights delegations from France, Australia, the U.K., and Germany. China sent several delegations to the U.S. and Europe, as well as Southeast Asia, to study foreign human rights practices and issued a "white paper" maintaining that basic human rights are observed in China and arguing that a country's human rights record should be viewed in light of its own history and culture. We reject this limited definition of human rights but believe it is a significant step forward that China is willing to debate human rights issues with its international critics.

The U.S. continually raises with the Chinese government the need for protection of Tibet's distinctive religion and culture. We are concerned about China's heavy-handed suppression of political demonstrations in the Tibetan Autonomous Region. Demonstrations, on a smaller scale than in past years, continue to result in instances of brutal beatings and long detentions. China has admitted some foreign observers to Tibet and to the main Lhasa prison. Diplomatic reports state that the Chinese Government is providing funds for rebuilding monasteries and that monks are now provided more leeway in their religious practices. In recent years, an increasing number of non-Tibetan Chinese have moved to the Tibetan Autonomous Region in search of economic opportunity. We will continue to monitor closely reports that the PRC is encouraging involuntary emigration by non-Tibetan Chinese to areas traditionally settled by Tibetans. So far, we have found no evidence of a Chinese government policy to this effect.

Non-Proliferation Issues

China's support for global nonproliferation initiatives has increased substantially since the beginning of 1992. In March 1992, China acceded to the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) and adhered to the Missile Technology Control Regime (MTCR) guidelines and parameters. In January 1993, Beijing became an original signatory to the Chemical Weapons Convention (CWC). China now is a party to all of the leading nonproliferation agreements. These commitments have influenced Chinese behavior: Beijing has refrained from selling certain sensitive items because of proliferation concerns, and nonproliferation as an issue appears to receive more senior consideration in Chinese policy-making circles.

At the same time, certain sensitive Chinese exports raise questions about PRC compliance with these commitments. At present, the greatest concern involves reports that China in November 1992 transferred MTCR-class M-11 missiles or related equipment to Pakistan. Such a transfer would violate China's MTCR commitment and trigger powerful sanctions under U.S. missile proliferation law. There also are reports that China is exercising inadequate control over sensitive nuclear, chemical, and missile technology exports to countries of proliferation concern. Even if these sales do not violate PRC obligations, they raise questions about China's appreciation of the importance of preventing the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their ballistic missile delivery systems.

We are also concerned that China has withdrawn from the Middle East arms control (ACME) talks. The U.S. holds that, as a permanent member of the UN Security Council, China has a special responsibility to continue in these talks.

Seeking full Chinese compliance with multilateral obligations and support for international nonproliferation goals is a top Administration priority. (Following terminology will be added to the report here if option 2 is chosen: Conditioning China's MFN status on PRC nonproliferation behavior is therefore a sensible and effective means to exercise U.S. influence. In addition to the MFN conditions, the U.S. will also not hesitate to employ the resources under U.S. law and executive determinations -- including the imposition of sanctions -- if the PRC engages in irresponsible transfers.)

Trade Issues, Including Prison Labor

Reciprocal granting of MFN tariff status was a key element cementing the normalization of Sino-U.S. relations by providing a framework for major expansion of our economic and trade relations. In 1992, bilateral trade topped $33 billion, with Chinese exports of $25.8 billion and U.S. exports of $7.5 billion. China was our fastest growing export market in Asia in 1992 as U.S. exports to China rose by 19 percent. In turn, the United States remains China's largest export market, absorbing about 30 percent of China's total exports.

China maintains multiple, overlapping barriers to imports in an effort to protect non-competitive, state-owned industries. China also has recognized that its development goals cannot be achieved without gradually reducing protection and opening its domestic market to the stimulus for change brought by import competition.

Our market access agreement, signed October 10, 1992, if implemented by the PRC, will increase opportunities for U.S. exports by phasing-out 70 to 80 percent of China's non-tariff trade barriers over the next four years. The regular consultation process required by this agreement allows us to monitor implementation and take appropriate action should China violate its commitments. Progress has been made in opening the market to U.S. products but we still need to resolve several issues regarding implementation.

A large part of our skyrocketing bilateral trade deficit with China (from $2.8 billion in 1987 to $18.3 billion in 1992) in part results from the shifting of labor-intensive assembly operations out of other Asian trading partners to China. Products we once imported from Taiwan and Hong Kong are now assembled in and exported from China. Our bilateral deficit with China is largely counterbalanced by reduced bilateral deficits with these other trading partners.

Recently, the Chinese have indicated an interest in doing more business with U.S. companies. As U.S. corporate executives are arriving in droves to explore new commercial opportunities in Beijing, at least eight Chinese delegations have been or will soon be dispatched to the U.S. with orders to "buy American". These missions have the potential to generate billions of dollars of exports of aircraft, autos, satellites, oil drilling equipment, aviation electronics, wheat, fertilizer, and other U.S. products.

Still, the large and growing U.S.-China trade deficit is unacceptable. The over $40 billion trade surplus China has accumulated with the United States since June 1989 has very destructive to American industries, particularly the textile and footwear sectors, resulting in the loss of American jobs. It is therefore essential that the PRC implement the market access agreement we have negotiated, which would produce a much greater equilibrium and fairness in Sino-American trade.

Prison Labor

China officially banned the export of products produced by prison labor in October 1991. In August 1992, we signed a Memorandum of Understanding under which the Chinese agreed to investigate cases we presented and to allow U.S. officials access to suspect facilities in China.

The U.S. has presented the Chinese government information on 16 cases of alleged use of prison labor. The Chinese have reported back on all 16 cases, admitting that in four cases they were forced to correct the fact that prisoners were being used to produce goods exports in violation of Chinese law. U.S. officials have visited three prisons and have standing requests to visit five others, including a revisit to one facility.

In the past two years, U.S. Customs has aggressively expanded its enforcement of U.S. laws banning the import of prison labor products. Customs has issued over twenty orders banning suspected Chinese goods from entering the U.S., achieved one court conviction of a U.S. company for importing prison made machine tools and seized suspected equipment in another case. Since the Prison Labor Memorandum of Understanding was signed last August, there has been no indication that goods allegedly produced by prison labor have entered the U.S. Talks with China will continue on the full enforcement of the provisions of the prison labor MOU.

Conditions for Renewal in 1994

China has made progress in recent years in the areas of human rights, nonproliferation, and trade. Nevertheless, I believe more progress is necessary and possible in each of these three areas. In considering the optimal method of encouraging further progress on these issues, I have decided to issue the attached Executive Order which outlines the areas in which China, in order to receive positive consideration for a renewal of MFN in 1994, will have to make additional significant progress in the next twelve months.

(Following is additional language to be used if option 2 for the Executive Order -- general conditions -- is selected.)

In considering whether China has done this, specific benchmarks will include:

Human Rights

-- Respecting the fundamental human rights recognized in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

-- Complying with China's commitment to allow its citizens, regardless of their political views, freedom to emigrate and travel abroad (excepting those who are imprisoned, have criminal proceedings pending against them, or have received court notices concerning civil cases).

-- Providing an acceptable accounting for and release of Chinese citizens imprisoned or detained for the peaceful expression of their political views, including Democracy Wall and Tiananmen activists.

-- Ceasing religious persecution, particularly by releasing leaders and members of religious groups detained or imprisoned for expression of their religious beliefs.

-- Taking effective actions to ensure that prisoners are not being mistreated and are receiving necessary medical treatment, such as by granting access to Chinese prisons by international humanitarian organizations.

-- Seeking to resume dialogue with the Dalai Lama or his representatives, and taking measures to protect Tibet's distinctive religious and cultural heritage.

-- Ceasing the jamming of Voice of America broadcasts.

Trade

-- Complying with the terms of China's 1992 bilateral agreement with the U.S. on prison labor.

-- Fulfilling China's commitments in the 1992 bilateral agreement with the U.S. on market access.

-- Implementing China's commitments in the 1992 bilateral agreement with the U.S. on intellectual property rights.

Nonproliferation

-- Limiting the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery, including by implementation of its international commitments to abide by Missile Technology Control Regime guidelines and parameters, the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty, the Chemical Weapons Convention, and the Biological Weapons Convention.

- Taking additional measures to enhance international efforts to combat proliferation, such as accepting controls adopted by the Nuclear Suppliers Group and the Australia Group and participating in international discussions in the area of non-proliferation.

In addition to issuing this executive order, the Administration will use tools under existing legislation and executive determinations to encourage further progress in these areas. These tools include section 301 of the 1974 Trade Act to ensure improved market access and protection of intellectual property rights. In the non-proliferation area, various provisions of U.S. law contain strong measures against irresponsible transfers of equipment and technologies related to weapons of mass destruction and their delivery systems.

(Following is additional language to be used if option 3 for the Executive Order -- human rights conditions only -- is selected.)

The attached Executive Order establishes specific conditions for China in the key area of human rights. I wish to make clear my continuing and strong determination to pursue objectives in the areas of nonproliferation and trade, utilizing other instruments available, including appropriate legislation and executive determinations. For example, various provisions of U.S. law contain strong measures against irresponsible proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and nuclear weapons technology. These include missile proliferation sanctions under the National Defense Authorization Act. Using these tools as necessary, we will continue to press China to implement its commitments to abide by international standards and agreements in the non-proliferation area.

In the area of trade, the Clinton Administration will continue to press for full and faithful implementation of bilateral agreements with China on market access, intellectual property rights, and prison labor. Section 301 of the 1974 Trade Act is a powerful instrument to ensure our interests are protected and advanced in the areas of market access and intellectual property rights. The Administration also will also continue to implement vigorously the provisions of the Tariff Act of 1930 to prevent importation of goods made by forced labor.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE SECRETARY OF STATE

SUBJECT: Determination Under Subsection 402(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, as amended -- Continuation of Waiver Authority

Pursuant to the authority vested in me under the Trade Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-618), (88 Stat. 1978), (hereinafter "the Act"), I determine, pursuant to subsection 402(d)(1) of the Act, 19 U.S.C. 2432(d)(1), that the further extension of the waiver authority granted by subsection 402(c) of the Act will substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act. I further determine that the continuation of the waiver applicable to the People's Republic of China will substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act.

This determination shall be published in the Federal Register.

William Clinton

GEORGE J. MITCHELL
MAINE

United States Senate
Office of the Majority Leader
Washington, DC 20510-7010

May 14, 1993

The Honorable Winston Lord
Assistant Secretary For East Asian & Pacific Affairs
United States Department of State
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Ambassador:

Thank you for the opportunity to meet to express the concerns of Congress regarding United States-China policy and most-favored-nation (MFN) status for China. We look forward to hearing about your trip to China.

As we discussed, there are three major areas of Congressional concern relating to China and MFN: human rights, weapons-nuclear technology proliferation, and unfair trade practices. If part of our goal is to make legislation unnecessary, it is necessary that an executive order substantively address each of these areas.

In regard to human rights, which as you know is the major driving force behind our legislative efforts, it is our considered opinion that the following must be included in a Presidential Executive Order accompanying a request for a waiver of Jackson-Vanik requirements regarding renewal of MFN status for China:

* Release and acceptable accounting of those persons detained, accused, or sentenced because of the nonviolent expression of their political beliefs

* adherence to the 1948 Universal Declaration of Human Rights in China and Tibet, which includes freedom of emigration and return, freedom of thought, conscience and religion, freedom of opinion and expression, and freedom of peaceful assembly and association

* compliance with the 1992 bilateral Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) regarding the export to the United States of products manufactured by forced labor. (However, it would be more acceptable to renegotiate the agreement to more accurately reflect continuing Congressional concerns)

* providing access by international human rights and humanitarian groups to prisoners, trials and places of detention

* ceasing the jamming of Voice of America broadcasts

The Dalai Lama's recent visit to Washington has significantly heightened Congressional interest regarding the survival of the Tibetan people, we hope that the policy toward China requires:

* significant progress in ceasing to threaten the survival of the Tibetan culture

The President's Executive Order should appropriately address the need for visible Chinese progress in ceasing unfair and discriminatory trade practices against American businesses; as well as demand that they honor their commitments to adhere to the controls, guidelines and parameters of the Missile Technology Control Regime, the Nuclear Suppliers Group and the Australian Group on Chemical & Biological Arms. However, we understand that the President has available options already in law, which provide meaningful ways to address these important issues within the framework of an executive order.

Much has been reported recently about the impact of possible loss of jobs from conditioning MFN for China. More emphasis should be placed on the loss of American jobs resulting from unfair Chinese trade practices and the trade deficit. For example, it should be remembered that the over $40 billion trade deficit China has accumulated with the United States since the Tiananmen Square massacre, has been extremely destructive to American industries particularly the textile and footwear industries.

It is our belief that it is important to the future of the United States - China relationship for the Administration and the Congress to send a unified message to the Chinese government. We look forward to continuing to work with you on developing such a message, which will assist in establishing a more equitable bilateral relationship with China. We wish to again reiterate our desire to meet with the President to help formulate a unified China policy which reflects our fundamental values and protects our national interests.

Sincerely,

Nancy Pelosi

George J. Mitchell

Statutory Resources

By mandating restrictions on U.S.-PRC economic and trade relations and sanctions for certain behavior, U.S. law offers a variety of means to pressure China for progress and to respond in a targeted manner to unacceptable Chinese actions.

- o Trade - Section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 identifies steps to secure adequate market access and intellectual property protection for U.S. exports. This was the USG's key source of leverage in securing Chinese agreement to the market access and IPR MOUs. We could invoke 301, if the Chinese fail to implement these agreements or fail to open their market to U.S. service industries.

- o Proliferation Law - The U.S. has already sanctioned China once for improper transfers to Pakistan of missile-related technology; if it determines that China is engaged in further transfers, the USG will have to take the much broader action required by the Helms Amendment. Other provisions of U.S. law cover other aspects of proliferation (e.g., of nuclear weapons, CBW, destabilizing arms to Iran and Iraq, etc.).

- o Nuclear Cooperation - Legal restrictions based on nuclear nonproliferation and human rights concerns now prevent significant U.S. nuclear commerce with China. (Nuclear power is an area of major interest to U.S. nuclear vendors and service companies.)

- o Exchange Rates - Under section 3004 of the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988, Treasury has determined that China is manipulating its exchange rate to prevent balance of payments adjustment and gain unfair competitive advantage in international trade. Treasury must negotiate with the Chinese to ensure that they take action to address this problem.

- o International Financial Institutions - Section 701(a) of the IFI Act requires the U.S. to oppose proposals for financing projects in countries with a pattern of gross violation of human rights, unless they are directed to basic human needs. Since Tiananmen, the U.S. has opposed by abstention votes on non-basic human needs projects for China.

- o Narcotics Certification - The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, requires the President to certify that major drug producing or transit countries, including China, have cooperated fully with the U.S. or taken adequate drug control steps of their own. Decertification would require the U.S. to withhold most forms of assistance and to oppose any loans from multilateral development banks.

Tiananmen Sanctions

The U.S. is the only country that maintains significant Tiananmen-related sanctions against China. Legally-mandated sanctions include a ban on the export of U.S. Munitions List goods and services to China and nuclear exchanges; an embargo on licenses for civilian exports to military and police end-users; and restrictions on IFI lending. Other sanctions carried out by Executive Order and policy include opposition to China-specific proposals for easing COCOM controls; a suspension in Trade Development Administration (TDA) and Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) activities; and a limitation on high-level exchanges.

The President can lift most of these sanctions on a case-by-case basis in the national interest, or more broadly if he certifies human rights improvements. Therefore, the sanctions can provide both positive and negative leverage.

Nearly four years after Tiananmen, these sanctions remain a statement of U.S. concern over PRC human rights conditions. They also possess significant tactical value: the U.S. can selectively relax them as incentives for improved Chinese behavior. The IWG paper which the Deputies Committee discussed April 27, for instance, proposes limited waivers for EXIMBANK lending, satellite exports, and TDA activities as a means to encourage Chinese progress. Because many of the sanctions undercut U.S. trade and other interests, relaxation can be beneficial to the U.S. As the lifting of most of the sanctions depends on human rights improvements, the Executive Branch for now is restricted to utilizing those sanctions which can be relaxed on an ad hoc basis through Presidential waiver.

TAB D

Statutory Resources

By mandating restrictions on U.S.-PRC economic and trade relations and sanctions for certain behavior, U.S. law offers a variety of means to pressure China for progress and to respond in a targeted manner to unacceptable Chinese actions.

- o Trade - Section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 identifies steps to secure adequate market access and intellectual property protection for U.S. exports. This was the USG's key source of leverage in securing Chinese agreement to the market access and IPR MOUs. We could invoke 301, if the Chinese fail to implement these agreements or fail to open their market to U.S. service industries.

- o Proliferation Law - The U.S. has already sanctioned China once for improper transfers to Pakistan of missile-related technology; if it determines that China is engaged in further transfers, the USG will have to take the much broader action required by the Helms Amendment. Other provisions of U.S. law cover other aspects of proliferation (e.g., of nuclear weapons, CBW, destabilizing arms to Iran and Iraq, etc.).

- o Nuclear Cooperation - Legal restrictions based on nuclear nonproliferation and human rights concerns now prevent significant U.S. nuclear commerce with China. (Nuclear power is an area of major interest to U.S. nuclear vendors and service companies.)

- o Exchange Rates - Under section 3004 of the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988, Treasury has determined that China is manipulating its exchange rate to prevent balance of payments adjustment and gain unfair competitive advantage in international trade. Treasury must negotiate with the Chinese to ensure that they take action to address this problem.

- o International Financial Institutions - Section 701(a) of the IFI Act requires the U.S. to oppose proposals for financing projects in countries with a pattern of gross violation of human rights, unless they are directed to basic human needs. Since Tiananmen, the U.S. has opposed by abstention votes on non-basic human needs projects for China.

- o Narcotics Certification - The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, requires the President to certify that major drug producing or transit countries, including China, have cooperated fully with the U.S. or taken adequate drug control steps of their own. Decertification would require the U.S. to withhold most forms of assistance and to oppose any loans from multilateral development banks.

Tiananmen Sanctions

The U.S. is the only country that maintains significant Tiananmen-related sanctions against China. Legally-mandated sanctions include a ban on the export of U.S. Munitions List goods and services to China and nuclear exchanges; an embargo on licenses for civilian exports to military and police end-users; and restrictions on IFI lending. Other sanctions carried out by Executive Order and policy include opposition to China-specific proposals for easing COCOM controls; a suspension in Trade Development Administration (TDA) and Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) activities; and a limitation on high-level exchanges.

The President can lift most of these sanctions on a case-by-case basis in the national interest, or more broadly if he certifies human rights improvements. Therefore, the sanctions can provide both positive and negative leverage.

Nearly four years after Tiananmen, these sanctions remain a statement of U.S. concern over PRC human rights conditions. They also possess significant tactical value: the U.S. can selectively relax them as incentives for improved Chinese behavior. The IWG paper which the Deputies Committee discussed April 27, for instance, proposes limited waivers for EXIMBANK lending, satellite exports, and TDA activities as a means to encourage Chinese progress. Because many of the sanctions undercut U.S. trade and other interests, relaxation can be beneficial to the U.S. As the lifting of most of the sanctions depends on human rights improvements, the Executive Branch for now is restricted to utilizing those sanctions which can be relaxed on an ad hoc basis through Presidential waiver.

SUMMARY OF THE UNITED STATES-CHINA ACT OF 1993

Introduced by Senator Mitchell and Representative Pelosi

This bill would renew Most Favored Nation (MFN) treatment for China on the condition that China:

* Provides an acceptable accounting and release of people in China and Tibet detained, accused, or sentenced as a result of the nonviolent expression of their political beliefs.

* Takes appropriate actions to adhere to the provisions of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and allows unrestricted emigration of citizens wanting to leave for political or religious reasons.

* Takes action to prevent export of prison-made goods and

* Makes overall significant progress in:
  * ceasing religious persecution in China and Tibet,
  * ceasing to threaten the survival of the Tibetan culture,
  * ceasing unfair trade practices,
  * adhering to guidelines of the MTCR and Nuclear Suppliers Group. If China transfers missiles or launchers for the M-9 or M-11 to Syria, Pakistan or Iran, or material or technology contributing to produce a nuclear explosive device, the President may not indicate significant progress has been made.
  * adhering to the Joint Declaration on Hong Kong,
  * ceasing jamming of VOA broadcasts,
  * allowing human rights monitors access to trials and places of detention,
  * cooperating in an acceptable accounting of U.S. servicemen who disappeared or are missing as a result of the wars in Korea or Vietnam.

The Chinese government's failure to meet the conditions would result in revocation of MFN for all articles produced, manufactured, marketed or otherwise exported by a Chinese state-owned enterprise.

Articles produced by private enterprises and foreign joint ventures would continue to receive MFN treatment.

Non-state sector persons or entities believing they have been wrongly designated as state-owned would be able to request a review by the Treasury Department. Conversely, individuals knowing of state-owned enterprises not so designated by Treasury would be able to request review to have their designation changed.

April 22, 1993

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY OF THE UNITED STATES CHINA ACT OF 1993 AS INTRODUCED BY SENATE MAJORITY LEADER GEORGE J. MITCHELL

This bill follows the framework of H.R. 5318, last year's bill which passed both Houses of Congress and was vetoed by President Bush.

The bill grants renewal of MFN trade status to China from July 3, 1993 until July 3, 1994. In order to renew MFN after July 1994, the President would have to indicate that China had:

(1) taken appropriate actions to adhere to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in China and Tibet.

(2) allowed unrestricted emigration of political and religious prisoners.

(3) provided an acceptable accounting and release of Chinese citizens detained, accused, or sentenced as a result of the nonviolent expression of their political beliefs.

(4) taken effective, verifiable action to prevent export of products to the U.S. manufactured by forced labor and complied with the provisions of last year's bilateral Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) which permits unrestricted access by U.S. Customs officials to places where such goods are produced.

Additionally, the President would need to indicate that the Chinese Government had made overall significant progress in:

* ceasing religious persecution in China and Tibet.

* ceasing financial and other incentives to encourage non-Tibetans to relocate in Tibet.

* ceasing unfair and discriminatory trade practices against American businesses and in providing U.S. exporters fair access to Chinese markets.

* adhering to the guidelines and parameters of the MTCR, NPT, and Australian Group on chemical and biological arms.

* adhering to the Joint declaration on Hong Kong

* cooperating with U.S. efforts to account for POW/MIA's from the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

* ceasing jamming of VOA broadcasts.

* allowing international human rights monitors access to trials and places of detention.

If the President makes a positive indication regarding these conditions in his June 3, 1994 request for extension of MFN trade status for the People's Republic of China, Congress would agree to renewal for another year. If he could not make positive indications of improvement, then favorable MFN tariffs would cease for products exported by state-owned enterprises, but would continue for products exported by private and joint venture enterprises.

* The Secretary of the Treasury determines the identity of state-owned enterprises.

The only caveat on the President's freedom of action in making an indication of positive progress in regard to conditions described in the section on "overall significant progress" is that he may not make a positive indication if the Chinese have transferred ballistic missiles or missile launchers for the M-9 or M-11 missiles to Syria, Iran, or Pakistan; or transferred equipment or technology to another country which could be used to manufacture a nuclear explosive device.

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE
THE WHITE HOUSE

SUBJECT: China: MFN Conditions and Congressional Strategy

The attached paper discusses renewal of China's MFN status in 1994. It reviews three options for MFN conditionality. USTR supports a fourth option: non-conditionality. The following paper also recommends a legislative strategy aimed at keeping Congress and the Executive branch in unison in handling the MFN issue.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE SECRETARY OF STATE

SUBJECT: Determination Under Subsection 402(d)(1) of the Trade Act of 1974, as amended -- Continuation of Waiver Authority

Pursuant to the authority vested in me under the Trade Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-618), (88 Stat. 1978), (hereinafter "the Act"), I determine, pursuant to subsection 402(d)(1) of the Act, 19 U.S.C. 2432(d)(1), that the further extension of the waiver authority granted by subsection 402(c) of the Act will substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act. I further determine that the continuation of the waiver applicable to the People's Republic of China will substantially promote the objectives of section 402 of the Act.

This determination shall be published in the Federal Register.

GEORGE J. MITCHELL

United States Senate

May 14, 1993

The Honorable Winston Lord
Assistant Secretary For East Asian & Pacific Affairs
United States Department of State
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Ambassador:

Thank you for the opportunity to meet to express the concerns of Congress regarding United States-China policy and most-favored-nation (MFN) status for China. We look forward to hearing about your trip to China.

As we discussed, there are three major areas of Congressional concern relating to China and MFN: human rights, weapons-nuclear technology proliferation, and unfair trade practices. If part of our goal is to make legislation unnecessary, it is necessary that an executive order substantively address each of these areas.

In regard to human rights, which as you know is the major driving force behind our legislative efforts, it is our considered opinion that the following must be included in a Presidential Executive Order accompanying a request for a waiver of Jackson-Vanik requirements regarding renewal of MFN status for China:

* Release and acceptable accounting of those persons detained, accused, or sentenced because of the nonviolent expression of their political beliefs

* adherence to the 1948 Universal Declaration of Human Rights in China and Tibet, which includes freedom of emigration and return, freedom of thought, conscience and religion, freedom of opinion and expression, and freedom of peaceful assembly and association

* compliance with the 1992 bilateral Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) regarding the export to the United States of products manufactured by forced labor. (However, it would be more acceptable to renegotiate the agreement to more accurately reflect continuing Congressional concerns)

* providing access by international human rights and humanitarian groups to prisoners, trials and places of detention

* ceasing the jamming of Voice of America broadcasts

The Dalai Lama's recent visit to Washington has significantly heightened Congressional interest regarding the survival of the Tibetan people, we hope that the policy toward China requires:

* significant progress in ceasing to threaten the survival of the Tibetan culture

The President's Executive Order should appropriately address the need for visible Chinese progress in ceasing unfair and discriminatory trade practices against American businesses; as well as demand that they honor their commitments to adhere to the controls, guidelines and parameters of the Missile Technology Control Regime, the Nuclear Suppliers Group and the Australian Group on Chemical & Biological Arms. However, we understand that the President has available options already in law, which provide meaningful ways to address these important issues within the framework of an executive order.

Much has been reported recently about the impact of possible loss of jobs from conditioning MFN for China. More emphasis should be placed on the loss of American jobs resulting from unfair Chinese trade practices and the trade deficit. For example, it should be remembered that the over $40 billion trade deficit China has accumulated with the United States since the Tiananmen Square massacre, has been extremely destructive to American industries particularly the textile and footwear industries.

It is our belief that it is important to the future of the United States - China relationship for the Administration and the Congress to send a unified message to the Chinese government. We look forward to continuing to work with you on developing such a message, which will assist in establishing a more equitable bilateral relationship with China. We wish to again reiterate our desire to meet with the President to help formulate a unified China policy which reflects our fundamental values and protects our national interests.

Sincerely,

Nancy Pelosi

George J. Mitchell

By mandating restrictions on U.S.-PRC economic and trade relations and sanctions for certain behavior, U.S. law offers a variety of means to pressure China for progress and to respond in a targeted manner to unacceptable Chinese actions.

- o Trade - Section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 identifies steps to secure adequate market access and intellectual property protection for U.S. exports. This was the USG's key source of leverage in securing Chinese agreement to the market access and IPR MOUs. We could invoke 301, if the Chinese fail to implement these agreements or fail to open their market to U.S. service industries.

- o Proliferation Law - The U.S. has already sanctioned China once for improper transfers to Pakistan of missile-related technology; if it determines that China is engaged in further transfers, the USG will have to take the much broader action required by the Helms Amendment. Other provisions of U.S. law cover other aspects of proliferation (e.g., of nuclear weapons, CBW, destabilizing arms to Iran and Iraq, etc.).

- o Nuclear Cooperation - Legal restrictions based on nuclear nonproliferation and human rights concerns now prevent significant U.S. nuclear commerce with China. (Nuclear power is an area of major interest to U.S. nuclear vendors and service companies.)

- o Exchange Rates - Under section 3004 of the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988, Treasury has determined that China is manipulating its exchange rate to prevent balance of payments adjustment and gain unfair competitive advantage in international trade. Treasury must negotiate with the Chinese to ensure that they take action to address this problem.

- o International Financial Institutions - Section 701(a) of the IFI Act requires the U.S. to oppose proposals for financing projects in countries with a pattern of gross violation of human rights, unless they are directed to basic human needs. Since Tiananmen, the U.S. has opposed by abstention votes on non-basic human needs projects for China.

- o Narcotics Certification - The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, requires the President to certify that major drug producing or transit countries, including China, have cooperated fully with the U.S. or taken adequate drug control steps of their own. Decertification would require the U.S. to withhold most forms of assistance and to oppose any loans from multilateral development banks.

Tiananmen Sanctions

The U.S. is the only country that maintains significant Tiananmen-related sanctions against China. Legally-mandated sanctions include a ban on the export of U.S. Munitions List goods and services to China and nuclear exchanges; an embargo on licenses for civilian exports to military and police end-users; and restrictions on IFI lending. Other sanctions carried out by Executive Order and policy include opposition to China-specific proposals for easing COCOM controls; a suspension in Trade Development Administration (TDA) and Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) activities; and a limitation on high-level exchanges.

The President can lift most of these sanctions on a case-by-case basis in the national interest, or more broadly if he certifies human rights improvements. Therefore, the sanctions can provide both positive and negative leverage.

Nearly four years after Tiananmen, these sanctions remain a statement of U.S. concern over PRC human rights conditions. They also possess significant tactical value: the U.S. can selectively relax them as incentives for improved Chinese behavior. The IWG paper which the Deputies Committee discussed April 27, for instance, proposes limited waivers for EXIMBANK lending, satellite exports, and TDA activities as a means to encourage Chinese progress. Because many of the sanctions undercut U.S. trade and other interests, relaxation can be beneficial to the U.S. As the lifting of most of the sanctions depends on human rights improvements, the Executive Branch for now is restricted to utilizing those sanctions which can be relaxed on an ad hoc basis through Presidential waiver.

SUBJECT: China Strategy Paper

The State Department has drafted a strategy for achieving China's compliance with the President's MFN executive order of May 28. An executive summary and complete strategy paper are at Tab B. For your convenience, we have highlighted core points of this strategy at Tab A.

The strategy reflects the views of our July 21 Deputies Committee meeting on next steps with China. However, we would like to give Deputies or Principals an opportunity to comment on the final paper emanating from this meeting before we send it forward for the President's approval.

Concurrences by: Bob Fauver, Dan Poneman, Bob Bell

RECOMMENDATION

(1) That we hold a Deputies or Principals Committee meeting to approve the strategy paper at Tab B.

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE
THE WHITE HOUSE

SUBJECT: China Policy Paper

A Deputies Committee meeting on China strategy held July 21 reviewed the Department of State's paper (previously concurred in by the Interagency Working Group on East Asia) entitled "China Strategy for 1993-1994: Implementing the President's MFN Executive Order." We subsequently revised the paper to incorporate suggestions made at the Deputies Committee meeting.

The attached paper reflects those changes, and adds an Executive Summary.

MEMORANDUM FOR ANDREW D. SENS
EXECUTIVE SECRETARY
NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL

SUBJECT: Report to the Deputies Committee on Upcoming High-Visibility Visits to and from China

On February 6 the Deputies Committee agreed that the State Department should prepare a memorandum discussing the advantages and disadvantages, as well as timing, of potential high-visibility visits to and from China over the next six months. We attach an analysis of such high-profile and political sensitive visits and a thumbnail sketch of other important visits under consideration (or already approved.)

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE
THE WHITE HOUSE

SUBJECT: Results of the Meeting of the Interagency Working Group on China, January 10, 1995

Assistant Secretary Winston Lord chaired a meeting of the China Interagency Working Group (IWG) on Tuesday, January 10. Attached is a summary report of that meeting. Also included in the report is a list of still pending issues which we believe might provide an appropriate agenda for a Deputies Committee meeting. The IWG proposed that this meeting be held during the week of January 16.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

Through: The Honorable Anthony Lake, National Security Advisor

Regarding the potential Chinese nuclear weapon test

Urgent action is needed to reinforce your commitment to the moratorium on nuclear weapons testing in light of the evidence that China is preparing to test on October 5. Public leadership underlining the importance of the testing moratorium to achieving progress in the non-proliferation arena would stem any further erosion in adherence to the moratorium and might give the Chinese reason to rethink their testing plans.

Even if action by our government does not deter China from performing a nuclear test, strong international leadership on this issue will still serve us well in negotiations to achieve your goals of an indefinite extension of the Non-Proliferation Treaty and early agreement to a Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty. As you demonstrated on Monday, during this historic period of international realignment, the United States has the opportunity to lead the world to a more secure future.

Threatened renewal of nuclear testing by the United States in response to a Chinese test would be unlikely to have any affect on their plans. It would require six to nine months of advance work, both technical and procedural, before we could perform such a test or tests. Moreover, if we resume testing, it would likely have a domino effect, leading to testing by the other three primary nuclear weapons states. Pressure on Russian President Yeltsin to resume testing at this time would complicate his political situation at a sensitive moment.

Over the past few months, our nuclear weapons laboratories have become convinced that the stockpile stewardship program currently under development is the most effective way of ensuring the safety, reliability and performance of our remaining nuclear weapons consistent with your goal of achieving a Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty. Preparing for nuclear testing now would come at the expense of delaying progress on the stewardship program designed to meet the challenge of maintaining our nuclear deterrent in a comprehensive test ban regime.

I remain convinced that your conclusion, announced in the July 3 radio address extending the nuclear testing moratorium, remains valid: the price we would pay for conducting additional nuclear tests outweighs the risks of continuing the moratorium.

My recommendations are as follows:

- Make a high-profile public statement on the importance of maintaining the nuclear testing moratorium, possibly tied to the signing of the Presidential Decision Directive concerning non-proliferation. It is important that such a statement occur prior to final backfilling of the Chinese test device which is expected to occur within a week.

- Make direct contact with the Chinese leadership to express your personal concern about the implications of continued testing on our shared non-proliferation goals.

- Privately and personally encourage other foreign leaders, including the Presidents of Russia and France, the Prime Minister of Great Britain, to directly contact the Chinese leadership expressing support for the continuation of the testing moratorium.

RADIO ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT

The Roosevelt Room

THE PRESIDENT: Good morning. Two hundred and seventeen years ago, our Founding Fathers declared our independence to secure the liberty and prosperity we celebrate every July 4th. Although our times and challenges are very different from those our Founders faced, these issues are still the enduring concerns of the American people today.

In a few days, I will represent the United States in Japan at the annual meeting of the major industrialized nations of the world to work for new global policies that create more American jobs, open markets for our products, and strengthen our security as we embrace the challenges of the this new world.

America commands respect on the world stage because we have taken aggressive steps to put our own economic house in order at a time when all the advanced nations are having real troubles with the economy.

Here in Washington the House and Senate have both passed versions of my economic plan to promote growth and to reduce the deficit by $500 billion. The plan also has incentives for people to invest more in our economy to create jobs, and provides money for education and training in new technologies, and help the defense workers who have been laid off by defense cuts.

We've made a good beginning now. As this plan has progressed through the Congress, interest rates have continued to come down, mortgage rates are now below 7.5 percent, and nearly 1 million new jobs have been added to the economy since January, about the same number as came in in the previous three years.

Change is hard, though. Many people are still skeptical. Many of the opponents of my plan chant "tax and spend." But the truth is, it's not an old tax-and-spend plan. And the people who are attacking it are those who taxed the middle class, cut taxes on the wealthy, borrowed and spent our economy into a $4 trillion debt in the last 12 years.

Our plan is fair. It has $250 billion in spending cuts, and asks the upper 6 percent of Americans to pay 75 percent of the new taxes. It moves the working poor out of poverty. It enables me to attend this meeting of the other advanced nations with a record of real results that will encourage our competitors to take steps to revive their economies as well.

And that's important for every American, because we can't grow the United States economy as we ought to until we have cooperation from other nations and they're growing. Why? Because since 1987, two-thirds of our new jobs have come from exports. We live in a global economy. We have to compete all over the world. And we have to sell our products and services everywhere.

When we stepped up to the plate here at home to get our own house in order, it enabled us to make the global economy work for the people of the United States if others will do their part. And that's what we're working on now.

As I said, all the nations I'll be meeting with are facing difficult times. Their economies are even slower than ours. But we know that together we can grow. We can have a stronger economy and we can have more security.

I'd like to talk to you about that for a few minutes. Because of the vigilance, the democratic values, the military strength of the United States and our allies, we won the Cold War. Our inheritance, our victory is a new chance to rebuild our economies and solve our problems in each of our countries while we reduce military spending. But our profound responsibility remains to redefine what it means to preserve security in this post-Cold War era. We must be strong. We must be resolute. And we must be safe.

This great task has certainly changed with the passage of the Cold War. The technologies of mass destruction in the hands of Russia and the United States are being reduced. But technologies of mass destruction that just a few years ago were possessed only by a handful of nations, and still are possessed only by a few, are becoming more widely available. It is now theoretically possible for many countries to build missiles, to have nuclear weapons and other weapons of mass destruction. This is a new and different challenge that requires new approaches and new thinking.

During my campaign for President, I promised a wholehearted commitment to achieving a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty. A test ban can strengthen our efforts worldwide to halt the spread of nuclear technology in weapons. Last year, the Congress directed that a test ban be negotiated by 1996. And it established an interim moratorium on nuclear testing while we reviewed our requirements for further tests. That moratorium on testing expires soon.

Congress said that after the moratorium expires, but before a test ban was achieved, the United States could carry out up to 15 nuclear tests to ensure the safety and reliability of our weapons. After a thorough review, my administration has determined that the nuclear weapons in the United States arsenal are safe and reliable.

Additional nuclear tests could help us prepare for a test ban and provide for some additional improvements in safety and reliability. However, the price we would pay in conducting those tests now by undercutting our own nonproliferation goals and ensuring that other nations would resume testing outweighs these benefits.

I have, therefore, decided to extend the current moratorium on United States nuclear testing at least through September of next year, as long as no other nation tests.

And I call on the other nuclear powers to do the same. If these nations will join us in observing this moratorium, we will be in the strongest possible position to negotiate a comprehensive test ban and to discourage other nations from developing their own nuclear arsenals.

If, however, this moratorium is broken by another nation, I will direct the Department of Energy to prepare to conduct additional tests while seeking approval to do so from Congress. I therefore expect the Department to maintain a capability to resume testing.

To assure that our nuclear deterrent remains unquestioned under a test ban, we will explore other means of maintaining our confidence in the safety, the reliability and the performance of our own weapons. We will also refocus much of the talent and resources of our nation's nuclear labs on new technologie to curb the spread of nuclear weapons and verify arms control treaties.

Beyond these significant actions, I am also taking steps to revitalize the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, so that it ca play an active role in meeting the arms control and nonproliferation challenges of this new era. I am committed to protecting our people, deterring aggression and combatting terrorism. The work of combatting proliferation of weapons of mass destruction is difficult and unending, but it is an essential part of this task. It must be done.

Americans have earned the right on this Fourth of July weekend to enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness in the new era America did so much to create. This moment of opportunity is the reward for our vigilance and sacrifice during the long years of the Cold War.

We now have the freedom to concern ourselves, not merely with survival but with prosperity for ourselves and our children. We have the strength and the stature to lead the world into a future of greater security and global growth.

Because of the changes we have made, America can now fulfill the dreams and aspirations of the patriots who made our freedom possible more than 200 years ago. We can do them no greater honor than to make the most of what these times have to offer. Working together, we will.

Have a happy and safe holiday, and thanks for listening.

END

Additional Tasking

- I have one additional tasking.
- During Presidential Review 19, we identified three reliability tests as part of a 9-test plan.
- E.O. 13526, 6.2(a)
- I'd like DOE and DOD to get together and (a) confirm that this is the one test they would do, and (b) provide a one-page "technical" fact sheet, identifying the purpose of the test, what data would be gained, how much it would cost and when it could be conducted.

SUBJECT: DoE Letter (more)

I am now advised that Mrs. O'Leary is intent on sending the letter. She is coming to the White House for the 6:00 reception the President is hosting for the Congressional Black Caucus. If you attend she may seek you out. I have strongly recommended to DoE that if Mrs. O'Leary will not withhold the letter, DoE should strictly restrict distribution internal to DoE and strictly restrict knowledge of the letter within the Agency, to the extent that is still possible. The letter will be classified Secret, though that is of course no guarantee it will not leak.

Bilateral Issues

301 market access investigation	Background: The US delegation continued to press Beijing to live up to its memorandum of understanding commitments on increases in quota limits during 15 September meetings in Beijing. Looking Ahead: Many other of China's market access commitments have a 31 December deadline.
Market access in services	Background: The United States has begun meeting with the Chinese to urge opening of the service sector.
Textile transshipments	Background: Beijing has enacted new legislation, but reporting indicates transshipments continue. The Sino-US bilateral textile agreement expires in December and Beijing is responding negatively to US demands to include anti-transshipment language in a new accord. Beijing is also threatening undefined retaliation if Washington reduces China's textile quota to cover previous years' overshipments.
Exchange rate manipulation	Background: The US Department of the Treasury announced in May that China continues to manipulate its exchange rate. Bilateral and multilateral consultations on this issue are continuing during China's GATT accession process. Looking Ahead: The US Treasury Department is in the process of its latest review of China's exchange rate regime; the report is due out in late October.
Intellectual Property Rights	Comment: Beijing appears to be complying with its commitments to adopt new legislation under the January 1992 bilateral accord, but weak implementation of regulations continues to cause concern.

Prison labor exports	Background: China and the United States signed the memorandum of understanding on prison labor exports in August 1992. Looking Ahead: Beijing is pressing Washington to close two cases involving the Beijing First Labor Reform Unit before granting a meeting with the US Embassy on recent cases referred by the United States.
Human rights	Background: China decided in mid-August to prevent labor activist Han Dongfan from reentering the country and revoked his passport, and a Chinese journalist was prevented from leaving the country and detained in early October. Democracy Wall-era activist Wei Jingsheng was released from prison after serving 14 years of a 15-year sentence for revealing "military secrets." US Assistant Secretary of State for Human Rights and Humanitarian Affairs John Shattuck visited China in mid-October for official talks.
Missile Technology Control Regime	Background: China agreed to abide by the guidelines and parameters of MTCR upon the US lifting of sanctions on satellite technology effective on 23 March 1992. Following a July 1993 fact-finding mission to Beijing by US Under Secretary of State for International Security Affairs Lynn Davis, the United States determined that China had shipped M-11-related equipment to Pakistan in violation of its MTCR commitment and, in August, imposed sanctions on the Chinese Ministries of Aerospace Industry and Defense. The sanctions prohibit for two years the export of controlled items to, contracts with, or imports from the sanctioned entities.

Sino-US space launch accord

Background: M-11 missile-related sanctions imposed on Beijing in August effectively prohibit the Chinese from fulfilling new contracts to launch US-manufactured satellites and block US exports to China of satellites and related components and technologies for up to two years. China, however, will be allowed to proceed with three launches of US-built satellites for which US export approval was granted before the imposition of sanctions.

Looking Ahead: Annual bilateral consultations on a 1989 Sino-US commercial launch trade accord are scheduled for November, during which talks on the extension or renewal of the pact--scheduled to expire in 1994--will commence.

US arms sales to Taiwan

Background: Beijing reacted sharply to last year's US F-16 sale to Taiwan, but limited its official response to a suspension of its participation in UN Perm-5 discussions on Middle East arms control. Recent additional US arms sales to Taiwan and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee vote to remove the ceiling on US arms sales to Taiwan evoked critical responses from China.

Comment: China does not consider the issue settled and, over the longer term, hopes to engage Washington in regular consultations on its future arms sales to Taiwan. To encourage such a dialogue, China is closely linking its missile proliferation behavior to US arms sales to Taiwan as a "regional arms control issue" of concern to China.

Chinese leaders may ignore the economic and diplomatic costs to Sino-US relations if they perceive that Taipei is openly moving toward independence or that foreign actions--including new arms sales to Taiwan--are directly challenging Beijing's claimed sovereignty over the island.

Multilateral Issues

General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade

Background: The 15th working party on China's GATT accession, which met 28 September-1 October, began to compile lists of issues for inclusion in the protocol. The United States met with its allies on the margins of the meeting to discuss a possible joint draft protocol.

In the third working party meetings on Taiwan's GATT accession in late June-early July, Taiwan requested a transition period for its sectors to adjust to GATT principles. In the fourth working party meetings held 12-15 October, Taiwan continued to resist bringing its trading policies in line with GATT rules, refusing, for example, to join the Government Procurement and Civil Aircraft Codes at the time of accession.

Looking Ahead: The next China working party will be held early next year. The next Taiwan working party will convene in Geneva in February or March 1994.

Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty

Background: Beijing acceded to the NPT in London on 9 March 1992.

Comment: NPT accession does not preclude nuclear cooperation with states such as Iran, which the US has said should not receive any type of nuclear assistance. In February, China and Iran finalized a contract for Beijing to supply two civilian power reactors in a deal likely worth $1.5 billion. Given China's longstanding ties to Pakistan's weapons programs, we believe that Chinese nuclear specialists continue to have contact with Pakistanis involved in nuclear weapons development.

Looking Ahead: The United States supports a proposal that the Nuclear Suppliers Group mission to China scheduled for October respond to questions that China may have about the Zangger Committee (comprised of nuclear suppliers that are party to the NPT; China is not a Committee member).

Nuclear testing	Background: China carried out an underground nuclear test on 5 October. Beijing refuses to commit definitively to a nuclear testing moratorium, links its participation in a nuclear test ban to no-first-use assurances by all nuclear weapons states, and routinely calls for the "complete prohibition and thorough destruction" of all nuclear weapons. Comment: China's decision to proceed with its testing program was driven by its need to modernize its nuclear force, built largely using 1960s and 1970s technology. Although Beijing has not rejected the possibility of a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty that might take effect in the mid-to-late 1990s, it has raised obstacles to Chinese participation. At a minimum, Beijing will insist on its testing options and will continue to try to make a ban contingent on drastic future US-Russian nuclear arms reductions.
Chemical Weapons Convention	Background: China signed the CWC in January 1993 and is participating fully in the Preparatory Commission meetings which are scheduled for at least the next year and a half. Veteran Chinese arms control negotiator Li Changhe has been confirmed as Deputy Executive Secretary. The MFA reportedly expects the outcome of the PrepCom meetings to be acceptable and that Beijing will ratify the agreement. However, the Chinese Government has promised its military that it will withdraw from the convention before submitting to any inspection which would threaten China's security.
North Korean developments	Background: China cautiously supported UN Security Council efforts to persuade North Korea to return to the NPT, which succeeded on the eve of the 12 June deadline. Beijing has hosted two rounds of bilateral talks between US and North Korean officials on the issue of resolving remaining points of contention over P'yongyang's nuclear capabilities.

North Korean developments (cont.)	Comment: Above all, the Chinese want to prevent instability on the Korean Peninsula. Beijing secretly dispatched several senior delegations to P'yongyang during the nuclear impasse, and Politburo member Hu Jintao recently ended an official visit to North Korea, during which he may have discussed international concerns about the North's activities.
Arms Control in the Middle East	Background: No UN Perm-5 ACME meetings have been held since May 1992. China withdrew its participation in the ACME talks in August 1992 after the United States announced it would sell F-16 fighter aircraft to Taiwan. Comment: China's decision to suspend--rather than unequivocally preclude--further ACME participation suggests Beijing is leaving open the option to return to the talks at some point.
Monitoring of sensitive technology transfers	Background: China in 1992 introduced several arms sales policymaking and technology transfer monitoring groups--such as the State Military Export Administration Commission (SMEAC), which it unveiled at the Sino-US "MTCR experts meeting" in March 1992. The SMEAC is reportedly administered by the Foreign Ministry, while other groups with such decisionmaking authority appear to have been weighted to gain military and defense industrial input. Chinese officials have claimed that Beijing has export controls in keeping with the CWC, which it signed in January 1993.

Comment: The absence of information from Beijing concerning the SMEAC and other monitoring groups since their introduction makes it difficult to confirm their effectiveness or even their existence on more than paper. For example, the inspection of the Yin He in early September appears to have alerted Beijing to gaps in its chemical oversight capabilities. It took nearly two weeks for the Chinese Government to respond to US demarches concerning the reported shipment of thiodiglycol, during which it conducted an internal investigation involving six ministries.

Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation

Background: China has accepted President Clinton's invitation to attend this November's leaders' summit during the APEC ministerial in Seattle. Beijing will accept Taiwan's participation at both the inisterial and summit, but only at a reduced level of representation.

Comment: Beijing wants to avoid lending political legitimacy to Taiwan authorities by allowing their representatives to participate in the meeting as equals with the Chinese. At the same time, the Chinese want a trouble-free summit and are probably gambling that, if push comes to shove, most if not all of the forum's other members will support Beijing on this issue. China is pleased that President Clinton will hold a bilateral meeting with President Jiang Zemin on the periphery of the leaders' summit.

China

Background

Secretary Christopher returned from China following meetings with President Jiang Zemin, Premier Li Peng and Vice Premier and Foreign Minister Qian Qichen. The Chinese reaction to his message on human rights was and continues to be generally negative. However, there were positive steps as well, including some movement on implementing our prison labor MOU, Chinese commitments on outstanding emigration cases and discussions regarding ICRC prison visits.

General Points

-- Our policy never has been to isolate China. As President Clinton made clear in his November meeting with President Jiang, our objective is to strengthen the basis for improving the U.S.-China relationship by addressing issues that have caused severe strains since 1989. Since last year, we have engaged the Chinese at a high level on a broad range of issues, including human rights, which are important to improving relations.

-- We will continue to develop this relationship in pursuit of our national interests, including enhancing respect for human rights, stemming the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, opening markets, and cooperating on global issues, including the North Korean nuclear program.

-- On human rights, the executive order issued by the President in May 1993, tying MFN renewal to human rights progress, was shaped in close consultation with the Congress. The specific conditions outlined in the executive order for renewal of most-favored nation trading status are reasonable, consistent and clear. We are asking China to follow basic standards of human rights that bind most nations of the world, regardless of region or history. The Chinese clearly understand our position, based in part on the straightforward message Secretary Christopher relayed during his visit to China last week.

-- Contrary to the impression of some reporting, the Chinese took some constructive steps on this front during Secretary Christopher's visit.

    -- They agreed to cooperate on ensuring that they do not ship goods to the U.S. made by prison labor.

    -- They agreed to resolve the few outstanding emigration cases.

    -- They provided more accounting on prisoners now being held, and agreed to provide information on Tibetan prisoners.

-- They noted that expert-level talks with the International Red Cross on prison visits will begin soon.

-- They agreed to review information from us on the jamming of Voice of America broadcasts into the country.

-- More work clearly needs to be done in the two months remaining before the decision deadline. We will be watching their progress closely.

Q: Shouldn't Secretary Christopher have canceled his trip in light of the Chinese arrests of dissidents?

A: Secretary Christopher went to Beijing at the invitation of the Chinese government. The Secretary's purpose was to make sure that the Chinese government--at the highest levels--does not misunderstand U.S. policy. The core of this policy is to strengthen the foundation for building a stronger long-term relationship with China through a resolute insistence on overall significant human rights progress. Strong bipartisan majorities of both the Senate and the House have insisted since 1989 on conditioning MFN extension on human rights progress, and the Secretary gave the Chinese officials a letter from 275 Members of Congress reaffirming that position.

Q: Did the Chinese ask Secretary Christopher to postpone his visit?

A: This is absolutely incorrect. Foreign Minister Qian had reiterated the invitation to Secretary Christopher in their January meeting in Paris and the Chinese confirmed plans for the visit again in late February, asking only that the Secretary not arrive on March 10, the opening day of the National People's Congress. The Secretary obliged by arriving on March 11. We are puzzled at post-trip suggestions from Beijing that they did not want the Secretary to come.

Q: Is there dissension within the United States Government over China policy, particularly between those concerned with trade and those who focus on human rights?

A: Our policy has not changed. While we value our economic relationship with China and seek to strengthen it, we believe encouraging Beijing to follow basic, universally accepted standards of human rights is important to China's full integration into the global community. Indeed, our conditions for renewal of MFN trading status are reasonable, consistent, and clear. If there is not overall significant progress in meeting these standards, China's MFN status will not be renewed.

Q: Won't the denial of MFN status cost thousands of U.S. jobs?

A: Our goal is not to deny MFN status, but rather to achieve overall, significant progress on what we believe are reasonable, consistent, and clear conditions on human rights. Some progress was achieved during Secretary Christopher's trip. We are hopeful that enough additional progress will be forthcoming to enable us to renew MFN.

Q: [If pressed: Is it correct, as suggested in the press, that Whitewater led the White House to cancel important meetings on China, and to take a harder line than otherwise might have been the case?

A: No policy meetings on China were canceled; there were some lower level communications meetings that included China which were rescheduled. Nor has there been a change in the President's strategy that was adopted last summer--to engage the Chinese at a high level on a broad range of issues, in order to facilitate greater progress on human rights.

Q: Was it a mistake for Assistant Secretary of State Shattuck to meet with Chinese dissident Wei Jingsheng?

A: No. It would be utterly unacceptable and irregular for U.S. diplomats anywhere in the world to limit their contacts solely to individuals approved by host governments.

Key issue to decide is summit schedule. I think State proposal makes sense and would be potent of some boldness for 2d term if it came out of Clinton-Jiang bilat in Manila.
